Disc Jockeys Vs. Bosses: It Fizzles

New Releases

FM (PG) Michael Brandon, Martin Mull, Eileen Brennan, Cassie Yates. Drama with music. Most of this is set in a radio station, where the disc jockeys are in a confrontation with management. There are some good performances, some good music, some interesting backgrounds. But the story fizzles where it should sizzle. GRADE: C.

I WANNA HOLD YOUR HAND (PG) Nancy Allen, Bobby DiGregorio, Mike Tuma, Susan Kendall Newman, Teresa Ballanda, Wendie Jo Sperber. Comedy. Frumpy escapades of six New Jersey teenagers who flock to New York City to crash the Beatles' first appearance on the Ed Sullivan Show. Like a Disney film, but amateurish and silly. Not recommended for anyone over 15. GRADE: C-minus. (Handler).

General Release

A HERO AIN'T NOTHIN' BUT A SANDWICH (PG) — Cleve Tyson, Paul Winfield, Larry B. Scott. Drama. The seamy story of a city kid and his introduction to, and battle with, drugs. A fine look at ghetto life, with some excellent characterizations, but it's all pretty heavy. GRADE: B-minus.

AMERICAN HOT WAX (PG) — Tim McIntire. Musical. The '50s, and the beginnings of rock 'n' roll are the setting for this small-scale offering. It is supposed to be the story of disc jockey Alan Freed, who first made rock 'n' roll big. If you like the music, you'll like this, because there are many musical numbers that really jump. GRADE: B.

AN UNMARRIED WOMAN (R) — Jill Clayburgh, Alva Bates, Michael Murphy. Drama. The title is a misnomer, because the film is about a very-married woman and the trauma she goes through when her husband divorces her. A brilliant performance by Ms. Clayburgh in a film that would have been better had it been cut a little tighter. Caution: nudity reigns supreme. GRADE: A-minus.

CLASH: ENCOUNTERS OF THE THIRD KIND (PG) — Richard Dreyfuss, Teri Garr. Science-fiction. The celebrated Steven Spielberg look at U.F.O.s. This has some dumb touches and the actual story is primitive, but the special effects are so extraordinary that the rest is overlookable. A masterpiece of special effects wizardry. GRADE: A.

COMA (PG) — Michael Douglas, Genevieve Bjeld. Thriller. Somebody is killing patients in the hospital, and doing a thriving business in vital organs. It's all pretty ghoulish and will make you distrust hospitals even more, but this is one of those edge-of-the-seaters. Drags some, but still a good thriller. GRADE: B.

COMING HOME (R) — Jane Fonda, Jon Voight, Bruce Dern. Drama. One of the new wave of Vietnam war pictures—this is a strong, emotional story about a shattered man, the woman who waited for him, and another man. It is very strong stuff, but will have you quivering. GRADE: A-minus.

CROSSED SWORDES (PG) — Oliver Reed, Raquel Welch, Mark Lester. Romantic adventure. This is pure escapism, another version of "The Prince and the Pauper," with a fine cast and roving action. Don't take it seriously, just relax and enjoy all the derring-do and derring-don't. GRADE: B.

F.I.S.T. (PG) — Sylvester Stallone, Rod Taylor. Drama. Basically, this is the story of the rise and fall of a Hoffa-like labor leader. The early part—dealing with his start and the problems in organizing the men—is more fascinating than the second half. It's far too long, but contains some very strong scenes. GRADE: A.

FILMETER

A capsule look at cinema

JOSEPH ANDREWS (PG) — Ann-Margret, Peter Firth. Romantic comedy. Tony Richardson's long-awaited successor to "Tom Jones." This is a lively, frantic, funny look at merrie olde England. Excellent vignettes by some of England's great actors enliven this, and the evocation of a long-gone period is fascinating. GRADE: B.

PRETTY BABY (R) Keith Carradine, Susan Sarandon, Brooke Shields. Drama. Set in New Orleans' famous Storyville lured area, this is a beautifully photographed look at a family of prostitutes. The subject matter may be objectionable but director Louis Malle has handled it tastefully, or as tastefully as possible. Good performances all around. GRADE: B-plus.

RABBIT TEST (PG) — Billy Crystal. Comedy. This is Joan River's first shot at directing a movie, and there are many funny moments, as you would expect. It's about the world's first pregnant man, or something like that. Parts are wildy funny, but it is also undisciplined and some of it goes overboard. Caution: very suggestive. GRADE: B.

STARWARS (PG) — Mark Hamill, Alec Guinness. Science-fiction. Already a classic, this is a story of the space war and the heroics of a few to root the bad guys. It's full of wonderful touches and everybody loves it, from kids to grandparents. GRADE: A.

STRAIGHT TIME (R) — Lawrence Olivier, Robert Duvall, Katherine Ross. Romance. This is taken from the Harold Robbins novel about love and intrigue among Detroit automobile manufacturers. It's all pretty shoddy and not really very interesting. Olivier is wasted, but does his best. GRADE: C.

THE BIG SLEEP (R) Robert Mitchum, Sarah Miles. Mystery. Another try at Philip Marlow, the prototype private eye, but this one misses. The direction is heavy, the acting over-emotional and the plot so convoluted you'll need a road map to stay even. Still, Mitchum makes a fine Marlowe. GRADE: B.

