Waterfront Committee to meet

SANFORD — The Lake Monroe Waterfront Master Plan Steering Committee will meet this Wednesday at 4:30 p.m. A number of items are scheduled for discussion including subcommittee needs and organizational alternatives. A report on the Sept. 9 site visit by Robert McCleod of the University of Florida Dept. of Agriculture and a progress report on the waterfront banner project are also scheduled.

The meeting will be held in the City Manager's conference room on the second floor of the Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue in Sanford.

New Post office for Osteen

OSTEEN — The U.S. Postal Service has agreed to construct a new post office in Osteen. The announcement was made by U.S. Rep. John Mica Monday.

"I am very pleased that we were able to persuade the Postal Service of Osteen's critical need for a new Post Office," Mica said. "The need for a new facility has been a major concern among residents here for a long time."

The existing post office, 900 square feet, opened in 1969. It contains nearly 1,000 boxes, but contains only three parking spaces.

The new post office will be constructed on land owned by the Postal Service at the southwest corner of Dickson and Railroad Avenues in Osteen, approximately two blocks from the present site.

Although no completion date has been announced, the lease on the existing facility expires in February, 1994.

Cruise at zoo

SANFORD — The Central Florida Zoological Park will host a free preview of its upcoming Amazon River and Caribbean Cruise today, at 3:30 and 7 p.m., in the zoo's conference room.

The previews are for an adventure scheduled on a Sun Line five-star ship, Stella Solaris, January 18 through 31. It will cruise approximately 1,000 miles down the Amazon River, then visit the unspoiled islands as well as resort areas of the Caribbean.

The event is a fund raising drive for the zoo, and the cost for the excursion ranges from $2,512.50 to $2,827.50 per person based on cabin choice. There is an additional $150 for round trip airfare from Orlando to Miami.

For further information or reservations, phone 323-4450. Today's previews are free, at the conference room in the zoo's administration building.

Bingo

SANFORD — Bingo is the name of the game every Tuesday at the Sanford American Legion Post 53. Early bird games start at 7 p.m., with regular bingo at 7:30. Proceeds will remain in the community and will be used for the benefit of needy in the Sanford area.

The American Legion is located at 2874 S. Sanford Avenue, Sanford.

Register to vote

LAKE MARY — A voter registration opportunity will be held Tuesday evening at Lake Mary High School, 655 Longwood-Lake Mary Road. The registration will be available from 7 p.m. until 8:30 p.m.

Double murder

Grandma, girl, 8, slain; cops search for suspect

CASSELBERRY — The silence of the early morning on Cloister Cove in Casselberry was shattered Monday by the screams of a little girl racing from the home where her grandmother and little sister had been brutally murdered, allegedly by a boarder, police said.

Elizabeth Dick, 58, and Toni Neuner, 8, were stabbed to death in their home at 111 Cloister Cove sometime in the early morning hours on Monday. A preliminary autopsy revealed that Toni had been sexually battered prior to the slaying.

Wendi Neuner, 9, who had been bound and gagged by her assailant, managed to escape.

Police said she was racing out of the house when an uncle was coming in. The uncle made the grisly discovery and called police.

According to Officer Patrick Simpson, a spokesman for the Casselberry Police Department, the prime suspect in the murder is Eddie James, 32, a boarder in the home.

James, Simpson said, escaped in Dick's 1984 Chevrolet Cavalier. The car is gray with pink pinstripes, bearing a Pennsylvania tag with the number AHG 0207.

He allegedly took $400 in cash from the house, which police suspect he will spend on drugs.

Ax expressway authority?

Sanford citizens continue battle

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — South Sanford residents continued their battle against the proposed extension of the Seminole County Expressway west of U.S. Highway 17-92 by asking local state lawmakers to disband the Seminole County Expressway Authority.

Carole Gilbert, of Hidden Lake, asked Seminole County's state legislators to consider three proposals: adopt Sanford commissioner's resolution which would require city approval before an expressway can be built through it, changing the makeup of the expressway authority from elected to appointed officials, and lastly, disbanding the authority altogether.

Gilbert, a leader of Citizens for Livable Neighborhoods, requested lawmakers consider the Sanford resolution last year. Monday, she also got the same response as last year: no response.

Alcohol suspected in crash

PENSACOLA — Alcohol is suspected as a factor in a single-car crash that killed a Texas state senator's stepson and two other people, Florida Highway Patrol troopers say.

Blood-alcohol tests, however, will be unavailable until later this week, said Assistant Medical Examiner John Lazarchick.

The crash probably took place about 2 a.m. CDT Saturday but was not discovered until more than four hours later, troopers said. None of the victims wore a seat belt.

The stepson of Sen. Chris Harris, R-Austin, James Courtney Johnson, 19, of Arlington, Texas; Jason Paul Daughtery, 20, also of Arlington, and the driver of the car, Kimberly Jeanne McDaniel, 20, of Pensacola, were killed when the vehicle went out of control on a ramp connecting Interstates 10 and 110 and hit a tree, troopers reported.

Woman found dead in rental car

TAMPA — A Boston woman was found dead in a rental car in Tampa and police said there was no evidence of foul play.

The woman was identified as Sheila G. Kenyon, 33.

She was found slumped over the wheel in a parking lot Sunday night, Steve Cole, spokesman for the Tampa Police Department, said Monday.

Kenyon arrived in Tampa on Friday and checked herself into a local hospital reportedly for alcohol related treatment, Cole said. She left the hospital Saturday and checked into a hotel. She rented a car late Sunday morning.

The woman had bruises which Cole said were the result of an assault in Boston last week.

The medical examiner's office said the bruises and injuries from that incident were not related to Kenyon's death. The office is conducting toxicology tests which may help determine cause of death.

Defendants' contributions probed

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (AP) — Donations by criminal defendants to law enforcement agencies and charities have continued in Bay County although State Attorney Jim Appleman said he suspended the practice six months ago.

Nineteen defendants have been asked to make $8,700 in contributions since Feb. 1, the date Appleman said he ordered a halt to reducing charges or placing defendants in programs that keep their records clean in exchange for the donations.

Appleman said at that time that he temporarily stopped the practice pending a grand jury investigation. State Attorney Harry Coe III of Tampa, appointed by Gov. Lawton Chiles as a special prosecutor in the probe, has criticized the donations as "cash register justice."

Charitable contributions by defendants appear to be a statewide trend, but donations to law enforcement agencies are rare outside Bay County, court officials say.

Miami nice?

MIAMI — As if being considered the most dangerous city in the United States isn't bad enough, a leading travel magazine has listed Miami as the rudest city in the world.

Condé Nast Traveler magazine bestows the title upon the city on the Gold Coast in its October issue due out Sept. 28.

Miami received a dismal 18 percent approval rating when the magazine asked its readers to rate the welcome they received in cities around the world. No place anywhere in the world did worse.

"This despite the 'Miami Nice' campaign to teach taxi drivers and others dealing with tourists to be pleasant.

"I'm deeply disappointed," said Joe Lacher, chairman of the Greater Miami Chamber of Commerce. "This reflects badly on our city."

Merrett Sterheim, president of the Great Miami Convention & Visitors Bureau also said he was discouraged by the survey but wouldn't rank the city high in terms of friendliness either.

"Candidly, I don't think the community overall has the highest level of appreciation for the importance of the tourism industry," he said.

The poll comes on the heels of a USA Today survey in which people nationwide were asked their opinion of America's most dangerous city. Miami won.

So where, according to the magazine's readers, is the friendliest city: Sydney, Australia where tourism advertisements are an open invitation for visitors to join in and "throw a shrimp on the barbie." It had a nearly 67 percent approval rating.

Los Angeles and New York came in just above Miami in the friendliness column in the poll.

The magazine, which sells an average of 150,000 copies a month, asked readers starting in May to name their favorite and least favorite cities in several categories. About 30,000 readers were surveyed by an independent firm.

The survey was the latest dart thrown at Miami's troubled tourism industry, which has been rocked by the killings of five foreign visitors in the area since Jan. 1. The most recent was the murder of German tourist Uwe-Wilhelm Rakebrand during a robbery attempt on Sept. 8.

Lake Mary amendments

Proposed charter changes include spending

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — During the November 1991 general election, changes were approved by the voters of Lake Mary. This year, the city wants to add more changes, one of which deals with spending.

When the citizens voted two years ago, they approved many changes in the city charter. The section preventing the city from spending money for construction or capital improvements with financing only during a fiscal year, drew extensive debate.

It ultimately involved a legal dispute between citizens and the city over the exact wording to appear on the ballot.

On Sept. 23, 1991, Citizens spokesperson Sheila Sawyer reported that the city would accept wording initiated as a result of the citizens suit. "We are pleased to announce a great victory for the citizens of Lake Mary," she wrote. "We are thrilled the city will accept our wording for the referendum and put it on the November ballot."

The citizens had requested the following wording: "Unless authorized by the voters at a duly held referendum, the City Commission shall not spend or allow to be spent any funds derived from any source for the purpose of construction of any capital improvement or lease or purchase of real property, the payment of which extends beyond the end of any fiscal year."

The matter, part of an overall charter change, was approved by the voters.

This Thursday night, the commission will take on first consideration of proposed items to be placed on this November's ballot, which would change that portion of the city charter.

The proposal to be presented is a referendum that, if approved by the voters, would allow the city to issue revenue bonds in an annual amount not to exceed $1 million per year, without taking it to public referendum.

"The figure right now is arbitrary," said City Manager John Litton. "The commission suggested we come up with a figure, so we put that amount in just to start discussion."

He added, "That doesn't mean when it goes to the voters it will be one million dollars. The amount will be up to the commission to decide."

As a result of the changes in the 1991 charter revisions, the city has now been limited to capital expenses. "We haven't been allowed to take on financing of any improvements which could not be fully funded in that year's budget," Litton said.

"unless the matter was approved in a public referendum."

The second item, companion to the first, would establish the precise wording which would appear on the November ballot in order for the voters to decide if they approve of the amount.

According to the wording contained in the Ordinance, the money would be used for, "...the construction, reconstruction, repair or acquisition of land and/or easements for capital improvements including: streets, drainage facilities or systems, water or sewer systems (including wells and treatment facilities), or such other capital improvements as necessary to enable the City of Lake Mary to meet the needs of the city for such improvements."

Another change to the city charter is also scheduled for discussion this Thursday night. It would set the date for newly elected members of the city commission to take office.

"This is merely a housekeeping change," Litton said. "It fine-tunes exactly when a newly elected commissioner is to be sworn in."

According to a memorandum issued by City Clerk Carol Foster, "Last year, one of the changes to the charter was that the

Biologists hope to reverse damage from dikes and DDT

By Associated Press

TITUSVILLE — Work is under way to allow saltwater to flow back onto the shores of Merritt Island and the barrier islands in a plan to bring back fish and wildlife that have disappeared for more than 40 years.

Conservationists hope the project restores nature and reverses some of the damage caused when officials were trying to control the saltwater mosquito.

