Conference Called By Warfield To Settle Argument Between The Pros And Cons But No One Shows Up Except The Pros

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., July 25.—(INS)—The Everglades Drainage Conference held in Baltimore last week at the call of S. Davies Warfield, president of the Seaboard Air Line railway, failed to accomplish its real purpose, in the opinion of Chief State Drainage Engineer Fred C. Elliott upon his return to the state capital today.

The conference, according to Elliott, was primarily called in order to have both factions in the Everglades controversy meet for the first time to discuss some of the drainage features and the $20,000,000 Everglades Drainage bond issue which were the chief issues in the controversy between various individuals and the government.

The meeting would have settled the drainage controversy once and for all, in the opinion of Chief State Drainage Engineer Fred C. Elliott upon his return to the state capital today.

Regency Takes Over Rule Of Rumania

BUCHAREST, July 25.—(INS)—The regency issued today a proclamation announcing that it is taking over the administration of the country in the name of King Michael I, emphasizing that King Michael I comes to the throne by the wish of the late King Ferdinand, under constitutional principles. The regency's proclamation pledges to work for the peaceful consolidation of greater Rumania and appeals to all loyal subjects for aid. King Michael has ordered his court in mourning for a period of six months.

NAVY FLIER SETS ALTITUDE MARK FOR LAND PLANES

WASHINGTON, July 25.—(INS)—Lt. C. C. Champion, Jr., crack flyer, this morning broke the world's altitude record for land planes.

The altimeter on the plane showed that Champion went up between 43,000 and 45,000 feet. The present record is 40,820 feet, held by Calizzo, a Frenchman. The altimeter will be checked by the Bureau of Standards before the record is officially credited.

After making the record, Champion had a narrow escape when a cylinder head broke and he made a forced landing near Bolling Field. He maneuvered the plane successfully, however, and was uninjured. The plane was not materially damaged.

On May 6, Champion established a new altitude record for seaplanes when he climbed 33,455 feet. Champion used a regular service Wright Apache plane.

Carl E. Schory, secretary of the contest committee of the National Aeronautic Association, was the official witness to the record breaking flight.

Five persons had been advised that Champion would attempt to smash the record this morning. Only a handful of fellow officers were at the station to congratulate him. Champion started up shortly before 7 o'clock.

Champion had an amazing escape from death when his plane caught fire in midair. He was seven miles above the ground when the broken cylinder ignited the fuel tank around the engine. Sending his plane into a nose dive and holding the "joy stick" with his knees, Champion sprayed the flames with a small fire extinguisher. He continued this extraordinary fire-fighting while diving seven miles to earth.

Spectators saw the smoke trailing his plane as he fell through the skies but the flames were extinguished when they reached the side of the plane after he landed. Champion immediately left for the Navy Department to make a personal report on his flight.

Herald Gets Peaches From Sandy Anderson

A crate of Elberta peaches, grown in the sand hill section of North Carolina, has been received by The Herald from Sandy Anderson, field agent from the American Fruit Growers Inc., who at present is located at Southern Pines, in charge of the crop being shipped by his company from the Tar Heel state.

The peaches were gathered from the extensive orchard of the Watch Hill Orchard Company and are of large size and of delicious flavor. In presenting The Herald with a crate of peaches, Mr. Anderson is following a custom observed by him for several years.

through the boat, with one eye shut, the other injured and with blood streaming from his nose, the former champion tottered around the ring like a second rat, according to the Sanford man. Sharkey had the edge all the way through and but for the fatal foul blow, would have won easily in the opinion of Mr. DeCottet.

Asked about the blow which Sharkey is said to have landed on Dempsey's head after the going sounded, Mr. DeCottet said the actual happening was just the reverse. The Boston fighter had started for his corner when Dempsey suddenly whirled and landed a heavy punch back of the ear, according to Mr. DeCottet.

The fight attracted one of the largest crowds in history and the largest assemblage that ever attended non-championship affair, said the Sanford man. Mr. DeCottet was in New York on a short business mission and availed himself of the opportunity of witnessing the big bout.

Free Farm Books Are Offered By Trammell

Copies of the 1926 agricultural year book, prepared by the federal government, are now available and may be secured free of charge by communicating with Senator Park Trammell, according to the Herald from Florida's junior senator.

The publication is just off the press and has been carefully prepared at considerable expense by the Department of Agriculture, according to Senator Trammell. The book contains much valuable information to the farmers and those interested in the handling of farm products, and those interested in securing a copy may do it by writing to Senator Trammell at Washington.

BEGGAR ASKS FOR SENTENCE OF 30 DAYS IN PRISON

Orlando Man, In Atlanta And Unable To Get Work When He Is Broke; Makes Unusual Request Of Judge Who Accedes

ATLANTA, July 25.—(INS)—Justice took a new turn this morning in Judge A. W. Callaway's court when he sentenced Halie Kinaldi, 30, Orlando, Fla., to 30 days in the city stocks on a technical charge of idling and loitering, entered against him at his own request by his friend and helper, Patrolman S. P. Tuck.

Kinaldi was arrested early this morning when Officer Tuck noticed him wandering aimlessly up and down Peachtree Street. He told the officer that he had come to the city without funds in search of work and that he had been without food for several days. The officer, impressed with his story, took him to a restaurant and gave him a big breakfast and some money to help him in his search for a job.

Officer Tuck took him to his home that night and gave him his meals, in payment of which he helped about the yard in the morning and then sought employment. He did not return to Tuck's home Saturday night and it was not until this morning that the policeman saw him again. He asked that he be sentenced to thirty days in the city prison farm to pull himself together, and in the hope that in that time he might find work.

Justice allowed his freedom at any time when it is available. In the interim he will work on the prison farm for his "three squares and a flop."

Patrolman Shoots At Tires But Hits Man

IRVING, N. Y., July 25.—(INS)—A bullet from a patrolman's gun was held today on a technical charge of murder following the death of Andrew Kelly, alleged bootlegger, who was shot Sunday in a chase through the streets here.

Pennell claims he aimed to shoot at the tires of Kelly's car, the bullet going wild and killing Kelly instantly. The driver of the alleged liquor car, S. W. Mitchell, was arrested. Five gallons of liquor and an empty can were found in the machine, police claim.

Commission Votes To Pass Laws Upon Arms Sales And Carrying Concealed Guns

Ordinances providing that a maximum penalty for carrying concealed weapons be increased from $50 to $100, and that local dealers in firearms be compelled to furnish police with a record of all guns sold, their numbers and the names of their purchasers, were approved this afternoon by the City Commission at its regular meeting.

