Control Of French Parliament Shifts To Right

PARIS (UPI) — French voters gave narrow control of Parliament to the right-wing opposition to Socialist President Francois Mitterrand, ending five years of leftist domination with a historic split in the government, official results showed today.

The right-wing victory left Mitterrand, under rules of the constitution of the 28-year-old Fifth Republic, with the prospect of choosing an opposition leader to share power with him under a "cohabitation" form of government.

It would be the first time since the present form of government was instituted that a president would be forced to govern with an opposition prime minister and Parliament in much the same way President Reagan, a Republican, must push programs through a Democratic Congress.

The Interior Ministry early Monday said a center-right coalition of the Rally for the Republic Party, Union for French Democracy coalition and a handful of independent rightists won 291 seats — just over the 289 seats needed for a majority in the 577-seat National Assembly.

The ministry gave the ruling Socialists 218 seats, leaving it the single largest party in Parliament, and said the Communist Party won 34 seats. Results from overseas territories with two seats were still to come in. One seat was predicted to go to the Socialists and the other to the RPR.

There was no indication from the Elysee Palace on what Mitterrand planned to do. He held a late-night meeting Sunday with members of his Cabinet after television polls showed the right had won. He has 20 days to name a prime minister.

The president, still with two years left in his seven-year term, could buck the system and choose a crony as his prime minister, deciding the opposition's majority was too small to choose an established conservative leader to replace Prime Minister Laurent Fabius.

Paris Mayor Jacques Chirac, leader of the largest opposition party — the neo-Gaullist Rally for the Republic — left no doubt that Mitterrand should appoint a premier from the opposing camp.

"France has made its choice," he said Sunday night.

Reagan Cites 'Mortal Threat' In Aid Plea

GOP Leaders Predict Victory

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, putting his case to the public for resuming arms shipments to the Contra rebels, says the United States is under "mortal threat" unless Soviet-sponsored communism in Nicaragua is stopped.

Seeking to set off a wave of pressure on a balky Congress in a nationally televised address Sunday, Reagan warned of the growth of "a second Cuba, a second Libya, right on the doorstep of the United States."

His immediate goal was to win House passage this week of $100 million in arms and supplies for the rebels fighting the Sandinistas in control of the Managua government.

Vice President George Bush and Republican Sen. Orrin Hatch joined Senate Republican leader Robert Dole in predicting victory today for the aid request.

"In my view a majority of members will vote yes on the package," Dole said after Reagan's nationally broadcast speech Sunday.

Bush and Hatch, R-Utah, appeared on the NBC "Today" program and said the vote will be close, but in Reagan's favor.

"I think we're going to win it," Bush said. "It's going to be close, but I think the president's message got out loud and clear last night. I think the American people have a better idea of what's at stake."

Hatch echoed Bush saying the president would win, adding, "I think it's very important to understand that our Democratic friends last night were not that far from him."

Despite his appeal — stressing national security interests over politics — House Democrats say they will defeat him in the showdown vote scheduled for Thursday.

They consistently accused Reagan of wanting a military solution in Nicaragua and not a diplomatic settlement.

Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., also appearing on the "Today" program, said, "My own view is that it still is going to be a very close vote. I think the president got a little hyperbolic last night in some of the descriptions of the present dangers we face."

Sen. Jim Sasser, D-Tenn., in the Democratic response to Reagan's address said this policy will entangle the United States in an unnecessary war.

"We believe the United States should grasp the initiative, seeking peace through negotiations before taking a fateful step that could lead to war in Central America," he said.

"As the father of a 17-year-old son, I say, Mr. President, let's not rush into that quagmire," Sasser said.

Reagan had been accused of overplaying his hand by harsh criticism of his opponents but Dole said the president made a balanced argument.

"He brought the issue into focus by blowing away all the political smoke," Dole said. "He's right. Nicaragua is an urgent national security issue, even though some people have tried to make it a domestic or partisan question."

"But the president has transcended politics, which is why his address will have an impact

In spite of bad weather that kept crowds down, Dr. Richard Dunn, event chairman, said he expected all receipts will show club raised about $13,000 from the pancake sale and from auction, flea market, baked goods and vegetable sales.

Florida Tornadoes, Western Storm Take Toll

By United Press International

Severe weekend weather left as many as four people dead — a man killed in a tornado in Florida and three people believed to be aboard a small plane that crashed in snow showers in northern California. In Southern California, a boy was swept away and missing in a rain-swollen river.

A deadly Pacific storm that prompted a rare tornado watch in Southern California charged into the mountains today, dropping heavy snow across rugged terrain as far east as Colorado and New Mexico.

Sporadic rain continued to fall across Southern California, but National Weather Service meteorologist Harry Gordon said conditions would be nowhere near as severe as those that whipped up a tornado-like wind gust near Anaheim Sunday.

Ranchers throughout the West were warned to protect their newborn livestock from the combination of snow, wet and cold wrought by the storm.

Motorists in Flagstaff, Ariz., needed chains and snow tires to get through 17.6 inches of snow that began Sunday and fell through the night. Even with snow tires, many motorists were getting stuck, sheriff's officials said.

A tornado in Wimauma, Fla., about 15 miles south of Tampa, toppled a metal shed in a strawberry field Sunday, killing a 41-year-old man who was running for cover from the rain, Hillsborough County sheriff's dispatcher Cella Tolley said.

A second tornado struck near Inverness, Fla., knocking a row of trees on unoccupied mobile homes. No injuries were reported.

St. Patrick's Day 'Hoopla, Color And Camaraderie'

From Staff, Wire Reports

St. Patrick's Day revelers can watch the passing of the green in a Winter Park parade scheduled for 7 p.m. today.

The 50-unit parade will begin on Park Avenue in Winter Park and that route will be closed to traffic between 6 and 8 p.m.

The celebration will continue with Irish musicians performing on stage in the north end of Central Park.

Spectators can park in Winter Park city lots on New York Avenue.

Elsewhere, St. Patrick's Day festivities blossomed like shamrocks a wee bit early this year in cities like Boston and Beverly Hills, but the Irish and honorary Irish in New York and Chicago saved the wearing of the green for today.

New York's 225th annual St. Patrick's parade — the world's oldest and largest — was expected to draw about 1 million people today. Some 200,000 marchers were to step off for the six-hour parade up Fifth Avenue.

Corned beef, cabbage and green beer will be today's fare in Chicago, when the faithful of the Emerald Isle line up for the official downtown parade. Mayor Harold Washington will kick off the festivities by accepting a plant, green bagel 24 inches in diameter.

"There will be a lot of hoopla, color and camaraderie," said Paul Poynton, parade spokesman in the city where even the river shines green on March 17.

Some Chicagoans celebrated Sunday with a march through the South Side that attracted thousands.

In Savannah, Ga., where St. Patrick's Day boosters claim the size of their parade is second only to New York's, police said some 300,000 people were expected for the strut down the streets today.

Thousands gathered Sunday in Beverly Hills, Calif., despite drizzly weather, to see Grand Marshal Gene Kelly lead the parade down green-carpeted streets.

Sanford Denies Zoning Waiver For Sanford Avenue Eatery

By Karen Talley Herald Staff Writer

Sanford commissioners have refused to waive a city zoning requirement to allow an Italian restaurant on S. Sanford Avenue, although they are leaning toward approving an insurance company's request for an addition to a Park Avenue building that is already in non-conformance with that area's zoning requirements.

The insurance company proposal involves an area of the city that went through a controversial rezoning in 1983. The restaurant request was made for a shop located at the Cumberland Farms Shopping Center.

On Monday night, Girolamo Cipolla asked city commissioners to waive the restricted commercial zoning regulations that are preventing his turning the Cumberland Farms shop into "a small family restaurant."

Cipolla said he preferred to ask for a waiver, rather than submitting a formal rezoning request, which would necessitate public hearings and take approximately four months for the city to review.

Cipolla's waiver request was a first, according to City Attorney William Colbert, who said "the usual process" involves filing the formal zone change request.

"I don't recall a waiver situation like this ever coming before us," he said.

Commissioner Dave Farr called the proposal "highly irregular" and said "it would perhaps even be illegal for us to allow a permanent change of use without holding public hearings."

Commissioners unanimously determined that Cipolla would have to follow routine procedure, which mandates a formal zone change request and subsequent public hearings.

Regarding the request for an addition to an already non-conforming use of a Park Avenue structure, Colbert said although this proposal was also unusual, there was no question of the commission's having the legal authority to approve it.

Social Service Agencies Reel Under Insurance Hikes

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — A legislative reform package may not be enough to save some social service agencies strapped by insurance rate increases of as much as 400 percent.

Children's services agencies face the highest costs for liability insurance. At least six child care centers are believed to have closed because of high insurance rates already.

At the same time, Buds Bell, coordinator of the state Clearinghouse on Human Services said a survey of 4,000 day-care centers by the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative

'Many agencies are teetering on the brink... battered wives shelters, boys and girls clubs. The most radical increases are anywhere kids are involved.'

Services shows that insurance claims are "minuscule" compared to the premium increases.

Commercial liability insurance is expected to be one of the major consumer topics in the coming session of the Florida Legislature, which will begin April 8.

Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter has filed a reform bill which, if passed, would give his department the authority to reject rates as too high, forcing the carrier to refund the excess money.

The Gunter bill also would require insurance companies to give 60 days before raising rates or canceling coverage, would permit self-insurance and group insurance programs, and would make available high-risk coverage through mandatory pool coverage similar to what is now available in automobile insurance regulations.

The premium for the YMCA of Broward County, for example, went up nearly 500 percent this year, from $23,000 to $135,000.

The general manager found the money but had to cut services and raise adult membership to do it. There are no more corners left to cut for 1987, he said.

"Many agencies are teetering on the brink ... battered wives shelters, boys and girls clubs," said Joseph A. Reno, executive director of the Association of United Ways of Florida, Inc. "The (premium) increases are astronomical; 400 percent is not unusual."

"The most radical increases are anywhere kids are involved. Some agencies are reducing coverage. Others will be forced out or 'go bare' (go without insurance) and that's illegal," said Doug Endsley, Broward County's United Way director.

Feminists Brave Downpour To March For Legal Abortions

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Soaked by a cold winter storm, thousands of feminists slogged through the mud to demonstrate in favor of legal abortions in a march the organizers said was the largest of its kind on the West Coast.

The marchers, estimated by the police at 13,000 and by the organizers at up to 30,000, began their two-mile parade outside the Century Plaza Hotel, using its posh facade as a counterpoint to what they said was a Reagan administration policy that would have the effect of returning abortions to back streets and alleyways.

The march ended in a 1960s-style demonstration in a muddy field, where Lois Reckett, executive vice president of the National Organization for Women, said the rally was the largest for women's rights on the West Coast, surpassing a 1981 demonstration for the Equal Rights Amendment in Los Angeles.

"I'm here just to share my spirit and my feelings," said Mark Feldman, 40, of Santa Monica. "Human beings have a right to their own bodies. It's a chauvinist society of men that have no concern for women and their feelings."

"There's no way we're going back one inch," a hoarse-voiced NOW President Eleanor Smeal shouted to the crowd. "We are telling church leaders and political leaders to stop playing with women's lives."

Several entertainers participated in the rally following the march, including Shelly Hack, Morgan Fairchild, Hal Linden, Linda Lavin, Cybill Sheperd and Jessica Walter.

Watergate Burglar Makes Charge

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nearly 14 years after his conviction as a Watergate burglar in a case that eventually toppled President Nixon, Frank Sturgis says he has new evidence against the FBI that warrants reopening his case.

Sturgis plans to ask a U.S. District Court in Washington today to reopen his case because prosecutors withheld information that FBI agents could find no taps planted on telephones in the Democratic Party headquarters after the 1972 break-in.

Sturgis, who served time in federal prison after pleading guilty in the break-in, said in an interview with The New York Times published Sunday that he will now seek to clear his name based on the new evidence.

His lawyer, Ellis Rubin, told the Times the petition also will charge that U.S. District Judge John Sirica coerced Sturgis and the other burglars into pleading guilty to the burglary.

Rubin said the petition was based on FBI records obtained by author Jim Hougan, whose 1984 book "Secret Agenda" challenged some of the basic elements of the Watergate case that eventually led to Nixon's historic August 1974 resignation.

Soviets: Cut Staff Order Illegal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soviet Union's representative to the United Nations says a U.S. directive that Moscow reduce its U.N. staff by 40 percent is illegal and the Kremlin will appeal to the United Nations' secretary general.

The United States, charging that members of the Soviet staff at the United Nations had been engaged in espionage, demanded March 7 that the Soviets reduce the size of their U.N. mission by 40 percent in the next two years.

"All this talk about spying and Soviet personnel being engaged in activities unrelated to the United Nations is utter nonsense and I must state quite categorically to deny all of that," Vasily Safonchuk, acting permanent Soviet representative to the United Nations, said Sunday on the ABC program "This Week With David Brinkley."

More Dairy Products Recalled

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Tests indicating dairy cows were fed pesticide-laced grain have prompted the recall of milk and cottage cheese in Arkansas and Oklahoma amid reports traces of the pesticide have been isolated in the breast milk of nursing mothers.

