Court Oks Home For Elderly, But Fight Not Over

Herald Staff Writer

Despite a favorable circuit court ruling. a Seminole County couple may not have won their battle to operate a group care facility for the elderly in their Longwood

Although a circuit court judge Thursday ruled in favor of a special exception request for a group home by Gene and Dorothy Kowch, Deputy County Attorney Bob McMillan said the county may appeal that decision if it is not allowed to hold another public hearing on the application.

Circuit Court Judge Vernon Mize ordered the county to grant the request which would allow the couple to set up at adult congregate living facility in their home, said Marcia Lippincott, attorney for the Kowehs.

McMillan said the county would wait to receive a written order before it decides what course of action to take. He called discussion of that action "premature." but said the county could request a rehearing and appeal the decision based on what the order tells the county to do.

An order to issue the permit, McMillan said, would cause "the most problems" for the county, which feels it should be able to hold a new public hearing on the case before issuing a permit.

"The county is entitled to impose conditions to protect the neighborhood,"

The Kowchs have tried for over two years to gain necessary approval to enable them to operate the group home at their residence, 655 Markham Woods

In November 1983, the couple applied to the Seminole County Board of Adjustment for a special exception. The adjustment board granted the request. however neighbors in the area appealed that decision to the county commission.

Ms. Lippincott said the residents contended the group home is a business which intrudes on a residential neighborhood and claimed the use would lower their property values.

The county commission overturned the adjustment board's decision in April

Martin Luther King Recalled In Speeches, New York Exhibit

The Rev. Jesse Jackson Sunday launched the week-long array of concerts, speeches and parades honoring King by fondly recalling the assassinated leader, but told the congregation of a Brooklyn church Sunday blacks are still 'knocking on the door of justice." The speech brought more than 2,000 people to their feet.

Jackson said he planned to spend Jan. 20th, the first national holiday to honor Martin Luther King Jr., the way the slain civil rights activist marked his last birthday - by organizing a demonstration in Washington.

The holiday culminates a 15-year legislative battle that began four days after King was killed by an assassin's bullet in April 1968 on the balcony of a Memphis motel.

Court Weighs Death Penalty Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court returns from a month-long recess today and takes up a major death penalty case that could affect many of the 1.642 men and women currently on death row,

At issue is whether people who oppose the death penalty can be disqualified from the pool of potential jurors, a practice used by 33 states in capital cases.

The court agreed last October to review the controversial practice - known as death qualification - and will hear arguments today.

At issue is a case from Arkansas where a court declared that the practice of removing people opposed to the death penalty from a jury was unconstitutional.

The ruling by the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said the exclusion of jurors who hold absolute scruples against the death penalty violates the constitutional right to a trial by a jury made up of a cross section of the community.

Clergy Plan Anti-Apartheid Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Church leaders from Protestant. Orthodox and Roman Catholic bodies meet today for a conference aimed at mapping a united anti-apartheid strategy in the U.S. religious community.

The daylong conference, called "With One Voice" and co-ordinated by the U.S. office of the World Council of Churches, brings together about 50 church leaders who will look at various church bodies' policies on divestment and economic sanctions.

"It is becoming increasingly clear that they want to signal a visible witness in this country and to the world for ending apartheid — and their desire for a unified effort is compelling them to speak with one voice," said the Rev. Joan Campbell, executive director of the World Council's

Probe: Police Paid By Drug Dealer

MIAMI (UPI) - A group of Miami police officers charged with murder and racketeering worked for a drug dealer who was shot to death in a case dubbed the 'Jack-in-the-box" murder, investigators say.

Six of the 12 officers arrested had strong ties to Louis Rodriguez, 42, a Mariel refugee convicted of several weapons and drug violations, the Miami Herald reported

Metro-Dade Police Sgt. Al Singleton called Rodriguez "the corrupter, the main link" in the scandal - one of the worst in the history of the Miaini police force

Dates for arraignment hearings were expected to be issued Monday for officers Rodolfo Arias. Arturo De La Vega. Armando Estrada. Armando Garcia and Roman Rodríguez and former Miami police officer Osvaldo Coello.

Arias. Estrada and Garcia are charged with conspiring to murder Rodriguez, but no one has been charged with the actual shooting, police said.

Rodriguez's body was discovered in a pine crate July 30. 1985, in a field west of Miami. When detectives lifted the lid from the 3-foot-square box, the 5-foot-6-inch body popped out, prompting investigators to call it the 'Jack-in-the-box' murder.

Sameness, Scarcity Mark Of Tripoli

By James M. Dorsey

TRIPOLI. Libya (UPI) — Despite the recent saber-rattling, if you like peace and quiet and the color green — Tripoli is the place to be. If you want entertainment, or prefer to wash your clothes in soap, go somewhere else.

The Libyan capital is in the midst of Col. Moammar Khadafy's exercise in "direct democracy," a sort of numbing sameness for everybody and everything mixed with a liberal lacing of Islamic fundamentalism.

Tripoli itself shows it, stretching across the western coast as a typically pleasant Mediterranean city of Italian-Arab architecture dotted by mosques and, in recent years, apartment blocks best described as nondescript.

There is a certain sadness over the city. which under another government might be alive with sidewalk cafes, bazaars or entrepreneurs hawking souvenirs to tourists. But there is none of that under a regime that preaches all are "partners - no wage workers." That is, no one is a servant.

Most restaurants in Tripoli have no waiters because one does not serve. In their place are self-service buffets, where odd things can happen.

a luxury hotel, the Al Kabir (Grand Hotel). was told by his Libyan chef that the $25 buffet charge entitled him to only two pieces of chicken, not three. It took the manager's intervention to get the debate sorted out.

Under Khadafy's interpretation of Islamic law, there are no cinemas or nightclubs. And, of course, no bars or alcohol, Soft drinks are mineral water or the locally brewed version of an American cola.

When they are not in the mosques at prayers five times a day. Libyans usually are at home. Which is not to say they are not fascinated by the material world. "A simple Libyan," says one foreign resident, "is interested in big cars, Italian shoes, silk shirts, aftershave and an Afro bairstyle."

In the early days of Libva's oil boom. those items could be had. Today times are tougher. Under Khadafy's austerity campaign, imports have been slashed by 20 percent, with another 50 percent cut on the horizon. Libyans have learned to do

They seem unperturbed, even by the unavailability of simple commodities such as washing soap, almost impossible to come by. Unlike Arabs in other countries such as Egypt, they queue uncomplainingly in long lines for bread that might or might be there

when they finally arrive at the counter. The typical Libyan arrives at work at 9 a.m., then heads out at 9:30 a.m. to try to beat the others to the stores. As often as not. he or she gets to the big state-owned supermarkets to find the shelves bare. Then it's back to work, and home about 2 p.m. or

Not much there, either, Television, by Western standards, is appalling - mainly endless singers singing nationalist songs against a background of either rolling military equipment or, for some reason, racing horses.

Still, the living is relatively easy, if seemingly as drab as the white or beige of Tripoli itself. Except for the Islamic green that covers the mosque domes and even a huge city square which is largely painted green. It's Moammar Khadafy's favorite

And there's always the weather, the balmy Mediterranean breezes and sunshine in which Tripoli basks much of the year. As one western resident put it. "If there's one virtue in this country, it's the climate - the weather-type climate."

Budget & Service Cuts For Amt

Amtrak, faced with a 10.5 percent cut of federal subsidies, has curtailed its passenger rail service, and officials fear new deep budget cuts could force the bankruptcy. Amtrak reduced the number of runs on several lines Sunday but did not eliminate any service.

Federal subsidies this year totaled $616 million, about $68 million less than Amtrak received the previous fiscal year.

Amtrak officials said eliminating the subsidies - a move advocated by President Reagan but so far rejected by Congress - would kill the railroad because it can cover only 60 percent of its expenses with ticket sales. The officials believe slashing the subsidies even further might force the railroad into bankruptey. Amtrak cannot lay off workers to save money because it would be forced to eliminated and one curtailed. pay stiff labor penalties under existing contract agreements.