"This is a chance of a lifetime, an opportunity to put something back like it was," said Harvey Hill, biologist with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

An extensive system of dikes was built so the marshes could be flooded to kill mosquito breeding grounds four decades ago. The diking worked fine, but it also caused the saltwater marshes to dry out, choking out plant life and spelling the end for crustaceans that fed a variety of fish, birds and other animals.

"It turned into, comparatively speaking, a biological desert," said Hill.

Work is now under way to put 39 culverts in the dike system, allowing brackish Indian River water to swirl once more along some of the shoreline.

The refuge is becoming one giant laboratory for a study never before undertaken, Hill said. Changes in the marshes and the wildlife that inhabits them are being carefully documented.

The diking plan eventually led to more than 200 miles of dikes along the Indian River coastline, which included much of what is now the Kennedy Space Center. Along with DDT — the now-banned pesticide — the project did open large areas to development that had been virtually uninhabitable because of mosquitoes.

Reconnecting the areas behind the dikes to the Indian River is taking place throughout the St. Johns River Water Management District, which is responsible for the funding.

An anticipated $5 million will be spent in the county during the next five years, Hill said.

Shuttle delayed a day

By Associated Press

SPACE CENTER, Houston — NASA ordered shuttle Discovery to stay aloft an extra day because of bad weather this morning at the Florida landing site.

Rain and clouds at Cape Canaveral, Fla., thwarted plans to bring the five astronauts home after a nearly flawless nine days in space, during which they tried out tools for the Hubble Space Telescope repair mission in December.

NASA had to pass up two landing opportunities: one at 5:28 a.m. EDT and another 1 1/2 hours later, around sunrise. The earlier landing would have been the first time a shuttle touched down in the dark in Florida.

All of Wednesday's landing opportunities will be in darkness.

"We're going to have to offer you another day up on orbit," Mission Control said.

"That's a tough offer to refuse," shuttle commander Frank Culbertson Jr. replied. "We'll take it."

NASA did not consider using the usual backup landing site, Edwards Air Force Base in California, in hopes the weather in Florida would clear up by Wednesday.

The space agency prefers to bring shuttles back to Cape Canaveral to save the one week and more than $1 million it takes to transport the shuttle across the country, back to Florida.

"We've accomplished a lot of great things, I think, for the country and for NASA," astronaut Carl Walz said Monday.

Woman and dog in car

Sanford police arrested Catherine Tippitt, 48, of Summerville, Tenn., at the Central Florida Regional Hospital on Saturday. Police said they found the woman unconscious in a vehicle parked at 4th Street and Sanford Avenue. They said the car's windows were closed and a dog was also in the vehicle, apparently suffering from heat exhaustion. The dog was transported to Animal Control and the woman was taken to the hospital. Police said while at the hospital, the woman became angry over the whereabouts of her dog. She was arrested on a charge of disorderly intoxication.

Traffic stop brings arrests

Florida Highway Patrol troopers stopped a pickup truck on S.R. 436 Sunday for improper lights. Three persons were reportedly in the vehicle. When patrolmen searched the truck they reported finding a substance which proved to be cocaine. Dawn Heather Cooper, 21, 2188 Ridgewood Ave., Sanford, a passenger in the vehicle, was charged with possession of cocaine. Scott Geron Cunningham, 26, 2780 Ridgewood Avenue was arrested on the same charge. Charges against the third person were not immediately revealed.

Warrant arrests

● Kenneth Thistlewood, 26, 5355 Orange Blvd., Sanford, was arrested at Sailpoint Apartments Sunday. He was wanted on an Orange County warrant for violation of parole on a conviction of burglary.

● David Earl Crowe, 39, 4445 Elder Road, Lake Monroe, was arrested by sheriff's deputies Sunday. He was wanted on two warrants for violation of parole on a previous conviction of dealing in stolen property, and obtaining property with a worthless check.

● Marques Cornelius Howard, 22, 2450 W. 18th Street, Sanford, was arrested at Lake Monroe Terrace by sheriff's deputies Sunday. He was wanted on a warrant for sale of cocaine.

Domestic violence arrests

● Kenneth Ray Scott, 57, 2209 E. Mitch Court, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police at his residence Saturday following an altercation with his stepson. He was charged with battery, domestic violence.

● Scott Swanson, 33, 2401 Hartwell Avenue, Sanford, was arrested by police at his residence Saturday. Officers said he was involved in a fight with a female. He was charged with battery, domestic violence.

● Gregory Scott Mullins, 22, of Deltona, was arrested by Sanford police at an apartment complex at 500 W. Airport Blvd. Police said he had been in a dispute with a female over clothing in a laundry room. He was charged with battery and assault.

● Harold Earl Williams, 40, 1006 Mangouatine Avenue, Sanford, was arrested at 11th and Oleander Sunday following a dispute with a woman at a food store. He was charged with battery, aggravated.

License arrests

● David Lewis Huff, 26, 403 Mattie Street, Sanford, was arrested following a traffic stop by Sanford police in the 1500 block of S. French Avenue on Sunday. He was charged with driving with a suspended/revoked license.

● Patrick Vinard Robinson, 28, 401 W. Seminole Boulevard, was arrested by sheriff's deputies on Mangouatine Avenue and First Street Sunday. He was charged with driving with a suspended/revoked license, and driving 88 in a 45 mile per hour zone.

Incidents reported to the sheriff

● $2,000 in tools was reportedly stolen Saturday from a vehicle parked on Crow's Bluff in Lake Monroe.

● An air conditioner valued at $300 was reported stolen Friday from a home on Coolidge Avenue in Lincoln Heights.

● A 28-year-old Sanford man reported he was accosted by six men near the intersection of Jitway and E. S.R. 46 in Midway on Friday. He said he was removing tools from his pickup when the six approached him. The man was beaten and kicked, and required hospitalization. Deputies said the men removed an envelope containing $370 and took $23 from the victim's wallet.

● A lawn mower valued at $220 was reportedly stolen Friday from a garage on Delcrest Place in Tuscan Crossings, Lake Mary.

● A Sanford man reported the tires and rims were removed from his vehicle left for service, in the 4000 block of highway 17-92 on Saturday.

● A water pump valued at $500 was reportedly stolen Sunday from a home in the 300 block of Elder Road in Lake Mary.

Incidents reported to Sanford police

● A .32 caliber handgun and a 1989 Oldsmobile were reported stolen Sunday from a home in the 100 block of Country Club Circle. The car was later returned.

● Electronic equipment was said to have been taken from a car Sunday parked in the 100 block of Crooked Pine Drive.

● An air compressor and a large fishing tackle box were reportedly removed from the carport of a home in the 100 block of Country Club Circle on Sunday.

Boot camp for dropouts opens

By ED WHITE
Associated Press Writer

RANTOUL, Ill. — A National Guardsman barked out marching orders to two rows of recruits. Inside, others were getting blue uniforms. And, just like members of the real military, some asked to see the colonel. They wanted out.

Thus began a 22-week boot camp for more than 220 volunteers — high school dropouts seeking a diploma and a second chance.

"I hope they teach me some obedience," said Patrick Shride, a 17-year-old juvenile delinquent from Blue Mound who used to smash windows and damage cars. "I didn't have any respect for others. ... If I didn't quit school, they would have kicked me out anyway."

Illinois is one of 10 states taking part in the federal effort to rescue dropouts. The program was organized during the Bush administration but didn't receive funding — $44 million — until this year.

Connecticut began its camp a few weeks ago. Illinois began on Sunday, and the other states — Arizona, Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana, Maryland, New York, Oklahoma and West Virginia — will follow.

At Chanute Air Force Base, the recruits, ages 16 to 18, will spend half their time in the classroom and the rest on community projects. They'll learn how to use computers, do laundry, even balance a checkbook.

Every two weeks, $30 for personal essentials will be deposited into their account. And those who complete the camp get $2,200 to continue their education or find a job. There is no payback requirement.

The recruits live in barracks.

The day starts with exercise at 6 a.m. and ends with lights out at 10 p.m.

But the volunteers are not subjected the usual withering, profane abuse heaped on military recruits by their drill sergeants. The idea here is to instill self-esteem as well as discipline. Nor are their heads shaved. Boys' hair is trimmed above the ears; girls have to wear theirs above the collar.

Illinois had room for 300 volunteers. No one with a felony conviction is allowed, and all must pass a drug test.

"Some of them dropped out of school from peer pressure," said Capt. Keith Chambers, a camp leader. "Some of them dropped out because they didn't do well, and some didn't have family support...."

"We had a kid come up Sunday and say, 'That's the first time I've had two meals in my life....'"

Marcia Brooks, 17, of Chicago said she quit school because she "just wanted to hang out." But now she realizes there are few opportunities for dropouts.

Brooks wants her graduate equivalency degree, or GED, so she can pursue her dream of becoming a police officer. "I feel good about myself here," she said. "You actually get to talk to somebody. I feel wanted."

Indeed, as National Guardsmen taught 14 girls how to stand at attention, they coated their orders with inspiration. "If you're going to be sluggish, you have no self-esteem, no pride," said Lt. Norman Brooks. "Show me you have pride."

Not everyone bought the message. Three girls and three boys who were tired of marching quit the first day. Fifteen others were ready to go home Monday, but officials hoped they would reconsider after talking to counselors.

Slain college student knew her attacker

GAINESVILLE — The man charged with fatally stabbing a University of Florida graduate student apparently was worried the woman would testify at his upcoming arson trial, his ex-girlfriend said.

Richard Anthony Meisner, 27, who was arrested Sunday and charged with first-degree murder in Gina Langevin's slaying, was scheduled to face arson charges Oct. 4 in Alachua County, court records show.

Meisner's former girlfriend and Ms. Langevin's former roommate, Sherri Valletti, said he thought Ms. Langevin would hurt his case.

"They were always locking horns. He was a good friend to me, but not to a lot of other people," Ms. Valletti told the student-run Independent Florida Alligator for a story in today's edition. "I'm glad the connection was made and he was caught."

Meisner — known as "Slick Rick" according to court records — was being held without bond in the Alachua County Jail.

Ms. Langevin, 26, a graduate student in architecture from Miramar, was found stabbed to death in her apartment early Saturday evening.

Meisner is also charged with attempted first-degree murder for the stabbing of Ms. Langevin's roommate, Jena Hull, 24, who was listed in improved and stable condition in a Gainesville hospital.

Meisner and Ms. Langevin's only relationship was through "a mutual friend," said Alachua

Suspect has criminal past

TALLAHASSEE — Richard Anthony Meisner, the man charged with fatally stabbing a University of Florida student and wounding her roommate, has a criminal past, according to state records.

A rap sheet provided Monday by the Florida Department of Law Enforcement shows Meisner, 27, pleaded guilty to auto theft in 1990 in Clay County. He was placed on six months' probation and ordered to pay $382 in restitution and court costs.

A second felony charge stemming from the same arrest — possession of burglary tools — was not prosecuted, according to the records.

County Sheriff's Lt. Emery Gainey, who would not confirm the 1989 arson case as a motive.

Will Irby, a spokesman for the state attorney's office in Alachua County, said Ms. Langevin's name had come up in a witness deposition as someone who knew Meisner, but added she was not interviewed by police and was not scheduled to be a witness.

