

Sanford Volunteers Ready To Help Administer Grant

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

A complex and comprehensive joint-effort undertaken last month by Sanford city commissioners, administrators and residents successfully concluded today, when the city submitted its application for a $650,000 state Housing and Urban Development small cities grant. Now, however, rather than breath a collective sigh of relief, the Sanford representatives are gearing up for a second phase of preparation, this one addressing the grants' distribution.

The city should know within 60 days whether it will receive the funds, which would enable some residents to revitalize their homes. Tonight, in anticipation of a favorable determination, the grant's citizens advisory committee will present the city commission with proposals designed to ensure the funding is used to its maximum potential.

The committee is optimistic the grant will be obtained and odds are the assumption is correct, according to Pat Patterson, a private consultant the city hired to assist in preparing its application. Patterson said HUD has rated Sanford number two behind Key West in terms of economic need. This translates into a 90 percent chance for success, according to Kim Smith, Sanford's director of administrative services.

Ms. Smith, City Manager Frank Faison and Planning and Engineering Director Bill Simmons, along with their staffs, have been working with the nine member citizens advisory committee to obtain the grant. The entire effort is being overseen by the city commission.

Standing to benefit initially from the grant are 81 homes, located in the target area the city included in its application. The area consists of 25 blocks bordered by Hickory and Bay Avenues and 7th and 11th Streets.

Upon completion of these efforts, additional neighborhoods might also be revitalized, Faison said, because part of the grant would be distributed through low interest loans, and thus, be perpetuated.

Acting with this in mind, the advisory board has developed its guidelines to address both present and future distribution of the funds. Chaired by former City Manager Pete Knowles, the committee is composed of a cross-section of concerned and experienced city representatives.

2nd House In Path Of Sinkhole

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

A sinkhole that has already swallowed one home in a Clay County retirement community near Gainesville was 80-feet across, 60-feet deep early today "and will probably take a garage and maybe another house before the day is over," Clay County Roads Superintendent C. W. Thomas said this morning.

Residents of four homes at Keystone Heights' Park of the Palms community have been evacuated since Saturday, when the hole opened up, Thomas said.

"It started out about 15-feet across and just kept growing," he said. "There's not much more we can do but stand by to see what happens next."

A garage that is attached to a house is now poised at the hole's brink, according to Keystone's fire and rescue department supervisor, Bobbie Paredes.

"The dirt around it's base is beginning to crumble, so I guess it's a matter of time," she said.

Although located on private property, Thomas said road crews have been posted at the hole "as a safety measure. We don't want people getting too close

Home Blaze Extinguished

Seminole County firefighters extinguished an early morning blaze at 2001 Sunderland Trail, Fern Park, today.

The two-alarm fire, which brought out four fire engines started at about 6:20 a.m. and was under control by about 7:20 a.m., Battalion Chief James Crider said.

The names of the elderly couple who fled the $90,000 home in their night clothes were not available early today, but there were no reported injuries, Crider said.

The fire was an "attic fire" and the blaze was confined primarily to the inside of the home, with greatest damage to the roof, a bedroom and patio. The rest of the home was smoke-damaged, but there was no estimate of damage early today, Crider said.

The cause of the fire had not been determined and Crider said he did not know if the home was equipped with smoke detectors.

Yuletide Sharing

Kiwanian Leo King helps Margaret McCoy of Higgins Terrace bag toys she selected for her children at Salvation Army toy and food distribution early today. About 600 families who made application for the donated items were to be served, army officials said. Those hoping for the best selection began line-up at the center's W. 24th Street facility at 4 a.m. today.

Man Shoots Self While Hunting

A 31-year-old Chuluota man who accidentally shot himself while squirrel hunting Saturday afternoon is in satisfactory condition today at Winter Park Hospital.

The man, who was with his 12-year-old son and the owner of the wooded property on which they were hunting, said he tripped while trying to find a place to sit between 4 and 5 p.m. He fell, and the .410-gauge shotgun discharged, hitting him in the right wrist.

Admitted to the hospital at 7:08 p.m.

was Tommie Harrison Boyd, of 360 E. Sixth St.

Boyd's 12-year-old son Eddie stood by while Leonard Simpson, with whom Boyd had been hunting, wrapped Boyd's injured hand, and then used his belt as a tourniquet to slow the bleeding. The trio then returned to Simpson's Willingham Road home and called an ambulance.

The Seminole County Sheriff's Department investigators said they have ruled the shooting "accidental."

Winnie Mandela Free

Bomb Kills 4 In S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — A bomb exploded at a crowded shopping center in a coastal resort town south of Durban today, killing four people and injuring at least 20, witnesses said.

Winnie Mandela, held overnight in police cells for defying a government order to stay out of Soweto, appeared briefly in the Johannesburg magistrates' court, but no charges were made against her, her lawyer, Akbar Ayob said.

She was released without bail and was warned to reappear in court on Jan. 2.

Her lawyer said Mandela "is in high spirits" and intended returning to her home in Soweto, despite the government order. But Ayob said he did not expect police to re-arrest her.

The explosion in Amanzimtoti is the second in three days in Natal province, where a magnetic mine tossed under a parked mini-bus Saturday injured eight shoppers in downtown Durban.

A police spokesman in Pretoria, Lt. Col. Vic Haynes, confirmed the blast but had no further details.

The bomb went off in a shopping center that also contains an apartment block, killing four people and injuring at least 20, witnesses said. Amanzimtoti, a coastal resort about 20 miles south of Durban, is a popular vacation spot for thousands of tourists during the Christmas holidays.

In Pretoria, a police spokesman said one man was killed and eight arrested in overnight violence in South Africa's black townships, bringing the death toll in 22 months of violence to 1,003.

Authorities Saturday eased an order exiling Mandela to a farming community southwest of Johannesburg and ruled that she may live and visit anywhere in South Africa — except Johannesburg and Soweto.

Under the new restrictions, she was allowed to go to social functions but was still prohibited from attending political events. She also was no longer required to report once a week to a police station.

Mandela rejected the offer and police took her to a hotel at Jan Smuts airport outside Johannesburg, warning she was an illegal resident of Soweto and would be arrested if she returned.

But within hours of her release from the hotel, Mandela returned to Soweto to the home where she lived with her husband before he was jailed for life for treason and sabotage in 1964. Police arrested her late Sunday.

Nelson Mandela is a founder of the outlawed African National Congress, which advocates the violent overthrow of white rule in South Africa.

Mrs. Mandela, known affectionately among blacks as "the mother of the nation," was exiled in 1977 to Brandfort, a farming town 200 miles southwest of Johannesburg. She returned to Soweto in October.

In November, security police ordered her to return to Brandfort, but she ignored the demand and further violated the conditions of her banning order by attending and addressing funeral services for riot victims and executed black guerrilla fighter and poet, Benjamin Molise.

Before her arrest, she told journalists she expected to be detained but said, "I will not be dictated to by the occupiers of this country."

Auto Crash Kills Woman

An Altamonte Springs woman died from injuries received in a 10:15 a.m. accident Saturday on Interstate 4 near Altamonte Springs.

Dead is Cheryl Shea, 29, of 831 Colgate Dr. She died at Orlando Regional Medical Center, according to the Florida Highway Patrol.

She was injured when a east-bound car on Interstate 4 crossed the median and slammed into her westbound vehicle. Driver of that car, Dapha Smith, 30, of Orlando, is in critical condition at ORMC, according to an FHP report.

Driver of a third vehicle involved, Rolf Grosswiler, 42, of Kissimmee, was not injured.

According to the report, Smith's 1983 Ford struck the back of Grosswiler's vehicle then crossed the median striking Ms. Shea's 1974 Chevy.

Charges are pending.

Ms. Shea is the 42 traffic fatality of the year in Seminole County. She is survived by a husband, a daughter, parents and siblings.

Stabbed Bus Driver's Condition Improves

TAMPA (UPI) — Hospital officials say the condition of a bus driver stabbed repeatedly by a crazed passenger in a bloody melee that left a 14-year-old boy dead and two others hospitalized has improved from critical to serious.

An off-duty sheriff's deputy shot and killed the wild-eyed man who hacked commuters and Christmas shoppers with a butcher knife Saturday.

A Hillsborough County sheriff's office spokesman said the man was not carrying identification.

"It was like being in a nightmare you couldn't get out of," said Wava Gordon, who was knocked down and cut several times by the man. "His eyes, I'll never forget them."

Bus driver Samuel Kelly, 30, was suffering from stab wounds to the chest and abdomen today at Tampa General Hospital. His condition had been listed as critical since his admittance, but was upgraded late Sunday.

There were about 10 people on the bus at 10:50 a.m. when the man boarded at a shopping mall about six miles northeast of Tampa, police said.

The knife was apparently wrapped in newspaper. After the bus had traveled only 100 yards he turned and yelled to passengers. "Get out, get out," a passenger said.

When Kelly ordered the man off the bus, he turned and stabbed the bus driver twice in the chest, police said.