Alleged Spouse Abuser Resists Arrest

A man who pushed, then struggled with a sheriff's deputy as he was assisting an alleged spouse abuse victim, was arrested and charged with battery on a police officer and resisting arrest with violence Friday at 5 p.m., a police report said.

The deputy was assisting the alleged spouse abuse victim in getting some clothes, when the man started yelling ar the victim. When the deputies advised the man to settle down. and be quiet, he became more irate and pushed the deputy on the shoulder, and a struggle followed, the report said. Child Victims Need Protection In Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A child victim of sexual abuse or violence needs special care in the adult world of jurisprudence. where even the size of the witness chair is threatening, a new Justice Department guide savs.

In a study on how to case a child's trauma when victimized or forced to go through criminal proceedings, the National Institute of Justice said, "Certain departures are necessary for child witnesses simply because they are children.

'When children become victims or witnesses of violence or sexual abuse ... they are thrust into an adult system that traditionally does not differentiate between children and cretion. In only two areas did it urge statuatory reform, recommending that states presume children. regardless of age, are competent to testify in court, and allow certain out-of-court statements to be used in court - which is useful when a child "freezes" or recants on the witness stand.

A child, no match for a merciless defense attorney; has a difficult time in criminal proceedings.

"The problems all crime victims face in the criminal justice system are exacerbated when the victim is a child," said Assistant Attorney General Lois Herrington. "Most often child victims have been betrayed by someone they've loved and trusted."

In court, a child is asked more leading questions than an adult and, "Even the size of the witness chair can be very intimidating," the study said.

The fear most frequently mentioned by children in the study was facing the defendant.

The report by the institute, the An astute defense attorney also can exploit a child's uncertainty on simple questions to discredit the entire statement.

But the institute said studies on children's memory and morality suggest that they can testify as well as adults.

"A relationship between age and honesty has never been shown," the report said, and all but the youngest, such as 3-year-olds, can perform on par with adults.

"Interviewers must be careful to use language the child understands," the study said. "Children typically develop their own terms for their body parts ... and when allowed to use their own words or to describe what happened with dolls or pictures. children can provide scenarios rich in detail."

A child who may not be able to say at what time or what month something occurred, may be able to say whether it was before or after school, or what was on television.

The study also said: "It is doubtful young children can fabricate truly credible descriptions of events outside their experiences."

To ease the trauma facing a child witness, the report sug-

-Videotaping the first statement to reduce the number of times the child has to recount the story. Although the child must still be available to testify. an early videotape captures his or her candid reaction to the incident.

-Possibly using closed-circuit television to shield the child from confronting the defendant. Although Kentucky, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas now allow closed-circuit television, the report said it may abrogate the criminal defendant's right to confront his accuser. A blackboard could be used instead as a simple screen.

-The use of expert witnesses to rebut defense attacks on a child's truthfulness.

-A "support" person should always be present with the child to explain proceedings or take the child on a tour of the courtroom to reduce uncer-

-Limit the number of interviews. "Many individuals who work with child victims believe that having to retell the story so many times is among the most traumatic aspects of the justice system." the study said.

Martin Luther King Recalled In Speeches, New York Exhibit

The exhibit at the Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture in Harlem includes a musical video birthday salute to King, with segments recorded by Bill Cosby and Harry Belafonte.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson Sunday launched the week-long array of concerts, speeches and parades honoring King by fondly recalling the assassinated leader, but told the congregation of a Brooklyn church Sunday blacks are still "knocking on the door of justice." The speech brought more than 2,000 people to their feet.

Jackson said he planned to spend Jan. 20th, the first national holiday to honor Martin Lather King Jr., the way the slain civil rights activist marked his last birthday — by organizing a demonstration in Washington.

The holiday culminates a 15-year legislative battle that began four days after King was killed by an assassin's bullet in April 1968 on the balcony of a Memphis motel.

Court Weighs Death Penalty Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Supreme Court returns from a month-long recess today and takes up a major death penalty case that could affect many of the 1,642 men and women currently on death row.

At issue is whether people who oppose the death penalty can be disqualified from the pool of potential jurors, a practice used by 33 states in capital cases.

The court agreed last October to review the controversial practice - known as death qualification - and will hear arguments today.

At issue is a case from Arkansas where a court declared that the practice of removing people opposed to the death penalty from a jury was unconstitutional.

The ruling by the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said the exclusion of jurors who hold absolute scruples against the death penalty violates the constitutional right to a trial by a jury made up of a cross section of the community.

Clergy Plan Anti-Apartheid Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Church leaders from Protestant. Orthodox and Roman Catholic bodies meet today for a conference aimed at mapping a united anti-apartheid strategy in the U.S. religious community.

The daylong conference, called "With One Voice" and co-ordinated by the U.S. office of the World Council of Churches, brings together about 50 church leaders who will look at various church bodies' policies on divestment and economic sanctions.

"It is becoming increasingly clear that they want to signal a visible witness in this country and to the world for ending apartheid — and their desire for a unified effort is compelling them to speak with one voice," said the Rev. Joan Campbell, executive director of the World Council's

MIAMI (UPI) — A group of Miami police officers charged with murder and racketeering worked for a drug dealer who was shot to death in a case dubbed the "Jack-in-the-box" murder, investigators say.

Six of the 12 officers arrested had strong ties to Louis Rodriguez, 42, a Mariel refugee convicted of several weapons and drug violations, the Miami Herald reported

Metro-Dade Police Sgt. Al Singleton called Rodriguez "the corrupter, the main link" in the scandal - one of the worst in the history of the Miami police force.

Dates for arraignment hearings were expected to be issued Monday for officers Rodolfo Arias, Arturo De La Vega. Armando Estrada. Armando Garcia and Roman Rodriguez and former Miami police officer Osvaldo Coello.

Arias. Estrada and Garcia are charged with conspiring to murder Rodriguez, but no one has been charged with the actual shooting, police said.

Rodriguez's body was discovered in a pine crate July 30. 1985, in a field west of Miami. When detectives lifted the lid from the 3-foot-square box, the 5-foot-6-inch body popped out, prompting investigators to call it the Jack-in-the-box murder.

Heart Ills Kill More, Worry Less

SARASOTA (UPI) — Cardiovascular diseases will claim more lives this year than cancer and accidents combined. yet the president-elect of the American Heart Association says people often seem to worry more about cancer.

In many ways, cardiovascular disease has not had the dramatic impact cancer has," said Dr. Ken Shine. president-elect of the association. "But I believe heart transplants have made people more aware of cardiovascular problems."

The latest statistics from the association show heart and blood vessel diseases, including heart attack and stroke, killed an estimated 989,400 Americans in 1983, the latest year for which figures are available.

Sameness, Scarcity Mark Of Tripoli

By James M. Dorsey

TRIPOLI, Libya (UPI) — Despite the recent saber-rattling, if you like peace and quiet and the color green — Tripoli is the place to be. If you want entertainment, or prefer to wash your clothes in soap, go somewhere else.

The Libyan capital is in the midst of Col. Moammar Khadafy's exercise in "direct democracy," a sort of numbing sameness for everybody and everything mixed with a liberal lacing of Islamic fundamentalism.

Tripoli itself shows it, stretching across the western coast as a typically pleasant Mediterranean city of Italian-Arab architecture dotted by mosques and, in recent years, apartment blocks best described as nondescript.

There is a certain sadness over the city. which under another government might be alive with sidewalk cafes, bazaars or entrepreneurs hawking souvenirs to tourists. But there is none of that under a regime that preaches all are "partners - no wage workers." That is, no one is a servant,

Most restaurants in Tripoli have no waiters because one does not serve. In their place are self-service buffets, where odd things can happen.

One western visitor to the city's version of a luxury hotel, the Al Kabir (Grand Hotel). was told by his Libyan chef that the $25 buffet charge entitled him to only two pieces of chicken, not three. It took the manager's intervention to get the debate sorted out.