Ms. Langevin's father, Frank Langevin, told friends he was concerned about his daughter because she had mentioned she was involved in an arson investigation.

Cops arrest two men in Turkish student's death

By JAMES MARTINEZ
Associated Press Writer

TAMPA — One of the two men who police say followed home a Turkish teen-ager and beat him to death for cutting off their car in traffic said he didn't mean to kill the exchange student.

"It was an accident," 25-year-old Joseph Paul Wagner told a reporter who asked him if he killed 17-year-old Mehmet Bahar as the suspect was led out of the Tampa police headquarters Monday night.

Wagner and Robert John Barthmaier, 24, both of Tampa, were arrested at their homes and charged with first-degree murder and attempted robbery and burglary. They are being held without bail at the Hillsborough County Jail.

The body of Bahar was discovered early Saturday in a quiet Tampa neighborhood near his host family's home. He had come to the United States from Finike, a town in Antalya, about five weeks ago to study English.

Bahar was the 10th foreigner killed in Florida in a year. However, there is no evidence he was targeted because he was a foreigner, Tampa police spokesman Steve Cole.

Bahar was driving home when he changed lanes and pulled in front of the suspects' car, said Tampa police Maj. Ken Taylor. The two men then followed him to the home of his host family, where they beat him to death and ransacked his car.

"They were angry and decided to teach him a lesson," Taylor said. "We have no reason to believe there was any altercation or anything up until the time he pulled into the driveway, and these two guys bailed out and went after him."

Taylor said an informant who "saw part of it" broke the case for police.

Police records show Barthmaier and Wagner both have previous arrests for burglary, possession of marijuana, aggravated assault and assault and battery.

Wagner has been arrested in the past for armed robbery and disorderly intoxication, while Barthmaier has a record for grand larceny and vehicle theft.

At the American Language Academy where Bahar was studying, classes were dismissed early Monday, and police and counselors talked with students, some of whom wept after learning of Bahar's death.

"We are deeply shocked at the death," said Kerry McCollum, director of the American Language Academy, which leases space from the University of Tampa.

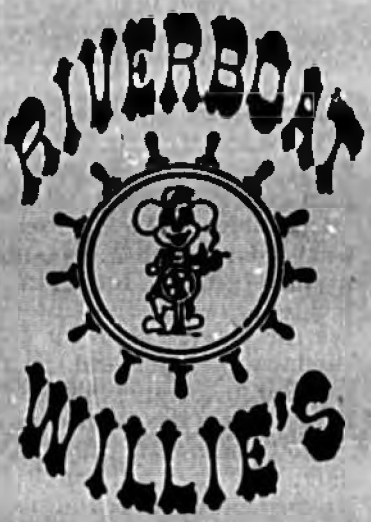

McCollum said some students at the academy had expressed fear about the recent slayings of foreign tourists in Florida, but Bahar had not.

Bahar lived at a campus dormitory until moving in with a host family about a week ago. Neighbors said Betty Solomon has hosted other students in the past. The Solomon family has declined to comment.

Bahar had been making plans with an 18-year-old Turkish friend to rent a house together and attend college after finishing language studies. They had been to Orlando on Friday to soak up the city's night life.

Bahar dropped his friend off shortly before 3 a.m. Saturday then headed to his host family's Sunset Park home.

Donation will help spruce up downtown

It's not too early to start thinking about Christmas. The holiday season is only three months away.

During this joyous occasion, the streets of downtown Sanford are decorated with blinking lights on trees at the Magnolia Square and everywhere else they can be displayed. Shrubs are decorated, and street lights take on a festive appearance.

At the annual St. Lucia Festival each December, a variety of live entertainment has been featured, both in conjunction with the Swedish event and the holidays.

Do you ever wonder where the money comes from with which to pay for these?

None of these crowd pleasers were gifts from that jolly old man in the sleigh. They were financed by the citizens of the Central Florida area who made donations to the Sanford Historic Downtown Waterfront Association SHDWA, and the St. Lucia Festival Committee.

As is the case in some fund-raising efforts, donations are often not easy to come by. As a result, SHDWA and the festival committee have, for the past six years, provided added incentives for persons wanting to help improve the appearance and attractiveness of the downtown area over the holidays.

This Sunday, the two organizations combine with a fund-raising cruise aboard the Rivership Grand Romance. In exchange for a donation of $18, participants will be given a three hour "don't miss" cruise beginning at 3 p.m., with musical entertainment, dancing, special presentations, and hot beverages.

All proceeds will be shared equally by the two organizations, and be used immediately for lighting improvements and St. Lucia events for this very year.

To help the overall projects, the Rivership Romance company is donating $1 to the Main Street revitalization efforts for every ticket sold. Thus, the fund-raiser will be for the enjoyment of the entire community.

Many times, people give donations to an organization and receive nothing in return other than the knowledge that they are helping others.

This time, it's a donation to help everyone, and a good time in return.

Tickets for this Sunday's cruise are available at First Street Gallery, 203 E. First Street, or the Main Street Welcome Center, 101 W. First Street. Phone 322-8600 or 323-9178.

Soccer fiasco

The arrogance of some Seminole County officials amazes me. In the Great Sylvan Lake Park soccer fiasco, for those in management not to have known about the federal grant monies agreement, means that they are incompetent, their staff inept, or they feel above the law. A desire for some of the U.S. Soccer Federation's alleged prestige led these "public servants" into rushing into an agreement that they knew was wrong.

I was in the Oct. 6, 1992 meeting between Lake Sylvan area residents and county officials held in the Sanford library on the soccer complex. One of the first issues brought up by the citizens was the federal grant money. This subject was quickly changed by the bureaucrats to that of the wonderful tennis and handball courts we would have. Residents were treated like local yokels and were told the soccer complex was a "done deal" — like it or not.

I'm sure a way around the ruling of the Department of Environmental Protection will be found. It usually is. However, don't you think it is about time Seminole County officials started working for the citizens who pay them instead of special interest groups and their own egos.

Support for Tiger's Eye

I have been asked to write this letter in support of the Tiger's Eye Productions school by a friend who is a graduate of this school.

The complaint against students driving to the school along the access road is, in my opinion, a ridiculous one. This school is a non-profit organization which has benefited many students and helped them find jobs.

I would guess that there is an ulterior motive on the part of the complainant which could do with some investigating.

Politically correct? Boycott these...

Are you an ineffectual boycotter? Are you wearing incorrect shoes, drinking incorrect beer, eating incorrect food, using incorrect appliances, listening to incorrect music, visiting incorrect cities and states — all because you don't know what to boycott?

Get with the program. The National Clearinghouse for Politically Correct Stuff is running a special this month on boycotts. Call today and find out what you should be spurning.

While you're on the line, ask about the latest "isms." We keep an updated list. Ask about words that may be bothering you. We have a computer bank of half a million words in 500 languages and 3,000 dialects that someone might find offensive.

Ask about politically correct gardening. Or politically correct team names. Or the latest scoop on that racist rabid dog, that genocidal butcher of Genoa, Christopher Columbus.

This message is sponsored by the people at Nickpicks.

Have a PC day.
Peter: Hello, is this the National Clearinghouse for Politically Correct Stuff?

PC Person: You got it. The N-C-P-C-S. Nickpicks.

Peter: OK, well, I just got back from Katmandu and I was wondering what all this boycott stuff is about.

PCP: It's a movement, my friend. Socially conscious people everywhere are voting with their dollars. It used to be grapes and lettuce. Now there are 200 national boycotts in effect. Colorado voted to prohibit special civil rights protection for homosexuals, and now there is a Boycott Colorado campaign going. Philip Morris Inc. supports Jesse Helms, so we're boycotting them. We're boycotting tuna and tobacco and coffee and Procter & Gamble and GE and

This message is sponsored by the people at Nickpicks.

Nestle and Alaska and Louisiana and Utah and cornflakes and Scott Towels and Liquid Paper. Got a gripe? Start a boycott!

Peter: Yeah, well I do, actually. I trekked all over the Himalayas in my Nikes and my feet hurt.

PCP: You're behind the curve. Nike has been accused of exploiting the African-American community and is already being boycotted.

Paul: I heard that Maytag is being boycotted because of the Baby Jessica thing. I don't get it.

PCP: It has to do with Iowa, which has adoption laws which permitted Baby Jessica to be returned to her natural parents. Maytag is an Iowa company. Maytag refuses to take a position on the issue. We therefore will boycott Maytag until people associate it with that little girl being torn from her home.

Paul: You people are idiots.
PCP: Hey, let's not disparage the cranially disadvantaged.

Yukon: I want to start a Morris boycott.

PCP: Yukon, is that your real name, Yukon?

Yukon: Yeah. My full name is Yukon Kalmec Al. Hey, I'm going to boycott all the towns and counties named Morris. Like Morris, Ala., and Morris County, Kan. and ...

How to stamp out carcinogens

A fledgling and potentially hugely useful new approach is opening up to the way a host of modern society's products are put together, from complex new medicines to the most mundane plastics.

It's called Green Chemistry. The aim is to use an environmentally benign processes as possible to replace ones now requiring heavy metals, carcinogens and other toxins.

Take products as seemingly unrelated as pharmaceuticals and pesticides. Heavy metals like cadmium, lead, mercury and chromium are now widely used in the chain of chemical reactions to produce both. It turns out that the same reactions can be performed using a simple light bulb and common food dyes.

Gary A. Epling and his colleagues at the University of Connecticut are developing this approach as one of a handful of projects supported by the National Science Foundation, the Environmental Protection Agency and industry.

Chemically assembling medicines and pesticides involves organic synthesis not unlike "the way you put together Tinker Toys," Epling explains. Toxic compounds now produce the chemical links by which the pieces hold together. But he has found that using the energy of sunlight, or of a light bulb, and a dye that absorbs that energy and then transmits it at the right point in a chemical process can do the same job toxics do now.

Kenneth Hancock, head of the NSF's chemistry division, says chemists traditionally have had to pay scant attention to the consequences of using contaminants as either the ingredients or waste streams in formulating products. That's changing. Public concern about toxic emissions is one reason. Industry's cost to transport, monitor, clean up and dispose of dangerous chemicals is another.

Green chemistry is based on the idea that preventing a problem is better than curing it. Its attraction to chemists is the challenge of discovering new and more benign ways to assemble the building blocks of their trade.

In its two-year history, the foundation's green chemistry program has backed 30 research projects with $3 million, a small commitment compared to much government-funded science.

The potential paybacks are huge. Organic chemistry, the origin of countless synthetic products, is based on some stock of carbon. Today, the carbon pool for 98 percent of all manufactured organic chemicals is petroleum and its derivatives.

John W. Frost and his colleagues at Purdue

University are tapping into another stock of carbon, stored in the corn fields of America's heartland. We can either buy the needed carbon from the Mideast, Frost says, or harvest it from the farms of the Midwest.

One process Frost has developed bypasses the need to use petroleum-based benzene, a carcinogen, to make nylon. The approach has potential applications for photographic chemicals and the manufacture of fragrance and flavor compounds.

About 10 percent of the annual U.S. production of 12 billion pounds of benzene is now used to make nylon, one of the first synthetic materials derived from petroleum.

