

Lilienthal Says Progress Of Next Decade Can Equal That Of Century

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5. — (AP) — David E. Lilienthal says that atomic developments of the next ten years can mean as much as a century in the past in improving health, long life and food production.

Lilienthal, who is retiring as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, gave his views in an interview copyrighted by U. S. News & World Report, weekly news magazine.

"I would say within a decade we have made headway on our problems, the problems of the world — we can look back on this decade as having profound effects on health and the lengthening of life."

"I should think that such a decade could mean at least as much as a century of some earlier period in the development of longevity and health, and in improvement of food production."

"These atomic materials, these radioactive tracers or isotopes — are so cheap and so inexpensive and so easy to have and can now be made in such quantities that it is not unreasonable to expect in a short time they will even be part of the training of high school students."

Lilienthal also estimated that practical power plants operating on atomic energy can be operating in 10 years, but at high cost. He said "in 25 years we will have some very respectable plants, in a few years."

The government has a monopoly on atomic matters by law, but Lilienthal said the monopoly shouldn't continue and longer than is required to find some workable alternatives.

"I think the government ought to get out of it as far as it can and as fast as it can," he said. "That will not be easy, but we ought to start working on it now."

In discussing the A-bomb, Lilienthal said "I think it must be presumed that the Russians have accomplished a bomb. This language went further than President Truman's when the President announced in September that there was reason to believe the Russians have achieved an atomic explosion."

At another point, Lilienthal referred to "the fact that the atomic weapon to a considerable degree makes it more likely that we shall be free to pursue our peacetime ways."

Committee. John McDowell, Pennsylvania Republican, told the House and reporters about it last year.

Committee Chairman Frank Taylor said to Russell:

"I would like to ask you whether in the course of your investigation any information came to your attention as to whether the Hertz Corp. was involved in any way."

"To the best of my knowledge," Russell said, "his name was never brought up, but another name was brought up and I would rather bring his name up in executive session."

Investigator wanted to know what Russell had found out about the reasons the Russians were interested in getting uranium and information on supply sources.

Russell said these were advanced:

1. The Russians were working on their own.
2. The Russians had received information in 1943 that the United States was working on the development of the atomic bomb, and through the placement of orders for uranium compounds and uranium itself, they could ascertain whether uranium was considered a strategic element by the United States government, thereby securing in effect some verification of the report that the United States was working on the development of the atomic bomb.
3. The Russians hoped to learn whether this country was using its uranium output and if it was, whether some was available for export, they would some indication of the size of the American atomic program.
4. The Russians wanted to find out whether this country's uranium supply sources.

In connection with the first two shipments of uranium compounds, Russell read what he described as testimony given the committee on June 28, 1948, by a German U. S. member of New York. He said Rosenberg was connected with the uranium transactions.

Rosenberg said the company had had the Russians four to six tons of uranium chemical, 250 pounds of uranium nitrate and 25 pounds of uranium metal.

Rosenberg said this was the record for uranium products received from any customer and

Former Convicts Confess Robberies In Sanford Area

Arrest of Ben Clyde Smith, Negro, in Bartow last night and Negro, in Orlando resulted in a confession that revealed that Smith and another Negro, Willie Glover, had robbed the home of Edward Caselberry at Casselberry, Thursday night and James River on East Twentieth Street the following night, Police Chief Roy G. Williams announced this afternoon.

The two former convicts then attempted to rob a liquor store on the outskirts of Orlando, but after a burglar alarm went off, Glover was arrested by Orlando police. Thursday night, Smith was arrested in Bartow where he was arrested in his hiding place and returned to Orlando.

A $200 ruby bracelet, an automatic pistol and clothing stolen from the store were recovered. Also recovered was cash and a watch stolen from the River home. A woman neighbor saw one of the negroes leave the River home, where Mr. River lives, with the watch and a drawn pistol and reported it to police. The robbers attempted to enter the home of M. W. Castle, who heard the noise get his rifle. At the sight of the thieves fled in their car. Mr. Castle reported the incident to local police.

Deland Vet Suicides After Shooting Three

DELAND, Dec. 5. — (AP) — A veteran identified as Sam Christy, about 34, today shot and critically wounded his wife, both her parents and himself, the sheriff's office reported.

All four were admitted to Deland Memorial Hospital and attendants said Christy lay in bed, unable of mental institution, is not expected to live.

Going back at his home on the outskirts of town, Christy suddenly began firing wildly, officers said. His wife, Mrs. Judy Christy, 28, was shot in the head and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Theodore, were wounded in the back. Christy shot himself in the head.

The veteran at one time operated a candy shop here but had not been working lately, he was released from a Florida mental hospital about a year ago, officers said.

Court Upholds Law Against Force In Work Disputes

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5. — (AP) — The Supreme Court today upheld an Arkansas "right to work" law which makes it a crime to use force or threats to keep a worker from any lawful job.

In another decision, the tribunal ruled 6-2 that the old Wagner Act permitted the firing of workers who tried to organize a closed shop contract — to have their union replaced by a rival labor organization.

The Taft-Hartley Act flatly bans such discharges.

Justice Jackson delivered the 6-2 decision in the Arkansas case, with Justice Douglas taking no part.

