Touring Sanford with the British

Editor's note: Ideas for stories come from many places. Some of the best ideas come from our readers. Since the opening of the airport in April, area residents have asked us, "What about the British tourists? Are they coming to downtown Sanford? If so, what do they think?" We wondered the same thing. And so Friday, a Sanford Herald reporter accompanied two British tourists on a sightseeing high-through downtown Sanford.

SANFORD — The money is on its way, they suppose. Meanwhile, the cultural corridor in downtown Sanford is slowly emerging from the dusty shadows that had enveloped it for many years.

Until Gov. Lawton Chiles signs the grant it's not official, but the Ritz Theatre should be ready for action later this year thanks to a grant from the Florida state department's division of historic preservation and the tireless work of the numerous volunteers.

The $88,490 grant will allow the theatre organizers to complete the repairs of the facility's roof, treat the building for termites, paint the exterior, put up new doors and windows, install a new fire sprinkler system and replace the floor of the stage. See Culture, Page 6A

Bizarre meeting ends with two men dead

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

OVIDEO — Seminole County Sheriff's deputies are investigating why two men are dead and another is hospitalized with three gunshot wounds.

A bizarre chain of events Friday night on an access road near the GreeneWay in Ovidio left an unidentified 24-year-old Ft. Lauderdale man and 18-year-old Salem Paul of 1032 Vernon Loop in Ovidio dead and 22-year-old David Dutton of Ft. Lauderdale with two bullets in his abdomen.

Law enforcement officials are still trying to contact the 24-year-old man's parents who are in the Bahamas. They will not release his name until they have done so.

According to Ed McDonough, public information officer for the Seminole County Sheriff's office, Dutton, 22, and his partner were driving a rental car when they stopped in the parking lot of the Steak 'n' Shake restaurant on Red Bug Lake Road near the GreeneWay to pick up a passenger about 7:30 p.m. Friday.

That passenger was Paul, McDonough said. It is not clear whether or not Dutton and his friend knew Paul.

As they crossed Red Bug Lake Road and entered the parking lot of the Target department store, Dutton has told deputies, Paul pulled out a gun and shot the 24-year-old man twice in the head, killing him instantly.

He then shot Dutton twice in the torso and once in the chin, McDonough said.

Dutton left control of the car and leapt into the back seat where he struggled with Paul. The car left the road and flipped into a swampy area off of an access road behind the store, McDonough said.

In the swampy area, Dutton told deputies he didn't know if he strangled Paul to death or if he drowned him in the swampy water.

Once his attacker was dead, Dutton dragged himself to the parking lot of Target where he collapsed and someone called 9-1-1.