Frost's method uses a genetically engineered microbe and a form of glucose found in common table sugar. The microbe is genetically designed to absorb the glucose as its energy supply and to release a chemical that replaces the use of benzene in making nylon.

"All the microbe cells are in essence little tiny factories," he says.

The benzene method requires high heat and high pressure. Frost's substitute works at room temperature in a vat of water. Further, it does not produce any of the nitrous oxide greenhouse gas that is an unavoidable by-product of using benzene.

Genencor International, a Rochester, N.Y.-based biotech firm, has helped finance Frost's work and is now developing a plant to pilot its commercial application.

One obstacle facing green chemistry is the tremendous capital investment U.S. chemical manufacturers have in petroleum-based technology. But Frost notes that "where you see the biggest push for green chemistry and the most patience and the deepest pockets are the European chemical companies. They are way ahead of the Americans in this area."

That competition and the growing trend to calculate the full environmental costs of product production and use are likely to profit green chemistry.

It turns out that the same reactions can be performed using a simple light bulb and common food dyes.

SARAH OVERSTREET

What Dr. Kevorkian is doing right

My friend, a grand and wonderful man in his early 70s, is a Baptist so unwavering in his beliefs that he sees most issues in stark black-and-white, no gray areas.

Such was his feeling about Dr. Jack Kevorkian, the retired physician who assists the terminally ill in suicide. Kevorkian, he said, was simply wrong, wrong, wrong. That is, that's what he said until recently. A disc in my friend's back degenerated to the point where, he says, in the days before the doctors decided what to do, he would have gleefully welcomed paralysis of his lower body if it would have just stopped his torture.

"I can understand why somebody would want to end that kind of pain," my friend said after successful surgery halted his travail. "And I can understand why someone else would feel compelled to help another person out of such misery. I'm not saying it's right," he added, looking out his picture window at a row of Holocaust.

Kevorkian, he said, was simply wrong. That is, that's what he said until recently.

"I'm just saying I can sure understand it." His conclusion surprised me. This wasn't the kind of talk I was used to hearing from him — a wavering of what he considered a grave moral wrong — although I have learned over the years that he is a man of reason and compassion.

I had been similarly surprised a few days before when I was pressing the car radio buttons and caught Paul Harvey, whom I'd always considered staunchly traditional and conservative, deliver an impassioned defense of Kevorkian. Say what you will about the doctor, Harvey said, but only Kevorkian has stepped forward to help patients who say they can bear no more. While the political and medical establishments abdicate and look the other way, Harvey added, Kevorkian risks prison to end the agony of others.

Next I picked up a newspaper and read that the Michigan D.A. prosecuting Kevorkian is simultaneously asking for repeal of the law under which the doctor is charged. Prosecutor John D. O'Hair, a member of the State Commission on Death and Dying, told The New York Times that he plans to propose a law that would "allow terminally ill people to choose to end their lives, in a medically approved manner, if they are given six months or less to live."

I wasn't so surprised a few years ago when television journalist Betty Rollin acquiesced to her mother's wishes and helped the woman, who was suffering with terminal cancer, to gently end her life. I remember a close friend's mother dying slowly of cancer, trying to retain her hallmark sense of humor and to delay the begging that happened every hour near the end: "PLEASE, it MUST be time for the next shot! ... Why doesn't this just hurry up and get over with?" Faced with what Rollin's mother asked of her, I don't know that I could have responded differently.

How much more charitable it would have been to just give my friend's mother the drugs she needed to ease her pain, even if it ushered her from this world a few hours or days sooner. Instead, she was given just enough to bring brief periods of relief before the torment began again.

How ironic that as John O'Hair works to enact more humane laws that deal with terminally ill people, he faces Jack Kevorkian in court. If he were terminally ill, O'Hair told the Times, he wouldn't have a "moment's hesitation" in seeking a doctor's help to end his own life. He added that the idea of anyone telling him "that I have to endure what I don't want to endure" is "terribly offensive."

If Jack Kevorkian has raised our consciousness about how we deal with the terminally ill, and what rights they have irrespective of what we want for them, he has done this country a service.

Highway 17-92 and Interstate 4 is his top priority for central Florida.

"This is the only metropolitan area in the interior of Florida," said Watts. "Motorists need an option so if something happens on the interstate, we can reroute traffic along the eastern beltway and keep it moving."

Watts, secretary of the Florida Department of Transportation, and Nancy Houston, district FDOT secretary, visited Seminole County road projects Monday. Their inspections included a ride along the 12-mile expressway route and construction of the new U.S. 17-92 bridge over the St. Johns River.

The six-mile final link of the Seminole County Expressway, the northern link in the 55-mile beltway has been designated as the top road construction priority by the Metropolitan Planning Organization, the state's transportation planning advisory group for central Florida.

In August, the MPO voted to recommend the state shift $7.5 million set aside from the embattled Central Connector in Orlando to the six-mile link through south Sanford. Construction of the roadway between U.S. 17-92 and Rinehart Road is expected to cost about $95.5 million. The section between Rinehart Road and I-4, including the massive interchange, is expected to cost about $85 million.

South Sanford oppose the link, saying recent changes will affect their neighborhoods.

Watts said condemnations of homes and roadway impacts on neighborhoods are always difficult subjects to face, but necessary ones.

"I know there are always going to be persons affected, but the community at large will be the beneficiary," he said.

Beer

Two men reportedly took a 12-pack of beer from a convenience store in the 1800 block of S. Sanford Avenue on Friday.

Sanford police arrested Kenneth McGill, 27, 1081 Airport Blvd. in the 1800 block of W. 3rd Street Sunday. Police said he had taken eight packs of cigarettes from a convenience store. When officers arrested him they reported him in possession of what they determined to be a drug smoking device. He was charged with retail theft and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Four cartons of cigarettes valued at $76 were reportedly stolen from a convenience store on S.R. 46 early Monday. Sheriff's deputies said entry into the building was made by breaking through a glass entrance area.

During this past week, beer was reported stolen from a store in the 1800 block of Southwest Road; one carton of cigarettes and several separate packs were reportedly stolen from a convenience store in the 4000 block of W. S.R. 46; and a 12-pack of beer was reported stolen from a store on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Longwood. One arrest was made in that case.

Murder

"He's a doper," Simpson said. "We believe he will stay in the area until that money runs out and then he'll move on."

James was spotted twice on Monday, police said. The first time was at about 11:30 a.m. at a 7-Eleven store in Winter Park where a fellow day laborer saw him, but did not suspect there was trouble until he saw news reports later in the day. At about 5:30 p.m. in the Conway area of Orlando, an Orange County sheriff's deputy who was preparing to go on duty, but who was unaware of the situation, saw him again.

Police said James is a very slender man, about 5'9". He has blue eyes and blond hair currently cut in a spike cut, but he has a receding hairline. He also has a goatee. His face is very pockmarked and he has a scar on his right cheek. He is missing a front tooth.

Police ask that anyone spotting James call either the Casselberry Police (283-3940) or Crime Line (423-8477 or 1-800-423-8477) with the information.

Crime Line does not require that callers give their name and offers a reward of up to $1,000 for information leading to an arrest.

Simpson said that police investigators are again on the scene at the home where the murders occurred, continuing to search for clues.

"We had a delay yesterday while we waited for a search warrant," he said. "But we will wrap up the investigation today, I think."

Simpson said investigators waited for the search warrant because they wanted to be covered when they entered James' room. Because he was a paying boarder, his bedroom is considered a separate entity from the rest of the house.

Toni's body was found in his room.

Simpson said police are looking for James in known drug areas in Seminole and Orange counties and hope the public will assist them in their search.

School

Intercession on the year-round calendar at the school when she and her grandmother, Elizabeth Dicks, were murdered early Monday morning in their Casselberry home.

Her sister Wendi, 9, who was bound and gagged while Toni and her grandmother were murdered, managed to escape without physical harm. She is a fourth grader at Winter Springs.

Tom McDowell, principal at Winter Springs, said he plans to have a full crisis team available to the students and teachers, on Oct. 11 when classes resume for students who are presently on intercession.

"For now, the two guidance counselors at the school will handle the situation," McDowell said.

He said the second and fourth grade students who are in class will be sending cards and letters to Wendi and her parents. "She has survived a very traumatic experience," McDowell said. "Our thoughts and sympathies are with this family right now."

He said he is also sending a letter from the administration home to all the school's parents to make them aware of the situation and to let them know that the school counseling services are available to all those who need it.

Another letter has been sent to all the residents of the small neighborhood where the murders occurred.

"They are a very small, close neighborhood," McDowell said. "Everyone knew everyone else and this tragedy has touched them all, I'm sure."

He said that he has invited anyone from the block who needs some counseling regarding this situation to feel free to come to the school. McDowell said Toni was a "delightful child who was very pleasant and never any problem." Wendi has been a similarly good student, he said.

He said he does not know if Wendi will return to class in three weeks, but the school is planning a memorial service for Toni and her grandmother within the next few days though final plans have not been made.

McDowell said that it is ironic that this year the school had incorporated a section on creating a violence-free community as a part of the school improvement plan. The PTA had announced the topic of violence in the home as the subject for their first meeting in two weeks.

"We have to take some positive action against violent crime," McDowell said. "This has got to stop. This is becoming a tragedy."

Suit

due process and the county's regulations are capricious.

In 1990, the Seminole County Commissioners gave Tiger's Eye Productions permission to operate off Dean Road near Oviedo. McMillan's property is zoned agricultural and the commissioners granted him permission to operate the school for three years. Nearby residents complained about the operation of the school due to the traffic they claim it created.

When McMillan asked for another three years at the rural Oviedo property because he could not afford to move to another location, the commissioners unanimously refused on June 22. They said the school must cease operation Oct. 1 at the current site.

McMillan did not appeal the June decision to Circuit Court.

In the lawsuit, attorney David S. McDonald claims the commissioners had no authority to set a deadline in approving the Tiger's Eye operation, if it met county codes. Further, he claims the county has no rules for deciding when that deadline should be.

"Mr. McMillan agreed to the limit," said assistant county attorney Lonnie Groot. "He now appears to be recanting that agreement. It's hard to understand when people do this."

"We have a signed contract and a tape recording," Groot added, laughing.

The request for an extension to operate the school was not given an appropriate hearing before a citizen committee, according to the suit.

The county commissioners do not object to the animals on the property, but to the continued commercial use of the land in the agriculture-zoned land. Tiger's Eye Productions school trains people to handle big cats, such as tigers and leopards, as well as other exotic animals. In requesting a temporary injunction to keep the school open, McMillan claims it would impose a financial burden on him if the school is forced to cease operation by the October deadline. The animals would be placed in danger because of his inability to buy food and the lack of manpower to adequately care for them.

The suit notes it takes eight months to complete the training course and that a shutdown would force him to breach contracts with present students. Tiger's Eye is the only school of its kind outside California, according to the suit.

In a companion suit, McMillan sued adjacent property owner Robert Gentry for statements Gentry allegedly made about the school in the August issue of Alley Cat Magazine. The magazine and Jeanette Spencer are also named in the libel suit.