THE FURY (R) Kirk Douglas, John Cassavetes, Carrie Snodgrass, Charles Durning. Horror. This is an attempt to bring you another "Exorcist"-type film, but it just doesn't have the staff. It's about two young people who have supernatural power, and what they do to others, and what others do to them. Some pretty good scenes, so be warned. GRADE: C.

THE MEDUSA TOUCH (PG) Richard Burton, Lino Ventura, Lee Remick. Thriller. Detective investigates assault on a man who believes he has the power to trigger disaster. Story is repetitious and neither it nor the characters stand up to scrutiny, but it's a fairly effective scary evening. GRADE: B-minus. (handler)

'Meals' Cutoff: HRS Presses SCA Answers

The state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS) is seeking immediate answers from Seminole Community Action Inc. (SCA) on how it plans to operate its "Meals on Wheels" program now that federal funding for the salaries of the three employees who manage the program will end May 23.

In addition to these funds, the program had been approved for funding under the federal Comprehensive Education Training Act (CETA), administered by the Seminole County Commission for one year for the salaries of Deborah Haynes, project director; Patricia Cowell, bookkeeper; and Fran Genovese, coordinator of volunteers. The three women manage the program.

However, the county commission, under the federal guidelines for one year CETA programs, turned down a request from SCA to re-fund the salaries, according to Robert Ellis, the county's director of administrative services.

Salaries for the three will stop May 23, said Ellis.

Miss Haynes, contacted by telephone, said officials of SCA are attempting to obtain additional federal money from the Community Services Administration to continue the salaries.

Freeze said under Title XX funding meals are provided for 29 others, at no cost to the recipients for the meals. The meals are cooked daily in the kitchens of SCAs Headstart program at 8th and Palmto Street, Sanford.

Referring to a lengthy list of criticisms of the administration by SCA of the Meals on Wheels program contained in a memorandum prepared by Dr. J.A. Mowbray of the Area Agency of Aging (AAA) to the HRS, Freeze said HRS realizes there are problems existing in the agency.

TACO AND DARLA PEREZ

In This Corner...

Taco Perez is back in the ring, boxing fans. But don't rush out to the Orlando Sports Stadium to buy tickets. This isn't the ring covered with covers. It's the hand of gold kind. As in matrimony.

Perez, one of Sanford's favorite sons who has retired from professional boxing, stepped into the "ring" recently and had to admit Darla in Rayman was certainly more beautiful than all those "Rocky's" he had been facing.

In one corner was Perez, whose real name is Victor. He was wearing the blue. In the other corner was Darla, wearing white. And judging from the look in the eyes of this pair, judges didn't have to be committed to come up with a decision.

"Darla is happy I'm not boxing anymore," Perez admitted after the wedding reception. "The only time I got in the ring is in retirement."

His new bride, who had returned was all right, "not long as he doesn't stop boxing. One of these punches comes out and I'm out."

Perez nodded that such a thing would not make him happy, either.

There is an engineer for Packaging Systems Company in Sanford and Darla works in the Orange County Health Department office in Apopka.

Insiders figure this one is going to go the distance.

Million $ Bond Issue Readied For New Housing In Sanford

By LEONARD KRANSDORF

which will be responsible for managing the new complex.

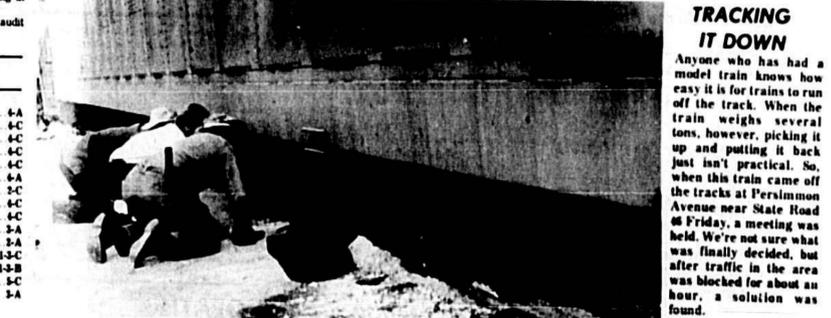

For Austin this is his first attempt at multi-family housing in Sanford. However, he is not new to the city, having already developed single family housing in Lincoln Heights and Sanlanta, he noted.

The bonds for the development will be issued through Sanford Housing Development Inc., a non-profit organization which was set up by the Sanford City Commission at its last meeting. At that meeting, Chapman stressed that although the city would be setting up the new corporation as required by the office of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) the city would have no liability for the bonds or responsibility in running the project.

The commission took the action after it had earlier been rejected by the Sanford Housing Authority (SHA).

The SHA rejected the housing project because the SHA would not be given the managerial authority according to SHA Director Tom Wilson. "It seemed to the board that if we were going to float the bonds, then we should have control over the building," said Wilson.

Additionally, Wilson noted there was some legal question as to whether the SHA had the authority under the law to set up the organization. At the commission meeting, it was confirmed that the SHA according to HUD regulations could not set up the housing bond.

TRACKING IT DOWN
 Anyone who has had a model train knows how easy it is for trains to run off the track. When the train wobbles, several tons, however, picking it up and putting it back just isn't practical. So, when this train came off the tracks at Persimmon Avenue near State Road 68 Friday, a meeting was held. We're not sure what was finally decided, but after traffic in the area was blocked for about an hour, a solution was found.

Most Of Eckers On Campaign Trail His, Hers And Theirs...