Under Khadafy's interpretation of Islamic law, there are no cinemas or nightclubs. And, of course, no bars or alcohol. Soft drinks are mineral water or the locally brewed version of an American cola.

When they are not in the mosques at prayers five times a day. Libyans usually are at home. Which is not to say they are not fascinated by the material world. "A simple Libyan," says one foreign resident. "Is interested in big cars, Italian shoes, silk shirts, aftershave and an Afro hairstyle."

In the early days of Libya's oil boom, those items could be had. Today times are tougher. Under Khadafy's austerity campaign, imports have been slashed by 20 percent, with another 50 percent cut on the horizon. Libyans have learned to do

They seem unperturbed, even by the unavailability of simple commodities such as washing soap, almost impossible to come by. Unlike Arabs in other countries such as Egypt, they queue uncomplainingly in long lines for bread that might or might be there

when they finally arrive at the counter. The typical Libyan arrives at work at 9 a.m., then heads out at 9:30 a.m. to try to beat the others to the stores. As often as not, he or she gets to the big state-owned supermarkets to find the shelves bare. Then it's back to work, and home about 2 p.m. or

Not much there, either, Television, by Western standards, is appalling - mainly endless singers singing nationalist songs against a background of either rolling military equipment or, for some reason, racing horses.

Still, the living is relatively easy, if seemingly as drab as the white or beige of Tripoli itself. Except for the Islamic green that covers the mosque domes and even a huge city square which is largely painted green. It's Moammar Khadaly's favorite

And there's always the weather, the balmy Mediterranean breezes and sunshine in which Tripoli basks much of the year. As one western resident put it, "If there's one virtue in this country, it's the climate - the weather-type climate."

R.I. Chief Justice Faces Impeachment

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) - Joseph Bevilacqua, the embattled chief justice of Rhode Island's Supre Court, has two sets of old "friends" - 1. 2 who have gotten him into 22 years of trouble and those ready to impeach him.

Bevilacqua's previous job as a top criminal defense lawyer brought him into contact. with some of New England's best-known criminals and mobsters. As former speaker. of the Rhode Island House, he became friends with many of the same lawmakers who now want him to remove him from the state's highest court.

When Bevilacqua gave up his law practice and the powerful speakership in 1976 to become the state's top judge, he vowed to set aside "old friendships and causes."

Photographs taken in 1983 and 1984 by the state police and the Providence Journal-Bulletin proved otherwise.

Bevilacqua, 67, the son of an Italian immigrant grocer, was seen visiting convicted felon Robert Barbato 17 times in 1984. His car was spotted at an auto body shop owned by another man linked to organized crime, and he was seen entering a Barbato-owned clothing store that one detective called a "crune palace." Bevilacqua said Barbato was a personal friend of 20 years.

The chief justice, who is married and has three grown children, was also seen at a wholesale food warehouse owned by convieted felon Dino Contenti. Police said the judge backed his station wagon up to a dock and another man loaded several boxes into the station wagon, but no money changed

Bevilacqua was also photographed leaving a Smithfield motel three times in 1983.

Child Victims Need Protection In Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A child victim of sexual abuse or violence needs special care in the adult world of jurisprudence. where even the size of the witness chair is threatening, a new Justice Department guide savs.

In a study on how to ease a child's trauma when victimized or forced to go through criminal proceedings, the National Institute of Justice said, "Certain departures are necessary for child witnesses simply because they are children.

When children become victims or witnesses of violence or sexual abuse ... they are thrust into an adult system that traditionally does not differentiate between children and adults," the report said.

Although there is no single source on crimes committed against children, the report said that in 1983, child protection someone they've loved and agencies received allegations of trusted." maltreatment affecting an estimated 1.5 million children nationwide.

The number who were sexually mistreated was estimated at 71,961, but the study noted that many such cases often go unreported.

research arm of the Justice Department, suggested "that virtually every cause of stress on a child witness" can be lessened by practices at the court's discretion.

In only two areas did it urge statuatory reform, recommending that states presume children. regardless of age, are competent to testify in court, and allow certain out-of-court statements to be used in court - which is useful when a child "freezes" or recants on the witness stand.

A child, no match for a merciless defense attorney; has a difficult time in criminal proceedings.

"The problems all crime victims face in the criminal justice system are exacerbated when the victim is a child," said Assistant Attorney General Lois Herrington, "Most often child victims have been betrayed by

In court, a child is asked more leading questions than an adult and. "Even the size of the witness chair can be very intimidating," the study said.

The fear most frequently mentioned by children in the study was facing the defendant.

The report by the institute, the An astute defense attorney also can exploit a child's uncertainty on simple questions to discredit the entire statement.

But the institute said studies on children's memory and morality suggest that they can testify as well as adults.

"A relationship between age and honesty has never been shown," the report said, and all but the youngest, such as 3-year-olds, can perform on par with adults.

"Interviewers must be carefulto use language the child understands," the study said. "Children typically develop their own terms for their body parts ... and when allowed to use their own words or to describe what happened with dolls or pictures. children can provide scenarios rich in detail."

A child who may not be able to say at what time or what month something occurred, may be able to say whether it was before or after school, or what was on television.

The study also said: "It is doubtful young children can fabricate truly credible descriptions of events outside their experiences."

To ease the trauma facing a child witness, the report sug-

-Videotaping the first statement to reduce the number of times the child has to recount the story. Although the child must still be available to testify. an early videotape captures his or her candid reaction to the incident.

-Possibly using closed-circuit television to shield the child from confronting the defendant. Although Kentucky, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas now allow closed-circuit television, the report said it may abrogate the criminal defendant's right to confront his accuser. A blackboard could be used instead as a simple screen.

-The use of expert witnesses to rebut defense attacks on a child's truthfulness.

-A "support" person should always be present with the child to explain proceedings or take the child on a tour of the courtroom to reduce uncertainty.

-Limit the number of interviews. "Many individuals who work with child victims believe that having to retell the story so many times is among the most traumatic aspects of the justice system," the study said.

We Are Facing Rain Forest Loss

Each minute, day in and day out, 53 acres of rain forest are denuded by man.

Tais means almost 28 million acres are destroyed each year - and that paints a gloomy picture for the world's future genera-

Some demolition is caused by huge timber operations, but most is caused by 300 million Third World inhabitants in Asia, Africa and Latin America. Their existence depends on gathering of wood for heating, cooking and shelter. They also burn thousands of acres of forest land in inflated attempts to grow crops.

Slash-and-burn agriculture is doomed from the start. Ashes from burned vegetation provide temporary fertility to the soil. After two or three years, however, nutrients are used up, and the farmer is forced to move on, to devastate more forest land.

Soils that support rain forests typically are low in nutrients and high in acid. Rain forest plants, through evolutionary process, develop highly efficient systems to gather and absorb nutrients before they reach the ground. When such vegetation is destroyed, often it never is able to regenerate.

If destruction of rain forests continues at the present pace, it is bound to have a devastating effect. It will result in mass starvation. Even the world's climate will be changed. Temperate zones in much of North America and Europe will become drier. Productive farm land would turn to desert.

Continued forest destruction also would mean 20 percent of the plants and animals now on earth would be wiped out by the year 2000. The extinction of species would be on a par with the losses caused by six geologic ice ages over the past 500 million years.

What's to be done? First of all, international lending agencies, such as the World Bank. must eliminate financing for projects deemed environmentally unsound.

The United States provides one-fifth of the funds used by international development banks. Recently, the Senate Appropriations Committee called on these banking systems to take heed of environmental problems or face loss of funding. Sen. Robert Kasten. R-Wis., a committee member, said:

"The bottom line is that handouts from taxpayers to finance development projects which ravage the environment are going to

Others suggest a moratorium on rain-forest destruction, setting aside forest preserves and an increase in erosion and reforestation

The World Resources Institute has launched an international effort to invest $8 billion over the next five years to save the world's remaining rain forests. This effort deserves support - and it doesn't come a

Reviews Needed

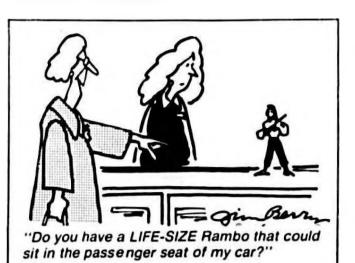

Departing Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret Heckler admits that her agency's stalled three-year campaign to review Social Security disability cases has hurt many innocent people. But the plan to resume reviews in January has insufficient saleguards against further insensititivty. Lawmakers should ensure that the agency acts tairly.