Both ordinances were passed at the request of Chief of Police Roy G. Williams who explained that they were necessary for the protection of life and an aid to the authorities in tracing criminals. It was said that a heavier penalty on carrying concealed weapons would have the effect of materially checking the promiscuous carrying of weapons. The ordinance regulating the sale of firearms is modeled after that of Jacksonville, it was stated. Commissioner Housholder introduced both measures.

A question of making changes in the city building code in regard to the extension of the city limits to certain parts in East Sanford. This action was taken after Commissioner Housholder pointed out the fact that the affected portion was mainly for farming purposes and should not be taxed for city improvements.

Registration List Is 2,160 At Noon

A total of 2,160 registrations was listed on the city books at noon today, according to figures submitted by the city clerk's office. Forty-two registrations were recorded this morning and as many if not more are expected this afternoon before the books close at 5 o'clock.

Registrations came in at a faster rate this morning than any other day since the books opened, according to city hall officials. It is believed the total will reach 2,200 this afternoon. This figure will be much smaller than the registration list that Sanford should have, according to officials of the city who say that there are 3,000 to 3,500 people in Sanford eligible to vote.

FARM RELIEF IS WARMSUBJECT AT GOVERNOR'S MEET

Iowa Chief Charges East Profits At Expense Of West Through Workings Of Tariff; Governor Martin Attends

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich., July 25.—The controversial issue of farm relief, which already has caused a bitter split in both major parties, injected itself today into the annual conference of governors with such violence as to make certain its being one of the dominant political issues in the 1928 presidential campaign.

The chief executives of two dozen states had hurriedly settled in their seats here today for their annual convale before they were regaled with a ringing speech from Gov. John Hammill (R) of Iowa in which he warned his conservative colleagues from the East that either the farmers of the country are going to wreck havoc with political party lines.

Addressing directly those governors representing populous industrial states of the East that profit by a high protective tariff, the Iowa insurgent said:

"In my part of the country the people have been counted on as supporters of the protective tariff. I can sum up the present tariff attitude in the statement that we want a method through which tariff scheduled can be effective as applied to our main cash crops. The western farmers in the future will study the tariff as they never have done in the past and will exert their influence in the direction which they will determine to be for their best interests. Regardless of their past political and economic affiliations."

Government Spends Vast Sums To Aid Florida Navigation

KEY WEST, Fla., July 25.—(INS)—Thousands of dollars are being spent by the United States Lighthouse Department in replacing and repairing aids to navigation along the dangerous Florida reefs which were destroyed by the storm of last fall.

The work is being done under the direction of William W. Demmitt, superintendent of the seventh lighthouse district, with headquarters in Key West.

The lighthouse tender Poinsett is now in Hawk's channel, an inland water route from Miami to Key West, installing nine beacons and replacing buoys destroyed by the heavy winds of last September. Hawk's channel is the main water route for the thousands of pleasure yachts that cruise through the Florida Keys.

The tender Sandew is at the Florida reefs with a floating pile-driver, repairing damaged beacons. On Florida's west coast, the tender Poppy is at Indian Key with a floating pile-driver erecting a light and repairing three beacons.

State Guardsmen Return Home After Camp Of Two Weeks

Sanford's two units in the Florida National Guard returned home Sunday from Jacksonville where they have been encamped for two weeks at Camp Johnston. The troops arrived by special train after completing their annual maneuvers and inspection by state and federal officers.

Approximately 75 men comprising the machine gun and medical corps made the trip this year. They were headed by Maj. Ralph Stevens, of the unit. Both officers were well pleased with the record established by the local troops while in camp.

The guardsmen won several honors in competition with other companies and individual citations were extended to several members. The local representatives distinguished themselves for their efficiency and bearing as they followed their program of work, according to one of the officers who followed this year's encampment was one of the best held at Camp Johnston for several years.

CROWDS FLOCK TO HEAR START LE BOEUF CASE

Judge Bars Curious And Minors Also Puts Ban On Newspapers And Smoking

FRANKLIN, La., July 25.—(INS)—Crowds of curious and minors were barred from the courtroom where Mrs. Ala Le Boeuf and her alleged lover, Dr. Thomas Dreher, and James Beadle were placed on trial today for the murder of the woman's husband, James Le Boeuf.

Judge James Simon, presiding at the trial, also banned newspapers, typewriters and smoking. "I don't want to see any glaring newspaper headlines in this courtroom," the judge warned.

The little courtroom seats only 250 persons and all of the seats have been assigned by the district attorney. No others will be permitted to enter.

Despite a heavy downpour all morning the three defendants were cheerful when they were brought into the courtroom for the opening of the trial. They nodded and smiled to acquaintances, and Mrs. Le Boeuf wore the same satin frock in which she was arraigned on July 13.

Just after court had been called to order, Mrs. Dreher, wife of the accused physician came in accompanied by her son and her nephew. She took a seat behind the doctor, whom she greeted with a brave smile.

She was modestly attired in a dark blue georgette crepe frock. The four children of Mrs. Le Boeuf were ushered to seats near their mother.

The panel of thirty drawn for jury selection was composed of names typical of the Teche country people. In an earlier drawing before the final smoldering down, the and these were eliminated on names of 28 Le Boeuifs were found grounds of possible relationship with the slain man.

The Le Boeuf murder, with its ramifications was probably the most sensational murder that Louisiana has had in many years. In the early evening of July 1, Mrs. Le Boeuf and her husband James went for a ride in one of the tiny pleasure used for the shallow waters of this vicinity. Witnesses testified having seen them enter the boat. Other witnesses told of two shots that were heard a short while later. Shortly after midnight, Mrs. Le Boeuf was seen by other persons returning home alone. When her four children asked where daddy (Continued On Page Three)

Diamond Bracelet Is Lost When Child Receives Spanking

WASHINGTON, July 25.—(INS)—A spanking which Mrs. Clyde Yarbrough Feder, wife of a Pittsburgh millionaire gave her five year old son, Bruce, may cost her $3,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Feder, with their two children came to Washington on a sight seeing trip. While in the front of the White House, Bruce insisted on climbing the fence to get a better view. When Bruce refused to heed Mrs. Feder's commands to get down she administered four or five spankings.

