PTSA reschedules meeting

SANFORD — The Seminole High School PTSA has rescheduled its January meeting in order to host Supt. Paul Hagerty at a special meeting early in February.

This month's meeting, originally scheduled for Thursday, Jan. 14, has been cancelled. There will be no meeting in January.

Hagerty will be the special guest speaker on Thursday, Feb. 4 at 7:30 p.m. in the media center.

For more information about the meeting or about the PTSA, call the school at 322-4352.

Peddling progress

SANFORD — The Metropolitan Planning Organization is looking at bicycles as alternate transportation. Area cities have been asked to become involved.

MPO, which considers Sanford and all of Seminole County to be in the urban area of Orlando, is forming a committee to be called Bicycle/Pedestrian Advisory Committee (BPAC).

According to the by-laws, it is to, "study and develop a wide range of programs and issues concerning the development and implementation of a comprehensive bicycle and pedestrian plan."

The MPO suggested each city government appoint one representative from various departments such as engineering, planning, law enforcement, public works and others.

In addition, the MPO itself is to appoint seven committee members as representatives of local bicycling clubs, running and walking clubs, and interested citizens.

Last week, the Lake Mary City Commission appointed Parks and Recreation Director John Holland to serve on the committee.

During Monday night's Sanford City Commission meeting, Vic Gitzke, owner of Crank'n Bikes, 2927 N. Orlando Drive was suggested as the representative from Sanford. The matter was approved by a unanimous vote of the City Commission.

Gitzke's name had been submitted for recommendation by Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Dave Farr.

Balloon flight ends with crash

RENO, Nev. — Larry Newman knew his bid to make first nonstop flight around the world in a balloon was in trouble as soon as the hour-glass-shaped craft lumbered into the air.

Within 30 minutes Tuesday, it lay torn and crumpled in a snowy canyon 12 miles away after clipping a mountain. It was going the wrong way.

"Its performance was sluggish. I am baffled why the balloon didn't climb as I expected it to," Newman said after he and crewmates Don Moses and Russian cosmonaut Vladimir Dzhanibekov were picked up unharmed by helicopters.

Another attempt is planned here for next fall.

The double balloon, Earthwinds Hilton, was supposed to rise 6 1/2 miles in the air to hitch a 20,000-mile ride east on the jet stream and circle the globe in 1 1/2 to 3 weeks.

SANFORD — Although violence and conflict is facing the nation in foreign locations, Adolph Coors IV told a Seminole County audience what can happen when violence becomes very personal; his father was brutally killed as he stopped to help a stranded motorist.

Speaking at the Seminole County Annual Prayer Breakfast, the grandson of the founder of the Coors Breweries held the audience in rapt attention when he told how he walked into the Colorado State Prison, many years after the death of his father, to forgive the man who killed Adolph Coors III. Coors also, astonishingly, walked into prison to ask forgiveness from the inmate; forgiveness because of his former bitter hatred of the man who murdered his father.

"The beginning of forgiveness is giving your life to Jesus Christ," he told the audience. "We can't forgive in ourselves. We can only become a vessel See Breakfast, Page 5A

Shuttle blasts off

By MARCIA DUNN
Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL — Endeavour hurtled into space with five astronauts today on a mission that mixes serious shuttle business with a little patriotic bell-ringing and some child's play.

The spaceship rose from its seaside pad at 8:59 a.m. into a hazy sky. Launch was delayed seven minutes so NASA could update shuttle computers with the latest weather information.

"We're looking forward to a safe and successful flight of Endeavour to start off the new year," shuttle commander John Casper said moments before liftoff.

The flight by NASA's newest shuttle is the first of eight missions planned for 1993, the same number as last year, and the 53rd shuttle flight overall.

Two minutes after liftoff, Endeavour's twin solid rocket boosters peeled away and dropped into the Atlantic Ocean. The shuttle then reached a 184-mile-high orbit on the thrust of three liquid-fueled engines.

The main goal of the six-day mission was the release this afternoon of a $200 million, 2 1/2-ton satellite similar to four others in orbit. The satellites allow astronauts to communicate almost continuously with Mission Control. They also link scientific satellites, such as the Hubble Space Telescope, with the ground.

SANFORD — When the shuttle Endeavour was launched into space this morning, some of Sanford and Longwood went with it.

Blood, donated by six Central Florida residents at the Central Florida Blood Bank, was selected to be placed on the shuttle for a space experiment. The blood was chosen from donations made Monday.

Elaine Kostival was the donor from Sanford. "I drive a school bus in the Oviedo area," she said, "and I was driving when the shuttle went up, but I saw it, and it felt really good to know my blood was on board."

She said she had known of the possibility of her blood being selected for the mission but had never considered it would be chosen. "Certainly there were many donors on Monday," she said, "so my chances were slim."

Kostival gave her donation at the School Bus Transportation Compound, in Winter Springs.

Tag crackdown

Police check cars to boost vehicle tag compliance

By BILL DICKINSON
Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Inspectors will roam parking lots and troopers will check the cars they stop to catch people avoiding the $475 it can cost to register vehicles in Florida. State highway officials said Tuesday.

New residents must get a Florida tag and title within 10 days of going to work or putting children in school in the state, and police are trying to improve compliance, said Fred Dickinson III, executive director of the Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles.

"By announcing our plans to conduct the blitz next week, we hope to encourage those residents who have been putting off visiting their local tax collector's office to do so," Dickinson said.

The Division of Motor Vehicles' 58 compliance examiners normally spend about 15 percent of their time searching large employers' parking lots for out-of-state tags that could indicate a fee avoider.

They'll devote 100 percent of their time to such checks from Jan. 19-22, writing notices of violation for vehicles with out-of-state tags and expired Florida tags, Dickinson said.

The notices explain the 10-day requirement. People who ignore them can be issued a citation for failure to register their vehicles, a misdemeanor, requiring a court appearance.

Highway Patrol troopers will check vehicles they stop during the period for out-of-state or expired tags, and may write notices of violation or traffic citations, Dickinson said.

More people avoid registering their vehicles when they move to the state since a $295 impact fee was added in 1989, Dickinson said. "When it was lower, there did not seem to be this problem."

Lyricist dead of cancer at 61

MAITLAND — Guy Bonson Hemric, who wrote lyrics for "Beach Blanket Bingo" and other "beach movies" starring Annette Funicello and Frankie Avalon, is dead at the age of 61. Hemric, a resident of Maitland, died Sunday of cancer.

The native of State Road, N.C., broke into songwriting in Hollywood in the 1950s. His first success was "What Good Does It Do Me?" which became a top single in Europe as recorded by vocalist Petula Clark.

He worked in Hollywood through the 1970s but left after a 1961 bout with cancer. In Central Florida, he worked as an administrative assistant at Orlando Regional Medical Center and later as administrative assistant for the Florida Symphony Orchestra.

After leaving the orchestra, he continued writing songs and working on film projects with composer Richard Loring and screenwriter Louis Garfinkle.

Police pay family after dog killed woman

WEST PALM BEACH — The Palm Beach County sheriff's office has agreed to pay $335,000 to relatives of a homeless woman who died to death after she was attacked by a police dog.

The award and an agreement to change department policy were reached Monday during jury selection in the death of Laurene MacLeod, who was repeatedly bitten on her abdomen and left thigh March 26, 1990.

Her 16-year-old daughter Christina will receive $105,000, her mother will receive $30,000, and the rest will cover legal expenses and court costs in the suit brought by the American Civil Liberties Union.

MacLeod, 35, had been staying at an abandoned house when neighbors called in a burglary report. Two deputies shouted twice for anyone inside to come out and then let the dog loose.

An autopsy determined the woman died profusely in part because her liver was damaged from alcohol abuse.

Man pleads guilty for fake depository

JACKSONVILLE — A man who pleaded guilty to setting up a fake depository outside a Barnett Bank branch will spend five months in jail and pay $40,000 in restitution.

Michael Wayne Critzer, 37, pleaded guilty Monday to setting up the fake depository outside the Barnett Bank branch at Regency Square Mall in 1990. He agreed to a five-month sentence and to repay merchants who lost $40,000 from checks Critzer burned.

Circuit Judge Lawrence P. Haddock set sentencing for Jan. 20. Critzer will remain free on a $25,000 bond until his sentencing.

"I'm just glad this is over, and I'm sorry for any inconvenience I have caused to anyone," Critzer said as he left the courtroom.

He had been scheduled for trial next week on grand theft charges.

Man rescheduled to die in chair

MILTON — A Florida Panhandle man has been rescheduled to die in the electric chair for the 1988 slaying of a 6-year-old girl whose throat was slashed five times.

Circuit Judge Paul Rasmussen ordered the sentence Monday for Raymond Warfield Wiles, who abducted the girl and her sister, then 8, from the Pensacola home of their mother, his former girlfriend.

The Florida Supreme Court last year reversed the death sentence because Circuit Judge Ben Gordon had refused to delay the penalty phase of his trial. That kept jurors from hearing testimony from a cousin and his ex-wife about his family background, including alcohol and drug abuse, the justices found.

A new jury last month heard additional testimony and recommended that the 36-year-old Milton merchant be rescheduled to the electric chair.

Storm victims get money from state

MIAMI — The city of Homestead got a $12.8 million check from the state's special trust fund set up to funnel South Florida sales tax money back to areas hit hard by Hurricane Andrew.

Li Gov. Buddy Mackey handed out the first check Tuesday to be awarded since legislation passed in December that gave the state authority to return sales tax money back to the area to be used for hurricane recovery efforts.