Clyde Russell III, 14, of Brandon, Fla., was stabbed several times. He had been Christmas shopping at Eastlake Square Shopping Center with his mother, Jean, and sister, Tammy, 16, police said. He died later of his wounds.

Russell, despite his loss of blood, ran to a nearby motorcycle shop and notified off-duty reserve Hillsborough County deputy David Rule, who ended the rampage by killing the man.

Jean Russell said her son is a hero. "I feel that he is a hero. I feel he somehow stopped him (the man) from killing us," she said. "It all happened so fast."

"He just kept yelling at us to get out," said Tammy Russell. "Get out before he killed us all."

Air Force Lt. Col. Edward Kellner, 38, a resident of Valrico, Fla., was listed in stable condition late Sunday at

Reagan To Sign 5-Year Farm Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan — whose veto threat forced farm bill compromises by Congress — today signs a five-year farm bill and a farm credit measure with a media blitz aimed at the economically stressed Farm Belt.

The scheduled signing ceremony and teleconference were a dramatic contrast to Reagan's veto in March of the year's first farm legislation — a largely partisan farm debt relief measure rushed through Congress by Democrats with the help of heartland Republicans.

This time around, Rep. Edward Madigan, R-Ill., ranking Republican on the House Agriculture Committee had predicted "political disaster in the Farm Belt for the Republican Party" if Reagan had vetoed the five-year farm bill.

Reagan chose to align himself symbolically with the farm bill he had threatened to veto by agreeing to accompany Agriculture Secretary John Block to a teleconference via satellite to answer questions from hundreds of agricultural journalists.

After congressional committees approved a farm credit bill acceptable to the administration, there was little doubt Reagan would sign the measure to restructure the federally chartered, farmer-owned Farm Credit System, which holds one-third of the farm debt.

Reagan and administration officials had threatened a veto of the five-year farm bill during nearly a year of tough negotiations with Congress. Reagan failed to get the dairy policy he wanted.

IN BRIEF

Witnesses Say Plane Lost Wing Before Crashing

BROOKLYN, Mich. (UPI) — A small plane that crashed into an ice-covered lake, killing six people on their way to Ohio for a family Christmas gathering, plunged out of the sky missing a wing and "with parts falling off of it," witnesses told police.

The single-engine Cessna Cardinal took off in poor visibility from Reynolds Field in Jackson Sunday morning and crashed into Lake Columbia near Brooklyn, about 15 miles southwest of the airport, State Police Sgt. Darlene Wilson said.

All six people on board were killed. Police identified the victims as Harlan Keilor, 59, the pilot; Robert VanValin, 27; his wife, Laurie, 26; their sons, Robert Jr., 9, and Christopher, 7; and Pat Starr, 52, Mrs. VanValin's mother. All were from Jackson.

The victims were en route to Urbana, Ohio, to spend the holidays with Starr's family. Keilor and Starr had been dating about two years, a family member said.

Officials of the Federal Aviation Administration and National Transportation Safety Board arrived at the scene late Sunday to investigate. A state trooper said divers will try to raise the fuselage from the 25-foot-deep lake later today.

Autopsy Set For Overdosed Bear

BLUE RIDGE, Ga. (UPI) — An autopsy was scheduled on a black bear that found and ate part of a duffel bag of cocaine dropped in north Georgia's mountains last September by parachuting drug smuggler Andrew Thornton.

The dead bear was found in the Chattahoochee National Forest last Friday near a torn duffel bag and 40 plastic bags with traces of cocaine that had been ripped open, Georgia Bureau of Investigation officials said Sunday.

"It appears the bear had gotten into the duffel bag because it was stripped," said Fran Wiley of the GBI's drug enforcement office in Gainesville. "It wouldn't take very much to kill him. He could have eaten a half pound and that would have killed him."

A medical examiner was scheduled to perform an autopsy on the bear today to confirm it died from an overdose of cocaine.

Wiley estimated the 40 plastic containers once held 75 pounds of cocaine worth $15 million.

"The only thing that was left were the packages themselves," she said. "No cocaine was recovered. We're not saying there's any foul play in that regard."

"We're looking at over two months since it was dropped there. It's had time to dissolve and there was snow on the mountain when we found it. The bear obviously didn't eat 75 pounds of cocaine."

Spy Prompts Hiring Changes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Armed Services Committee will re-examine its hiring procedures stemming from the arrest of a print shop worker who allegedly tried to sell classified documents to the Soviets, an official says.

The suspect, Randy Miles Jeffries, 26, is scheduled for formal arraignment today in U.S. District Court.

Jeffries worked for the Acme Reporting Co., which does stenographic services for the House of Representatives, sometimes working with top-secret documents. He was arrested Friday night as he met with an FBI agent posing as a Soviet operative.

The FBI said he was the 11th person arrested on espionage charges in the United States this year.

The House panel official, who asked not to be identified, said Sunday he is cooperating with the FBI and declined to discuss specifics of the case.

IN BRIEF

Waite Stays Out Of Sight While Working To Free Hostages

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Church of England envoy Terry Waite stayed out of sight today, continuing efforts to free four kidnapped Americans, but another mediator ended an unsuccessful hostage-rescue mission led for Paris.

Dr. Razah Raad, a French cardiologist of Lebanese Shiite Moslem origin, returned to Paris today after several days in Beirut, sources close to the mediator said, apparently without progress in his efforts to secure the release of four French hostages.

Waite, who went underground over the weekend in west Beirut to present the Americans' kidnappers with "very reasonable proposals," said he would also like to hear from the captors of a British hostage who appealed Saturday to be freed.

Greenpeace Ship Unsafe For Trip

CANBERRA, Australia (UPI) — A ship traveling to Antarctica to declare the frozen continent a world park is unsafe to sail in the icy waters of the South Pole, and its 35-member crew is in danger, an Australian official has warned.

The expedition leader dismissed the claim as politically motivated. The 191-foot Greenpeace, named for the environmental organization that operates it, left Melbourne Friday with a crew of 35 for the nearly 3,000-mile voyage to Commonwealth Bay in Antarctica.

The ship's crew plans to set up an 18-foot-tall pyramid in January, symbolically declaring the 8.6 million-square-mile continent a world park. Greenpeace has accused Australia and other nations of wanting to exploit the continent.

Bhopal Probe End Brings Protest

BHOPAL, India (UPI) — More than 1,000 people peacefully protested the government's decision to conclude an investigation into the toxic gas leak that killed at least 1,700 people and injured 200,000 a year ago.

The demonstrators submitted a letter of protest to Madhya Pradesh Gov. K.M. Chandy, demanding that he reopen the state commission investigation of the worst industrial accident in history, which ended Dec. 17.

The probe began only three days after a cloud of deadly gas escaped Dec. 3, 1984, from a ruptured valve at the Union Carbide plant at Bhopal, 360 miles southwest of New Delhi, killing at least 1,700 people and injuring 200,000.

Just Released Study Shows

Soviets Violate Arms Control Pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new White House report concludes the Soviet Union is practicing a "pattern of non-compliance" with arms control agreements, ranging from test-ban treaties to chemical weapons.

President Reagan was expected to make the document public today. An unclassified version, obtained by United Press International, said the non-compliance — denied by the Kremlin — raises questions about the value of new arms control agreements.

In the report to Congress, Reagan said he discussed all of the violations with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev at the Geneva summit, but Gorbachev claimed the Soviets "are in complete compliance with their arms control obligations."

"The administration's most recent studies support its conclusion that there is a pattern of Soviet non-compliance" with regard to at least seven treaties or agreements with the United States and other countries, the report said.

By not complying with the agreements, Reagan says in the unclassified version of the report, "the Soviet Union has made military gains in the areas of strategic offensive arms as well as chemical, biological and (toxic) weapons."

Some of the violations are technical and involve weapons which are not central to the Soviet military strategy, but Reagan's report says, "In a fundamental sense all deliberate Soviet violations are equally important. As violations of legal obligations or political commitments, they cause grave concern regarding Soviet compliance to arms control and they darken the atmosphere in which current negotiations are being conducted."

The report said that in some previously listed areas, the Soviets appear to have halted their alleged violations, without admitting they had occurred.

The report also noted that the Soviet Union is constructing new sites at two missile test sites, indicating that Moscow may be ready for initial flight testing of the new, large SSX26 and SSX27 intercontinental ballistic missiles next year. U.S. intelligence has been tracking development of both missiles since open-air test firing of their engines was observed and publicized several years ago. The modernization of Soviet strategic forces continues despite an agreement last month in Geneva by Reagan and Gorbachev to pursue a 50 percent reduction in nuclear forces.

The document said the Soviet production of "Backfire" bombers has been reduced to below 30 per year, as agreed in a 1979 letter. It had previously been higher than 30, according to U.S. reports.

In addition, the Soviets appear to have ended deployment of their SS-16 missile, which the United States considered a violation of the "new missile ban" in the SALT 2 treaty.

U.S. officials believe that the SS-16 never worked as expected, and the Soviets have probably scrapped production and gone to the larger SS-25 and SS-24 missiles instead.