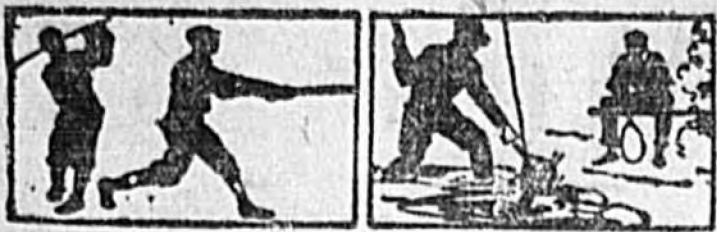

Upon returning to her hotel, Mrs. Feder discovered that her $3,000 diamond bracelet was missing. Bruce declared he saw it fall off her arm when Mrs. Feder spanked him.

"I was mad when you paddled me and didn't say nothing," Bruce told his mother.

Orlando Star Holds Locals Safely While Colts Make 12 Hits

Visitors Capture 2nd Game Of Series Here By 6-2 Score; Heavy Hitting Is Feature

Beazley Shines In Field In The 6th Star Fielder Snags 2 Flies That Were Of 3-Bagger Variety

Minor Formby, Orlando ace, was in superb form here yesterday against the Celery Reds while the Colts solved Lee Withrow's delivery at will and Sanford dropped the second game of the series to Orlando by a 6 to 2 count. The game was played on wet grounds and was delayed 30 minutes at the opening by rain.

It was not a good baseball day and these Crowmen show decided signs of being temperamental about playing baseball on a good football day. Withrow was touched for 12 hits and most of them came at exactly the right time. Three Sanford errors helped things along.

Orlando started the scoring and sewed up the ball game in the second inning when Edmondson led off with a single and went to second as Wells sacrificed. Viau walked and Tinker promptly singled to right, Beazley holding Edmondson on third. Then with the bases loaded Withrow tightened down for a moment and Formby whiffed Kirby singled to left scoring Edmondson and Viau. On the relay from Dunbar to catch Viau at the plate Crowe threw wildly and Tinker was allowed to score from second while Kirby was held at second.

Orlando also scored one in the fifth, sixth and eighth innings. Sanford scored in the third when Dunbar walked, Frisbie forced Rip at second but continued to second himself as Tinker threw wildly to first attempting to complete a double play. Beazley followed the rule of the majority and popped up. Abrams taking his short fly, "Pug" Allen doubled to right and Frisbie crossed the plate. Crowe struck out.

Three straight extra base hits in the eighth netted but one run when Dunbar led off with a triple to center and Frisbie then scored him with a long double to left. Frisbie was out trying to stretch his hit into a triple. Kirby to Vinu to Lehmann. Beazley then doubled to left but was left stranded on second.

Hoke Beazley furnished the feature of the game with two beautiful running catches of balls which looked like certain triples. Both came in the sixth inning and one blow forced him to run far to his left and the other far to his right. Formby and Cox were the hitters. Hoke's speed and judgment were the only things that kept these two long flies from being extra bases hits.

Joe Tinker of the Colts also made a great catch when he made a back hand stab to catch Myer's liner in the ninth.

PICTURES FAIL TO GIVE INDICATION OF SHARKEY FOUL

Dempsey Won Fight Fairly And There Should Be No Argument About Suggesting Questionable Punch Did No Damage

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service
Sports Editor
NEW YORK, July 23.—Official motion pictures of the Dempsey-Sharkey fight show some interesting facts today. Not the least of which is that Jack Sharkey probably is even a greater doll than I suspected him of having been on Thursday night, which is going beyond the dreams of avarice. Another is that Jack Dempsey, old and badly shot in the underpinning, still was able to make the grand gesture in this, one of his last appearances under fire, a gesture, therefore, I am not the one to discredit the performance with cries of foul or farce.

The pictures show that Dempsey won the fight on its merits, first, because Sharkey was not hurt badly by that last right handed to the body and, second, because Sharkey wasn't the man to take care of himself when he did think he was fouled.

According to the slow motion evidence, Dempsey drove three or four right hand punches on or near the belt line. With the third, Sharkey appeared to flinch in pain and, moreover, the next punch was low. It seemed to land on the trunks, foul territory of a certainty, and Sharkey's knees gave with it.

But to show that the punch was by no means mortal, he immediately turned his head toward the referee in protest, an expression of annoyance rather than pain on his face. With the jaw thus, Dempsey's left uppercut couldn't miss the mark and it didn't.

I have no illustrations about Jack Dempsey's ring courtesy. He is in there swinging until they make him stop. But I doubt that the last left was swung with the idea of taking advantage of Sharkey's lapse in self protection. The action was too rapid for even a very sharp thought on the subject. What Dempsey was carrying through was the one-two punch and Sharkey offered his jaw obligingly for the second one.

Perhaps, of course, I am a very credulous specimen, willing to believe that Santa Claus is clean shaven. Perhaps I am wrong in refusing to believe a eighty-five per cent of the gossip I hear. They have been done, because he was too busy trying to protect himself.

Jack Sharkey's manager is Jack Sharkey and the fighter-manager, even unofficially, ever was a mistake, as witness Willard in Toledo, Firpo at the Polo Grounds and Dempsey himself in Philadelphia. No one in the corner to make a move without consulting the boss and I defy all consultations with a man like Dempsey making motions at you.

Sharkey's fight was lost strictly by himself, not through pre-arrangement, or because pre-arrangement had stage managed those dramatics, and not in the boxer's corner. He lost it by playing Dempsey's own game more than a week ago I suspected he might, purely as the grand-stander he is. Then, after slugging it out for three rounds, he probably found he couldn't play any other game, even if he wished.

And then as the final faux pas, he exposed his jaw to appeal to the referee!

Taking nothing from Dempsey, for I still am thrilled by the great effort he made, I must confess to feel that with any kind of intelligent direction in the opposite corner, Dempsey could not have won. The pictures show him for what he is, a game eternally fighting man with a tough jaw, a hard punch and the speed of a club foot.

Dempsey stalked Sharkey from first to last with interest. Still in the knees, flat in the feet they had the

Dempsey Pays Visit To Home Of Mother

WILMINGTON, Del., July 23.—(INS)—Accompanied by his trainer, Jerry Luvaldis, Jack Dempsey, paid a flying visit to the home of the mother and grand-parents of his wife, Estelle Taylor, in this city last night before leaving for Los Angeles.

Dempsey said he wanted it made plain that he is not dodging process servers and that he made the trip from New York to this city by motor although he declined to tell the route he used.

Asked regarding the alleged foul blow the former champion was reluctant to discuss the matter but declared that referee O'Sullivan had declared the blow legal and that settled the matter as far as he is concerned.

A copy of the first edition of Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" was sold at auction in England recently for $30,000.

The rarest stamp in the world is the one-cent, 1856, British Guiana issue, printed in black on magenta. This was sold in 1922 for more than $28,000.