Commissioners in South Florida will keep an estimated $600 million in sales taxes generated by the rebuilding boom.

"This is the first disbursement out of the hurricane emergency trust fund that was set up in December," said Mackey. "We expect a similar disbursement to Florida City."

He noted that these cities experienced a sharp increase in municipal expenses at the same time "the tax base was wiped away" in the Aug. 24 hurricane.

Magazine touts the good life in county

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A photograph of the city's historic Magnolia Mall clock is featured on the cover of a Florida traveler's publication distributed throughout the state.

Seminole County is featured in the December-January edition of About Florida - The Traveler's Magazine. The cover article, titled "Seminole County has an attraction for every taste," touts the county's 2,000 lakes, state and local parks and area attractions, including the Central Florida Zoo and Grand Romance cruises.

County tourism director Jack Wert said he is hopeful the article will attract motorists to Seminole County.

"We find editorial pieces are a pretty good bang for your buck," said Wert. "They really do get the 800 line ringing."

Wert said the article is the latest of several about the county developed through the efforts of the county's "media marketing" firm, Geiger and Associates of Tallahassee. One recent article was published in Southern Living, Geiger's magazine writer and editor featured in county features.

Wert said articles about the county have reached an estimated 12.8 million consumers at an equivalent advertising value of $885,000. The county has

Eaglet named

Orphaned bird is 'Seminole Wind'

By Associated Press

MAITLAND — Forget the cute names such as Eagle Knievel or Egg Flew Young. Eaglebert Humberdink or Elvis the Eagle wouldn't do either.

The eaglet that survived the destruction of its nest and separation from its natural parents has been named Seminole Wind.

After hours of consideration Tuesday, Florida Audubon Society members settled on a name for the tiny eaglet, which survived a plunge to the ground while still in its egg after vandals chopped down the tree where its nest was located.

"Some of the names were more humorous," said Resce Collins, curator of birds at Audubon's Birds of Prey Center in Maitland, "but we wanted something that captured the circumstances of this eaglet, its symbol and its story."

Curators say the eagle was named after the environmentally themed country song by Apopka native John Anderson. Also, Seminole is the name of the Pinellas County town where the eagle egg was found. And it is the name of a Florida Indian tribe.

Anderson, the writer and singer of "Seminole Wind," gave permission Tuesday for the tune's title to be bestowed on the eaglet. The song is about the destruction of the Everglades in South Florida.

"It's a great honor to have written a song that has an eagle named after it," Anderson said.

Chiles eyes clemency in reporter's source case

By Associated Press

MIAMI — Tim Roche's attorneys will go back to court in Martin County court in hopes of stopping his jail sentence, which the U.S. Supreme Court has let stand.

Roche was ordered to begin his 30-day jail sentence by Friday, in the aftermath of the U.S. Supreme Court's decision not to block the 1990 punishment for his refusal to name a confidential source.

A hearing was set Thursday in Stuart on motions seeking to have the sentence thrown out or the case reopened.

Mark Schickman, a counsel to Gov. Lawton Chiles, said if the motions are denied, a decision by the governor could come "conceivably, some short time thereafter."

Chiles could give Roche a reprieve of up to 60 days while the state's clemency board — the governor and Cabinet — considers his bid for a pardon. Waivers in clemency rules would be needed, Chiles aides said.

Attorney Anne Noble said she remained hopeful "that somebody will do the right thing" to keep the 24-year-old Roche out of jail.

Her motions include arguments that the case and sentence are moot because the state investigation was long ago closed and the statute of limitations has passed for prosecuting someone for leaking the court order.

Assistant State Attorney Rick Barlow said he knows of no issues "that haven't been thoroughly argued and debated."

Campus rape

University police chief's husband accused

By KELLY P. KISSSEL
Associated Press Writer

BLOOMSBURG, Pa. — The husband of Bloomsburg University's new police chief is accused of raping a co-worker and is under investigation in four more attacks — one that occurred when he and his wife were in town for her job interview.

Michael Reece Boykin blamed his arrest on racism, and a university trustee said resentment and suspicion have dogged the couple since the wife took over campus security.

"Bloomsburg University is famous for shafting men of color," Boykin, who like his wife is black, said in a letter to university officials. "I did not relocate to this unfriendly, forbidden town to have my good name sullied."

Boykin, 41, a university maintenance worker, is married to former Chicago police officer Margaret Boykin. They took their campus jobs Oct. 31.

That afternoon, a student was raped in a gymnasium. Rapes on or near the campus followed on Nov. 27 and Dec. 11. On Dec. 18, one of Boykin's co-workers was raped in a university pickup truck, and she named him as the attacker.

He pleaded innocent to rape charges Monday in that attack and was held on $75,000 bail.

District Attorney William S. Kreisher said state and Bloomsburg police were investigating the possibility that Boykin committed the other attacks.

He also said Boykin is a suspect in another campus-related rape on Dec. 15, 1991 — when the Boykins were in town for Mrs. Boykin's interview.

After the rapes started last semester, women walked in groups and those who lived off campus were offered dormitory rooms, though only a few took advantage of it. The university also set up an escort system.

Investigators took blood and semen from Boykin after his arrest for comparison to evidence taken in the previous cases. Genetic tests linked some of the earlier rapes to the same person, Kreisher said.

"But there was nobody to compare them to. We had no suspect until now," he said.

Bloomsburg, a town of 12,000 in north-central Pennsylvania, is mostly white. Only 206 of the university's 6,378 full-time students are black.

Retail theft charged

Melton Arthur Ward, 37, 1805 W. 25th St., Apt. 601, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police Monday on a shoplifting charge.

Police report Ward attempted to leave the Winn-Dixie grocery store on Airport Boulevard without paying for two packs of cigarettes.

False name given

Darryl Wayne Greaham, 31, 908 Old Mail Road, Sanford, was arrested on an obstruction by disguise charge by a Seminole County deputy Monday following a traffic stop on South Sanford Avenue near Myrtle Street.

The deputy reported Greaham gave him a false name, but then changed it to his correct name when confronted.

Woman turns self in

Jacqueline Panchetta Brown, 36, 907 Cypress Ave., Sanford, turned herself in to jailers at the Seminole County jail Monday.

Brown was wanted on a charge of probation violation for a public assistance fraud conviction.

Parole probation

Raymond Russell Ragadale, 34, 2616 El Portal, Sanford, turned himself in to Seminole County deputies at the state probation office Monday morning.

Ragadale was wanted on a parole probation charge for a burglary conviction.

• A burglary attempt was reported Sunday at Choo Choo Car Wash, 2416 S. French Avenue. Police said apparently an alarm, activated by a broken window, frightened the burglar before entry could be made.

• $97 in property was reportedly stolen Sunday from the home of Elvora Singletary, 1702 W. 15th Street.

Woody Allen's daughter says she saw him having sex

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Woody Allen's 7-year-old daughter told police she and her 8-year-old brother saw Allen having sex with their older sister, Soon-Yi Previn, Mia Farrow's lawyer says.

Allen has acknowledged he is romantically involved with Ms. Previn, Farrow's college-age adopted daughter. But he vehemently denied daughter Dylan or son Satchel ever saw the two having sex.

The latest round in the bitter custody dispute between the filmmaker and Farrow came Tuesday during a hearing on Allen's rights to visit with Dylan, Satchel and the couple's 14-year-old son Moses.

Farrow's lawyer, Eleanor Alter, also alleged that Allen pushed Satchel's face into a plate of hot spaghetti in anger. Alter alleged that later, when Allen would get angry with the boy, Allen would warn, "I'm going to make spaghetti."

The lawyer also alleged that

Allen had twisted the boy's legs and threatened to break them.

Dylan reported witnessing sex between Allen and Previn when Connecticut police asked her why she knew how to position anatomically correct dolls to depict sex. Alter said. Dylan made the allegation Dec. 30 and said she saw the lovemaking sometime last year at Allen's Manhattan apartment, the lawyer said.

Allen told reporters after the hearing that Farrow is "drumming lies" into Dylan.

"I think that when Mia needs something, she takes our daughter and makes her say it," Allen said.

No immediate rulings on Allen's visitation rights were made. Another hearing was set for Jan. 26.

Farrow was Allen's lover from 1960 until January 1992, when she learned of Allen's affair with Previn. Farrow, who has 11 children, adopted Previn while married to conductor Andre Previn.

On condoms in schools and sex education

Governor Lawton Chiles' Red Ribbon Panel on AIDS is suggesting high schools distribute free condoms and teach their use. The proposal is scheduled to come before the Florida Legislature when it convenes Feb. 2.

The panel determined that the move would help improve education and prevention programs dealing with AIDS related issues.

Florida already requires sex education classes in our public schools. Is the panel questioning what is being taught? Certainly information is available to give proper instruction regarding AIDS and other venereal diseases.

The focal point of this issue however, is giving away free condoms in our schools.

Many persons see this as an endorsement to use them.

Certainly, condoms are one of the best available measures in the prevention of a number of diseases, as well as in birth control. On this point, there is little question.

Parents interviewed by the Sanford Herald however, have agreed that this is a personal matter, one best left to at-home education.

There are many homes where the use of condoms might be too embarrassing for parents to handle. Other students may have parents who don't care enough to become involved in their child's safety and health.

The need for condom education is necessary in our public schools. It should be included in regular sex education classes.

The free gift of condoms however, should stop at the school doors.

We can understand the governor's concern over the problem of AIDS. We commend him for getting involved in trying to find ways to prevent this killing disease.

However, the governor and legislature should never consider giving free condoms to our students as part of this effort.

