Florida Citrus Embargoed; Another Freeze Possible

LAKELAND (UPI) — Fruit pickers faced falling temperatures and soggy groves today while racing to salvage freeze-damaged fruit as weathermen predicted another possible freeze for part of the citrus belt Saturday morning.

Already reeling from a record surge of Arlie air that knifed through the state over the Christmas weekend freezing fruit and vegetables as far south as Miami, growers braced for another onslaught of cold air.

Freezing temperatures were forecast for Saturday morning in the northern section, and industry officials kept a wary eye on conditions.

They did not learn of the approaching freeze last Saturday night and Sunday morning until early Saturday afternoon.

"We certainly are concerned about the potential for another freeze," said Florida Citrus Mutual spokesman

Earl Wells, "but we will just have to wait and see how severe it will be."

As growers worried about more damage, the Florida Citrus Commission moved Thursday to keep already damaged fruit out of the marketplace.

The commission imposed an embargo on all fresh fruit shipments beginning at 7 a.m. Monday. The total embargo will exist for seven days. A limited embargo will continue for an additional 14 days on any fruit that falls to pass inspection.

Pete Knight, of the commission's Fruit and Vegetable Inspection Division, said the embargo is designed to prevent any damaged fruit from reaching northern markets and damaging the industry's image.

Knight said some damaged fruit already had been shipped out of the Sunshine State.

"It has been rejected at the other end because of freeze-damage," Knight said, adding the damaged shipment was found in South Carolina.

Knight said the inspection service would extend its hours of operation until 11 p.m. for the next three days. He said any fruit certified as good before the end of inspections at 11 p.m. Saturday could be shipped at any time.

The embargo will be sufficient unless the weather this weekend is severe, Knight said.

"This is a mighty early freeze and I don't know what we will have later on," he said.

Estimates of losses to citrusmen from last weekend's freeze range from $190 million cited by Florida Citrus Mutual Executive Vice President Bobby F. McKown, to $500 million by Florida Commissioner of Agriculture Doyle Conner.

McKown said his estimate was the amount orange growers lost in on-tree prices, with concentrated orange juice production to be down 54 million gallons because of the freeze. Conner's estimate covered the entire spectrum, including grapefruit and all other citrus varieties, tree losses and increased costs.

Weathermen said the citrus belt escaped any serious cold damage early today, but said a hard freeze was possible in the northern section of the citrus belt early Saturday.

"We certainly are concerned about the potential for another freeze, but we will just have to wait and see how severe it will be," Wells said.

"Warm rains are the worst thing that can happen to us right now," said Pete Knight of the state's Fruit and Vegetable Inspection Service. "What we would like to have is temperatures in the 40s and 50s."

1983 Growing Pains Beset Seminole

1983: Lives and lifestyles of Seminole County residents continued to be affected by the phenomenal growth of the area during the year just ending. New residents arrived at a rate of 1,300 every three months and residential and commercial construction as much as quadrupled in some areas of the county over 1982 levels.

Seminole County schools grappled with the challenge of housing an ever-increasing student population, while implementing new state requirements.

Sanford took steps toward two dramatic changes — rezoning the core residential area near downtown to single-family residential and, in response to a class-action suit by blacks, offering a compromise to change the city's at-large election of commissioners to election by districts.

Lake Mary spent much time searching for additional water supplies to meet the needs of its rapid growth and faced a probe of alleged wrongdoings on the part of its mayor.

County

Seminole County began the year with a new county administrator, T. Duncan Rose III, who said growth would be the biggest issue facing the county in the coming year. He suggested the county develop its use of computers to provide expanded services.

Seminole County Commission Chairman Sandra Glenn spent a large portion of 1983 lobbying for a county gas tax. The state legislature in March authorized counties to levy local gas taxes up to 4-cents per gallon and Mrs. Glenn said the funds were needed to improve roads in growing Seminole County. Despite opposition from senior citizens and other groups on fixed incomes, the commission approved a 4-cents-per-gallon tax, to be shared with municipalities within the county.

The county also tackled its space problems, decided to renovate the old county hospital and move commission offices there, leaving the judiciary free to expand within the county courthouse.

The commission approved a bond issue to provide four additional libraries, but Commissioner Bud Feather continued to insist throughout the year that the county won't have the money to stock, staff or maintain the facilities.

Existing county libraries in Sanford and Casselberry were forced to curtail services and rely more heavily on volunteer work in a cost-cutting move.

The commission continually heard from a group organized to help solve problems plaguing the Seminole and Volusia County SWAT teams search the Deltona Inn for fugitive Clarence Eugene Robinson, who shot two FBI agents at an Orange City restaurant in June.

It was determined that Christl Brodie, missing since Nov. 18, found dead Dec. 1, had been strangled.

Midway neighborhoods. The Midway-Canaan Neighborhood Economic Action Team, Inc., finally got the commission to agree to beef up the county's enforcement of existing health and building codes in the area, but pleas for drainage and road improvement funds went unheeded. The group promised to take its crusade to Tallahassee.

When the county's budget process began in May, Rose informed the commission it was facing an $8 million shortfall if it maintained its current level of services and proceeded with capital construction projects as planned.

But staff and commissioners managed to whittle away at budgetary demands here and there, finally approving a $67 million spending plan that included a slight tax reduction. But extra funds were borrowed from a health trust fund, against the wishes of Feather and Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff, who said he would have preferred a tax increase.

Schools

As Seminole County grew so did its schools in 1983. When classroom doors opened on Aug. 29 about 37,500 students and 2,000 teachers rushed in.

The force of students had increased by about 1,500 over the previous year, the result of development in the county, primarily in the Oviedo, Casselberry, Forest City and Wekiwa areas.

Keith Elementary School opened in Winter Springs with about 550 students. The majority of those students had been transferred to relieve overcrowding at Red Bug Elementary.

Portable classrooms were called into service at Oviedo High School and Lawton Elementary schools. Oviedo High School coped with about 1,700 students in a facility built for 1,100.

In Sanford three elementary schools entered their final year of service as a schools. Sanford Grammar, Hopper and South Side will be replaced by Hamilton Elementary School, which is being built at 1211 Mellonville Avenue.

Seminole County schools faced controversy early in the year when a group of disgruntled parents of Rosenwald Exceptional Education Center pupils complained the facility was totally inadequate. The parents protested a planned 7-classroom expansion of the school, saying a completely new one is needed.

School officials refused to back down, however, and continued to plan for the addition, saying the district has many building needs but funds are not available. Funds for the additional classroom were available through a state grant.

Another furor erupted when rumors spread that the administration had decided to close Crooms High School, the district's 9th grade center. Crooms had been the area's only school for black students, until an integration order in the early 1970s. The school, named after pioneer black educator J. N. Crooms, is of sentimental value to the black community and prompted black citizens to seek the school's continuance as a school. After the school board voted to merge Crooms' 9th grade students into Seminole High School, but the fate of the Crooms facility remained unknown, the black community held a "Save Crooms Jubilee." Hundreds of dollars were raised at the May 3 meeting, in conjunction with the NAACP, for a court battle to save the school if necessary. But the uproar died down when a federal court ruling approved the 9th grade merger with Seminole High providing Crooms remains a school.

A group of Lyman High School sophomores and juniors livened up their campus in April by wearing girls' mini-skirts in a protest against a ban on shorts. The boys said if girls could wear the revealing minis, they should be able to attend class in shorts. The administration didn't see it that way, but principal Carlton Henley said there's no rule against male students wearing mini-skirts.

Fraud Local Welfare Cheats Paid Back $11,717 Last Year; None Jailed

From staff and wire reports

A total of 22 persons were charged with welfare fraud in Seminole County last fiscal year, but none wound up going to jail and only about a third of their ill-gotten gains have been repaid.

Twenty-seven suspected fraud cases were referred to the State Attorney's office in Sanford for investigation during the 12-month period from July 1, 1982 to June 30, 1983. The five cases in which criminal charges were not filed were not prosecuted, because the suspects agreed to probation and a repayment schedule prior to going to court, according to Seminole-Brevard State Attorney Douglas Cheshire.

Of the $34,638 reportedly received by Seminole County welfare claimants through fraud, a total of $11,717 has been repaid, Billy G. Davis of the state's Division of Public Assistance Fraud. Cheshire said expects the full amount to eventually be recovered, but said it may be several years because those convicted of welfare fraud usually have very low incomes. They will remain on probation until the money is repaid, he said.

The vast majority of the fraud involved persons receiving food stamps and Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC).

The usual punishment for conviction in such cases, Davis said, is restitution and probation. Cheshire said he could not recall a specific case of someone in Seminole County being jailed for that type of crime in the past year.

"Seminole County is no better or no worse in this problem than any other county," Davis said. "The smaller the county the less the problem, because the opportunity is not as great as in large metropolitan areas where the number of incidents do increase."

Statewide, charges were filed against 88 percent of the welfare recipients and workers accused of fraud or other irregularities during the past fiscal year, according to state Auditor General Ernest Ellison.

Ellison Thursday said that his auditors uncovered 2,832 suspected cases of fraud during the 12-month period ending July 1 and referred them to state attorneys.

He said the alleged fraud cost taxpayers more than $4 million.

Of the referrals, criminal charges resulted in 88 percent of the cases and 147 defendants landed in jail.

The cases were among 37,717 investigated by Ellison's Division of Public Assistance Fraud.

Davis said of 1,684 cases completed by the courts during the year, all but 20 led to guilty pleas or findings.

Judges ordered restitution by convicted defendants totaling $2.1 million and imposed fines totaling $45,854, he said.

Davis also disclosed that Florida and several other southern states have tentative plans to compare their food stamp files in a search for people collecting food stamps in more than one state.

Lake Mary To Clarify Building Moratorium

The possibility of a water shortage caused by EDB contamination of municipal wells has prompted both Sanford and Lake Mary to impose a ban on further building until the problem is resolved. But unsure how to administer the ban, the Lake Mary City Commission has scheduled a meeting this afternoon to set policy on the matter.

The commission will meet at 1 p.m. in city hall.

The Lake Mary Commission met Friday at 3 p.m., two hours after an emergency Sanford City Commission meeting, and imposed a 60-day building moratorium and a ban on the use of water outside structures such as for car washing and lawn sprinkling, Sanford made an identical moratorium official Tuesday.

During the week, however, questions were raised about the moratorium, according to Lake Mary City Manager Kathy Rice.

The meeting is to clarify the moratorium, give it some parameters," Ms. Rice said.

She said people have asked if they can build a pool if they transport the water from elsewhere or if they can have a building permit if they sink a well on the property and agree to hook up to city water when it is available. Some questions involve the work of subcontractors working on buildings just under construction, such as the laying of a foundation, she said.

According to Ms. Rice, who has been Lake Mary's city manager for 1½ months, the citizens of Lake Mary, who depend upon Sanford for their potable water, have been cooperating with the city's effort to conserve water.

"You can't clean a building in Lake Mary, fill a swimming pool, use an ornamental fountain, or have defective plumbing," Ms. Rice said.