In a vault in the oldest part of Greenwich observatory, where three feet walls help to protect it from changes in temperature and climate is the famous clock which gives the world its standard time. The clock is capable of recording time to the hundredth part of a second.

Jerky, almost rheumatic movement of a wooden soldier. And Sharkey let a man like that catch him!

YOU'D BE SURPRISED

LETTY GROVE WHO HAS NOT AS YET FINISHED A GAME AGAINST THE WASHINGTON SENATORS

Certain clubs are often a jinx for star pitchers. If you asked "Lefty" Grove of the Athletics which team was the best in the American, he would surely reply, "the Washington club is the best team in the world."

"Lefty" Grove is one of the clearest southpaws in the game. He has not yet reached the heights of stardom, which it seems he is destined to attain, but at that there are a few greater pitchers.

When Grove learns to conserve his strength and doesn't hear down for every ball he pitches, thereby giving him a chance to have something in reserve for the pinches, any ball club will be lucky to beat him. (Unquestionably, Grove is the nearest approach to "Rube" Waddell the game has seen since the passing of that great southpaw.

Grove holds his high estimation of Washington because he has been unable to finish a game against them since he made his major league debut.

A number of times it has seemed as if he was finally to break the jinx that constantly pursues him when pitching against Washington, but something has always bobbed up to cause his removal from the box.

Making Grade

Although Johnny Hodapp, Cleveland third baseman, is not the fielder that Rube Lutzke is, his hitting has made him a big favorite with the Cleveland rooters. Hodapp has been getting many extra base hits and doing fairly well afield.

With Bertaud

James D. Hill, New York-to-Cleveland airmail pilot, is to accompany Lloyd W. Bertaud, another airmail flyer, in his attempt to fly from New York to Rome. The New York-Rome plane, a single-motored Fokker, is now being completed in a New Jersey factory.

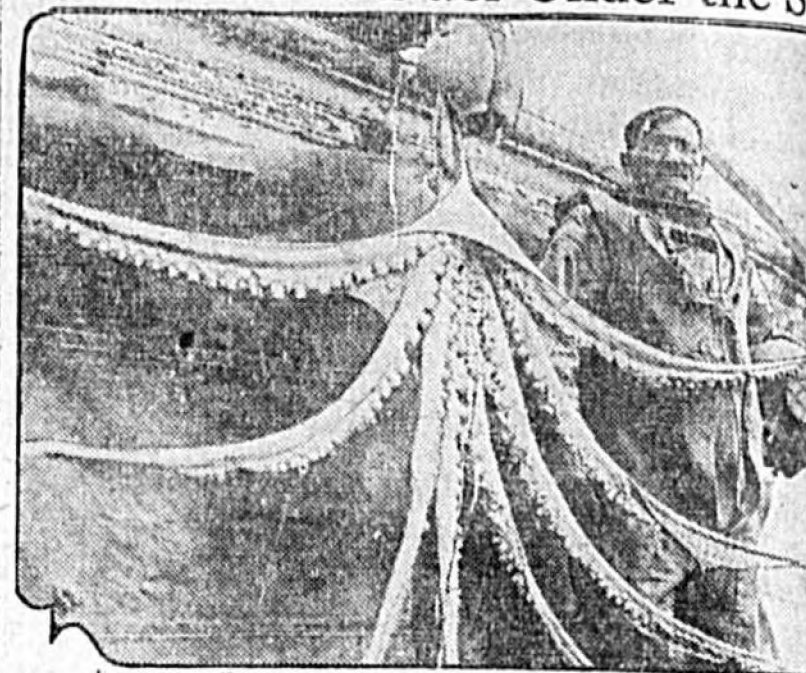

Marberry enabled Harris to nurse his none too strong stuff and get every ounce of work out of his veterans because they got their required rest of four days.

Detroit Misses Dauss' Work
This year, the great value of a high class relief pitcher has been proved in the varying fortunes that have come the way of the Detroit Tigers.

For several seasons, the veteran right hander, George Dauss, has been Detroit's Marberry. Good speed, a great curve ball and control, made Dauss the ideal pitcher to rush into the game for a few innings as pinch pitcher.

Last season he was in 34 games.

Man Wins in Duel Under the Sea

After a battle under the sea Captain Ole Ellasen, armed with only a small knife, conquered this giant devilfish. The octopus, which measured 18 feet from the tip of one tentacle to another, attacked Ellasen as he was exploring the partly submerged hulk of a wreck at Balboa, Calif., near Los Angeles. The battle lasted 20 minutes.

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

HOPE IN GOD: Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why are thou in God: for I shall yet praise Him, who is the health of my countenance and my God.

PRAYER: Speed the day, Lord, when all the ends of the earth shall remember and turn unto Thee and all the kindreds of the nations shall worship before Thee.

Sea Fog: The wall at the end of my garden is the edge of the world. The sea mist has come, first creeping upon me, till now I am standing O'er precipice sheer.

Enshrouded and lost is the headland, Beyond the curve of the bay, Vanished the harbor, the goal of the keeling Courageous, stern battered Sea tramp of the world.

The beat of the waves is knocking Of stern death near my door. Dread, like cold sea mist, my heart is invading.

The wall at the end of the world, Motionless, ghostly, half-bird and half-spirit, The seagulls are linking To me unknown, Listening with cold, heartless, silent unearring To death beating in On my wall.

Sanford might as well climb on the band wagon of other Florida towns and amend its charter while the amending is good.

The Miami Herald is giving Governor Martin loyal support in his policies.—Perry Herald. Why not? Governor Martin gives the Miami Herald loyal support too.

Simply because Gatta is a candidate for governor, is no sign Florida is going to the dogs.—Orlando Reporter-Star. It is better to go to the dogs than to the Gatta.

The canal seems to be temporarily buried under an avalanche of charter amendments, but every dog has his day and the canal will come up for discussion Wednesday night.

A minister in Baltimore, listening to the Dempsey-Sharkey fight over the radio, suffered a stroke of apoplexy and died shortly afterward. Must have bet on Sharkey.

How in the world do you suppose Henry Ford ever happened to read the Dearborn Independent?—Miami News. He didn't. That's why he didn't know anything about the attack on the Jews.

General Rufus Lane, adjutant inspector of the marine corps has posted a notice in his office: "Women may smoke in this office if they want to." Well, we don't suppose a woman's cigarette raises any more smoke than a man's.

Regardless of whether you think Sacco and Vanzetti innocent, you must admit that their execution will cause considerable commotion through the world at large from a class of people who do believe them innocent.