Editor's note: The Sanford Herald encourages readers to submit letters to the editor about condom distribution in schools.

Condoms in schools

I think it's about time educators and legislators are starting to take some of the responsibilities off of the insecure, unsure and uneducated parents about safe sex.

I will be the first one to stand up and say no sex is the best sex but that is not the issue. We can't ignore the fact that teens are starting to have sex at an early age and parents don't want to acknowledge that fact or as I said, "ignore" it.

AIDS is a very big issue today and one issue that can't be ignored. Most parents are very uncomfortable when it comes to talking to their child or teen about sex, much less talking to them about AIDS. The Legislature has taken some of that responsibility and pressure off the parents by adding sex education in the school, and safe sex is a "big" part of that class.

Parents, the Legislature and educators are not by any means giving your children permission to have sex by making condom information available to them. What they are doing is admitting that teens are having sex at an early age, and the prevention of AIDS or any other sexually transmitted disease is a great possibility when you are informed or educated. I think we should praise the governor and not keep saying he's only giving them permission by making them available. They're already available. Education goes along with this availability.

Personally, I think the governor should start a class that requires all parents to attend so that they can be informed on AIDS and other STDs. (Parents need to know) the statistics of teens having sex at an early age and how they can teach their children safe sex practices without being embarrassed to talk about sex.

Will Clinton's cookie crumble?

Will Bill Clinton govern as he said he would? Or will he run his administration in the "Chinese menu" style, just the kind that politically destroyed Jimmy Carter and George Bush? In this week before the inauguration, the definitive signals are still unmet. At issue, mostly, is the White House staff.

The federal government can perhaps best be seen as a huge, almost mindless, plodding animal. The president's job is to try to tame the beast, and make it jump through hoops of his own choosing.

Picking a Cabinet is important; the Cabinet secretaries might be seen as the arms and legs of the great beast. On the Cabinet level Clinton has appointed some very good people: some moderates and some liberals. That's necessary to achieve a "big tent" Democratic Party. But, alas, liberals and moderates have been fighting for a generation about what is called "the soul of the Democratic Party."

At the sub-Cabinet level — the fingers and toes — it seems now as if the focus is on finding "the best people" for given jobs. Again, some of the best are moderates and some are liberals. And so, if the best people stick to their prior convictions, some of them may not prove to be the best at advancing the president's agenda.

Will Clinton now appoint "a brain" to direct his new big brute of a government? Ideally, that cerebral function should come from a policy staff at the White House that has received the mandate of heaven from the president.

Such staffers are the only ones who can make sure that appointees in the agencies are pushing the president's views to the special interests, and not vice versa.

Clinton has an important case to make. He ran as "a different Democrat," that is, different from the liberal mindset of the party. He said that both parties were "brain dead" and that there was a "Third Way," a non-liberal way to "re-invent" government.

The federal government can perhaps best be seen as a huge, almost mindless, plodding animal.

Among Democrats, the moderate Third Way ideas were mostly generated and promoted by the Democratic Leadership Council, an activist group once chaired by Clinton.

The big question now is how will Clinton choose to staff the domestic policy realm in his White House. If Clinton wants a government that will reflect his own professed views, the key staff spots should go to DLCers. As this is written, 10 days before inauguration, there is much doubt. The fear is that DLCers will end up with a few cosmetic thank-you jobs in an administration at war with itself.

The ideal, high-stature choice for the top slot would be DLC President Al From, who now heads the Clinton domestic policy transition team. (He has said he wants to return to the DLC, but Clinton should twist his arm.) His deputy, DLCer Bruce Reid, also a good selection, is in the running. Other DLC activists and theorists who should get high policy jobs include Will Marshall, Elaine Kamarck, Bill Galston and Rob Shapiro.

There are others who carry the DLC message. But because their way of thinking is mostly new to Democrats, their numbers, while growing, are still few.

More at stake than symbolism

WASHINGTON — Until now there had been no designated Chelsea Clinton best. Just a smattering of occasional items on the life and times of the First Child-First.

This was due to an unusual conspiracy of decency on the part of the media, and some abstruse memories of what it was like to be 19 years-old. If there is anybody out there who looks back on his or her 9th-grade photo with fondness, please raise your hand. You may leave the room.

So last week, when Chelsea landed on page one of virtually every newspaper in the country, it was a warning shot across the bow of the president's child. Dear Chelsea: From now on, you aren't a kid, you are a symbol. Every move you make, every breath you take, we'll be watching you. Everything you do will reflect on your parents. Welcome to Washington and have a swell adolescence.

The issue was Chelsea's school, Sidwell Friends. The politician who presented himself as a strong supporter of public schools was a father sending his own daughter to private school. Hypocrisy alert? Warning alarm?

The Clinton's said simply, "As parents, we believe the decision is best for our daughter at this time in her life, based on our changing circumstances." The Washington Post was understanding. The New York Times was disapproving. And USA Today asked their readers to choose in by letter, toll-free telephone or Fax message.

The disenchantment of the public school parents, teachers and principals was palpable. In this city, the schools have been suffering from a sinking economy. They have been labeled unstable and mismanaged. The test scores are way below the national norm and the dropout rate way above.

There were many who wanted the Clinton's daughter enrolled as a vote of confidence, a pledge to the future, or a magnet to attract middle class parents in flight. In short a symbol. What we got instead was one of those uncomfortable ethics scenarios that rage among middle- and upper-middle-class parents, especially liberals. Do you put your kids where your mouth is?

I have been in the room any number of times when decisions were made between someone's political beliefs and their personal — what? — responsibilities, instincts, protectiveness?

I've been there when a colleague deeply committed to the inner city and also to his 10-year-old, decided that two messages were enough. He took the kid and ran to the suburbs.

I've been there when a strong advocate of child care centers finally, suddenly heard a nifty far for her own baby. The turnover was too great, the situation too restricted.

I have heard parents who are morally committed to a standard of fairness and equity about they bought their way out of community problems. A crying child came smack up against a principle.

At other times and in other homes, I have watched parents put their children on the line for what they believe in. But they weren't always sure that was right either.

Push comes to shove at school age. Presidents and other parents want to make the public schools in their city a place they want to send their kids. But how to balance what's best for the long run with one childhood's short run?

The guru of children's issues, Marian Wright Edelman, plucked private school for her kids. So did Jesse Jackson. Tens of thousands in the capital and other cities moved to suburbs "for the schools."

Others pay for parochial schools and not always for the prayers. NIMBY — Not in My Back Yard — becomes Not My Kids.

People may not talk publicly about their reasons for the same reason that Bill Clinton — who encompasses everything — didn't explain the reason for picking Sidwell Friends. The ethical quandary of people with options are a business luxury compared to the problems of people without the same options. This disparity is at the heart of the debate about school choice proposals.

I don't regard Chelsea Clinton's school as Bill Clinton's hypocrisy. She is not a publicity crowd child even if she lives in subsidized housing. Her job is not to set educational policy. It's to get educated.

But her father came up against the personal conflict that only happens in a country with a public school system torn by what Jonathan Kozol calls "severe inequalities." This is one parent who can't drop out of the public system when he opts out of the public school.

There's more at stake than symbolism.

The real George Bush may one day appear

HOUSTON — "Will the real George Bush please stand up?" screamed the full-page political advertisement in one of this city's prominent newspapers on Nov. 3.

Beneath the headline were five photos of a smiling Bush, waving at a crowd. "Liberal Moderate" was pasted on the first photo. The second photo was marked "Conservative Liberal"; the third one said "Moderate Conservative."

Another photo was stamped: "Conservative Moderate Liberal .... Liberal Liberal." A brilliant ad prepared by Bill Clinton or Ross Perot?

The advertisement appeared here on Nov. 3, 1988.

Ironically, exactly 28 years to the day, President, George Bush went down in defeat because he still had not responded to the question first posed in 1988.

After a 30-year political career, Bush is leaving the White House without much pomp or circumstance — just lots of post mortems. He also leaves the White House with a tainted reputation as the president who promised a "kinder, gentler nation" but produced a campaign of smear and sleaze.

Amid many contradictions the question now being asked is: Who is the real George Bush?

Fortunately for Bush in 1988, he didn't have to answer the question. The message in the ad was disregarded by Texas' seventh congressional district, which elected him to a seat in the House that year anyway.

To be sure, a journey back to his early days reveals a man who shifted his ideology as the occasion warranted him to do so. Yet, it also reveals a man who on at least one occasion demonstrated that there was a political backbone.

Bush's political moment of truth, which perhaps stands beside Operation Desert Storm as his finest hour in political life, dates back to his tenure as a member of Congress. Struck by the poor treatment that minority veterans received when they returned home from Vietnam, Bush voted for a provision in the Civil Rights Act that called for open-housing.

"I think it really struck home when he came back from (a visit to) Vietnam," said Linda Dyson, who worked for Bush then. "He was really adamant about it. He saw a lot of minorities over there who were fighting for their country and when they came back they couldn't choose where they wanted to live."

It was a bold move for Bush, whose constituency was archly conservative. Threatening calls and mail poured into his congressional office in Houston. "The day of the vote, a lot of nasty people called in," Dyson told our associate Dean Boyd. "They were really ugly. They kept coming in until we closed the office down."

Bush decided to face the hostility head-on before a crowd of 400 angry people at Houston's Memorial High School. When he took the stage, the crowd drowned him in boos.

"That anyone would resort to this kind of talk makes me ashamed to be an American!" shouted Bush. "No man should have a door slammed in his face because he is a negro or speaks with a Latin American accent." The crowd responded with a standing ovation.