McMillan said he had no comment for the Sanford Herald concerning the lawsuit.

Hidden Lake area, have protested a change made by expressway authority members last year to shift the proposed extension of the tollroad from north of Airport Boulevard to south of the road, 200 feet closer to their homes. The shift eliminates a portion of a stand of trees between their homes and the expressway route.

The expressway authority made the shift to save $9.5 million from the $180.5 million cost of the final six-mile link of the 55-mile Central Florida Greenway. The shift eliminated the need to buy and raise Bridgewater Apartments for the route.

Gilbert told lawmakers a conflict is inherent in having elected officials serve on both a city or county commission and the expressway authority.

"We believe there is a conflict of interest that has resulted from placing elected officials on an appointed board that has to make decisions that ultimately causes the devaluation of the very neighborhoods they were elected to protect," Gilbert read from a prepared statement. "It is not possible to serve in the interests of citizens, and at the same time serve the interests of the expressway authority."

"We ask that you disband the expressway authority as it stands now, so that the elected officials can once again get back to representing the best interests of the citizens who put them in office."

Gilbert's comments did bring reactions from two lawmakers, Sen. Gary Siegel, R-Fren Park, and Rep. Lee Constantine, R-Altamonte Springs.

"What happens if we disband the expressway authority and the road gets stopped," asked Siegel.

"I can't answer that," said Gilbert.

"Oh, I think you can," Siegel responded.

But Siegel added, he was uncertain if the expressway will be used to the extent predicted by expressway officials. "I wonder if it will be a nightmare and no one will use it," he said.

Constantine noted Orange County residents, dissatisfied with their own expressway authority, have asked lawmakers to replace their appointed membership with elected officials.

"It's kind of interesting to note the residents were unhappy with the makeup of the expressway authority in both cases and want the exact opposite remedy," Constantine said.

terms of membership of the commission shall begin within seven days of certification of the election.

"Prior to that amendment," she adds, "terms began the following month."

"For clarification," she says, "I would ask that you approve the Ordinance which will provide the date for commencement of terms to be at the next regularly scheduled City Commission meeting following certification of the election for which they were elected to office. If the new ordinance is approved by the voters, it would not effect this year's elections. The ordinance, as presently written, specifies the effective date to be Nov. 30. Swearing-in therefore, would still be required within seven days after certification of the election.

In future elections however, persons elected to the City Commission would be sworn in at the first commission meeting. Meetings are normally scheduled on the first and third Thursday of every month.

Two commission seats will be up for election this November. The seats presently held by Commissioner George Duryea and A.R. "Doc" Jore.

The election is scheduled on Nov. 2, 1993.

If both ordinances are approved by the City Commission, they will also appear on the Nov. 2 ballot in Lake Mary. The matters are scheduled for discussion during this Thursday night's City Commission meeting, beginning at 7 p.m. at Lake Mary City Hall, 100 N. Country Club Road.

Newspapers make matches buyer's market

By TERRY WALLACE
Associated Press Writer

CHARLESTON, W. Va. — More and more of the nation's newspapers are stepping in as high-tech matchmakers, offering a chance at romance for Sleepless in Seattle, Desperate in Des Moines and Alone in Abilene.

Their "voice personal" classified ads use voice-mail technology to help the lonely find love — and not incidentally, to help the papers' profits in a time of lagging circulation and advertising, industry experts said.

About 275 newspapers offer such matchmaking services, up from 25 newspapers in 1990, said Randy Bennett, new technologies program manager for the Newspaper Association of America of Reston, Va.

"It's been a phenomenal and very unexpected source of revenue," said Pat McDonald, a newspaper marketing consultant in Lafayette, Ind.

The ads are generating as much as $60 million for the newspaper industry, said Wayne Miller, president of Minneapolis-based MicroVoice Communications, which provides voice-mail advertising for about 300 newspapers.

The Philadelphia Inquirer and the Philadelphia Daily News began running telephone personals in April with 50 ads. Volume had grown to almost 600 listings by early August, said Kathy McKenna, a classified ad manager for the newspapers.

The Los Angeles Times has been running about 3,000 listings weekly since it introduced its "voice personals" in June 1992. Each week, the Times gets about 750 new listings to replace outdated ones, spokeswoman Michele Biagioni said.

While personals are new to many mainstream newspapers, they are old hat for the alternative press. The Village Voice has been running them since 1957. The old New York Herald's personal ads before and after the Civil War were notorious.

Voice personals, though, are different: The customer is paying to meet the advertiser, instead of the other way around.

Usually, the newspaper publishes free ads phoned in by people looking to meet new people.

Those answering an ad dial up a "900" telephone voice-mail system at a cost of up to $2 per minute. Then the advertiser screens the responses by dialing the same number, also at a cost of up to $2 per minute.

"People don't want to pay for anything unless it's libido-driven. Then, the sky's the limit," said Richard Wallace, information service director for The Village Voice.

Personal ads are nothing new for The Charleston Gazette and the Charleston Daily Mail, which published the ads the old-fashioned way, in classified advertising pages in space bought by the advertiser, who would collect responses by mail.

In May, the newspapers went to "tele-personals."

"The Meeting Place" contained 45 ads when it first ran in Saturday editions of May 23. In 11 weeks, the volume more than tripled to 146 listings, said Carolyn Perry, marketing director for the newspapers.

"It is more than we anticipated," she said. "And we've found it's not just young people. We have a lot of people 34 years old and older."

And in a nod to '90s realities, the Charleston newspapers use a warning label with each display.

"IMPORTANT: First meetings should occur in a well-lit, public place for your first few encounters. Do not give out your last name, address, phone number or place of employment until you are comfortable doing so...."

"We actually just advise people to use common sense," Perry said.

"It's very standard, something we already tell every advertiser," said Mary Anne Wesner, account executive for MicroVoice Communications, which handles the telephone service for the Charleston Newspapers and dozens of others nationwide.

Not all newspapers have embraced the idea. Through most of their brief history, 900 numbers have had a sleazy reputation, and some publishers are uncomfortable with them.

"There was a lot of stigmatizing of the 900 services," McDonald said.

"There was an adamant refusal among an awful lot of publishers who would never do something like this. There was a belief that this thing was dirty," said Tom Stites, vice president of the UniMedia Division of the Universal Press Syndicate of Kansas City, Mo.

The syndicate provided voice personal services to more than 70 newspapers until about four months ago, when Brite Voice Systems of Wichita, Kan., bought out UniMedia's client list.

But Stites is still a believer in voice personals as a public service.

"The demographics are startling," Stites said. "The 1990 census shows that 25 percent of all the households in America consist of only one person. There's never been anything like this in the history of the world. And nobody knows how to deal with that. I almost came to believe that this was a noble service for newspapers to provide," he said.

Can't Keep Track Of All Those Files? Maybe It's Time You Called Smiles!

All the hard work you've been doing is beginning to take its toll. Your brow is constantly furrowed, your eyes look tired and your mouth is set in a permanent frown. Don't you think it's about time you got Smiles?

Melvin and Susan Evans began their local business, Smiles, in April. For the past six months, they have been specializing in billing, invoicing, legal research, and paralegal services. By working out of their home and striving to keep overhead to a minimum, they are able to offer an array of services at affordable, competitive rates.

Wills, simple divorce, legal research, power of attorney, and other legal services are professionally handled by Susan Evans. You can feel confident that this graduate of Alsup Management Training program and bearer of an Associate of Science degree in Paralegal will carefully manage your legal services and answer your questions. However, Smiles cannot provide any legal advice nor represent a client in court. If such a case arises, Smiles will recommend that the client contact an attorney.

Running a business is hard work. Wouldn't you like to be able to find your desk under that mound of paperwork? You need to consider the business services provided by Melvin Evans. Whether you need help with billing, spreadsheets, or invoicing, Smiles can provide assistance. You're just now beginning to realize how much a family owned business can make your job easier. Well look at that - you're smiling already!

Are you feeling troubled because you can't find a job? Let Smiles help with their resume service. From the top of your cover letter to the bottom of your resume, Smiles will make your document look as professional as that job you're after.

Your business and legal problems can be easily solved by relying on Susan and Melvin's experience, 5 years and 6 1/2 years respectively. After owning and operating a business in Texas for 4 years, Melvin and Susan found that they are not satisfied working for anyone else. They opened Smiles in Lake Mary in April, 1993. Their hard work combined with a 380 computer help keep your affairs up-to-date and your documents looking top-notch.

Is your brow beginning to furrow? Is your mouth starting to frown? Don't ignore these warning signals! Hurry! Call 328-8329 because it's time you got yourself some Smiles.

For Cosmetics, Or For Hair Short Or Long, With Fascinations You Can't Go Wrong!

If I hadn't seen it for myself, I wouldn't believe it. There is actually a salon right here in Sanford that offers such a variety of services that you can care for your entire family's beauty needs at one place. They have it all - from cosmetics and skin care to hair care to ear piercing. It's amazing, it's incredible, it's...Fascinations!

Jerry and Jill Gongwer, "best friends" after 22 years of marriage and owners of Fascinations, began the business in 1985 with Christian principles as its basis. They strive to give all their clients quality products and services in a comfortable and pleasing smoke-free environment. After outgrowing their last location, they moved the salon to the Sanford Wal-Mart center five months ago. You can still find the wide variety of products and services that Fascinations has always offered.

The full hair services salon at Fascinations caters to both men and women. You can feel comfortable relying on the experience of the stylists. Flo, Senior Stylist, has 21 years of experience in hair services. Lexi and Agne, Stylists, each have four years experience. Fascinations realizes that not all hair care products or hair services will work for every person which is one reason they carry an extensive cruelty-free product line that includes Paul Mitchell, Nexos, Sebastian, Matrix, Biolage, Vavoom, Develop 10, Scruples, Redken, and Aveda. For perms, Fascinations only uses Matrix, Scruples, and Aveda. Their hair color lines are Matrix, Redken, and Sunlight.

Fascinations realizes that their prices may be a little higher, but you only get one head of hair so they only use top of the line products. Jerry and Jill are so sure of their products and services that they guarantee haircuts, perms and colors. If you have any trouble with them once you leave the salon, just come back within a week to have it corrected. They want you to be pleased with their services so you'll return next time.

Pamper yourself with the beauty services offered by Fascinations. If you've ever wanted to have a facial, learn more about skin care and make-up, or get your ears pierced then come to Fascinations. All cosmetic products used at Fascinations are hypoallergenic and dermatologist / ophthalmologist tested. Tammy is an esthetician and make-up artist with five years experience. Jill was a LPN for 15 years before her training in Lexington, Kentucky for make-up and skin care along with facial and nail training. Fascinations is proud to feature Merle Norman cosmetics which does not perform animal testing. Recently, Merle Norman, Los Angeles, awarded Jerry and Jill the "Gold Medallion Studio of Excellence" award. It took a lot of hard work, but they are very grateful for the recognition.

Whether you need a quick trim or a complete make-over, Fascinations is the one place to go for a myriad of beauty needs. If you have questions about the services offered by Fascinations, stop by 3669 Orlando Drive in the Sanford Wal-Mart center or call 322-6505. See for yourself that they're amazing, they're incredible, they're... Fascinations!