Reagan Attacked Anew By Soviets

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union widened its attacks on President Reagan today, accusing Washington of "proclaiming terrorism a new item of American exports."

The accusations followed charges Sunday that Reagan and his advisers had "cooked up a fresh propaganda fraud" in a report charging the Soviet Union with arms treaty violations.

The official news agency Tass condemned Reagan's support for anti-communist "freedom fighters" in Afghanistan, Cambodia, Nicaragua and Angola. "This is tantamount to proclaiming terrorism a new item of American exports, on whose encouragement the Congress appropriates every new astronomical sum," it said.

The agency referred to the CIA as "the main organizer and coordinator of international terrorism," saying Reagan had lifted "all restrictions on the terrorist activity of the American secret services."

Today's edition of the Communist Party newspaper Pravda also attacked Reagan's position on regional conflicts, which he has attributed to Soviet attempts to expand influence.

"The Soviet Union rejects the interpretation of all contradictions and conflicts in Asia, Africa and Latin America as a reflection of rivalry between East and West," Pravda said.

However, the newspaper said, "The U.S.S.R. is prepared to continue an exchange of views with the United States on regional conflicts — with a view to facilitating their settlement on condition of non-interference in the internal affairs of sovereign states."

The new attacks on U.S. positions followed the release of unclassified sections of a report by Reagan on the Soviet Union to be delivered to Congress today.

The report listed nine specific allegations, including the production of SS-25 missiles, over-the-limit nuclear tests, chemical and toxic weapons research and construction of an anti-missile radar station at Krasnoyarsk. "A fresh anti-Soviet song and dance has been started in the United States around some so-called violations by the Soviet Union of its contractual commitments," Tass said in rebutting the charges.

Tass said the report "sets forth hackneyed inventions unsubstantiated by any concrete facts and which have already been exposed by the Soviet side."

According to Tass, the SS-25 is a modernized version of the SS-12 and is in complete accord with provisions of the SALT 2 treaty. Also, it said, the prohibited SS-16 missile was never deployed.

The news agency said the huge radar station being erected near Krasnoyarsk will only track satellites and not be used as an anti-ballistic missile detector, banned under the 1972 ABM treaty.

"It becomes obvious that they in Washington have cooked up a fresh propaganda fraud, whose aim is to discredit the Soviet Union in the eyes of the world public and, at the same time, justify the large-scale military preparations by the United States," Tass said.

Airlift Prison Escapees Captured

WOODBINE, Ga. (UPI) — Authorities captured three "extremely dangerous" convicts and a woman who Thursday airlifted them out of a South Carolina prison early today at a welcome station on the Georgia-Florida border.

Their daring escape plan had taken them from South Carolina to the Gulf Coast city of Mobile, Ala. where they stole a good Samaritan's car, vowing they would not be captured alive.

At 3:30 a.m. EST, a Camden County deputy making a routine check spotted a car with Alabama license plates in the parking lot of the Georgia welcome station on Interstate 95 and ran a computer check on the plates, according to Camden County Sheriff Bill Smith.

When the check revealed that the car was reported stolen in Alabama, the deputy radioed for help. His call was answered by a Georgia State Patrol trooper and two more deputies, Smith said.

The officers surrounded the car and ordered the occupants via loudspeaker to surrender. "They were all armed but they did not put up any resistance," Smith said. "It was a fairly routine arrest at that point."

He said the four were apparently resting in the car when they were captured.

Smith said the four had waived extradition and would be returned to South Carolina as early as possible. He said a judge was en route to grant the extradition order later today.

"I would like to get them out of here as soon as possible because of the publicity they have attracted," Smith said. "Contrary to the location of their capture (the welcome station), they are not welcome in Georgia."

Police searched the Gulf Coast Sunday after a good Samaritan motorist was released unharmed by the fugitives. But by Sunday night, after no further sighting of the four, the FBI conceded the fugitives may be "long gone."

A killer and two armed robbers described by South Carolina police as being "about as bad as you can get" were flown out of prison last Thursday in a chartered helicopter hijacked by a woman identified as Joyce L. Bailey, 45.

Sunday was the first confirmed sighting of the four since the daring escape from the Perry Correctional Institution that was similar to the Charles Bronson movie "Breakout."

The escaped convicts were identified as Jesse Glenn Smith, who was serving 40 years for armed robbery, James Rodney Leonard, serving life term for murder, and William Douglas Ballew, serving 23 years for armed robbery. All are from the Greenville, S.C. area.

An FBI spokesman in Mobile said the fugitives' car apparently broke down on Interstate 10 near Mobile "and they flagged this guy down sometime after midnight. As best we can tell, he was trying to help them — a good Samaritan."

"They took him with them to a local motel where they were staying and they loaded their him off in the city and he contacted the police immediately," the agent said.

Before the fugitives fled about 2:30 a.m. in the good Samaritan's car, a 1977 Pontiac, the FBI spokesman said they showed him newspaper clippings about their escape and vowed they would never be captured alive.

"He was not able to see which way they left after they dropped him off and we have no reason to believe they are still in the Mobile area," the agent said. "We still consider them armed and extremely dangerous."

Authorities declined to identify the good Samaritan.

Bailey, 40, also known as Joyce Bailey Mattox, was charged with air piracy for hijacking the helicopter.

Authorities said she had developed a romance with Smith, had visited him several times in prison, and "wanted to spring her boyfriend out of jail."

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: Holiday travelers from the Plains to the Northeast battled roads dusted with wind-blown snow today, and forecasters predicted a return of freezing temperatures to the upper Midwest in time for Christmas. Dense fog was predicted for the San Francisco Bay, central California valleys and the Lake Tahoe Basin today after a shroud of fog practically shut down the Seattle-Tacoma airport Sunday, causing many travelers, including Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., to revise their plans. Very cold air continued to numb the northern Plateau, with temperatures in the single digits and teens in eastern Oregon, Idaho and northern Nevada. Light snow fell today in lower Michigan and New York state, prompting advisories for icy roads. Light snow also fell from the upper Ohio valley to New England and in North Dakota, with advisories for snow and blowing snow issued for parts of North Dakota and Minnesota.

In upstate New York, residents dug out from a weekend storm that dumped up to 3 feet of snow in some areas of Oswego County. Temperatures were above freezing today in much of the Midwest, where at 2 a.m. EST it was 39 in Bismarck, N.D., and 36 in Chicago. But forecasters warned of a return to the cold caused last week by an "Alberta Clipper" cold front that swept down from Canada and was blamed for 30 deaths. "It's still a little early to call it an Alberta Clipper, but it looks like it's going to behave in that regard as it plunges southeastward," National Weather Service meteorologist Pete Reynolds said early today. "We're getting another shot of cold air that's pretty much confined to northern Minnesota, upper Michigan and northern Wisconsin right now but is going to spread southward through eastern parts of the Plains and the upper half of the Mississippi Valley the next 24 to 28 hours." Unseasonable cold in the East Sunday dipped into the Carolinas, and record lows were set in Apalachicola, Fla., which reported 28 degrees, and Lynchburg, Va., where the mercury hit 7 degrees. In Massachusetts, a 10-year-old boy died Sunday night after falling through ice Saturday while chasing his dog across a frozen lake. The boy was trapped in the frigid waters for nearly two hours. Three children were killed Sunday in Chickasha, Okla., in a fire apparently started by an open flame, unvented gas space heater in a home that had been converted from a chicken coop. Up to 3 feet of snow blanketed areas of New York's Oswego County late Saturday.

Spouse Spat Leads To Affray Arrests

A Sanford husband and wife were arrested after the officer saw the woman hit the man while they were arguing.

According to a Sanford arrest report, he saw the couple on a sidewalk at 5th St. and Sanford Ave. He said they were arguing. When the woman reportedly hit the man, the officer placed her under arrest. He said the man was uncooperative, so he was arrested also.

Crosby Faces Silent Christmas

DALLAS (UPI) — David Crosby, who once sang about the freedom he felt while sailing on the ocean, will likely spend Christmas behind bars for missing a bond revocation hearing.

Crosby, 44, who joined longtime partners Stephen Stills and Graham Nash for the song "Southern Cross" about the freedom of the sea, spent Friday talking about being in jail.

"What prisoners think of most is freedom. What I want now is freedom from jail, freedom from drugs, freedom to make music," he said.

Crosby surrendered in Florida to the FBI, which had a warrant to arrest him for failing to appear at a Nov. 25 bond revocation hearing. That court appearance was related to prison sentences Crosby received for drug and weapons convictions.

"I hope the judge sees that I'm a rehabilitatable person. You don't want to be a drug addict. It's something that sneaked up on me over 20 years," Crosby said during a jailhouse interview.

"I really think I'll have to do some time. All I want to do is get it over and play music," he said.

Crosby walked away from a New Jersey drug rehabilitation program in February, and state District Judge Pat McDowell ordered the musician's arrest. Despite leaving the drug center, Crosby said he deserves another chance.

"I turned myself in. It was my decision. I didn't want it (the addiction) to go on," he said.