Arkansas Health Department officials recalled thousands of additional gallons of dairy products Sunday. The recalls are the latest in a series that began more than a week ago when state health officials learned dairy cattle in northwest Arkansas had been fed grain contaminated with the pesticide heptachlor.

Though heptachlor has not been proven to cause cancer in humans, tests have shown it to be a cancer-causing agent in laboratory animals and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration has banned its use on food products.

Jetliner With Stuck Nose Gear Makes Safe Emergency Landing

MIAMI (UPI) — An Eastern Airlines 727 jetliner with a faulty nose wheel kicked up sparks during an emergency landing, but all 139 people aboard were safely evacuated.

The plane was on a flight from New York to Fort Lauderdale early Sunday when the crew found it was unable to lower the plane's nose gear. The captain then diverted to Miami International Airport because it has better emergency facilities.

Eastern spokeswoman Karen Ceremask said the landing was "relatively smooth."

"The front nose wheel was up but the main rear gear was down," she said. "He kept the nose up as long as possible. When the nose finally touched down on the runway he was going so slow that there was minimal impact."

The 133 passengers and six crewmembers left the plane on emergency evacuation chutes at about 12:15 a.m. The passengers were sent to their destinations in taxis after a 90-minute wait, Ceremask said.

Damage to the plane was minor and was limited to the underside of the nose, Ceremask said.

The National Transportation Safety Board is investigating the incident.

The Federal Aviation Administration is seeking a record $9.5 million fine from Eastern Airlines for alleged sloppy maintenance and record keeping and once threatened to shut down the carrier for alleged safety and records violations, government documents show.

Shuttle Salvage: Mysterious Work At Sea

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — A Navy salvage ship with a crack team of divers on board was anchored over the wreckage of Challenger's shuttle crew cabin today, winding up a recovery operation that has been conducted in grim secrecy.

The crew of the USS Preserver apparently had a productive day Sunday after a bout with bad weather, although swift currents on the seabed hampered early salvage dives to the twisted wreckage, 16 miles offshore in 100 feet of water.

"The sea state is 1 to 2 feet and bottom current was strong this afternoon, about 2 knots, but it appears to be slackening off considerably and I estimate less than 1 knot (now)," the ship radioed late in the day. "We're encouraged by the weather we're seeing presently."

The remains of most, if not all, of the seven shuttle astronauts were on shore undergoing analysis by government pathologists for identification. NASA has said it will not discuss the status of astronaut remains until all identifications are complete and sources say that could be a lengthy process.

In addition, some remains still could be found amid the wreckage of the ship's battered flight deck.

NASA has conducted the salvage operation in secrecy, allowing Navy officials to release only minimal information and then only after it has been cleared by the space agency.

A section of NASA's authorizing legislation says the civilian agency's activities must be open for public inspection unless the information would compromise national security or if a federal statute prohibits its release.

In Houston, officials at the Johnson Space Center planned to hold an afternoon briefing to discuss the status of "criticality 1" shuttle systems.

Criticality 1 systems are those in which a single failure can result in loss of vehicle and crew. The rubber O-ring seals in Challenger's right booster rocket, the one that ruptured, were classified as critically 1 and they are a prime suspect in the disaster.

The top priority for the shuttle salvage fleet is recovery of key portions of the right booster in the area where the rupture occurred. The Scottish salvage vessel Stena Workhorse recovered a piece of booster debris Sunday that measured 6 feet by 18 feet and weighed 3,250 pounds.

The Preserver is equipped with cranes that can lift up to 10 tons. The ship's skipper said Sunday the crew was gearing up for a "heavy lifting" operation over the cabin wreck site but the target of the recovery was not known.

Navy officials said they did not know how long it would take to wrap up crew cabin salvage operations or the search for shuttle debris in general.

"We are not to the stage where there's any contemplation of slowing down or stopping the search," said Lt. Cmdr. Deborah Burnette. The cost of the salvage operation, now nearly 7-weeks-old, is running about $4 million a month.

Navy divers from the Preserver, working in water with visibility of less than 5 feet, already have recovered crew remains and a mound of debris from the cabin's flight deck.

Wreckage recovered to date includes the ship's flight computers and several voice and data recorders that could provide useful information about the shuttle's final milliseconds.

Justice Department Studying Ways To Curb Miranda Ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the nation's top law enforcement officer calling the Miranda ruling an "infamous decision," Justice Department officials say they are investigating whether the law should be further limited.

Justice Department officials will not comment on the specifics of its study of ways to reform the Miranda rule, although Stephen Markman, assistant attorney general for legal policy, said recently. "We're exploring a variety of alternatives. We've not come to any decisions yet."

The 1966 Miranda decision said police must inform suspects of their rights to remain silent and to have an attorney present during questioning. The rule was designed to ensure suspects were not coerced into confessions or giving evidence that could be used against them.

Attorney General Edwin Meese, a former local prosecutor, has repeatedly attacked the Miranda ruling and in an August television interview said: "I think the idea that police cannot ask questions of the person who knows the most about crime is an infamous decision. I think it's a wrong decision."

The ruling has earned the ire of cops and prosecutors, who maintain guilty have gone free because they were improperly informed of such rights.

In an interview with U.S. News & World Report, Meese was asked if suspects should have the rights guaranteed by Miranda.

"Suspects who are innocent of a crime should," he said. "But the thing is, you don't have many suspects who are innocent of a crime. That's contradictory. If a person is innocent of a crime, then he is not a suspect."

The decision ranks among the Supreme Court's best-known rulings, with the public reminded of its impact on a nearly nightly basis by television cops who inform perpetrators of their rights while collaring them.

In an interview last week, Markman refused to say if the department would ask the Supreme Court to overturn the Miranda decision. Last summer, the department took the unprecedented action of asking the court to overturn its 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision that legalized abortion.

Supreme Court decisions in the last year and most recently last week have limited the scope of Miranda.

On Monday, the court ruled that a voluntary confession from a suspect who has waived his rights is valid even if police fail to inform the suspect of a lawyer's offer to represent him.

A year ago, the court ruled that if a suspect confesses before police are able to inform him of his rights and confesses again after receiving a Miranda warning, the second confession may be used against him.

"The court reiterated in this (week's) case ... that Miranda was not something premised on the Constitution," Markman said. "It is simply a prophylactic means of protecting rights guaranteed under the Fifth Amendment (provision against self-incrimination). I think the court is indicating it may have some misgivings about Miranda. It is just confirming a trend shown in a number of recent cases."

However, not everyone is cheering the administration's efforts.

In a harsh dissent to last week's opinion, Justices John Paul Stevens, William Brennan and Thurgood Marshall said the ruling tramples on well-established legal principle and distorts the checks and balances of the criminal process.

Pillowcase Rapist Attacks 45th Victim

MIAMI (UPI) — The "pillowcase rapist," Florida's most-hunted criminal, struck for the 45th time, attacking an 82-year-old half-blind woman and then stealing her wedding ring, police say.

The woman awoke early Friday to find a man standing next to her bed waving a knife. His face was covered with a pillowcase with eye holes cut out, police said Sunday.

"We're totally convinced that it's him," said Sgt. David Simmons.

The man threatened to slash the woman, then raped her and stole her wedding ring, Simmons said.

The woman is deaf in one ear, wears a patch over one eye because of recent eye surgery, and has limited vision in the other eye due to cataracts and glaucoma. Simmons described her as "an adorable great-grandmotherly type" who was so frail that a nurse at the Rape Treatment Center had difficulty finding a vein to draw a blood sample.

Despite her impairments, the outraged woman pursued her attacker as he fled. "She literally tore a dish towel rack from the wall of her kitchen," Simmons said. "She chased him out the back door, swinging the metal fixture at him and shouting at him to get out of her house."

The rapist — called the "pillowcase rapist" because he usually covers his or his victim's face with a pillowcase, — is the object of an intensive manhunt and has been called Florida's most-wanted man. He is believed to have attacked at least 45 women in the last five years.

His 44th victim, Ernestine ... believing she could not see anything without her glasses, and saw his face clearly enough to help police artists make a sketch.

Missionary Accuses Contras

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Southern Baptist missionary in Nicaragua, breaking ranks with the church's political neutrality, is urging defeat of President Reagan's request for $100 million in Contra aid.

The missionary, Douglass Sullivan, also accused his denomination's Foreign Mission Board of "politic evasion" in refusing to take a stand on the issue of Reagan's aid request for the anti-Sandinista Contras.

"I have long since tired of participating in the memorial services of innocent children and parents who have become victims to the horrible criminals our government supports," Douglass Sullivan said in an open letter addressed to the 14.2 million-member denomination's Foreign Mission Board.

The letter was made public by the Southern Baptist Convention's Foreign Mission Board.

"I am moved as a volunteer representative of our mission work in Nicaragua to personally condemn any further assistance to the counterrevolutionaries because to continue that aid violates our national law and international law," he said.

It also "continues (the) sustained persecution of our Baptist family," the 3 1/2-page letter said.

Sullivan, 29, a native of Chattanooga, Tenn., serves with the mission board's Mission Service Corps, a volunteer program for non-career, self-supporting missionaries. He teaches at the Baptist Theological Seminary in Managua and receives financial aid from Covenant Baptist Church of Houston.

The Contra war against the Sandinista government, he said, has "cost the Baptist Convention of Nicaragua the lives of five faithful believers, the closing of four Baptist churches and the destruction of various health clinics supported and directed by our Baptist Convention."

Sullivan said he "can keep quiet no longer" and that the mission board has "pointedly avoided any direct, prophetic challenge" to U.S. policy and skirted a "substantive response" to the appeals of Nicaraguan Baptists who oppose the administration's aid request.

Such a lack of response, he said, "leaves open to question to our Latin American brothers and sisters the possibility of a hidden political agenda within the Southern Baptist Convention and its personnel."

Don Kammerdiener, the mission board's director for Middle America and the Caribbean, rejected the "hidden agenda" charge and said the "possibility of a hidden agenda exists on all sides of an argument."

'Dry Firing' Puts Hole In Floor, Man In Jail

A shotgun blast blew a hole in a Sanford motel room floor and rained ceiling material in the room below, according to a Sanford police report.

A guest at the Cavalier Motel, 3200 S. Orlando Drive, told police he was emptying his pockets at about 8:30 p.m. Friday when there was an explosion above his head followed by ceiling bits flying around the room.

An officer went to the room above and found two men, apparently a young uncle and his nephew. Both men denied any knowledge of the shooting or the hole in the floor. The officer, however, checked the nephew's car in the parking lot and saw shotgun shells and two gun cases, one apparently empty. The uncle's girlfriend told police he fired the gun and then told her to put it in a duffel bag in the trunk of the car.

The nephew gave police permission to search the car and said his uncle had been playing with the gun, "dry firing" it. The said the man loaded the gun, put the safety on, and aimed it at the floor. That's when the gun discharged, he said.

Arrested and charged with shooting in an occupied dwelling and possession of a short-barrel shotgun was Thomas Edgar Little Jr. of Lincoln, Neb. He was being held early Saturday without bond in the Seminole County jail.

SMELLING COCAINE
An Altamonte Springs man was arrested on a possession of cocaine charge after a bar owner accused him of sniffing cocaine while at the bar.

The owner of the House of Babes, 600 U.S. Highway 17-92, Fern Park, told a deputy that he saw the man sniffing a white powdery substance. The incident occurred at 10:55 p.m. Friday.

The man was located at a fast-food eatery just south of the bar and questioned. He cooperated with the deputy and a small amount of what is said to be cocaine was found in his wallet.

Arrested and charged with possession of cocaine was Randy Dean Brunk, 22, of 625 Jamestown Blvd. He was being held early Saturday on $2,000 bond.

COUNTERFEIT COCAINE
A Fern Park man was jailed Friday on a charge of selling counterfeit cocaine. If found guilty, he could receive up to a year in the county jail, the same sentence for selling the real stuff.

According to an arrest report, drug task force agents were sitting at a red light on Lake Howell Road when two men in a car waved them over. The incident reportedly occurred March 8.

The passenger asked the agent what he wanted. The agent said he wanted to buy some cocaine. The passenger told him to follow his car to 509 Oak St., near Altamonte Springs. At that address the man delivered the purported cocaine wrapped in aluminum foil. The agent paid him $40.

The material was not cocaine — the report did not identify what it was — and the next day the driver of the car was stopped. He gave officers the name of the peddling passenger who was arrested Friday at 10:08 p.m., at Lake Howell Road north of State Road 436 in Altamonte Springs.

Charged with selling a counterfeit controlled substance and held on $1,000 bond early Saturday was Robert Earl King, 22, of 237 St. Johns Village.

DISORDERLY CONDUCT ARRESTS

In separate cases, two Sanford residents were arrested on charges of disorderly intoxication in Sanford.

In one incident, an officer reported that a man was standing in the parking lot of the Day and Night Grill, 13th St., and U.S. Highway 17-92, yelling obscenities at persons inside the restaurant. When he made a threatening gesture at the officer, he was arrested. The incident occurred around 2 a.m. Saturday.