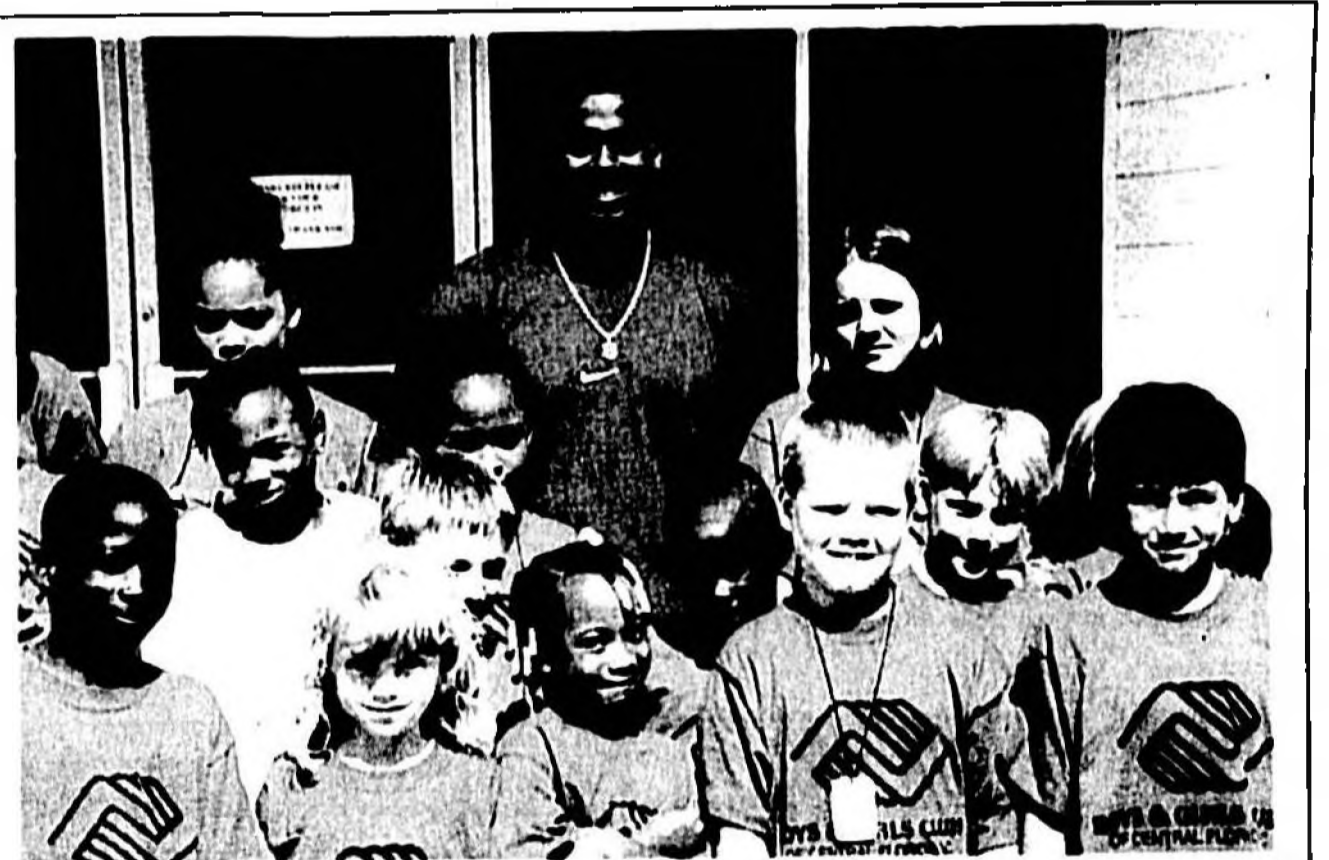

"We don't know how he had the strength to strangle that man with his bare hands after having been shot twice," McDonough said. "He did it, though."

Dutton was airlifted to Orlando Regional Medical Center. He was listed in stable condition on Saturday and was expected to recover fully from his wounds.

On Saturday morning, Paul's girlfriend Rachel Peters, of Longwood, called the Seminole County Sheriff's office to report that Paul had taken her to work at about 5 p.m. Friday in her car, but had failed to pick her up when her shift ended at 10 p.m.

The car is still missing, McDonough said. It is unclear where the car, a 1996 black

Finding former owners could solve code mystery

Where are the Bumgardners? That is the question facing the city of Sanford as representatives of the Building Department prepare to take on its latest challenge.

The building at 814 Elm Avenue is considered an eyesore by many residents of the Sanford Historic District. According to its owners, John and Janice Leroy of Sanford, the house contains three residential units, down from four in previous years.

Some local residents are contending that it should be reverted to a single family residence based on city regulations.

That's where the missing Bumgardners come in to play. The whole thing started in 1983 when the historic district including the building in question was zoned from multi-family to single family residence. At the time, however, the house was a multi-family residence and the new city regulations allowed for a grandfather clause meaning that, as long as it stayed multi-family without a lapse of more than six months, it would remain zoned that way.

Julia Goeb, elected Tuesday night to head the Sanford Historic Trust, confirmed that there would be a violation if the building remained unoccupied for six months.

The building was purchased soon after by Charles and Marilyn Bumgardner who may or may not have had more than one family occupying the residence during their ownership. The Bumgardners did request and receive a single family garbage rate which still exists.

Now it becomes tricky. John Leroy said he assumed the Bumgardners' mortgage and purchased the property. He said he maintained it as multi-family and tenants occupied the building without a time lapse.

Others say the building stood vacant for more than six months which would revert the zoning status back to single-family and put the Leroy's in violation.

Now it seems only the Bumgardners can answer whether multiple family units occupied the building during their ownership and no one knows where they are.

Both the Leroy's and their opponents say the Bumgardners are somewhere in Tennessee but attempts to reach them have been unsuccessful.

A representative of the Sanford Building Department said the couple could "be in Timbuktoo for all we know."

Historical District resident Bob Cassels claims that city officials are not trying to find any answers.

