Chuck Best, 49, was gentle, creative, and died a hero

SANFORD - Charles "Chuck" Best trained squirrels to water ski, made children laugh, played the organ at his roller skating rink and at church, flew a plane, fixed almost everything, rode with the Florida Highway Patrol and died trying to save a life.

He is lovingly described by family and friends as a grown man who delighted people with his gentle ways, creative talents and childlike enthusiasm. He trained a squirrel named Twiggy to water-ski and trained a chimpanzee to roller-skate. He showed almost everyone how easy it is to smile.

In a service on Thursday, hundreds are expected to pay their last respects to Best, a 49-year-old Sanford resident who died Saturday afternoon on the Wekiva River while saving the life of his 85-year-old stepfather, Joseph Ticconi who fell off a houseboat.

The heroic rescue was typical of the life Best led - sacrificing himself in the face of danger. An auxiliary trooper with the Florida

High school proposes outdoor gun range

By MARIA OREM

OVIEDO - A proposed outdoor shooting range at Oviedo High School will be among the action items at today's Seminole County school board meeting.

Having outgrown its current indoor facility, the Naval Junior Reserve Officer Training Corps is asking the board to approve an expanded range for its marksmanship program.

"The program has grown tremendously since it was activated here in 1993," said Col. Joseph F. Nardo, head of the NROTC at the school.

Of the 254 cadets in the NROTC, 75 are enrolled in the marksmanship program, which has been ranked fourth among 486 in the country and first in Florida, according to Nardo.

"It's a very popular," he said. "This is an avenue for getting cadets to college through marksmanship scholarships. Last year, we had a cadet get in with a three year scholarship."

Currently operating out of a converted greenhouse at the Oviedo campus, the firing range accommodates five stations where cadets practice for two to three hours, four times a week under adult supervision. Cadets fire 177 millimeter pellet guns, similar to a pump action rifle, from 10 meters away, Nardo said. The school has 10 target guns.

The proposed new site, featuring 25 stations, will be located on the unused portion of the

Wei Wei and the American dream

He scores goals but needs a home

SANFORD - Wei Wei Yin from Jilin, China, has learned a great deal about America in the short time he has been here.

His English is improving greatly each day. So is his appreciation of the American culture.

He's made friends with his classmates at Seminole High School and is being counted on to play for coach Henry Sawyer's soccer team.

Sawyer was alerted to 17-year-old Yin by speech/drama coach Jane Epps.

"I went to her classroom to meet Wei Wei (pronounced Way Way), and we tried to communicate by giving messages on this portable translating device he had," Sawyer said.

"When this didn't work, we just started talking to each other. It was quite simple. Wei Wei asked if he could be on the soccer team. He had played in China since he was three-years-old.

"I told him when we would practice and what time for him to join us," Sawyer said. "He's been doing just fine. He'll be on the varsity. The kids like Wei Wei and he's getting to know them better each day. He's a very intelligent young man and a good athlete."

Wei Wei's greatest need is to find a home to stay while he completes his year at Seminole High School. He's on a 10-month program sponsored by ICES (The International Cultural Exchange Service).

"We need a host family for Wei Wei," said Eva Frios from ICES. "The original host family is not able to continue because of financial and health difficulties," Frios said. "We thought we had another family lined up but this did not work."

Sawyer said that he is going to ask some of the youngsters on the soccer team if their parents would allow Wei Wei to live at their home. "We didn't know until a few days ago that this was a problem. We thought arrangements had

County's 3 choices for space

By RUSSE WHITE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - The Seminole County Board of County Commissioners is holding a workshop today to determine the best of three sites proposed to house its Environmental Services staff.

The Environmental Services building is being acquired by the Florida Department of Transportation for an extension of the GreeneWay (Toll Road 417). The staff must vacate by January, 1998. The county's proposed purchase price is $1,650,000 of which $1,016,000 must be utilized for capital expenditures relating to the utility because the facility was purchased from water and sewer bond proceeds.

The three proposed sites that are being discussed at today's workshop include the newly renovated, historical Welaka Building at 114 West First Street in Sanford.

The other two sites are the Reflections Building on Lake Mary Boulevard, where the county's Directors Office and Engineering are presently housed and the county-owned Florida and Light building which would need to be renovated.

"We've got three very cost-efficient short term opportunities - each with unique advantages and disadvantages," said Commission Chairman Randy Morris. "We've got to make the decision because the other building will be coming down early in 1988."

The Welaka Building has approximately 7,100 square feet of office space and is one block away from the Seminole County Courthouse. Extensive work and monies have been expended to bring it to its current condition.

Don't let bacteria ruin your holiday celebration

Special to the Herald

Campylobacter, is the leading cause of foodborne illness in the United States. A recent front page story in The New York Times, alerts the public to the dangers of this bacteria, reporting that "unlike salmonella, which scientists are learning how to control, campylobacter continues to baffle them because they have been unable to make a dent in its pervasiveness." A random sampling conducted by the Minnesota Health Department found that 79 percent of the chickens and 58 percent of the turkeys were contaminated with campylobacter. With Thanksgiving just around the corner, this is the prime time to alert the public on how to protect themselves.

Six Tips to Prevent Food Poisoning in the Home Thanksgiving and Year-round

Shopping: To reduce cross-contamination, do not let raw meats and poultry touch other foods in shopping cart or grocery bag.

Preparing: Wash hands and disinfect surfaces and cooking equipment before preparing food and after contact with raw meats and poultry to avoid cross-contamination.

Cooking: Cook red meat until it is brown inside (160 degrees F) and poultry until juices run clear (180 degrees F).

Serving: Do not serve cooked food in dishes that have been in contact with raw meats, poultry or seafood.

Cleaning: Use an antibacterial kitchen cleaner to help kill and prevent the spread of E. coli, a major cause of foodborne illnesses, such as E. coli, salmonella and campylobacter.

* Clean and disinfect "hot zones" frequently, including refrigerator door handle, sink faucet, stove knobs and countertops.

Lake Mary girl stars on the water

By JEFF BERLINICK
Herald Staff Writer

One minute, she's flying through the air, flipping, twisting and risking her neck over alligator-infested waters.

The next minute, Leslie Kent is just a typically shy 10th-grader sitting with her mother at her kitchen table in Lake Mary.

Leslie is a nationally-acclaimed wakeboarder who has been featured in magazines, makes, let's just say, a lot more than a burger flipper in endorsements alone and a girl with more golden hardware than the set of Tool Time.

She is ranked second nationally among professionals and third world-wide in a sport that is growing as quickly as any new sport in the world.

Wakeboarding should be familiar to anyone who watched last year's X-Games, a competition of extreme sports that is sort of an Olympics for, well, extreme sports.

The premise is simple: There is a board, not much longer than a really long skateboard with two footholders. (We'll stay away from wakeboarding's terms such as tantrums, scarecrows and frontside front flips and try to keep this in layman's terms.)