WASHINGTON — Intent on pleasing military reservists, Congress is moving toward what once was considered unthinkable — opening its commissaries year-round to the nation's citizen-soldiers.

Once permitted to shop at the government-sponsored supermarkets no more than 12 times a year, more than one million reservists would be given everyday access under a congressional provision that has angered the nation's commercial grocers.

"It's galling to expand this, and the timing is incredible," said Lars Peterson of the Food Marketing Institute, which represents 1,500 food retailers and wholesalers.

Grocers facing the prospect of paying more income and energy taxes under President Clinton's new budget are fighting another run at their profits if they lose business from reservists.

The House Armed Services readiness subcommittee tacked the provision, which has been kicking around Congress for the past few years, into the fiscal 1994 defense budget.

The House is expected to complete the legislation this week.

Lawmakers view the new provision not only as a benefit for reservists but also as a way to reduce the government subsidies to running the commissaries. That has been seen as crucial in a time of a general shrinkage of military forces in the post-Cold War period.

The some 375 military-supported supermarkets in the United States and overseas are set to receive $1.2 billion in subsidies in the defense budget for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

For the record, the Defense Department says it is reviewing the provision and has not decided whether to support it. A Pentagon spokesman, Lt. Col. Doug Hart, said the department must determine whether the system can absorb additional people and if additional money is necessary.

But congressional sources who spoke on condition of anonymity said the Defense Department supports the provision.

The Reserve Officers Association has hailed the step for acknowledging the increasing contributions of citizen-soldiers in today's military. The nation's grocers see it far differently.

"With the tax bill that just passed, a lot of our smaller members are bracing for a hit," said Peterson, the senior government relations representative for the Food Marketing Institute. "They're upset that the government is expanding an entitlement that is competition against them. That's real annoying."

Angry grocers have sent letters to Congress complaining about the provision, arguing that it will hurt their businesses and grant a privilege to civilians with fulltime jobs living in communities with commercial stores.

"We're not proposing to diminish or take away any benefit. We want the status quo," Peterson said.

Reservists counter that commissary business is diminishing along with the general down-sizing of the military. They say that will more than offset any increase in business resulting from unlimited reservist shopping privileges.

They also contend that reservists are no longer the "weekend warriors" of the past, and are being called upon to play a larger role in the new, smaller military. The expanded benefit is well-deserved, said the Reserve Officers Association.

"The perception is of reservists as a real partner, not a drain on the system," said William Legg, director of naval affairs at the association.

Rising subsidies for commissaries remain a concern of the Armed Services Committee.

Base closures, the diminishing use of commissaries by active-duty personnel and a Congressional Budget Office recommendation that federal support be eliminated "call into question the need for the continuation of the heavy subsidies for these operations," the panel said in a report accompanying its bill.

Commissaries, which were started during the Indian Wars, provide members food, drugs, paper products, cleaning items and other products at cost plus a 5 percent surcharge that is used to build new commissaries.

White House working to build support for plan

By NANCY BENAC
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Fax machines, toll-free phone numbers, house parties, TV town halls, surrogate speakers: The Clinton White House plans to use every gimmick of modern communications to sell its health care package to the American people.

It's pure and simple marketing.

The goal is to take a proposal of mind-numbing complexity and reduce it to six warm, fuzzy principles that are hard to argue against: security, choice, savings, quality, simplicity, responsibility.

"Health care that's always there," will be a key slogan.

The audience is a public that is both hopeful and skeptical — anxious for more secure and affordable health coverage, yet worried it may end up paying more for less.

President Clinton also got a firm endorsement Monday from Dr. C. Everett Koop, the surgeon general under Republican presidents Reagan and Bush. Koop said Clinton had already accomplished more to solve the nation's health woes "than all of his living predecessors put together."

Clinton called it "an astonishing thing" that hundreds of lawmakers signed up for "Health Care University" briefings Monday and today with first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton, who led his health-care task force, and the rest of his health advisers.

But the opposition already is speaking to people's concerns about the ultimate product, with the insurance industry running ads that warn consumers that medical choices could be limited under health reform.

Clinton adviser Paul Begala insists that while Americans by nature are wary of anything marked "New and Improved," they will be receptive to the health-care package once they get acquainted with it.

"They've already been talking about this issue around their kitchen tables for years," he said.

Republican pollster Bill McInturff, however, thinks that while the White House is saying all the right things about health care, the plan itself will be its undoing.

"They're selling exactly the right thing," he said. "The trouble is, the issues people haven't produced a document that makes the sale credible."

The complexity of the plan, he said, "gives the president an enormous advantage" because people will tend to focus on the appealing slogans rather than details of the plan.

Clinton himself will be educator in chief on what may be the defining mark of his presidency.

Last week's Rose Garden event where the president and his wife heard health-care horror stories from ordinary Americans is just the type of event the White House will use to mobilize support for the plan.

"It's the most complex public issue our nation has tried to come to grips with," Clinton said. "That's why I wanted to begin with the human face of it."

That message from the top will be supported every which way possible.

A health-care "war room" at the White House complex already is cranking out 400 faxes a night to members of Congress, interest groups and others, to cast the plan in its best light.

On Thursday, the day after he presents the plan to Congress, Clinton will host a prime-time TV town hall broadcast from Tampa, Fla.

Health care: Many benefits—with limits

By CAROLE FELDMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Clinton's health care plan would pay for your children's eyeglasses but not for yours. Same goes for having your teeth cleaned, though some preventive coverage for adults may be phased in "if savings from reform and budget resources permit."

The plan, which Clinton will formally present on Wednesday, is built on the premise that "guaranteed benefits should meet the full range of health needs, including primary, preventive and specialized care."

For the first time, all Americans would be guaranteed coverage for regular physical exams and diagnostic screening for such conditions as breast cancer and high cholesterol levels, according to a widely circulated draft of the plan. All childhood immunizations would be covered.

Most preventive care would be provided free — a major selling point of the Clinton proposal, since most traditional health insurance plans pay nothing unless a person is sick. Yet, the plan has limits.

Some doctors disagree with the rigid schedule set for physical exams, mammograms and Pap smears. And it wouldn't be until the year 2001 that mental illness would be treated more on par with physical ailments.

The plan would give a National Health Board discretion to add benefits, with the first expansion likely to encompass wider dental coverage.

The plan covers hearing exams, but not hearing aids. Vision screening is provided as well.

It also provides coverage for family planning and pregnancy, but not for in vitro fertilization.

Also covered are classes on preventive measures such as smoking cessation, nutritional counseling, stress management, skin cancer prevention and physical training classes.

While most preventive care is covered at no charge, other services carry an annual cap of $1,500 per individual and $3,000 per family. There is no lifetime limit on coverage, except for orthodontics — if that is phased in.

Doctors predict that more Americans will use preventive health services once they are covered under Clinton's plan.

Dr. Kathleen Weaver, an internist in Portland, Ore., said patients participating in health maintenance organizations, which generally cover preventive care, tend to have physicals more regularly than those covered by traditional insurance plans.

"You can catch things earlier, there are so many screening tests," she said. "You get to see them over a period of time so you can see if there are changes in their physical, behavioral or emotional status."

Dr. Howard Pearson, president of the American Academy of Pediatrics, said no-cost childhood immunizations could help end the "national disgrace" of having fewer than 60 percent of 2-year-olds immunized.

Administration unveils proposals for food safety

By RYA BEAMISH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Clinton administration is proposing a mixed bag of food safety rules that would curb overall pesticide use while relaxing a tough anti-cancer standard for processed foods.

The administration package also would place greater emphasis on protecting children from chemicals used to fight crop-destroying pests, administration officials said.

The proposals were being unveiled today by officials of the Agriculture Department, the Environmental Protection Agency and the Food and Drug Administration at a joint hearing of the House Energy subcommittee on health and the environment and the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee.

In the most controversial aspect of the package, the administration is asking Congress to relax a blanket ban on cancer-causing pesticide residues in processed foods — a move long sought by the food and chemical industries.

Environmental groups be-so-called Delaney clause of the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act, which bars even tiny traces of cancer-causing pesticides from processed foods when residues exceed the approved level in raw fruits and vegetables. Critics contend the 1958 statute is outmoded because modern equipment makes it possible to detect microscopic residues that pose no health risk.

The administration instead proposes a negligible-risk standard to allow traces of pesticide in amounts deemed within a health safety margin. The accepted standard would be a risk of no more than one added cancer case for every 1 million people, but that norm would not be locked into the law under the administration's proposal.

In line with its goal of reducing pesticide use overall, the administration is proposing a timetable for converting croplands to pesticide alternatives such as natural pest killers and biological engineering.

It also addresses one of the overriding concerns of several consumer and environmental groups — committing to the development of a timetable within one year to reduce use of specific hazardous pesticides.

Astronomers may have glimpsed 'dark matter'

By PAUL RAEBURN
AP Science Editor

NEW YORK — Astronomers say they may have gotten their first glimpse of the mysterious "dark matter" that makes up as much as 90 percent of the universe.

In reports presented Monday in Italy, an American team and a French team said they have evidence that dark matter is made up of billions of objects the size of Jupiter or larger called MACHOs, or massive compact halo objects. They are stillborn or very dim stars.

Dark matter can't be seen directly. But a MACHO has a large gravitational field that acts as a lens, magnifying objects behind it. That allows it to be detected indirectly.

"Eight days ago, a couple of members of the team noticed this astounding event, which has caused enormous excitement amongst us," said the head of the U.S. team, Charles Alcock of Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory in California.

Alcock said it is impossible to be certain that dark matter has been seen until more examples are observed. But if the findings are confirmed, they represent an answer to what he called "the most important unsolved problem facing astronomy in the 1990s."

Mario Mateo, an astronomer at the University of Michigan who is also searching for dark matter, said, "It's an important thing, and if more are found everyone will point back to these as the first."

He agreed with Alcock, however, that caution is in order until the events are confirmed.

The quest for dark matter began in the 1930s, when Fritz

Zwicky, a Swiss astronomer at the California Institute of Technology, concluded that galaxies must be shrouded in a halo of "dark" matter that provided enough mass to make possible movements he observed inside the galaxies.

Researchers have speculated that the dark matter could be made up of anything from subatomic particles to giant, gaping black holes. Until now, there has been no evidence to support one theory over another.

Along with MACHOs, another leading candidate has been exotic subatomic particles called weakly interacting massive particles, or WIMPs. If the new findings are correct, the MACHOs may have finally beaten the WIMPs.

"It's entirely possible that all of this dark stuff is made out of objects like this," Alcock said. It's also possible, he said, that some of the dark matter is made up of MACHOs and the rest of something else.

Reports were presented in Italy at the Conference on Underground Particle Physics in Gran Sasso and the International Conference on the Cosmic Microwave Background Radiation in Capri.

Alcock and his colleagues, scanning millions of stars each night at the Mount Stromlo observatory in Australia, found one star that became seven times brighter for 34 days. After ruling out other possibilities, they concluded that a MACHO passed in front of the star, magnifying its image.