"I call the city to find out what's going on and they never call back," Cassels said.

Building Inspector Dan Florian disagreed with Cassels.

"We are investing a lot of time in trying to find the right documentation," Florian said. "We'd like to send the matter to code enforcement if there is a violation but we don't have the documentation. We need a statement from the previous owner." See Codes, Page 6A

Chamber brochure makes Sanford shine

By Bill Pappas
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Chamber of Trade Inc. has had its latest brochure created by the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, and people can have no doubt that Sanford would be an outstanding city to visit.

To be available to visitors at the chamber office, 400 E. First Street in downtown Sanford, the brochure will also become available to visitors at the Amtrak station, and the visitor's booth at the Orlando-Sanford Airport, where international flights are arriving daily.

Thus far, the chamber has obtained $200 from the Seminole County Convention and Visitors Bureau to help cover the expenses of the first 10,000 copies which have been produced.

Monday afternoon, during the work session of the Sanford City Commission, the chamber is requesting an additional $200 from the city.

In addition, chamber Executive Director Wanda Kelly said the chamber is working with various area attractions, area businesses and its own Tourism Commission, to make additional funding.

Highlights points of interest and suggests activities in which visitors might become involved, but goes into a history of the city, some of the historical structures, suggests a tour of the historic downtown area, and stresses the value of the city being located conveniently on the shores of Lake Monroe and the St. Johns River.

As the matter is only listed for discussion during the city commission work session, and not on the formal agenda for the regular meeting, no advance recommendation has been indicated.

The City Commission work session is scheduled to begin at 4:30 p.m. Monday afternoon, in the city manager's conference room, second floor, of Sanford City Hall, 200 N. Park Avenue.

Amaranth honors McFadden, woman's club installs

June McFadden, Amaranth Royal Grand Matron

SENIOR EDITOR

DORIS DIETRICH

June McFadden was living a dream as she departed from Sanford on Tuesday, May 23, along with her daughter, Sharon Smith and husband, Dean Smith, to attend the 48th Annual Guiding Light Session of the Grand Court of Florida, Order of the Amaranth. The session and exciting events of the red-letter week were held at the Palm Beach Gardens Marriott, Palm Beach Gardens.

June left Sanford as the Grand Associate Matron and was honored at a luncheon in that capacity on Wednesday. On Friday, June was elected Grand Royal Matron of Florida, the highest Amaranth office in the state, with 58 Courts represented from Miami to the panhandle.

That evening, June and the Grand Royal Patron-elect, Al Weidner, were honored at a banquet for nearly 300 guests in a dazzling ambience featuring a variety of intriguing butterflies. Crocheted butterfly napkin rings were handmade by Betty Bitchley and Joyce Fuqua of June's home Court, Seminole #58. Table favors of large butterflies were created of wire screen decorated with multi-colored glitter, made by Silver Sands Court #69, Fort Walton Beach.

All of the pomp and pageantry of a royal coronation was reflected on Saturday night when June was installed. Honored Lady June was as radiant as any butterfly or queen in her glittering green beaded and sequin gown and cascading train, lavishly embellished with silver sequins.

Sharon Smith was installed as Grand Representative to New Jersey and her husband, Dean, was installed as Grand Warder.

H.L. Lyndell Francis of Sanford, who sang when June was elected Royal Associate Matron, sang "I Believe," as Sharon Smith walked her mom, the Grand Royal Matron across the room. An arch of Royal Matrons and Royal Patrons holding colorful butterflies on sticks, formed in the west and daughter Colleen Hill walked her royal mom under the archway.

The retiring Grand Royal Patron announced that $67,000 was donated during the year to the Amaranth Diabetic Research Foundation.

June said, "This is an honor to be elected the Grand Royal Matron of Florida. I never expected the honor. It is because David (her late husband) was Grand Royal Patron and he and daughter Sharon wanted me to be the Grand Royal Matron.

"I believe it was God's plan as he took Dave to be in the heavenly home and left me to work for the good of the Order with a beautiful group of loving honor ladies and air knights."

Family and friends traveling to the coronation of June were her daughter, husband and grandson, Colleen and Michael Hill

industry in Central Florida, for more than 50 years, each of the recipients has shaped the growth and development of area church music. This year's honoree Faye Joyce Williams, heiress to the Dean of Anthems, Faye succeeds her mother, the late Mary Hardemon Whitehurst in Central Florida's Gospel Music arena.