"I was endangering people that I loved and could incur more penalties than I'm facing," Crosby said of his decision to surrender.

Since no hearing date has been set, it is likely Crosby will spend Christmas in jail, a prospect he described as "depressing."

"I have no instruments, so I can't make music,"

Crosby said he left the drug rehabilitation program, because "they wouldn't let me play my music, and music is the main thing in my life, and I was fairly crazy with chemical dependence."

Crosby's original conviction was overturned by an appellate court, which decided evidence was obtained during an illegal search at Card's, a Dallas nightclub, in April 1982. The state is appealing the ruling.

"There's a chance I may win it. The original search was a bad search," Crosby said.

Crosby said he was being made an example because of his fame.

"Nobody that I know of anywhere, I've heard of, ever got five years for a quarter-gram (of cocaine)," Crosby said.

Stills and Nash have both called Crosby with words of encouragement.

"They both said they were still my friends and were proud of me for turning myself in. They told me it was the only way, and I agree with them," Crosby said.

DC-3 Just Keeps On Flying Along

By Susan Postlewaite

MIAMI (UPI) — It's been stripped and rebuilt eight times, had 268 engines and 120 propellers.

Built in 1937, Provincetown-Boston Airline's trusty, lumbering DC-3 N136PB is believed to hold the world's record for the most number of hours in flight of any aircraft still in commercial service. It had notched more than 88,400 hours in the air as of Friday. That comes out to about 10 years in flight.

It has more flying hours on it than the spout-nosed DC-3 that's hanging in the Smithsonian Institute, according to a PBA spokeswoman.

N136PB burns a little extra oil after 48 years in service, but PBA entertains no thoughts of retiring the plane just yet.

"Good Old 36." That's what everybody calls it," said Capt. Nick Klein after taxiing up to Miami International Airport. "They baby this one," said Klein. "It doesn't fly real fast (cruising speed is about 175 mph), but it's been a lot of places and carried a lot of people. It's rugged."

The workhorse DC-3 — also nicknamed "The Gooney Bird" and "Tall Dragger" — is said to have revolutionized modern aviation when it was introduced in 1935.

The DC-3s marked their 50th anniversary this past week. The first test flight of a DC-3 took place over the skies of Santa Monica, Calif. Dec. 17, 1937.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower once singled out the DC-3 as one of the factors that helped the Allied forces win World War II. Douglas Aircraft Co. built more than 10,000 of the planes, and estimates about 2,000 are still flying today.

PBA began buying its DC-3s in the late 1960s, and purchased "Old 36" from a Texas airplane broker for $16,000 in 1974. The airline was given new engines and an overhaul at a cost of about $140,000.

PBA, the 35-year-old Naples-based regional airline that flies in Florida and the Northeast, has had its problems in the past year, but its fleet of 11 DC-3s isn't among them.

"I can't tell you that we're ever going to retire it," said PBA marketing vice president Donna Fiala. "The DC-3s are so maintenance-free. They built things so well in those days. They cost very little to operate and maintain. They're safe. With that great big wing span they can just glide in and land anywhere."

That feature has also not been lost on drug smugglers, who now use old DC-3s to bring their illicit cargo to remote landing strips in the Florida Everglades.

"Old 36" has had 10 title owners in its history, spending most of its time as a commercial carrier. For two years ending in 1944 it served the government as a military transport. The military version of the plane, the C-47, was outfitted with a rotating gun and called the Dakota.

OSHA Deserves Better Support

When he ran for president in 1980, Ronald Reagan pledged that if he were elected, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration would be abolished. He was, but it wasn't — the latter outcome surely in the public interest.

There's more than one way to kill an agency, however. You can starve it, by providing inadequate resources; or hobble it, by appointing ineffective administrators, issuing few new rules and failing to enforce existing ones aggressively.

With OSHA consigned to that fate under the Reagan administration, it should not be surprising that work-related injuries and illnesses are up. The increase — nearly 12 percent in 1984, the largest since the government began collecting such statistics — has Labor Secretary Bill Brock "deeply concerned and disturbed." And well it should.

But Brock, in the next breath, seized on a too-simple explanation: economic recovery. More people are working more hours and, therefore, are exposed to more health hazards.

Undoubtedly, an improved business climate accounts for some of the increase. But it seems equally clear that, if workplaces were as safe and healthful as Congress envisioned in 1971 when it created OSHA, 8 of every 100 workers would not now be suffering occupational injury or illness.

In pre-Reagan years, OSHA was a pain in the backside to business. In some cases, the negative reputation was deserved. The agency at times seemed more intent on regulating the placement of rungs on ladders than protecting workers from life-threatening hazards. A 1984 study by the Office of Technology Assessment concluded that OSHA had been largely ineffective in improving health and safety on the job.

But the record is not too bleak. In the Carter administration, the agency had begun to make headway in sorting regulatory wheat from chaff. And, as the OTA study noted, OSHA regulations helped reduce worker exposure to a number of dangerous substances, including vinyl chloride, which causes liver cancer, and asbestos, which has been linked to fatal respiratory diseases.

A sensitive administration would want to strengthen that effort, not only because it's the humane thing to do, but because it's simply good business. Safer workplaces mean lower worker compensation claims, fewer days of work lost to accidents and illness and, not coincidentally, one less issue for unions to rally around.

In bashing OSHA, the administration does neither industry nor workers any favors. Over the long haul, the health of both may be impaired.

Unstinted By Sin

It is ironic that the membership of the Teamsters union has continued to grow in recent years even though more information has become available about the unsavory activities of some of the union's leaders.

Roy L. Williams has become the third former Teamster president to be sent to prison, following Dave Beck and Jimmy Hoffa. Williams, who was sentenced for a 1982 conviction for attempting to bribe then-Sen. Howard Cannon of Nevada, has given federal investigators information on organized crime's ties with some union officials.

The Justice Department decided in July not to prosecute Jackie Presser, then current Teamster president, on embezzlement charges. It was later reported that Presser served as a government informant.

Testimony in the Kansas City trial of eight alleged crime syndicate bosses has touched on payments by the mob to Teamster leaders and on questionable loans of union funds.

The connection between the mob and the Teamsters has been no secret since the Senate hearings during the 1950s that led to the union's expulsion from the AFL-CIO. Yet the union has grown, primarily because of organizing efforts among clerical and service workers, from 1.5 million to 1.9 million since the mid-1970s.

Abuses by the Teamster leadership don't help the reputation of the American labor.

COMMENTARY

Creativity Is Source Of Economic Success

By Timothy Tregarthen

In this joyful season of giving and thanksgiving, it is appropriate to reflect on the wonder of our economic blessings.

In a single week, the average American worker takes home more than twice what most people in the world earn in a year. The income we enjoy exceeds by 100 times — after adjusting for inflation — the income of our founding fathers.

What is the source of this extraordinary wealth?

It is not our natural resources, rich as they are. When the first European settlers began arriving on this continent, they found an economy, working with the same resource base, that managed to generate a per capita income of only about a dollar per year — in 1985 dollars — over a bare level of subsistence. One can romanticize at will about the Indians, but they were desperately poor.

Indeed, if resources were the key to wealth, South America would have been the economic success story of the last three centuries, not the United States.

It is not our people. There is no reason to believe that Americans are any more clever, or hard-working, or lucky than anyone else.

The source of our great wealth is what Adam Smith said it would be. It is a market system that rewards creativity.

It is important to understand the nature of this creativity. The thing that is created is, of course, wealth. And the key is to realize that the wealth is truly created, not merely shuffled about.

Consider the lamp. As whales became more scarce in the 19th century, whale oil prices soared — from 43 cents a gallon in 1823 to $2.55 in 1866. Since whale oil was the primary fuel for lamps, this was an alarming development.

A Polish scientist figured out a way to make a lamp that would burn kerosene, and methods were developed to refine kerosene from crude oil. The first crude was pumped from the ground in America in 1857.

It was a new source of wealth. Up to that time, a Pennsylvania farmer who had oil oozing out of his or her soil had good reason to be horrified. Wheat doesn't grow well in black gunk. But now, the same farmer had good reason to feel wealthy.

By 1867, kerosene surpassed whale oil as the fuel of choice for providing light. Can anyone argue that the creativity that produced this industry merely shuffled jobs out of whaling and into oil, with no net gain for the economy? Can anyone argue that it did not create wealth?

Oil is, of course, available outside the U.S. It became wealth here first because there was a system to reward the enormous risks that came in developing this new resource.

Creativity in the lamp business did not stop with kerosene.

The concept of producing light by running electricity through metal was well known. The problem was that the metal burned up. Thomas Edison decided that the key was to carry out the operation in a vacuum. He tried more than 6,000 materials before finding one that would work in the vacuum of a bulb.

Edison figured he could produce these first bulbs for $1.25 apiece. He estimated that he would have to get the price down to $0.40 before they could compete effectively with kerosene lamps. After four more years of work, he got his cost down to $0.37, and brought his product to market. Would the wealth he had created have emerged had he not worked in a system that rewarded his creativity? Was this wealth a mere reshuffling out of kerosene and into electricity?