A Return To Prosperity

There is no reason for the citizens of Florida to become unduly pessimistic, during a period of depression such as we now find ourselves, over the prospects for a brighter and more prosperous future.

To assure ourselves of a prompt return to the prosperity for which this state had become famous, all that is necessary is the fullest employment, both in our personal affairs and in our state, county, and city administration, of every rule of economy and good, sound, common sense, business practice known to man.

Edward W. Lane, foremost Jacksonville banker, who is in a better position perhaps than any other man to understand conditions in this state, gives it as his opinion that the full recovery of Florida's prosperity is not only possible but certain, but he adds that "Florida's success lies in the rigid enforcement of the principles of thrift and economy and the full utilization of her resources."

The resources of Florida are as yet practically untouched. As an agricultural state the few acres of farm lands under cultivation yield gratifying returns, but the hundreds of thousands of fertile acres which have never felt a plow, serve only to show, in one respect, what this state can, and will some day, become.

What is true of agriculture is true of almost every other business. Our tourist crop is in its infancy. More people are coming to Florida every winter; it is only a matter of a short time until every city in Florida will be a resort, and every hotel in the state will be filled to capacity during the tourist season.

There is no cause to feel down in the mouth because bonds no longer sell at par, or taxes are burdensome on account of governmental mismanagement. Florida will come back, and with it Sanford and every other city in the State. All we need to do is to face the situation squarely and demand economy and business-like administration.

As the Jacksonville Journal rightly states: "This state faced a series of hardships that would have dismayed the most optimistic commonwealth in the country. But the state battled on in face of all obstacles and is now fighting her way back with a confidence and a determination that will carry her far. The recovery is already partly accomplished and the state is building on a solid foundation of prosperity. She needs to keep on as she is going, following the principles of sanity and wisdom in her financing and development, and staying on the alert to prevent extravagance."

Why No Honor?

Peter O. Knight, prominent Tampa attorney mentioned as a probable candidate for the United States senate, has announced from his home city that under no circumstances will he seek the office now held by Park Trammell.

We were not so much interested in whether Mr. Knight would become an aspirant for the senate as we are in a brief statement issued by him upon the occasion of his definite withdrawal from the race.

"I am not a candidate, nor will I ever be. Why should I? Why represent 1,300,000 people, many of whom distrust me for what I did and what I did not do, and upon a salary that would pay a fraction of my yearly expenses. No, I would not change my present private position for any official position that could be bestowed upon me by the people of Florida."

Without casting any reflections upon those who now serve Florida in public affairs, The Herald believes Mr. Knight's contentions constitute a problem for Florida as well as other states. Too frequently the citizens of this state are deprived of the services of the most capable men simply because they are not available.

While these arguments have their appeal, The Herald does not believe they should be sufficient to keep good men out of office. How can we ever hope to perfect the government until we have those in office who are capable? Reforms and correction of existing evils cannot be secured unless we have the best men to accomplish them.

W. LEE SMITH, Indianapolis grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, and Miss Katherine Halbig, graduate nurse of St. Mary's Catholic Hospital and member of a Catholic church, were secretly married at Louisville, Ky., it has been revealed here, where the couple have been visiting Smith's brother-in-law, City Attorney Henry Hardin.

What Settles Fights? Extensive Ignorance. A 100,000,000-Mile Drop. Fine Advertising. By ARTHUR BRISBANE. Copyright 1927 by Hear Co.

WHAT IS IT that settles great prize fights? The beautiful young Estelle Taylor, Jack Dempsey's moving picture wife, says: "I asked God to let Jack win; That was the decisive factor; in her opinion."

JACK DEMPSEY says: "When the referee said to continue the fight, I hooked a short one to the liver and clipped one to the chin and Sharkey went down for the count."

GRANTLAND RICE, sporting authority of the New York Herald-Tribune, writes: "Dempsey struck Jack Sharkey two foul blows early in the seventh round and as Sharkey apparently doubled up in pain, Dempsey followed with a left hook to the jaw. Sharkey, the Boston sailor, fell squarely upon his face, writhing as in the deepest agony."

James P. Dawson, sporting expert of New York Times, says: "Sharkey was hit four times with a right. Sharkey himself testifies, with many a deep oath, that he was beaten by foul blows, below the belt, and promises to get even."

Possibly prize fighting is not the manly, ennobling sport that it is supposed to be. But Dempsey says: "Sharkey always squeaked 'foul.' You take your choice."

BE ALL THAT as it may, Gene Tunney is said to look forward with complacency "to having the same old dish put before him once more, with a million dollars more for a few minutes' easy work."

Half an hour later you know what probably happened. But that will not keep them from betting next time.

PROFESSOR JAMES Kennell, dean of New York university, says scientists take too much for granted that strange substance water, which we understand "as little as we understand oxygen 150 years ago." He tells you:

If the active constituent of air were hydrogen instead of oxygen, fires would be extinguished by sprinkling gasoline on them instead of water and fireproof buildings would be built of solid paraffin.

A DROP OF water, a mysterious thing, magnify its diameter from one-eighth of an inch to 100,000,000 miles in diameter, and the molecules of water would become visible, each made upon two atoms of hydrogen and one atom of oxygen, each atom a little solar system in itself, forever indestructible, and existing from all time, so far as we know.

BECAUSE OF VAST distances inside that drop you would need a telescope. With it you could see inside of the atom of electron, revolving around a nucleus at the center of each atom trillions of times in a second.

Water is mysterious, and as is everything matter, force and consciousness. THINGS WE DO NOT know are more numerous than those we do know.

WE HARNESS AND use the lightning, but we don't know what electricity is, while we create it artificially with falling water and burning coal.

WE USE a mind or soul and don't know what that is. We hope for immortality, but are not sure about it. We talk of solid matter, and know that it is made up of infinitesimal aggregations of electric particles.

Nevertheless, we get along fairly well. A little knowledge is enough. ADVERTISING CLUB MEN praise the trans-Atlantic fliers and they deserve it. Each flier, leaving his trail of smoke and noise across the ocean, writes most valuable advertisements for his country.

BUSINESS SEEMS TO be good generally, and we are a very clean nation. The Procter and Gamble Company, which makes a soap that floats, reports for the past year a net income of more than $15,000,000, an increase of $3,000,000, enough to pay 11.38 a share on the stock. The company sold $131,776,987 worth of soap.

THE INTERSTATE commerce commission permits Pacific coast roads to cut rates between San Francisco and Portland below rates for intermediate points. This is done that railroads may compete with water freight. There will be many such rearrangements when this country builds up its canals as it should do.