If someone is found to be violating the city's water restrictions, they will be asked politely by the police to stop, she said.

"If they do not stop, we'll turn the water off on them," she said.

Lebanon, Economy Topped National News

By Gall Robinson

The year 1983 ended with the sound of cash registers ringing up booming holiday sales. To merchants and shoppers, the throngs browsing and buying were yet another sign that the economy had bounced back. Inflation was low while unemployment levels were finally beginning to drop.

But events overseas cast a pall over the economic developments on the home front. The news from Lebanon, where U.S. troops were supposed to be keeping peace, was grim. As the year ended, there seemed little hope for an end to the conflict between the country's many rival factions and the United States was becoming increasingly involved in the conflict.

Here are the top 10 news stories of 1983.

Fighting continues in Lebanon as U.S. involvement increases. More than 200 Americans were killed in Lebanon this year as, for the first time, Americans and Arabs shot at one another.

On Oct. 23, a truck loaded with TNT smashed into the Marine barracks at the Beirut airport, killing 241 Marines and sailors. A similar attack on a French barracks killed 58. The bombs and similar terrorist attacks were thought to be the work of Muslims with ties to Iran.

U.S. troops were sent to Lebanon following the 1982 Christian massacres of Palestinians at two refugee camps in Israeli-occupied Lebanon. They were part of a multinational peace-keeping force intended to aid the government of Christian President Amin Geyayel.

After two were killed in August, President Reagan authorized the Marines to defend themselves and the Marines began shelling Druse and Syrian artillery positions.

The fighting continued to escalate as the United States began flying over Syrian positions. The Syrians, using Russian missiles, shot down one reconnaissance aircraft and one fighter plane. And the battleship New Jersey shelled Syrian and Druse positions.

President Reagan said the troops would remain in Lebanon until a political solution was found to the country's strife or the situation became "out of control."

Throughout the year, the Lebanese fighting brought death and destruction to Lebanese Christians and Muslims alike.

Meanwhile, some major figures in the Middle East began fading from view. Ariel Sharon was forced to resign as Israeli defense minister after he was implicated in the refugee camps massacres. On Sept. 15, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin resigned.

And Yasir Arafat seemed to have lost control of the Palestine Liberation organization. Syrian-backed Palestinians engaged PLO fighters loyal to Arafat in fighting in Lebanon. In December, the PLO forces allied with Arafat prepared to leave Lebanon.

U.S. economy stages a strong recovery. The recovery, which began in late 1982, picked up steam in 1983, ending the recession. By October 1983, the federal government's monthly index of leading economic indicators had risen for 14 straight months. In October, the Labor Department released figures showing that productivity had grown more in the past four quarters than in any other similar period since 1976.

NATION IN BRIEF

Congress Gets Pay Raise, Will Pay Social Security

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Members of Congress begin the New Year with a welcome pay raise of almost $2,500, boosting their annual pay to $72,243. But they also start making Social Security payments for the first time, wiping out the raise.

Senators, those making big money on the lecture circuit, will also find their annual income down because of a new $21,672 limit on honoraria.

Nor is the 3.5 percent pay raise, which begins Sunday for most employees of the federal government, a certainty for members of Congress.

Sen. Robert Kasten, R-Wis., told the Senate the last day of the session he would seek to rescind the raise — for members of Congress only — when the Senate and House return Jan. 23.

Beach Boy's Death Probed

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — It will take at least a week to determine if alcohol or drugs contributed to the accidental drowning of Beach Boys drummer Dennis Wilson, the coroner's office said after an autopsy.

Wilson, 39, drowned Wednesday afternoon while diving "for old chairs and junk" from a boat slip at Marina del Rey. Investigators said he had been drinking for several hours with friends on a sailboat before he dived into the 58-degree water and never returned to the surface.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Military Officers Charged In 'War' Against Leftists

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Five retired Argentine military leaders including ex-President Leopoldo Galtieri faced arraignment today on charges of torture and mass murder in the "dirty war" against leftists in the 1970s.

Two former presidents who were army commanders, an ex-navy commander and an ex-air force chief were arraigned on similar charges Thursday before the country's Supreme Military Tribunal on orders of Argentina's new civilian president, Raul Alfonsin.

Alfonsin says the commanders bore the greatest responsibility for the disappearances of an estimated 6,000 Argentines during the military's "dirty war" against suspected leftist terrorists.

Galtieri and Admiral Jorge Anaya may face the death penalty in another military trial yet to be held that will determine responsibility for last year's Falklands Island debacle.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: December's devastating deep freeze plunged temperatures below freezing today everywhere in the nation except Florida and the Southwest and threatened to duplicate an earlier cold wave that caused $200 million damage to the Texas citrus crop. Snow and freezing rain closed roads, downed power lines and triggered avalanches in the Northwest. A truck carrying nuclear fuel rods overturned on a "treacherous" snowpacked mountain highway in Idaho, but authorities said no radiation escaped. At least 449 people in 44 states have died since the year-end cold wave began more than one week ago. Among them were 203 victims of exposure and 114 people killed in weather-related traffic accidents. Sub-zero temperatures today covered an area extending from the Rockies across the northern and central Plains to the Ohio Valley. Single-digit temperatures froze much of the southern Plains.

DUI Law Upheld

Court: Blood Tests Given Drunk Drivers Valid

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — A key element of the state's reformed drunken driving laws has withstood an attack in the courts.

The 1st District Court of Appeal ruled Thursday that blood tests given suspected intoxicated drivers were valid during a six-month period before testing rules were developed.

The case could potentially affect numerous drunken driving cases.

The Legislature authorized the blood and urine tests effective July 1, 1982, but the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services did not complete the rules for administering them until Dec. 16, 1982.

Six drunken driving defendants in Duval County who had consented to blood tests contended the tests were invalid without the rules.

But the appeal court decided 3-0 that the rules were merely "procedural" and could be applied retroactively.

A county judge had ruled the tests invalid but was overturned by a circuit court. The 1st DCA supported the circuit court's action.

"Even without the rules governing the administration of chemical tests for blood alcohol content, the police had the authority to give the tests to the defendants," the appeal court said. "There is no constitutional impediment to a blood alcohol analysis with or without consent where probable cause has been established."

As revised last year, the drunken driving statute requires a suspected intoxicated driver to submit to a breath, blood or urine test at the request of a police officer or lose his or her license for at least three months.

The law gives officers the right to use "reasonable force" to obtain a blood specimen if there has been an accident involving "serious bodily injury." Blood samples taken during medical treatment of an injured driver may also be used as evidence without consent.

The lawmakers' chief reason for adding blood and urine tests to the standard breath tests was to measure the amount of drugs in a driver, which breath tests do not measure.

The defendants in the consolidated appeal included Steven Drury, Milford D. Guthrie, Danny Paul Johnson, Sandra P. Lemunyon, John D. Thompson and Ripley C. Davis.

Jackson: 'Let U.S. Flyer Go'

FRANKFURT, West Germany (UPI) — Jesse Jackson, arriving in Frankfurt, West Germany on his first leg of a "pilgrimage to Damascus," said today he intends to personally appeal to Syrian President Hafez Assad to release captured U.S. airman Robert Goodman Jr.

The Democratic presidential candidate, travelling without the backing of the Reagan administration, said he has "no signed contract" that assures his meeting with Assad or Goodman, but expects to meet with both in Damascus.

Goodman, 27, of Virginia Beach, Va., a bombardier-navigator for the Navy, was shot down Dec. 4 during a U.S. bombing raid over Syrian-held territory. His captors say he is a prisoner of war.

At a news conference at New York's

Kennedy Airport before leaving for Frankfurt, Jackson called his trip a "pilgrimage to Damascus to appeal to President Assad to free Lt. Goodman on humanitarian grounds."

Jackson said the length of his stay is "open-ended," but he will remain for "a sufficient time to make the moral appeal."

"And if we're very fortunate ... we will bring in the New Year right."

In initiating his trip, Jackson complained President Reagan was not doing enough to secure Goodman's release. He promised to cancel his journey if asked by Reagan; the president declined to return Jackson's telephone calls but told reporters he fears the mission could be "counterproductive."

U.S. Pullout Could Force Some Changes In UNESCO

PARIS (UPI) — The U.S. withdrawal from UNESCO, founded in 1946 in a spirit of post-war idealism by Western nations to help the Third World, marks a major turning point in the organization's history.

The Paris-based U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization was created in the belief that world peace could be furthered by educating impoverished people in underdeveloped countries.

But the United States, charging that the organization has adopted an anti-Western bias and is not properly fulfilling its charter, announced Thursday it would withdraw from UNESCO by Jan. 1, 1985.

One immediate effect the U.S. pullout will have on UNESCO is on its budget, UNESCO sources said.

Washington foots 25 percent of UNESCO's $374.4 million annual budget. The pullout will result in massive staff and budget cuts unless international loans can be obtained to make up for the loss, the sources said.

UNESCO sources also said other countries sympathetic to the U.S. move may decide to withdraw, too.

Motel Guests Evacuated During Early-Morning Fire

An early-morning fire necessitated a partial evacuation of a Sanford motel amid 40-degree temperatures today.

At 3:17 a.m., Anthony Parrish, of Sanford, heard a crackling noise above his motel room, according to Rosa Payton, one of the owners of the Sanford Court Motel.

What Parrish heard was a fire in the roof of the 12-unit motel at 2621 U.S. Highway 17-92.

Parrish then called the fire department as did a passing motorist, said Mrs. Payton.

"It was a good neighborhood watch," she said. "Have you ever hear anyone happy about a fire? I'm so happy it was so small. It did not enter a room," Mrs. Payton said.

The fire, which started in the corner of the L-shaped building, burned a 5-foot hole through the roof, caused the evacuation of four residents in adjacent rooms though some people slept through the whole ordeal, Mrs. Payton said.

Lt. Ron Neel, of the Sanford Fire Department, said the blaze, which did structural damage to the building, was caused by an electrical problem, either a short in a wire or a faulty ground.

No cost estimate of the damage has been made, Neel said.

THEFT FROM BOATERS

A $1,200 boat trailer was removed from the car of an Ohio couple who were boating on Lake Monroe at the time of the theft, between 10:30 a.m. and 3:45 p.m. Wednesday.

James and Phoebe Hughes of Greenwood, Ohio had parked their car and the boat trailer, which belongs to Robert Dorff of Altamonte Springs, at a launch site at Lake Monroe Wayside Park on U.S. Highway 17-92.

When the Hugheses, Dorff and his wife, Karen, returned to the launch site they discovered that in addition to the missing trailer, over $5,000 worth of other items including a radar detector, binoculars, a cassette adaptor, lantern, cash and a check had been taken from the car.

DOG GONE

A 14-month-old female pit bulldog valued at $100 was taken from the yard of Nordean Martin, 55, of 3220 Lincoln St., Sanford, between 3:30 and 10:08 p.m. Wednesday. A sheriff's report said a witness to the theft has given authorities a description of the suspect.