The market rewards creativity and thus creates wealth. It is not a painless process. Manufacturers of whale oil lamps had good reason to be upset about kerosene. And makers of kerosene lamps had good reason to be upset about Thomas Edison. But in each case, Americans as a group had good reason to be delighted.

It is this creativity, and a system that rewards it, that is the source of our wealth.

It is well to remember this simple fact as we consider changes in our system of taxes, changes that would shift more of the tax burden to a taxpayer called "business" and away from a taxpayer called "individuals."

Is it not through business that creativity achieves wealth? And is it not individuals — all of us — that reap the reward of this wealth?

Christmas Bells On Potomac

By Arnold Sawisak
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Just in time for the last delivery from the North Pole, Washington Window finished Christmas shopping for the folks who supply it with grins and and groans throughout the year. Here, with affection, is the list: For President Reagan — A complete videocassette library of "That's Incredible" in recognition of his starring role in the rescue of the Democratic tax reform bill from the clutches of Republican terrorists.

For Vice President Bush — Good health for the leaders of foreign countries. Too many overseas funerals in the next year or so could play hob with plans to see America (New Hampshire, Iowa, etc.) first.

For Nancy Reagan — Good health for the leader of this country. She's done her share of hospital visiting.

For White House Chief of Staff Don Regan — Lunch with wrestling champ Wendi Richter, a lady who definitely will be able to show him a thing or two about throw weight.

For Lucky, former First Dog — Lots of trees, rabbits and room to run.

For Rex, the new First Dog — A seat of his own on the helicopter. Lucky's habit of jumping into the First Chair on Marine One was said to be one of the things that got him exiled to "dog heaven" in California.

For former White House security adviser Bud McFarlane and former HHS Secretary Margaret Heckler — Rear view mirrors. Next time they'll be able to see who's sneaking up on them.

For Attorney General Ed Meese — A ride in the "Back To The Future" DeLorean. Now he'll be able to find out for himself what the Founding Fathers had in mind when they wrote the Constitution 199 years ago.

For Defense Secretary Casp Weinberger — A $3 screwdriver, a $15 toilet seat and a Do-It-Yourself manual. Gramm-Rudman budget cuts are coming.

For the Army — A Kentucky squirrel rifle. That's what the real Sgt. York did his best work with.

Recycled Choppers Are Dangerous

By Jack Anderson
And Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — Helicopters pieced together from cannibalized wrecks are filling the air, with the result that many of these patchwork choppers are crashing a second, third or even fourth time, according to the Transportation Department's inspector general.

After studying 788 helicopter crashes between 1972 and 1981, the inspector general recommended over a year ago that the Federal Aviation Administration, which certifies helicopter mechanics, tighten its rules to identify the chopper cannibals. But an FAA spokesman told our associate Donald Goldberg an agency task force is still "looking into the entire problem."

Meanwhile, the stitched-together choppers continue to crash at a significantly higher rate than factory originals, according to the inspector general.

Of the 788 helicopters studied, the IG reported: "We identified 64

SCIENCE WORLD

The Voiceless Speak

By Dennis Pfaff

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — What accidents, war, birth defects, disease or mistakes have taken away, a tightly knit group of researchers wants to give back, using machines to batter down the barriers to communication.

In their world of high-technology marvels, John Eulenberg and his colleagues at Michigan State University's Artificial Language Laboratory have given voice to hundreds of victims of nature's or man's tragedies:

—In Pittsburgh, a young man sings and chants at his bar mitzvah, enjoying fully his passage into manhood in the ancient Jewish tradition.

—In Wisconsin, a four-year-old boy chats with his mother and then settles in front of the television set, selecting his favorite program.

—In Kalamazoo, Mich., a promising young attorney shares a little conversation with his youngsters and dreams of somehow resuming his practice.

For those people, the everyday acts of living might not have been possible without startling new advances in computer and voice technology.

With the twitch of an eyebrow or perhaps the nudge of a barely controlled thumb, they are speaking, learning and sharing in society.

Eulenberg's laboratory has developed portable, computer-based machines that can be programmed by people with little control over their muscles and almost no ability to speak. The result links person and machine in a way that makes communication possible.

For example, the Pittsburgh youngster programs into his computer biblical readings, chants and commentaries. What comes out is a normal-sounding voice of a young boy coming of age.

In the past, Eulenberg — an ambitious, driven man whose own father died of a neurological disorder that robbed him of the ability to speak — had gained notoriety with machine aids that allowed people to speak in a monotone, robot-like voice.

The new era of Eulenberg's research has given people technology that reproduce typical voices of adults, children and even Hebrew and Arabic tonal inflections. But the future does not stop there.

"I see both miniaturization and advances in applying artificial intelligence, embodying knowledge about language and the world into computers that will make the communication aid much more of a true prosthesis in restoring human function," Eulenberg said.

"As far as the other advances, I see a mind-to-speech link as the ultimate goal."

Tolerance Paragons No More

By Adalbert De Bognasac

PARIS — "Will we still be France a generation from now?" That question, recently posed by a magazine here, is being raised more and more frequently by the French as they observe the growing proportion of Arabs and Africans in their country's population.

The phenomenon is sparking racist reactions among the middle and working classes, and it could become a divisive issue in the crucial legislative elections scheduled for next March.

Ironically, the French have long considered themselves paragons of tolerance, without the slightest hint of prejudice. A standard item in the repertory of French intellectuals has been the denunciation of discrimination in the United States.

Such liberalism could be vaunted, as long as France was a nearly all-white society with few racial conflicts. The economic prosperity that followed World War II has changed all that.

When industrial growth triggered a labor shortage, many workers were imported from France's former colonies in Africa. They now number some 2 million, the majority of them Moslems from Algeria.

Very few of these immigrants want to return home and leave behind relatively good salaries and social welfare programs. But many of them, slow to adapt to the French lifestyle, live in urban ghettos that resemble the crowded casbahs of North Africa.

What has made them an especially conspicuous target is the current recession. In the midst of record-breaking unemployment, foreign-born laborers are accused of holding jobs that rightfully belong to the French.

The charge is specious; in fact, the immigrants usually perform menial tasks that French workers disdain. Even so, they serve as a convenient scapegoat, especially for right-wing politicians like Jean-Marie Le Pen, who has vaulted to prominence by exploiting racial bias.

Le Pen's party is expected to win more than 10 percent of the vote in March, thus making it a pivotal faction in the French legislature.

The report continued: "In addition, we were advised that the mechanic had acquired the helicopter again following the latest accident, by purchasing the wreckage from the insurance company. We were unable to locate the mechanic to discuss the helicopter transaction."

— Many owners of the helicopters studied first learned from the government investigators that their choppers had been rebuilt from junk, because the repair logs omitted that vital information.

In one case, a helicopter that was wrecked in a New Jersey accident in 1977 was rebuilt in Florida in 1981 and sold. "The present owner advised us that he was unaware that the aircraft had been in a serious accident. ... The repair station in Florida advised him that the aircraft had only sustained a hard landing," the IG report stated.

— The military must bear some of the blame for the recycled helicopters. It sells huge quantities of surplus choppers and parts for a fraction of their original cost. These bargains are then used to rebuild junkers.

"During the period of March 1981 to March 1984, (the Defense Department) sold surplus helicopter parts with an inventory value of $72 million for about $1.8 million," the report stated. Among the purchasers were several FAA-certified repair shops.

The FAA took issue with the IG report's conclusions, claiming that many of the accidents to patchwork planes were due to other factors and could not be traced to the fact that they had been rebuilt from wrecks.

The IG report noted this objection, but pointed out that there had been a "30 percent increase in the rate of mechanical failure accidents following the rebuilding of these destroyed helicopters."

The FAA insists that more regulations won't stop those who already ignore existing rules, and accuses the insurance industry of contributing to the problem by selling wreckage instead of destroying it.

4 County Matmen Take Christmas Titles

Lake Howell's Todd Miller has Lake Brantley's Kevin Greenstein right where he wants him. Miller, a junior, pinned Greenstein at 4:24 to win the 107-pound weight division of the 14th annual Lyman Christmas Tournament Saturday night.

LONGWOOD — Four Seminole County wrestlers came away with early Christmas presents Saturday as each secured a championship in the 14th annual Emerson Electric-sponsored Lyman Christmas Tournament before 350 fans at Lyman High School.

Seminole's Troy Turner, Lake Mary's Bill Richards, Lyman's Pat Perkins and Lake Howell's Todd Miller each picked up their first Christmas title while Brandon was a runaway winner of the team championship for the third consecutive year.

Brandon, two-time defending state 4A champ, has won the tournament each year it has entered. Brandon scored 206.5 points to easily outdistance Bishop Moore with 138.3. Orlando Colonial was third with 94.5 and Lake Mary was a disappointing fourth with 93.5. Lake Mary coach Doug Peters said he thought his Rams could give Brandon a run before the tournament.