By DONNA ESTES
 Herald Staff Writer

It was 21 years ago. She, a native Floridian, was a widow with three children. He was from Wilmington, Del. — divorced, father of two and visiting the state when they met.

And now, on the eve of Mother's Day, Ruth Eckerd, in the midst of a political campaign, reflects.

"Jack and I met and were married six weeks later. I would have married him the next day, if people wouldn't have thought we were rushing things," she said.

They had a ready-made family of five to start their married life and soon added two more children to the clan. Thus, she was the mother of seven — six, hers and theirs.

Now, the children, Rosemary, 34; Kathy, 32; Billy, 31; Jan, 28; Terrell, 25; Nancy, 23; and Dick, 18, have all grown and left the family home in Clearwater. They and the eight grandchildren visit often "but we don't see nearly as much of them as we would like," she said.

Mrs. Eckerd, kept at home with her family during much of her husband's campaign for public office in the past, is operating an adjunct campaign and enjoying it.

During her campaign swing through Seminole County, she used the time allotted to her by the Suburban Republican Women's Club to show and narrate a slide presentation with assistance from daughter Nancy.

The presentation was professional and informative, said many of those who attended the meeting.

The Eckerd children are helping in the campaign as much as possible. Dick is expected to join his mother on the trail as a campaign aide.

Jim Swan is heading his father's campaign statewide. Nancy, a sophomore, majoring in government, has taken leave from Wheaton College in Boston for the duration.

A petite 106 pounds, when weighed before her usual breakfast of half a grapefruit and a bowl of bran, Mrs. Eckerd's trim figure and youthful appearance belie her 56 years.

"Actually I haven't had a square meal in 20 years. I really have to watch the greens and my weight all the time," said Mrs. Eckerd, adding that when the children were at home she made desserts. "I no longer have the excuse," she said.

"It's good living with Jack. He instinctively diets, eats no sweets or starches, and plays tennis," said Mrs. Eckerd.

Normally the main meal of the day at the Eckers features meat, vegetable and a salad. Fish and chicken are preferred over red meats, she said.

Continually surrounded by campaign aides, volunteer workers and reporters on the campaign trail, how do you see HRS, Page 2A

Expert On Casselberry Water: 'No Conclusions'

By JANE CASSELBERRY Herald Staff Writer

If Casselberry drinking water does contain a suspected cancer-causing agent in excess of new levels proposed by U.S. Environmental Protection Agency — as was reported Friday — the city will have at least two years to take corrective steps, according to an EPA official in Washington, D.C.

Ervin Bellack of the Office of Drinking Water, Criteria and Standards, said the deadline for submitting comments on proposed rules and regulation on controlling organic chemical contaminants has been extended from May 31 to July 31.

A public hearing on the proposed regulations has been set for July 11 and 12 in Washington, D.C., by EPA. Bellack said there has already been a large response from around the country commenting on the proposals and it will be the end of the year at the earliest before any final action can be taken.

After the regulations, with possible revisions, are adopted it will be another 18 months until they become effective and TIM. Instantaneous and aged six-day samples then were analyzed revealing 181 parts per billion of THM. "It is rather preliminary to jump to any conclusions," said Finney. "THM is only suspected especially at these levels as a cancer-causing agent. EPA hasn't proved it to everyone's satisfaction yet," he noted.

Finney said the increased amounts of chlorine water plants are required to use to destroy bacteria may relate to the level of Trihalomethane found in the water.

"It is fairly definite in some cases depending on the type of organic matter contained in the water, where surface water is used (Casselberry uses deep wells) the level of THM is fairly large comparatively speaking, although 100 parts per billion is still not much," Finney said.

As far as public health and welfare is concerned, said Finney, chlorine is an indispensable disinfectant. There is nothing that comes near it as a disinfectant. None of it reaches the blood stream; any chlorine that remains in the water is destroyed by the enzymes found in the mouth.

Some of the other disinfectants such as iodine and ozone do not have the qualities that chlorine does, he noted.

Bird-Watcher Bitten By Alligator In Seminole

Three men were bird-watching in a boat on Lake Jesup when they were attacked by a 12-foot long alligator, according to police. Roy Farie, 30, of Richardson, Texas, suffered four cuts above the right knee. He was treated at the emergency room of Winter Park Hospital and released.

According to sheriff's department records, the three were in a "Folboat" 50-feet from shore about 1/4-mile west of the Black Hammock Fish Camp when the attack occurred.

The men told deputies the alligator bit the side of the boat, causing it to collapse, and at the same time it caught Farie's leg with its teeth.

Robbed While Sleeping A Sanford man was robbed while he was sleeping, according to public records. Albert Spray Jr., 51, of 829 Rosalia Drive, told Sanford police he awoke at 3:30 this morning to discover $117 stolen from his bedroom dresser and wallet in his pants which was also in the bedroom.

The burglar gained entrance by cutting a window screen, police said.

Fishing Gear Stolen Forest City home was burglarized of two outboard motors and fishing gear. The Robert Reynolds residence at 1211 Lynwood Ave., was the scene of the burglary. Deputies were told someone entered a utility room in the garage and stole 7 1/2 and 8 1/2 horsepower motors, two fishing rods, tackle box, lantern and 12-gallon hot gas tank. The stolen merchandise was valued at $322. — DENNIS FEOLA

'Terrorist' Query Bugs Dayan; He Exits Session

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, angered by a reporter's question comparing Dayan and Prime Minister Menachem Begin with "terrorists of the highest order," walked out of a news conference Friday.