The validity of the law was attacked by attorneys for the Southern Cotton Oil Company, sentenced to a year's imprisonment each because of their activities in a 1945 strike at the North Little Rock plant on the Arkansas River.

The day after Christmas, federal strikers met five non-strikers near the plant. One striker was killed.

The two negroes, Roy Cole and Louis Jones, later were indicted and convicted on a charge of using force and violence to prevent a non-striker from working.

The appeal was based largely on technicality of which section of the law was involved in the conviction.

But Jackson in the court's decision today took a broader view. He said the Arkansas act does not "infringe the right of expression of views in any labor dispute."

Rather, Jackson added, it "fairly applies men of ordinary intelligence that for two or more to prevail or attempt to prevent another from engaging in any lawful vocation x x x is unlawful."

Senator Holland

Holland said a large number of Florida city and county officials have told him they plan to apply.

In the event an applicant files more than one application, he should indicate in his transmittal the order of preference. Holland said. He warned applicants not to combine unrelated public works projects. As a general rule, he said, each application should include only such portion of a project as is intended to be constructed at one time.

However, he added, if the public works require separation into sections or units for economy or convenience of construction, a single application may be filed if each section is segregated and described in the application and its construction priority is listed.

Public works eligible for advance under the act include highways, bridges, grade separations, airports, sewers, water and sanitation facilities, schools and other educational facilities, hospitals, city halls, court houses, community buildings, power plants and docks.

Not eligible, Holland said, are public housing projects, federal projects or federal departments and federal aid highways, airports and hospitals.

Holland said when an application is approved and the applicant offered, an initial payment of 25 cent cents will be made when a copy of the contract for architectural or engineering services has been received by the division office.

Tampa Strike

TAMPA, Dec. 5. — (AP) — J. Tom Watson who has had many a rough and tumble battle with organized labor is in the thick of another labor fight — this time on the side of a union.

The fiery former state attorney general is going to bat for members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. Most of the BRT members want to return to work as drivers for the strike-bound Tampa transit lines.

The BRT recently was voted out as bargaining representative for the Tampa transit drivers. The Transport Workers Union (CIO) took over. Shortly after that, TWU called a sudden strike against the bus company.

Bus service was partially resumed Saturday after 20 bus days for Tampa's 80,000 bus riders.

The TWU and the Central Trades and Labor Assembly (AFL) lambasted the drivers who returned to work, most of whom are BRT members.

The joint labor statement from the TWU and the Central Trades group took some hot verbal whacks at Mayor Curtis Hixon for ordering the company and union to get buses rolling again or else.

Watson stepped into the picture during the weekend when he said the whole strike was illegal, that the TWU used unlawful procedures in calling it.

Today he said the BRT men in returning to work "were simply asserting their right to bargain collectively x x x in a case where a competitive union had illegally taken over."

He said the BRT wanted increased wages and shorter working hours. He explained the BRT men were "attempting to settle these two grievances through the process of legal arbitration."

As a Hiss' first trial, which ended in a jury disagreement, Mrs. Chambers testified that she and her husband were close friends over a long period with Hiss and his wife, Phyllis, when Hiss was a high State Department official.

Rex Beach, Noted Author, Takes His Life

72-Year Old Rollins Grad And Sebring Celery Grower Suffered From Cancer

SEBRING, Dec. 7 (AP)—Rex Beach, 72, nationally known novelist, was found dead of a pistol wound in the head at his home near here this morning.

The death was pronounced suicide by county judge J. Howard Livingston and Sheriff Howard Coker.

Beach had been suffering from a throat ailment for three years. His body was found by a nurse who brought him breakfast, the sheriff said.

His wife, Mrs. Tania Simonson, found the water in his pajamas on the floor of his second story bedroom. The body lay by the bed in which he had slept through the night.

Robert Fox, his secretary for 13 years, said funeral arrangements would be made later.

Beach was in the midst of a psychological novel, "Woman in Amber," in which he had completed 27 chapters. He had not worked on it for several months.

This summer, Beach's life was desolated for a while at Miami where he had gone for treatment for his throat.

Medical authorities in Miami said the noted novelist suffered from cancer of the throat. No operation was performed because Beach wanted it that way.

The writer arrived in Miami in an ambulance but returned to his treatment and walked out to return to his ranch.

Beach's Miami doctor, who asked that his name not be mentioned, said the cancer which afflicted him for two years.

He is survived by a brother, Edward Beach of this city, a son and a daughter, and a son-in-law. Beach spent last winter with his wife in Sebring.

The author came to Sebring in 1917 and started development of citrus groves on page 31.

Herlong Scores U. S. Spending In Speech To Lions

Congressman Sid Herlong, in an address to members of the Lions Club yesterday at the Yacht Club, expressed opposition to the "government's continued spending program."

Congressman Herlong stood at the exact spot where Senator Claude Pepper defended the government's spending policies in a past meeting talk to Kewananas last Wednesday. Rep. Herlong was introduced by John Levy as "a man loved and admired by everyone in Central Florida."

"Before asking Congress to give anything for your district, multiply the amount asked by 435, representing requests made of all the congressmen, and then determine if the country can afford it," he advised.

Getting back to the government's spending policy he said, "Pump priming may have helped in 1933 when we owed only 12 billion dollars, but as our national debt increases, the national debt becomes a heavy burden on the people."