The French astronomy team, led by Michel Spiro and based at a French national laboratory outside Paris, found two examples of star magnification, known technically as gravitational microlensing.

SYFA teams win threes

LAKE MARY — The Sanford Youth Football Association won three of five games from Lake Mary in Pop Warner action Saturday at Lake Mary High School's Don T. Reynolds Stadium. Sanford came out on top in the Junior PeeWee (32-6), Junior Midget (25-6), and Senior Midget (34-0) contests. Lake Mary won the Mighty Mite (7-6) and PeeWee (13-12) games. This Saturday, Sanford will host Winter Park in a five-game set at Seminole High School's Thomas E. Whigham Stadium starting at 9 a.m.

Cheers overtakes Mice

CASSELBERRY — Losses don't come much more painful than this. Paddy McGee's Mice was sailing along with a 5-1 lead over Cheers in their Seminole County Recreation Women's Class C Slowpitch Softball League game. Then, in the bottom of the sixth inning, Cheers rallied for seven runs and an 8-5 win. Cheers improves to 2-0 while Paddy McGee's, which ousted Cheers 10-7, falls to 1-1. Jaudon Marlette led the Mice with a triple, double, two runs, and two RBI. Denise Levinson added a double, one run, and an RBI. Jackie Janowiak, Connie Thomas, Allyson Hale, Tammy Cheaser, Carrie McAuliffe, Phyllis Baynes, and Lori Lingle each had one hit. Next week, the Mice play Andrew's Construction at 7:30 p.m.

Calling all girls

SANFORD — The Sanford Recreation Department is now accepting registrations for a fall senior girls' slowpitch softball league that will begin play this Thursday at Fort Mellon Park. Players 13-17 can register at the Downtown Recreation Center, lower level of Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Ave. All players must pay a $10 registration fee and non-Sanford residents must pay the $10 individual or $15 family fee. Proof of age must be shown prior to playing. Community service for Jackson

TALLAHASSEE — Florida State tailback Sean Jackson was ordered Monday to perform 10 hours of community service for punching a fan following the Seminoles' 33-7 victory Saturday at North Carolina. Jackson, the school's 10th career leading rusher with 1,562 yards, met with Florida State athletic department officials and coach Bobby Bowden about his actions. "Two wrongs don't make a right," said Jackson who had been showered with a soft drink and ice cubes by fans at the game. "I want to apologize to my teammates, the fans and everyone associated with Florida State University for embarrassing myself, the university and my teammates. It was a bad situation and I reacted in an inappropriate manner."

Gaining the upper hand

Defensive superiority boosts Silver Hawks to win over Rams

From Staff Reports

WINTER PARK — Depending on which side of the net you were sitting, Monday night's Lake Mary-Lake Howell varsity boys volleyball match was either cause for much rejoicing or reason for great concern.

If you're the Lake Howell Silver Hawks, the 8-15, 15-12, 15-4 victory couldn't come at a better time and may be just the thing to take you to the next level.

"Lake Mary is always our toughest competition and our biggest rival," said Lake Howell coach Christy Howard. "Beating them is always a big boost."

"I hope this will carry us to the next level. This is a totally different team than I've had in the past. We have only two starters back from last year. The rest of the team didn't really know what a match with Lake Mary was about. Tonight, they found out and it brought out the best in them."

By comparison, the Rams continue to show a level of play something below their best.

"Basically, it's time to start getting worried," said Lake Mary coach Bill Whalen. "We're still making the same mistakes that we were making in the previous matches. We're not correcting any of our mistakes."

"Tonight, Lake Howell had better defensive positioning and played the defensive part of the game better than we did. In the four matches we've lost, our biggest problem has been defensive positioning, being down low and being ready to play. Until we correct that, we won't beat any quality teams. When two good teams meet, the team that plays the better defense usually wins."

"Lake Howell played better defense than we did and that was the difference in the match," Howard agreed.

"I told my kids before the match that defense was going to win it for us," she said. "They did the job. They came through when they had to."

Curt Shingledecker and Kevin Yearick anchored the Silver Hawk defense with their fine backrow play. Setter Chad Thomas ran the team while Osvaldo Barreras, playing his first match since returning to the lineup after spraining his ankle, led the attack.

"Osvaldo was very consistent," Howard said. "He came up with the big hits when we needed them. He's coming off a sprained ankle he suffered when he stepped on a ball. This was his first action in a while."

The one truly outstanding performance turned in by Lake Mary was a 13-point service run by Erik Larsen that turned an 8-2 deficit in the first game into a 15-8 victory.

Lake Howell also won the junior varsity match, beating Lake Mary in three games.

Now 5-0 overall and 2-0 in the Seminole Athletic Conference, Lake Howell will host Lyman on Wednesday before traveling to Evans on Thursday. Lake Mary, now 2-4 overall and 1-1 in the SAC, hosts Oviedo Wednesday night and is at home against Boone on Thursday.

HOUNDSTAKE TRIBE

SANFORD — It may be a loss, but for Coach Beth Corso and the Seminole Fighting Seminoles, Monday's 15-7, 15-10 defeat at the hands of the Lyman Greyhounds was something of a landmark effort.

"The boys played really well," said Corso, who also coaches the Seminole varsity girls volleyball team. "Our passing game was really going well. We got the ball to the setter and were able to do some things on offense."

"I'm really happy with what I saw. We ran our plays tonight. We were in our attack and we ran our offense. On defense, we dug up everything. We still need some improvement in serve receiving, but I'm really happy with the way the team came together and what they accomplished tonight."

David Campbell collected five assists for Seminole while Josh Elliott had four assists. Jason Wildermuth led the attack at the net with four kills, 11 good spikes, 1 block, and a dink. Nathan Morgan added a kill, three good spikes, and two blocks. Danny Watson contributed two Despite playing in his first match since coming back from a sprained ankle, Osvaldo Barreras continually came up with big hits for Lake Howell in the Silver Hawks' win over Lake Mary Monday.

SANFORD HERALD PLAYER OF THE WEEK

Shaw leads Brantley

By TONY DESORMIER
Herald Sports Editor

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Lake Brantley High School quarterback Jeff Shaw had one of those nights that every athlete dreams of, where not only did nothing go wrong, but everything he did was very, very right.

Shaw carried the ball only nine times against Lake Howell Friday, but still managed to accumulate 167 yards, including touchdown runs of 36, 45, 30, and 30 yards. In the Patriots' 36-12 win over the Silver Hawks.

For his effort, Shaw is this week's Sanford Herald Player of the Week.

"He just made it happen," said Lake Brantley coach Fred Almon. "He made the right decisions at the right time. Hopefully, he'll get to throw the football one of these times. He has a good arm."

Against Lake Howell, Shaw ran the Patriot option attack to perfection. While Shaw did most of the scoring, the focus of the Lake Brantley attack was fullback Jeff Butler, who carried the ball 22 times for 210 yards and a touchdown.

In all, Lake Brantley gained 412 yards on 41 rushing attempts. Shaw also completed a screen pass to Rickey Hamilton, who turned the play into a 17-yard gain.

While it may sound incongruous, Shaw may have been too effective.

"Our goal is to keep our offense on the field as long as possible and keep the pressure off of our young defense," explained Almon. "But that was the lowest number of plays we've run all year."

Each one of Shaw's four touchdown runs completed short offensive series (one capped a four-play drive, two were three-play series, and one was a one-play drive).

By the same token, Lake Brantley took control of the game with a Lake Brantley's Jeff Shaw is this week's Sanford Herald Player of the Week.

Also considered were:
• Lake Howell tailback Kelvin Chisolm, who rushed for 125 yards and caught a 17-yard pass.

• Lyman running back Keith Burgess, who gained 93 yards in a win over Mainland.

• Lake Mary quarterback Derrell Jackson, who threw for 66 yards and scored the Rams' only touchdown.

• Oviedo running back Antijuan Battle, who rushed for 28 yards and a touchdown and caught a 50-yard pass.

• Seminole running back Robert Ruffin, who scored two touchdowns, gained 58 yards rushing, and caught two passes for 22 yards.

13-play, seven-minute drive capped by Butler's 1-yard touchdown run to open the third quarter.

Shaw is the second consecutive Lake Brantley player to cop the honor. Last week, Butler was honored for his effort in Lake Brantley's win over Lake Mary.

Also considered for the honor this week were Lake Howell tailback Kelvin Chisolm, Lyman running back Keith Burgess, Lake Mary quarterback Derrell Jackson, Oviedo running back Antijuan Battle, and Seminole running back Robert Ruffin.

Sweep prompts changes for Tribe

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — After watching her Seminole High School girls volleyball team struggle in a 15-5, 16-14 loss to the visiting Bishop Moore Hornets Monday night, Coach Beth Corso decided it was time for some wholesale changes.

"I'm very displeased, so displeased that when we go to Lyman tomorrow, we're going to use a different offense," said Corso. "I'm putting both setters on floor. We have to get our offense going. We have to start doing a better job passing the ball."

"Tomorrow, we have a real tough match. I tried a few things tonight. When we came out and couldn't get anything going, I started making some switches. I didn't want to make these changes for a couple of weeks, but we have to do it now."

The change in the Seminole lineup will result in Yuleyma Otero and Christina Campbell, the Tribe's two primary setters, being on the floor at the same time.

"They (Otero and Campbell) both had good performances in the second game," said Corso. "Michelle Johnson and Vilaphone Ratanavong

Brown's qualifies 30 for Level IV, V state meets

From Staff Reports

MELBOURNE — For their first time out this season, the Level IV and V teams from Brown's Gymnastics did exceptionally well this past weekend.

Competing in the season's first qualifying meet, hosted by Artistic Gymnastics on Sunday, all 14 Level IV girls from Brown's and 14 of the 16 Level V girls earned marks high enough to qualify them for their respective state meets.

The two Level V's that didn't qualify for the state meet did qualify for the sectional meet.

Jessica Demateis from Brown's finished first in the Level IV 9 to 11-year-old all-around competition with a composite score of 35.20. Teammate Ashley Huffman was second (35.15); Tanya Eberhardt and Jill Cody tied for fourth (34.65); Ken Poor came in sixth (34.50); and Jackie Martin took ninth (34.30).

Cody won the floor exercise competition with a mark of 9.15. Huffman was second (9.10) while Poor and Eberhardt tied for third (9.05). Martin was first in the balance beam (9.25) while Huffman took second (9.20) and Demateis finished third (9.00).

Cody also had the top mark on the parallel bars

(8.85). Demateis placed third (8.75) and Martin was 10th (8.55). In the vault, Eberhardt took first (9.30); Huffman and Demateis tied for second (8.60); Cody took sixth (8.65); and Poor was seventh (8.60).

In the Level IV 6-to-8 competition, Meagan Mathers finished second in the all-around with a combined score of 34.60. She was fourth in the floor exercise (8.60), third on the balance beam (9.00), and second in the vault (8.55).

Teammate Jackie Mustakas was third in the floor exercise (8.85) while Morgan Rutherford placed fifth in the vault (8.15).

The Level IV state meet is scheduled for Jacksonville in December.