STOLEN CIVIC

John D. Daniels owner of B&J Daniels Auto Sales, U.S. Highway 17-92, Longwood, reported that a 1978 Honda Civic valued at $1,500 was stolen from his lot Tuesday or Wednesday.

BURGLARY

William D. Gemil, 23, of 1940 Howell Branch Road, Winter Park, reported that someone entered his house between Monday and Wednesday and took clothes and a necklace worth $280. Bemil told sheriff's deputies that a suspect may have used a key to enter his home and take the items, a deputy's report said.

Sanford

A threat to the city's water supply, election by district, rezoning, downtown development, and return of the Auto Train were some of the big stories in Sanford this year.

Although the effect of EDB found in the city's water supply may be debatable, it had an immediate reaction on Sanford officials — one giant headache.

With three of the city's 15 wells shut down because of contamination by the pesticide, ethylene dibromide (EDB), and three other wells suspect, Sanford officials declared a state of emergency as the year came to a close.

Measures were taken to curtail use of city water, alternate water sources were sought, and the city turned to the state for aid. As part of the water conservation measures, a 60-day moratorium was declared on new construction bringing the building boom to a screeching halt.

Residents were directed to use the water only for cooking, drinking and hygiene purposes.

To avoid a water shortage, two irrigation wells were put into use to supplement sagging water production and plans were made to drill several new wells. The state Department of Environmental Regulation also approved blending water from city wells with low levels of EDG with uncontaminated water as long as the concentration does not go above set federal limits of one drop per 110,000 gallons.

EDB, a suspected carcinogen, was found in three city wells at the Mayfair Golf Course on Nov. 15 after the county health department took samples for state analysis from the seven wells at the site. The city immediately ordered those wells shut down, losing 20 percent of its water supply.

In October, the City Commission voted to rezone a core area of the old city that had had a multi-family designation for 40 years to single-family residential, SR-1. The area rezoned is from 4th to 13th streets between Laurel and Palmetto avenues. Owners who had converted their homes into apartments or rooms for rent were granted up to two years to bring their houses up to code, particularly the fire code.

The Sanford City Commission voted unanimously this month to go ahead with the proposed redevelopment and beautification project for downtown Sanford. City attorney William Colbert said all legal obstacles to the plan were apparently removed.

George Algernon Speer, a Sanford attorney, opposed the project saying it was wrong for the city to spend $250,000 for a "non-public purpose." Speer, who filed suits to halt the city's plans, threatened in April to take his case to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary after he was turned down by the Fifth District Court of Appeal, but he would not comment on the city's recent vote to go forward with the plans. Widening sidewalks in the downtown area, constructing planters for flowers at designated areas, resurfacing streets, installing new street lights and closing a one-block section of Magnolia Avenue to vehicular traffic to create a pedestrian mall were part of the original plans.

Also this month, the city Commission agreed to negotiate a settlement of a lawsuit filed in federal court by five black city residents by dividing the city into districts, from which the commissioners will be elected. The black residents charged the at-large system of electing commissioners systematically denied blacks their voting rights. The commission agreed to accept a proposal from the attorney for the plaintiffs, David M. Lyman, that calls for the four commissioners to be elected from districts while the mayor would be elected from the city at-large. One of the districts would be predominantly black, two predominantly white and a fourth nearly evenly mixed.

Sanford got an economic boost in late October when Amtrak revived the Auto Train service between Sanford and Lorton, Va. with the first run sold out. Service now consists of three car and passenger trains a week between the two points and plans call for daily service beginning March 1. Earlier this year Amtrak paid $5 million to buy out the privately-owned Auto-Train firm, which went bankrupt three years ago.

Crime

It was a year of criminal variety in Seminole County, with a goat lady, an FBI fugitive, a three million-dollar arson, and a gruesome murder taking top attention in 1983.

Ingeborg Morris, 48, of Forest City, had her love for goats herded in the Seminole Circuit Court for a second time in February this year when she opened her Oak Drive home to seven pygmy goats. Mrs. Morris, an East German native, had earlier been told by Circuit Court Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. in June 1981 that she could not keep the knee-high Butler pygmy goat at her home.

Despite a court order, Mrs. Morris, known as the "Goat Lady," defended her second flock by saying she took only the sick and young ones to her home from her farm. At one point, Mrs. Morris took a baby goat and its nursing bottle into the courtroom.

"My animals are pets and they are not livestock. They are not for commercial use and they are not being used for slaughter," Mrs. Morris said.

Judge Mize disagreed in May — goats are not allowed in residential zoning — and found Mrs. Morris in contempt of court. Mize sentenced the "Goat Lady" to 30 days in the county jail. She was released by the judge in July after serving 25 days.

She now lives just inside Orange County, near Wekiva, with 20 goats on land zoned agricultural, said Greene.

Also featured in the pages of the Herald this year, was the saga of "the most wanted criminal in the state of Florida," Clarence Eugene Robinson.

Robinson, 39, a 6-foot, 200-pound former boxer with a 7th-grade education, eluded federal agents in a state-wide manhunt after allegedly gunning down FBI agents Thomas Sobolewski, 40, and Dennis Wicklein, 42, in Orange City when they tried to question him June 3.

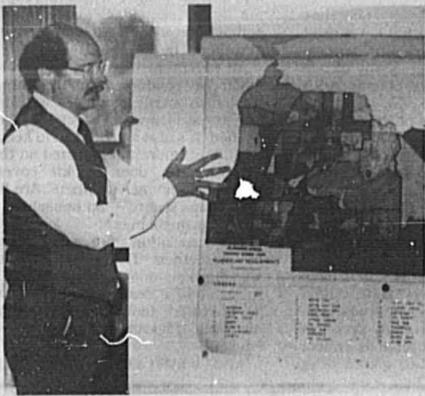

Despite an entire afternoon's search of the Deltona Inn, just over the Volusia County line in Deltona, where a couple maids said they spotted the fugitive, Robinson managed to slip through a dragnet which was monitored by "almost every man available," and made his way south to Miami with his girlfriend Darlene Boyd, 34, of Melbourne. Robinson turned himself in to federal authorities in Miami June 7.

Two weeks later, Robinson was indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of assaulting the two officers. His trial may start early in 1984.

Robinson was being sought by Florida authorities for the Dec. 29 murder of a reserve Seminole County deputy sheriff during the robbery of a drugstore in Longwood.

He is also suspected of killing two of his accomplices in the robbery who turned state's evidence, and a host of other charges including bond-jumping, drug dealing, and unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

In September, the Altamonte Springs Police Department scored a record drug bust when they confiscated an estimated 1.5 million in cocaine, $20,000 in quaaludes and several bags of high quality marijuana valued at $1,000. The drugs were found in a storage locker, along with wads of $100 dollar bills amounting to an estimated $40,000, following a tip from an

T. Duncan Rose, who took over the $44,000-a-year Seminole County administrator post in January, struggles with growth problems in the county. informant. Arrested in connection with the case was Jeffrey Scott Lang, 38, of Apt. 40, 100 Douglas Rd., Altamonte Springs.

A chemical fire that leveled a Sanford paint products plant made the headlines during October and November.

According to assistant fire chief Tom Hickson, investigators within a few days decided the blaze at United Solvents of America Plant at Airport Boulevard and McCracken Road was caused by arson. They also determined how the fire was set, according to Hickson.

There was no skirting the issue at Lyman High School in April when these male students demonstrated wearing mini-skirts to protest policy against boys wearing shorts. From left, Mike Garza, Scott Enterline, John Burket and Andy Ellmore.

June Lorman, top photo, was re-elected to the Longwood City Commission while Charles Glascock was returned as Casselberry's mayor.

On November 1, the investigator for the state fire marshal's office, Bob Christian, said "We have a list of suspect and we expect to make an arrest shortly."

To date no arrest has been made, according to the Sanford police.

The fire started at about 5 a.m. Oct. 29 destroying fuel tanks and barrels of petroleum products. It sent fireballs a hundred feet in the sky and spewed thick black smoke for miles.

The fire raged for more than two hours in the 44,000 square foot building before it was brought under control. Firefighters worked for more than a day to extinguish all the small fires that burned at the building. Several firemen kept a constant flow of water on a pair of railroad tank cars containing naphtha and mineral spirits which were parked at the sight.

The conflagration caused the evacuation of 20 homes in the area. No injuries were reported though eight firefighters did report minor skin irritations from exposure to the chemicals.

The company has submitted plans to the city to rebuild.

One drama, started in Sept., 1982, played through 1983, and not to be ended until Jan. 12, is the case of the torture-murder of 5-year-old Ursula Sunshine Assaid.

On November 4, Donald Glenn McDougall, 27, originally from Altamonte Springs, was sentenced to 34 years for the torture death of the five-year-old.

According to court records, McDougall tortured and beat the girl 55 hours before she died Sept. 25, 1982. After she died, the girl's mother, Susan Barrett Assaid, 30, and McDougall put the girl's body into a canvas bag and dumped the bag into an Altamonte Springs pond. The couple then left for California.

The Altamonte Springs police were alerted to the whereabouts of the girl's remains after Ms. Assaid told Riverside Calif., police of the death. Divers recovered the body after a nine-hour search.

In a May trial, Ms. Assaid pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the death of her daughter, Ms. Assaid, then eight months pregnant, had her sentencing delayed until June 16 so she could give birth to the child. On May 30, Ms. Assaid bore a 6-pound, 8-ounce boy who is now under the jurisdiction of the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

Ms. Assaid, serving a 15-year sentence for the manslaughter conviction, sees the infant once a week for one hour when he is brought to her by an HRS case worker.

On Jan. 12, the final disposition of the infant will be determined in court. HRS currently has temporary custody of the child and is expected to ask for permanent custody so the child can be put up for adoption.

According to Don Lykkebak, attorney for HRS, the service wants the baby to be adopted by a family that does not know the child's identity so that the future parents and the child never know of its background.

Another case made headlines late in the year when police began searching for a 56-year-old Sanford woman who disappeared.

The decomposed body of Christl M. Brodie was discovered Dec. 1 by four young Longwood men who were looking for metal cans in a wooded area west of Lake Emma Road between Longwood Hills Road and Lake Mary Boulevard.

Sheriff's investigators had searched that general area on foot, on horseback and in the air, looking for signs of Mrs. Brodie, who disappeared after leaving her job at Ross Supply, Inc., Longwood, Nov. 18.

The day after Mrs. Brodie, of 405 Temple Drive, disappeared her purse was found with all contents intact at a construction site near where her body was found. The company car she drove was discovered partially submerged in Boat Lake, behind Sobik's business office on U.S. Highway 17-92, on Nov. 20.

Sheriff's spokesman John Spolski said the accelerator of the car had been forced down and held in place with a concrete block, but there was no sign of a struggle or fingerprints in the car.

Mrs. Brodie's body was nude from the waist down and partially hidden by a covering of sticks and twigs when it was found. An autopsy, conducted at Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford, determined that she had been sexually assaulted and strangled.