The journalist had asked Dayan's comment on a statement by a spokesman for the Israeli Peace Now movement comparing him and Begin with "terrorists of the highest order."

"No one calls me a terrorist. I am not a terrorist!" Dayan said 15 minutes into the news conference after the Israeli ambassador, reluctantly interpreted the question into Hebrew.

"What do you want to ask me? Is there something about the things I have done you don't like?" Dayan said after refusing to comment on the Peace Now statement, which he said he was not aware of. "I don't like the occupation of the West Bank," the journalist said. "Okay," Dayan said, "I'll answer that one." He told the baffled news conference his government wrote Jordanian King Hussein after the 1967 six-day war.

"We sent a note to King Hussein, asking him to keep out of the war. He didn't. Jordanian war planes bombed Israel and we had no alternative," he said. Then Dayan stood up, said "Thank you ladies and gentlemen" and walked out.

The Senate And The F-15s

Monday will tell the story. That's the day the United States Senate votes on the controversial jet-plane sales deal with Israel, Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Thursday split 8-8 on a resolution to reject the deal. The panel then voted unanimously to send the issue to the full Senate without a committee recommendation.

This move, although not welcomed by the White House, is a reasonable step. It will give all the senators the opportunity to share their input on this package proposal that has caused so much controversy.

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd has predicted approval. And, if he's right, it will be the second foreign-policy-vote victory for President Carter in the Congress. (The first, of course, was ratification of the Panama Canal treaties.)

Surely, further assurances will be sought from Saudi Arabia that the F-15 jets in question will not be used against the Israelis in any future Arab-Israeli war. Such possible use has been the greatest argument stumbling block emphasized by opponents to the package deal — both on Capitol Hill and in Israel.

That's why further assurances must be obtained. Saudi Arabia has never been at war with Israel and it is not considered a confrontation Arab state. Indeed, Israeli and Saudi concerns for a peaceful and stable Middle East are parallel.

In view of this, the Saudis would do well to make some overt gesture of friendship to Israel that would defang opposition to this whole arms-sale business.

Saudi King Khalid, Crown Prince Fahd and other Saudi leaders have come to view the airplanes as a test of the Saudi-American relationship. And, forgetting the Israeli question and the Carter-congressional tug, that is precisely the issue.

Saudi friendship for the United States has manifested itself in numerous ways that have real significance for us in a friendless world: restraining other OPEC nations from increasing world oil prices; pumping 8.5 million barrels of oil per day when only four million would meet Saudi's modernization needs; purchasing U.S. Treasury notes to sustain the sagging dollar.

It is now too late to debate whether the president was wise to make his Saudi plane proposal in the midst of Mideast peace efforts; events have carried us far beyond that academic question.

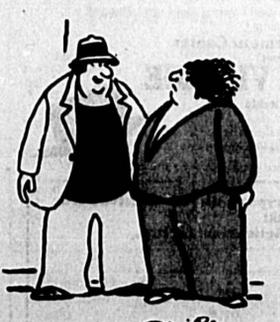

What Congress and the American people must realize at this time is that our refusal to sell planes to Saudi Arabia would be a rebuke by the United States before the world that could not go unanswerd.

Such a rebuke to such a friend would be not only unwarranted, but almost unforgivable. In the final analysis, it is the best interests of the United States that are at stake in the decision to sell or not sell planes to Saudi Arabia. That is the real issue.

Motherhood. For the female of the species, it's just doing what comes naturally. A Mother is a many-sided creature. She's smart. She's dumb (seemingly). She's strong. She's weak. She's sweet. She's nasty (seemingly). She's a friend. She's an enemy (seemingly). She's a super. A Mother has the strength of Gibraltar, the patience of Job and the tranquil faith of a monastic monk.

A Mother can spread her angel wings into a variety of directions simultaneously — and then — metamorphosis. At the incorrect flutter of an eyelash, demonic tramps of the devil can horn right in on you and over you.

A Mother can wallop the daylight out of a youngster, resulting in tears for both sometimes. And in just seconds she can soothe a sizzling sibling's wounded psyche.

A Mother laughs with you (and at you). She cries with you and over you. A Mother's heart can be pulverized to sawdust. But she forges — no matter what!

A Mother, if permitted, is the best lifelong friend a child will ever have. When hunger roars, she is an acceptable form of therapy for the emotionally ill, despite its legacy of some 50,000 Americans who remained in a vegetable-like state for life!

A Mother will protect, pamper, lie, cheat and steal for her children. A Mother will follow her child to Death Row, if necessary, and swear by all that's high and holy that he's innocent.

A Mother is an old sofie, but she can be as hard as blue steel. A Mother can balance a kid on one hip, slap the bacon into the frying pan, cradle a telephone on her shoulder, lick at a whining pet, snap the fridge door shut with the other hip and move pyro obstruction in her way with her backside — in about a minute flat.

A Mother, who is normally soft spoken, can sound out a thunderous "No!" as penetrating as a series of H-bombs right on target. A Mother may never raise her voice, but her glare can generate enough impact to halt a battalion of heavily armed soldiers.

A Mother may tear her hair out and wonder where she failed when the "teen and trouble" era begins. A Mother can squander a dollar until the eagle squawks, but she will give her offspring her last red cent for something he needs.