When Congress first ordered reviews of diability benefits in 1980, it forsaw a systematic venture to detect and purge cheaters. But the Reagan administraton seized upon that order as an excuse to indiscriminately pare the program's $18 billion cost.

For many of the nation's handicapped, the result was sudden destitution: From March 1981 to June 1984, 491,000 recipients were declared able to work and tossed from the disability rolls. Those speedy reviews, condemned as "capricious" by District Judge Earl Larson of Minnesota, produced an astonishing error rate: Of those who appealed. 291,000 won reinstatement of benefits. But many others who lost benefits-especially the mentally ill or retarded -- were too imparired to challenge the bureaucraey.

The hit-or-miss fraud detection unleashed a national outcry, which prompted the government to suspend its programs last year and Congress to tighten the review process.

He Enjoys The Inside More Than Money

WASHINGTON (UPI) - White House Communications Director Patrick Buchanan, who gave up an annual Income of $400,000 to take his present job at 875,000 a year, says he won't quit. "I'm still enjoying it." he says.

Buchanan was asked to comment on frequent rumors that he plans to resign his post this year as a presidential assistant. According to the reports. Buchanan is disappointed in his second tenure in the White House the served in the Nixon administration) over his inability to promote his conservative philosophy.

But Buchanan says, "I've enjoyed being on the inside," and he has no plans to leave the administration.

Before joining President Reagan's top staff. Buchanan wrote a newspaper column, appeared regularly on television programs and on the lecture circuit.

Among his other chores, Buchanan manages the White House speech writing contingent. which is busy with the State of the Union address that the president will deliver to a joint session of Congress.

Buchanan confirmed reports that Reagan plans to keep the address thematic, and not constitute the usual "laundry list" that chief executives of the past have presented to the lawmakers at the start of the year.

After the State of the Union address, Reagan is expected to hit the road on one-day swoops to highlight his message. But it is doubtful that he will undertake the back-breaking schedule of last summer when he lobbled around the

When the president told a news conference that government-administered lie detector tests had extracted many confessions, a reporter quipped: "Wouldn't the rack be more effective?"

Reagan made it clear that he and Soviet leader Gorbachev are not on the same wave length on the timing of their next summit meeting - this time in Washington.

The president thought it was decided that the second summit would be held in June. But the Soviets have other ideas and they are urging

The president wants Gorbachev to see the whole country, not just Washington. Reagan feels it is important that the communist leader observe the American way of life.

Next year, Reagan will go to Moscow if the pattern of summit meetings is kept on track and the relationship with Gorbachev remains fairly

Congress Considers Rebel Aid

Elliott Abrams says there's an 'information gap" in Americans' understanding of the nature of the Nicaraguan threat.

Abrams is assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs. Of late he has been all over the prestige media warning that the Sandinistas and their Cuban allies are poised to take over all of Central America unless efforts to block them are beefed up.

The effort at present is primarily in the form of aid to Nicaraguan rebels, the Honduran-based contras. Last summer Congress OK'd $27 million worth, restricted to nonmilitary items.

That authorization expires in March. If the administration wants aid to continue and the weapons ban to be lifted, it must put in the request very shortly after Congress opens shop again Jan. 21. Which explains Abrams' busy interview

He may have a point about an information gap. It anything, it is even wider than he is letting on. Still not widely understood in this country is nature of the rebels the administration wants to aid.

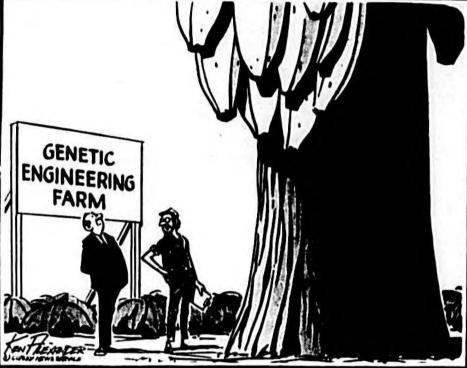

That story is told in revealing detail by a former contra. Edgar Chamorro, in testimony submitted to the International Court of Justice in connection with that its hearing of Nicaragua's complaint against the United States. The text has been made public by the Commission on United States-Central American Relations, a Washington-based lobby critical of administration poli-

Chamorro, a former academic and diplomat, was an early opponent of the Sandinistas, joining with other exiles in Miami in late 1979 to work against U.S. financial aid to the revolutionary government in Managua. Then, in 1981, the CIA contacted Chamorro's group, promising help if it joined with remnants of the deposed Somoza government's National Guard to oust the Sandinistas from power:

The exiles were reluctant at first but finally went along, having received the CIA's assurances that the combined operation would be under civilian control.

Why We Need Bill

WASHINGTON - Texas Sen. Phil different mix than the president did. groups and high-priced lobbyists. Each letter says pretty much the same thing: We've got to cut the deficits, but please cut someone else's program.

"We've had hundreds and hundreds of them saying essentially this," says a spokesman for Gramm, who is the chief architect of the landmark Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit-reduction bill that Congress approved late last year.

"Everyone agrees that the deficits threaten the lifeblood of our "conomy," a top Gramm aide says, "but no one wants his own program or benefits cut in order to reduce

Nevertheless, many programs are going to be cut deeply this year and many marginal and nonessential agencies and expenditures are going to be abolished. In fact, President Reagan is putting the finishing touches on his fiscal 1987 budget, which will meet the Gramm-Rudman bill's deficit target of $144

Among the agencies and programs the administration has slated for elimination: Amtrak subsidies. revenue sharing, the Small Business Administration, Urban Development Action Grants, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Job Corps, commercial air-carrier subsidies, and many more.

The question is: What will Congress do to Reagan's proposed budget? In the past, lawmakers have been able to simply declare the president's budgets "dead on arrival" while they continued to spend. in Reagan's words, "like a bunch of drunken sailors." (This is terribly unfair to drunken sailors, who at least are spending their own money.)

But this year, if all goes according to plan, things are going to be different, because under Gramm-Rudman. Congress is going to have to match Reagan's spending cuts. Legislators may put together a Gramm has a foot-and-a-half-high but, ultimately, they will have to stack of letters on his desk - mail meet the same deficit-reduction from constituents, special-interest target he is required to meet in his budget. Social Security and a handful of other social-welfare programs are exempt from cuts.

However, if Congress doesn't reach its target, a controversial presidential sequestering mechanism will be triggered and the cuts needed to reach it will automatically be made across-the-board by the president — evenly divided between defense and non-defense - using figures arrived at by the General Accounting Office.

The sequestering provision is being challenged in court on the grounds that it is unconstitutional. but even if it should be upheld, it is extremely unlikely that Congress will ever let the sequestering process occur. Our national legislature is not about to relinquish any of its authority over the nation's purse

Yet this provision is undeniably the big stick that will make this new process work. Congress must decide which of hundreds of programs will be eliminated, cut or frozen, knowing full well that failure to reach its deficit target will mean automatic across-the-board cuts in all programs - including many that lawmakers may not want to cut at

Since Gramm-Rudman's enactment, the Washington pundits have been almost hysterical about the "terrible harm" this bill will inflict upon the government and the nation. Many of them are against it because they want Reagan and Congress to give up their efforts to curtail federal spending and simply pass a tax increase to "buy out" the deficit.

But Reagan is dead right when he says that raising taxes won't climinate the deficit. It will only give Congress more money to spend. Worse, higher taxes would weaken the economy, which would reduce revenues and ultimately worsen the deficit.