Press And The Military

The antagonism that has showed up recently in the public's attitude toward the press has surprised most of us who work in the communications media. It must not be ignored.

When the Reagan administration and the Pentagon decided to conduct the Grenada invasion without allowing any representatives of the press to accompany the invading troops, there was an outcry of protest from the press. The public reaction to the protest, by any measure, was disappointing to the press. Polls showed a majority of Americans supported the government's policy.

Notably, the policy was supported by Americans in the military. In a recent speech, the admiral who commanded the invasion task force said the resentment of the professional officer corps against the press has become a cancer that can be cured only by improving the relationship between the military and the press.

We agree, and there must be effort on both sides of the relationship.

For our part, we believe the press must first of all recognize that there is a problem. It is not enough for people working in the news industry to close ranks and blame someone outside the industry. Like President Reagan or Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger. Instead, we should listen to the grievances expressed about our work and treat them seriously.

We have always recognized, or at least we should have recognized, that the press cannot remain free unless it is responsible and unless it is perceived as responsible by a majority of the people.

The press in America in all its forms — from the smallest newsletter to the largest television network — is a creature of society. It is not independent of or superior to the larger community. The fact that the Constitution tells the government to keep its hands off the press does not mean that the press operates entirely on its own, without having to answer to anyone. Like all freedoms, the freedom of the press carries with it a duty, and that duty is to exercise the freedom of the press in a responsible way.

The ethics of the news business is not always taught in newsrooms and in journalism schools with the same enthusiasm that the rights of journalists are emphasized. Just as lawyers and doctors and teachers are becoming more conscious of their ethical responsibilities, it is incumbent upon those who practice the craft of journalism to study their duties.

Journalism should be considered not just another job, not just a business, not just a way of making a living and making a profit, but a form of public service.

The privileges of the press are given in the name of the public. They derive from the public. A press card is no license for irresponsible behavior, whether it be arrogance, lack of sympathy for the feelings of individuals, or contempt for the processes of self-government.

The press does not exist merely to criticize or to uncover scandals. It has a positive responsibility to present the good news as well as the bad news. In the final outcome, even reporting the bad news can have a good result, if it contributes to the correction and prevention of errors.

Turning to the other side of the press-military relationship, the military was soured on the press by the Vietnam War, that tragic episode in our history. Many in the military became convinced that the purpose of many in the press was to sabotage the war effort. That was unfortunate. But it can be argued that the outcome would have been the same, even if no correspondent and no camera had ever been sent to Saigon.

The military must accept on-the-scene coverage of future wars. They will be fought on television every night in living rooms back home. That will not change the nature of war. It will give civilians a more realistic look at war, with all its horror and confusion. It will make our government and military commanders more directly accountable for the way in which they conduct war. That will be healthy for our democracy. War is not a private game. It is a public business and must be conducted as such.

Responsible people in the news industry should recognize that their coverage of military operations must be balanced, must be fair, must serve the best interests of the nation and must not be merely sensational.

Responsible people in the military should recognize that most news people are patriotic Americans and that the rules of engagement for any war fought by Americans late in the 20th century are going to include on-the-spot coverage by both print and electronic media.

BERRY'S WORLD

"But Allah wants to know how many people have we killed for him LATELY?!"

With a new year about to begin this might be a logical time to sweep out the old stuff in the family medicine chest. How long has it been since you've taken a look in there and thrown out old prescription medicines and outdated over-the-counter remedies?

By Diane Petryk

The Florida Medical Association has asked us to pass the word: it's not a good idea to keep outdated medicines on hand. So take inventory. Since many drugs change composition or lose potency with age, the first thing to do is check expiration dates on bottles or prescription labels, the association says.

Outdated items should be discarded, even if they still contain medicine. There's no economy in using what may no longer work or could be harmful.

If you have items on hand that bear no expiration life, ask your pharmacist about its shelf-life.

Also throw away medications that have changed in color, smell or consistency. Unless your doctor tells you otherwise, the association says, do not save any prescription drug after your need for it is ended. Neither is it a good idea to give a drug prescribed for one person to another. If you are unable to identify a medication — perhaps the label is missing — don't take chances, throw it away.

Some antiseptics should be replaced from time-to-time, too. Hydrogen peroxide and alcohol weaken with time, especially if not tightly capped. Peroxide must fizz on contact, or it's lost its protective punch and should be discarded.

An inventory of the family first aid kit could be conducted at the same time. Replenish sterile bandages and dressings and discard those packages that have been opened. It's also a good idea to keep poison treatment information posted on the medicine cabinet door or kit cover, with emergency phone numbers. Are tube and bottle caps secure — on household poisons as well as medicines?

The association advises care in disposing of medicines. Don't deposit them in wastebaskets or other places that may be in a child's reach. Children have unsophisticated taste-buds; they may eat anything, regardless of how it tastes or smells.

And while you're thinking about youngsters' safety, check to see if the medicine chest remains out of the reach of your growing child or lock it up. You could save your child's life.

Recognizing when a child needs medical attention can also save a life, says a message from pediatricians at Yale Medical School.

Because an infant or toddler can rarely tell you what's wrong, the pediatricians advise you ask yourself these five questions when your child is ill:

1. Is my child crying more or less than usual? Is it louder, more high pitched, more intense?
 2. Is he responding to me differently? For example, fussy about things he usually accepts calmly or extremely docile at times he's usually anxious?
 3. Are his sleeping or waking habits different from usual?
 4. Is his color off, unusually pale or flushed?
 5. Is he dehydrated? Test by putting your hand to his lips to see if they are dry.
- If the answers to these five questions are yes, the pediatricians advise, it may well be your child needs medical attention.

Religious Cover Tactics

An unfortunate feature of the times is the attempt to cloak political campaigns in the covering of religion. Those who do this endeavor to acquire for their causes the respect that normally is accorded religious activities.

A case in point was the political action undertaken earlier this winter by something called the Interfaith Women's Coalition to Stop Intervention in Central America. This is one of the numerous Left-oriented political groups that hope to mobilize public sentiment against the attempt of communist Nicaragua to solidify its revolutionary position in Central America.

In what the Coalition undoubtedly thought would be a highly successful publicity operation, 50 self-styled "peace pilgrims" were flown to Honduras. They said that they wanted to pray for peace at three U.S. military installations in the country. The Honduras, however, had their number. They said that the "peace pilgrims" came to pray, not pray. The politically active church-women were sent home. Another 99 were refused permission to enter the country even before they left New Orleans.

It is to be hoped that the American people won't be taken in by such sham religious activities. If the ladies wanted to pray for peace, they could have done so at home. They didn't need a political public relations spectacular in a small Central American country. Of course, there's no political propaganda mileage to be obtained from quiet prayer at home. The Coalition was interested in influencing the U.S. Congress and public opinion against the official policy of the United States, which is anti-communist and is determined to prevent the spread of communism to Honduras.

It's interesting to note the pattern of political groups which pose as religious organizations. One thinks of organizations such as Clergy and Laity Concerned, which is in the vanguard of the nuclear freeze movement, as well as the effort to halt U.S. resistance to communism in Central America. The activities of such groups is completely one-sided, always against the interests of the United States and other anti-communist nations.

Groups such as the Interfaith Women's Coalition target only anti-communist countries. One doesn't read about them sending "peace pilgrims" to Cuba, Poland, or Angola. One never hears of them witnessing against the Soviet Union because of its restrictions on freedom of worship. They don't seek to enter East Germany to protest against the planned deployment of new Soviet missiles.

Trying To Thwart 'Suicide' Missions

WASHINGTON — Terrorists from around the world quietly assembled in Mexico City on Oct. 21 for an underground convention. Many had studied Marxist ideology and "revolutionary" tactics together in training camps behind the Iron Curtain.

Out of this bizarre conference came instructions to intensify the terrorist campaign against the West. U.S. intelligence began intercepting sinister messages calling for attacks upon American installations. One message from Cuban leader Fidel Castro urged terrorists to "kill Americans." Other messages from Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini had a similar theme.

So far as I can learn, Castro sent a delegation to the terrorists' convention, but Khomeini did not. Yet in the murky netherworld of terrorists, the lines sometimes get tangled. For example, the Palestine Liberation Organization, which has ties to Tehran, was represented in Mexico City.

U.S. security experts, meanwhile, are searching desperately for ways to deal with the deadly threat. Their task is complicated by the suicide tactics of Khomeini's terrorists. As a State De-

Power And The Press

NEW YORK (NEA) — At President Reagan's recent press conference, ABC White House correspondent Sam Donaldson quoted Secretary of State George Shultz as saying that in World War II reporters accompanied our troops "because, on the whole, they were on our side. And then he observed that these days it always seems that the reporters are always against us." Donaldson wanted to know, "is 'us' the administration in power, or is there a higher duty that the press has?"

It was a good question. Mr. Reagan answered it by saying that "I thought the 'us' he was talking about was our side, militarily — in other words, all of America." But that doesn't, as Mr. Reagan undoubtedly knew, address Donaldson's real point.

What Donaldson was saying was that, in the case of future military operations at any rate, our media reserve the right to cover the story, not as partisans of the administration in power, but in the service of other purposes. Donaldson describes these purposes as some sort of "higher duty," and if pressed would probably say that he was speaking only of the media's duty to tell the "truth." But this is merely self-serving; the important point is that Donaldson is claiming for the media a right to accompany U.S. troops on future military enterprises and to report from the battlefields, not as sympathetic observers but quite possibly as hostile ones, in the service of nothing more elevated than the national committee of the party out of power, or even of the enemy.

And that raises problems that American society simply hasn't yet confronted squarely. Up until about 20 years ago, the media could pretty generally be counted on to identify itself with the larger purposes of the American government of the day. Even as late as the Korean War, American reporters were seldom openly negative in their reports, however great the reservations they may have felt about our generals' conduct of the war, or even the wisdom of waging it at all. But, since Vietnam, we have had to recognize that "all of America" (to use Mr. Reagan's phrase) no longer exists as a volitional entity.

Add to this the growing flexibility and speed of television coverage of military operations, and a democratic society has a real problem. Given the nature of battle, "our" TV cameramen are going to be in a superb position to photograph the mangled bodies of American soldiers, as well as to cover (especially if our troops are advancing) any damage our guns or bombs have accidentally done to civilians, schools, mental hospitals and the like. Coverage of similar (or far worse) episodes involving enemy troops is likely to be much less complete.

If, as is altogether likely, the operation is one of which the media disapprove (as they were obviously preparing to disapprove of the invasion of Grenada, if it had only lasted long enough for them to get ashore and unlimber their cameras), the American people will be called upon to endure nightly illustrations of the ghastliness of war of an order totally different from anything ever previously experienced by untrained, unprepared civilians on the home front.

Can a volitional democratic society be expected to "stay the course" in the teeth of such propaganda? (And it will be propaganda, lopsided and tendentious, for you can be sure it won't be accompanied by any balancing review of the considerations that made the military operation in question necessary in the first place.)