DEMPSEY, THE KILLER

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE

In contemplating Mr. Jack Dempsey, the biggest business man of the big business that has developed from the muny art of modified murder, I retain impressions scattered over a period of eight years. If I have any prejudices I am not aware of them. The first impression was in that steaming, stewing wooden cauldron at Toledo, Jess Willard, the huge champion, came out from the shelter of an umbrella smiling in a patronizing fashion. Dempsey gaunt, scowling and looking like a bantam by comparison, weaved toward him with a cat-like tread. Willard pawed at him with a cumbersome left. In a flash Dempsey closed in, lashing at the body and jaw of the giant.

At Shelby, with the background of cowboys and motion picture Indians and that talk of a lynching for the champion being muttered by the angry men at the ring, Dempsey elected to give a boxing exhibition against Tom Gibbons. First he landed some of those terrible lefts to Gibbons' body to show what he could do. It seemed that Gibbons would wilt and crumble under them. But he made

Two Negroes Given Heavy Fines Today In Municipal Court

Two negroes received heavy fines in Police Court this morning when they appeared to answer to charges of driving a motor car while under the influence of intoxicating liquors. Johnny Sheffield was fined on two charges while a third was dismissed. For driving while under the influence of liquor Judge White fined him $200 or 60 days, while for alleged reckless driving he was fined $50 or 50 days. A charge of being drunk and disorderly was dismissed.

Reno May Become California's Gretna Green As Well As Its Divorce Haven

International News Service Staff Correspondent SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 4.—Two new steps for prospective brides and grooms, the Reno-Hop and the California-hobble promise to add variety to marriage rehearsals in the not far distant future, it was revealed today by state officials. Whether the state's marital records will prefer a one-day hop to marriage altars at Reno and way points to doing the three-day hobble in California is an important matter too. At least, its importance to California's "marrying parsons," justices of the peace, et al., not to mention hotel keepers intent on keeping their bridal suites occupied.

Green and yellow, the colors selected for this occasion, were beautifully carried out with masses of cut flowers including golden bells, Southern honeysuckle, marigolds and other summer flowers, together with myriads of butterflies fluttered from arches, doorways and streamers festooned overhead.

At one end of the spacious living room, the seat of honor was arranged. The "throne" was covered with white, and was outlined with graceful garlands of honeysuckles and ferns. Directly overhead was suspended a large white wedding veil, from which hung multi-colored butterflies.

Virginia Girl Becomes Bride Of Sanford Man

A quiet yet most impressive wedding of recent date was that of July 11 at Richmond, Va., when Miss Martha Hawesmoore became the bride of Randolph Merriweather of Sanford, the ceremony performed by Rev. W. C. McLaughlin, pastor of the Presbyterian Church.

The bride was gowning in a stunning three-piece traveling costume and wore a corsage of brides roses and lilies of the valley.

Immediately after the ceremony the young couple left by motor for an extended trip and upon their return will be at home to their friends at their home on Cameron Avenue.

The bride is a young woman of unusual pleasing personality and is very talented and accomplished. She is a graduate of the State Normal College of North Carolina and was a popular member of the Delphian Society.

(Continued from page one) was, she told them he had "fused" with her and had gone away. Six days later a party of frog hunters saw the back of a man swaying above the shallow waters of Lake Palourde. Identification was made by a slight deformity of the Boeuf's left thumb. The body had been riddled with buckshot and split open from neck to groin and weighed with angle irons.

Justice was swift. Sheriff Charles Peot and Chief of Police Louis Blakeman went straight to the home of the slain man and informed his widow of the discovery of the body. Mention was made of the fact that it "looked like a physician's job." Whereupon Mrs. Le Boeuf exclaimed quickly, as if in exasperation: "He didn't do that" or "somebody else did that."

Confessions a little jumbled but consistent followed. Police announced that Dr. Thomas Dreher, her admitted lover and James Beadle, the trapper were arrested. While both Dreher and Mrs. Le Boeuf have confessed, according to police, Beadle has remained silent. He staunchly denied all knowledge of the crime.

The late Eleonora Duse, one of the world's greatest actresses, considered her life a failure because she had not married and had a little home, declares Sereno Grey a confidante of Duse's, in an article in this week's Liberty.

"We were seated at her window in the Excelsior Hotel, in Naples, watching the sunset," the writer explains, "when woman's age-old longing swept over her—the desire to luxuriate in professional with a fellow mortal. 'You know, I always hated the stage,' Duse confessed. 'I wanted only love—and a home, a little home with Boito. I wanted to give myself to love, and to be a charming matron. Oh, how I longed to be a matron, and have roses on my veranda!'"

"Boito and I might have been happy but for Nerone, the opera he was composing when I first met him," Duse explained, pointing out that Boito refused to consider marriage until he had finished his opera. "So I left Boito and Nerone, and went to Venice. Left him after twenty years, in which he never finished Nerone—never gave me my cottage with roses rambling over the doorway."

SCOTLAND YARD NOW SEARCHING FOR SWINDLERS

Band of American and Australian Confidence Men Hailed By Professor Pat Is Sought LONDON, July 25. (INS).—Faced with reports and complaints from American and other visitors to London of having been robbed by confidence tricksters, detectives from Scotland Yard are again searching London and the big English provincial cities for a powerful gang of American and Australian confidence tricksters—numbering about twenty and led by a middle-aged cosmopolitan Irish-American known as "Professor Pat"—who are believed to be responsible for coups aggregating $25,000.

"Professor Pat" and his cronies have been a thorn in the side of the London police for a number of years, and although some of the lesser members of the gang have been arrested and convicted, the "Professor" has so far managed to escape detection.

By means of the Rosary and other tricks, the gang has for some years systematically inveigled trusting visitors to London to part with their holiday money.

The "Professor" and his satellites are scattered throughout the West End district of London, and their favorite method is to haunt fashionable night clubs, art galleries and museums where they are likely to meet tourists and prospective victims.

Their latest victim is an unnamed American farmer from the Middle West. While he was strolling through one of the city's principal streets he encountered two men who claimed to have had considerable business transactions with a Middle Western farmer's co-operative marketing organization.

After reminiscences had been exchanged the visitor was invited to dinner, during which one of the strangers produced a newspaper cutting containing an announcement to the effect he had been left a large fortune by a rich relative in the United States. It was proposed to give part of his fortune to deserving charities and it was suggested the American should assist in the distribution on giving evidence of his financial position.

DEMPSEY KNOCKS OUT SHARKEY!

THE START—A glimpse of the first-round mauling in the Dempsey-Sharkey fight at the Yankee Stadium, New York, is provided here. Sharkey, at the right, is taking one of Dempsey's rights to the body. Referee Jack O'Sullivan circles around to watch the fast, close action.