Cure For Winter Blahs

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - People who suffer emotional anxieties when the days grow shorter might benefit from, a combination of drug treatment and exposure to light, a psychiatrist says.

The new experimental therapy borrows from recent clinical studies showing dramatic improvement in depression attributed to "winter blahs" when patients are exposed to panels of bright light for several

"We're now finding that the light may augment the response to antidepressant drugs," said Dr. Michael Gitlin, a clinical professor at the Neuropsychiatric Institute of the University of California at Los Angeles and a psychiatrist at the Los Angeles Center for Mood Dis-

Some people, he said, "experience depression according to seasonal patterns. These are people who get depressed when the days get shorter. This is an interesting manisfestation in southern California, where even though it's almost always sunny, days ger shorter here too.

Gitlin said melatonin, a hormone secreted by the pineal gland in the brain, is released when the environment is dark and suppressed when it is light.

He theorizes that melatonin. which is known to induce sleep. may increase in some people from October through February, causing them to feel sleepy, apathetic, withdrawn and given to carbohydrate cravings and depression.

"The fascinating part of all of this is that it's based on how much light hits the retina." Gitlin said. "We know for certain that the pincal gland regulates the amount of hormone secretion based on how much light is coming through the eve.

Israeli Agent Behind U.S. Spy Caper

By Jack Anderson And Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON - Among the espionage cases that shook the Washington establishment last year, none was more surprising than the revelation that Jonathan Jay Pollard, a Navy intelligence analyst, had been spying for Israel.

After first denying that Pollard had been furnishing them with secrets, embarrassed Israeli officials admitted the charges and allowed U.S. investigators to interrogate the Israeli Embassy personnel involved.

The mystery man behind the Pollard caper was a swashbuckling super-spy, Rafi Eitan (not to be confused with former chief of staff of the Israeli army, Rafael Ettan). He has served his country effectively in the shadowy world of espionage and covert operations for over 35 years.

Those who know Eltan well assured us that he would never intentionally harm the United States, or deliberately endanger U.S.-Israeli cooperation. But he is an Israeli patriot first, and has never shrunk from using extreme methods to achieve his goals, regardless of legal or diplomatic niceties. In this case, he was after technological information that he felt was vital to Israel's security.

It's not widely known, but the diminutive Eitan was the person responsible for one of Israeli intelligence's most famous coups: the tracking, capture and kidnapping of Nazi war criminal Adolph Eichmann in Buenos Aires 25 years ago. The operation was undentably illegal, and caused an outery from the Argentine government. Ettan's mentor, Issar Harel, chief of Israeli intelligence at the time. told the story of the Eichmann capture in a book, "The House on Garibaldi Street" (a reference to Elchmann's house). Harel identified the agent-in-charge only by his code-name, Gabi, but our associate Lucette Lagnado has learned that he was, in fact, Eitan.

Gabi/Eitan was put in charge of the Eichmann mission, and he supervised every detail, from setting up the safe house and tracking Eichmann's every move, to snatching him on the streets of suburban Buenos Aires and smuggling him out of the country to Israel. Eichmann was hanged after a show trial that revealed him as the unrepentant technician who arranged for the transportation of millions of European Jews to the Nazi death camps.

Another Nazi fugitive on Gabi/Eitan's list was Dr. Josef Mengele, the notorious "Angel of Death" who decided whether Jews at Auschwitz were gassed immediately or consigned to the living hell of his quack genetic experiments.

Hall's foul-line expertise ruined the age-old coaching ploy called upon by Santa Fe's Ken Drost of making the shooter think about the importance of his tosses during the timeout.

'All he has to do is miss one of those and we win the game,' Drost said. "I don't know what his free throw percentage is, but most guys 6-8 aren't going to make four in a row."

Concerned Parents, Teammates Rally Around Aretha

a lot of people in Seminole County have rallied around Aretha Riggins. That's not surprising to anyone who knows the 14-year-old Seminole "She has a lot of people concerned about her."

Since learning of her condition early last week,

Seminole coach Charles Steele said. "Because she's not just a good athlete, she's a very sweet

The widespread concern was perhaps best reflected at Lake Brantley High this past Thursday and Friday night. During home games with Seminole and DeLand, Lake Brantley took donations to go toward helping Aretha and her family.

One person who had a lot to do with setting up the donations is Dottle Thomas, mother of Lake Brantley guard Ashley Thomas, Mrs. Thomas said the total donations for Thursday's game was $65. She also told Lake Mary High what Brantley was doing and Lake Mary took donations during Friday's home game against Oviedo. "We want people to know that we're really happy with what Lake Brantley's doing." Steele said. "The girls came and told me that they had a jar for Aretha at Thursday's game. I think that's really nice. They (Brantley) even suggested it to Lake Mary for their game. Bill Moore (Lake Mary's coach) said the only thing he didn't like about it was he didn't think of it first.'

Riggins was admitted to Florida Hospital-Altamonte on Jan. 2 and trasferred to Orlando on Jan. 5. Riggins is suffering from Landry-Guillain-Barre Syndrome, a rare disease which brings on paralysis.

"They weren't going to let all the girls (on the team) come up but she (Aretha) asked the nurse if the girls could come up and they let them come up and look through the window." Steele said. 'She really enjoyed seeing the players.

"To me. Aretha looks like she's determined to get back." Steele added. "She was really in good spirits and was concerned about us losing to Lyman. She didn't like that too good, but she was happy that we beat Lake Brantley.'

Sanford physician said Aretha has a 75 percent chance of full recovery and Steele is one of many that believe Riggins will make it back.

Sanford's Dietdre Hillery, a 1984 Seminole High graduate, is having a tremendous sophomore season at Stetson University in DeLand. The 6-1 center is among the New South Women's Conference leaders in field goal percentage, rebounds and blocked shots.

Richardson: Rams' Reversal Comes At Right Time

By Chuck Burgess Special to the Herald

Sometimes a big win can lead to bigger and better things.

That's what Lake Mary head basketball mentor Willie Richardson is hoping after his team destroyed the Oviedo Lions, 63-43, this past weekend in a Seminole Athletic Conference matchup at Oviedo in front of 151 fans.

The Rams improved their record to 2.7 with the win and it couldn't have come at a more opportune time as far as Richardson is concerned. Lake Mary had lost five game in a row and the Rams will meet the conference-leading Seminoles coached by Bill Klein this coming Friday in Sanford.

"It's about time," a relieved Richardson said of the win. "We really needed that one. We have a week to prepare for Seminole, so the win was very important to get under our belts."

Against Oviedo the Rams had everything under their belts, including a few moves which surprised the 6-7 Lions.

Controlling the tip-off and much of the first period, the Rams jumped out to a quick five-point lead when football sensation Ray Hartsfield bit a layup on a fast break, a baseline jumper and the back end of a two-shot foul.

The Rams continued to put the Lions in a hole when Kelly McKinnon popped a short jumper and Hartsfield once again drove the lane for a hoop, making the score, 9-0.

Lions head coach Dale Phillips called a timeout to settle his troops down and Robb Hughes answered with two free throws to put the Lions on the board after with 4:35 remaining in the first

That's as close as the Lions would get in the first half. Hartsfield continued to dominate and McKinnon kept hitting the short jumpers from the left side to put the Rams up by a score of 31-18 at the half.

"Ray's (Hartsfield) and Kelly (McKinnon) have been playing very well," Richardson said, "It was our first conference game and we went after it in the first half."

The third period started with Hughes driving to the hoop for two, but the Rams answered when Oscar Merthie took a dish off from Chris Jackson to keep an 11-point lead.

The Lions cut the game to three points with Allen Unroe hitting seven of his team-high 13 points in the period. Unroe sank the front end of a one and one to make the score, 35-32. However, that's as close as the Lions would come.

With 1:17 remaining in the period. Eric Czerniejewski poured in two three-point plays. The first coming after being fouled by Oviedo's John Pettit and sinking a short bucket from inside the paint and the second on a layup and a foul by Randy Ferguson.