Lyman (83) was sixth, Lake Brantley (71) was seventh, Lake Howell (52.5) was 10th and Seminole (47.5) was 12th. Oviedo finished last with 10 points.

"We knew Brandon was good but we didn't think they were that good again," Bishop Moore coach Randy Jeece said about the Pinellas County powerhouse.

Individually, Seminole County had nine grapplers in the finals, four of which won. Turner, who missed the tournament a year ago because of illness, posted a hard-earned 17-13 victory over Lake Mary senior Scott Ross at 157 pounds.

Turner, an 8-0 junior who placed second in the state meet a year ago, jumped to a 7-2 lead with two takedowns, an escape and back points in the first period. He held a 10-4 lead midway through the second period when Ross started to make his move.

"I got too high and he got a Peterson on me," Turner said. "He did that three times but fortunately I was able to bridge out."

Ross used his last Peterson to pull within 10-9 with just 20 seconds left in the second period. Turner, though, reversed the momentum early in the third when he escaped and then added a takedown for a 13-9 lead. Ross pulled within two with a reversal with 59 seconds but Turner escaped again and added three more points to wrap up the win.

The escapes — Turner had four while Ross had none — proved to be the difference in the match. "I used the same (escape) move all our times," Turner said. "It was a standout move where I turn in my elbows and pull them through."

Turner's brother, Tracy, was involved in the other Seminole-Lake Mary confrontation in the finals. The Seminole sophomore lost an exciting 9-8 decision to Ram Richards at 147 pounds.

Richards, a move-in from New Jersey, started quickly, building a 5-0 lead on two takedowns and an escape before Turner rallied with two penalty points and an escape to draw within 5-3 entering the final period.

Another escape brought him

George Alford, a perfect blend of power and finesse as Hempstead, N.Y.'s jumping-jack forward, said Saturday the Tigers didn't drive 1,000 miles to finish second.

Tonight at 8:30, Alford and his teammates will have the opportunity to complete their travel plans when they take on Clearwater Countryside for the championship of the first Central Florida Classic at Seminole Community College.

"We came down here with one thing on our minds," Alford said. "That's to win this tournament. It will be a long ride home if we don't."

Alford and fast-breaking 5-0 Hempstead made it a long night for Seminole Saturday while romping to a 78-53 victory before 250 fans. Alford scored 26 points while Byron Prince added 16. Rod Henderson led the Tribe

Ferguson Lifts Oviedo

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer
Although the game plan of coach Dale Phillips and assistant Chris Marlette kept Oviedo's Lions in the game against powerful Cocoa Saturday evening, it was an undesigned play that gave the Lions a 44-43 upset victory.

Oviedo takes on Dunedin tonight at 5:30 for fifth place in the Central Florida Classic at Seminole Community College. Dunedin edged Lake Brantley, 51-50, to advance.

With 30 seconds left to play Saturday, and Cocoa holding a 43-42 lead, Phillips and Marlette were screaming at the top of their lungs trying to get the Lions' attention so they could call a timeout and set up a last shot.

Since it gave the Lions the lead, Phillips and Marlette didn't mind that the Lions didn't call timeout. However, the two Oviedo coaches were about to start pulling hair from their heads in the final 10 seconds.

With five seconds left, Tony Davis missed a jumper but Vince Jones corralled the rebound for Cocoa. Before Jones could go back up with it, he was fouled by Ferguson with three seconds left. Phillips and Marlette were wincing on the sidelines, figuring Cocoa had a one-and-one free throw opportunity coming. But, as it turned out, Oviedo had two fouls to give before Cocoa was in the bonus.

Cocoa then put up a last-second desperation shot but it was an airball and Oviedo celebrated the victory.

"Basketball's a funny game isn't it?" Phillips asked after the game. "We're sitting there screaming trying to get them to call timeout and then a sophomore (Pettit), just up off junior varsity, takes a 20-footer. Luckily, Randy (Ferguson) got Seminole's Rod Fossitt, middle, appears to have the upper hand as Hempstead's Rob Smith drives to the basket. Smith, though, used a double pump to get around Fossitt for two points. Andre Bigby waits. Hempstead meets Clearwater Countryside tonight.

Packers End Bucs' Misery

TAMPA (UPI) — Emblems of NFL excellence in the '60s, the Green Bay Packers are now poster boys for mediocrity.

For the fourth time in five years, the Pack finished in the middle of the pack as Jesse Clark bolted up the middle from six yards out on a draw play with 7:03 remaining Sunday to lift Green Bay past Tampa Bay 20-17.

In a sloppy season finale for both teams, the Packers sewed up their fourth 8-8 finish in the last five years when Tampa Bay rookie Donald Igwebulike was wide right on a 48-yard field goal attempt with 2:58 left.

The only year since 1981 the Packers avoided a .500 season was the strike-shortened '82 campaign, when Green Bay posted a 5-3-1 mark and made the playoffs.

"It was a struggle of a game," said Green Bay coach Forrest Gregg. "There were a lot of turnovers (eight), but they seemed to even out. With nothing at stake for either team, both clubs played professionally. We fell a little bit short of the playoffs and we feel that's indicative of where we stand as a team."

The Buccaneers, 2-14, tied Buffalo for the league's worst record but the Bills lost their top draft choice in the deal with Cleveland involving Bernie Kosar. Only 27 picks will be made in the opening round instead of the usual 28 and Tampa Bay secured the top choice when Atlanta beat New Orleans 16-10 to finish 4-12.

Eddie Lee Ivery sustained Green Bay's game-winning 73-yard drive with a pair of third-down receptions from Randy Wright. The veteran running back caught an 18-yard pass against a blitz on third-and-12 from the Green Bay 35. On third-and-three from the Tampa Bay 14, Ivery took a swing pass eight yards and Clark broke three tackles on the next play for the touchdown.

Wright, a second-year pro, replaced an ineffective Jim Zorn midway through the third quarter and completed 8-of-11 passes for 101 yards. Running back Gary Ellerson, a seventh-round draft choice, also looked impressive for the Packers with 57 yards on nine carries while James Lofton caught six passes for 95 yards.

The Buccaneers, who have lost 38 of their last 48 games, took a 17-13 advantage at 1:44 of the fourth period when Steve Young capped a 74-yard march by hitting Pro Bowl tight end Jimmie Giles from three yards out.

James Wilder had a 1-yard scoring run for Tampa Bay and Igwebulike added a 33-yard field goal. Young completed 21-of-37 passes for 277 yards in his best game as a pro, but he was sacked five times and intercepted twice.

"The Packers have a lot of pride and a good defense," said Young, who also scrambled seven times for 40 yards. "I'm happy with everything except for the record. We should have won a few more games, but personally I feel comfortable with my progress."

Miami's 'Hardy' Effort Clinches AFC East Title

MIAMI (UPI) — The Buffalo Bills made Miami tight end Bruce Hardy a lonely man Sunday.

Miami quarterback Dan Marino, however, paid a lot of attention to Hardy, hitting him for two touchdown passes in the Dolphins' 28-0 win over Buffalo that gave the Dolphins the AFC East championship.

Tony Nathan and Ron Davenport scored rushing touchdowns for the Dolphins, 12-4, who had a season-high 179 yards rushing against the Bills, 2-14.

It was Miami's seventh straight win.

"They weren't paying a lot of attention to me," said Hardy, who had five catches for 52 yards. "They let me run by myself most of the game. Because of double coverage on (wide receivers) Mark Clayton and Mark Duper, it usually means man-to-man coverage on the tight ends and backs."

Nathan also had a good day receiving, catching 6 passes for 45 yards. The game was a sloppy one, with 26 penalties and 8 turnovers.

The scoring passes to Hardy were a 19-yarder in the first quarter and a 5-yarder in the second quarter, while Nathan scored on a 1-yard plunge and Davenport scored on a 13-yard run — both in the final quarter.

Marino's 136 yards passing tied for his season low, but the two touchdown passes made him the fourth quarterback in NFL history to throw 30 or more touchdown passes in consecutive seasons. He had an NFL record 48 last year and 30 this season.

The Dolphins will play the AFC Central champion Cleveland Browns either Jan. 4 or 5 in the Orange Bowl. A loss by the Los Angeles Raiders Monday night would give Miami the home-field advantage throughout the playoffs.

The Dolphins won the AFC East in 1981, 1983 and 1984 and had the best record in the division in the strike-shortened 1982 season, when no division titles were awarded.

"It's a game that we wanted and we had to have and we got it," said Miami coach Don Shula, who won the AFC East for the 12th time in his 16 years in Miami. "We wanted to do it ourselves. We got the opportunity after losing to New England and dropping to 5-4. Each week we got a little better."

The Bills were their own worst enemy

Sunday. Buffalo turned the ball over 6 times and had 19 penalties for 123 yards, a record number of penalties by a Dolphin opponent.

The Dolphins' seven penalties for 47 yards broke their 9-year string of being the least penalized team in the NFL. Washington had 74 penalties this year to Miami's 77.