Arrested and charged with disorderly intoxication was Wayne Milton Wilhelm, 26, of 1815-F Landing Dr. His bond was set at $100.

In the second incident, a Sanford woman was arrested at the scene of an accident because she would not cooperation with the investigating officer, pestered him, and tried to leave.

The accident occurred Friday at 10th St. and Maple Ave. around 6 p.m.

The officer reported that the woman at first would not keep away from him, then would not give any information. Lastly, she started to walk away. Meanwhile a crowd of about 30 people had gathered to watch the action.

Arrested and charged with disorderly intoxication and held early Saturday on $100 bond was Annie Z. Metz, 33, of 1004 Maple Ave.

BURGLARIES AND THEFTS

—David Coruo, 32, of 3005 Harbour Landing, Casselberry, reported someone took a $260 radar detector from his 1984 Oldsmobile. The theft occurred between 9 a.m. Thursday and 7 a.m. Friday.

Man Pleads Guilty To Murder Of Wife

A Seminole County man, indicted by a grand jury on a charge of first-degree murder, has pleaded no contest to the barroom shooting death of his wife.

Charles Vernon Foley, 49, of Lake Howell Road, south Seminole County, entered the plea before Circuit Judge Kenneth M. Lefler who set April 9 for sentencing. Foley pleaded to the lesser charge of second-degree murder and faces a maximum sentence of life. The recommended sentence is 12 to 17 years.

According to court records, Kathlee Yates Foley, 44, of Orlando, was shot once in the head at about 3 p.m. Nov. 2. She died about an hour later in Winter Park Hospital in Winter Park.

She was shot after arguing about marriage in a bar with her estranged husband. He went home, next door to the bar, and slept for a while. After he woke, he armed himself and returned to the bar where he reportedly pulled a .38-caliber handgun from his boot and shot Mrs. Foley once in the left side of the head.

He reportedly told investigators he remembered hearing the shot but did not remember firing the gun.

In other court action: —James William Morgan, 29, of Lot 7, 7th St., Casselberry, arrested in Sept. 4 on a charge of arson in connection with the destruction of a home in Casselberry. He pleaded guilty to attempted arson and criminal conspiracy and could receive up to 5 years when sentenced by Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor April 23. Morgan, who is white, was arrested after the torching of a home of a black family. Another defendant arrested, Eugene Elmore, 22, of 101 N. Devon St., Winter Springs, awaits disposition of his case.

—Walter William Wills, 29, of 385 Frances Ave., Casselberry, arrested Oct. 20 following an accident on State Road 436 at Interstate 4. Wills pleaded no contest to leaving the scene of an accident with injuries. He would receive up to 5 years in the county jail when sentenced by McGregor April 23. According to court records, Margaret Toro, 55, of 134 Escondito Way, Altamonte Springs, called police to her home to report her car had been hit from behind in an accident. She complained of neckpain and dizziness but instead of going to the hospital, she went with police to the Interstate Mall where, she said, the driver of the other vehicle was believed to have driven after the accident. A car matching the suspect's was found and the suspect located in a theater watching a movie. The man had a difficult time remembering the plot and said he had been at the theater since 6:15 p.m. The film didn't start until 7:30 p.m., according to the report.

The manager of a pet store was fined $75 Friday for illegally having a walking catfish for sale in his store.

Fined was Gary Michael Blessing, 26, of 103 Sugar Maple Ct., Sanford, manager of the Doctor Pet Center, Altamonte Mall, Altamonte Springs.

Blessing, who pleaded guilty to the second-degree misdemeanor, was also sentenced to 6 months probation. He said he did not know the fish was illegal to have in Florida, and purchased the fish from a tropical fish dealer. He said he just thought it was yet another kind of tropical fish.

The fish, (Clarius Batrachus) is known as a walking catfish because it can live for short periods out of water and crawl overland on its fins. It is banned in the state because it would probably adapt to the environment and either destroy the food supply of native species or eat them, according to state biologists.

The law exists because most of the lakes and canals in Dade County are now home to more exotic fish than native fish. They got there by people dumping their aquariums, according to state biologists.

The walking catfish is a native of Africa, Southeast Asia and eastern India.

Blessing could have received up to a $500 fine and 6 months in jail.

The fish was discovered in the store during a routine inspection by a fish and game officer.

Labor And Shrinking Pie

An American tragedy was played out on the streets of Austin, Minn., headquarters of the George A. Hormel & Co. meatpacking corporation.

On Jan. 13, after five months of a strike, Hormel reopened its Austin plant, hiring former strikers and strikebreakers. The National Guard was called out to protect them from picketing members of Local P-9 of the United Food and Commercial Workers (UFCW) union. The plant continued to operate, despite the strike, and the town of 23,000 residents was deeply divided by the dispute.

The international union has criticized the strike, blaming "inexperienced leaders and a publicity-seeking consultant." But the international continued to pay benefits to the strikers.

It seems clear that the cause is lost. The strike has been broken. It has served no useful purpose and resulted in untold damage to the community and to the company. The bitterness will be felt for years and the scars will be permanent.

A failed strike like this is the worst way to settle a labor-management dispute. It resulted from pressures by Hormel to reduce the company's labor costs and resistance by the local union.

The economics of a shrinking pie created the crisis. The unionized meatpackers no longer dominate the industry. Today, it is heavily weighted with non-union packers. And in recent years consumer buying habits have changed. People are eating less red meat. The industry's upheaval caused workers' wages and benefits to decline. The Austin local reacted by resisting concessions.

During and after World War II, the American economy was growing so strongly and steadily that it was possible for organized labor to make wage and benefit gains consistently greater than the increase in worker productivity. But now there are wrenching changes in the industrial growth pattern. The highly organized industries of the East and Midwest have encountered fierce competition from abroad and from the Sunbelt, from foreign workers and from non-union workers willing to work for less money. The high-cost industries have had to cut labor costs or close their plants.

"It is the task of a union leader in today's economic and political climate to balance idealism and reality," says William H. Wynn, UFCW international president. It is, as he says, not an easy job. Workers have difficulty accepting the reality of the shrinking pie. And yet it has been done, in one industry after another in recent years, in autos, in steel, in the deregulated airlines.

The fact is that there is no workable alternative. Our economy, more than ever, is a national economy; workers in one region cannot successfully demand higher pay than workers in other regions. Beyond that, the market, more than ever, is a world market. Trade protectionism won't work. Instead, there must be changes to meet and beat the foreign competition.

Change is stress. But market forces compel change and destroys those who resist change. The American labor movement of the 1930s and 1940s was successful because it was the instrument of progressive change. If it becomes reactionary in the 1980s and resists change, it will be destroyed as surely as Local P-9 at Hormel. And that would be a far greater tragedy than the one in Austin.

Domenici Underscores Tax Revenues Need

WASHINGTON — Senate budget committee chairman Peter Domenici was uncharacteristically testy the morning after his committee engaged in a little "president bashing" by voting down Ronald Reagan's $994 billion budget.

Working in his Senate office, his desk strewn with papers and budget documents, Domenici said of his colleagues:

"I keep hearing everybody say we're going to work together ... but I don't hear them say anything about what they're going to cut. They insisted we make this crazy vote on the president's budget. I mean, that's big time for some people. We had 30 budgets in our history and we never voted on presidents' budgets. But last year they insisted we vote on it."

So, last week they voted it down again, 16-6, Domenici, indicating that there's a lot in the Reagan budget he likes, voted for it.

Repeatedly, Domenici has been saying that any deficit reduction must include some new tax revenues. During an interview, the New Mexico Republican underscores that, saying,

"I'm not going to be (just) for revenues," adding that in his world of compromise and horse trading, that's "the glue" that's going to hold any budget package together.

How far would he go in raising taxes? "Somewhere between $12 billion and $20 billion this year to get to a deficit reduction of about $40 billion," he says. Later, he admits that he can find "no consensus" for $12 billion, but says $15 billion in added revenue is more likely, leaving perhaps about $25 billion in budget savings and cuts. He mentions raising the tax on beer and wine, "which would bring in $4 billion to $5 billion."

But taxes in the last 10 years have almost tripled, even with the 1981 tax cuts. I point out. How can he support more taxes after last year's anemic 2.2 percent economic growth rate?

"I haven't come to the conclusion that you can't go over 19.5 percent of GNP in taxes or you'll have a faltering economy," he responds. "I don't know whether that number is 19.5 or 20.5. I do know that you can reach a point of serious diminishing returns. But we're not anywhere close to that when you speak of $12 to $20 billion to get this country on the Gramm-Rudman target.

"The $12 to $20 billion is not going to cause the recession that people are talking about," Domenici continues. "I mean, that's an impossible premise. The premise is right that you could tax the American economy at a high enough rate ... such that you would have a drag" on the economy.

"But nobody would sit in a witness chair and say, from the (tax) base we're at, to put together the (deficit) targets we must achieve, which have great salutary effects, that adding $12 to $20 billion could cause a recession."

"But no one is saying, either," I reply, "that the way to have increased growth is to raise taxes."

"Well," he answers, "I'm not going to sit here and tell you that it wouldn't be great if we had less taxes. Of course it would. But it would be great, in my opinion, if we also had less demands on our government and we weren't insisting that we had to have all these other things."

How To Detect The Lies

By Delphis Hicks
UPI Science Writer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — People who tell lies apparently can disguise the deceit on their faces, but their voices and body language are dead giveaways, a scientist says.

"The face is not a reliable indicator of deceit," University of Southern California communications expert Michael J. Cody said. "You can't assume a liar will avoid eye contact, show fear of disclosure in his expression, or otherwise 'leak' facial cues to deception."

"Liars are just as likely as truth-tellers to look you straight in the eye."

Cody, who studies nonverbal communication, described the face as the most expressive part of the body. Because of that, he said, it is the easiest to control.

The USC studies of liars center on "the bragadoccio" — liars who build themselves up by exaggerating anything from ancestry to where and how they spent a vacation.

Cody said their changes in posture, shifting and shrugging, moving legs and feet or making unintentional hand-to-body movements are the real clues to deception.

So is voice modulation. "The pitch of the voice always goes up during a lie, and the pupils dilate," he explained, pointing out the major physical cues can differ between children and adults.

"Children blink their eyes more and have an even higher pitch in voice," he explained. "Children have to learn how to lie and never are very good liars before the age of nine."

Cody and his team conducted a series of studies to determine if people untrained in nonverbal communications could tell when someone was telling a lie.

Results showed that the untrained were accurate only 45 to 60 percent of the time in detecting deception of strangers on videotape.

Cody said his research also shows that reliable detection of deception depends on knowing more than one signal of deceit.

"Very often lies are told off the top of the head and you can catch a person in a lie when they are unable to generate much detail about whatever they are talking about," he said.

"Liars tend to have what I call 'ah' errors, and are more likely to have silence pauses and hesitations in speech. They say 'you know' and 'ah' a lot to take up time while they think of the rest of the lie."

Lying also is a function of personality, Cody's research indicates.

"Son, with honesty like that you could grow up to be father of the three-day weekend."

WILLIAM RUSHER

Soviets On U.S. TV

ABC-TV walked into a hornet's nest when it invited Soviet propagandist Vladimir Posner to comment on President Reagan's address to the American people on national security.

The compulsion of all three networks to rebut Mr. Reagan instantly had already resulted in standing invitations to the Democrats to follow every Reagan address with a prerecorded "response." But ABC was unable to see why, if House Majority Leader Jim Wright was entitled to an instant rebuttal of Mr. Reagan's remarks, some articulate Soviet spokesman shouldn't be accorded a similar privilege.

It quickly found out why. As White House Communications Director Pat Buchanan explained in a letter to ABC News President Roone Arledge:

"The debate over what America requires — to defend herself, her allies and friends from the awesome military power of the Soviet Union — is a debate for Americans to conduct. Soviet propagandists have no legitimate role in that discussion."

Surely that, at least, should be obvious.

But Buchanan went on to make a broader point which — quite rightly, in my opinion — calls into question the networks' growing habit of inviting smooth-sounding Soviet spokesmen to participate in all sorts of talk shows. As Buchanan put it, "How is the search for truth served by turning ABC's national audience over to an individual whose concept of truth is whatever statement will advance communism?"

There is a great deal of sloppy thinking going on in regard to this question. In the first place, "freedom of speech" — i.e., the right of the Soviet Union or of domestic communists to address the American public — is not at issue. Communist publications of all sorts are freely available, and important Soviet statements of policy are commonly carried in major U.S. newspapers and fully reported on American television.

Nor is anybody seriously concerned that many viewers will be fooled by slick Russians like Posner (though, when I am asked slyly whether I question "the intelligence of the American people," I am tempted to reply that, according to Abraham Lincoln, some of them can be fooled all of the time and all of them can be fooled some of the time).

Actually, from the standpoint of the networks, and also that of the average viewer, the justification for having a Posner on a talk show is simply the mild kick one gets out of seeing and hearing a certified Bad Guy in the flesh. Many a TV producer, and many a viewer, would have loved an interview with Adolf Hitler for the same reason.