"We've had to move him (Czerniejewski) around some," Richardson said. "He played a really fine game for us. He really helped us down the third period stretch."

In other prep action this past weekend, the Lake Howell Silver Hawks and the Lake Brantley Patriots both travelled to face two teams and were similarly flattened.

The Hawks were pounded by the 4-9 DeLand Bulldogs, 66-54, at Deland. while the Patriots were dunked by the Apopka Blue Darters, 70-50.

The 3-9 Silver Hawks never got into the game as they turned the ball over 21 times and found the ball not bounding their way.

"We cut the lead to nine on a thirdperiod run." Silver Hawk head coach Greg Robinson said. "We had five consecutive offensive rebounds and we still couldn't put it in the hole."

The Silver Hawks did have a shimmer of light in the hazy gloom of the defeat. John Lowe scored a gamehigh 18 points, but the Hawks couldn't beat anyone but themselves, according to Robinson.

"We've really been playing too inconsistently lately." Robinson said. "We have one person play well one night, like Lowe did Saturday, and another player play well another night."

Pats Feel They Can Beat Bears

MIAMI (UPI) - The big story. of course, the one you know all about by this time, is that the wild-card New England Patriots are going to the Super Bowl.

For the first time in their lives and even if nobody else thinks they have any chance of knocking off the Chicago Bears there. they do.

You should've heard some of the New England rooters when time was winding down Sunday in the Orange Bowl and the Patriots' 31-14 AFC title win over the Miami Dolphins already was a fait accompli.

"We want the Bears! We want the Bears!" they bellowed joyfully.

Somehow, all that feverishly expressed desire had a very familiar ring. It reminded me of nearsighted, contact lens hadn't the same thundering cry I heard been refined yet and he had it all from overenthusiastic New York Giants' fans at the Meadowlands only a couple of weeks ago after the Giants put away the San Francisco 49ers.

Those Giants' fans wanted the Bears in the worst way, that's how they eventually got 'em and you know what happened.

But let's get back to the Patriots, who took advantage of six Dolphin turnovers to end an 18-game losing string in the Orange Bowl and keep Miami's Don Shula from going to the Super Bowl for the seventh time.

Virtually all the Patriot players agreed they owed the victory primarily to their uncommonly laid-back second-year coach of theirs. Raymond Berry, and if you happen to be one of those people who always keeps count. this is the second time he has burned his old boss. Shula, and burned him good.

AFC Playoffs

Berry, who's in the Pro Football Hall of Fame, was one of the greatest receivers the Baltimore Colts ever had. When he came to the Colts in 1955 from SMU, he did some strange things. Strange even for a professional football

He weighed only 182 pounds when he reported to the Colts but to make sure he got an accurate, honest reading, he carried his own bathroom scale around with him. He also used to have prescription sun glasses strapped to his helmet whenever the Colts played in Los Angeles. That was because he's figured out about the time the sun set in Los Angeles.

They laughed at the skinny. introverted Berry over some of his habits, but nobody laughed over the way he grabbed passes. He had a real knack for that.

Shula found that out the hard way. By extension, you could even say Berry's exceptional pass-catching ability chased Shula out of the professional playing ranks and into the coaching profession.

Shula was a defensive back in the pros and after the Washington Redskins picked him up near the end of his career. Berry, playing for the Colts, nearly destroyed him in a game with the Redskins by catching 12 passes for 224 yards.

Whether or not that was the straw that broke ended his playing career.

If the wind, McMahon, and the Bears' defense wasn't enough. the Rams didn't get much help from the officials. Three critical first half calls went against Los Angeles including a potential deep pass to Michael Young to the Bears' 25.

Beman Finds His Man — Peete

CARLSBAD, Calif. (UPI) - On the first day of the Tournament of Champions. Commissioner Deane Bernan was searching for the golfer that would one day take command of the PGA Tour.

It would be very good to have a dominant player year in and year out," Beman told a group of reporters Wednesday, "A standout, someone the public can be captivated with in an easy way."

Four days later. Beman may have discovered his man: Calvin qualities. He didn't start playing the game until he was 23, and an elbow injury suffered as a youngster prevents him from extending his left arm in textbook golfing fashion.

That's a quality with which every shanker on a municipal course can identify.

And when asked if he would spend Sunday practicing for next week's Bob Hope Classic. that weakness.

he said: "No way! I've got to watch my team, the Miami Dolphins.

But most important, Peete is a fine golfer. Admittedly, the conditions at La Costa this week were ideal for Peete, who set a tournament record with a 267, 21-under-par effort in his sixstroke victory over Mark O'Meara.

Hornets Sting Hounds

By Chuck Burgess Special to the Herald

Coach Bill Scott's Lyman Grapplers traveled to Bishop Moore this past weekend and found a Hornets' nest full of angry wrestlers as they fell. 55-15.

The Greyhounds dropped to 6-2 after their lineup was changed and changed to find the right combination. Unfortunately for the 'Hounds, the only combination was the stinging punch of the Hornets' top wrestlers. "We didn't have a very good night and they had a great night," Scott said of the turn of events. "We had to piece together some lineups, but I felt like we could have one two or three more matches. You can't take anything away from Bishop Moore. They've got a good solid program with some top notch wrestlers." The Greyhounds could only manage three wins the entire evening as the 7-1 Hornets ripped through the 'Hound lineup like shredded paper.

The Greyhound winners were Chad Dubin, Pat Perkins and Vince Navarro. Dubin and Perkins both remained unbeaten. Dubin was probably the most impressive of the Greyhound grapplers. Moving up to 130 from the 124-pound weight class. Dubin subdued his opponent with a very controlled 9-6 victory.

"Chad is just one of those wrestlers you can depend on for points," Scott said. "He was really over himself by moving up a weight class, but he handled it pretty well."

Perkins is the other grappler which the 'Hounds depended on heavily for points. Perkins, who wrestles at 224, provided the quickest pin of the evening for the Greyhounds by pinning his opponent in 1:53. "Pat did a great job for us," Scott said. "I really can't expect him to do it by himself. He had an outstanding match." The only other victor for the Greyhounds was Navarro. Navarro, at 149, took a little longer with his foe than Perkins did. However, with 5:47 off of the clock, the result was the same as Navarro handed Scott and the Hounds their second oin and third win of the evening.

"I just can't say enough about Vince," Scott said, "He just wrestled really well. It took him awhile, but he came through with the takedown and pin." One of Scott's wrestlers who tried to use Navarro's strategy by taking down his opponent and going for the pin was Jimbo Smith. Unfortunately for Smith. the attempt failed and he suffered his first and only loss of the season. Smith and Bishop Moore's Joe JeBalley were in a heated struggle for the lead. With Smith behind by one point, he attempted a takedown on JeBailey However, Smith lost his balance and JeBailey rolled him into a cradle for the pin with one second left in the match.

"He (Smith) tried to go for the takedown to win it," Scott said. "He gambled a little too much and it didn't pay off."

The Greyhounds look to get The PGA's most accurate back on the winning track todriver the last five years is not night as they travel to Lake long off the tee, but La Costa's Howell to do battle with the hardened fairways took care of Silver Hawks in a Seminole Athletic Conference match.

Skiles Burns Illinois

Illinois guard Bruce Douglas boasted, and Michigan State's backcourt burned. Sunday, the Spartans backcourt trio of Scott Skiles, Vernon Carr and Darryl Johnson combined for 50 points to lead Michigan State to a 58-51 Big Ten victory over co-No. 19 Illinois.

"I read where he (Douglas) said he was the best guard in the league," said Skiles, who scored 22 points. "If he's the best guard in the league, then I'm the best in the world.

"He runs their game and does a good job. But can he put the ball in the hole? Can be make the big plays? I don't know, I think my play speaks for itself."

Skiles, playing with a bad back, was 7-of-14 from the field as Michigan State took only 38 shots and made 20. However, he was 8-of-8 on free throws to pace the Spartans to an 18-of-18 performance from the foul line.