Before being taught to play the piano by her mother and Mrs. Louis Weaver, Faye had great aspirations as indicated in her display of musical talent on a box top and the piano stool.

At the age of 12, Faye began playing for Sunday School and Baptist Training Union. She has played for churches throughout Sanford and Orlando and has served 24 years at Morning Glory Missionary Church of Sanford. An accomplished pianist, Faye is one of the original musicians and directors of the Martin Luther King Celebration Choir, and a participant in the bicentennial choir.

Educational achievement for Ms. Williams comes from Roberta Wesleyan College of Music, Eastman School of Music, and the University of Central Florida. With an AA degree in music from Volusia County Community College, Ms. Williams graduated magna cum laude from Bethune Cookman College in 1967 with a B.S. degree in criminal justice and a minor in music. Faye, in 1986, received a master's degree in human services at Nova University.

Outstanding accolades have been awarded this honoree for her distinguished special achievement for dedicated service to the State of Florida while an HRB foster care counselor. She was the 1986 recipient of the Davis productivity award and the 1984 recipient of Alpha Kappa Alpha's Distinguished Service Award for outstanding and dedicated service.

A veteran of Seminole County Sheriff's Office, Williams is the mother of two sons and seven grandchildren.

Her achievements are not only in the field of music but in the community and lives of others.

Commission plans Girl Scout Day, garden club honors 2 on birthdays

Mr. and Mrs. David Wayne Hartley, Alex Blaksley and Nancy Canfield

Blaksley-Hartley vows repeated in western setting

Brandi Ann Blaksley and David Wayne Hartley, both of Geneva, were married March 3, 1988, at 3 p.m., at the American Legion Post No. 53 in Sanford. The Rev. Jim Maynard performed the ceremony which carried out a western theme.

The bride is the daughter of Arthur and Barbara Blaksley of Geneva, and the bridegroom is the son of Thomas and Linda Hartley of Crystal River.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her veil a traditional white tulle with a sequined trim and a train. A floral headpiece had her tiered veil of imported tulle and she carried a cascade of white flowers. She wore white satin granny boots and at the reception, exchanged her veil for a white sequined cowboy hat.

Andrea Johnson of Chesapeake, Va., attended the bride as maid of honor. She wore a floor-length, off-the-shoulder floral print gown with a halo of flowers in her hair. Bridesmaids Kim Hartley and Rhonda Saiter were dressed identically to the honor attendant.

Kenny Matthews of Deltona served the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Art and Earl Canfield. Groomsmen were Cliff Arata and Richard Knapp.

Flower girl was Nancy Canfield and ring bearer was Alex Blaksley.

A reception followed the ceremony at the American Legion. Assistants were Marilyn Maynard, Jean Cannon and Jerome Smith.

Following a wedding trip to Orlando Attractions, the newlyweds are making their home at 1871 SR 46, Geneva, where the bride is a homemaker and the bridegroom is employed by Stanley Steemer in Longwood.

Monday, June 5 was the last meeting of the Lake Mary Historical Commission before its summer break. To increase public awareness of the commission and to serve the community, the commission decided on the day for their own Girl Scout Day.

On Girl Scout Day, set for Saturday, Oct. 28, at the Frank Evans Center, the historical commission will offer workshops for Brownies, Juniors, Cadettes and Senior Girl Scouts. The workshops will help the Girl Scouts earn the historical recognition desired for their age level. The Brownies will work on the Try-It "Listening to the Past". The Juniors will work on the badge "Local Love". The Cadettes and Seniors will work on the Interest Project Patch "Community Time Capsule".

The girls will learn how to start their own genealogical record or family tree and they will also learn about the first Girl Scout leaders in Lake Mary. And weather permitting, the girls will get a guided tour of the Lake Mary cemetery.

For the commission, this is

Just one of its continuing steps toward increasing community involvement. For the Girl Scout leaders, this is a wonderful local resource to help teach the girls about history.

The 1987 Lake Mary Historical Commission calendar was the other big topic for the evening. Many commission members turned in pictures for the calendar to the calendar committee. The focus for the 1987 calendar will be children. The calendar committee will meet again June 19 to select the pictures for the calendar, so any commission members who still have pictures to turn in can do so before that date. If you can't get to any calendar committee meeting with the pictures, you can also turn them in to Maurine Libertore at Lake Mary City Hall.

