Controversial Crime Bi Appears Dead This Year

WASHINGTON (AP) - Bill S1, the massive attempt to overhaul and codify federal criminal law, is dead for this session of Congress because of a deadlock between liberals and conservatives over key issues. This is the conclusion of the bill's chief sponsors, Sens. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., and Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., and others closely involved in the long struggle over the measure. About two months ago McClellan and Hruska offered concessions in an effort to overcome liberal objections, but they have had no response to indicate any agreement

McClellan and Hruska have not abandoned all hope for Senate passage of the bill this year, but they see no chance for House action before the adjournment of Congress.

Mortgage Agencies Criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) - Despite a legal mandate to wipe out discrimination in home loans, three of the four federal agencies that regulate mortgage lenders have never even issued antidiscrimination regulations, the Senate Banking Committee says.

And "despite evidence that discrimination is widespread," none of them has ever found a single institution guilty of discrimination, the panel reported

The agencies are the Home Loan Bank Board, the Federal Reserve Board, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the Comptroller of the Currency. Only the Home Loan Bank Board, which regulates savings and loan associations, has issued antidiscrimination rules, it

Grounded Jet Freed

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) - A World Airways jet, grounded by angry passengers for nearly 36 hours, was ree to leave Jackson today. But immediate flight plans for the DC8 were uncertain.

The chartered jet's passengers had the plane impounded in Jackson on Sunday after they complained they were caught in the middle of a labor dispute which delayed their trip home from London.

The legal action holding the plane in Jackson was dropped Monday, but company officials said the jet remained grounded by the strike of a Teamsters local

Mercenaries Face Trial

KENSINGTON, Md. (AP) - Daniel Gearhart, a 34year-old Vietnam veteran, left his wife, four children and mounting stack of bills last February to fight for pro-Western forces in Angola's civil war.

After less than a week in the war, Gearhart disappeared. His whereabouts were a mystery until April 1 when the victorious Soviet-backed revolutionary government of Angola announced he had been captured.

Gearhart and another captured American mercenary, Gary Acker of Sacramento, Calif., are scheduled to stand trial June 8 before a "people's revolutionary tribunal" in Angola. The State Department says there is "absolutely nothing the U.S. government can do" to bail them out.

Parole Measure Killed

TALLAHASSEE (AP) - Legislation to establish a two-year pilot program for contract parole was killed by

"The bill offends every visage of dignity the law has," said Rep. Ed Blackburn, DTemple Terrace. "What ma you think a criminal would obey any contract?" House lawmakers voted 54-51 against the bill, HB3996, to set up a program where "the terms of confinement, a guaranteed parole date, the terms of parole supervision and release from parole are agreed to in writing" in a contract between the state and a convict.

Move Into Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - About 7,000 Syrian troops with 150 tanks crossed Lebanon's eastern border today and began disarming Lebanese Moslems and Palestinian guerrillas, the Palestinian command reported. Beirut newspapers said another Syrian force of 2,000 troops with 65 tanks invaded northern Lebanon to stop Moslem attacks on the besieged Christian towns of Qibyat and Andket, in the Akkar region. Palestinian and Syrian sources in Beirut speculated that Syrian President Hafez Assad was starting an all-out attempt to impose order in Lebanon and end the 14-monthold civil war. However, no Syrian troops were seen in Beirut, and there was no independent confirmation of the reports of Syrian troop operations.

Some Palestinian sources said they have information Assad plans to send as many as 50,000 troops into Lebanon to stop the war by the end of the month.

Firms Talk Trade With Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) - Despite warnings from the State Department, some U.S. firms are discussing trade opportunites with Premier Fidel Castro's government in Havana, a department spokesman says. "We have discouraged these meetings," spokesman John Ordway said Monday. "We don't think they're in the best interests of the company or the countries involved." The United States broke off all relations with Cuba in 1961 and imposed restrictions making it illegal for any U.S. company to conduct trade with Cuba or to sign contracts for trade. "However, there is nothing illegal about discussing trade opportunities for when the embargo is lifted," Ordway said.