"I've got to congratulate Michigan State," Illinois coach Lou Henson said, "They shot over 50 percent and made all their free throws.

"It was our inability to get the ball in the basket that hurt us. They're a great shooting team. You just have to shoot it — and we didn't. Carr had 16 points and Johnson 12 for Michigan State.

Saturday night's tilt wasn't a classic but it was an intense struggle. It was marred by 56 fouls and 57 turnovers as both officials were out their whistles. "It wasn't pretty," SCC assistant Dean Smith said. "But we got the Job done."

The Raiders trailed by seven points on several occasions but behind the clutch shooting of guards David Gallagher and Tony Roberts along with Hall Hall finished with 21 and Roberts chipped in 19. Roberts also overs in a 30-second span. had eight, rebounds, eight assists and three steals for a splendid all-around performance.

Santa Fe's Rodney Bush had his own way around the basket with 29 points and a game-high 19 rebounds. Upon Yonge's return he popped in a short jumper to give the Saints a 74-68 lead. Hall, though, came back with two turnaround jumpers in the paint and Gallagher dropped a 15footer to pull SCC even at 74 with 4:32 to play.

At 1:35, Hall was fouled by Mike Edelman, "That killed them right there when their point guard fouled out." Payne said. Edelman had just two points for the night but his floor generalship was responsible for nine assists.

Drost called a timeout immediately but it didn't gnaw on Hall. He returned and dropped both free throws to pull SCC within 80-78, "That was a blessing in disguise." Payne said Hall going to the line. "Vance is a good shooter, period, but I don't think he realized the pressure.

After the inbounds, Gallagher and Roberts pulled off the most important steal of the night, double-teaming the ball and coming away with a layup at the other end.. "I just forced him to me. Roberts converted the driving layup to hoist the Raiders even at 80 all with 1:23 to play. Santa Fe, however, worked the clock down and Summers swished a wing jumper for an 82-80 edge with just 43 seconds to play. The Raiders then worked the ball around and finally inside to Hall. He was fouled with 19 seconds to go. Drost called his second psychological timeout but Hall was unaffected. He canned both free throws to pull the Raiders even at 82 all.

The Saints still had even time to pull it out. They tried to set up a play to Summers but with seven seconds left Landell shadowed Santa Fe's 6-2 swingman and batted away the pass near the sideline. It trickled out of bounds with one second left.

"It was a calculated risk." Landell said of his defensive maneuver. "But you can't worry about the foul. It was a risk I had to take.'

Summers did get off a shot at the buzzer but his forced 25footer sailed over the rim, forcing the overtime.

resigned citing "personal reasons".

It was Thompson's second resignation from an area law enforcement agency in just over four months, according to police personnel records. He resigned from the Orlando Police Department in August, according to an O.P.D. spokesman.

The Seminole County Sheriff's Department was aware that Thompson had resigned from Orlando when they hired him on December 10, according to sheriff's department spokesman Capt. Roy Hughey, who says his department's background check was extensive. Apparently, the check on Thompson falled to turn up important information regarding Thompson's performance before he left the O.P.D.

Thompson graduated from the Central Florida Regional Training Academy, a police academy in Orlando, on June 14, 1985, according to Lt. Dallas O'Dell, the academy's director. "His grades were more than adequate," O'Dell said of Thompson. "We experienced no problem with him.

That information was relayed to Seminole County during their background check of Thompson, O'Dell said, "We sent them his grades and told them he passed everything.

Thompson then began a field training program as a probationary police officer with the city of Orlando on June 16. He was in the first phase of a three phase training program when he resigned on August 23, according to Orlando Police Department Public Information Officer Jeff Peck.

But before he resigned, Peck says Thompson's training record shows "he had problems."

Peck said. "He had problems in the areas of report writing, accident investigation, and police radio procedure, which are basic police functions." There was an "overall general failure in those areas," he continued.

"A daily observation report, which the probationary officer sees, is kept on him." Peck said of the O.P.D. training procedure. "He (probably) looked at it and opted to go."

Had Thompson not resigned. Peck anticipated. "We would have continued to evaluate him and had he not improved he would not have been Hughey says the background check done by Lt. Randy Pittman, a 14-year veteran of the sheriff's department, found Thompson had no problems while he was with the O.P.D.

"I am confident we do a complete and thorough investigation," said Pittman. "Civil Service sets the guidelines (for histories of potential employees of the department), and we meet or exceed those standards. I stand behind our program." Pittman refused to comment on the specifies of his investigation of Thompson, who was hired as a deputy trainee following regular hiring standards, including the close scrutiny of Pittman.

Hughey said Pittman went to Orlando personally to obtain background information on Thompson, as is the case when the department is considering any deputy applicant. "The more information we have, the better able we are to judge if he (an applicant) would be a good deputy sheriff," Hughey said.

Hughey says Pittman checked with the personnel department of the Orlando Police Department, and found that Thompson had resigned from the force. Pittman also asked "if there was anyone else to see regarding Greg Thompson".

"They did not tell him anything derogatory" about Thompson. Hughey said. A sheriff's department official who spoke under the condition that his name wouldn't be used said there are sometimes problems in getting information from reluctant sources, or even getting a tip to guide an investigator in the right direction. "It is obvious (Seminole County's investigator) didn't get guided in the right direction on Thompson.

Peck said records available to him show that Pittman "talked strictly with the city of Orlando personnel office, not the Orlando Police Depart-

"He looked at his file there and took a copy of his dental records. We maintain that no one (from Seminole County) contacted the police department. "Had he (Pittman) asked to see the training report, it would have been granted had he gone to the training department. The training officer was not contacted by Seminole County." Peck said.

Peck also said that records show that the Orange County Sheriff's Department and the Winter Park Police Department, to whom Thompson appartently applied, did check his O.P.D. training record.

Steve Miceiche, the Director of Employee Relations at the Orange County Sheriff's Office said Thompson applied for employment with his agency in 1984, and they began to process him as a corrections officer candidate. Thompson withdrew his request for employment in March of 1985 to attend the police academy. Micciehe said. In Sept. 1985, Thompson again asked that his file and request for employment be reactivated after graduation from the academy. He was later not selected by Orange County, based on the results of two test results, and the final recommendation by his department's selection specialist, Micciche Winter Park personnel office spokesman Judy Coljeski refused comment.

Spokesman from various law enforcement agencies in central Florida have told the Evening Herald that it is up to each agency to conduct it's own background checks on officer candidates. Cheeks are made on the candidate's criminal record, driver's license, former employers, nonrelated acquaintences, education, special training and sometimes psychoanalyzed. But the background checking is done by each individual department, and no standard state-wide procedure is known.

The Division of Criminal Justice Standards and Training Commission in Tallahassee certifies law enforcement offices in Florida. Joe Kendrick, the commission's Standards and Training Specialist. says. "A law enforcement agency looking at hiring someone will call us to see if their candidate is still certified."

"If an officer resigns or is terminated, it is reported to us." Then they "look to see if there has been any violations of our standards,"

Kendrick said. An agency requesting information, "will ask me if an officer is certified, and if he is and there is no adverse termination, that's as far as I go," Kendrick said.

"It is up to the independent agencies to do a thorough investigation." he said in placing the responsibility for conducting background checks. A sheriff's department source added that an officer who resigns could return to law enforcement in the future an be successful. Thompson's case is probably not unique. An exchange of information regarding his previous job performance failed to take place for unknown reasons.

He is not charged or accused of any wrongdoing and may have been retained by Seminole County had he not resigned. Seminole County Sheriff John Polk said Thompson "wasn't going to be fired.

Thompson remains certified by the state, and is free to seek another law enforcement job. although his letter of resignation to the Seminole County Sheriff "indicated that he would prefer utilizing his talents in a field other than law enforcement" Polk said in a statement.