I put that question to Henry Grunwald, editor in chief of all Time Inc. publications, in the course of a recent television interview. He replied: "I have to believe that living in a democracy the people can, indeed, withstand a lot of shocks in the long run." And later: "In the long run, we, as a democracy, I hope can withstand these things."

The three shlekdoms at the top of the list not only have to worry about the Shlites but the Palestinians as well. As oil-producing countries, some have been obliged to retrench and lay off Palestinian workers. Those disoriented Palestinians may be ripe for terrorist recruitment.

A special report prepared for Sen. John Warner, R-Va., warns that "use of car-vehicle bombs is expected to grow in number in the Middle East and other geographic areas as well." The fear is that other terrorist groups will attempt similar suicide attacks.

"More imaginative terrorists could apply the general technique to other venues," the report states, explaining that "witting (or even unwitting) suicide bombing attacks" could be made using light planes, helicopters or speed boats.

Warner, a former secretary of the Navy, is expected to lead the Senate response to the findings of the Pentagon commission on the Beirut bombing in which 240 Marines died. While publicly expressing his confidence in the Pentagon commission, Warner has been pursuing his own informal investigation into the tragedy.

One of Warner's most significant preliminary findings involved anti-terrorist training in the armed services. He found that while considerable funds have been spent on this specialized training, the Pentagon somehow has failed to match its anti-terrorist experts with the areas most in need of them, like Lebanon.

According to a report prepared for the senator, the available anti-terrorist training "has not been used to a significant degree" by the Marine Corps, presumably because the Marines' traditional all-out combat role had little need for such training. Of some 7,000 military people who took the Army's anti-terrorist courses since 1980, only 57 were Marines. An Air Force course trained 1,300 since 1982 — but only 119 were Marines.

DON GRAFF

Time For Some Homework

Lebanon got the headlines in Ronald Reagan's recent seasonal press conference, but it was his remarks on El Salvador that caught my attention.

Responding to a question on death squad activity, the president reaffirmed support for a Salvadoran government that, as he put it, "has made it plain that they are trying to establish democratic principles and policies."

And against such odds. "They're being assailed from the left by the Cuban and Soviet-backed guerrilla forces. But at the same time they're being sniped at from the rear by — they're called death squads and the so-called rightists who, by the same token, don't want democracy."

One can only wonder where he gets his information. On the face of it, certainly not from anyone who really knows anything about the Salvadoran snafu.

First, let's briefly examine that government.

In October of 1979, junior officers ousted the latest in a line of military dictators. They set up a civil-military junta and initiated reforms, including a land redistribution program.

The program lasted 10 weeks. More conservative officers moved in, the government shifted to the right and reform stalled.

The shift was accelerated by elections, held under U.S. pressure in 1982, that unexpectedly removed the largest political party from power, gave control of a new constituent assembly to anti-reform rightists (nothing "so-called" about them) and made Roberto d'Aubuisson, who was chosen assembly president, the most powerful man in the country.

D'Aubuisson and fellow rightists are now the government of El Salvador. (The president was right on one point, however: These rightists certainly don't want democracy — by any token.)

As the choice of the majority of an elected assembly, no matter how skewed its election by prevalent terrorism among the voters, d'Aubuisson has greater legitimacy than the nominal provisional president of the country. That president is one Alvaro Magana, a banker with an extremely low political profile (his primary qualification) who was installed by the army over the opposition of the assembly majority, which wanted d'Aubuisson.

Now about those death squads. Far from sniping from the rear, they are, in effect, agencies of the government.

Christopher Dickey, until recently reporting from Central America for the Washington Post, explores their origins and allegiance in a recent issue of the New Republic.

They were born, he writes, in El Salvador's three security forces — the National Guard, the Treasury Police and the National Police.

In And Around Geneva

Pair Marks 47th Anniversary

Warmest congratulations to Clara and Tom Fuller.

Mr. and Mrs. Fuller were married 47 years Christmas Eve.

Clara and Tom have two sons: Steve and wife, Cindy, and two children, Windy and Travis Fuller. They live in Geneva. Mr. and Mrs. Fuller's other son, Dwayne and wife, Phyllis, and two children, Kim and Mike Fuller, live in Alabama.

Congratulations to Sandy Chaudoin and Dwayne Cornett. They became engaged Dec. 19.

The wedding will take place in Geneva July 10.

Birthday congratulations to Betty Price on Dec. 29. Betty is proud to say that she will be the golden 50 years old.

Jeannette and Ray Foley spent a Christmas holiday with her parents, Geneva and Charles Slocumb of Jacksonville.

The family had a nice dinner and gift exchange Christmas Eve.

When the Foleys returned home, they discovered their Solar System pipes had burst and left water in their house and ruined their garden.

They really have the spirit, though, because Ray and friends cleaned and repaired the damage.

Gina Hattaway has been chosen to be one of the state finalists in the Miss Florida American Co-Ed Pageant.

Gina will go to Tampa for the pageant April 20-22. She has been dancing for 10 years and loves working with children in her spare time, she says.

Gina goes to Oviedo High School where she is a freshman. Gina hopes to be a pediatrician.

According to Don Crabtree, we have some more teens to be proud of in Geneva. The teens belong to a program with the Seminole Sheriff's Department called "Youth Deputies."

The teens meet each week and have their own deputy uniforms. They also get to ride patrol occasionally with experienced officers while on special duty.

Special recognition to the following teens: Alan Flynn, David Whitacre, Alan La Chance, David Childers, and Terri Paris.

Don't forget about meetings in Geneva at the community hall: Homemakers Club, 10 a.m., second Wednesday each month; and Geneva Citizens Association, 8:00 p.m., first Monday each month.

Geneva Citizens Associations meeting has been changed from Jan. 2 to Jan. 9, because of the holidays.

Ledia Muchow will be the speaker this month. Ledia is a taxpayer specialist. She has a Master's degree in Basic Tax Law and will be able to answer many questions.

Several Geneva grove keepers say they got hurt pretty hard with their fruit loss during the recent freeze.

Evans Bacon said this has been the worst freeze since 1962 on the groves. "We will not know how bad the fruit is ruined, though, for 12 more days. It was quite a surprise to all of us."

Simon Harper says he picked one to two week's fruit from the trees but it will be mainly only good for juice. The tangerines are all ruined, he says.

Yank Beardsworth has just started her business as a grove keeper and selling fruit the past month for the first time, but she has a sense of humor about her bad luck.

She said they ran water on the trees to keep the fruit from freezing, but the icicles took a reverse action.

'Mr. Wonderful' May Be A Wimp, After All

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating the most wonderful man in this entire world for the last four months. (I'll call him Henry.)

His mother died, and Henry asked me if I would go to the wake with him. Of course I said I would, and I did.

Well, his ex-wife of 16 years showed up. (I would like to make it clear that they were divorced before I got involved with him.) His "ex" did in fact use this occasion to cry on the shoulders of Henry's brother and sisters — not about the death of their mother, but because she and Henry were divorced and he had another woman by his side.

As a result of this, Henry's family asked him not to bring me to the funeral, so he didn't. I can hardly control my rage over this. What should I do.

EXCLUDED

DEAR EXCLUDED: Rejoice. If this hadn't happened you might have gone on thinking Henry was the most wonderful man in the world — instead of a wimp who does what his family asks without thinking it through and with total disregard for your feelings.

DEAR ABBY: I enjoy getting mail. Is there some way I can get my name on a mailing list so I can get what is called "junk mail?" I was told that the post office makes money on every piece of mail it handles, so it encourages it.

I would like to get some junk mail. I am 74 years old. Thank you.

Dear Abby

VACAVILLE, CALIF.

DEAR VACAVILLE: It's simple. Just order one item you see advertised in a magazine or catalog: personalized stick-on address labels, flea powder, greeting cards, vegetable seeds, bicycle horn — anything at all will do. I promise you, in no time at all you will need a bigger mailbox, which can also be ordered from one of the many catalogs you will receive after your initial purchase. Once your name goes into the computer, it will breed like a hutch full of rabbits.

[Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.]

Seminoles Stumble Early, Edgewater Soars To Title

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

For the second time this season, Sanford's Lady Seminoles got off to a bad start against Orlando Edgewater's Lady Eagles. And, for the second time, it came back to haunt the Lady Tribe.

Edgewater broke out to an early 10-2 lead Thursday night and Seminole didn't recover in time as the Lady Eagles claimed a 51-44 victory and the championship of the Lady Hawk Invitational tournament at Lake Howell High School.

"We didn't come out aggressive enough on offense, we didn't get the ball inside enough," Seminole coach Ron Merthle said. "We executed pretty well and did most of the things we wanted in the game, but the bad start really hurt us."

It was the 12th straight victory for the unbeaten Lady Eagles who also won the UCF Sun Roast Tournament in November, knocking off Seminole in the semifinals. The Lady Seminoles, who had a 10-game winning streak snapped, now stand at 10-2 for the season and will be back in action Wednesday against Five Star Conference foe DeLand at Seminole High.

Edgewater, which has won four of the six Lady Hawk Invationals, came out sizzling in the first quarter and scored the first six points of the game before Mona Benton got the Lady Seminoles on the board. The Lady Eagles scored four more unanswered points to take a 10-2 lead and Edgewater led, 10-4, after the first quarter. Seminole hit just 2 of 13 shots from the floor in the first quarter while Edgewater made 5 of 11.

Edgewater built its lead up to eight points midway through the second quarter, but Seminole came back to cut it to two, 19-17, on a jumper by Dieldre Hillery. Edgewater's Sharon Simmons came back to hit two quick buckets before the quarter ended, though, to give the Lady Eagles a six-point lead, 23-17, at halftime.

The Lady Eagles upped their lead to seven, 26-19, early in the third quarter, but Seminole reeled off five straight points to cut the Eagles' lead to two, 26-24. Seminole never managed to tie the game or take the lead in the third quarter as Edgewater took a three-point lead, 34-31, into the fourth.

It was the same story for the Lady Tribe in the fourth quarter. It got close on several occasions, but could never tie the score or take the lead despite the fact that two of Edgewater's top two players, Tris Bell and Rena Harrison, fouled out.

Edgewater rebuilt its lead to seven points, 43-36, with 3:30 left in the game, but Seminole kept fighting as Hillery made four straight points to cut it to three, 43-40. Hillery had a chance to cut it to two with 2:18 left as she fouled after dropping in a layup, but she missed the free throw and Edgewater came down and scored to regain a five-point lead and sew up the championship.

Bell and Mary Joiner led the way for Edgewater with 12 points each and Bell led in rebounds with eight. Simmons added nine points for the Lady Eagles and Pam Payne tossed in eight. Hillery led Seminole with 14 points and eight rebounds, but her streak of reaching double figures in scoring and rebounding ended at 11.

Rain Washes Away Soccer

Lake Howell, the lone county team with a chance for the championship in the Pizza Hut Soccer Invitational, will try again today after rains washed away Thursday's games at Bishop Moore High School.