A Mother portrays many roles in her daily act — psychologist, playmate, cook, nurse, seamstress, chauffeur, teacher, laundress, seamstress, banker, caterer, writer, audience. . . .

A Mother's daughter grows up. She began mothering dolls before she could talk. She, too, will mother her husband, her children, and their children for as long as she lives.

A Mother's son grows up. And he may likely "want a girl just like the girl that married Dear Old Dad."

A Mother is security, faith, hope, love and charity — who needs to be needed, wanted and loved — that, and no more.

A Mother is unique and original. She doesn't happen to you — you are a lifetime. And she is yours — once and only Mother.

The Good Citizens Won't Suffer

WASHINGTON — A Carter administration effort to crack down on illegal gun traffic is in serious jeopardy as a result of a ferocious lobbying campaign by the National Rifle Association and other gun control foes.

The gun lobby, one of the most potent single-issue forces in politics today, has mounted a massive assault on proposed new Treasury Department regulations aimed at tightening enforcement of existing federal firearms laws.

In a propaganda blitz filled with distortions and outright falsehoods, the gun groups have accused the administration of seeking to impose by administrative action the sort of national gun registration which Congress has consistently declined to enact.

The proposed regulations do nothing of the sort, but the gun lobby has already succeeded in enlisting enough allies on Capitol Hill to put the squeeze on the Treasury Department by threatening deep cuts in the budget of the department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

ATF did not seek any funds in its fiscal 1979 budget to implement the proposed new gun control regulations, since they will not become effective for some months yet, but it did tell inquiring legislators the program would cost about $4.2 million.

Treasury Department officials therefore knew it was not mere coincidence when a House Appropriations subcommittee stalled with gun control opponents chipped $4.3 million from the pending ATF budget late last month.

Unless the funds are restored by the entire Appropriations Committee or by the House itself, ATF's on-going enforcement activities will be crippled, never mind any new regulations which may be established in the future.

House members unympathetic to the agency's work are now seeking to have the funds restored, but Treasury officials remain nervous and upset by the vehemence of the gun lobby opposition and its obvious clout on Capitol Hill.

The ATF regulations which stirred up such a fuss are actually long overdue, and have been warmly acclaimed by the International Association of Chiefs of Police and other law enforcement organizations.

If adopted by Treasury, they would permit ATF to develop a computerized record of all commercial firearms transactions between and among manufacturers, importers, wholesalers and licensed gun dealers.

The regulations, for the first time, require that every gun imported or manufactured in this country bear a unique serial number. Licensed manufacturers, importers, wholesalers and dealers would be required to file quarterly reports with ATF on the disposition of every gun they handle.

Secret Memo Indicates F-15s A Shoo-In

WASHINGTON — At last count by the Attorney General's office, there were 847 registered and active foreign agents in the United States. Registered foreign agents differ from unregistered foreign agents in two notable ways. First, they are not here ostensibly, anyway, to steal state secrets. Second, most of them are not foreign.

Instead, they are American citizens retained by foreign governments for the purpose of prevailing upon the U.S. government to act with charity toward their clients.

Saudi Arabia, for example right now is persuading Congress to approve the controversial package sale of F-15 fighter planes to both Israel and Saudi Arabia.

Secret instructions have been issued to their lobbyists on how to win friends and influence votes on Capitol Hill. We have obtained a copy of the bush-bush memo, which came out of the Saudi Arabian information office in Washington.

"The ball is in the Arab's court," declares the memo. It warns, however, that "congressional friends" of Israel will be used to oppose "pro-Israeli rhetoric" to try to stop such high-profile Arab victories as the F-15 to Saudi Arabia. This startling assertion suggests that the Arabs feel they have the F-15 in the bag.

Complacent, the memo advises, are now "most cautious about all forms of influence — the Koranage controversy did not lessen this attitude. . . . With the influence-buying Korean scandals flooding daily television, few congressmen are going to be interested in any contacts that have the slightest possibility of catching them in the waiting net of foreign intrigue."

Realities Of Asian Politics

TAIPEI — Many of Asia's impressions on the visitor are suitable. One that isn't is the contrast between the smiling and well-dressed people you see everywhere you look in this booming city and the grim sales clerks in their drab gray uniforms in the Communist Chinese stores in Hong Kong. I doubt you could count a smile from the latter if you stood on your head in the ivory and jade department.

Taiwan's economy, which is rapidly moving the Republic of China toward the status of an industrialized nation, is closely linked to investor confidence. And there are serious concerns here that the Carter administration is getting ready to "normalize" relations with Peking and, unwittingly, start a chain of events that could prove disastrous, not only for Taiwan, but also for the United States itself.

From my talks with business and government leaders here and in Japan and from talks that my associates have had elsewhere in Asia in the last two weeks, I have gained the strong impression that our friends throughout Asia believe the United States is reading the wrong signals on the China issue.

Some raise the point that "normalization" with Peking instead of providing a strong counterweight to Russian military growth, may give the Soviets a ready-made excuse to insist on additional concessions in arms limitation agreements with us on the grounds that the U.S. and China would be playing "two-against-one."

Others say that, once China gets what it wants from us, it will turn around and work out of its own volition with the Russians. The resource-rich but capital-poor countries of Southeast Asia are very anxious that the U.S. maintain its presence in the western Pacific. America is the dominant influence throughout the area in business and economic development decisions.