While on the board, you are attached by a rope with a triangular handle to a boat, and the rest is up to the athlete. If you don't mind doing somersaults, twists, backflips and just about contorting your body in any way possible while attached to a speedboat, then wakeboarding is for you.

"If you're good at it, you just are," Leslie said. "You have to be daring and you can't be scared to try anything. Just have fun."

Oh yeah, then there's the alligators. It seems that to practice for competitions, there are times that the waters may be the home to some gators and that doesn't mean Steve Spurrier.

Sixteen-year-old Leslie Kent is a normal 10th-grade student at Lake Mary High School. That is, when she's not flying through the air as a world-class wakeboarder. Incredibly enough, she's only been competing in the sport for a little over a year.

"The only thing that really scares me are the gators," said her mom, Sandra Kent. "I cringe and it really rattles me when she's jumping in the air 10 feet high and there are alligators under her but she always lands on her feet."

Leslie started in the sport just over a year ago when she attended a water sports camp in Orlando. She has always been a surfer and an accomplished skateboarder so she was eager to try wakeboarding. It didn't take long before the guy who became her coach -

Charley Patterson - told Sandra that her daughter could make a lot of money in wakeboarding. Her father, Larry, got a boat and soon, Leslie was entering competitions all over the country after finishing near the top in many Orlando events. Trips this past summer included Sacramento, Calif., Portland and Dallas, and she finished first in the Florida X-Cup competition.

Although she is ranked second nationally, behind Tina Beasinger, who also lives in Lake Mary, she has beaten Beasinger before and is keeping a close eye on her national ranking.

"There aren't many professional women," Leslie said. "If you are really good and fall, you are out of it but if you don't fall, it's easy to improve your ranking."

The wakeboarding community has noticed. She has been featured extensively in magazines and was dubbed one of the "Great Unknowns" by Wakeboarder Magazine. She is also an endorser for national firms such as Sector 9 (skateboards), Blind Side (wakeboards), Black Flies (sunglasses), Body Glove (wet suits), Digit 3 (shoes), and Rainbow Fins.

Not bad money for a 16-year-old who's just started attending driver's ed.

It hasn't always been easy. Last summer, Leslie was heading for Georgia when she and some of her wakeboarder friends decided it was time for a practice run. Leslie has been asked to help out and give advice at a water sports camp and just wanted to practice. A few minutes later, she landed on her head, suffering a concussion and had to be revived by one of her friends who happened to be there.

It was a scary moment, but Leslie still made it to the camp.

It isn't the only injury Leslie has suffered. For someone who makes a living off of her balancing skills, there was the time she fell down simply running up some steps and broke her nose. Still, she usually finds a way to land on her feet.

Especially when it comes to school work at Lake Mary High School. She used to participate with the Drama Club but time constraints have proven to be too much. Instead, she just concentrates on wakeboarding and her Honor Roll status at the school.

The future? That's as up in the air as it is to any 10th-grader but, then again, Leslie Kent spends most of her time in the air.

Former students honor teacher at luncheon

Special to the Herald

"It's hard to give a man credit for making you a strong black woman, but I have to give Mr. Childs the credit for making me what I am today," said Tori P. Telfair who attended the recognition luncheon for Clarence Childs, vice president for student affairs at Bethune-Cookman College.

The mission was top secret and organizers were successful in surprising the honoree. "It was a great surprise. I never expected anything like this," Childs said later. "I had a chance to see a lot of students I had not seen in a while. I had no idea I had made this type of impression on the students."

Clarence N. Childs grew up in Lakeland and is a former resident of Sanford. Even before he attended Florida A & M University, he was a scholar, a star athlete and a popular guy. He was a member of the National Honor Society, set records in baseball and football and was chosen as Homecoming King in his senior year at Rochelle High School. In college he continued his athletic career, setting records in track and football.

Childs was the first athlete from Lakeland to play in the NFL. He played with the New York Giants, and the Chicago Bears and in 1964 he led the NFL in kick-off returns.

His wife, Jessie, said they have a wonderful marriage because they work together as a team. "That's the secret, being a team," Jessie Childs said. "I am a good listener, his best confidant and he is also very supportive of me and my career."

Jessie Childs is the principal at Palm Terrace Elementary in Daytona Beach. Clarence and Jessie were married in 1971 and she said she is, "very proud to have had this relationship with him throughout the years." Jessie Childs is a native of Alachua, Fla., and a graduate of Bethune-Cookman College. The Childs have two children, Eric and Clarice, and three grandchildren.

Telfair, a 1994 graduate, is a teacher in Fort Lauderdale. She was one of several former SGA presidents who came back to the college during Homecoming week to honor Childs, who is now in his 29th year at B-CC.

Gerald Yancey, class of '89, helped to organize the event along with other members of the alumni. "I thought it was time to tell Mr. Childs how much we appreciate his leadership," Yancey said. "Because of his presence, we are able to make a better life, we are better people." Yancey is em-played in the public school system in Fort Lauderdale.

T. Eileen Martin and Childs was like a foster father. "He was a kind man, always supportive and patient," she said.

"During her remarks at the luncheon Martin thanked Childs for doing the tough things like being the only administrator at the pre-dawn dances; for prohibiting hazing on campus; for sending students home after the food fight in the cafeteria and for letting the SGA have the experience of planning activities that he knew were destined to fail.

"Mr. Childs' contribution to B-CC can not be measured in words," Martin concluded. "But only in the lives of the students who have been enriched, guided and lifted to a commendable level of moral and Christian responsibility."

Martin, class of '82, was the first female to head the SGA in the history of the college. She is an elementary school teacher in Miami.

Bernard Gary, a 1983 graduate, said Childs had a reputation for being friendly and open to new ideas. "He made my experience at B-CC a very positive one. We are still good friends," Gary said.

Gary majored in accounting. He now owns a Subway franchise in Fort Lauderdale.

Motivational speaker Milton Creagh was the SGA president for the 1978-79 academic year.

SOS hosts formal ball for charity

Special to the Herald

LONGWOOD - Formed in 1968, the Seminole Ornament Society, (SOS) acts as a liaison with local charities and government agencies in order to grant holiday wishes to disadvantaged people in Central Florida.

An annual, formal dinner dance holiday gift generator for local charities will be held December 7 from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. SOS will host a black-tie holiday dinner dance at the Orlando North Hilton, with music and entertainment. Guests in attendance bring in gifts for needy children and senior citizens to charity representatives at the Ball.

One either attends the Ball by being invited by a corporate sponsor, being part of a table, or buying an individual couple ticket. With each invitation comes two (2) stick-on gift tags. One calls the RSVP number to confirm attendance to the Ball, and at the same time, each Ball attendee offers to purchase one or more gifts for needy individuals. You will be given a person's name and charitable agency to put on the gift tag and then attach to the gift. The evening of the Ball you bring your gift(s) in and drop them off at the charitable organization's table.