But what such almost pornographic considerations overlook is what the Soviets accomplish by smuggling one of their spokesmen into U.S. living rooms. They don't seriously expect that many of us will believe his explanations of Soviet actions or policies. But the mere sight of him sitting there, along with (say) David Brinkley, Sam Donaldson and George Will, amiably disagreeing with them, helps very much indeed to obscure a vital fact that must never be forgotten: that he serves a regime that repudiates the Judeo-Christian concept of objective truth altogether.

WASHINGTON WORLD

Tip Of The Hat To Tip

By Arnold Sawiak

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When Vermont Royster recently ended his long career as a Wall Street Journal columnist, he wrote something to the effect that with the exception of Jesse Helms and Tip O'Neill, the current Congress had a rather dull cast of characters.

How true. It is a blessing that Congress no longer has men like Rep. Preston Brooks, who stormed into the Senate chamber and almost killed Sen. Charles Sumner with a cane for insulting a relative in the frenzied years before the Civil War.

But it might be nice to have a few more members of such eloquence as Daniel Webster, the "cannon loaded to the lips," or who hold their opinions so strongly that, like Sens. Strom Thurmond and Wayne Morse a few years back, they are prepared to speak around the clock to try to persuade their colleagues.

Though less leather-lunged, Helms and O'Neill are in that category of committed advocates. The North Carolina Republican is in his prime as a national conservative leader and doubtless will be a force in the Senate for some years to come.

O'Neill, Helms' ideological opposite, is leaving the arena in 1986 after 50 years of public service, 34 of them in Washington. The round, rubbery-faced Massachusetts Democrat has been publicly mocked by the quintessential hack politician by the Angry Right (and privately by some latter-day liberals), but the plain truth is that he is nearly the last Jedi warrior of the New Deal and its derivatives in the decades that followed.

It was O'Neill's luck to become speaker just as the tide was turning against the causes to which he devoted his career in politics.

A few true believers, contemporaries such as Claude Pepper and younger members like Barney Frank, still stand with Tip, but there seem to be ever fewer committed liberals reporting for duty when the new Congress convenes every odd-numbered year. This is a function of the much-discussed national shift to the political right, and it has left O'Neill a general with few soldiers on many occasions since 1981.

O'Neill could have adjusted to the situation by trying to do business with the conservatives, as Sam Rayburn and Lyndon Johnson did in 1953. He didn't. He made the obligatory pledges of cooperation to a new president when Ronald Reagan took office, but he never ran for cover as did some.

Stealth Bomber A Costly Error

By Jack Anderson
And
Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — The Air Force's fast-talking salesmen for the super-secret Stealth bomber are winning adherents in Congress by minimizing the plane's astronomical costs and clamping a lid of secrecy on its potentially serious design drawbacks.

In one closed hearing after another, insiders have told us, the Air Force hucksters have assured members of Congress that the Stealth bomber will cost about the same as its chief rival, the B-1, which is already in production.

The point of this maneuvering and manipulation is that Congress must soon decide whether to fund the new Stealth program or buy an additional 100 B-1 bombers. Even though the B-1 program is a rarity in defense procurement — ahead of schedule and under anticipated cost — conservatives and liberals alike on Capitol Hill generally like the idea of the futuristic Stealth bomber, which supposedly can penetrate Soviet air defenses by being invisible to radar.

Defense Undersecretary Donald Hicks has told Congress the Pentagon wants a plane that will set the Soviets "back on their heels." What he hasn't told Congress is that likely cost overruns on the Stealth bomber could set the U.S. Treasury back on its rear.

The true cost of the Stealth program is a closely held secret. Our associate Donald Goldberg has learned that the Pentagon, in a classified report ordered by Congress, predicts that the 132 Stealth bombers the brass wants will cost $36.6 billion. This is misleading at best, because it is based on 1981 dollars and doesn't include everything.

When it comes time to pay for the Stealth bombers, our sources say the real price — including inflation and research and development costs — will be more like $60 billion. And that's not counting possible overruns. Even at $60 billion, Stealth would be the most expensive aircraft project in U.S. history.

But the chances of cost overruns are high. Unlike the B-1, which flew thousands of hours of tests before full production began, the Stealth will go directly from drawing board to assembly line, bypassing critical tests that might uncover design flaws, according to our sources.

Despite these obvious fiscal dangers, Air Force briefers persist in assuring Congress that the Stealth bomber will cost about the same as the B-1. Here again, the Pentagon is not telling Congress the whole truth.

Research, development, plant construction and worker training for the B-1 have already been bought and paid for. So an additional 100

B-1s would clearly be a lot cheaper to produce than the all-new Stealth with its need for R&D, new plants and worker training.

Our sources estimate the cost of additional B-1 bombers at about $190 million apiece; each Stealth bomber would cost about $540 million, not including research costs. And the taxpayers would be getting an untested plane rushed into production to meet a political timetable.

Cost aside, insiders insist that the Stealth bomber simply won't be the plane it's cracked up to be. It will be dangerously slow and unstable, and will have a range too limited for anything but one-way suicide missions to Soviet targets.

As if this weren't enough, even the Stealth's supporters concede that it isn't designed to elude the older, long-range radar the frugal Soviets still have in place after 25 years.

'Bama, Kentucky Prepare For Round 4

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — If Alabama and Kentucky have the strange feeling they've met somewhere before, it's completely justified.

Heading into Thursday's clash at Atlanta in the NCAA Southeast regional semifinals, the two Southeastern Conference foes have met three times this season, and the Wildcats have won three times, including in the SEC championship game.

"We know everything about them, and they know everything about us," Kentucky coach Eddie Sutton said of the Crimson Tide.

Terry Coner's off-balance jumper in the lane with 1 second left Sunday gave 19th-ranked Alabama a 58-56 victory over No. 20 Illinois in a second-round game.

Kentucky, the nation's fourth-ranked team and the region's top seed, won the Battle of the Bluegrass State in the other second-round game, downing Western Kentucky 71-64 to set up meeting No. 4 against Alabama.

All-America forward Kenny Walker scored 32 points, hitting all 11 of his shots from the field, and the Wildcats, 31-3, fought off a second-half rally for their 13th straight triumph.

Alabama traveled about 350 miles for its first- and second-round games in Charlotte, but Illinois coach Lou Henson says Coner did some additional traveling when he scored the winning basket.

Basketball

"There's no question he walked on the last play," Henson said. "Walking is a violation just like a foul. I want the officials to look at the film. I think they know he traveled."

Head official Tim Higgins termed the play "a judgement call."

"We were set up to go down with four seconds left, unless we had a layup," said Coner, describing the final sequence. "I just tried to take (Bruce) Douglas one-on-one, and tried to draw a foul. They didn't collapse on me on the last-second shot, and I just made the jump shot."

Coner, who scored 12 points, sank a layup with 56 seconds left to knot the score 56-56, and teammate Buck Johnson, who scored 12 points, blocked a shot by Ken Norman with 25 seconds left to set up Coner's last-second bucket.

Duke Stomps ODU, Meets DePaul Next

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — Top-rated Duke and enigmatic DePaul will bring different floor plans to Meadowlands Arena for Friday's NCAA East Regional semifinal.

The 18-12 Blue Demons entered the NCAA Tournament with seven losses in their last 11 games, but DePaul's massive front line and the poise of freshman guard Rod Strickland carried Joey Meyer's team past Virginia (72-68) and No. 17 Oklahoma (74-69). Duke doesn't start a player taller than 6-foot-8 and Meyer's game plan will be to reduce the tempo and turn the game into a duel of halfcourt offense.

Duke, 34-2, will travel to East Rutherford, N.J., Thursday with an 18-game winning streak and Coach Mike Krzyzewski was happy with the 89-61 romp against Old Dominion in Saturday's second round. The Blue Devils used sustained defensive pressure to force the outmanned Monarchs into 22 turnovers and Duke hopes to turn the DePaul game into a baseline-to-baseline track meet.

"To beat Old Dominion the way we did was excellent," said Krzyzewski. "We played extremely well. DePaul will present as big a front line as we've played all year. It's important for us to get them into a fullcourt game. Their strength is in their big front line while ours is in the backcourt."

All-America Johnny Dawkins, who has scored 52 points in Duke's two NCAA games, thrives in a wide-open attack while backcourt mate Tommy Amaker is one of the top point guards in the nation. Amaker's swarming defensive work against Old Dominion sophomore Frank Smith (3 points, 9 turnovers) disrupted the Monarchs' offense repeatedly.

"Maybe they are a little slow

Basketball

up front, but they work so hard," said Old Dominion Coach Tom Young. "Nobody is gonna get anything easy against Duke."

Strickland will try to work the ball inside to 6-foot-11 Lemone Lampley and two 6-9 players, Marty Embry and Dallas Comegys. Embry tied his career high with 19 points against the Sooners as the Blue Demons shot 58 percent from the floor and just 48 percent from the foul line.

"I'm really proud of our basketball team," says Meyer. "We've come together as a team and have proved we deserve to be in this tournament. We always look to get the ball inside and we've been able to get the big basket when people have made a run at us. Duke is well coached and deserves to be No. 1, but I'm not worried about Duke right now. First we'll just stop and enjoy ourselves."

Oklahoma, 28-9, finished with the third-highest victory total in school history, but Coach Billy Tubbs was sullen after Saturday's narrow loss. A 6-0 spurt by DePaul in the final minutes proved decisive after Oklahoma rallied within 1 point. The Sooners were outscored 8-0 from the foul line in the second half, missing all 3 of their attempts.

"DePaul played an outstanding game and deserved to win," said Tubbs, who worked off his pre-game jitters Saturday by jogging around Greensboro Coliseum. "I don't think the height difference was a factor ... we've faced that all year long. We feel particularly bad for our seniors. We weren't ready for the season to end, and it has. I'm going to go out and recruit and we will regroup."

Old Dominion and Kenny Gattison soared to victory in the first round of the NCAA Tournament but the Monarchs ran into a buzzsaw in the top-ranked Duke Blue Devils in Saturday's second-round action.

Cleveland St., Navy Sail Into 'Sweet 16'

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — "The Mouse" and the Navy's tallest Midshipman were the unlikely pair of heroes in an Eastern Regional that had no shortage of surprises.

Cleveland State guard Ken "The Mouse" McFadden and 6-foot-11 Navy center David Robinson led their teams to upset victories Sunday in the second round of the NCAA Tournament and into a Friday meeting at East Rutherford, N.J.

McFadden, a 21-year-old freshman from New York City, scored 23 points to pace the Vikings to a 75-69 victory over St. Joseph's. Robinson led the Midshipmen to a 97-85 triumph over No. 9 Syracuse, scoring 35 points, grabbing 11 rebounds, and blocking 7 shots.

Two days previous, No. 14 Indiana fell victim to the non-stop press and fast-break tactics of Cleveland State, 29-3 and riding a 14-game winning streak.

"They play an aggressive style on offense and defense," St. Joseph's coach Jim Boyle said. "We expected it and we got it. They penetrated too well to lose."

Cleveland State coach Kevin Mackey continued his effective 10-man rotation, and the Vikings harassed the Hawks into 18 turnovers. CSU's offense, second in the nation with a 90.2 average during the regular season, pulled away from a 26-26 tie at halftime to score 49 points in the second half. McFadden orchestrated the Vikings' attack.

"McFadden is all New York-shake-and-bake, and I won't take that away from him," Mackey said of his point guard who played AAU basketball rather than for a high school. "He can do it all."

Clinton Ransey, younger brother of New Jersey Net Kelvin Ransey, scored 17 points, and Clinton Smith had 16 points and 15 rebounds for the Vikings, seeded 14th in the East and recipients of an at-large bid to their first NCAA tournament.

Cleveland State held a 49-35 rebounding edge over the Hawks. St. Joseph's, 26-6, seeded No. 6 in the East, was led by Wayne Williams with 25 points.

Boyle said pitting Robinson against CSU will be an interesting matchup.

"Robinson is the best player in the country, but Cleveland State has a style that will be troublesome for them. They're just very good athletes and very good competitors," the St. Joseph's coach said.

Robinson, who played only one year of high school basketball, scored 26 points in the second half, and Navy's frontcourt overwhelmed the Orangemen, who were 17-1 at the Carrier Dome entering Sunday's game.

"He's a better shot-blocker than (Patrick) Ewing and (Ed) Pinckney," Syracuse coach Jim Boeheim said of Robinson, the nation's top rebounder and shot-blocker. "He dominated the inside; he's a phenomenal player."

The junior center was 7 of 13 from the floor, including 5 alley-oop dunks, and hit 21 of 27 foul shots. Bob Carney of Bradley holds the record for most free throws in an NCAA tournament game, making 23-of-26 in 1984 against Colorado.

Navy, 28-4 and the No. 7 seed in the East, has won 15 straight. Syracuse, 26-6 and the East's No. 2 seed, lost in the second round of the NCAA Tournament for the fourth consecutive year.

The Orangemen, 26-6, who beat Navy 89-67 in December, were led by Dwayne "Pearl" Washington with 26 points, and Wendell Alexis with 19.

Forsman Wins Bay Hill

Outduels Floyd For Second Tour Win, $90,000

ORLANDO (UPI) — Few golfers on the PGA Tour can say they went head-to-head with Raymond Floyd and came out a winner.