Although many right-wingers never forgave him for the vote, others were heartened by Bush's uncommon display of passion and nerve. "People in the district respected two things. One, that he had the courage of his convictions to do that. And No. 2, that he would say, 'this is what I feel,'" said Dr. Charles Nebitt, a close friend of Bush who was in Houston during the controversy.

And it was this stand that drew fellow Houstonians Robert Mousbacher and James Baker to join forces with Bush.

Will the real George Bush please stand up?

military response. The official Iraqi news agency said Saddam Hussein's government warned the United Nations it would retaliate against any Western attack. An Iraqi government newspaper commentary also said that "Kuwait shall return to Iraq, in defiance of the Security Council and America." CNN reported from Baghdad. Abdel Latif Kabbaj, spokesman for U.N. observers along the Iraq-Kuwait border, said Iraqis in civilian clothes crossed the frontier for a fourth consecutive day to remove equipment from a former Iraqi navy base. The latest foray came a day after U.S. officials said President Bush had decided to take military action against Saddam's forces. No indication was given of the precise timing or scale of the planned attack — but Bush will be out of office in a week. Both Britain and France have strongly backed the United States and expressed their readiness to join Washington in military action against Iraq, presumably against Iraqi missile batteries or ground defenses. "We could do it at any moment," France's defense minister, Pierre Joxe, said in a radio interview today. Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger, in Europe for consultations with allies, would not discuss the timetable, but told reporters: "I think it's a correct assumption to say the United States is poised." Editors have not heard from reporters including an Associated Press correspondent aboard the aircraft carrier USS Kitty Hawk, part of a 10-ship battle group in the Persian Gulf, since Monday. That suggested a news blackout that would indicate an attack might be imminent by U.S. warplanes off the Saudi Arabia and based in Saudi Arabia. Pentagon officials denied Tuesday that a news blackout had been imposed. CNN said from Baghdad that a source in Saddam's government reported extensive foreign air operations over Iraq, CNN quoted the source as saying 91 planes operated in Iraqi air space on Tuesday — 53 Saudi aircraft, 33 American, four Kuwaiti and one Iranian.

Dr. Paul Hagerly, superintendent of the Seminole County schools, presided over the event. It was Hagerly's first exposure to the Martin Luther King festival in Sanford since his arrival here in June of last year. He was pleased to be a part of the celebration, he said.

A panel of seven judges listened carefully to the speeches before naming Chantell Williams, a senior at Oviedo High School, as the winner and Marcus Sheppard, a senior at Oviedo High, as the runner up. Other winners were Richard Peterson and Troy Chapman, both seniors at Seminole High.

Judges for the oratorical contest were Myrtle Brown, the media specialist at Goldsboro Elementary School; Raymond Gaunes, assistant principal at Lake Howell High; Dr. Jean Jones, director of student retention at Belhune-Cookman College; Nina Martinez of the Florida MLK commission; Greg Robinson, assistant principal at Indian Trails Middle School; Janice Springfield, first vice president of Sun Bank in Fern Park and Dr. Edith Valentine, manager of Drug Prevention for the Seminole County schools. Williams will receive a scholarship that is named in honor of King. Sheppard's scholarship is named for Doris Austin Thomas, Thomas, a late educator, originated the first youth performance. Essays will be judged by a panel which included Dr. Velma Williams of Seminole Community College; Manuel Bolanos of the school district's ESOL program; Marilyn Hawkins, a foreign language teacher at Lake Howell High and Dr. James Purdy, editor of Central Florida Greater News. The first place winner in the essay contest will be given a scholarship that is named for Mayor Bettye D. Smith, who was instrumental in getting the

for His love." Although from outward appearances, Coors was successful, inward he was not. "I kept asking myself, if you are so successful, why are you so empty?" he said. The peace that was the answer to his personal life is the same peace that is the answer to the world's conflicts, Coors said, a personal relationship with God. "I didn't fly here to talk to you about religion, but about a personal relationship with God through Jesus Christ," he said. Christ's promise about being the way, the truth and the light was equally true for nations as for individuals. The world's solutions were useless, he said. He had tried many, including materialism and found them to be worthless. "I filled my heart with materialism, and with a name like Coors, you can try a lot of filling," he said. A commanding speaker, Coors urged his audience to think about what was really important in life: relationships with God, family and friends. "Your company can replace you within a week, but your wife and family will miss you for a lifetime," he said. He also quoted John Henry Newman's statement that, "Fear not your life will end, but fear it will never have a beginning." About bouts with alcohol and materialism, his life changed when his wife listened to a broadcast by the Rev. Billy Graham on television and committed her life to Christ. A few weeks later, he followed and "Jesus filled the void in my heart." Telling the audience that God changes us gradually, not overnight, he said that commitment eventually led to his walk into the Colorado State Prison to ask forgiveness of his hatred and to forgive the man who murdered his father. "I didn't do that because of my feelings, but because I knew what God had commanded," he said. After his speech, the several hundred people in the audience gave him a standing ovation. Before his speech, prayers for the people and the future of the area, state, nation and world were delivered by Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith, Rev. Ron Merthie, pastor of New Life Word Center, and Art Alley, owner of Covenant Financial Management of Winter Park. A choir of voices filled the air with the sounds of "America the Beautiful" following the presentation of colors by the Seminole High School ROTC. The Rev. Bob Wilbur, of Abundant Life Christian Fellowship, Lake Mary, delivered the scripture reading. This morning's breakfast was co-sponsored by Mark Schweizer and Stephen Strang, and organized by the prayer breakfast steering committee chaired by Brian Walsh. This is the second prayer breakfast. The first, held on Jan. 22 of 1992, drew an estimated 600 persons to the Civic Center. Syndicated columnist and author Cal Thomas was guest speaker at that event.

Kestival is a four gallon donor. Others who had their blood donations selected for this morning's flight include Patricia Trautman of Ocala who is an eight gallon donor; Edith Hays of Orlando, a three gallon donor; John Shufelt of Rockledge, a two gallon donor; and Daynise McDonald of the Orlando Naval Training Center, a first-time donor.

The six units of blood were randomly selected from donations at Central Florida Blood Bank locations throughout the 12-county service area. Those selected were required to pass the usual screening tests for safety, and meet special requirements for the experiment being conducted by NASA and Houston's M.D. Anderson Cancer Institute.

"I think any action by us is already a few days overdue," said Sanford City Commissioner and U.S. Navy veteran A.A. McClanahan. "We should have already gone in there and launched an attack." Judy Osborn, who led the Operation Desert Shield Support Group two years ago, commented, "The way I see it, is that Saddam may be playing a game, waiting for the inauguration."

The Desert Storm conflict have left the service now," Osborn said. "We have lost track with most of them." Her own son, Sonny, who was one of the earliest U.S. Marines sent to Desert Storm, and one of the last to return, is now stationed in North Carolina. Looking back to Jan. 15, 1991, shortly after the first Persian Gulf war began, an official statement was released from American Legion National Commander Robert S. Turner. "It is now time for all Americans to give their full support to the President and to all the brave men and women serving in our military forces in the Persian Gulf and elsewhere," Turner said. "To do otherwise would seriously demoralize our troops and be a grave disservice to them."

will undertake a five-hour spacewalk. NASA wants to sharpen its spacewalking skills for the building of NASA's space station in 1998. The mission also includes a little orbital playtime as the astronauts toss around a ball, wind up bathtub toys and release them in the cabin, and send a car around a track in a demonstration of how objects behave in weightlessness. Youngsters at four elementary schools attended by four of the astronauts will participate via a TV hookup Friday. The astronauts also will ring a small replica of the Liberty Bell for a videotape to be played when bells peal around the country Sunday evening to mark President-elect Clinton's inauguration. The crew, barring launch delays, will be asleep at the time. "We want to do anything we can to make it work right for our country, and this is something that we can do to show our support for the Clinton administration for the next few years," Casper said last week. After the release of the satellite, the astronauts were to activate a $14 million X-ray spectrometer for exploring extremely hot, and mysterious, gases between stars in the Milky Way. The device is operated from the ground by remote control. The shuttle also is equipped with an improved toilet making its space debut. Congress' General Accounting Office has criticized the $23 million commode because of its cost. Endeavour is scheduled to land Tuesday at Kennedy Space Center.

Bentsen's bad news: No easy deficit reduction

By JOE LATTNER
AP Tax Writer

WASHINGTON — Lloyd Bentsen is delivering a sober budget message to old friends in the Senate: They must help erase red ink with measures requiring painful sacrifice, and even a tax increase must be considered.

"It will be a tough package" if it truly cuts the deficit, President-elect Clinton's choice for treasury secretary said Tuesday at his confirmation hearing before the Senate Finance Committee.

For Bentsen, a Texas Democrat who has been chairman of the committee, the hearing was a triumph. Fellow lawmakers gave him a standing ovation and were lavish in their praise. But his message was grim.

Rising deficit estimates "make it far more difficult to achieve that kind of tax cut" for middle-class Americans promised by Clinton, he said. He spoke of the need to "address entitlements" by considering restrictions on Social Security benefits, Medicare and Medicaid. Higher taxes cannot be ruled out, he said.

There have been more than a dozen tax increases for deficit reduction since 1982. President Reagan signed most of them. President Bush signed one big one and paid the price.

But Congress and the administration have already cleaned the shelves of the relatively easy-to-swallow tax increases.

They have gotten rid of abusive tax shelters, taken away all but the most basic individual tax deductions and wiped out scores of special breaks for business and investors.