Getting involved is easy. Corporations may use the Ball to entertain clients, recognize staff and participate in good-will efforts in the community. Friends and family enjoy this event for the fine food and dancing which range from big band to top 40 hits.

Monetary and gift donations are also accepted from anyone in the community who is interested in helping the needy during the holidays. For more information contact Bonnie Manjura at 261-5720.

Phone calls reimbursed

Special to the Herald

TALLAHASSEE-As a result of a PSC investigation, Florida's consumers who have been billed unknowingly for collect calls from an automated solicitation, under the name "Lottery Disbursements," will receive credits.

The billing resulted when consumers, receiving a call from a firm identifying itself as "Lottery Disbursements," pressed "1" on their telephones in response to the computer-generated call. ComNet, the company which billed the calls, has agreed to issue credits to all Florida consumers who were billed for the calls. The credit will be issued within two billing cycles on the consumer's local telephone bill.

"We are pleased to have assisted in the investigation of this fraudulent act and to be able to assure consumers that they will be reimbursed," PSC Chairman Julia Johnson said. Consumers who were billed and don't receive a credit in the prescribed amount of time, should call the Public Service Commission's toll-free number, 1-800-342-3882.

Extra Health Coverage, Without Plan Premiums.

Since we began offering our Medicare Complete health plan for people on Medicare, the response has been overwhelming. Odessa Bordeaux writes: "I'd recommend Medicare Complete to everybody for the simple reason that they don't know the advantages that they are missing." Harry Mikdasz had this to say about our plan: "As far as my health is concerned, it's a lifesaver."

These letters really aren't too surprising. After all, Medicare Complete costs nothing extra if you have Medicare Parts A & B* (you must continue to pay your Part B premiums).

Yet it offers more benefits than Medicare alone. Like $10 office visits, $5 copays for prescriptions ($1000 annual limit), 100% hospital coverage and a large network of contracted physicians and specialists.

Find out what so many others already know: Medicare Complete gives you the extra coverage you've earned, at no extra cost.

Editorial/Opinion

WILLIAM A. RUSHER

Conservative manifesto on China

In recent months the conservative movement has been embarrassed by a sharp division of opinion on the subject of trade with China.

Important spokesmen and institutions — most notably the immensely influential Heritage Foundation — have argued that using trade policy as a weapon to try to force Beijing to improve its dismal record in the field of "human rights" is at best futile and at worst counterproductive.

Other leading conservatives, such as Gary Bauer of the Family Research Council and the Weekly Standard, have insisted that America has no business treating as an ordinary trading partner a regime that has killed and jailed dissidents, persecuted many thousands of Christians for their religion, and profited from the sweat of slave labor.

Personally I have leaned, and still lean, to the latter view. As the late President Chiang Ching-kuo of the Republic of China on Taiwan once said to me, "If America doesn't stand for freedom, what does it stand for?" I don't think "profits" is much of an answer.

But there are conservatives of unsalable integrity on both sides of the issue, so it was good news that former Attorney General Edwin Meese and others have taken the trouble to hammer out a statement that has won an impressive measure of assent from notable conservatives in both camps. Entitled "Statement of Principles on China Policy," it should make it possible for all but the most uncompromising conservatives to close ranks on this subject — and thereby increase

Thus, without attempting to ride out ordinary trade, the statement calls for firmly forbidding the import of goods produced by slave labor, and discouraging trade with the many firms controlled by the People's Liberation Army. On the critical issue of sharing high-tech secrets, the statement declares that "U.S. licensing requirements on export of existing supercomputers and sensitive technologies which can facilitate China's military modernization must be tightened."

In addition, the statement forthrightly demands "that Hong Kong maintain control over its own economic, social, and political order," and warns that "The U.S. must maintain the military capacity and will to resist any use of force or any other type of coercion that would jeopardize the security or social and economic system of the people of Taiwan."

What are most remarkable, however, are the names of those who (in their personal capacities) signed this statement. They include, in addition to Edwin J. Feulner Jr., president of the Heritage Foundation, such prominent geopolitical realists as President Reagan's U.N. Ambassador, Jeane Kirkpatrick, and former Ambassador to China James Lilley, as well as such strident critics of "business as usual" as the aforementioned Gary Bauer, Christian Coalition president Donald Hodel, and Free Congress Foundation president and CEO Paul Weyrich.

Altogether, 12 prominent conservatives signed the statement. Of course, those further out in both directions are unrepresented. The editors of the Weekly Standard apparently feel that any trade with China whatever is too much; and, at the other end of the spectrum, the Kissinger coterie (Scowcroft, Eagleburger, Hyland, etc.) evidently thought the statement was too tough on its friends (and clients) in Beijing.

Naturally the media, with the signal exception of the Washington Times, didn't even bother to report that the statement had been issued. The pronouncements of conservatives, it seems, just don't have enough heft to merit coverage.

But this, nonetheless, is a standard to which the wise and honest can repair. Waging all-out economic war against China might be exhilarating, but it would almost certainly just strengthen the hand of those in the regime who want confrontation with the United States. The time for that may come, but for the moment the firm but prudent policy outlined in this impressive statement deserves our attention and our support.

been confirmed but they hadn't been."

Because of a bad situation, Wei Wei has encountered enormous difficulties getting to school, and home from soccer practice. "It's not fair what's happening to this terrific young man," said Seminole High Athletic Director Mike Powers. "The kids love him to death. We're aware of his need for a host family. We truly hope someone comes forward to help."

Eppo said that Wei Wei, junior, is doing extremely well in class, that he's from a very well-educated family. "His mother is a physician," she said.

Before he worked with the soccer team Friday, Wei Wei Yin talked about how he wants to be a good host to Americans when they come to visit his country. "I want to speak this language well and I want to understand the culture."

He said he played defense on his soccer team in China but would like to be a midfielder with the Seminole High School team. His coach said the Seminole County Soccer Jam-

MORTON KONDRACK

Pols pander to education extremists

Republicans carry an albatross marked "extremism" that's only getting heavier as the party — pressured by its right wing — moves to kill President Clinton's plan for national education testing.

Clinton and his fellow Democrats deserve as much or more public opprobrium for their opposition to all forms of private school choice, but they have the political advantage of not bearing the extremism albatross.

Ideally, Republicans and Democrats should unite on a plan that would permit both testing and experiments in school choice. Both parties could reap political rewards by passing measures that would improve the quality of the nation's schools. Instead, however, the parties are stuck in ideological ruts, with moderates on both sides forced to bend to the demands of hardliners. The conflict could lead Clinton to veto the entire $277 billion Labor-HHS Education appropriations bill, which would be an extreme act but one that he'd probably get away with politically.