For those who are interested, you can pick up a 1988 calendar at city hall for $1.00. This is a great collector's item. The pictures for this year's calendar are of Lake Mary's lakes. A month-one is the picture for the month of May. It's an early bathing beauty picture of young Edward Langford Sprout. For those of you who don't remember the name, she is now Margaret Wesley, historian for the Lake Mary Historical Commission.

The bright red T-shirts made for Old Lake Mary Days 1988 were the most popular shirts in the series. There are still a few left at city hall. You can pick one up for only $5.00 for any size over XL. A few of the 1988 T-shirts are also still available for just $8 each.

The next meeting of the Lake Mary Historical Commission will be Tuesday, Sept. 6, at 7 p.m., at Lake Mary City Hall.

Happy Birthday

It was a very special day for two very special people. On Tuesday, May 31, the Lake Mary Garden Club held a birthday party honoring two of its members. On May 18, Lois Pugh turned 98. And on May 20, Thelma Brewer turned 79. Lois is one of the original founders of the club which began in the 1930's. Thelma is a lifetime member of the Lake Mary Historical Commission.

The dual birthday party was held at Frances Abell's house on her porch overlooking the lake. Both women received birthday cards from the group and then everyone shared cake and ice cream. Of course for two people there were two tables. A beautiful tablecloth and centerpiece.

Guests at the party included Frances Abell, Lillian Allison, Mary Wolfe, Lillian Griffin, Margaret Wesley, Claire O'Connor, Dale Cline, Connie Bennett, Elsie Serrano, Harriet Boyd and Mary Jane Duryen. The guests of honor told some wonderful stories from the past.

The club did conduct some club business. They discussed the railroad crossing the club has been working on to beautify.

Thelma Brewer, 79 (left), and Lois Pugh, 98, were honored on their birthdays by the Lake Mary Garden Club. Pugh was one of the founders of the club.

The president presented outstanding member-of-the-year awards to Vida Frank and Vivian Beck. Rose Jacobson, who was absent due to being honored at a Seminole County Dividende function, received the president's Sharing and Caring Award for May.

At the close of the meeting, the outgoing president presented Ruth Gaines with the president's pin and the keys. In turn, Ruth pinned Delores with a past president's pin. President Gaines made appropriate comments and recessed the club until October.

Luncheon hostesses were: Jeannette Padgett and Robert Zittrower, chairman; Rose Payne, Peggy Teien, Grace Parks, Martin Yancy, Libby Provett and Frances Webster.

Bridal shower

Karl Anne Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Anderson, who became the bride of Todd Cline, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Cline, Saturday at Hawthorn Country Club, was honored at a basket bridal shower on May 8. Site of the pre-nuptial event was the idyllic home of Dr. and Mrs. Roger Stewart when Gail Stewart, her daughter, Shanon Stewart, and Lisa Cline, sister of the bridegroom-to-be, were hostesses.

About 25 guests arrived bearing lovely baskets filled with shower gifts. The hostess gift was a basket filled with "Glorious Home" for the home since the newlyweds are "Glorious Home".

Centering the refreshment table, overlaid with white lace over a burgundy liner, was an arrangement of large dark red roses interspersed with small pink sweetheart rosebuds. Refreshments included heavy hors d'oeuvres, fresh fruit, individual charcuterie, pastries, mini quiche triangles, home baked cookies, moka punch and raspberry and peach cordes.

Kudos, Shanon

Shanon Stewart, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Roger Stewart, has completed her first term at the Wearing a strawberry T-shirt, Lita Roffe displays some of the items in her collection.

Strawberries of all shapes, sizes lend charm to home

By Susan Walker
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Strawberries in every room in the Sanford home of Lita Roffe. Her 20-year baby has brought thousands of red berries to her charming collection.

Roffe recalls the first of many. "My first strawberry was a glass canteen bottle from Avon," she said. "You name it, I've got it."

That is but an understatement. Roffe has ceramic, tin, wood, cloth, glass, plastic, metal, concrete and of yarn. The list would go on and on to name them all.

Strawberry address labels, potholders, dishes, tea sets, windchimes, rugs, letter holders, pencil holders, picture frames, tin, place mats, tablecloths, oven burner covers, salt & pepper shakers, drink stirrers, wreaths, numerous bird feeders, fly swatter, artificial plants, pillows, bath spongers, a waste basket, cutting board and stepping stones.