Sanford Drops First Of Series To Tarps; Fergus Yields 4 Hits

Star Slab Artist In Fine Form But Mates Are Unable To Bunch Hits Behind Twirler

Error Paves Way For Win In Eighth

Lee Crowe Switches Batting Order But Hustlers Take Lead

SARASOTA, Fla., July 25.—(Special To The Herald)—Although outbit, the Tarpons annexed the first game of the series with Sanford here by the score of 2 to 1. Fergus allowed only four hits while his mates touched Moore for six but were unable to bunch them.

An error by Frisbie in the eighth paved the way for the winning tally. Hodder walked and when Hogan hit one to Frisbie the Sanford shortstop threw the ball away and Hodder scored.

Sanford threatened in the ninth when Cusack, pinch hitting for Dunbar, singled but was out trying to stretch the hit into a double. The Coleremans scored their lone run in the third. Frisbie walked. Frisbie hit a slow one to the infield which went for a hit and Beazley scored from second base as Moore, Sarasota hurler, threw the ball past first base.

Lee Crowe shifted his batting order in an effort to check the hitting slump of the club. Beazley was shifted back to the leadoff position with Rip Dunbar being placed in sixth position. Pug Allen was switched to third position with Manager Crowe in the cleanup role.

Sunday's defeat was the third straight loss sustained by the Coleremans after getting away to a whitewind start at the first of the second half. By virtue of the loss and Miami's victory over St. Petersburg, the Hustlers went into first place.

CHICAGO LEADING IN RACE TO GET NEXT BIG FIGHT

Cries Go Up From New York; Philadelphia Raising Objections To Taking Dempsey-Tunney Bout To Midwest

NEW YORK, July 25.—Chicago first and running strong. New York second and dropping back.

Philadelphia a poor third. That's the alignment of municipal entries in the rich Tunney-Dempsey stakes. Chicago is leading by a mile, with a stadium that can seat 150,000 persons and no check on prices.

New York is practically out of the running. Even if the boxing commission cuts loose with a $50 "top" spurt that may not decide the race.

It should have been done before Chicago got off so far in front. Philadelphia is in this running for third place.

There will be no question as to where Tex Rickard will make his next pitch if he passes up New York. He will go where the pickings are choicest—Chicago.

Call him a customer, mucker, fish or whatever you will call him, the fight fan is a glutton for punishment.

He may rail against high prices, ticket scalping, poor seating arrangement, overrated fighters, unsatisfactory endings and all that stuff, but just try to deny him the next big boxing spectacle and he will roll all those protests into one bundle and fling it at whatever authorities are trying to protect him by barring a big fight on his won't have to be taxed for it.

Now that the September Heavyweight championship show seems up as a big show for Chicago, the indignant New Yorker wants to know why. He is writing letters. He wants to be protected against making an expensive trip to Chicago.

Skilled Architect Builds Attractive Golf Course In Residential Part Brooklyn

NEW YORK, July 23 (INS).—Maurice J. Mc Carthy, golf architect of rare skill and long experience, has built an attractive golf course in the heart of the residential section of Brooklyn—an achievement that is without parallel anywhere in the United States.

Apartment buildings and homes form the background of this unique course, known as the Old Flatbush Golf Club. It covers fifty-three acres, and has nine holes with a yardage of 3,065, half of a regulation championship course.

Brooklyn business and professional men can get to the course in a few minutes. No long drive to a "country" club is necessary. Doctors, lawyers and business men have their telephone numbers at the Old Flatbush office and in the event of an emergency summons can be back in their office in five or ten minutes.

A Handy Place
"Any city of size in the country could have something as handy as this," said Mr. McCarthy. "Many cities have vacant property, property with a few dilapidated buildings on it located near their downtown or in residential sections that could be quickly transformed into real beauty spots and at the same time provide its business men with relaxation—easily accessible and saving them much valuable time."

Doctors are daily summoned from the Old Flatbush course to perform operations, and as soon as their duty is done they return and play another nine holes. The time saving value of the course has become widely known and many business men play it every day.

An old baseball ground, a place where the circus used to come annually, a piece of ground dotted with a few unsightly buildings and rickety houses—that was what this beautiful golf course was a few years ago. The owner of the property, William E. Harmon, millionaire real estate man and golf lover, got an idea he would like to make it into a golf course. His friends smiled and regarded him askance.

"Preposterous," they told him, but he called in McCarthy. "I first thought of making the place into Italian sunken gardens, and I will if you say you can't make a golf course out of it," said Harmon. McCarthy looked the property over on October 1, 1924.

"I'll make you a golf course," said McCarthy quietly.

And he did. By November 3, a month and two days after he looked the ground over, the course was built and seeded. Nine months later, July, 1925, it was playable, and would have been in operation sooner had not the city unexpectedly cut a $3,000,000 sewer through the property.

The course today is as handsome as any in the New York district, splendidly trapped and bunkered, stretching over four city blocks and about the only "regular" playing it that can break over 36, is the veteran golf architect's son, Maurice McCarthy, Jr., the 20 year old winner of the Long Island Amateur championship and heralded as one of the future greats in American golf.

Since its inauguration on a permanent basis in 1919, the air mail service of the postoffice department has steadily increased its facilities until now 29 states and the District of Columbia are traversed by air mail planes.

Letters Written In 1774 Tells How Colonies Were In Need Of Ammunition; Miss Perkins Donor Of Old Document

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 25.—(INS.) In consequence of the Cannon being moved from the Fort at New Port to Providence, we yesterday removed ours into the country but I lament the Unhappy Situation we are in for want of Powder for our Town Stock, in this Town we have not a barrel and they know not where to get any—

So runs a plain written December 14, 1774, by Captain Nathaniel Shaw, of New London, Conn., to a friend, in a letter that has just come into the possession of Yale library here as a gift from Miss Jane R. Perkins, of New London.

That and other letters tell a tale of the day leading up to the Revolutionary War, and are considered the most important recent contribution to the general public.

Money Put Up
The letter of 1774 goes on to urge Connecticut to put up the money to buy "4 or 5 hundred barrels" and "If they would Employ me, to get it, I think I could have that quantity here unless sun accident, in Ten Weeks. As I have in readiness a small vessel that I am certain is the fastest Sailer in the Colony—"

Connecticut appropriated the money, Shaw received the job, and presently he was winging back from the Islands with the Powder. In the next April he was writing Peter Vandevort, of New York, that "We have no further News from the Eastward only that thirty Thousand Provincial Troops in the neighborhood of Boston—the Communication between the Town and Country Intirely stopped, and I believe it is our Intention to keep it so. I think it is high time that all the Tory Party should be made to be silent."