(I confess to a conflict of interest here. The Labor-HHS bill contains a significant increase in funding for the National Institutes of Health and Parkinson's disease research specifically, which I'm personally interested in and which might be eliminated if the bill is vetoed.)

Among Republicans, education policy is so divisive that it momentarily reignited calls for the head of House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., until he repudiated a perfectly reasonable compromise on the testing issue.

Ironically, national testing is a Republican idea first advanced by President Bush's Education secretary, Lamar Alexander, as a means of giving parents objective measures to use in holding their schools accountable.

Alexander's America 2000 plan might have created up to 15 national tests for fourth, eighth and 12th graders in English, math, history, geography and science, which states would have been free to administer to their students.

MORTON KONDRACKE

Democrats so adamantly opposed national testing, however, that the plan went nowhere until Clinton revived the idea this year and made it the keystone of his education policy.

Clinton plans just two national tests, for reading in the fourth grade and math in the eighth, but now it's the Republicans who are going to war over it.

Rep. William Goodling, R-Pa., chairman of the House Education and the Workforce Committee, represents one strain of GOP opposition not too different from that of the Democrats in 1991.

A former school superintendent, he echoes the education establishment — including the teachers unions — in opposing more testing when the resources could be used to upgrade classroom teaching.

Advocates of national testing argue, however, that no reliable national measure of student achievement exists and that private tests used by various states are not comparable.

Yet another strain of GOP opposition, taken up with a vengeance by hard-line conservatives, is based on the fear that national testing will lead to a national curriculum "dictated" by the Department of Education.

Proponents of the tests reply that math and reading standards ought to be uniformly high across the country, but to make sure the federal government isn't "dictating" anything, authority over the tests has been vested in an independent board.

Conservatives are still opposed, however, and so is Goodling, who has the added incentive, according to colleagues, of wanting to ward off a Republican primary challenge in Pennsylvania.

Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., ranking member on the House appropriations committee, came up with a reasonable compromise that would let the administration go ahead with test planning but give Goodling the power to stop its implementation, and the deal seemed to have the blessing of House and Senate GOP leaders last week. Obey said that if Clinton vetoed the deal, he'd lead an override effort.

The deal fell apart, however, when Goodling and hard-line conservatives opposed it and GOP leaders walked away from it, causing House Appropriations Chairman Bob Livingston, R-La., to storm out of a leadership meeting and leading other Republicans to call for Gingrich's scalp for even considering a deal.

On the Democratic side, meanwhile, liberals oppose public school choice — "charter schools" — so much that their leading Democratic advocate, Rep. Tim Wroener of Indiana, was denied four times to argue for them.

And three GOP proposals to encourage private school choice — one through the tax system, another by the states, and a third in the District of Columbia — face near-total Democratic opposition and presidential vetoes, despite the fact that many poor children are forced to attend unsafe and failing public schools.

Polls indicate that the public is divided on both national testing and private school choice. Forty-nine percent support testing, according to the NBC/Wall Street Journal poll, and 47 percent oppose it. Forty-five percent favor giving parents vouchers to pay for private schools and 54 percent oppose it, although minority parents overwhelmingly support vouchers.

Polls indicate huge support, though, for quality education. But instead of giving it to the public, both parties are pandering to their extremes. In this equation, Republicans will suffer, but so will schoolchildren.

driver's education range. Shooting will be to the east, away from students and school buildings. According to the proposal, the range, which will be situated in undeveloped areas with target placement 300 meters deep, has been designed with maximum safety concerns.

"There is absolutely no risk of injury where we want this to be," Nardo said. "Weapons are always under a controlled environment. As an added safety measure, he said there will be a visual sweeping of the area prior to any shooting with a 30-minute safety briefing" preceding the marksmanship session, which is always held after school, never during.

Regarding recent safety concerns raised by Oviedo City Manager Ome Milligan and the president of the Little League, which has a field located adjacent to the proposed range site, Nardo said those fears have been assuaged.

"They were briefed and given a tour," he said, adding that the proposed site has also been approved by the school board's insurance representative, Dick Nolte.

In the four years, the program has operated and after more than 30,000 pellet rounds, not one pellet has been fired outside the surrounding steel trap. Bales of straw act as an added safety net, he said. In addition, he said, there is no cost associated with the proposed range.

Responding to an unnamed woman's recent complaint questioning whether the range violated the schools' zero weapons policy, Oviedo High School Principal Robert Lundquist said it appears to be a lot of to do about nothing, saying that he saw no difference between the pellet rifles or a scalpel used in a biology class or sculpting tools used in an art class.

"This is not a weapon," Lundquist said. "It's simply a pellet gun, which is part of the NROTC curriculum, used to enhance marksmanship abilities. It's perfectly safe and given all the facts, I feel comfortable with the range being at the school."

School board chairman Sandy Robinson, who is familiar with the NROTC at Oviedo, said she supported the program and the proposed range.

"The entire program is just wonderful," Robinson said. "I don't have a problem with this."

Both Lundquist and Nardo will attend the school board meeting at 7 p.m. at the Educational Support Center, 400 E. Lake Mary Blvd., Sanford.

Best

Highway Patrol for 22 years. Best volunteered in recent years to help his community any way he could. The troopers will provide an honor guard at his funeral.

"As sad as it is for people to suddenly have to say good-bye to Chuck, it surprises none of us that he died a hero," said long-time Sanford resident, Doug Stenstrom.

"Just recently my son was telling us, 'I hope I'm helping someone when I die,'" said his mother, Emmeline Ticconi. "That was Chuckie. It was like he knew something was going to happen."

The incident on the Wekiva was terribly sudden. Mr. Ticconi was at the rear end of the houseboat, a new "plaything" Chuck Best and a friend had acquired. The Saturday outing was supposed to have been a fun time for Best, Ticconi and two teen-agers - Best's 15-year-old son, Chuckie, and his pal, 14-year-old Spencer Green.

Emmeline Ticconi said her husband accidentally fell through a gate area at the rear of the boat. Chuck Best was at the bow of the boat and when he heard the noise and was aware of what had happened, he immediately jumped into the water to make the rescue.

Best, a strong swimmer, was able to get Ticconi safely to shore, and then tried to return to the houseboat.

"He wasn't able to make it," Emmeline Ticconi said. "We believe he had a heart attack. He called out to young Chuckie to throw a rope to him but this didn't work. 'Hurry,' he called. 'We don't have much time.'"

Other boaters scooped Best from the water and started giving him cardiopulmonary resuscitation, but their boat flipped according to a witness. Best did not regain consciousness. The Seminole County Medical Examiner's Office has not determined the cause of death, but Emmeline Ticconi strongly believed her son had a heart attack. "His blood pressure was high," she said. "He was at risk."

She said she had called her son Friday night, and asked him to come to her home to fix a VCR.

"He could fix anything," she said. "He was there in a few minutes and fixed the VCR."