Some Questions On Big Business

"Big business runs America." It's an oft-repeated charge, seldom challenged. But it should be challenged. Richard L. Lesher. president of the Chamber of Commerce of the Lesher suggests that you ask yourself the following questions. If you were running America

United States, tells how.

- Allow consumerists to call you nasty names? - Allow the environmentalists to hold up your construction projects?

- Allow politicians to legislate against you? - Submit meekly to endless investigations by the Federal Trade Commission, the Security and Exchange Commission, the Internal Revenue Service and others?

- Put up with instructors actively hostile to

- Allow wild charges against you to be spread across front pages and TV screens? Capitulate time after time to the demands of

Not if you were "Running America" you already passed through two security checks wouldn't.

Lesher acknowledges that American business does have economic power, "and it is entirely legitimate for society to inquire whether it is being used wisely."

The principal problem, he says, is that people are confused about what they want out of business as a social institution.

Lesher suggests we consider, for example, only one segment of business, the big companies that operate in more than one country, usually called multinational corporations.' These are some of the special problems confronting the multinationals: - If a U.S. multinational builds a factory overseas in more than one country and provides jobs for the people in the host country, that's good. But when it does so, it is accused of "exporting" jobs from the United States and that's bad. (It's also untrue. Overseas operations tend to expand employment here too.) - If a muntinational pays workers in the host country the prevailing local wage (low), it is accused of "exploiting" the foreign workers. But if it pays the foreign workers more than prevailing local wages, it is accused of competing unfairly with the other local employers.

- If a multinational obeys local laws and customs when operating in a foreign country, it may engage in some practices there that are not permitted in the United States. On the other hand. if it tries to impose U.S. values on the host country it is accused of arrogance and "cultural im-

As a simple test for a "Big Business" hater, Lesher suggests asking, "Which big business is running America?" And "How is it running America?" And last, "And how did it get all the other big businesses to sit still for that?" You may be astonished to find that the haters are very emotional people.

Energy Perils Real

Before the Arab oil embargo of 1973-74 the United States was importing 35 per cent of its petroleum. As if the experience of the embargo meant nothing, we are now relying on foreign oil for 40 per cent of our needs. And in one recent week, according to Robert Seamans, head of the Energy Research and Development Administration, oil imports actually exceeded the amount of oil being produced from domestic wells. Mr. Seamans now sees no way that the United States can achieve the goal of energy self-sufficiency by 1985. In fact he says it would take a "really heroic effort" to achieve it by 1995. It is frightening to consider that much of the power and mobility of our country is going to be dependent for another 20 years on things as volatile as Middle Eastern politics or the notions of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. Mr. Seamans is only one of the Paul Reveres trying to arouse the countryside to the implications of our energy dependence. Why are so many Americans sleeping through the

If her allegations are true, then Hays should be stripped of office. Not because he kept a pretty blonde on the side and not because he used taxpayer money to pay her salary, but because for a man to

I'm glad she took her story to the public. And I wish secretaries in similar position would do the same. Maybe then bosses-especially elected officials-who keep mistresses on payrolls would get the message that what they're doing is repugnant. The only damage might be to young idealists who wouldn't dream something like the Hays affair could happen-not in Washington and not to a Congressman. It's time the public woke up and faced facts, even if some of those facts aren't

If Ms. Ray's story is true, well then hats off to her. If allegations prove false, well then it was an interesting story and she's in a lot of trouble.

Our Vague Secretary Of State

WASHINGTON- Secretary of State Henry Kissinger strides into the press conference dramatically late, flanked by two sturdily built young men with black faces.

They station themselves to his left and right and through the session ply their eyes from front to back across the sea of reporters, who have before being allowed into the room. No photographer - or reporter - is allowed to the rear of an imaginary line running directly through Kissinger's speaking stand. The security is tighter than that at any

Presidential press conference I've attended. Kissinger is obviously nervous, though surely not in fear of the reporters. His jokes, for the most part, do not come off well, certainly now with the ease of earlier days in the White House. He repeats himself. Even when responding to questions from reporters he knows well, he stares blankly, unlike his casualness of months

But he clearly relishes being Secretary of State, It is difficult to believe he will give up the political attacks.