Clinton spoke often during the campaign of two relatively simple ideas: raising taxes paid by the well-to-do — those in the $200,000-and-up range — and making multinational corporations pay a greater share. Unfortunately, neither source would make a sizable dent in the $300-billion-a-year deficit.

So, what's left? Here are some options compiled by the Congressional Budget Office:

— Gasoline: Raise the 20.1-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax by as much as 50 cents. Ross Perot is for it. Rural-state lawmakers are opposed. Each additional penny brings in about $1 billion a year.

— Health insurance: Workers accept a tax-free income the health insurance premiums their employers pay. Employers subtract the money from their taxable income. Taxing the value above $335 a month for a family plan and over $135 for individuals would bring in about $20 billion. This change already is being considered as one way to help pay for a national health plan.

— Mortgage interest: Eliminating this deduction, a possibility about as remote as repealing Social Security, would bring in $50 billion. Limiting the writeoff to $20,000 per return would save $5 billion. Almost wiping it out for second homes would save a drop in the bucket: less than $400,000.

— Itemized deductions: If taxpayers in the 28 percent and 31 percent tax brackets — generally middle- and upper-income people — were allowed to use itemized deductions only against that part of their earnings subject to the bottom, 15 percent, rate, the government would save $60 billion.

— Raise corporate taxes: If all corporate income were taxed at a flat 34 percent rate — part of the income of smaller businesses is taxed as low as 15 percent — the deficit could be cut by $3 billion.

— Social Security: Couples with total income over $32,000 and singles above $25,000 pay tax on up to half their Social Security benefits. Taxing 85 percent instead would produce $6 billion; taxing 85 percent of all Social Security benefits, regardless of total income, would raise $22 billion.

— Individual tax rates: Raising the three rates — 15 percent, 28 percent and 31 percent — to 18 percent, 30 percent and 33 percent would raise $34 billion. Raising only the top bracket to 33 percent would raise $17 billion. Either would be anathema to conservatives.

— Business meals: Cutting the 80 percent deductible portion of business meals and entertainment to 50 percent would raise $3 billion.

— Home sales: Under certain circumstances, profit from the sale of a principal home is deferred from taxation indefinitely. Taxing 30 percent of the gain would raise about $6 billion.

— Capital gains at death: When property is passed to an heir at death, the increase in value during the owner's lifetime generally escapes taxation. Including the gain in the last income tax return filed for the deceased would raise about $3.5 billion.

GOP to question Christopher on Army spying and foreign clients

By JOE DRINKARD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Republicans promised tough questioning of Warren Christopher, President-elect Clinton's choice for secretary of state, on what he knew about Army spying on civilians in the 1960s and about his law firm's Japanese clients.

Christopher was appearing today before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for a planned two days of hearings as he stood ready to assume the job he was passed over for in 1980.

What had been seen as a smooth ride to confirmation was complicated by questions about whether Christopher leveled with Congress at an earlier confirmation hearing about his knowledge of Army surveillance of anti-war and civil rights groups.

Sources also said he was likely to be asked about his role in negotiations to free Americans held hostage in Iran in 1980. The officials said that Christopher, in a report given to congressional investigators, recommended offering that year to trade frozen Iranian assets, including weapons, for the release of the hostages.

And Republicans, who have come under fire for too-gentle questioning of Clinton's nominees over the past week, also felt the need to challenge Christopher about his law firm's client list, said one GOP committee source, speaking on condition he not be named.

The panel was awaiting Christopher's answer as to whether he misled Congress when asked about the Army surveillance at his 1977 hearing to be deputy secretary of state.

The Associated Press reported Sunday that Christopher's own files when he was deputy attorney general in 1968 indicate he was informed about the Army surveillance. But at the 1977 hearing, he told the Foreign Relations Committee he didn't know about the Army activities and would have been "army opposed" to them.

On the Iran hostages issue, Christopher told investigators recently that in a Sept. 30, 1980, meeting with Iranian representatives, he indicated a willingness to turn over Iran's frozen assets — including weapons and military spare parts — in return for the hostages' release.

The deal didn't go through, but the gesture shows that Democrats were willing to make the same kind of trade that Jimmy Carter's Republican successor, Ronald Reagan, was criticized for making in the Iran-Contra affair, Republicans contend.

In a required financial disclosure submitted to the panel on Tuesday, Christopher detailed extensive stock and securities holdings and promised he would sever all ties with the Los Angeles law firm he heads, O'Melveny & Myers, except for receiving a pension.

The firm lists more than a dozen Japanese companies among its clients, including banks, insurance companies, a Toyota financing subsidiary, and steel and oil interests.

That, together with Christopher's frequent forays from the firm to work in every Democratic administration since Kennedy, raises the question of whether the nominee embodies the same "revolving door" problem that he and Clinton have criticized, said the GOP official.

Since he first joined the Los Angeles law firm in the 1960s, Christopher has left and returned to the firm eight times to work in various government positions.

The committee also was pressing to receive 66 classified documents from the nominee's files at the Lyndon B. Johnson Library in Austin, Texas, that are not available for public inspection.

Both Republicans and Democratic committee staffers said they hoped the files would shed light on what Christopher knew about the 1960s Army surveillance.

Despite the problems, Christopher is not an easy target for Republicans. A careful, guarded, aloof figure, he has nonetheless won wide respect for his past government service.

He was deputy to Secretary of State Cyrus Vance when Vance resigned in 1980. But rather than being elevated to the top job, Christopher was passed over in favor of Maine Sen. Edmund Muskie.

FCC hoping consumers will test long-distance access from pay phones

By DIANE BUSTON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The next time you make a long-distance call from a pay phone, try charging it through the long-distance company you use for home or business calls.

If you can't get through, the Federal Communications Commission wants to know about it.

New rules requiring pay phones to provide access to any long-distance company went into effect this week.

"Consumers are going to be helping us know whether we are going to be taking action in particular cases," FCC enforcement attorney Kurt Schroeder said Tuesday.

The rules also affect institutions that charge for calls, such as hotels, motels and hospitals. But some have up to five years to comply.

The issue arose because consumers complained that long-distance calls from pay phones were showing up on their bills at excessively high rates from companies they'd never heard of.

That's because individual pay phone owners had exclusive contracts with long-distance providers, which in some cases were small, regional firms.

These companies, known as "alternate operator services," often charged two times to five times as much as AT&T, MCI and Sprint, said Ken McElowney of Consumer Action, a San Francisco group that petitioned for the new FCC rules.

Every time a caller made an operator-assisted call from a pay phone, charges automatically went to the operator services company.

Consumers who thought they were getting access to their own long-distance company by using a local phone company card that billed their home phones were surprised by the charges from an alternate company.

Callers who tried to use credit cards from particular long-distance companies sometimes were unable to get through at all.

Consumers at pay phones were trapped, said McElowney. "What are you going to do — get back in the car and find another phone?"

"Our customers were not happy with the fact that they could not get through to our access number," said Jim McQuinn of AT&T.

There are about 400 small long-distance companies and 244,000 independent pay phones in the United States.

Pay phone industry spokesman Scott Silverman said Tuesday that exclusive contracts between pay phone owners and single long-distance firms guarded against toll fraud.

First U.S. soldier killed in ambush

By TERRY LEONARD
Associated Press Writer

MOGADISHU, Somalia — Emotional U.S. Marines tightened security and showed more aggression at Mogadishu checkpoints today after Somali gunmen shot and killed one of their comrades in the ambush of a night patrol.

The first U.S. soldier killed in Operation Restore Hope was shot Tuesday near the airport following the most ambitious effort to date by U.S. forces to disarm Somalia in the capital.

Since Sunday, Marines had rounded up weapons and ammunition, gathering 16 truckloads in sweeps of gun markets and storehouses. The take included 265 rifles and 55 machine guns.

The slain Marine's 11-man patrol was ambushed after moving out of the airport into an area of abandoned warehouses. Air Force Capt. Joe Davis of Springfield, Va., a military spokesman, told reporters today.

"There were definitely more than one gunman," he said.

After a five-minute firefight, the Marines withdrew and regrouped, discovering a comrade was missing. Reinforced by a rapid reaction force in three armored vehicles, the Marines returned to recover the fallen Marine.

"Another firefight ensued. The gunmen were still there," said Davis. He said there was no evidence any Somali gunmen had been hit.

The slain Marine, who apparently died of a head wound, was a member of the 3rd Battalion, 11th Marine Regiment, based at Twentynine Palms, Calif. He was not immediately identified, although officials said he was from Elizabeth, N.J. The Marine was the first U.S. serviceman killed since the Americans landed Dec. 9 as part of a U.N.-endorsed effort to end the rampant looting and lawlessness that have prolonged a devastating famine.

A civilian Army employee was killed Dec. 23 near the city of Bardera when the vehicle he was riding in hit an anti-tank mine.

Davis said it was not yet known if Tuesday's ambush would bring any changes in military operations in Mogadishu, but he said the Americans would continue aggressive patrols.

At checkpoints today, Marines were edgier, more businesslike. And at the airport, friends of the fallen Marine directed their anger at Somalia.

"A lot of people aren't going to like Somalia even though some are innocent," said Lance Cpl. Jesse De Guzman, 21, of San Jose, Calif. "You start looking at them differently. It just gets you mad inside but you have to hold it in."

Prior to the Marine's death, the U.S. military had reported one of their quietest days since the troops arrived.

A spokesman for Marine commander Maj. Gen. Charles Wilhelm quoted the general as saying he hoped he would have a safer Mogadishu by Feb. 1, with more arms off the streets so relief workers could move around without armed guards.