The Rev. Paul Hoyer of Holy Cross Lutheran Church said that he considered Best one of his dearest friends. "We, too, called for him to help when things needed fixing," Hoyer said Monday. "If it was a plumbing problem, he fixed it.

A leak. An appliance. Whatever, he could fix it."

Hoyer said he knew Best for 14 years, "and he never said 'no' to me." Sometimes the two would play golf if the pastor had time. "When I couldn't seem to break away, he kept after me."

"Then, one Sunday, I noticed when the collection plate was brought to the altar there was a golf ball in it. Sure, enough Chuck put the ball in the collection and had a note on it, saying he would take care of the greens fees."

"My dad was a lot of fun," said 25-year-old Lalaisia Miller, the oldest of Charles and Lou Ann Best's three children. (Charles is 15, Tabatha Annette 14.) "He loved having fun and making sure everyone else was having fun, too. He'd do anything for everyone."

"He gave me this little remote-controlled boat that eventually was the reason he trained the first Twigg (the squirrel) to water ski from it," Lalaisia Miller said. "Someone kidded my dad about getting the boat for himself but he got it for me."

"He came up with the idea to get a squirrel to water ski after helping to nurse a squirrel who had been ill. I remember The Sanford Herald doing a story about this. Soon, everyone wanted to know about the squirrel that water-skied."

Best and Twigg were famous on television, appearing on shows like Good Morning America.

Not only did Best demonstrate Twigg's unique talent on TV, he appeared with the squirrel at many functions in Sanford and even toured many other cities. Correct Craft, which manufactured the boat, sponsored Best.

His daughter said that there were three Twiggs in all. "Not all squirrels could water ski," she said. "But my dad found at least three he could train."

Len Jones, who works for the Sanford Recreation Department, remembers roller-skating with her friends at the Melodee Skating Rink in Sanford. Chuck Best's dad, the late Jacob Shealy Best, began the business in 1969, moved it to Sanford two years later.

Chuck Best ran the rink until May, 1996 when it was sold and was renamed Central Florida Skate and Sport. They play a lot of roller hockey at rink these days. In days gone by, it was mostly skating to the music - and Chuck Best himself played the music on an organ. For many of the kids of yesteryear, his melody plays on.

"The man was a community hero," said Chief Deputy Sheriff Steve Harriett. "Everyone who grew up here knew him one way or another. He was very affable. He did everything he could for our young people and he made a lot of friends. There's no doubt he is held in high esteem by his Florida Highway Patrol family and by all law enforcement agencies."

Services for Charles Best will be conducted on Thursday at Central Baptist Church on Route 46. The Rev. Hoyer said that Holy Cross Lutheran Church was under repairs and that the Baptist Church had allowed the service to be conducted there.

Those wishing to pay their respects to Best can do so on Wednesday afternoon and evening at Grambow Funeral Home on Airport Blvd.

One of Best's friends affectionately said that she expects some of the squirrels of the city might be wearing black mourning bands in honor of Best. "He would like that and be glad," his mother said.

fore it was demolished. Around the corner from The Montezuma stood the Martin house. In 1905 Rogers moved to a house on Elm Avenue in Sanford. Rogers' opportunity presented itself last year when the Martin house was put up for sale.

The Colonial Revival house was built circa 1912 for Mrs. A. Martin. In 1917 the house was sold to Mrs. Minnie Jones. It is believed that baseball players, in town for winter camp, may have rented rooms at the house. Oral history of the house abounds. Rogers has met relatives and others who remember playing in the house as children. According to one story Minnie Jones' bed frame was too large to fit up the stairway so Minnie turned the front parlor into her bedroom.

Rogers has an extensive professional background in the theater. In addition to being a member of the Board of Directors for the Ritz Theatre he also produces and directs Ritz's productions. Using his expertise, and records and old photographs, Rogers has succeeded in creating a three dimensional Victorian set. Rogers is pleased with his "slice of history and Victorian charm". The house was structurally intact. "It had good bone structure, but it needed makeup," says Rogers.

The enchanted journey into the past begins the moment a visitor ascends the front steps. The inviting porch might tempt one not to venture further, but it would be a shame to miss what's inside. The interior is elegant and welcoming, furnished with antiques purchased from shops in downtown Sanford. Each room is decorated to compliment the heritage of the house. Old family photographs add a personal touch to the decor.

Rogers opened the Martin House as a Bed and Breakfast in October. The house has a comforting, homey feel. "It's like staying overnight at grandma's house," says Pritchard who helps Rogers run the Bed and Breakfast. The Martin House will be one of the homes featured during the Sanford Historic Trust 9th Annual Holiday Tour of Homes.

Creugh, who came from Atlanta for the event, said of Childs. "He believed in me. He was always there for me." Creugh was a business major at B.C.C. In addition to public speaking, he has produced several television shows. One program, "Pumpkin Man" is scheduled to be aired next year on NBC.

Eldrina Jones, class of '91, presented Childs with a copy of the classic helping hand painting which shows the hand of an older man reaching down to pull up a younger person. She said this defines Childs' relationship with his students.

Childs was introduced at the Homecoming game and he received a plaque with the names of the 29 SGA presidents he had supervised over the years.

During a pause in Homecoming activities, he took a moment to read the plaque. He smiled as he recalled each student and their major. He even knew where they were living and what they were doing. "This was the first time I had seen all the names at one time. This was a real highlight for me," Childs said. "The time passed so quickly. I often wondered if I was really getting through to some of them."

Johnston, Lions top Bulldogs
 ST. CLOUD - Mary Lou Johnston tied a state-record by making eight three-pointers and scored 34 points as Oviedo crushed home-standing St. Cloud 64-46 in a girls' basketball game Saturday night.

The Lions took a 23-11 lead after the first quarter and proceeded to outscore the Bulldogs in every quarter but the fourth to win their fourth game without a defeat this season.

Johnston was 13-for-19 from the floor and also had seven assists for Oviedo. Lynette Smiley chipped in with 10 points.

UCF women ink Ooten
 ORLANDO - University of Central Florida head coach Lynn Bria announced the signing of Rhonda Ooten on Monday.

Ooten, a 5-foot-8 point guard from Georgetown High School in Georgetown, Texas, averaged 12.3 points and 7.2 assists per game during her junior year. She was named all-district her sophomore and junior years and earned all-regional and all-state honors as a junior.

"Rhonda comes from an established winning program and will be a valuable addition to our team," said Bria. "She is a fundamentally sound point guard and her skills should allow her to make the quick impact we need from her next year."

UCF will lose senior point guard Kelli Murray to graduation after this season.

Ooten was a member of the Class 5A Texas State Semifinalist team her sophomore year and has been to the National AAU Tournament six times. An all-around athlete, she has lettered in cross country, basketball and track and has qualified for the Texas State Cross Country Meet twice.