"I thought we could win if we played errorless ball," Bills coach Hank Bullough said. "This was our worst game with mistakes and penalties of the year."

After posting back-to-back 2-14 seasons, the Buffalo players said they just wanted to forget the season.

"I'd like to go to a hypnotist to forget the whole year," said nose tackle Fred Smerlas. "It's been the most unenjoyable year of my life."

within 5-4, but Richards used a penalty point to regain his two-point lead. Turner, though, scored a takedown to tie at 6-6 with 19 seconds left. With 12 seconds left, however, Richards escaped and when he added a takedown with one tick remaining he had a three-point win.

Perkins, who won the region last year, was named Most Valuable Heavyweight for an impressive performance at 222 pounds. The Lyman senior ran his record to 9-0 as he took care of Orlando Evans' Ronny Kelly with a pin in 42 seconds at 222 pounds.

"I knew he was real strong," Perkins said. "But I was told I could pin him if I got past the first period."

It didn't take that long. Perkins shot at Kelly to open the match but both grapplers went off the edge. Perkins then came back with a head-and-arm maneuver to wrest Kelly to the mat and apply the pin.

Perkins, who pinned his first- and second-round opponents in 57 and 49 seconds, respectively, said his toughest foe came in Saturday morning's semifinals when he subdued Oak Ridge's Donald Walters, 12-3.

"It was more like a fight than a wrestling match," Perkins said. "Every time I'd crossface him, he'd bite me."

Seminole's fourth champion, junior Silver Hawk Miller, took the bite out of Lake Brantley's Kevin Greenstein with a third-period pin at 4:24 at 107 pounds.

Miller, 6-0, said it was a long time in coming. "I've been trying to beat him (Greenstein) since I was in ninth grade," he said.

To do so, Miller had to overcome a shot to the head he suffered when thrown down in the second period. After a 2-2 deadlock in the first two minutes, Greenstein took crased a 3-2 lead with a three-point near fall with 35 seconds left.

"I stood up and tripped and my head bounced off the mat," Miller said about his fall. "I went black."

He sufficiently recovered, however, to get a reversal with 25 seconds left in the second period to tie the match at 5-5. He opened the third period with a pin and then used a Crunch Cradle to stick Greenstein 24 seconds into the final period.

Lake Mary's Matt Broberg finished second at 128 pound when Larry Saylor of Brandon rallied for an 8-7 victory. Lyman's Jimbo Smith finished second at heavyweight when he was pinned in 58 seconds by All-State footballer Barry Lowe of Evans.

Lake Howell's Roger Hutchins (121), Lake Brantley's Danny Streetman (134) and Lake Brantley's Troy Lewis (187) were all consolation champions. Lake Brantley's Mark Roth (100) and Lake Mary's Wayne Clayton (107) were each fourth-place finishers.

The referee hoists Troy Turner's hand in victory. Lake Mary's Scott Ross, who gave Turner everything he could handle, is an exhausted loser at 157 pounds.

Orlando Bishop Moore's Raul Salazar, an upset winner over

Orlando Colonial's Bill McLaughlin with a second-period pin (2:31), was the Most Valuable Lightweight.

the rebound and put it back in. We wanted the timeout pretty bad, but we'll take the victory instead."

Senior forward Al Unroe, who has had a spectacular tournament, led the Lions with 15 points while James Walker played a key role under the boards with nine points and 10 rebounds.

"James (Walker) was a key for us," Marlette said. "He really played well underneath and we needed him with Robb (Hughes) out."

Oviedo also got eight points out of Garth Bolton and six each from Pettit and Ferguson.

Davis had a game-high 16 points for Cocoa while Greg Sanchez tossed in eight and Jones added six.

Cocoa used a big advantage on the boards to build a 16-10 lead after one quarter and scored the first four points of the second period for a 20-10 lead.

The Lions came back to out-score Cocoa, 16-3, the remainder of the quarter for a 26-23 halftime lead. Unroe scored eight points in the second period while Pettit hit all six of his points, all from long range.

Ferguson's layup gave Oviedo a 28-23 lead to open the second half but Cocoa then went on a scoring binge of its own as it outscored the Lions, 10-3, the rest of the quarter to take a 33-31 lead into the final period.

With the score tied at 33-33, Cocoa's Davis was assessed a technical for slapping the backboard while trying to block on Oviedo shot. Unroe made the technical then popped in a jumper for a 36-33 Oviedo lead.

Oviedo pushed its lead to five points but Cocoa worked its way back within one, 40-39, with 2:30 left to play. After an Oviedo turnover, Cocoa took a 41-40 lead with 2:20 remaining.

The Lions regained the lead when Unroe fed Walker for a layup and a 42-41 Oviedo lead.

Cocoa then turned the ball over and Oviedo then went to its spread offense.

The Lions ran the clock down to 1:25 before a turnover and Cocoa took advantage as Sanchez hit a jumper for a 43-42 lead.

Oviedo came downcourt and, before the coaches could get the players' attention for the timeout, Pettit let fly with his 20-footer. Ferguson grabbed the rebound and made the winning shot.

Cocoa went into the Central Florida Classic with a 5-0 record and, after winning its first game, has since dropped consecutive decisions to Clearwater Countryside and Oviedo. The Lions improved to 4-5 with the victory.

"With the kids we played with, I'm as proud of this win as any I've been associated with," Marlette said.

BRANTLEY DROPS TOUGHIE

Lake Brantley's Patriots led for most of the game but could never put the Duendin Falcons away and it came back to haunt the Patriots as Dunedin put on a late rally for a 51-50 victory.

Dunedin, 3-3, stays alive as it battles Oviedo tonight for fifth place while Brantley fell out of the tournament and to 5-3 on the season.

Both teams got off to a rather sluggish start Saturday but Dunedin managed to hold a 10-8 lead after one quarter.

Mark Moser then started hitting from outside for Brantley in the second quarter as he scored eight of his game-high 18 points to give the Patriots a 21-18 halftime lead.

David Hardwick, Brent Bell and Moser scored four points each in the third quarter as Brantley hung onto a three-point lead, 35-32, going into the final period.

Moser hit a jumper to open the fourth quarter for a 37-32 lead but John Hadley hit for Dunedin to make it 37-34. Darren Leva then dropped in a layup and was fouled. A three-point play by Leva could have given Brantley a six-point cushion, but he missed the free throw. Dunedin then went on a 7-2 scoring spree to even the score at 41-41 midway through the fourth quarter.

Brantley came back with six straight points of its own for a 47-41 lead. The Patriots had a number of chances to add to the lead down the stretch but missed 3 of 4 free throws, two on the front end of one and ones, and Dunedin came back to take the lead, 49-48, with just over a minute left on Tony Collie's jumper.

Wade Wittig then popped in a jumper for Brantley for a 50-49 lead with 50 seconds left but Hadley came right back for Dunedin for a 51-50 lead with 40 seconds remaining.

Brantley then got a break when Collie was called for a technical foul, but Moser couldn't hit the free throw with 27 seconds left. After a miscd jumper by Moser, Dunedin had a one and one with 12 seconds left but couldn't convert. Brantley had one more chance but again Moser couldn't connect and Dunedin squeezed out the win.

Stauffer, Fletcher Zap Auburndale

Greg Stauffer and David Fletcher were too much for Auburndale's Blood Hounds to handle Saturday as the two combined for 41 points in leading Clearwater Countryside to a 71-47 rout and a berth in the Central Florida Classic finals.

Stauffer, a 6-4 senior guard, hit over 20 points for the third game in a row with 22 while Fletcher, a 6-2 sophomore, connected for 19 points. Matt Brecher and Matt Geiger controlled the inside for the Cougars with 10 points and seven rebounds each.

Basketball

Terence Barber was high for Auburndale with 22 points but the Hounds big men were all but shut down by Countryside. Center David MacPhee, who poured in 22 points on Friday, was held to five points while forward James Boston, who had 18 points Friday, managed just four.

with 22. In tonight's third-place game, Seminole, 5-4, tries to regroup against Auburndale at 7. Oviedo plays Dunedin at 5:30 p.m. for fifth place. Lyman takes on Merritt Island at 4 p.m. for the consolation championship.

Seminole coach Bill Klein attributed the blowout to lack of experience on his young team's part. "They're tough. Too tough," he said. "We're young and maybe we're going to be a good basketball team. They're experienced and already a good basketball team."

Hempstead's incessant pressure eventually wilted the Noles. The Tribe turned the ball over 31 times but it didn't crack until the third quarter. The Seminole's battled Hempstead on even terms through the first quarter and took a 16-14 lead on a Craig Walker layup.

Hempstead, though, turned on the jets in the second quarter as Alford, a 6-3 senior, burned Seminole inside with four layups and added two free throws for 10 points as the Tigers built a 27-22 lead.

The Tribe, however, closed within three on a tip-in by Mike Wright and had a chance to pull even when Hempstead was nailed with a technical foul for slapping the backboard. Seminole miscd the free throw and then turned it over on its subsequent possession to blow the opportunity. It was all downhill after that.