To that small list, add the name of Dan Forsman, who held off Floyd and Mike Hulbert to win the $90,000 first prize at the Hertz Bay Hill Classic Sunday.

Forsman, 27, of Provo, Utah, shot back-to-back 67s in the 36-hole finale Sunday to notch his second career win. He also won the Quad Cities Open, played the same week as the British Open, in 1985.

Forsman, playing in the same group with Floyd, saved par four times in the final round to go with four birdies, and did not make a bogey all day. Forsman finished the 54-hole tournament with a score of 202, 11-under-par on the 7,103-yard, par-71 Bay Hill course.

Floyd and Hulbert finished a shot back at 10-under. Wayne Levi finished 9-under, and Curtis Strange and Dan Pohl finished at 8-under 205.

The tournament was shortened to 54 holes after rain washed out play Friday and Saturday.

"I was in tough company today," said Forsman, a two-time All-America at Arizona State. "Quite honestly, Raymond Floyd's one of the toughest competitors wire-to-wire. It boiled down to match play, one-on-one."

"I think one reason I played as well as I did was that I played with Raymond and Roger Maltbie," he said. "I think we inspired each other."

With Floyd's putter on vacation, Forsman stayed one shot ahead of Floyd throughout the back nine. Floyd had several makeable birdie putts down the stretch, but could only manage one birdie in the last 12 holes, that coming when he chipped in off the fringe at 16.

"I've come off a three-week layoff and we only played one round (before Sunday)," Forsman said. "Coming into today, I didn't know what to expect. I didn't make a bogey all day. All day I saved par time and time again."

"Every time I missed a green, I felt like I was going to get up and down," he said.

Hulbert missed a putt from the fringe on 16 that would have tied him with Forsman, and Floyd missed a chip from the back fringe on 18 that would have tied Forsman.

"I was playing well coming into the tournament, so I felt good," said Hulbert, an Orlando resident who had his best finish in a PGA event. "Second place was quite a blessing. It really was."

"I can't complain," said

Hulbert, who earned $44,000. "I birdied three out of the last four holes. That's pretty good on this golf course."

RAIN PLAGUES LPGA

GLENDALE, Calif. (UPI) — Relentless rain that has plagued the Oakmont Country Club all week forced suspension of the GNA-Glendale Federal Classic Sunday for the second time, and reduced the $250,000 LPGA tournament to a 54-hole affair.

Chris Johnson and Jane Geddes are tied at one-under-par, two strokes ahead of Kemper Open champion Jull Inkster after 48 holes. Amy Alcott, who has played 49 holes, and Laurie Rinker, who had seven holes remaining, are tied for fourth place at 2-under.

Officials suspended play at 9:30 a.m. PST before deciding at 9:15 to try again Monday. All 18 greens were under water Sunday, and the course was deemed unplayable.

"When all the greens are under water, it's a futile attempt at that point," said Rich Wagner, the course superintendent. Wagner, who has spent probably more time in the press interview room than any of the golfers this weekend, said it was the worst conditions he's seen on the course in six years. He also said six inches of rain has fallen since Monday, and the par-73, 6,256-yard layout would require at least ten hours without rain in order to be playable again.

Beam Me In

Lake Brantley's Mike Beams is greeted by his teammates after crushing a two-run homer in last week's game against Lake Mary. Brantley dropped a 12-5 decision to the Rams. The Patriots' game was rained out Saturday.

Beebe Breaks 112-Race Skid

NASCAR

HAMPTON, Ga. (UPI) — Jack Beebe gave Morgan Shepherd an opportunity, and the North Carolinian, who hadn't had a solid ride in NASCAR's major-league circuit in three years, repaid him with a victory Sunday in the Motorcraft 500 at Atlanta International Raceway.

The victory on the 1.5-mile speedway was the first for either Shepherd or Beebe since 1981. It broke a 112-race winless streak for the Conover, N.C., driver, whose only other Winston Cup victory came at Martinsville, Va., in April 1981. It was Beebe's first trip to victory lane since August of that same year at Talladega, Ala.

"A lot of team owners can't afford someone like me," the 44-year-old Shepherd said after his first superspeedway triumph. "I can't bring a sponsor. All I can bring is my talent."

The former furniture builder began competing on short tracks at age 28, and amassed about 200 victories on the woody bullrings.

"Nowadays, you've got to have a background in racing like Dale Earnhardt. His father was a racer. My dad has been dead since I was 12, and I never had anyone help me get into racing."

IN BRIEF

Iowa Rewrites Record Book, Wins NCAA Wrestling Crown

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — Dan Gable has experienced a lot of peaks in his career as Iowa wrestling coach. The 37-year-old hall of fame said Sunday none equaled his top-rated Hawkeyes' record-smashing ninth national title.

"This is the best," Gable said after guiding the Hawkeyes to a record five individual titles, an all-time high team score and a record margin of victory over nearest challenger Oklahoma.

Iowa rewrote another page in the college wrestling history book with five champions, including Brad Penrith at 126 pounds, Kevin Dresser at 142 and Jim Heffernan at 150. Duane Goldman at 190 and two-time national winner Marty Kistler, who became the third straight Hawkeye to be named the tournament's outstanding wrestler.

Goldman, a four-time All-American who had failed to win a national title in three previous trips to the finals, avenged a 5-3 loss to defending champion Dan Chaid of Oklahoma with a hard-earned, 5-4 decision before a cheering hometown crowd of 13,700, giving the Hawkeyes a record team score of 158 points. That eclipsed the previous high team score of 155, set by Iowa in 1983.

Iowa, which won 39 of 43 bouts in the 56th annual wrestling tournament, also set a record for widest margin of victory by outgunning Oklahoma by 73.25 points. The Sooners finished second with 84.75 points, followed by Oklahoma State with 77.25 and Penn State with 47.25. The Hawkeyes' nine straight national titles is equaled only by Yale in golf and Southern California in track.

Martina Crushes Evert Lloyd

DALLAS (UPI) — Martina Navratilova allowed Chris Evert Lloyd to serve first Sunday, then crushed her long-time rival.

Navratilova broke Evert Lloyd in the first game, and disposed of Evert Lloyd in 59 minutes, 6-2, 6-1 for her seventh Virginia Slims of Dallas title in eight years. The top seed broke her opponents to start each of the seven sets she played in the quarterfinal, semifinal and final matches.

"I thought Chris was cautious in the beginning, and when you start tentative, it's hard to get into the groove. I never let her get into the groove," said Navratilova, who has beaten Evert Lloyd in 12 straight matches indoors, and in 21 of their last 24 overall.

Navratilova broke Evert Lloyd's service in the seventh game of the first set and the first, third and seventh games of the second set while holding service throughout.

Evert Lloyd, who said she was heartened by Navratilova's struggles in earlier matches of the $250,000 tournament, said the defending champion never gave her a chance.

World Records Fall At NCAAs

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — World records on consecutive nights have convinced sophomore Roddie Haley of Arkansas that he likes the 500-meter dash almost as much as his specialty, the outdoor 400 meters.

Haley's 59.82 in the 500 meters, the first time anyone has run under a minute in the event, was the spark that the Razorbacks needed to carry them to their third straight indoor title Saturday night, tying a record set by Texas El-Paso from 1965-67.

The Razorbacks scored 49 points, easily outdistancing second-place Villanova's 22 and Georgetown and Boston University's 20. Alabama notched a surprising victory in the women's division, scoring 41 points to favorite Texas' 31.

Florida's women's team set the fourth world record in the two-day meet, winning the 3,200-meter relay in a time of 8:31.74. On Friday night, Lee McRae of Pittsburgh set a world record in the 55-meter dash, running a 6.00. For that effort, McRae was named the meet's most valuable performer.

Cavs Fire Disenchanted Karl

RICHFIELD, Ohio (UPI) — Less than a year after George Karl took a group of Cleveland "misfits" to the NBA playoffs for the first time in seven seasons, the champagne bubbles burst for the Cavaliers head coach.

Karl, who did not hide his disenchantment with Cleveland general manager Harry Wetman, and had been actively job hunting the past two months, Sunday was fired and replaced by assistant coach Gene Littles on an acting basis.

Lady Hawk Tourney Washed Out

For those of you who were disgruntled with the weekend weather, relax, the rainy season hasn't come early. It was just time for the Lady Hawk Invitational Tournament.

Nasty weather and the Lady Hawk go hand in hand. In fact, it was a surprise last year when the tournament was completed on the regularly scheduled date. That was probably another strike against the same thing happening again.

The first three games of the 1986 Lady Hawk were completed Saturday morning, but the clouds then busted open and Red Bug Park once again became Lake Red Bug.

Lake Howell coach Jo Luciano said play will most likely resume this Saturday with the tourney picking up where it left off. Seminole High and Orlando Colonial were in the middle of a game when the rains came.

The question now is, will the Lady Hawk be completed before the NCAA basketball tournament? Or before the start of the NBA playoffs?

Before Saturday's deluge, Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots avenged an earlier loss to Lake Mary with a 10-2 first-round victory. The Lady Patriots banged out 14 hits in the game compared to just three for the Lady Rams.

Chris Fister
SPORTS WRITER

Tracy Brandenburg, Denise Burke and Mandy Mattheaen had two hits each for Brantley while Angie May drove in two runs with a double and Kim Robinson, along with picking up the pitching victory, belted her fifth double of the season.

This past Tuesday, Lake Brantley managed just five hits in a 3-0 loss to Lake Mary.

"The girls did not want the same thing to happen again," Brantley assistant Debbie Frank said. "They went out and made their presence felt from the start."

Brantley's next opponent would be powerhouse Orlando Boone which upended West Orange in another of Saturday's completed games.

With the foul weather looming ominous, it's a wonder the game between Oviedo's Lady Lions and Oak Ridge's Lady Pioneers got into the books. The game went 13 innings with Oviedo

Game's Image Concerns Hershiser

Dodgers Righthander Looks For 'Good Guys' To Get More Credit

VERO BEACH (UPI) — Orel Hershiser, baseball's newest millionaire, believes the game's image in the mind of the public today is worth about two cents.

"I don't think we're on stable ground right now," said Hershiser, sitting at a table autographing baseballs in the Los Angeles Dodgers' clubhouse at their spring training camp.

"I think we really need to have a good public relations push. Not a PR push to put up a facade that we're a bunch of angels playing baseball, but a PR push to overshadow the drug problem.

"There's a larger percentage of clean players in baseball than there are clean people in society. Baseball is not a drug-infested sport, not a drug-infested career. I really think we need to start giving some exposure to the good guys."

Hershiser, who could easily qualify as one of baseball's good guys, remembers growing up in Detroit and worshipping major league players. It distresses him any time a baseball hero's image is tarnished.

"I put baseball players on a pedestal when I was a kid," said the 27-year-old right-hander. "I lived in Detroit in 1968 when they won the World Series. I could name the whole Tiger lineup from that year. They were my heroes. I feel very sad about what happened to (Denny) McLain because he was one of the guys I liked so much."

McLain, who won 31 games for the Tigers that year, is currently in an Atlanta prison, serving a 23-year sentence for drug trafficking, extortion and other crimes.

"Even after they're out of baseball, players still have an impact on society," added Hershiser. "They're still heroes to the fans."

Hershiser believes baseball commissioner Peter Ueberroth is on the right track toward cleaning up the game's image especially in the matter of the drug issues.

Baseball

"I like the way he's bringing public awareness to the problem," said Hershiser. "He's saying, 'Yes, we're aware of the problem and we're going to do something about it.' I think that's the most positive thing he can do."

Hershiser would like to see the Players Association work a little faster at coming up with a drug plan, but he realizes the many problems the union faces.

"It's going to be awfully tough because you have a lot of constitutional issues," said Hershiser. "You're talking about drug testing that isn't completely accurate at all times."

"You're asking players to risk a career as a good role model with high salaries, something they've tried to achieve all their life, and put that all on the line for a test that might not be completely accurate."