But, if the U.S. recognizes Peking and derecognizes Taipei, it will be taken as a signal that, despite protestations to the contrary, the U.S. will be withdrawing toward its own shores. At that point, China will be seen as the dominant political force in the region and the Southeast Asian nations will have to make the best deal with Peking they can get.

Asian leaders are puzzled that the White House does not seem to be able to grasp the realities of Asian politics and to construct a coherent policy toward the region. Vice President Mondale's trip to the region is seen as nothing more than a hand-holding gesture.

Zigismund Brzezinski's speech to the Japan Society, on the other hand, is seen as a signal that the U.S. may be moving much closer to "normalization" with Peking.

The danger here is that Brzezinski, despite his laudable intent to do the best way to deal with the Soviets on SALT, is to be a hard bargainer, is going about it in a dangerous way. By saying, as he did, that the U.S. views its friendship with Peking as a "central element" in its global strategy, Brzezinski is apparently trying to "play the China card" in order to worry the Russians into being more generous in the SALT negotiations.

The cost of remodeling offices to suit new tenants has gone up enormously and unless the landlord's "wobletier" defines his obligations in the matter in clear and definite, the tenant may find himself stuck for most of the bill.

—Failure to get the electrical rate. There are several formulas for office electrical charges in leases and not choosing the most economical for your business could be quite expensive. —Not understanding the difference between subleasing rights and lease assignment rights and failure to obtain both rights in order to protect the tenant company from being trapped in a long, costly lease if business conditions change.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Any firm renting large office space needs legal and architectural advice, but it needs more than that, says Kenneth D. Laub, real estate broker and consultant.

"It simply won't do to depend on lawyers or architects without special expertise in the complexity of modern leasing," said Laub, who has negotiated leases for his client in a number of cities for office space valued at several hundred million dollars in the nine years since he established his firm.

The 38-year-old Laub, who has offices in New York, Dallas and Beverly Hills, recently concluded a two-year, $200 million deal, one of the largest in New York City history, involving sale of Two New York Plaza and the leasing and financing of One New York Plaza.

Renting office space is a far cry from walking in and signing on the dotted line because the price and location seem right," he said. "New quarters — ideally located, economical and efficient — will not be found by chance. You will find yourself negotiating with landlords, and brokers who act as renting agents for landlords, who are skilled in the negotiation of a leasing transaction. They are experienced in representing their own interests when they negotiate."

In a booklet on the problems a corporation is likely to meet in the process of negotiating for space, Laub highlights the following pitfalls: —Failure to get the space area count right. When the landlord says the space contains so many square feet, that usually includes some space that is shared partly with other tenants and is not really usable.

—Failure to interpret the escalation clauses in the lease correctly. This can lead to costly surprises. —Not insisting on a clear formula for division of operating expenses. "Developments about this can make the total annual rent 75 cents to a $1 a square foot higher than the tenant expects."

—Failure to make a full study of the potential tax liability of the building and what effect that will have on the escalation clauses of the lease. The common failure is to overlook one of several taxes. Another is in not realizing that the age of a building has a great deal to do with how it is assessed for taxation.

Will Controversial Psychosurgery Be Accepted?

By SAMUEL CHAYKIN
Herald Services

Is lobotomy making a comeback? Is this brain operation once again to become an acceptable form of therapy for the emotionally ill, despite its legacy of some 50,000 Americans who remained in a vegetable-like state for life?

Not only is there a likelihood of its regaining medical respectability but further research as to its efficacy is expected to receive funding from the government. Joseph A. Califano, Jr., secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, is currently weighing a decision as to whether to accept or modify a series of proposals forwarded that end from a special congressional commission.

Lobotomy now has another name, psychosurgery. Doctors who perform this procedure claim that because of new insights regarding brain function and advances in electronic surgical instrumentation, the results are no longer, and the undesirable side effects are no longer, menacing.

Basically, however, both the objective and the medical rationale remain the same. Psychosurgery is designed to alter a person's behavior, his or her thoughts and emotions. Unlike conventional neurosurgery which deals with organic problems — brain tumors, blood clots, Parkinsonism and the like — psychosurgery is performed on the assumption that there are brain cells that have a direct relation to specific forms of behavior. Destroy or cut this type of tissue, the psychosurgeons maintain, and you will remove the causes of a variety of aberrant behaviors — impulsive aggressiveness to hyperactivity in children.

Critics reject this approach contending that there is no demonstrable pathology in the region where the brain cell destruction takes place. Indeed, the National Institute of Mental Health defines psychosurgery as a "surgical removal or destruction of brain tissue . . . with the intent of altering behavior, even though there may be no direct evidence of structural disease or damage in the brain."

Psychosurgery is a rather awesome ordeal. It is done by implanting electrodes (thin wires) into various regions of the brain and activating them with a mild electrical current. If these stimulations produce brain wave activity which in the opinion of the surgeon is indicative of abnormal patterns, he will shoot through a more powerful bolt of electricity, thus burning out brain sites which he considers

The elite of the local Republican party were present including: State Committeeman and Mrs. Fred Stromman, local party chairman and Mrs. Bill McCollum, president of the Sanford women and suburban women Dorothy Feddersen and Betty Hearn, respectively, County Commission Chairman and Mrs. Dick Williams, School Board member Robert G. Other guests included Altamonte Springs City Commissioner Sandra Glenn and Mayor Norman Floyd; Longwood City Attorney Ned Julian Jr., all of Seminole

Growing Older

Speak Up, Seniors...Even Uncle Sam Is An Ageist

We seniors can spot various modes of age discrimination. They may run from self-conscious concealment to intentional put-down. Most of us roll with the punches.