A solid student-athlete, Ooten has earned academic all-district three times. She is member of the National Honor Society and has been named "Who's Who in Sports" and "Who's Who Among American High School Students." Last year, Ooten earned the Academic Excellence Recognition Award.

The Golden Knights open the 1997-98 season at Radford University on November 21st at 7 p.m.

Milk Challenge hoop tickets
 ORLANDO - Media Services and Production Group Incorporated, promoter and event producer for the sixth annual Milk Challenge Basketball Classic, has announced that tickets are now on sale for the annual Florida vs. Florida State basketball clash at the Orlando Arena.

FSU holds a 3-1 edge in this series over its state rival Florida, and will seek to make it three in-a-row following a 74-52 triumph in 1995 and a 79-65 victory last year. Florida last won in 1994, taking a 71-65 double overtime victory in what would become a "final four season." The game will also be televised live by Sunshine Network.

This year's event will take place on Sunday, December 14, beginning with a Gator and Semi-

Leaving no doubt Half-N-Half sets run record in pennant clinching victory

From Staff Reports
 SANFORD - Tom Kelly, Brenda Hartsfield and Jerry Camus combined to score 12 runs as Half-N-Half claimed the regular season championship of the Sanford Recreation Department Fall Co-Ed Slowpitch Softball League with a 25-12 thumping of Beer :30 at Pinehurst Park Monday night.

Half-N-Half was forced to win their game after Chang's Car Care got a 7-0 forfeit victory from C & L Timber.

Kelly, Brenda Hartsfield and Camus scored four runs each, while Raymond Hartsfield and Mike Davis crossed the plate three times each as Half-N-Half ran up the highest run total for an one game this season.

Half-N-Half finishes the regular season 7-2, while Chang's Car Care was 6-3, Beer :30 was 3-6 and C & L Timber was 2-7.

The league will play its single-elimination post-season tournament next Monday night at Pinehurst Park.

At 6:30 p.m., Half-N-Half will take on C & L Timber and at 7:30 p.m., Chang's Car Care will battle Beer :30. The winners from the first two games will then return to the field for the championship game at 8:30 p.m.

Raiders go to 6-0 with Sunday matinee victory

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD - The Seminole Community College women's basketball team got over a major hurdle Sunday afternoon as it scored the game's final 18 points over the final three minutes to defeat Miami-Dade Community College 92-75 at the SCC Health and Physical Education Center.

The Jaguars scored the game's first basket, but the Raiders scored 18 of the next 20 to take an 18-4 lead and held a 39-29 lead at intermission.

But SCC was also getting into foul trouble as 7-foot center Jaana Kotova and 6-foot-2 forward Jennifer Sweeney were forced to spend considerable time on the bench.

Despite having to play a small lineup, the Raiders maintained the lead through most of the second half as every time MDCC closed to within a point or two, SCC would answer.

The Jaguars finally tied the game at 56-56 on three-pointers by Sanders with 12:04 left on the clock and took only their second lead of the game, 75-74, when Sanders nailed another "three" with 3:00 left.

But the Raiders, who at one point were only eight for 20 from the free throw line, made six straight free throws and also got a huge three-pointer from way downtown by Daria Kudryvtseva as they scored the final 18 points to win the game going away.

Another key to the SCC rally was the defense, which forced 44 turnovers for the game, including 10 in the final three minutes as the Jaguars tried to force the action to catch up.

Dave Thomas of the Jacksonville Jaguars wins the battle for the jump ball on the try for a "Hail Mary" pass as the Jags held off the Tennessee Oilers 17-9 and remained tied for first place in the Central Division of the American Football Conference.

Jaguars remained tied for first

By JEFF BERLINICK
Herald Staff Writer

JACKSONVILLE - Two Jacksonville Jaguars who definitely won't have to be concerned with making reservations for a trip to Honolulu are Seth Payne and Renaldo Wynn.

Of all the players on the Jaguars, the two rookie defensive linemen are probably the last players who come to mind, but they came through big Sunday as the Jaguars defeated the Tennessee Oilers, 17-9 at Alltel Stadium.

The Jaguars' win coupled with Denver's loss at Kansas City, puts Jacksonville into a tie for second with Kansas City and Pittsburgh for top-seed in the AFC playoffs. Denver is one game ahead of the pack but has the most difficult schedule of the teams fighting for the advantage.

Jacksonville's line has been depleted as the season has gone along, and Sunday coach Tom Coughlin was forced to start the rookies in place of Kelvin Pritchett.

John Jurkovich and Tony Brackens. Pritchett and Jurkovich are gone for the season, so it was time for the rookies to step in.

Payne, known more among his teammates as a brainiac from Cornell, made tackles on the first two plays of the game and Wynn, who hasn't made much of a contribution since being drafted from Notre Dame in the first round this season, came up big as Tennessee's Eddie George was held to only 49 yards rushing.

"They tried to intimidate us," Wynn said. "They did some talking to us but that's what they do to all rookies. We knew they would try to run at us but we just decided to step it up."

Payne has been on the inactive list for most of the season but made the most of his opportunity.

"We had a lot of pressure on us," Payne said. "We knew it and we knew the team depended on Renaldo and me."

Coughlin isn't known for dishing out compliments but he singled out Wynn and Payne in his post-game comments.

"The rookies came through for us," Coughlin said. "We're very happy with their effort."

He couldn't have been happy with his team's offensive effort. The Jaguars gained only 100 yards rushing and Matrone Means and James Stewart each fumbled in Tennessee territory. Quarterback Mark Brunell was 22 of 30 for 267 yards, his highest output in four games, but he was forced out of the pocket all afternoon and sacked twice.

The Jaguars had a glued-together offensive line with pro-bowler Tony Boselli out with a high ankle sprain, so the Jaguars had three of five linemen out of their normal positions.

Both offenses sputtered early but Jacksonville finally got on the board when Brunell found Keenen McCardell with a 17-yard touchdown bullet in the back of the end zone.

Al Del Greco made a 35-yard field goal to make it 7-3 at the half but Payne made the big play, stuffing George on a third-and-one at the Jacksonville 17.

Jacksonville struck again in the third quarter as Means went off tackle from a yard out.

The play was set up when Brunell found Jimmy Smith on a third-and-long with a 35-yard pass. Smith was clobbered on the play but got up for the second time all game. Earlier, he suffered bruised ribs after taking a vicious shot over the middle.

McCardell took some good-natured kidding from Smith several weeks ago after suffering a rib injury of his own so it was time for some payback.

but I don't know about mentally," said SCC head coach Ken Patrick. "We didn't practice for the last two days, so we were stronger physically, but I don't think we played real smart for a lot of the game."

The Raiders didn't exactly take care of the ball either as they collected 36 turnovers for the game.

Despite the foul difficulties, SCC still had its usual balanced attack led by Chinita Lee with 20 points, five rebounds and three steals and Kudryvtseva with 18 points, three steals and six assists.