Roffe did some some of the most unusual and unique in the collection. "I have some earrings that are only about a 1/4 of an inch," she said. "I have a plastic toy box that is about two and a half feet by 18 inches."

She has even made a couple for couples by changing the strawberry's shape and color. She did believe that it's hard to choose a favorite because they are all special.

Of all the treasures, the most unusual was named as a "strawberry house with a light in it surrounded by children" that was a gift from her son after a trip to West Virginia. Also two ceramic "strawberry monkeys" were purchased at a recent strawberry festival. "My husband wanted to put them away," she said. "He thought they looked ugly."

Another sentimental item was cited as a picture framed with a strawberry picture. "A neighbor saw the picture of two strawberries in a magazine," she said. "She and her husband cut it out and got it framed for me."

Although every room of the house has a little red touch of charm, Roffe can't help but wear a few of her favorites. Pantsuits and other clothing are painted with the strawberries.

A stroll to her pool area even shows red. Strawberry stepping stones await installation. Hummingbird feeders surround the outer perimeter of the Roffe home.

She admits that she wanted to paint the house red and the roof green but her husband put the kibosh to that idea. She even thought a nice, juicy strawberry painted on the bottom of the pool would add a nice accent but another negative reaction was cited by her other half.

Strawberry switch plates, magazine baskets, bottles and more also grace the door. Her small dog even has a plastic canvas mat of strawberries under the water and food dish.

A friend once asked Roffe if she ever tired of the luscious fruit. "I told her I could never get enough. One can never have too many strawberries."

A little time for cricket does go into her weekends but games when? She also does heavy sewing and other things similar. She is presently working to complete a crochet project of the Lord's Prayer.

Roffe and her husband, Bill, have been married for nine years. They share eight children, Rick, Russell, Rodney, Roger, Randy, Becky, Mark, Melissa and 10 grandchildren.

She has lived in Sanford for over 20 years. She is also a volunteer with the Fleet Reserve where she works from two to 12 hours a week helping with bingo and serving at dinners.

Assisted suicide issue raises concerns among the disabled

DEAR ARBY: This is in response to your column regarding physician-assisted dying. Legitimate concern outside is seen by many as death with dignity — an end to suffering for terminally ill people who have rationally thought through their options and have made a very personal choice.

History supports the fact that society does not value equally the lives of people with disabilities and those without. During the formative years of the effort to banish assisted suicide, members of the disabled community voiced philosophical concerns about the danger to people with disabilities.

Dr. Koverman has clearly demonstrated he isn't concerned with whether or not the members of his "patients" are terminal. He was recently convicted of aiding the suicide of a 20-year-old man who had recently become a quadriplegic. Did anyone make a concerted effort to counsel the man for depression, to look closely at the reasons he thought he shouldn't work hard? Maybe he needed just counseling in addition to the fact that people have about being disabled, that about not having adequate support, resources and opportunities necessary to achieve a quality life.

The disabled community has legitimate concerns. While recent court decisions have opened assisted suicide only for terminally, terminally ill adults, Judge Stephen Reinhardt, when he wrote for the majority in the decision of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, also said that death is more humane than continuing to live in "a child-like state of helplessness."

Moving someone using the toilet, eating and bathing do not create helplessness, nor provide having a quality life unless you don't have access to the help you need. Nothing helps if a bar or restaurant community. It. When an individual person chooses suicide, his or her choice is considered irrational. When a disabled person attempts suicide, the act is more readily judged "rational." After all, if you're not physically functional, how could it be worth living?

The danger of assisted suicide to the disabled community are enormous as long as doctors, judges and juries continue to act on the words of people who are acting

MARY ANN JONES, ACTING EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, WESTERN CENTER FOR INDEPENDENT LIVING, INC.

DEAR MR. JONES: I have the warmest respect for WCIIL and the work it does in helping people with disabilities live independently, and I realize the importance of informing my readers about the contents of the disabled regarding assisted suicide.

I have always believed that the disabled should be treated with compassion and respect, and helped to live in the independence of choice.

We should be the same free however, lived the cry of the terminally ill who are of equal mind and who refused aid in death. The "Standard" booklet, which I mentioned in a recent column on this subject, is concerned about the person who is dependent — not that person, it programs that not only give the person a quality of life but also that person respect, something from a special health professional before any decision is made about aid in death.