However, when age discrimination becomes part of public policy, we're in trouble. The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights says so.

A 110-page commission report delivered to Congress declares that "older persons are being denied access to federally supported services on the basis of age."

The key to this criticism is the phrase "federally supported services." We're not talking about age discrimination by ordinary citizens who dislike the aged for various reasons. The Civil Rights Commission study was the result of a 18-month analysis of 18 federally assisted programs.

Widespread discrimination against us seniors was uncovered. Those acts, said the commission, arose from "policies and procedures" of federal, state and local agencies.

"We are shocked," said the Civil Rights Commission, "at the cavalier manner in which our society rejects older persons who often need federally supported benefits and services."

Among other recommendations, the commission proposed that "any person aggrieved by violations of the Age Discrimination Act should have the right to institute a civil suit in a court of competent jurisdiction." (The Age Discrimination Act of 1975 prohibits "unreasonable" discrimination because of age.)

All this means that the people hired — at our expense — to take care of our many needs are letting us down. Consider three examples.

The National Institute of Mental Health surveyed 69 community health centers. Older persons accounted for 18 percent of the population in areas served by the centers. Yet, over a four-year period, older persons represented only 1 percent of the centers' clients.

Those statistics are particularly tragic considering another Mental Health Institute finding that 20-40 percent of people labeled "senile" have conditions that could be prevented or reversed.

The government's unemployment problems are tackled by Titles I, II and VI of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA). According to Labor Department calculations, older persons should make up 2.1 percent of the population served by these programs.

In fact, only 0.8 percent of those reached by the three titles, CETA programs are elderly.

Why? CETA administrators say older people are already being served by other federal effort, the Title IX Employment Program.

Hawks Grounded By Lake Worth

Lake Howell Nine Eliminated, 10-0

LAKE HOWELL HUDDLES FOR FINAL TIME

LAKE WORTH — That wasn't a glass slipper Lake Howell High School's Cinderella baseball team left in Lake Worth Friday night. It was a chance to play for the state championship as the clock struck midnight, ending a dramatic climb from the doldrums of mediocrity to a level of excellence for coach Butto Benjamin's Hawks. Lake Howell was eliminated by Lake Worth, 10-0, in the Class AAAA Section 3 baseball tournament on the strength of a one-hitter by Rich Rice. Ironically, it was a case of living by the sword and dying by the sword for Howell. The Hawks advanced through district and regional tournaments on the strength of a pair of one-hitters from the pitching staff which consisted of Brian Murray and Tom Theibaugh. Lake Howell started well enough. Bob Parker singled with one out in the first inning. But he was cut down at second trying to steal, and as Rice

Trinity Prep Loses Bid For State, 3-1

Trinity threatened in the first inning, but Davis settled down and moved the Saints down until the sixth inning when they rallied on a walk to Mark Todd and back-to-back singles by Brett Abner, Tom Lorenzen and Mike Butcher. Bedsole finished with a 7-3 record on the year, the Saints 16-7 overall. Last year's team was 18-1. Catcher Jay Johnson, all-Sanford, finished with a .476 batting average with six home runs and 31 RBIs. Johnson is hoping to play baseball at Florida State next season.

A Million Dollar Giveaway

NEW YORK (UPI) — You wouldn't believe how tough it is to give $1 million away, says a man who has done it. Bert Stewart, a former F-4 fighter pilot, found it out by trying to give away all that money for what he calls "the most incredible tournament ever held for non-professional golfers."

66 Eases Heard's Pain

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) — It was just about this time a year ago that Jerry Heard was able to get out of bed for the first time in two months. "I was still in a lot of pain," Heard recalls. "I remember watching golf on television and I'd see the guys hit those shots and there I was, barely able to even lift a leg."

Slew In Aqueduct Comeback

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mickey Taylor admits there were discouraging moments in the past 18 months when he seemed his Triple Crown-winning colt, Seattle Slew, might never race again.

Now, however, things are looking better for the "Slew Crew," which includes Taylor's wife Karen and Dr. Jim and Sally Hill. Their next-berne colt is scheduled to take the first step toward his comeback Sunday, when he faces six other allowance horses in a $25,000 seven-furlong race at Aqueduct.

Only now can the owners afford to laugh.

Missing: Graduates Of SHS 1928 Class

Henry A. and Eleanor Russell are holding a special reunion at their Ocean Ranch on June 3. The occasion is a barbecue steak treat, at noon, for members of the 1928 graduation class of Seminole High School.

DORIS DIETRICH

According to Margaret Yates, many class members and invited guests have been contacted. Classmates who have not been reached and plan to attend the gathering are asked to reply to P.O. Box 244, Sanford, 32771.

The committee has compiled a list of persons they have been unable to locate. The missing names are Helen Watanen, Fred W. Stanley, Thomas Stamp, Linus Siewering, Juanita Siewering, Clifford Russell and Louise Russell.

Beverly W. Adams of 2638 Laurel Ave., is spending Mother's Day weekend in the Los Angeles area to attend the wedding of her daughter Susan Lori (Storm) Cowart and Jon Eric Sless.