Also contributing for the Raiders were Izzy Medhanie (15 points, 14 rebounds, six steals, three assists), Kotova (14 points, 12 rebounds, seven blocked shots), Jennifer Sweeney (10 points, seven rebounds) and Crystal Tanner (nine points, two rebounds, four steals, five assists).

Sanders and S. Meikle both scored 19 points to lead the Jaguars, while N. McKisick netted 15 points. Meikle also had a team-high 12 rebounds.

SCC is now 6-0 on the season and will head to Ft. Pierce for a Wednesday night matchup with Indian River Community College starting at 6 p.m.

This Friday night, one of the strongest tournament fields in the country will take the SCC hardwood as the Raiders will host the HealthSouth Classic.

In round one, defending state champion Central Florida Community College from Ocala, ranked No. 3 in the nation and No. 1 in the state currently, will take on No. 2 state ranked Gulf Coast Community College from Panama City at 6 p.m. and at 8 p.m., SCC will welcome an always strong Palm Beach Community College team from Lake Worth.

The loser's of the first round will play in the Consolation Contest at 1 p.m. on Saturday, prior to the championship game between Friday's winning teams at 3 p.m. All SCC games are played the air-conditioned Health and Physical Education Center and there is no charge to attend.

Seminole linemen go about their business in anonymity

By KELLIE WERNER
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY _ While Deon Howard and Joc Knight were racking up yardage and newspaper clippings, they just sat back and watched.

While reporters were hovering around the big play makers, they congratulated each other for a job well done.

And while the running backs and wide receivers were moving their team up the field, they were making it happen.

In Friday night's nail biter at Don T. Reynolds Stadium, Seminole beat Lake Mary, 7-6 in overtime.

Once again, quarterback Garrett Goldsmith and wide receiver Erick Smith were surrounded by reporters and well wishers while the offensive linemen faded into the crowd. All of the notoriety wouldn't be possible, however, if the offensive linemen weren't doing their jobs. They make the holes for the running backs. They keep the defense off of the quarterback. And they allow their teammates to take all the credit for the big plays.

"I might lead the line in state," said offensive tackle Jeff Faine. "But there is no leader on the line. We all work together and get the job done. We know when we do a good job and don't need a lot of attention."

Even though the Tribe won last night, Faine and his counterparts were not exceptionally happy with their performance. Knight, Howard and Clarence Lattimer were unable to gain much yardage and the line blamed themselves.

"We came out flat," Faine said. "We were not on top of our game. If we expect to play well next week, we are going to have to step it up."

Next week is the beginning of post season play for the 'Noles. They will travel to Merritt Island to begin their quest for a state title.

Could that be the reason why they were a little flat? Were they looking toward next week instead of concentrating on the task at hand?

"No, I don't think so," Faine said. "We just weren't on our game. There was a lot of excitement about this game and the fact that we won in overtime is awesome."

Because of its loss to Mainland last week, Seminole will be on the road for at the least the first week of the playoffs. If they intend to continue past district play and have home field advantage at any time, the offensive line will have to keep up the good work for a few more weeks.

Host's Christmas hospitality not extended to everyone

DEAR ABBY: Every year, I throw a Christmas party for 25 or 30 people. What is the polite response when I'm asked by a prior attendee, whom I do not wish to invite, if I am throwing a party again this year?

This happened three times last year, and I don't know how to handle the question. I could never respond with a blunt, "Yes, but you're not invited." Nor would I be comfortable with the lie of "No." So I usually stammer some vague nonanswer about not even having my Christmas cards out yet.

My honest response would be, "I am - but regrettably, I just can't invite everyone I would like to. Let's plan to get together after the holidays."

I don't want to cause the hurt feelings that being excluded would create, especially when it is someone whose company I enjoy. At the same time, though, I am blessed with a large circle of friends and

Volunteer of the Week

Docent works toward goal as a zoo-keeper

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD--Tim Pinkerton is employed at Walt Disney World's Epcot Center in merchandise but he still makes time to exert his extra time and energy in work for the Central Zoological Park.

He noted that his initial interest in working for the zoo stemmed from his desire to become established in this field for future employment with a zoo and this valuable experience would assist in this endeavor.

With a degree in biology in his favor, Pinkerton shared that he also loves animals and working with the public, especially children, so his interest stays fueled by his continual interaction with both.

"Eventually I want to be a keeper at a zoo," he said. "I really enjoy this work. It's a lot of fun and I get a lot of enjoyment out of it as well as doing it for the experience."

He added that he was enrolled in the docent class for one day a week for 11 weeks. "I learned a lot about the animals at the zoo," he said. "We had tests on the material covered and learned the proper protocol and how to handle the animals and how to work with all types of animals."

As he discussed the various animals he cited that his favorite was the owl. "I worked with the screech owl," he said. "I like the owl because they are a bird of prey and you don't always get to get up close to them outdoors."

He continued by saying, "I like working with reptiles too. Snakes don't bother me either. I just don't like working with spiders as much. We even keep the tarantula in a glass container."

With over a year now volunteering at the zoo, Pinkerton concluded by saying, "It's a work I love being a part of. We frequently go to outreaches like schools, area events and that and I like the fact that I'm getting a lot of good experience." For more information about docent volunteer opportunities with the Central Florida Zoological Park in Sanford, call Terri Begle, the volunteer coordinator, at 323-4450 ext. 121.

Christmas Cactus native to rain forests

The Christmas Cactus, contrary to what you may expect, is native to the rain forests, where it can be found hanging on trees. Its pendulous growth makes it ideal for hanging baskets. The plant does not have leaves but flattened, jointed, green stems that look like leaves with pointed lobes, clawlike in appearance. Because the stem segments resemble crab's legs, the Christmas Cactus is sometimes called Crab Cactus. The flowers are very striking and borne at the tip of the stems. The fruit is rare but when present it is a red berry.

Culture: Even though this plant is an epiphyte, like many orchids and bromeliads, in Florida it is grown in media containing organic matter. A mixture of perlite and peat moss is often used to grow this plant. The plants should be watered regularly, avoiding over watering. Plants grown in pots need good drainage. Watering is very important during bud and flower formation, too little or too much water will cause the plants to drop their flowers. Reducing watering and stopping fertilization promotes flowering. Plants are usually fertilized every month with a diluted water-soluble fertilizer. Plants can be grown outdoors during the summer but need some shade during the hottest hours of the day to protect them from sunburn. They are not cold tolerant and must remain indoors during the winter. Filtered light is best for growth.