The Silver Hawks, who whipped powerful Boone Wednesday, take on Bishop Moore at 6 p.m.

Other games include: Edgewater and Evans at 12 noon. Lake Mary and Boone at 2 p.m. and Miami Killian and Clearwater Central Catholic at 4 p.m.

4A Killian and 3A Clearwater Central Catholic, both defending state champions, are favored to take the tournament.

games. Benton and Catherine Anderson added nine points each for the Lady Tribe. Tournament MVP Maxine Campbell was held to six points.

In the third place game Thursday night, Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks built a big lead early but saw it dwindle away in the third quarter as Orlando Evans scored 15 straight points and went on to claim a 59-51 victory and the third place trophy.

Lake Howell ran up a 7-0 lead early in the first quarter and led by nine, 17-8, going into the second. The Lady Hawks went up by as much as 13 in the second quarter and took a 10-point lead, 33-23, at halftime.

The Lady Hawks built a 14-point lead, 37-23, early in the third quarter, but Evans then went on its scoring binge, reeling off 15 straight points and taking a 38-37 lead. Lake Howell regained the lead by the end of the third quarter, 41-38.

The two teams traded buckets for the first few minutes of the fourth period, but, with the score tied 47-47, Evans scored 10 unanswered points to take a 57-47 lead and ice the victory.

Cynthia Williams led the way for Evans with 22 points and 12 rebounds while Cassandra Cameron added 19 points and Audrey Jefferson tossed in nine. Tammy Johnson led the way for Lake Howell with a game-high 23 points, giving her 72 points for the tournament, a new Lady Hawk record. Janene Brown added 10 points and 14 rebounds for the Lady Hawks while Monica McNeil pulled down 12 boards and Christy Scott grabbed 11 rebounds.

In Thursday's fourth place game, Lake Mary's Lady Rams built a 10-point lead, 17-7, after the first quarter and cruised to a 55-39 victory over Winter Park's Lady Wildcats.

The Rams held on to a nine-point lead, 27-18, at halftime behind Laura Glass' 12 first-half points. Lake Mary led by 11 after three quarters, 38-27, and Winter Park never got closer than nine points in the fourth quarter.

Laura Glass led Lake Mary with 19 points while Andrea Fenning did a fine job off the bench with 13 points and Kim Averill tossed in 10. Nina Tobin led Winter Park with 11 points and Jeri Ferree added 10.

Kiel Directs Irish Past Boston College

Liberty Bowl

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — It had been a long time coming but Blair Kiel silenced his critics and proved he could play on the same field with Boston College quarterback Doug Flutie.

The Notre Dame captain lost his starting job three games into the season but Coach Gerry Faust gave him another chance in the final game of his collegiate career and he led a 19-18 victory over the 12th-ranked Eagles in the frozen Liberty Bowl Thursday night.

"I'm so glad for Coach Faust," said Kiel in the jubilant Fighting Irish locker room. "He's come under a lot of heat, but he's worked hard and never gave up on us. He deserves this victory more than anyone else."

Notre closed the season with three straight losses and tried to back out of the Liberty Bowl commitment. There was speculation that Faust, now 18-15-1 over three seasons, might be fired if he didn't win but university officials denied his job was in jeopardy.

As for Kiel, he had not started the last eight games but an impressive showing in relief in a 23-22 loss to Air Force prompted Faust to give him another chance. He said his goal was to show he could "play in Flutie's league."

Kiel completed 11 of 19 tosses despite the 12-degree temperature — including a 14-yard scoring pass to Alvin Miller — and directed a ground attack that saw sophomore tailback Allen Pinkett gain 111 yards and junior fullback Chris Smith add 104. Pinkett scored the other two Irish touchdowns on runs of one and three yards.

Willie Mitchell goes high in the air to snare a rebound. The 6-3 Seminole senior made the key grab as the Tribe upset a good Decatur, Ga., team, 71-70, in the Kingdom of the Sun Holiday Classic Thursday in Ocala.

Mitchell Snares Big Board, Tribe Stuns Decatur

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

OCALA — After Sanford's Willie Mitchell had clutched the biggest rebound of his career Thursday night to send the Fighting Seminoles into the consolation championship game of the Kingdom of the Sun Holiday Classic, there was just one question to be answered.

How far did that right hand reach? Some speculated it went to midcourt. Others said it went clear across Ocala. One observer tracked it to Leesburg. Another had it going all the way to Seminole County. NASA had it sited somewhere over the Caribbean.

Regardless of destination or distance, when the 6-3 senior forward came down with the bounding ball and just 10 seconds to play, it put the clamps on a Decatur, Ga., comeback and secured Seminole a 71-70 victory over the defending tournament champions and a spot in today's consolation finals.

Seminole, which was in a similar position last year, plays Miami Carol City at 1 p.m. Carol City squashed Groveland, 71-31, but Groveland played without all-star Cornelius rodus, who sat out with a sore tooth.

Even Mitchell was unsure of how far he extended for the rebound. "It just kept bouncing around," said Mitchell about the Decatur attempt. "I didn't know if I could get it, but I knew I had to get it."

After Mitchell grabbed the board, he was fouled and had a chance to sew up the game. His free throw bounced out, however, and Decatur hurried the ball up the floor. Sharpshooter Roland Shelton let fly with three seconds left, but his shot hit the back of the rim and caromed high in the air. Seminole's William Wynn then tipped the ball into the backcourt as the clock ran out to preserve the win.

"We tried our best to let them have it," said an exasperated Seminole coach Chris Marlette. "We missed all those free throws at the end (5 of 6) or it wouldn't have been close."

Seminole, 8-3, broke out of the gate

Kingdom Of The Sun

intending to run the Bulldogs back to Georgia. With point guard Bruce Franklin running the fastbreak to perfection, Sanford broke open a 15-15 deadlock with 21 consecutive points early in the second quarter.

"We really put it on them in the first half," said Mitchell, who finished with 12 points and a career-high 22 rebounds.

Mitchell, Wynn and 6-4 Jimmy Gilchrist dominated the taller Bulldogs on the backboards, taking advantage of 6-8 Mike Covington's early foul trouble to snare an early lead.

Wynn, a 6-2 senior, was especially deadly. The lefthander hit several short jumpers in the second period to key the surge of unanswered points. "Wynn really came on," said Mitchell. "I don't know what got into him. I guess his girl friend was here and he wanted to impress her."

Seminole did impress. Franklin found James Rouse for two breakaway layups and when Kenny Gordon and Rouse knocked down four free throws in the final 40 seconds, Seminole took a 42-23 lead into halftime.

The second half started in similar fashion as Mitchell hit a free throw, Gilchrist and Rouse added buckets and Franklin streaked down the middle for a duet to give the 'Noles their biggest lead — 52-31 — with seven minutes to play in the third quarter.

Decatur, which also won the Georgia state 3A title last year and sent three players to major colleges, finally woke up midway through the quarter.

Behind the brilliant outside artillery of Shelton, Decatur outscored Sanford, 14-5, the remainder of the quarter to pare the lead to 58-47.

In the fourth period, the Tribe had to fight for its life. Gilchrist hit two baskets early and Franklin converted four free throws to keep Seminole on top, 68-62, with three minutes to play.

A minute later, Rouse made a big steal to put the Tribe up by 70-64. The 'Noles then went into a delay game, which backfired when only Franklin could hit a free throw for a 71-66 edge with 1:11 to play.

Tim Wright hit a short jumper and Shelton fired in another bomb and Wright came back with a nice baseline move to pull the Bulldogs within 71-70.

Franklin then tried to dribble through four players and traveled Shelton, who finished with 20 points, scurried down court and let fly with 33 ticks to play. Mitchell, however, came out of nowhere and blocked the shot.

He recovered the ball and threw up court to Rouse who had a breakaway, but the junior guard lost his balance and Decatur recovered the ball for one last try for victory.

Wright passed to Shelton on the right wing and he fired away. Mitchell reached into the ionosphere for the ball and was fouled. He missed the free throw and Shelton reloaded again with three seconds left. The shot bounced high off the rim and Wynn tipped away Decatur's last chance for victory.

"That has to be one of the biggest wins in Seminole's history," said an impressed Ocala Vanguard coach Jim Huley. "They beat a heckuva team."

Marlette was also impressed. "Talent-wise, Decatur has the best team in the tournament," he said. "One guy said we were 18-point underdogs."

"But I knew we were ready to play. I've never seen the kids are quiet as they were today before the game. They came in ready. Mitchell had a great game and Wynn was just super."

Franklin, who converted 11 of 19 free throws, led Seminole with 19 points and seven assists. Rouse was next with 14 and Mitchell chipped in 12 and five assists. Wynn picked off five Decatur passes, handed out five assists, hauled down eight rebounds and contributed 10 points.

Behind Shelton's 20 points, Wright finished with 17 and Bobby Reinhart added 13.

In the championship semifinals Thursday, St. Anthony's (N.J.) and Washington D.C. Macklin both posted impressive victories to move to tonight's 9:30 final.

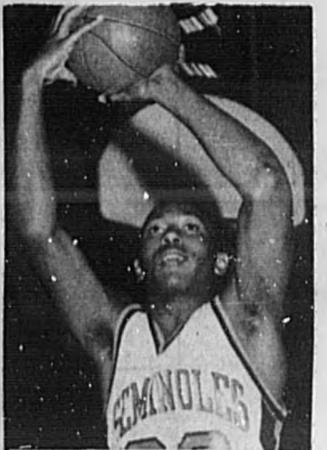

Macklin used its superior height and strength to whip Vanguard, 70-57, and Macklin was too quick for Clearwater, 58-43.

Edgewater pressed Stuart Martin County all over the gym to move into today's fifth place game with a 73-56 win. The Eagles will play Palm Beach Gardens, which overcame 2A powerhouse Hawthorne, 61-57, with a furious, fourth-quarter rally.

By the fall, the yearly inflation rate was around 5 percent. Unemployment, which in January had been 10.8 percent, had fallen to 8.2 percent by November.

Some economists and administration critics, however, charged that the recovery could be short-lived because of the federal deficit, which is expected to remain at around $200 billion for the rest of the decade.

The recovery didn't help everyone. Black unemployment in November was still 17.3 percent, although that was a drop from previous months, when it had been above 20 percent. And in August, the Census Bureau said that 15 percent of Americans were living in poverty, the highest percentage since 1965.

The Soviet Union shoots down a civilian airliner, killing 269 people. On Sept. 1, Korean Air lines flight 007, en route to Seoul, strayed over Soviet airspace and was shot down by the Soviet Union. The plane crashed into the Sea of Japan, killing everyone aboard, including Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., chairman of the John Birch Society.

The plane was off course for a few hours and was near a highly sensitive Soviet military installation. The Soviets never apologized for the attack and charged that the plane was on an intelligence mission. On Sept. 28, a statement by Soviet leader Yuri Andropov blamed the United States for the loss of life.

Most of the world reacted with revulsion to the Soviet attack. The sanctions imposed on the Russians were, however, fairly mild.