Congratulations to Dr. and Mrs. Norman A. (Liz and Norm) Helfrich on their fifth wedding anniversary, May 12. This one is not to be overlooked. It attended the wedding and reception five years ago on my birthday at the Forest. Liz did not lose her bridal bouquet, but personally presented it to me as a "now, it's your turn next!" gesture.

And although Liz is Italian, she's sending beautiful messages in fluent French these days.

"It was beautiful — the best yet — just wonderful," said Jerri Kirk, chairman of the Woman's Club of Sanford annual dinner party at Mr. P's Thursday night.

Jerry said the 80 persons attending seemed to be having "such a good time." The evening commanded good food, warm hospitality, delightful music for dancing and a round of cheer prizes.

Another honor at Emory University. She is one of nine students tapped into Alpha Psi Omega, honorary dramatic society, for maintaining high standards of the Emory University Theatre and contributing significantly to dramatic productions.

A bride and a canasta party followed the Annual Branch for members of the Woman's Club of Sanford. Hostesses were Mrs. Hood Coker, chairman, Mrs. R.D. Wesley, Mrs. Roy Willis and Mrs. George Johnson.

Winners were Mrs. Doris Dietrich, high bridge; Mrs. John E. Bolton, high canasta; and Mrs. T.R. Butts, screen.

Congratulations to Dr. and Mrs. Norman A. (Liz and Norm) Helfrich on their fifth wedding anniversary, May 12.

In addition to his keynote address, Dr. Stroebel conducted a full-day workshop on vaso-constrictive disorders.

All types of men's apparel are needed—shirts, suits, ties, shirts, belts, hats. A collection point has not been determined. Spring cleaners are urged to hold on to the discarded for a few weeks until a collection point is announced.

Many of the men at the Halfway House are struggling to raise themselves from the depths of despair, and the items of clothing will not only improve their appearance, but should boost their morale and improve self-confidence.

RINGS

DOONESBURY

by Garry Trudeau

Panel 1: RING, HAVE YOU MET MRS. WANDER? NO, I DON'T BELIEVE I HAVE.

Panel 2: MRS. WANDER IS THE ORGANIZER OF THE ANNUAL UNESCO BALL AT THE U.N. I BUXTRY ENDANGER, AVOID MY COMPLIMENTS!

Panel 3: THANK YOU, MR. AMBASSADOR! YOU MUST BE A CAREER DIPLOMAT! FOR THE SETTING!

Panel 4: NO!

Panel 5: FASCINATING... JUST FASCINATING! THANK YOU!

Panel 6: I UNDERSTAND YOU PEOPLE USED TO LIVE IN TANGLES. MUCH ELABORATED! MORE LIKE BACK-MENT ARRANGEMENTS.

Our Story: QUEEN ALETA AND HER TWO DAUGHTERS WATCH THE SOLDIER FROM THE SHELTER OF THE TREES ON THE HILLTOP.

YOUNG GALAN IS THE FIRST TO SEE ONE OF KING CLAUDUS' RIFLEMEN APPROACHING THE LADIES THROUGH THE WOODS. HE GALLOPS HIS PONY TO RESCUE THEM.

IT IS NOT UNTIL GALAN CRUISES UP WITH THE SOLDIER THAT HE REMEMBERS HE HAS WITHIN REACH FOR ARMOR... NOTHING BUT A SILVER SHOED. BUT HE MUST GAIN TIME FOR HIS FATHER TO ARRIVE... SO HE DELIBERATELY RUNS HIS MOUNT INTO THE FLANK OF HIS ENEMY'S HORSE! BOTH GO DOWN!

CARNIVAL

"WHAT DO YOU MEAN, I DON'T KNOW THE FUNDAMENTALS? I CAN DRIVE A CAR AND I CAN DANCE!"

"EQUAL RIGHTS, EQUAL RIGHTS! AREN'T YOU SATISFIED WITH YOUR HEIGHT AND WEIGHT ADVANTAGE?"

"I'M PLANNING TO VISIT ST. PAUL ...ER... THE CITY, THAT IS!"

they would really sell at hundreds, too!

MAKING PAPER

DEAR HELOISE:
We were given several lovely handmade baby quilts, quilts and receiving blankets when our first son was born three years ago, and when our new son was born a few months ago.

DEAR HELOISE:
I enjoy using the handmade blankets often, but some were put into drawers and out of sight.

DEAR HELOISE:
Often I see ads, coupons,
recipes, etc. in the newspaper that I want, but can't remove them until my husband reads the paper.

DEAR HELOISE:
Many times I'd forget about these items and miss good bargains.

DEAR HELOISE:
Now, what I do is, as I read the paper I use a red felt-tipped marker. When I spot something I want to keep, I color the outside corner of the paper for about an inch. The ink shows through on both sides automatically.

When I stack the papers after my husband has read them, if I got a red corner, I know there's something on that page that I wanted and can now clip and save.

Mr. Robert Thompson

WASHER WOOD

DEAR HELOISE:
I want to tell you about my "grandmother" purse my clever daughter made for me.
She took a basket-type wooden purse and glued a cutout form of an apple tree to the top. An apple, bearing the name of a grandchild as each arrived, was also glued to the top.

The sons and daughters (four) made an appointment to meet at a photographer's. A picture of all the living grandchildren was taken, and this picture is glued to the inside of the top of the purse.

Mrs. Ed Best

How clever daughters! What would we do without them?