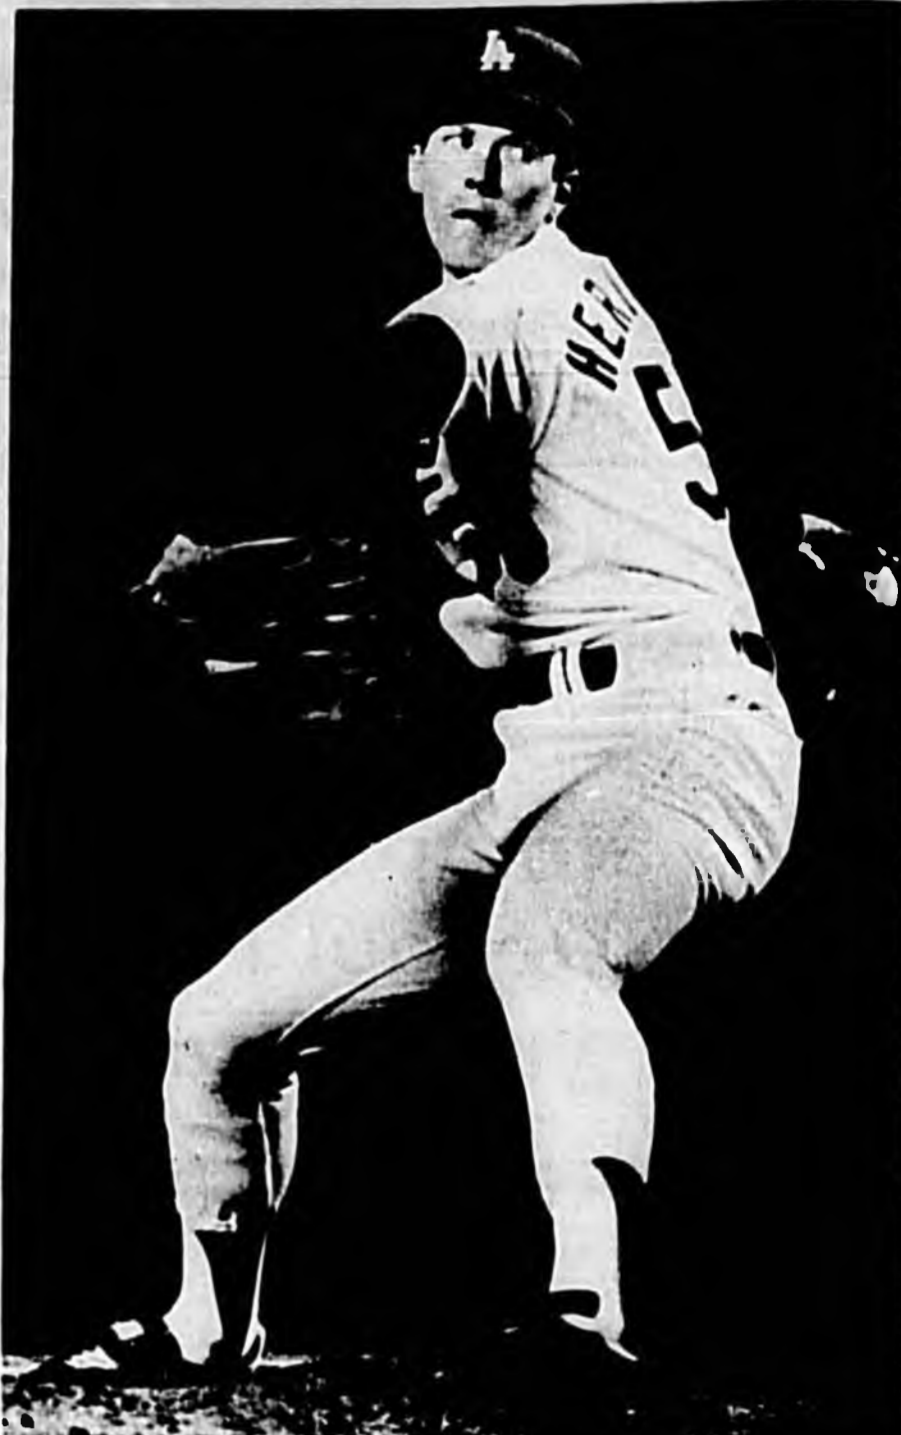

"You're asking someone to prove innocence instead of being innocent until proven guilty. It's a big problem. Something has to be done but we don't know if testing is it yet."

A man of deep religious conviction, Hershiser hopes the public will forgive the seven players punished by Ueberroth for their drug offenses.

"I hope the people out there will forgive the guys who have been caught and been involved because all of us have done wrong in our life," said Hershiser. "They need some forgiveness."

Hershiser mentioned how the Dodger players never turned their back on former teammate Steve Howe, whose repeated drug offenses finally cost him his baseball career.

"Steve Howe is loved and LA's Orel Hershiser, pro baseball's newest millionaire, adored in this locker room," said Hershiser. "He has had all the chances in the world and fallen down, but the guys in this locker room have forgiven him and accepted him as a friend. They know he has a problem and needs help."

Hershiser also is hoping the public doesn't begin treating him differently just because he is now joined the ranks of baseball's wealthy. The righthander took the Dodgers to salary arbitration this winter following his 19-3 season and won a $1 million salary for the 1986 season.

Five Rookies Take Spring Spotlight

United Press International Youth drew a flush Sunday as five rookies helped their teams to exhibition victories.

At Tampa, Kurt Stillwell, a 20-year-old freshman, led off the bottom of the ninth inning with a home run to lift the Cincinnati Reds to a 7-6 Grapefruit League victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Stillwell, who is challenging veteran Dave Concepcion for the shortstop job, slammed the first pitch from reliever Pat Clements.

Ron Oester also hit a two-run homer for the Reds, who have won five of their eight exhibition games.

At St. Petersburg, Kevin Mitchell, a 24-year-old rookie who has spent the last two years in Triple A, pounded two homers and drove in five runs while pacing the New York Mets to a 7-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Mitchell, a third baseman in the minors, played left field and first base.

He connected with a Bert Blyleven change-up and hit it over the wall in right-center field for a three-run homer in the first inning and then belted a two-run shot off reliever Frank Eufemia.

Darryl Strawberry went 3-for-3 and hit his first homer of the spring for the Mets.

Ron Darling held the Twins hitless over the first four innings. Darling is 2-0 in Grapefruit League play with a 1.80 ERA, allowing just two runs and five hits in 10 innings of work.

At Sarasota, rookie first baseman Orestes Deastrate stroked four hits, including a leadoff home run in the 10th inning, to lead a New York Yankees split squad to a 10-6 victory over a Chicago White Sox split squad.

The last three batters in the Yankees order — Deastrate, Mike Fischlin and Bobby Meacham — ravaged Chicago pitching for eight runs on 10 hits.

At Dunedin, rookie Kelly Gruber doubled home the winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning and five Toronto pitchers scattered five singles to lead the Blue Jays to a 2-1 triumph over the other Yankee squad.

Lozer Al Holland walked Garth Iorg with one out in the ninth before Gruber delivered his game winning hit. Toronto's Jesse Barfield blasted his second homer of the spring in the eighth to tie the score 1-1.

At Pompano Beach, rookie shortstop Jim Scranton singled to score Joe Citari with the game-winning run in the 11th inning, sending the Kansas City Royals to an 8-5 triumph over the Texas Rangers.

Lost Ladd Reappears, Settles Down In Seattle

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI) — Milwaukee Brewers manager George Bamberger impresses lots of people with his touch with pitchers.

He doesn't impress Pete Ladd. Ladd, the Brewers' stopper in 1982 and 1983 after Rollie Fingers went down with an injury, was lost in the Milwaukee bullpen last year, appearing in only 29 games and earning 2 saves.

"The whole bullpen kind of disappeared last year," said Ladd, who is trying to reappear as a member of the Seattle Mariners this season.

"Bamberger is supposedly the

Baseball

premier pitching coach, but he didn't like to use his bullpen. There were a lot of people sitting."

That was quite a change from 1982, when the big right-hander took over for Fingers on July 15 and helped the Brewers to the American League pennant.

Striking out five of the 10 batters he faced, he saved two games in the AL Championship Series that year, finishing second in the MVP balloting for the series.

Rebounding Heels Battle Rolling Cards

OGDEN, Utah (UPI) — North Carolina coach Dean Smith said his team's performance in the opening two rounds of the NCAA West Regionals shows the No. 8 Tar Heels have come back from the depths of despair.

"I thought we showed a great deal of courage and confidence when it was needed," said Smith, whose team started the season with 21 straight victories, then lost five of its next 10 games. "Maybe we did hit bottom and we're starting back. Maybe we're getting healthy and getting ready to go."

The Tar Heels, 28-5, beat Utah 64-72 in the first round, then Alabama-Birmingham 77-59 Saturday. The Tar Heels now are headed for the West semifinal round Thursday where they meet No. 7 Louisville.

The Cardinals, 28-7, also advanced to Houston with easy victories over Drexel, 83-73, and No. 13 Bradley, 82-68; consecutive wins Nos. 12 and 13.

Louisville coach Denny Crum said the West bracket shapes up as the toughest in the Tournament, in which the school is making its 18th appearance. UNC has appeared 20 times in the national collegiate playoffs.

"North Carolina, if I'm not mistaken, was the only team this year that was No. 1 in the nation for like 13 straight weeks," Crum said. "When they get a (West) No. 3 seed, primarily because of some injuries, that puts two No. 1 seeds in the bracket as far as I'm concerned because they're not hurt any more. They're back healthy."

"So I don't think there's a tougher bracket. Whoever comes out of this (West bracket) has as good a chance to win it as anyone."

As for his team's seeding, Smith said, "We're the last of the No. 3 seeds. Memphis State, Notre Dame and Indiana are all gone, so we're just delighted to be playing next week."

Basketball

The Tar Heels are the only team to have made the round of 16 every year since 1881. In 1982, they won the Tournament.

Louisville won its opening-round games with an offense that hit 60 percent from the floor against Drexel, and 65 percent against Bradley. Billy Thompson and freshman Pervis Ellison led the Cardinals; Thompson with 38 points in the two games, and Ellison with 27, and each grabbed 17 rebounds.

For the Tar Heels, it was defense, holding Utah to 48 percent shooting and Alabama-Birmingham to 30 percent. UNC 7-foot center Brad Daugherty scored 27 points against Utah, and had 13 points and 13 rebounds in 25 minutes against UAB. Kenny Smith had 33 points in the two games.

UNC WOMEN ADVANCE

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Cynthia Cooper scored 19 points Sunday to lead Southern California to an 81-50 victory over Montana in the NCAA women's basketball tournament.

The Trojans, 28-4, advance to play North Carolina on Thursday in the semifinals of the West Region at Long Beach, Calif. Montana finished its season at 27-4.

Cheryl Miller, who sprained a finger on her left hand in practice, watched from the bench and was listed as questionable for Thursday's game.

Rhonda Windham added 14 for the Trojans, who led the entire game, while Montana was led by Marti Leibenguth with 13 points.

North Carolina's Brad Daugherty goes high for a tip in first-round NCAA Tournament action. The Tar Heels survived the upset bid of Utah in the opening round, then destroyed Alabama-Birmingham to advance to the round of 16 against Louisville. Louisville has rolled over both its tournament foes.

Auburn Stuns Redmen; UNLV Trips Maryland

Basketball

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Chuck Person and Anthony Jones were not named All-Americans, so they used the NCAA Tournament to get what they feel is some well-deserved recognition.

Sunday, Person scored 27 points and triggered a devastating transition game with 15 rebounds to power Auburn to an 81-65 upset of No. 3 St. John's.

Jones followed with 25 points, including 4 free throws in the final 35 seconds, as 10th-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas edged Maryland 70-64 to complete the second round of the West Regionals.

The Tigers, 21-10, and Rebels, 33-4, travel to Houston, where they will collide Thursday night in the regional semifinals.

Person, a 6-foot-8, 215-pounder who runs the floor like a guard, said he used the All-America snub as a motivational tool.

"I was very disappointed in not making the All-America team. I felt I deserved it," said Person, fourth-leading scorer in Southeast Conference history. "I wanted to show people in the country I could play with the best players in the nation, and I think I did that today."

Auburn combined power on the boards and speed on the break to run to a 44-32 halftime bulge. Person collected 14 points and 10 rebounds in the first 20 minutes for Auburn. Meanwhile, St. John's was outrebounded 23-9 by the quick-leaping Tigers.

"They hurt us in the first half after getting second shots," said St. John's playmaker Mark Jackson. "Give them credit, but we didn't box them out."

And a rebound by Auburn meant it was time to run.

"We felt we could run on them because they only played five guys," Person said.

The Redmen, who went to the Final Four last year, concluded their season 31-5. They had only eight players available for Sunday's contest.

Five straight points by Person polished off a 13-6 burst to start the second half, and gave the Tigers their largest lead, 57-38, with 16:10 to go.

Ron Rowan hit 3 straight corner jumpers and 2 foul shots, and St. John's scored 13 of the next 17 points to pull within 61-51 with 10:50 left.

Reserve John Hempel scored and stole a pass in the lane, but his 15-footer that would have brought the Redmen within 63-57 was long. Frank Ford buried a 20-footer, and Person added 2 foul shots to make it 67-55 with 7:07 left. The Redmen were no threat again.

All-America Walter Berry led St. John's with 20 points, but 16 came in the first half. Doubled and often triple-teamed, he did not score after intermission until 6:53 remained.

Jeff Moore added 15 points for the Tigers. Rowan had 14 for the losers, who were outrebounded 39-24.

Board work was also a factor in the UNLV-Maryland contest, except it was the Rebels who owned a surprising 42-40 advantage.

"We have never been a good rebounding team," said UNLV coach Jerry Tarkanian. "We get outrebounded by most teams in the PCAA and then we go out and rebound Maryland."

With Mark Wade running the offense, UNLV committed only 4 turnovers, just 1 after intermission.

Cyclones Dismantle Michigan - NC State Survives

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Being an underdog from the Big Eight doesn't bother Iowa State coach Johnny Orr, it inspires him.