U.S.-Soviet relations become icier as U.S. deploys missiles in Europe. The United States began deploying 572 medium-range Pershing and Cruise missiles in Western Europe after voters in West Germany and England elected governments which support the deployment.

In October, U.S. cruise missiles began arriving in England.

This, and the shooting down of the Korean airliner by the Russians, led to a deterioration in U.S.-Soviet relations. On Nov. 23, after the West German parliament reaffirmed its support for the deployment of missiles, the Soviets walked out of negotiations with the United States on reducing medium-range missiles. The Russians also suspended START (Strategic Arms Reduction Talks). On Dec. 15, talks on troop levels in central Europe were also suspended, bringing all arms negotiations to a halt.

Meanwhile, many observers wondered who actually was running the Soviet Union. Russian leader Yuri Andropov dropped out of sight in August and, at present time, had not been seen in public since.

During the year, peace activism was on the increase at home and in Europe. In April, the U.S. Roman Catholic bishops issued a pastoral letter calling for a curb on new weapons. In December, the ABC television movie "The Day After" was watched by some 100 million Americans.

In Europe, throughout the year, mass demonstrations were held to protest the deployment of U.S. missiles.

U.S. troops invade Grenada. On Oct. 25, 1,900 U.S. troops, along with a small force from six Caribbean nations, invaded the Caribbean country of Grenada. Prior to the invasion, Marxist Prime Minister Maurice Bishop was overthrown and killed by hardline Marxists.

Reagan said the United States landed on the island at the request of other Caribbean nations to "restore order and democracy" and to protect the lives of 1,100 Americans.

The 1,900 Americans encountered resistance from Cubans and, according to the Pentagon, 18 Americans were killed. The United States said it killed some 59 opponents.

Most Cuban resistance ended after a few days and the last American combat troops withdrew in December.

An interim government was sworn on Nov. 15 and said it would hold elections in the nation, which has 110,000 residents.

Most countries, including many U.S. allies, condemned the military action.

Philadelphia and Chicago elect black mayors. On April 12, after one of the most acrimonious campaigns

In memory, Democrat Harold Washington defeated Republican Bernard Epton to become the first black mayor of Chicago. Voting in the nation's second largest city was split along racial lines, as many white Democrats voted for Epton, who is white.

Things were quieter in Philadelphia, where, on Nov. 8, city manager Wilson Goode defeated white Republican John Egan to become the first black mayor of America's fourth largest city.

Top administration environmental officials resign amid controversy. During the winter, scandal hit the Environmental Protection Agency. The furor involved access to documents, cleanup of toxic waste dumps and conflicts of interest and alleged favoritism of corporate polluters by the agency.

Originally, the controversy centered on Rita Lavelle, who headed the cleanup program. She was charged with perjuring herself before Congress and favoring her former employer in a toxic cleanup case. In February her appointment was "terminated" and she was later convicted.

By March, a number of top officials, including administrator Anne M. Burford, had also been forced from their jobs. William Ruckelshaus, a former EPA administrator, replaced her.

Interior Secretary James Watt, perhaps the most controversial member of the Reagan Cabinet, resigned Oct. 9. He could not survive the furor that ensued after he boasted of a commission, "I have a woman, a black, two Jews and a cripple." Watt was replaced by national security adviser William Clark.

Sally Ride becomes the first U.S. woman in space. On June 18, the space shuttle Challenger, with physicist Sally Ride aboard, blasted off, making Ms. Ride the first American woman in space. The other four members of the crew were men. The shuttle landed June 24 after a near-perfect mission.

On Aug. 30, another Challenger flight took the first black American, Air Force Lt. Col. Guion S. Burford into space. He was also a member of a five-person crew. The successful mission ended Sept. 5.

U.S. steps up pressure on Nicaraguan government while civil war in El Salvador rages on. In August, the United States began joint military maneuvers with the Honduran government. At the same time, the United States sent Navy ships to the central American coast. The moves were apparently aimed at the leftist Sandinista government of Nicaragua.

The administration continued its support of "contras" who are trying to overthrow the Nicaraguan government.

In July President Reagan denied that this country wanted to have a larger presence in central America. He charged that the Cuban-backed Sandinistas were spreading revolution.

Fifty-five U.S. advisers remained in El Salvador to aid the government in its fight against guerrillas there. On May 25, the deputy commander of the U.S. military group was killed in San Salvador.

The civil war in El Salvador continued amid charges that right-wing death squads linked to the salvadoran military were responsible for the murders of hundreds of Salvadorans. On Dec. 11, the administration told the Salvadoran government to exile or expel people involved with the death squads. If it did, the administration said it would increase military aid to El Salvador.

On Nov. 30, Reagan vetoed legislation tying military aid to El Salvador to progress on human rights.

The race for the Democratic presidential nomination heats up. By year's end, eight Democrats had announced their candidacy for the party's 1984 presidential nomination.

Most pundits were calling it a two-person race between former Vice President Walter Mondale and Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, the former astronaut. And Mondale seemed to have the lead. He was endorsed by the FL-CIO on Oct. 1, and by a number of prominent Democrats.

On Nov. 3, Jesse Jackson, a black minister and civil rights activist, announced his candidacy, immediately enlivening the race. The candidacy of Jackson, who urged the formation of a "rainbow coalition" of minorities, women and workers, seemed likely to attract more blacks to the polls.

Rheumatic Big Toe Is Caused By Gout

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am afflicted with a rheumatic big toe. It doubles in size and is very uncomfortable. My doctor has diagnosed it as gout caused by too much uric acid in the bloodstream.

He has prescribed Col-Benemid. Sometimes it helps, but other times nothing happens. Can you help me get real, rather than temporary relief, from this condition?

DEAR READER — Gout has plagued man through the ages. Michelangelo had it; so did Ben Franklin. The medicine you are taking is a combination of colchicine and probenecid (Benemid). The colchicine helps control acute attacks of rheumatism and the Benemid aids in eliminating the excess uric acid through the kidneys.

There are really two aspects to managing gout. One is treating the acute attack when it occurs. Some medicines, such as colchicine, are good for this, but may not be helpful in preventing a subsequent attack. Other medicines lower the uric acid level by filtering it out through the kidneys; others prevent the excess production of uric acid by cells.

Today it is recognized that the major portion of your uric acid is formed by your own body cells. It is an inherited trait to form excess amounts of uric acid. A relatively new medicine called allopurinol (Zyloprim) is used successfully in many patients to prevent the formation of excessive amounts of uric acid. In this manner, it prevents attacks. But Zyloprim is of no value in treating the acute attack.

Diets are useful in some people, but the success of medicine — particularly allopurinol in controlling the level of uric acid — has led to much less reliance on dietary restriction than in the past.

It is important for people with gout to know, however, that fasting and crash diets may precipitate an acute attack.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have never heard anyone snore worse than my daughter. She can be in a light sleep and know what you are talking about and still snore. It has been to worry us. She is 50 years old and it seems to be getting worse. I'd appreciate any information you have.

DEAR READER — Snoring seems to be one of those problems that we do not have a good answer for. I am convinced that almost everyone snores, but some snore louder and more often than others.

Many remedies really are directed toward keeping the person of his back.

It is not dangerous to snore. The danger is for those middle-aged, overweight men who stop breathing while they snore. This is called sleep apnea.

Snoring and sometimes a sleep apnea may be associated with an overgrowth of tissues at the opening of the windpipe. These vibrate to cause the sound. They also can obstruct the windpipe causing apnea. Some ear, nose and throat specialists now cut away the excess tissue.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

bid. Then, North felt that he was strong enough to accept with his four-heart cue-bid.

South went past game with five diamonds and now North jumped to six spades.

West opened the jack of spades. South won with dummy's ace and decided that since he needed to take a diamond finesse come what may, he would take it at trick two. When it worked, there was no need to worry about the missing queen of trumps as long as West didn't hold it along with the nine.

South laid down his king of spades and when the queen dropped, he was left with a heart finesse for a possible seven.

Suppose the queen had not dropped. South would have cashed his ace of diamonds, entered dummy with a club, ruffed dummy's last diamond and played clubs. As long as East held the trump queen, he could ruff it if he wished or could wait until clubs were all played. It wouldn't matter. Eventually, he would be thrown in with that spade queen and forced to give South the rest of the tricks on the end play.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

Both North and South overbid on their way to the spade slam, but there was a good reason for it. North thought that they were using limit jump raises and that his hand was an absolute maximum. South thought they were playing forcing jump raises, so he felt that he was entitled to invite a slam with his four-club

'One Life' Role Is Lived By Brothers

DEAR DICK: I would like to know if the actor who plays Larry Wolek on the soap opera One Life to Live is the original one who starred when Larry Wolek was first written into the show. — C.L.G., Saginaw, Mich.

No. But it was kept in the family. James Storm was the first one to play Larry Wolek. He was replaced by his brother, Michael Storm.

DEAR DICK: I asked CBS for Jan Smithers' address. Instead of getting her address, I got a big run around. I am 14-years-old and I am a nice, cool-headed boy. I am not like John Hinkley! I want her address so I can send her a poem that I spent a long time perfecting. So could you find her address for me, please. Thank you. — B.B., York, S.C.

You are obviously a nice, cool-headed boy and a polite one. I am sure you wrote a lovely poem. And I do admire your taste, because if I was going to write anybody a poem, aside from my wife, it might be Jan Smithers. However, I have to decline to give you her address (even if I knew it, which I don't). The thing is even though you are cool-headed, others might not be. And we wouldn't want Jan to have her address fall into the hands of some hot-headed nut, would we? That is why I do not give addresses, and will not give addresses.

DEAR DICK: I read The Thorn Birds several years ago and thought it was one of the best pieces of fiction I had read for some time. I have been waiting for its TV appearance eagerly. I see it won some Emmys, so I must have missed it. When was it on TV? Will it be shown again? — H.L.K., Fairhope, Ala.

When you miss something, you miss it in a big way. The Thorn Birds was on last March 27, 28, 29 and 30. It will be rerun, surely, although no definite date is set at the moment.

DEAR DICK: My sister and I were wondering if Michael E. Knight, who plays Tad Martin on All My Children, is the brother of Christopher Knight, who played Peter Brady on The Brady Bunch. They look and act alike. — M.A., Lawrenceville, N.J.

No, they are not related at all.

DEAR DICK: Who plays Ed Sullivan in Billy Joel's video Tell Her About It? — J.D.G., Springfield, Md.

That's Will Jordan, who has made a career out of impersonating Sullivan.

DEAR DICK: Is the series For Love and Honor filmed on a military base? If so, which one? — N.M., Essexville, Mich.

The interiors are shot on a Hollywood sound stage, but they do go to Fort MacArthur, in San Pedro, Calif. which is on the outskirts of Los Angeles, for the exterior shots.

Variety And Price Make It Nice

Try Dining In Sanford: You'll Like It

Sanford is fortunate in having a variety of restaurants available, most of which offer substantial fare at moderate, if not downright, reasonable prices.