In the collection are copies of letters written Commodore Hopkins, commander of the first naval expedition under the authority of Congress. Four vessels under his command were fitted out secretly at New London; the "Alfred," "Columbus," "Andrea Doria" and "Cato" to go south to annoy the British fleet. Hopkins returned April 1777, when General Washington was on his way from Boston to New York.

Hopkins and Washington met at New London on April 9 and Washington spent the night in Shaw's mansion built of stone blasted from the rock on which it still stands. The British set fire to the house in 1781 and departed in time so that a neighbor slipped in and put out the fires.

A Valued Collection
Shaw fitted out privateers that sailed from New London to harass the British, building especially the "American Revenue," the brig, "Naney" and the ship "Putnam," tales of which are in the new Yale collection, all in Shaw's own hand. Connecticut paid for the "Oliver Cromwell," largest of all state vessels in the Revolution, and Shaw fitted it. The collection shows "A List of Men Deserted from 'Oliver Cromwell.'"

As early as October 22, 1773, wrote to Vandevort in New York—"In regard to the Tea that is expected from Great Britain, I pray heartily the Colonies will not suffer any to be landed.

ANOTHER CARUSO BIDS FOR HONORS IN GRAND OPERA
Antonio Razlog, 27, Has Had Rapid Rise To Fame From Deck House Painter; "Like A Dream," Says YoungHero
 NEW YORK, July 25 (INS)—Another embryo Caruso hovered on the operatic horizon today in the person of Antonio Vanna Razlog, 27, whose dark, aristocratic visage speaks his royal Palian blood.
 And his meteoric spring overnight from a ferry deck house painter to a $1,000-per-performance vocalist almost as much like a page from a fictitious "true story" magazine to seem believable.
 Even now, luxuriously ensconced in an inviting studio-apartment, Razlog shrugs his athletic shoulders somewhat disbelievingly and murmurs:
 "So like a dream."
 Only a few brief weeks ago he was drawing his pay every Saturday for painting ferry deck houses for the Lackawanna railroad in Hoboken, N. J.
Son of Countess
 Today, admitting himself the son of the former Countess Sugin of Ragusa, Dalmatia, Yugoslavia, he holds a contract stipulating that he is to sing no less than 30 times this year, and at least 50 times in 1928, with a guarantee of $1,000 for each appearance until January 1 and $1,500 for each one next year.
 Behind this metamorphosis there lies an entrancing story of tenacity of purpose and deep-rooted determination that several difficult and untasty flavors of adversity could not shake.
 Graduating from a naval neighborhood, Razlog, with money in his own right, left home for Italy at the age of 20 because his aristocratic father frowned upon the youth's ambition for a public career.
 Shortly after coming to America, young Razlog awoke one morning to find that a newly made friend and his money had vanished.
 Undaunted, Razlog sought a job, anything at all to provide sufficient money for nourishment and maintenance of his music study.
 For a while he lugged heavy timbers on his ample shoulders at the dry docks and then, laid off from his job, he took to painting ferry deck houses. He skimped on food, on clothing, gave up smoking and other luxuries, and saved carefully walking from his furnished cubicle in Hoboken to work, until he saved enough to rent a modest room in New York near his voice instructor.
A Studio Apartment
 The day after he had moved into his "studio apartment"—so many ugly, barren, actually repulsive places are given this attractive label by tenant-seekers—Razlog, unable to control his happiness, gave vent to his joy by raising his remarkable tenor voice in sweet song.
 Two men passing under the window, overheard. The vibrant tones compelled them to pause and then to applaud. Razlog, surprised, walked over to the window and smiled and sang as he.
 A minute or two later the two men knocked at his door.
 "My name is Karner, and this is Mr. Liebmann," said one of them. "We would like you to sing for us and perhaps we may give you a contract for some concert work."
 He sang arias and ballads in English, in French, in Spanish, in Italian, and offered to sing also in Russian, Serbian and Croatian.
 Without further ado, the contractor said Karner and Razlog gave him his job painting ferry deck houses.
Trading Schemes
 He planned a trading scheme, and it was followed by his route in a dhow (a single masted ship of about 200 tons)—that same type of ship he used—that we found the lost lands of Ophir. Hiram's fleet traded all the way from Ezion Gebar, at the head of the Red Sea, across the ocean to Socotra Island, then on to Ceylon, back to the Persian Gulf, along the East Coast of Arabia. They traded all the way and returned to Ezion Gebar in three years.
 "By studying the ships from before the flood to the present day we found that the ships of Ezion

Gebir were identical with the modern Red Sea dhow. So we got a dhow and set out before the same trade winds as Hiram utilized to take him upon this greatest of all trading routes. During our voyage down the Red Sea we passed many a harbor that is hardly known to modern navigation past Aden, the land of pleasantness, where Sheba stopped on her way to Solomon's lands and on to th Sheba Islands. Here we waited, as Hiram did, for the second monsoon wind, which took us up to the Persian Gulf.

English Naval Officer Says He Has Discovered The Lost Lands Mentioned In Bible

LONDON, July 25.—A claim to have discovered the whereabouts of the lost lands of Ophir, from which Bilka, the Queen of Sheba, brought to Solomon her magnificent gift of incense, spices, gold, jewels, apes, pearls of price, and aliving trees, was made by Commander C. Crauford, a British naval officer, during the course of a lecture before the Royal United Services Institution here. Commander Crauford gave an account of his 20 years' search for the lost lands and of his discovery of them 100 miles east of Aden on a fifteen months' cruise in the Red Sea, the Persian Gulf and the Indian Ocean.
Mystery of Ages
 The whereabouts of Ophir has been one of the mysteries of the ages. From time to time it has been declared to be in various parts of the world, but previous attempts to have discovered its site have been proved groundless. "I found Ophir exactly where it ought to be," said Commander Crauford, "in Arabia, and it has taken me another seven years or so to furnish proofs of its identity. The problem of finding Ophir was

"This new package" experts say, "is an almost perfect seal for tobacco condition"

REMEMBER how the soft foil cigarette package replaced the pasteboard box! Well, here's the same idea applied to pipe tobacco:

A heavy foil pouch, sealed in an extra wrapper of glassine

Experts say it is more "air-tight" than the ordinary pocket tin . . . it keeps Granger in perfect condition . . . fresh and full-flavored indefinitely! Another thing:

Foil costs less than a tin hence Granger's popular price