"When we play those teams that are supposed to beat us, we play super," Orr said Sunday after his underdog Cyclones upended No. 5 Michigan 72-69 in the second round of the NCAA Midwest Regional.

Iowa State, 22-10, advanced to the regional final at Kansas City, Mo., against North Carolina State, 20-12, which defeated Arkansas-Little Rock 80-66 in two overtimes Sunday.

Orr was victorious in his first game against former assistant Bill Frieder and Michigan since leaving Ann Arbor six years ago to rebuild the Iowa State program.

Basketball

"This has to be the biggest victory ever," said Orr, who guided the Wolverines to the NCAA final in 1976-77. "I took on a program that couldn't do anything. Everybody thought I was nutty."

North Carolina State may be canceled out of the Final Four because Coach Jim Valvano has trouble keeping his clothes on.

"I split my pants in the first game. I lost my jacket in the second game," he said Sunday. "I should be naked by the time the regional finals come about."

Bolton overcame an 0 for 4 first half Sunday to score a 25-foot jumper with 27 seconds left to force a second overtime against Arkansas-Little Rock and hit 4 of 4 free throws in the second extra period.

NIT Big Tourney In Mizzou

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI) — While most of the nation's basketball fans are wrapped up in the NCAA tournament, people in southwest Missouri are enthralled by the National Invitational Tournament.

Tickets for the second-round game Monday night between Marquette University and Southwest Missouri State University were sold out in just over three hours.

All seats in Hammons Student Center, which seats 8,702, were gobbled up as quickly as box office people could collect the money despite the fact that Southwest's students were on spring break.

Standing room only tickets for the 7:35 CST game will assure a crowd of 9,000. That could turn out to be the school's largest ever.

Coach Charlie Spoonhour of the host Bears will have to change the game plan that knocked off the Pittsburgh Panthers 59-52 in a first-round game last Wednesday.

"We were able to change the tempo on Pitt to our advantage," Spoonhour said. "Marquette is a different cup of tea. While they got the same awesome talent as Pittsburgh, they can play a more disciplined game."

Marquette, 19-10, defeated Drake University 79-59 Thursday to advance to the second-round game with Southwest Missouri, which is only four years removed from the Division II level.

The Warriors capitalized on turnovers in the victory over Drake. Forward David Boone, who had 26 points and 13 rebounds in the win, has led Marquette this season.

The Warriors have been in the NCAA tournament 17 times since 1955 and this is their seventh appearance in the NIT.

Southwest Missouri, which plays in the Mid-Continent Conference, is a comparative new-comer on the block in big-time basketball.

Although Southwest Missouri is the second largest school in the state with an enrollment of 18,000, the Bears are not widely known among Division I teams.

IN BRIEF

OPEC Holds Emergency Talks On Crumbling Oil Prices

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — OPEC oil ministers began a second day of emergency talks today on possible production restraints to reverse ruinous financial losses caused by collapsing prices.

A meaningful accord appeared blocked, however, by a split between those demanding new OPEC production controls and others who have rejected such action without cooperation from non-member producers, especially Britain and Norway.

Several member states said they were prepared to cut their output provided everyone else accepted and honored lower quotas.

Ministers from Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates and Ecuador were the latest members to say their countries would lower output if everyone agreed.

Qatar minister Abdul Khalifa Al Thani, however, told reporters that his country would find it "difficult to accept" a cut in its production. Some delegates said privately that the most that could be expected was a vague general undertaking to limit output if possible.

13 Dead In Hotel Collapse

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Rescuers tunneled through tons of concrete today and dug out several survivors in a desperate search for an estimated 60 people missing for two days in the rubble of a six-story hotel that collapsed like "a deck of cards." Thirteen people were confirmed dead.

One witness said moments before the disaster workers were shoring up the building with wooden supports, and investigators said heavy rains may have contributed to the collapse.

Thirteen people were confirmed dead and 13 had been pulled from the rubble by today, two days after the New World Hotel collapsed without warning. All of the dead and survivors were Indians, Malaysians or Chinese.

Two people were pulled out of the rubble today to the cheers of rescue workers and the workers reported they heard the voices of more trapped people.

An estimated 100 people were in the hotel and a bank in the same building when it fell, according to one official, like "a deck of cards." About a dozen escaped on their own, and authorities said about 60 people remained missing.

Toyota Hikes Prices 4.1 %

TOKYO (UPI) — Toyota, Japan's largest car manufacturer, will raise the retail prices of its cars and trucks in the United States by an average of $412 per vehicle, or 4.1 percent, a company spokesman said today.

The announcement is the latest in a series of price hikes by Japanese automakers beset by the rigors of a rising yen.

Toyota cars in U.S. showrooms will now cost an average of 4.3 percent more, or about $466 more, the spokesman said.

Toyota trucks will cost an average of about $315 more, a rise of 3.7 percent, he said.

The individual increases work out to an average price hike of $412 per vehicle or 4.1 percent. It was the second time this year the company announced a price hike for its cars and trucks.

In January, Toyota raised the prices on its vehicles exported to the United States by an average of 3 percent — or about $269 per car or truck.

The reason given for both increases was the rising value of the yen, which began its climb following an agreement last September by finance ministers from five industrialized nations to lower the value of the dollar.

Con Man Escapes Indian Jail

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Police had a nationwide alert out today for accused murderer Charles Sobhraj, known as the "bikini killer," who broke out of prison with six others by drugging guards — a tactic he once used to rob victims.

All vehicles leaving the capital were checked and border points and airports alerted but police said they could not rule out the possibility the 41-year-old French national, a charismatic international swindler who preyed on tourists and is wanted for two slayings in Thailand, fled the country.

Sobhraj, whose crime spree spanned Asia and Europe and was the subject of two books including the bestseller "Serpentine," fled the Tihar Jail Sunday in a devious escape plot — his third jailbreak since 1971.

Jail officials said two men drove up to the outer gate of the maximum-security prison, where Sobhraj had been held for 10 years, and told guards they were delivering sweets and fruits to a prisoner for his birthday.

The men were allowed through, parked at the main building and handed the food laced with drugs to guards, officials said. The guards gave the food to Sobhraj, who was in the building talking with jail staff and other inmates, they said.

Revolutionary Government Urged

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Justice Minister Neptali Gonzales has urged President Corazon Aquino to dissolve the current constitution shaped by deposed President Ferdinand Marcos and proclaim a revolutionary government, a newspaper reported today.

Gonzales, in a memo published today, urged Aquino to act swiftly to remove uncertainty over her rule by unilaterally dissolving the last remnants of the Marcos government.

Excerpts of a memo by Gonzales were carried in the Philippine Daily Inquirer amid reports of deep divisions in a committee studying whether to dissolve the constitution or reshape the government through the current parliament.

"Continuation of this uncertainty is not good," Gonzales said in the document submitted to Aquino March 12 at her first Cabinet meeting following the overthrow of Marcos, who ruled with extraordinary powers for 20 years.

"Moreover, this government is missing a great opportunity to achieve the changes and reforms our people demand. Their expectations are high and they are impatient," Gonzales said.

Gonzales proposed Aquino proclaim revolutionary rule and announce a provisional constitution which would last six months until a new constitution was written.

Swiss Voters Opt To Keep Country Out Of UN

BERN, Switzerland (UPI) — The resounding defeat of a proposal to join the United Nations will not alter Swiss foreign policy or its traditional role as a neutral mediator of international conflicts, the government said today.

By a 3-to-1 ratio, Swiss voters Sunday signaled their preference to continue the country's role as an independent mediator of international conflicts rather than join in the political fray that dominates U.N. activities.

With a 50.2 percent turnout in a national referendum, final results showed 75.7 percent, or 1,591,428 votes, against the proposal to only 24.3 percent, or 511,548 votes, in favor.

In the aftermath of the defeat, Foreign Minister Pierre Aubert, a principal supporter of the proposal, said he would not resign and ruled out any change in foreign policy, saying the vote endorsed the nation's neutrality, solidarity with the international community and our availability (as a neutral dispute mediator), Aubert said.

"No, I will not resign," he told reporters. "I don't consider the decision of the people to be a personal disavowal."

"It is a paradox that this negative vote does not question the foundation of our foreign policy. We will continue in our neutrality, solidarity with the international community and our availability (as a neutral dispute mediator)," Aubert said.

Government officials, who said they expected the proposal to be defeated but not by such large numbers, noted Switzerland is the only country ever to put membership in the United Nations to a vote.

"It is very possible that many other people would vote the same way," one official said. Swiss voters rarely reject government advice, particularly when it is supported by Parliament, all the major political parties, trade unions, churches and the press, as was the case with the U.N. referendum.

Newspaper commentators analyzing the vote in opinion columns today generally criticized the people for "choosing splendid isolation," as one wrote.

Otto Fischer, a conservative Parliament deputy and head of one of the biggest anti-U.N. political groups, said he was "totally delighted" by the result.

"We have won such an enormous victory that it will be many, many years before the government tries it again," Fischer said.

...Reagan

on Capitol Hill and all across the country."

Sen. Jeff Bingaman, D-N.M., a member of the Armed Services Committee, said Reagan should be working closely with the regional states, known as the Contadora group, for a negotiated settlement.

"It is absurd for the United States to recognize the Nicaraguan government on the one hand and on the other to attempt with military aid to overthrow that government," Bingaman said.

Rep. Robert Michel of Illinois, the House Republican leader, said Reagan made a factual case for the aid.

"Congress must now act on these facts in the name of human rights and American self-interest to provide the assistance needed to stop the Sandinistas," Michel said.

Rep. Mary Rose Oaker, D-Ohio, saw no promise in the speech.

"He engaged in typical red-baiting," she said. "The president would rather not negotiate but seek a military solution."

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said the $100 million aid package ultimately will lead to American troops fighting in Nicaragua.

"That's the precise pattern we followed in Vietnam — money followed by military advisers followed by American troops,"

Cranston said. Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., said Sasser and the Democrats "want to play Hamlet on the issue of negotiations. We have negotiated until we're blue in the face, and it's time for action, not talk."

Rep. David Bonior, D-Mich., said Reagan was not looking for diplomatic support from other nations in Central America.

"The president wants to conduct a war without allies," he said.

The Nicaraguan Embassy in Washington, in a statement issued even before the president spoke, accused Reagan of "inflammatory rhetoric based on false premises and outright distortion."

The president was to meet today with special envoy Philip Habib who returned Saturday from his four-day trip to Central America.

But he did not mention Habib's mission and dismissed his critics' demands for more negotiations with the Sandinistas in one paragraph of the 22-minute speech.

"The question the Congress of the United States will now answer is a simple one: Will we give the Nicaraguan democratic resistance the means to recapture their betrayed revolution, or will we turn our backs and ignore the malignancy in Managua until it spreads and become a mortal threat to the entire New World."

The House debate begins Wednesday with a vote expected

Thursday on the 18-month allocation of $70 million in new weapons — the first U.S. arms for the Contras since October 1984. It also would include $30 million in "non-lethal" aid, an extension of $27 million in humanitarian assistance approved in 1985.

White House chief of staff Donald Regan said Sunday the administration had "well over" 200 of the 218 votes needed to assure victory, but most forecasts have Reagan losing in the Democratic-controlled House.

During the president's broadcast, some 2,000 protesters demonstrated against Reagan's aid request in front of the White House carrying signs saying:

"USA, Stop the War in Nicaragua;" "Stop Contra Aid" and "Get Out of Nicaragua."

"For our own security, the United States must deny the Soviet Union a beachhead in North America," Reagan said.

"I hope Congress will reflect deeply upon what it is the resistance is fighting against in Nicaragua," Reagan said. "Ask yourselves what in the world are Soviets, East Germans, Bulgarians, North Koreans, Cubans and terrorists from the PLO and the Red Brigades, doing in our hemisphere, camped on our doorstep. Is that for peace?"

Tying together fears of Nicaragua's becoming "a command post for international terrorism," Reagan said, "This danger will not go away. It will grow worse, much worse, if we fail to take action now."

"There seems to be no crime to which the Sandinistas will not stoop. This is an outlaw regime," he said.

He also sought to reassure Americans that he was not setting the stage for another Vietnam-style involvement.

He omitted the harsh rhetoric against congressional opponents used in the earlier stages of the Contra aid campaign — charges that drew charges of "red-baiting" and "McCarthyism" from opponents — but gave no hint of compromise.

Using electronic maps to illustrate his points, Reagan warned that "using Nicaragua as a base, the Soviets and Cubans can become the dominant power in the crucial corridor between North and South America."

Reagan noted he has "only three years left to serve my country ... three years left to work for peace," and asked: "Could there be any greater tragedy than for us to sit back and permit this cancer to spread, leaving my successor to face far more agonizing decisions in the years ahead?"

The Sandinistas, responding through their embassy in Washington, accused Reagan of "inflammatory rhetoric based on false premises and outright distortion" in a statement issued even before the president spoke.

...Sanford

The structure under discussion is located in a part of the city that was rezoned from multi-family residential to single family residential in the fall of 1983. The area, which lies between West 13th and 4th Streets and Sanford and Laurel Avenues, consists predominantly of large, elderly homes, many of which had been developed into multi-unit apartments prior to the rezoning.