In the Level V 6-to-8 division, Brown teammates Kim Wood, Brooke Sullivan, and Nicole Williams were first, second, and third in the all-around competition. Wood scoring 35.90, Sullivan totalling 35.55, and Williams posting a 35.20.

Williams won the floor exercise (9.10) while Wood finished third (8.85). Wood finished first in the balance beam competition (9.10), Sullivan was second (9.05), and Williams took third (9.00). Wood also came in first on the parallel bars (9.25). Sullivan again was second (9.10) and Williams third (8.90). In the vault, Sullivan took first (8.90), Wood placed second (8.70), and teammate Whitney Shepard was third (8.35).

Michelle Irvine was the winner in the Level V 9-to-11 all-around competition with her composite score of 35.90. Katie Hardman claimed fourth (35.50), Brittany Crupe came in fifth (35.20), and Sharon Wain took seventh (34.90).

Hardman placed second (9.15) in the floor exercise. Brown team member Valerie Barlow finished first (9.25) on the balance beam while Crupe and Irvine tied for second (9.00) and Wain took ninth (8.65).

Wain won the parallel bars competition (9.25). Jennifer Camps, also from Brown's, came in second (9.20). Hardman finished fifth (9.15), and Irvine claimed eighth (9.05). The vault competition went to Irvine (9.05). Wain ended up fourth (8.80), Crupe copped sixth (8.75), and Hardman was ninth (8.60).

The Level V state meet will be competed on Dec. 4 and 5 in Clearwater. The sectional meet is set for Nov. 13 and 14 in Palm Bay.

Brown's Level IV and V girls are scheduled to compete in the Gemini Cup meet the weekend of Oct. 2 and 3 in Clearwater.

Rollin', rollin'

A cloud or two in the sky doesn't seem to bother Christine Nunley, 2, as she keeps on rollin' in the stagscoach at Ft. Meigs Park completely oblivious of the possibility of afternoon showers.

Guests' valuables lack protection

DEAR ABBY: Please let your readers know that they are not necessarily protected if they leave their valuables in a hotel safety deposit box. Most states have acts that protect innkeepers, not guests. The Illinois Innkeeper Protection Act, which is typical of the acts in most states, limits the liability to $500 even if the hotel is at fault.

For protection over $500, a guest must get the hotel to consent in writing to assume greater liability.

The law can be found on those little cards that establishments have posted on the door (inside) of the hotel room.

DAVID N. SCHAFFER,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
CHICAGO

DEAR MR. SCHAFFER: I appreciate information that will be helpful to my readers. People who travel are familiar with the notice you describe; however, it's printed in type so small one needs a magnifying glass to read it.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I never thought that at 50-plus years old I would feel the fear, shame and stupidity I felt sitting in my gynecologist's office being tested for sexually transmitted diseases.

The lecture that my kind, caring physician gave me was severe — and I deserved it. He said, "Women who grew up in the 'Father Knows Best' age, and have unprotected sex in the '80s, are operating under a false reality."

A man (and so-called friend) I dated for years never used any kind of protection. Now I have learned that for at least two years, he has had multiple partners — plus some very seedy affairs. He says he will not "kiss and tell" — worse yet, he refuses to say whether he used protection with the others.

Well, today it is possible to "kiss and kill" — and now, I have had multiple partners because of this man's promiscuity.

Would you believe I have three grown sons who are smarter than me on this subject? Can you believe a person with a bachelor of science degree and a master's in education could have been this stupid?

My basic tests were clear, thank God, and I pray that the HIV test will be, too. A dear friend of mine died of AIDS, so I know firsthand how painful and tragic this disease is because I held his hand until the bitter end.

His elderly mother had the courage to sign his papers so that he could end treatment — and die. It was very hard for her. I pray that no one will have to sign them for me.

Abby, please print this letter as a warning to women everywhere: If you're getting in or out of a relationship, make sure that you are clean. Buy your own protection, and demand its use. I carry my test results with me as well as condoms. Don't leave home without them. This is the age where the doctor knows best.

WISER AND PRAYING I'LL GROW OLDER

DEAR WISER AND PRAYING: Add my prayers to yours. It is to your credit that you took the time and effort to warn others in the strongest terms that unprotected sex can be a death sentence — whether it's with a stranger, or someone you have known and trusted for a very long time.

DEAR ABBY: After yet another letter concerning names (this one about Wiviat Yinghiat-tavecsuk Parsones), I wanted you to know that my husband enjoys meeting people with long, complicated names, especially when they acknowledge that their name is hard to pronounce or remember.

It gives him a chance to say, "Well, your name may be difficult, but mine is Harder."

ARLENE F. HARDER,
ALTADENA, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: My ex-husband to whom I was married for 34 years died recently. A year before he died, he called me up and asked, "Was I the best lover you ever had?" I replied, "I don't know; I never had anyone to compare you with."

Do you think he died happy?

ELSIE IN GREEN VALLEY, ARIZ.

DEAR ELSIE: Without a doubt.

The application is for MODIFICATION TO THE PREVIOUSLY ISSUED PERMITS ASSOCIATED WITH THE WIDENING OF APPROX 2.3 MILES OF AN EXISTING 2 LANE ROADWAY TO LANES WITH A GRASSED MEDIAN KNOWN AS LAKE MARY BOULEVARD, PHASE II.

The receiving waterbodies are LAKE MARY & LAKE WINGFIELD DEVELOPMENT COMPANY, ATTN: GORDON S. NUTT, ONE DUPONT CENTER, 390 NORTH ORANGE AVENUE, ORLANDO, FLORIDA 32804. The project is located in Seminole County, Section 27, Township 20 South, Range 29 East. The application is for the CONSTRUCTION OF A 25' WIDE RIVER, OR AN EXISTING COLLECTION SYSTEM WITHIN THE WINGFIELD RESERVE DEVELOPMENT FOR HOMESITES.

The receiving waterbody is the LITTLE WINGFIELD RIVER. The file(s) containing the applicant(s) are available for inspection Monday through Friday except for legal holidays, 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. at the St. Johns River Water Management District Headquarters or the appropriate field office. The District will take action on each permit application filed upon a petition for an administrative hearing in accordance with section 120.57, F.S. Petitions must comply with the requirements of Florida Administrative Code Rules 62C-1.001 and 62C-1.002 as filed with (received by) the District Clerk, P.O. Box 1429, Palatka, Florida 32970-1429. Petitions for administrative hearing on the above captioned matter must be filed within fourteen (14) days of publication of this notice or within fourteen (14) days of actual receipt of this notice, whichever first occurs. Failure to file a petition within this time period shall constitute a waiver of any right such person may have to request an administrative determination (hearing) under section 120.57, F.S., concerning the subject matter set forth in accordance with the above provisions are subject to dismissal.

Chewing tobacco is linked to cancer

DEAR DR. GOTT: I recently heard on the radio that one chew of tobacco is equivalent to 60 cigarettes. Since my husband chews tobacco, I'm interested in your opinion.

DEAR READER: To a large degree, the effects of chewing tobacco depend on the quantity of the "chew" and the method by which it is used. For example, a pinch of snuff inside the lip will have far fewer effects than a large "plug" that sits against the inner cheek for a day. The same is true of cigarettes. Some people barely inhale, while others draw the smoke deep into their lungs, obviously receiving more effect. Therefore, I cannot comment on a comparison between smoking and chewing.

Regardless of the route of administration, nicotine causes relaxation or alertness, increased blood pressure, rapid pulse and other physical consequences. It is highly addictive. Tobacco (in any form) contains literally hundreds of additional compounds, most of which are unhealthy, and some of which cause cancer. Thus, people who chew tobacco have a much higher incidence of cancer of the mouth and tongue.

Both smokeless tobacco and cigarettes can cause major health problems, including addiction. Using tobacco is a habit that should be discouraged.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been on Proscar for the past 10 years because of BPH. At $1.50 per pill, the expense has been substantial. Can I consider a reduced dosage?

DEAR READER: Proscar, a new drug that shrinks the prostate gland, is a welcome alternative for many men with benign prostate swelling, for which surgery was previously the only solution. True, the medicine is expensive, but when you consider the risks of an operation and its cost, the $1.50 or so per pill per day is probably a small price to pay. The manufacturer recommends a single 5 mg tablet a day. If you are considering a reduction in dose, do so only

Answer to Previous Puzzle

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Cervantes, of Don Quixote fame, had the right idea when he summed up declarer-play at trick one thus: "Be slow of tongue and quick of eye." When the dummy is spread, don't immediately call for a card. Keep your eyes jumping from card to card, but don't utter a sound until your plan of campaign is as solid as El Cid.

On today's deal the declarer thought he was in a laydown contract. But talking quickly and looking slowly cost him dear.

North's response of two no-trump was the Jacoby Forcing Raise. South's rebid of four hearts showed a five-card suit headed by at least two of the top three honors. After two cue-bids, North bid what he thought would be an easy grand slam.

When the dummy came down, South thought the same. He won trick one with the diamond ace and played a low spade. When West discarded, suddenly South gave an excellent impersonation of Lot's wife.

Coming back to life, South saw another route to 13 tricks: four spades, five hearts, two minor-suit aces and two club ruffs in hand. He won with dummy's spade queen, cashed the club ace, ruffed a club in hand, played a heart to dummy and ruffed the last club. He cashed the K-J of spades, but when he tried to return to dummy with a heart, East ruffed to defeat the contract.

If only South had started with a spade honor from hand at trick two, he would have been safe. Then, instead of North being disappointed in South, it would have been East disappointed in West because he hadn't led a heart at trick one.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Sept. 22, 1993

In the year ahead you should do quite well in enterprises or endeavors that lets you use your creative talents. Instinctively you'll know how to expand upon and improve ideas that are basically sound.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Steer clear of involvements today where the elements of chance are too pronounced. You might be lucky initially, but the odds are it may not hold up. Virgo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Someone who is in need of counsel might come to you for advice today. In your desire to spare him/her any pain, you may not be as frank as you should.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Usually you're pretty good at keeping secrets, but today might not be one of those times. There is a possibility you may say more than you should to the wrong person.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In hopes of getting a bargain today, you might negotiate in a way that outsmarts yourself. Keep your guard up if there is something you want from a sharp horse trader.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You might be a bit insecure today and feel strongly inclined to try to impress others with false airs or pretenses. Don't waste your time, you're good enough as you are.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There's a possibility you might confuse wishful thinking with intuitive perceptions today. If you do, you could be disappointed when your hunches don't play out.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You might not be as good at reading the intentions of friends today as you think you are, so don't make the mistake of pre-judging others in advance of their actions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

Persons with whom you're closely associated might be a bit more skeptical about your ideas and concepts than usual. It may take extra effort to convince them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do not offer unsolicited advice to co-workers today regarding something about which you have only sketchy knowledge. There's a strong chance you'll be wrong.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Treat the property of others today with the same respect you demand of your possessions. You will be held accountable if a mishap occurs through carelessness.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't automatically assume your mate is in accord with you regarding an interest which is of importance to both. You could be poles apart.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If there is a task you're going to perform for the first time today, it might be wise to have the instructions written down. Your memory could play tricks on you.