Criticism has always bothered Kissinger deeply and he has been known to go to pieces when under sharp attack. He has had a tendency, for years, which shows up now in his private Letter To The Editor conversations, to be deeply suspicious of the motives of those who differ with him. Disagreement is taken as personal affront. The danger here is that this man who

Seminole Community College tennis team Kaat Throws Out Glove, didn't bring home the bacon from the JuCo national tournament last week in Phoenix, but a seventh place finish in a 60-team field speaks well of the program headed by Larry Castle.

Stuart Thompson made it to the quarterfinals in singles before losing, while the doubles team of Thompson and Peter Roberts also made the quarterfinals. There were 270 entries in singles. Texas teams dominated play, however florida's three entries each finished in the top 10. Next undertaking for Castle is the Seminole Foundation Tournament, and he reminds area A players that deadline for entries is June 7.

Terry Long, track coach at Seminole Community College, has picked up a couple of Stanley Steamers for next year's team.

Specifically, that means Lyman's Al Stanley and Lake Brantley's Henry Stanley will be doing loss. "It was the way I throw their thing for the Raiders next season. Al is something of a jack-of-all-trades, but will likely specialize in the pole vault. Henry won the 880 at the state meet and is also versatile.

The latter was as smooth at high school quarterback as was seen in the area last season, however, he was too small to suit college scouts for Which suits Seminole just fine.

One of the biggest surprises of the school year athletically is that Mark Whigham did not receive a single offer. Chosen the most valuable player from last year's Seminole High football team, it was expected that he would get a chance to play major college ball, perhaps even as a running back. Whigham was holding his breath that FSU would come knocking at this door. The Seminole came to Sanford, but only to sign teammate Mike

Staff Says Proposed Rate Too Low Water District Tax Not Enough?

By JACQUELINE DOWD

Herald Staff Writer The staff of the St. Johns' Water Management District is sounding like the old Brooklyn Dodgers these days. "There's always next year," said Director of Planning George Griffith, who spent the last two weeks in Tallahassee while the Florida Legislature set maximum tax rates for the state's new water management districts. He came home less than happy about the Legislature's decisions. If the proposed tax rate finally approved by the House also passes the Senate, St. Johns District residents - including all of Seminole County — will be paying a little less than 10 cents tax for every $1,000 of their property's assessed valuation to the water management district.

Griffith says the .09 millage rate will raise about $2.3 million a year. "But we need $4 million," he said. "If we don't get it the average person still won't be able to come to us for help with their water resources problems," he said. The taxation tangle began when the Oklawaha River basin was ncluded in the St. Johns' district. The Oklawaha became the first subdistrict in the St. Johns District, requiring a separate tax rate and complicating the taxation question — which was already tangled because the St. Johns District is new and has little history on which to base budget projections. Basin subdistricts like the Oklawaha can only be created by the egislature — and that's why the St. Johns District staff are ooking toward next year. There will probably be proposals for several more subdistricts in the St. Johns area presented to the Legislature next year.

Residents of basin subdistricts cannot be taxed for more than 25 per cent of the cost of projects for other subdistricts or for the district as a whole.

That 25 per cent determined the .09 tax rate. The starting point was the .375 mill .ax now paid by residents of the Southern and Central Florida Flood Control District - which included the upper St. Johns' basin until the St. Johns District got on its feet.

"We need .19," Griffith said. "We're grossly underfunded. The St. Johns District now faces the problem of not being able to do as much as residents are expecting, Griffith said. "We now have to tell people we can't help them right now," he said. "We've oversold the district." The legislation now being considered by the Legislature is needed to enact a referendum question approved by Florida voters in March, when a proposal to allow a one mill ad valorem tax to be used to fund five new water management districts, including the St. Johns, squeaked through. While the voters narrowly approved a tax of $1 for every $1,000 of assessed valuation, the bill which recently cleared the House would allow a maximum districtwide tax of less than 10 cents on every $1,000. Subdistrict residents would pay about 30 cents more. The St. Johns District had hoped to avoid the subdistrict hassles by handling everything on a district level. "It's a big accounting problem," Griffith said. "As director of planning, I have to figure out how much of my time is spent on things that will