GARDENING

Flowering: To induce flowering of these plants, both temperature and length of darkness must be carefully controlled. If the night temperature is maintained between 50 and 55 degrees F, flower buds will form regardless of day-length. If the night temperature is kept between 55 and 70 degrees F buds will form if the plants remain for at least 13 continuous hours in complete darkness. If the night temperature is maintained above 70 degrees F, buds will form if the plants remain for at least 15 continuous hours in complete darkness. Controlled temperature and light conditions should be maintained until flower buds are fully developed, which may take about 6 to 9 weeks. Any exposure to light during this dark period, will interrupt the formation of the flower buds. Temperatures above 90 degrees F may cause buds to drop. If the plants are not exposed to the above temperature and light requirements, flower buds will not form. After the flower buds are well developed plants will flower regardless of light or temperature conditions.

Holiday cacti: Two genera of closely related plants, Zygocactus and Schlumbergera and their hybrids are used to name these plants as Christmas Cactus. Thanksgiving Cactus or Easter Cactus. They are known collectively as the Holiday Cacti. The Christmas Cactus has red, pink or white flowers or combinations of these colors. The Thanksgiving Cactus has bright orange-red flowers and the Easter Cactus has white flowers. The Easter Cactus has wider and rounder stem segments and the buds take longer to develop, consequently, they will bloom later than the Christmas Cactus.

Pests and diseases: Mealybugs can cause some damage to these plants, they can be controlled with a local application of a soap insecticide or they can be removed with a cotton swab and alcohol. Slugs may also become a problem in the garden.

Options for treating constipation

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am 84 years old, healthy but constipated. Years ago our family physician advocated a procedure called "colonic irrigation." Should I consider this at my age?

DEAR READER: Proponents of colonic irrigation believe that "toxins" accumulate in the colon and, without periodic enemas, can cause disease.

This theory has been discredited. Colonic irrigations are now considered by most physicians to be little more than quackery. The "toxin" theory is ridiculous. Regular enemas are unnecessary and do not improve health.

I suggest the following sequence.

First, check with your doctor to make sure that your constipation isn't caused by a blockage of underactive thyroid gland. If he gives you a good report, try consuming more fluids, roughage and bran. If this option is unsuccessful, try a stool softener, with or without a mild laxative — or drink 8 ounces of hot prune juice every morning. Should these simple suggestions fail, your physician will have to advise you about the judicious use of laxatives, either prescription or over-the-counter. But avoid colonic irrigations. Such irrigations are occasionally administered in hospitals as "3H enemas" — high, hot and a helluva lot — but do not have a place in the daily rituals of good health.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Constipation and Diarrhea." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10154. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am healthy but have a condition called "clumped platelets." Every time I have a blood count, the platelets stick together, making it impossible for the lab tech to count them. Is this a serious disorder?

DEAR READER: Blood cells can, on occasion, become coated with protein, making them sticky. This can result from infection, hidden cancer and a variety of other afflictions. Platelets, the cells necessary for normal blood coagulation, can become sticky for no apparent reason. In such cases, a technician cannot count the platelets because they clump together in amorphous little masses. Moreover, if the blood count is not prepared properly, the platelets can coalesce. In either case, there is no health hazard (because the cells don't clump in the blood vessels) — unless, as I mentioned, there is some underlying disease. Ask your doctor to reassure you that your platelet-clumping is merely a harmless biological variant.

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am a 40-year-old man who is infertile. My mother received DES while she was pregnant with me. Could this drug have affected me adversely?

DEAR READER: In the 1950s and '60s, the synthetic estrogen diethylstilbestrol was prescribed to many pregnant women to prevent miscarriages. Beginning in the 1970s, doctors reported that the female children of such women were at increased risk for vaginal cancer. For this reason, DES has not been used for decades.

DES Action USA (a nonprofit consumer organization), in conjunction with the National Cancer Institute and the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, has recently published a booklet entitled "DES Sons" that presents disturbing data: The sons of DES mothers may be at risk for testicular cancer, prostate cancer and infertility. Such men, who are now in their mid-20s to late 40s, should attempt to determine if they were exposed to DES — and if so, undergo regular medical checkups for testicular and prostate cancer.

Those men who wish to obtain more information on this subject can write to: DES Action USA, 1615 Broadway, Suite 510, Oakland, CA 94612; or call (800) DES-9286.

WIN AT BRIDGE

From Jamaica to Netanya

By Phillip Alder

Bridge Today magazine began in Jamaica, Queens, N.Y. But a few years ago the editors, Pam and Matt Granovetter, moved to Israel. However, they continue to put out six issues per annum without any apparent difficulty. The content is aimed at the tournament player, but it isn't as high-level as The Bridge World.

My favorite column is written by Pete Kichline under the title The Traveling Score. He gives a single deal that contains one or two instructive points, along with a traveling score-sheet from a pair event, which shows the results at every table. This is one of his deals.

How should the play go in two hearts?

South's two-heart bid is most definitely non-forcing. With a strong hand, he starts by doubling the one-no-trump overall.

The defenders are trying to get six tricks via three diamonds, the club ace and two trumps. The declarer, in fighting to hold his trump losers to one, aims to lead the suit twice from the dummy so that East's ace falls on low cards.

East starts by taking three diamond tricks. If he continues with his last diamond, it promotes the heart jack as a trick, but South will discard his club: a classic loser-on-loser. East must switch to a club. Then, when in with the heart ace, he leads the 13th diamond for the critical trump promotion.

Additionally, if you are into movie reviews, Pam Granovetter wrote 180 of them in "Movie Guide for Bridge Players." For details of this book and to subscribe ($27 for six issues), call (800) 525-4718.

HOROSCOPE

Wednesday, Nov. 18, 1987

In the year ahead, you may enter into a commercial arrangement with someone who is older or more experienced than you. This could be a rewarding alliance in several unique ways.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you might be difficult to get along with if your companions aren't in complete accord with your ideas. Strive to be democratic, not dictatorial. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You are likely to be better at managing the resources of others than you will be at taking care of your own today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try to keep important facets of your life in proper balance today. Do not be all work and no play, nor vice versa. Parity is essential for happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Today, you might pretend you received nothing in return for your service, while in actuality you did receive an acknowledgment. Do not play games.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Slight could breed lingering resentment today, so do not play favorites with your friends. Anyone angered might not forgive readily.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you emphasize your modesty today, you'll generate substantial respect from associates. Avoid being flamboyant or pretentious.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In areas where you have been fortunate, your luck should remain intact today. In venues where you don't boast an impressive track record, work will be required.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your prospects for personal gain could be uncertain today, so proceed warily in commercial matters. It may not take much to tip the scales against you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It could prove to be a good idea today for you and your mate to keep out of the family checkbook. Either one of you is capable of bruising it badly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be realistic today if you have to negotiate a business or career matter. There may be a tendency on your part to make concessions you shouldn't.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Watch for paradoxes today. What may seem simple could be full of complications, while that which appears to be difficult could be slow but certain.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Give full expression to your ambitious urges today, but also be realistic about your goals. Do not hang on to objectives that are not attainable.