"But it was not a hard fast rule that we were going to have a secure Mogadishu, in other words that there would be no arms here," said the spokesman, Lt. Col. Ron Stokes.

After dictator Mohammed Siad Barre was overthrown two years ago, governmental authority and public services vanished across Somalia.

Clans, bandit gangs and regional war lords fought with tanks and heavy guns. About 350,000 people died from famine, disease and violence.

The country's warring factions remained deadlocked Tuesday in cease-fire talks in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia that were to continue today into their 10th day.

Negotiators from 14 Somali factions have been unable to agree on terms for a broader conference on reuniting the country that would be held March 15 in the Ethiopian capital.

At Tuesday's session, Ethiopian President Meles Zenawi called the groups to his palace but was unsuccessful in his mediation bid. Under the cease-fire proposal the factions would turn in their weapons by March 1.

There is skepticism that such an agreement could be enforced, however.

Asked about this, the U.N. spokesman in Mogadishu, Farouk Mawlawi, said he has faith in the provisions of the text, which call for establishing a U.N.-sponsored task force to supervise the cease-fire.

American troops would be part of the U.N. force, operating in supply and support roles. Such a commitment could leave some American troops in Somalia for an extended time.

A military spokesman, Army Lt. Col. Steve Ritter, said the present U.S.-led international force in Somalia has passed the 33,000 mark from more than 20 nations, including 22,000 American troops.

Lt. Gen. Robert Johnston, commander of Operation Restore Hope, has said some American troops could begin going home by the end of this month.

Report: Serbs skim quarter of Bosnian aid

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — A report prepared for the State Department has found that Serbian forces in Bosnia-Herzegovina are skimming nearly one-quarter of all aid brought in by relief planes, a newspaper reported.

The report also found that U.N. peacekeeping troops and refugee officials have often yielded to the Serbs, allowing them to determine what aid is provided and who gets it. The New York Times said in Wednesday editions.

"Since the start of the humanitarian airlift, the U.N. has also sought to appease the Serb militias by providing the Serb 'authorities,' a portion (23 percent) of all relief commodities arriving by airlift, and by ac-ording them the right to inspect each cargo delivered by air or road, to approve or disapprove each cargo," the report said.

The United Nations has also allowed Serbs to "approve or disapprove the ethnicity" of truck drivers in relief convoys organized by the United Nations High Commission for Refugees, which has been delivering aid to the besieged Muslims in Bosnia, the report said.

"In effect, the U.N. recognized the Serb militias as the de facto authority in the region," the report said.

The report was completed last month by Thomas O. Brennan, a relief expert who was hired by the Office of Disaster Relief, a branch of the Agency for International Development, the Times said.

Justices rule federal courts can't stop abortion protesters

By RICHARD CARELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court ruled today that federal courts — and federal law enforcement agents — lack the authority to stop anti-abortion protesters who try to block women's access to abortion clinics.

By a splintered vote, the court limited the federal help available to abortion clinic owners who seek to stop blockades by Operation Rescue members and other anti-abortion protesters.

Abortion rights advocates said such a lack of federal help would make it more difficult to guarantee women's access to clinics targeted by protesters.

Today's decision was based on the court's interpretation of a post-Civil War federal law, the Ku Klux Klan Act of 1871, that bans conspiracies aimed at violating someone's constitutional rights.

The law protects "any person or class of persons" — and past Supreme Court rulings had said that wording meant those who sue must be victims of "class-based animus."

Wounded and resting

Bosnian sniper realizes she's a 'battle junkie'

By TONY SMITH
Associated Press Writer

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — The Bosnian army sniper known by the code name "Arrow" once longed for peace. "to spend a day just being bored."

Now, resting after a brush with death, the 20-year-old former journalism student who has killed more men than she cares to remember is itching to get back to the front lines.

"I'm a battle junkie," she joked, putting on a nervous smile as she twisted uncomfortably on her military field bed in a well-guarded base.

She was wounded in early December, hit in the back by a 7.62mm bullet fired from a tank light machine gun. The bullet drove just past her spine and ripped out through her stomach, but missed her kidneys and spleen.

"I never thought for a split-second that I was dead, but I thought my spine had gone," she said. "I was more worried that I couldn't walk and my two comrades would refuse to leave me there and they would be killed too."

She forced herself to stand and run another 250 yards to safety, after making sure one of her comrades had picked up her rifle.

After two hours in a hospital, she was moved to the base for security reasons — "In the hospital I had one guard, here I have three."

Arrow claims to be the Serb forces' third most-wanted "war criminal," after Sarajevo's special police chief Dragan Vikić and Mustafa Hajrudinović, Bosnian army commander for Sarajevo.

One reason is that she is an ethnic Serb killing Serbs, one of thousands who have put loyalty to their besieged city before nationality.

Most of her fellow fighters, first with the Bosnian army, and now with a special police unit, are Muslim and Croat.

"There's a lot of cash on my head," she said. "Whoever shot me just missed getting a fortune."

But behind the bravado, Arrow obviously is struggling to come to terms with the war that transformed her from a fun-loving student to a trained killer.

"Since I was shot, I can't sleep, thinking that I could have been dead," she said. "The war has changed people's attitude toward death — it's come a lot closer to them, and it's not such a big deal."

But it is something that affects Arrow, who according to her commander had already killed "half a busload" of Serb fighters by June. A policeman's daughter, she grew up accustomed to guns and had once hoped to win a spot on the national shooting team.

"I don't count how many people I've killed," she said. "It makes it easier to live with."

To help her pull the trigger once she had sighted her target — usually a Serb sniper or soldier — she still conjures images from early in the war of civilian sniper victims like an old woman or a child playing in the sand.

"I have a clear conscience. I have never shot a civilian," she said.

When first interviewed by The Associated Press in June, three months into Bosnia's war that has killed at least 17,000, Arrow said she longed for peace.

"My dream is just to live a normal life, to spend a day just being bored," she said then.

Now, although she is not yet fit enough to fight and has doctors' orders not to walk far from bed, Arrow is already visiting her fellow soldiers on the front.

"If I can't work, I'll just have to visit the troops, front after front, like a president."

Raiders return home

Valencia CC Matadors at SCC for M-FC clash

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD — Maybe things are finally starting to look up for coach Bernard Merthie and his Seminole Community College men's basketball team.

Tonight, the Raiders (6-11 overall, 1-1 in the Mid-Florida Conference) return to the Health and Physical Education Center for their first home game in over a month when they host M-FC rival Valencia Community College starting at 7:30 p.m.

The game will start a lengthy home stand for SCC as the Raiders play six of their next seven games at home after a grueling stretch of playing eight road games in nine starts over the past six weeks. The Raiders were 2-6 during the stretch.

Tonight will also be the first time since very early in the season that Merthie will have a full roster at his disposal.

Center/forward Evon Hammond practiced for the first time since severely injuring his ankle against Manatee Community College on Dec. 1. And while he is not 100 percent, Merthie expects the freshman from Orlando to suit up.

"He (Hammond) shot the ball well in practice," said Merthie. "He's still limping some, but he should be able to play. Of course, he went to Valencia last year, so he would probably try to play if he had to crawl."

Merthie also said that shooting guard Troy Bruening may be coming out of his slump. The 6-foot, 3-inch sophomore has not shot well since scoring 38 points against Patrick Air Force Base on Nov. 28.

"Troy shot the ball very well today," said Merthie. "I've been getting on him to shoot more. He has to score well if we are going to be successful."

Hammond, 6-foot, 4-inches, had scored in double figures in four of five games since moving into the starting lineup and had scored 15 first half points against Manatee before going down.

With Hammond back and fellow freshman Mike Burch apparently over his knee problems, SCC now has seven players who can play on the front line, which will also help the team's depth at guard.

Having a full complement of players at center and forward will allow Bruening and Lyman High School graduate Aaron Merrell to concentrate on playing guard instead of splitting time at guard and forward.

The starting lineup for the Raiders tonight is expected to be Phillip Williams (5-foot-10) and Lake Mary's Jason Hamelin (5-foot-9) at guard; Bruening and Sanford's Jeff Hall (6-foot-6) at forward and Dean Poshard (6-foot-7) at center. All five are sophomores.

In addition to freshmen Hammond, Burch (6-foot-5) and Merrell (6-foot-4), also seeing action tonight will be sophomores Robert Walker (6-foot-4), Sanford's Al Fossitt (6-foot-6) and freshman Anthony Phillips (6-foot-6).

Williams, who leads the team in scoring at 18.9 per game, put some big numbers on the board last week as SCC split a pair of conference games. He scored 53 points, grabbed 18 rebounds, handed out six assists and came away with seven steals while playing 74 of a possible 80 minutes.

Bruening (13.5 points per game) and Burch (11.5 per game) also average in double figures.

The Raiders' foe tonight, Valencia, is 0-2 in conference play, but both losses were two-point heartbreakers that could have gone either way. A pair of Lake Mary High School graduates will be making homecoming appearances for the Matadors. Sophomore center Jon Brown and freshman guard Alonzo Brundidge see playing time off the bench for Valencia.

Enos' pin lifts Lions to tie with Auburndale

From Staff Reports

OVIEDO — It took less than a minute, but Joe Enos made the most of it, registering a first period pin Tuesday night to lift the Oviedo Lions to a 37-27 tie with the visiting Auburndale Bloodhounds in a high school wrestling dual meet.

Enos, Oviedo's heavyweight, pinned his opponent in 56 seconds. Anything less than an Enos pin in the final match of the night would have resulted in Auburndale winning the team match.