Thousands Mobilized As Street Fighting Erupts In East Beirut

As the fighting spread from one street to another, thousands of rival guinnen were mobilized, witnesses said. The clashes were described as the worst between the two sides since they split over a Syrian-backed peace accord. Witnesses said escalating combat also spread to the east

Beirut suburb of Awkar where the U.S. Embassy is located. The embassy could not be reached for comment, but military sources said rival Christian militia groups were locked in combat not far from the compound which is under the protection of the Lebanese army.

He said officers will be "vigorously patrolling throughout the city to ensure that adoption of the ordinance is followed through with action."

On Woman's Unhappy Youth DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the 30-year-old married woman who hated to go home for the holidays because her family kept repeating the stories about how fat, dumb and miserable she was as a child. (They all laughed and made a I. too, was a fat (200 pounds). sullen, unnappy and unpopular teen-ager, but I grew older and wiser. I trimmed down and became a very successful professional woman. After 10 years in Overeaters Anonymous, I realized that my family could be having mixed feelings of pride and jealousy about my adult accomplishments. Some people act more out of habit than malice. I broke my family of their habit of making my miserable past the focal point for family entertainment, or a topic of disclosure to strangers in my presence, with 12 simple words:

There is no need to discuss that now; let's change the subject." I repeated them in the car, in the shower, to my husband and the mirror until it became automatic. Then every time they started in on my past. I repeated it. No explanations; repetition only. When family members became defensive or denied any intent to hurt me. I said, "That's OK. There is no need to discuss that now. Let's change the subject." Once, out of pride, I'm sure, my mother started to tell an acquaintance what a fat, rebellious teen-ager I had been. I broke into her conversatin with the magic words. Mother later said she was upset that I had publicly admonished her. I simply repeated the phrase.

I'm now 34, and my family seldom mentions my childhood. If they do, I remind them with: "There is no need to discuss that now; let's change the subject."

Abby, if you think my letter will help someone whose family insists on dredging up painful garbage from the past, feel free to use this, but not my name. Sign me ...

Report Says Smoking Claims Most Lives

WASHINGTON (UPI) - More adults worldwide will die as a result of diseases related to smoking and smokeless tobacco than any other preventable cause of death, including war and famine, a

Despite research showing the dangers of tobacco, tobacco use remains epidemic in industrialized countries and is growing dramatically in Third World nations, said William Chandler, a senior researcher at the non-profit World Watch Institute and author of the report.

"No avoidable condition claims more adult lives than tobacco addiction." Chandler wrote in the report, which was released Saturday.

In a telephone interview, he explained that he included war, famine and terrorism among those conditions and said smoking was growing more popular in Third World nations in part because of an information lag.

"The Chinese people, for example, don't understand eigarette smoking is such a severe health threat." he said. "Plus, incomes are going up in places like China, so people have more money to buy eigarettes."

Chandler pointed out his research showed eigarette smoking alone is responsible for 2 million to 2.5 million deaths worldwide each year. or almost 5 percent of total deaths.

"Almost one-lifth of all U.S. deaths can be traced to eigarette smoke," he wrote. Specific causes of smoking-related death include bronchitis, emphysema, lung cancer, heart disease

In addition, he wrote, "Passive smokers (those who inhale the smoke of others' eigarettes) are perhaps three times likelier to die of hing cancer. than they would be otherwise.

The proportion of U.S. adults who smoke has fallen from 43 percent to 32 percent, but 20 percent more tobacco is used than when an anti-smoking campaign began in 1964, and the Passive smokers (those who inhale the smoke of others' cigarettes) are perhaps three times likelier to die of lung cancer than they would be otherwise."

nation still ranks third in the world in per capita eigarette consumption, the report said.

In addition, the use of chewing tobacco and smill in the United States has increased by more than 40 percent in the last two decades.

Worldwide, the use of tobacco has increased nearly 75 percent over the past two decades, and in China, use has doubled. Chandler wrote.

"Seventy-three percent more tobacco is consumed now than 20 years ago, so without a sudden drop in smoking, lung cancer deaths, for example, will almost certainly increase by 50 percent by the turn of the century," the report

Chandler accused governments of not protecting citizens from tobacco, charging that they try to rid their countries of unsafe medicines, illicit drugs and toxic wastes, but subsidize the tobacco industry

The World Health Organization allots less than I percent of its budget to fighting tobacco use, though it calls smoking "the most important preventable health problem in the world," the Chandler suggested that in countries that rely heavily on imports, tobacco should be banned altogether. In other nations, tobacco should be banned from public places and the workplace.

He also suggested raising tobacco taxes, which in itself would discourage tobacco use, and spending the money on education about the dangers of tobacco.

Polygamy Worth Considering, Black Women's Leader Says

NEW YORK (UPI) - The president of a national women's group says black women raising children on their own may have to consider alternatives to the traditional family - including polygamy.

Hortense Canady, president of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority Inc. a black professional women's group, says black mothers are being forced to "redefine" marital customs because of the shortage of single, employed black men, · Canady told 800 members of the group that one alternative to leaving children alone while their mothers work is the joining of singleparent families

"We have to change what we consider the nuclear family concept with so few single men" available, Canady said. We have to find other than the traditional solution or

Japanese OK Trade Measure

TORONTO (UPI) Prime Minister Brian Mulroney has persuaded Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone to endorse a free trade agreement between Canada and the United States as a means to forestall protectionism.

Mulroney met Sunday with Nakasone. who arrived earlier in the day with concerns that a free trade arrangement between Canada and the United States could result in protectionist measures that would hurt Japan.

A senior Canadian official said Mulroney stressed during a two-hour meeting at a downtown hotel that the trade initiative would instead be an "antidote to protectionism." Nakasone supported the priniciple of such an agreement, officials said.

Some Treatments Are Not Always Effective

35-year-old husband hurt his lower back and was out of work for eight months. During that time, he had a treatment to his back called chymopapain. He was told the treatment would be minor, with no complications. Well, his reaction was that he could not move for four days. He still can't tie his own shoes or slip on his pants in the morning. he's so stiff. Did this treatment affect his organs? Is his injury permanent?

DEAR READER - The injection of chymopapain is a new method to relieve the pain of a herniated disc in the back. It is supposed to allow patients to avoid surgery. Evidently, in your husband's case, the treatment was ineffective. Although the injection cannot directly affect his internal organs, it can permit continuation of pain and stiffness if the disc remains hernlated. I think your husband needs to see a neurosurgeon or an orthopedic specialist who specializes in back disorders.

DEAR DR. GOTT - I am a 59-year-old male who has had open-heart surgery with complications. I am getting along fine, except for one thing. Being single. I have been dating a lovely lady. We both enjoy sex, but I can't get any erections. Could the pills I'm taking be causing the problem? Should I talk to my doctor about it?

DEAR READER - My answer to your question is an unequivocal "yes." Although your performance problem may be the result of arteriosclerosis, medicine may contribute to the difficulty By all means, talk this over with your doctor, and if he throws up his hands in dispair. seeks another opinion.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

The North American Swiss Teams, a prestigious bridge event that has been around only a few years, is held during the last three days of the Fall North American Champtonships. It is more challenging than most other team events since on the last day all the competing teams. And that is what happened. On play their individual short matches with duplicated deals. Doing so climinates the inequity of other Swiss-team competitions. in which some matches have wilder deals with more opportunity for exaggerated results. My team happened to win this year. so this week you are going to see some of the deals from that final

In today's deal, South meant his three-spade bid as a con-

South corrected to five clubs, it was obvious that South had slam interest. North gambled to bid six, feeling that if South had small hearts, defender West would lead the ace. If West led a small heart. North hoped it would be away from the queen.

the opening heart lead, declarer played dummy's jack and East won with the ace. Back came the tack of diamonds, covered by the queen, king and ace. Now declarer began the parade of clubs. Since West could not guard both major queens, he eventually shed a heart. Now a heart to the king and a heart ruff made dummy's lowly seven of hearts a winner. This was one lucky hand for our team, but I bet you trol-showing cue-bid. When will feel that some of the other North raised to four spades and deals this week are even luckier.