The 1983 decision to change that part of the city's property use regulations was viewed as a measure that would upgrade the area by promoting owner occupancy of its dwellings, according to Farr, who served as commissioner when the measure was adopted.

The change to single family use was opposed, however, by many of the apartment owners, although the ordinance did grandfather in the multi-unit dwellings to enable their continued operation.

The apartments were designated as acceptable non-conforming uses, as was the building that McClain, Pierce and Associates Insurance Company now wishes to add to.

The building, located at 720 S. Park Ave., is a filling station that Dr. Harold Ring converted many years ago into a medical office. Ring retired last year and the office has since been vacant.

It has also fallen into disrepair, according to McClain, Pierce and Associates president Chet Pierce.

He said the addition his company has proposed would be accompanied by an overall rehabilitation of the structure.

Commissioners reacted favorably to the site plans Pierce presented Monday night, although they held off voting on the proposal until nearby Park Avenue property owners could be notified and invited to attend the commission's March 24 meeting to comment on it. The decision was made after Colbert pointed out that similar notices had been sent in January, when the insurance company first approached the city with its request. That proposal, for a larger addition than requested Monday night, was pulled by the company two days before the commission was to address it.

Pierce said the January proposal was twice the size of the new plan and was pulled. "Because it didn't appear to be something the commission would approve."

Site plans offered Monday night show a 420 square-foot addition to the front of the building and 152 square-foot expansion to its rear. Of the addition and the remodeling, Pierce said, "We feel confident these plans are in keeping with what the commission wants for that area."

The insurance company contracted to purchase the property last June, in hopes of relocating its West First Street office there. A month before then, the company received city approval for an extension of the property's non-conforming use designation. Without such authorization, at the end of six months, the vacant structure would have been designated for single family use.

The group then approached the commission in January, right before it closed on the land, and requested a structural addition to the non-conforming use. Company representatives said the building was too small to accommodate their offices.

Commissioners on Monday night acknowledged the structure's already being in non-conformance with city regulations, although they also agreed the proposed rehabilitation and modifications would benefit the site.

They also said approval of the request would not represent a blanket sanctioning for similar requests they may subsequently receive from other property owners in that area. These proposals would be judged on their individual merit, commissioners said.

After the decision was made to delay the vote until the March 24 commission meeting, Mayor Bettye Smith told Pierce and another company representative, "I hope you're not too disappointed. I don't doubt for a moment this will go through."

County To Get Request

A request for an adult congregate living facility will go before the Seminole County Board of Adjustment when it meets today at 6 p.m. in the county services building.

The board will consider a request for a special exception by Centrex International Services to permit the facility on the south side of Highland Street, one-fourth mile west of Douglas Road.

In other business, the adjustment board will consider the following requests:

• Quentin Green, request for a grass landing strip on the north side of Brumley Road.

• Tony Lombardi, request for an auto service facility in conjunction with an auto dealership on the west side of U.S. Highway 17-92, 200 feet south of Ridge Road.

• Jack Zimmer, request for mini-storage facilities on the northwest corner of Howell Branch and State Road 428.

• Shader Fern Park Partnership, request for parking for mini-warehouses adjacent to a planned unit development; west side of 17-92, 200 feet south of Ridge Road.

• Allied Tire Sales, request for outside tire installation and the use of semi-trailers, with tires removed, for tire storage and request for setback variance for canopy, southwest corner of State Road 434 and 17-92.

Second Marriage First Class All The Way ...

DEAR ABBY: In response to the request from "Flying High in Iowa City" for information concerning a wedding aboard an airline flight: My husband and I were married on March 4, 1974, by the Rev. Wayne Bryan, a Baptist minister from Baton Rouge, La., on a Delta Airlines flight between Baton Rouge and Shreveport, La. We chartered the first-class section and brought along the entire wedding party.

It was a second marriage for both of us. We had been married (to each other) a year before, in Charleston, W. Va., but because of a legal technicality we needed a Louisiana marriage license.

The captain announced the marriage to the rest of the passengers, and Delta furnished the champagne and flowers.

DR. AND MRS. JEAN JEFFUS, NEW ORLEANS

like a marriage performed en route to Hawaii, book my passage (at their expense) and I will be glad to make the trip with them.

R.L. HOLLOWAY, JR., WISE COUNTY, TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: I am a 59-year-old lady minister, fully ordained. I perform about 80 weddings a year and would enjoy performing some weddings on an airline to Hawaii if some (or all) of my expenses were paid. I have a lovely short wedding ceremony that everybody just loves, and I'm fairly free to go on short notice, so if "Flying High in Iowa" or others are interested, let me know.

THE REV. MOLLY C. PETERSON, BREMERTON, WASH.

DEAR ABBY: Recently we were invited to a surprise 40th wedding anniversary party for a member of our family. The "hosts" were their two married children. The invitation read: A surprise anniversary party for Mom and Dad will be given on such and such a date at the ()

DEAR ABBY: Your column about the Iowa couple who wanted to be married in the air by an airline captain caught my attention. As a county judge, I have the authority to perform weddings. If any couple would restaurant. Time, place, etc. At the very bottom it also read: $15 per person.

Abby, I may be wrong, but when an invitation reads "is given by," I assume that the sender is paying for the party. Maybe things are done differently today, but I have never given a party in my life and asked my guests to pay for it.

Please answer. We are all wondering whether these two cheap kids are out of line, or are we out of touch?

RUTH IN BROOKLYN

DEAR RUTH: You are not out of touch, the "kids" are. Their invitation should have read: "We are organizing a party for Mom and Dad and if you want to be a part of it, please remit $15." When people give a party, they pay for it themselves.

Problems? Write to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. All correspondence is confidential.

In And Around Longwood Buy Stuffed Animals, Not Real, For Easter

The Humane Society of Seminole County is planning an Easter craft and toy sale on March 22 at Flea World. Joanne Prager, executive director, explained that the society is sponsoring this sale to encourage the public to buy stuffed toy chicks, ducks and bunnies for the children's Easter baskets rather than give live animals. Such animals are often ignored or abandoned, if not squeezed to death, by a loving toddler. The little animals are usually babies and have been dyed or decorated in some cruel way.

Make your family's Easter pleasant — come to the sale for a good deal on a really huggable and squeeze-proof "pet." A lot of these critters have been hand-crafted by volunteers and some have been donated. Ms. Prager says the society is still accepting donations of new stuffed animals throughout this week to be used in the sale. Proceeds will go to help animals housed at the compound located at 17-92 and County Home Road — maybe they'll even be used to help that poor live creature you couldn't care for after the kids were bored with it and you had to turn it over to the Humane Society!

From 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. on March 19, the Matland Women's club will hold a fashion show/luncheon/card game to raise money for the Alzheimer's Disease Resource Center in Orlando and to make a donation to Matland's Civic Center. Tickets are $10 each and the fun-filled day will take place at the Matland Civic Center.

Thirteen students at Lehigh University in Bethlehem, Pa., have been named Williams Scholars for the 1986 spring semester. The students are majoring in either English, drama, or journalism and were selected from candidates nominated by the faculty.

Dr. Frank Hook, chairman of the college's English department, has announced that Jennifer Moore, daughter of the Stanley Moores of Longwood, is among the recipients. The E.W. Williams Jr. Prize Fund was established in 1908 to honor excellence in composition and oratory.

The March meeting of the Central Florida Society for Historic Preservation is at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday in the Bradlee McIntyre House on Warren Avenue, Longwood. A business meeting will follow the program, "A History of Antique Dolls," presented by Patricia Stettner.

Members, remember — 1986 dues are due!

Jason Bray, a junior at Lake Brantley High School, has been elected Youth Governor for the next Florida YMCA "Youth in Government" in Tallahassee in the 1987 session. Bray served as Senator Pro-tem in the recent 1986 session, in which his team was a runner-up in sponsoring outstanding bills before the Youth Senate.

Students participating in this program spend months studying the judicial process, writing bills and debating political issues, as well as attending the sessions and conferences throughout the year.

Plans for Longwood's ninth annual "Old Timer's Reception" at the Longwood Civic League Women's Club, set for 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. April 6, are underway. This is an opportunity for all longtime Longwood residents to meet and catch up on what's been going on since last year's gathering. New residents and visitors are invited to join in. Homemade goodies from the kitchens of Women's Club members will be served.

What better way for middle-school-aged students to kick off spring break than with an overnight Lock-In? The fun begins at 7 p.m., March 21, at the Westmonte Recreation Center in Altamonte Springs and will continue throughout the night until 8 a.m. the next morning.

There will be fun, food and games all night long! Included in the $4 cost are a pizza feast and movies. Donuts and juice will be served at breakfast.

Pre-registration is required and the deadline is March 19, so give Jim Mee or Ron Newman a call at 862-0090. Have Fun!

Casselberry's Parks and Recreation Department will present their Spring Craft Fair on March 22 at the City Hall on Triplet Drive.

All sorts of handmade items, baked goods and plants will be on sale. The event will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday.

Chiropractor Charges Gott Got Defamatory

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm a chiropractor, and I think your statements in a recent column about my profession were ill-informed, defamatory, intemperate, debasing, irresponsible and libelous. I would be willing to give you any and all information concerning chiropractic health care in the hope it would change your attitude toward chiropractic.

enhance the oil's effects. Mineral oil itself can cause nutritional disturbances by preventing absorption of certain vitamins.

People do not need to have daily bowel movements to remain in good health. For those individuals who are truly constipated, fresh fruit, prunes, apricots, fruit juice and vegetable roughage will usually serve to correct the problem.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, Ohio 44101.

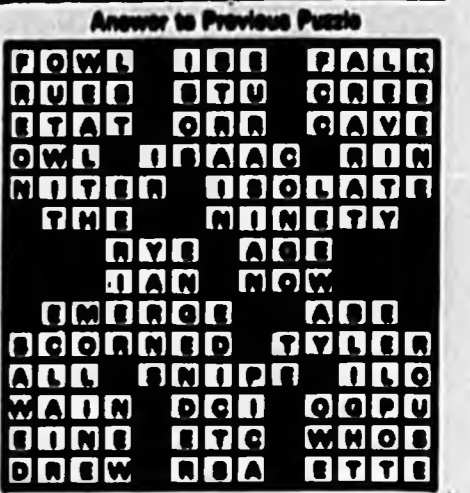

DEAR READER — Any information you give me about chiropractic is unlikely to alter my opinion. I have researched the topic and nothing I have read inclines me to change my stand. Actually, I thought I took a fairly measured view of chiropractic. However, in light of the letters, I received from chiropractors, nothing — short of a complete endorsement — seems to satisfy you guys. One fact did surprise me, though: There seems to be wide divergence of opinion among chiropractors as to how chiropractic works and the limitations of treatment. If you guys can get your act together and agree on a unified chiropractic theory, we might have some basis for discussion.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Judging from laxative advertising, we are all prone to constipation. Are laxatives harmful?

DEAR READER — Nonprescription medications for bowel dysfunction are a lucrative $300-million-a-year business in the United States. No wonder Americans have been dubbed "bowel-conscious" by Europeans and by a panel of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

Bowel stimulants should not be used on a daily basis, certainly no more often than once a week, because the intestine can become dependent on them. The magnesium and phosphate contained in many laxatives can result in mineral imbalance within the body. Stool softeners, although safe, must not be taken with mineral oil, because they

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
Declarer's obvious advantage is that he should be able to see what he needs to do to make his contract. By looking at two hands, he has a good chance of determining his problem. The defenders are not so blessed. They see the dummy, but more often than not they must proceed with educated guesswork as to the right defense. A shrewd declarer will look for ways to persuade the opponents to solve problems for him.

the ace of hearts and immediately returned a heart. Rightly or wrongly, when East won that trick, he assumed that declarer wished to trump a heart loser in dummy. So East played ace and a spade. That took care of any possibility declarer might have had of losing two trump tricks, and declarer made his four-spade contract.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY MARCH 18, 1968
Your abilities to meet and overcome challenges will be greatly enhanced in the year ahead. Objectives will be achieved that others will be unable to reach.

to speak out about what is bothering you.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Frivolous activities that do not contribute to your material well-being shouldn't be allocated too much time today. Play could cost you income.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your dignity and reputation will suffer today if you lose your cool around people you like and respect. Control your temper at all costs.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Strive to be a positive thinker today. If you dwell on the negative, it will cause you to act in a self-defeating manner.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's best not to pry today if a friend has a secret he is reluctant to tell you. Don't let your curiosity jeopardize the relationship.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Behaving stubbornly won't enhance your dignity today. Failing to appreciate the other guy's point of view could make you look bad.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Spreading yourself too thin today at work will result in a lot of frustration and aggravation, but precious little accomplishment.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It will prove to be a mistake if you attempt to remake co-workers over into your own image today. Try to accept them as they are.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Family members or in-laws could be extra sensitive today. Weigh your words carefully and don't say things that might provoke a row.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Unless your mind is on your work at all times today, you may make mistakes that will have to be corrected later.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Just because an activity costs a lot of money is no assurance that you'll have a good time. Don't be dazzled by dollar signs today.