Oviedo had fallen behind 16-6 as Auburndale won three of the first four matches, two by technical falls and one by a pin. The Lions won the next three contests to take a 20-16 lead, but Auburndale retook the lead by winning three of the next four.

With the Lions trailing 28-26, Eric Walter won his match at 160 pounds with a second-period pin, cutting the gap to 34-32. But Auburndale's 171-pounder came back with a pin in 34 seconds, stretching the lead back to eight points, 34-26.

David Zickafosse sliced five points of the lead for Oviedo, winning his match at 189 pounds with an 18-1 technical fall. When the 220-pound match went Auburndale's way, the Lions were faced with a six-point deficit, 37-31, with one match left.

That's when Enos took the mat. Craig Martin (130 pounds) and Sean Wilson (135) both won by major decisions while Scott Gomrad (140) pinned his opponent in 54 seconds. Chris Norton had given Oviedo a 6-0 by picking up a forfeit win at 103 pounds.

The junior varsity Lions won their dual meet, 30-29.

Oviedo will wrestle again Friday night, Jan. 15, against Colonial at home.

Anderson finds way through fog to victory lane

By PAUL MARBEGLIA
Special to the Herald

SAMSULA — Despite a heavy fog, second generation driver Wayne Anderson had no trouble finding victory lane last Saturday night, Jan. 9, at New Smyrna Speedway as he claimed his third Late Model feature win of the season.

Anderson, who started the race from the tail end of the field, worked his way up to second place by the ninth lap and began to challenge race leader Jack Cook for the point.

On lap 11, Cook spun off the track onto the infield, bringing out a caution and a restart that put him at the back of the pack. Anderson gained the point on the restart and raced unchallenged until the white flag lap. With two laps to go Cook had moved back up through the pack to within striking distance. But Anderson was able to withstand the challenge to claim the victory.

Cook was second followed by Marc Kinley, Johnny Walker, and Joe Middleton.

"What a race," said Anderson, who drives the Pee Wee Griffin Camaro. "I couldn't see the turns. As the race got longer, the fog dropped and the visibility was gone. We could have used radar tonight instead of a radio. I was getting verbal instructions from the crew and that helped a whole lot."

Fog had completely engulfed the half-mile oval with two laps remaining in the event.

"I had a spotter down low and he would tell me the color of the cars that went by," said Griffin. "Then, I would locate Wayne (Anderson) and tell him what color car he would be coming up on. The spotter would also tell him when he was coming up on the turns."

After Anderson took the checkers, track officials determined it would be hazardous to continue racing and the rest of the program was

Late entry Ponder wins Volusia's World 150

Special to the Herald

BARBERVILLE - Three days prior to the start of the 1993 racing season at Volusia County Speedway, Tony Ponder decided to enter World 150 Late Model Stock.

It turned out to be a $4,500 decision for Ponder, who survived a scrape along the front straightaway to beat an 18-car field last Saturday, Jan. 9.

The first race of the 1993 season saw six different leaders during the 150-lap event at the half-mile speed plant. It took Ponder a little more than 56 minutes to reach the front of the pack and hold on for the win. On his way to the front, Ponder made contact with the front straightaway wall. However, he was able to keep the car going and, other than white tires, there was no damage to his car.

Following Ponder to the checkered flag were Mike Hunter, Robert Elliott, David Browning, and Hal McGraw.

In Modified action, Bill Condy made a daring move to the inside of John Gamble with two laps to go and went on to win the first Modified feature event of his career at Volusia County Speedway. Trailing Condy and Gamble across the stripe were Wray Bhafler, Butch Yeakum, and Tuffy Carley.

The top five finishers in the Mini Stock main event were, in order of finish, Jerry Gilliard, Bob Godler, Tom Chestnut, Pat Hunter, and Brandy Oatesen.

Jimmy Wishes came out on top in the Sportsman feature. He was followed by Bill B. Morris, Earl Mark, David Ponder, and Rusty Everlove.

In the Street Stock competition, Jeff Miller took the checkers with Ray Fulford finishing second and Chris Lawrence coming in third. Phil Williams and Scott Laughlin rounded out the top five.

The World 200, scheduled for Saturday, Jan. 23, is the next event on the Volusia County Speedway agenda. The event, for Late Models, pays $3,000 to win.

For more information, contact the speedway office, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, at (904) 985-4402 or (904) 255-2243.

"Tonight shows why we win races," said Anderson. "Everything we do is a team effort. A man who's not here tonight and who is a real important part of our team is our engine man, Harold Brady. He's been working night and day to fine tune our engine and he's got it to where it's really awesome."

Cook claimed the early lead as a fog that had been hovering over the speedway for most of the evening began to settle. Going into turn one, while dueling for the lead, Anderson and Cook hit a slick spot on the track, causing them to get sideways.

"We both started to lose it because the track got real moist," said Cook, a former FASCAR Late Model champion. "But when I spun and touched Wayne, that straightened him out and I lost it."

The only other feature events that were completed prior to the Late Model race were the Sportsman and Mini Stock classes.

Dale Howard won the Sportsman main event followed by Jerry Smith. Sanford's John Ripley, Don Tracey, and Barbara Pierce. Mini Stock top honors went to Jerry Symons, who crossed the line ahead of Bobby Sears, Ted Vulpis, J.D. Duncan and Conrad Greffier.

Specialty of the house is a variety of ethnic dishes

By Del Freeman
Herald Correspondent

LAKE MARY — Charity Abell grew up "all over," she said, because her father worked for Northwest Airlines. She met her husband, Keith, nine years ago when the family moved to Orlando, and the two were introduced by mutual friends.

The couple married in 1988 and live today in Lake Mary, where Keith grew up, in a home designed and partially built by Keith, with their 8-month-old daughter, Sierra. As a new mother, Charity stays home with her daughter while Keith works as a fireman at Cape Canaveral, so she has a lot of time for cooking the family's meals, she said. She relies a great deal upon her family heritage for new and unusual dishes, she said.

My mother is half Chinese and half Spanish, and my father is part German, so the at-home meals were often eclectic," she said. Charity's mom, whom she called a great cook, maintains all her recipes in her head and Charity has but to pick up a phone to find out how to make any of her favorites, she said.

"I get a lot of recipes from my mother but she's one of these "a pinch of this and a dash of that" cooks, so she often has to stop and think when giving the quantities for a recipe," Charity said.

Charity says it's worth the wait, though. She didn't learn much about cooking growing up, although she often helped in the kitchen, she said, because her mother was such a good cook and enjoyed it so that she did most of the meal preparation for Charity and her two younger brothers while maintaining a full-time job.

Microwave a kettle of tasty soup

Soups and stews can be prepared with great success using the microwave oven. You will save a tremendous amount of time in comparison with conventional methods. Use a large microwave container, at least 4-quart, with a lid. Use a lower power setting equivalent to a "simmer" on a conventional range. Cut vegetables and meats, poultry in uniform sizes for even cooking. Conventionally made soups and stews take 2-3 hours cooking for full flavor and tenderness. For best results in the microwave, microcook for 45 minutes to 1 hour, stirring every 15 minutes to allow for uniformity of cooking. Flavors will develop which is important for soups and stews; that's why soup is often better the second day.

This soup has an old-fashioned flavor. You can include whatever vegetables you have on hand.

VEGETABLE SOUP
1 lb. lean ground beef
1 medium onion, chopped
6 cups water
2 cups cocktail vegetable juice (V-8)
1 cup finely chopped carrot
1/2 cup finely chopped celery
1/4 tsp. basil leaves
1/4 tsp. thyme leaves
1 pkg (10 oz.) frozen mixed vegetables
1/4 cup small shell macaroni
Salt and pepper to taste
Crumble ground beef into 3- quart casserole. Add onion.

MICROWAVE

MYCOFF

Microwave on 100 percent power, uncovered 5-8 minutes or until meat is no longer pink, stirring once. Drain. Add water, juice, carrots, celery, basil and thyme. Cover with casserole lid. Microwave on 100 percent power 30-40 minutes or until flavors are blended, stirring once. About 10 servings.

The Spanish are responsible for this hearty bean soup.

SPANISH BEAN SOUP
(Garbanzo Bean Soup)
2 one-lb. cans Garbanzo beans (chick peas), drained
1 1/2 qts. water
4 onions, finely chopped
1 ham hock
4 med. baking potatoes, cut into cubes
2 pieces saffron, crumbled
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. pepper
Place water in a 4-quart casserole with a lid. Add hamhock, onions, potatoes, salt and pepper and saffron. Microwave on 100 percent power 20-25 minutes. Reduce to 50 percent power and microwave 10-15 minutes or until potatoes can be pierced with a fork with little resistance. Stir in Garbanzo beans and allow to stand, covered for 15-20 minutes before serving. Flavors develop if soup stands overnight in the refrigerator.

Bean soups are a meal in themselves although they are often served as a first course. This ethnic soup (Cuban) is served at many local restaurants.

BLACK BEAN SOUP
1 lb. dried black beans, washed
2 quarts boiling water
2 Tbsp. salt
5 cloves garlic
1 1/4 tsp. cumin (comino)
1 1/4 tsp. oregano

2 Tbsp. white vinegar
10 Tbsp. olive oil
1/2 lb. onions, peeled and chopped
1/2 lb. green peppers, trimmed and chopped

Put beans into a large, heavy saucepot or Dutch oven and add boiling water; boil rapidly 2 minutes. Cover tightly, remove from heat, and set aside 1 hour. Add salt to beans and liquid; bring to boiling and simmer, covered, until beans are soft, about 2 hours.