Comments on the booklet are in an very thoughtful and respectfully to people who are disabled.

DEAR ARBY: My husband and I have been dating for almost a year; however, we are not officially engaged yet.

Some of our friends have gotten married, and we attended those weddings together, as we were both invited.

This summer, his family will be invited to many weddings. I have not many of his family's friends, but if they do not include my name on the invitation, is it proper for my husband to call the bride and ask her if I may attend?
MAY NOT BE INVITED

DEAR MAY NOT: No, it is not proper. If there is an "and Guest" on the invitation, it would be extremely presumptuous for your husband to telephone the bride and ask if you may attend.

Work-related injuries are down across state

By Mike Pridemore
Herald Staff Writer

It took a year and a half to compile statistics on work injuries and illnesses, in relationship to time lost on the job. (Perhaps the statistician was out sick).

The latest figures were for the year 1979, and released on the last day of May. They were compiled as the result of a survey by the Florida Department of Labor and Employment Security.

Division of Safety Director Alvin Manning said the figures show a 7.7 percent decrease from 1978. The illnesses were determined by cases which required an individual to lose at least one day's work.

Among the findings were the following:

Truck drivers led all other occupations in the number of injuries with 7,844 (7.8 percent of the total injured). This was followed by construction laborers with 5,846, and nursing aides and orderlies with 4,010.

Contact with objects or equipment, primarily struck by objects, led to all other categories in the manner in which on-the-job injuries occurred — over 57 percent of the 101,500 cases.

Sprains and strains comprised over half of all injury and illness cases involving days away from work.

Older and younger workers were more than doubling their number of days away from work. For workers 18 to 24 years of age, it is 2 to 3 days for those over age 54.

Repetitive motion comprised less than one percent of all disabling events, occurring most frequently in manufacturing and service industries.

Regarding the sex of injured workers in 1979, 68.5 percent were men, 31.5 percent were women.

Old Time Pottery now open in Lake Mary

By Mike Pridemore
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Old Time Pottery, a Murfreesboro, Tenn. based discount housewares and home accessories company, has announced the grand opening of its latest retail location in Lake Mary this Saturday.

The business is located in the former Builders Square facility, on Lake Mary Boulevard, just southeast of the Interstate-4 intersection.

The super home store is to occupy the revitalized 110,000 square foot building. The store will employ approximately 100 people.

Company officials said the Lake Mary location was selected by Old Time Pottery over other potential locations after evaluating the growth, competition, level of tourism, and overall market potential in Seminole County.

Jack H. Peterson, president of the company said, "The Lake Mary store is the company's most ambitious expansion to date."

Other Old Time Pottery locations anchor discount malls and shopping centers. This expansion however, will be in a freestanding location, absent from other retailers. The expansion also introduces the primary store concept of price, variety and volume merchandising to a market which Peterson says is basically unfamiliar with this sort of retail store.

Grand opening observations are scheduled for 9 a.m. this Saturday morning.

Back down the road

By Phillip Alder

PHILLIP ALDER

After a day off for some golf at the Brisbane Golf Club, Meta Goodman and I drove about 90 miles south to Warwick. I ran a duplicate, inserting some interesting deals before play began. And as Meta had predicted the other boards, the members didn't know which were which. One deal featured a laydown seven no-trump that was hard to reach. All they thought it was one of mine — wrong!

I went down on this deal following excellent deceptive defense by Reelyn Hart (East) and Les Pools, president of the club.

Pools started by leading a supposedly fourth-highest diamond (five: three, jack, queen). I played the heart 10, East winning with the ace and switching to the club seven. After winning with the ace, I ruffed a club in the dummy and cashed the king-queen of hearts, discarding two diamonds from hand. Now I tried to cash the diamond ace but Reelyn Hart ruffed with the spade nine. A trump to West's ace was followed, at trick nine, by the diamond king, which I ruffed.

If the remaining trumps were splitting 1-1, I could play a spade to dummy's jack and claim. But I thought East was likely to have the spade 10 because of her ruff with the nine. If so, it was safe to ruff my last club with dummy's trump jack and play a heart. I could either ruff with the spade eight or overruff East if she trumped with the 10. As you can see, this didn't work well when West overruffed my spade eight with his 10.

Despite one down being a disaster