Anything from "down home country cookin'" to dishes with a touch of the international can be found in this community. Chicken and pizza are popular favorites, according to most restaurant owners interviewed, but so are steaks, seafood and other upscale dinners.

Breakfast seems to be a big deal at a small price here with many restaurants serving up platters of sausage gravy on biscuits or the more customary eggs, bacon and...

Restaurants which have been featured in this space during the past eight months exhibit a menu aimed at pleasing the local clientele. Keep it simple, as the expression goes, although simple does not mean without planning, care, thought and, of course, much hard work.

The results of the restaurant features in this space have been surprising to the dining place owners in many instances, bringing many new faces through their doors to try their tempting feasts.

A restaurant advertising on this page for 13 consecutive weeks is entitled to a feature article at least once during this period of the contract. No extra charge is made for this promotional story, which is usually handled through an interview with the owner or restaurant manager.

Multiply this by the average response to consistent advertising, and it is not difficult to understand the excellent reception to the whole program.

Cost of the program is minimal, based on a $4.45 per column inch rate for the weekly ad only. The feature appears Thursday in the Herald Advertiser and, again, on Friday in the Evening Herald's Leisure Magazine...in time for the weekend.

People everywhere enjoy going out and Sanford residents are no exception and, more than that, they like reading about their favorite restaurant, or one they have not visited in some time, or, perhaps, the "new eatery on the block."

Winter Running

Keep It Up
But Take Some Precautions
To Ward Off
Old Jack Frost

Suzanne Hawk of Casselberry is shown sporting what the well-dressed jogger is wearing this winter season — a warm sweatsuit. And if the temperature dipped even lower, Suzanne would don cap and mittens to further guard against the effects of prolonged exposure to the cold. Severe winter weather is usually not a problem for Florida runners, but medical experts warn that ignoring those occasional cold snaps can lead to trouble. Page 2.

Key To Winter Running Is Common Sense

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

Dr. James E. Quinn says there's no reason you can't continue a running program outdoors all winter — providing you use a little common sense.

But you may need to proceed with some caution if you haven't considered winter's shorter days.

Quinn, emergency room physician at Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford, said if you don't adjust your schedule as the days get shorter you may run into trouble while running in the dark.

Quinn, 32, who has run in the Boston Marathon, said, "The greatest danger to a runner at any time is being hit by a car and the danger increases in the dark."

"When a runner is injured it's usually because they aren't seen. If there's an accident between a car and a jogger there's a very high probability the runner will be killed or permanently injured."

If you must run in the dark, Quinn said, "run in an area where traffic is low and there are sidewalks. Wear highly visible clothing, including a reflective vest or shoes with reflective tags. And run on known terrain."

"If you run on the same course all the time you know where the potholes are, but if you run on unfamiliar ground in the dark you're begging for a leg or knee injury."

Quinn also said women joggers should be extra cautious about the timing of their runs, because they are especially vulnerable to sexual assault and should never run alone in the dark or in isolated areas.

Florida's mild winters are ideal for running. Quinn said runners need to be careful not to overdress, because as they run they will become overheated, "which is the big problem for summer runners here."

"I don't see any restrictions on people running in winter, except for those who have a medical condition such as asthma and should not be exercising in cold weather," he said, adding that asthma attacks can be triggered by cold air.

There's no such things as the 'frozen lungs' some people talk about, Quinn said, even among Eskimos mushing across Alaska.

At the other extreme, "if you are heat acclimated you can run in any weather. You just have to slow your pace and take plenty of fluids if it's extremely hot. If you stop sweating and feel confused you need to stop running and seek medical attention, because you may be on the verge of a heat stroke."

If you do find yourself running in extremely cold weather, Dr. Peter G. Hanson, director of exercise physiology and cardiac rehabilitation at the University of Wisconsin, said that the main thing to be concerned about is protecting exposed skin and appendages from frostbite.

He recommends starting with synthetic underwear that doesn't absorb perspiration, but allows sweat to pass through so there's no build-up next to the skin.

Hanson said men have to be careful of penile frostbite and should wear wind-proof plastic briefs when it's cold and windy.

Over the underwear should go shorts, a shirt and a windbreaker. Quinn said a hat is very important, because most body heat is lost through the head. Gloves should be worn to protect the hands.

Quinn said in planning your cold weather run you should know the direction of the wind and go out against it and return with it to your back. He said if you start out with the wind at your back you'll be sweaty and uncomfortable on the run back.

He said that hypothermia, rapid loss of body heat in extreme cold weather, should not be a great concern to runners who are in good physical condition.

Quinn said there is less stress on the heart and lungs when you run in the cold because your body temperature will rise in any case and the cool weather acts as a radiator, drawing off excess heat.

He said even most people with asthma can run safely and in comfort in the cold if they get an inhaler from their doctor, which they would use a few minutes before their run.

Coach Bill Payne, who plans exercise programs for Seminole Community College, said runners should limit the distance they run to about 20 miles a week no matter what the weather and should have an alternate form of exercise, like weight lifting or swimming, to turn to when they can't run or to supplement their running program.

Return Of U.N.C.L.E.

Robert Vaughn, right, and David McCallum, as super agents Napoleon Solo and Illya Kuryakin, come out of retirement to battle their arch enemy, THRUSH, in Return of the Man From U.N.C.L.E. which will be re-broadcast Saturday at 9 p.m. on CBS.

Jill St. John Dresses The Part

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — When Jill St. John started on the CBS series Emerald Point, N.A.S. the first thing she bought was a scale.

And it's not because having a weekly series makes her worry about gaining weight.

"I have to be very conscious of two things," she says. "One is getting enough sleep and the other is eating. If I go without a meal, I lose weight and then my face looks too thin."

So every morning she climbs aboard her scale. And even though she admits to eating more than her share she has hardly gained half a pound.

But she has always been on the thin side. Even as a teenager, when most girls tend to be pudgy, she was the thin one in the crowd.

"For a while," she says, "I had a little of what they call 'puppy fat.' I was never really fat, though, just a little more rounded. I lost it when I got older. Thank goodness."

Miss St. John is having fun with her role as Deanna Kincaid, the resident vamp on Emerald Point N.A.S. It's always a pleasure for an actress to play that kind of role.

"They told me going in," she says, "what sort of a lady I was going to be — and they didn't lie. They told me she was devious and a manipulator, but that she would have strength and vulnerability and even sweetness."

"It sure beats the nice little housewife part. I had been offered a part like that last year, the series turned out to be a hit, but I turned it down because I thought I'd just be collecting a salary. I want more than that."

To meet their goals, Miss St. John says, it is important for actors to understand the value of going to Hollywood parties.

"Parties in themselves don't mean anything to me," she says, "but it's the only chance you get to see certain people. For example, at a recent party, I sat next to Cary Grant all evening. This is not torture."

"Last year, I went to a party in honor of Aaron Spelling and I was wearing this incredible red sequined dress. And I saw Esther Shapiro."

About a week after the party, she got a call from Esther and Richard Shapiro, who created Emerald Point N.A.S. They said they were interested in her for a part in their new show.

NBC's 'Manimal' Is An Endangered Species

By David Handler

Maybe it's the "catchy" title. I don't know. But Manimal is the show everyone was joking about last spring when the networks announced this fall's lineups.

Overnight, this NBC action series about a crimebuster who can transform himself into any member of the animal kingdom became a symbol for how cretin-like prime time TV is getting.

Tony Randall, bitter that NBC canceled his Love, Sidney, speculated that for the Manimal Thanksgiving episode TV's new superhero would turn into a turkey and eat himself.

Then came more laughter this fall when NBC yanked Manimal after only a few weeks. Sickly ratings. Ah yes, Manimal had lived up — or down — to everyone's expectations. Watch it while you can. The show is an endangered species now that NBC has announced it will be yanked off the air in January.

I finally got a chance to watch it. It's not awful. It's silly. Boy, is it silly! This isn't a TV show — it's a Saturday morning cartoon done with real people.

There's a lot of that going around these days. I think the networks are giving us a hint: Should you be over the age of 11, do not look here for your entertainment.

Manimal doesn't bore you or annoy you so much as it does make you feel left out. It's downright unfair.

Our cartoon superhero is Jonathan Chase (Simon MacCorkindale), a "wealthy, young and handsome" professor of animal behavioral sciences, and "master of the secrets that divide animal from man, man from animal."

He employs his secrets in the pursuit of truth and justice. The transformation part is especially hysterical. Shades of the old "Wolfman" movies.

First his hands start to pulse, throb and bubble. Then they turn into paws or claws. Then his face gets furry or feathery. Then — kapow! — he's an airborne pigeon, tailing a bad guy through the city streets. Or a panther sneaking into the heavily armed headquarters of a maniacal kung fu master.

Anyway, Jonathan lives in a mansion that's part-house, part-zoo with his sidekick, Tyrone (Michael D. Roberts). They're sort of unofficially attached to the Gotham, er, New York City Police Department.

Comely Detective Brooke McKenzie (Melody Anderson) not only knows

Jonathan's secret but gets all googy-eyed when he's around. Her boss, Lt. Rivera (Reni Santoni) sort of puts up with him.

Each week, Jonathan stumbles onto some really keen case and gets to the bottom of it.

One week he and Brooke find a human skeleton buried at the beach, the hand gripping a piece of scrimshaw. Its symbols turn out to be the secret of the treasure of Topaz Island!

Mostly, the stories exist to provide Jonathan with as many opportunities as possible to turn himself into some form of wildlife.

Lock him in a closet and he'll turn himself into a rampaging bull. Lock him in a car's trunk and he's a vicious panther clawing his way through the back seat. It all gets a little unwieldy after awhile.

In the Topaz Island episode, for instance, the thugs tie him to the pontoon of a seaplane and take off, but before they can cut him loose and send him to Certain Death, he's already turned into a hawk.

Then, when he and Brooke and Ty get to Topaz Island, she starts sinking in quicksand — it spells Certain Death — until he turns into a snake so she can grab one end and Ty the other.

C'mon, this is getting ridiculous. How about something for grown-ups to watch? How about bringing back Rocky and Bullwinkle?

Actresses Exercise To Keep In Shape

By Elaine Thompson

For most actresses, keeping the body trim is a daily concern.

Jaclyn Smith, who plays Sally Fairfax, the wife of a good friend of George Washington's in the upcoming eight-hour CBS miniseries, "George Washington," had even more of an impetus to keep in shape. "Nobody knows how she looked," says Miss Smith, referring to Sally Fairfax. "but it had to be good."

Even in her 80's she was said to have a sparkling personality, to dress well and to have maintained a fine slender figure."

Dina Merrill, mother of grown children, is another actress who stays slender due to sipping iced tea often, eating carefully and beating most comers at tennis.

Svelte, vibrant Kitty Carlisle Hart, who took over the "On Your Toes" role, is best known for her appearances on the game shows "What's My Line" and "To Tell the Truth." Ms. Carlisle Hart still fits into any outfit she ever acquired as an adult.