Put the garlic, cumin, oregano, and vinegar into a mortar and crush to a paste. Heat olive oil in a large skillet. Mix in onion and green pepper and fry until onion is browned, stirring occasionally.

To your child, they're patience, aesthetics, learning to balance, and a skyscraper bigger than the whole world.

At KinderCare child care centers, wooden blocks are more than imaginary structures. They're an exercise in skills your child will build on for life. # Soldiers and spouses need strength when they're apart

DEAR ABBY: A while ago, there was a letter in your column from a married soldier on deployment asking you how he should deal with his natural desires and longings as a man. Your reply was so wonderful I cut it out and sent it to my husband. (We were separated because I had to finish a semester of school while he was at his base.)

My husband is now in Somalia, and I'd like to send him a copy. Please print it again. A lot of families are separated, and might find it helpful.

STACY LAUTE, SANTA ANA, CALIF.
DEAR STACY: Thanks for asking here it is:

DEAR ABBY: I just received a letter from my husband in Korea, and something you wrote in your column over a year ago has helped to keep our marriage a true one. I can best explain by quoting a portion of my husband's letter:

"Honey, do you remember the clipping you sent me from Dear Abby's column when I first got over here — the one about the soldier in Korea who wanted to know what to do about his 'physical needs' while he was overseas?"

"Well, I still carry it and I've read it so many times, it's worn to shreds. It has helped to keep me strong. It's too bad the Army

Abby: I love my wife, but I have a long hitch over here and I'm only human. If you print this, please sign me...

JERSEY
DEAR JERSEY: Assume for a moment that I received the following letter:

DEAR ABBY: I am a happily married woman with a wonderful husband and two small children. My husband has been in Korea for four months, and after living a normal married life for three years, what is a healthy young woman supposed to do for her physical needs?

There are plenty of men around, and when they learn that my husband is in Korea, they practically throw themselves at my feet. I love my husband, but he's going to be gone a long time, and I'm only human.

JERSEY'S WIFE
Well, Jersey, I would tell that woman to keep as busy as possible with her duties and as many wholesome activities as her time and energy permit. I'd suggest reading, physical exercise, and, yes, even prayers. I'd tell her to stay sober and to avoid temptation and to write to you every day! And that, Jersey, is my answer to you, and to all your buddies in the same lonesome boat.

Sincerely,

Abby, would you please print it again? I want to be sure the one my husband has doesn't get too worn to read.

GRATEFUL READER
DEAR READER: With pleasure. Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: My problem is one that bothers thousands of GIs, so I hope you will print the answer because it is needed badly. I am a happily married man with a wonderful wife and two small children back in the States. I've been in Korea for four months. After living a normal married life for three years what is a healthy young man supposed to do for his physical needs?

There are 12 women for every GI over here, and women practically throw themselves at our feet. Don't get me wrong, accustomed to some of the dishes Charity prefers, she said, but since he's not a fussy eater, he soon adapted. She thinks he's even grown to prefer the type of dense vegetables she frequently serves in a variety of stir-fried dishes, she said.

"He was accustomed to more traditional-type American food," Charity said of their early days. Charity said and have lived in Lake Mary for more than 30 years, she said, and he simply hadn't been exposed to some of the ethnic dishes Charity introduced.

"I introduced him to a lot of Chinese dishes using soy sauce and oyster sauce in their preparation," she said.

"He's come to appreciate them, I think," she said. "I haven't heard any complaint, anyway."

Charity likes a variety of cooking methods and foods, she says, and enjoys experimenting with Thai cooking, Indian curries and the like. She's also tried some Cuban recipes which she says are very similar to her mother's type of cooking, since her mother is originally from Costa Rica.

Although Charity recently completed a cake decorating course in Longwood and uses her skill to prepare special occasion cakes for family and friends, she doesn't plan to return to work full time until Sierra is in pre-school, she says. The couple haven't decided whether there will be an increase in family size which might delay such a return even longer.

"My degree is in marketing and I'd really like to get into some type of personnel management eventually," Charity said.

In the interim, she said she'd like to do something with her cake decorating expertise in the home while Sierra is still small. Until she can establish that, however, she is content to tend to baby Sierra and prepare dinner for her fireman husband, occasionally relying on her mom for just the right "pinch" or "dash" of an exotic, last-minute ingredient.

CHEESE PORK ROAST

Dip each chayote slice into egg white and deep fry until golden brown. Heat, prepare tomato sauce. Combine remaining ingredients in a saucepan and simmer until onion, pepper and celery is tender. # It's best to take aspirin with food

DEAR DR. GOTT: Every so often the subject of just how to use aspirin surfaces. I read an article that indicated the aspirin should be allowed to disintegrate in a little sugar water flavored with two drops of lemon juice. Should aspirin be taken on a full stomach, empty stomach, during a meal, just any time, whole or mashed?

DEAR READER: As a general rule, medicine in liquid form is absorbed more rapidly through the stomach wall than are pills, which have to disintegrate to produce any effect. (Crushed pills are absorbed more quickly than whole pills, but more slowly than liquid drugs.)

Practically speaking, it seldom makes any difference if patients choose pills, which are easier to swallow than liquid drugs that often have an unpleasant taste. Therefore, with respect to effectiveness, aspirin tablets are equal to alternative forms of the medicine.

Aspirin itself, however, is somewhat unique in that it usually causes stomach irritation. This may lead to heartburn, indigestion, intestinal bleeding and peptic ulcers. These side effects can often be eliminated or reduced by buffering the aspirin (with food or antacids) or covering it (enteric-coated) with a film that delays absorption until the drug passes into the intestine.

Therefore, people who are bothered by the gastric effects of aspirin should take it with food, on a full stomach, or with an antacid. As you know, buffered aspirin and the enteric-coated variety are available over-the-counter. I am not aware that the sugar water/lemon drop method increases the effectiveness of aspirin; in fact, such a combination might actually add to aspirin's irritating effect on the stomach.

Remember that aspirin, like any medicine, should only be taken for specific reasons and the recommended doses should not be exceeded.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 68-year-old man and have never had an operation or serious illness in my life. My problem is that the skin on my arms breaks very easily, and my arms look terrible because of the large spots that result. Can anything be done about this?

DEAR READER: You may be experiencing age-related thinning of the skin, which leads to easy injury from trivial trauma. Or you could have a vitamin deficiency (of vitamin C, for (instance) that could cause you to bruise too readily, leading to a tendency of the outer skin to pull away from the deeper layers.

See a dermatologist for an examination. Age-related skin problems may be helped by creams, lotions and protective salves; vitamin deficiencies can be cured by taking daily vitamin supplements.

Leonard Louis Levinson once said: "He's a fine friend. He stays up in the front." Well, some bridge opponents can be friends in disguise. They give you just the help you need to bring home a contract that would otherwise have died. This assistance usually comes in one of two forms: the stupid penalty double or the revealing bid that gives away the distribution. Today's deal fits the former category.

West starts with two top clubs, East echoing with the seven and two. After ruffing, how do you continue? No auction would meet with universal approval, but the final contract is optimum.

Without West's revealing double, you would have led a trump at trick three, happy to concede one trick in each suit except spades. But if the double is to be believed, the trumps are breaking 5-0. Then, if you lead a heart immediately, West will win with the ace and force you again with another club, promoting a second trump trick for himself.

Equally, you cannot afford to play three top diamonds. If West can ruff, he will exit with the ace and another heart, leaving you with a losing diamond in your hand.

How can you stop West from scoring a second trump trick, yet win three diamond tricks? By making the third trick a ruff in the dummy. After ruffing at trick two, cash the A-K of spades and the diamond ace. Play a diamond to the king and duck a diamond. Whatever East leads now, you can ruff the diamond queen in the dummy for your 10th trick.

The ruff in the short-trump hand wins again.

Jan. 14, 1993
 In the year ahead the aspects indicate you're apt to be more successful with ventures or endeavors that are already under way than you will be in breaking new ground. Be a finisher and you'll be a winner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There is a resonance today between your objectives and those of people whom you're involved with. Unless they can benefit in some manner, you're not likely to gain their allegiance. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you have to make a presentation today, it's best to do so from notes or some type of outline. If you're not organized properly, you could be ineffective.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Sometimes being your own person is an admirable expression of independence. Today, however, if you oppose the will of the majority, it might be for the wrong reasons.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you have a disagreement with someone today, don't leave the door open so that the uninvolved feel they have a right to participate. It could really complicate issues.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Usually you are a fairly optimistic person, but today your judgment could be weighted down on the negative side. This could have a deleterious effect on the way you handle co-workers.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21) It's best not to volunteer to manage things for someone else today, because it could prove costly if you use poor judgment. Unfortunately, there are indications that you might do so.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) Today if you attempt to do too many things simultaneously, you aren't likely to complete any one to your satisfaction. It isn't how much you do, it's how well you do it that counts.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You wouldn't like it very much if someone adversely prejudged you on limited, faulty information, yet this is exactly what you may do today when dealing with others.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try to limit your buying at this time to basic essentials. Subdue inclinations to acquire something just because a friend owns one. Keeping up with the Joneses could prove costly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're capable of worthwhile accomplishments today, provided you can maintain your sense of direction. Once you establish a constructive objective, keep it constantly in focus.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Under most conditions your intuitive perceptions are reliable. Today, however, they could be faulty, because they may be based upon emotions rather than logic.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There's a red flag up today pertaining to financial transactions with friends. Make sure everything is handled in a businesslike manner so there won't be any misunderstandings later.