"We thought their guards (Andre Whitney and Jerry 'Stick' Parker) were the key to their offense," Hempstead coach Ted Adams said. "We really pressured them and also took away their inside game. We didn't give them the second shot."

Outside of the 6-4 Henderson, who had 22 points and 15 rebounds, Seminole's frontline was void. Walker, a 6-7 sophomore, and Rod Fosalt, a 6-7 senior, had just five rebounds between them.

The irrepressible Alford dropped in a pair of layups to close out the first half with a 33-28 lead. A tip-in by Alford along with a layup pushed the bulge to 41-29 with 4:31 left in the game.

"Defensive pressure, that's the name of this game," Klein said. "We hung in for a little while but then we got behind a little more and a little more. Then, we finally broke."

Lake Howell Trips Lincoln

By Chuck Burgess Special to the Herald

The Lake Howell Silver Hawks scored two goals in the second half to defeat Tallahassee Lincoln, 2-1, in prep soccer Saturday at Lake Howell at Lake Howell High School.

The Silver Hawks battled to a 0-0 deadlock in the first half with goalkeeper Alex Skodnik. Skodnik rejected six shots in the first half giving the Hawks the tie at intermission.

"It was an excellent game," Norm Wight, head coach of the Silver Hawks, said. "They're a tough little team (Lincoln). I was surprised they stayed with us the first half."

The immediate shock of a halftime deadlock left Wight's mind early in the second half when Matt Yearick put in a header off of a Bryan Droze corner kick to put the Silver Hawks up 1-0 with 36 minutes left in regulation.

"He's been one of our best players so far this year," Wight said about Droze's play. "He played excellent against Lincoln. He's having a great season so far."

Droze wasn't finished with his night, though. With four minutes gone since the first goal was shot in, Droze once again had a corner kick from the left side of the field.

However, this time Yearick was surrounded by defenders and Droze was forced to kick the ball to Mark Gardberg. Gardberg got the job done as he drilled the feed in for a 2-0 lead.

"Their (Lincoln's) passing was very good," Wight said. "They just couldn't handle our players in the second half. They started to tire a little and we took advantage of it."

The Silver Hawks had 15 shots at goal compared to Lincoln's seven.

The shutout was apparently sealed when the clock ran out. However, the referee's clock showed time remaining and that's when Kevin Ortiz put in Lincoln's only score of the night.

In other soccer action this past weekend, Ray Sandidge's Fighting Lyman Greyhounds defeated Jacksonville Episcopal, 1-0, at Lyman High.

Details were not available on the scoring of the game.

IN BRIEF

Challenger Joins Columbia On Spaceship Flight Line

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — For the first time in the shuttle program, two spaceships are bolted to separate launch pads to set the stage for an action-packed month in January that kicks off a 15-launch 1986 schedule for the space agency.

Challenger was hauled to a newly modified Apollo moon rocket launch pad Sunday for work to ready the ship for blastoff Jan. 22 with a school teacher on board.

Meanwhile, engineers continued work at pad 39A, also a modified moon rocket facility, to ready Columbia for its planned launching on Jan. 4.

The veteran spaceship's launch try Thursday ended just 15 seconds before blastoff when a hydraulic pressurization unit on its right-side solid rocket booster malfunctioned.

The hydraulic unit, which provides power to steer the booster, was replaced Sunday and engineers plan to fire up the compact powerplant Tuesday to make sure it will be ready for flight.

Four Killed On Alligator Alley

NAPLES (UPI) — Two adults and two children were killed Sunday in the crash of a car and a tractor-trailer on Alligator Alley, the Florida Highway Patrol said.

The FHP identified the dead as Bertha Dolly Montoya, 37, Amparo Peliz Lopez, 40, Juan Carlos Alvarez, 9, and Jorge Alberto Alvarez, 3, all of Miami.

Troopers said Montoya was driving the car and apparently failed to stop while turning onto Alligator Alley from State Road 29.

Joseph Ballard, 46, of Carmel, Ind., the driver of the tractor-trailer, told troopers he tried to avoid hitting the car, but struck it broadside. He was charged with failing to observe vision restrictions on his driver's license.

Florida To Extradite Wille

LaPLACE, La. (UPI) — The girlfriend of admitted killer John Francis Wille faced arraignment on first degree murder charges today in the kidnap, rape and strangulation of an 8-year-old girl.

Judy Walters, 35, formerly of Norco, was returned to face the charge in the June 2 death of Nicole Lopatta of Terrytown.

Wille, 21, is awaiting extradition from Florida to be tried for the slaying.

Sheriff Lloyd Johnson of St. John the Baptist Parish said he hoped to extradite Wille to Louisiana soon so he could be tried in January for the Lopatta slaying.

Assistant State Attorney John Spencer in Florida said he was expediting the driver's extradition and predicted "Wille might be spending Christmas in Louisiana."

Poll Watching Group Asks To Count Votes

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Leaders of a respected poll-watching group today denied receiving foreign funds and appealed to the Commission on Elections for permission to monitor February's presidential election and count the votes.

In a two-hour hearing, commissioners questioned the finances of the National Citizens Movement for Free Elections, NAMFREL, and said they had received reports its volunteers had favored opposition candidates in May 1984 parliamentary elections.

The hearing was adjourned until Tuesday.

President Ferdinand Marcos, facing the toughest electoral challenge of his 20 years in power, today summoned generals led by armed forces chief Gen. Fabian Ver to the presidential palace for what was called a meeting on a major military reorganization.

Ver, 65, was cleared Dec. 2 as an accessory to the Aug. 21, 1983, murder of opposition leader Benigno Aquino and reinstated despite U.S. opposition. Marcos has suggested Ver may be retired in the shakeup.

The decision on whether to accredit NAMFREL as the official civilian arm of the Elections Commission nationally is regarded as one of the most significant pre-election decisions the agency will make.

The Reagan administration, warning a fraudulent poll is worse than none at all, has urged Marcos to accredit NAMFREL for the Feb. 7 battle against Aquino's widow, Corazon. Marcos has hinted the group may be backed by the CIA.

...Grant

Serving are Gerald Gross, Bob McKee, Alfredo Wallace, Altermese Bentley, Leroy Robb, Leroy Johnson, Katie Sandifer and the Rev. Richard Doctor.

If the grant is received, the committee proposes to serve as the city's agent in reviewing individual applicant's income to determine whether they should receive the funds through a loan or outright allocation. For those receiving loans, repayment stipulations, including length of term and interest rates, would again be based on the applicant's economic status. The committee would also recommend appropriate handling of loans for owner occupants and landlords.

Looking toward the future, the committee would examine housing areas in Sanford and make recommendations to the city commission regarding additional areas warranting revitalization. Once ascertained, the committee would compile a waiting list for subsequent funding.

The committee also proposes to review "mode and method" of proposed construction and make recommendations regarding awarding "the most economically sound" contracts. Also, an overall perspective of the effort would be maintained by the committee through the frequent progress reviews it would conduct.

The advisory committee proposals will be considered and commented on tonight by the city commission which, as chief agent for the grant, has final say regarding its administration.

Revitalization of a different timbre will also be addressed at tonight's meeting. The Parks and Recreation Department has asked the commission to allocate $4,000 to replace 61 trees felled by city and storm.

Davidson's Tree Farm has offered a discount rate for the planting project and if residents wished inclusion in the purchase contract, Sanford could become "The City of Oaks," according to Commissioner John Mercer.

During last week's commission workshop, Mercer made the proposal, which will be considered tonight in conjunction with the Parks and Recreation Department request.

Terrorist Guilty .. Third Murder

MIAMI (UPI) — A prosecutor will ask a Dade Circuit Court jury on Jan. 3 to recommend a death penalty for an alleged Puerto Rican terrorist who has twice been convicted of murder and has twice escaped from jail.

Angel Diaz, who already was sentenced to life in prison for a murder in Puerto Rico, was convicted of first-degree murder, armed robbery, kidnapping and possession of a firearm late Saturday in the 1979 robbery and shooting death of Joseph Nagy, manager of the Velvet Swing bar.

Judge Amy Steele Donner, who presided over the trial of Diaz in a courtroom equipped with bulletproof glass that separates the audience from court personnel, told the 12 jurors to return Jan. 3 to hear evidence in the sentencing phase.

The jury must recommend either a death sentence or life in prison with no possibility of parole for 25 years for Diaz, who has been described by police as a Puerto Rican terrorist.

Prosecutors John Kastranakes and Bob Scola said they would tell the jury for the first time that Diaz already is serving a life prison term for a murder committed in Puerto Rico, that he has escaped from prison twice and attempted a third escape, and that he faces up to 1,000 years in prison on a variety of other felony convictions.

Diaz fired his lawyer as the trial started last Thursday and represented himself despite a warning from Donner that he faced a possible death sentence.

Diaz called no witnesses and did not testify in his own behalf, but he told jurors during his closing argument that he did not take part in the robbery of killing of Nagy.

The jury deliberated about three hours before returning the guilty verdict.

Police received a tip in 1983 that Diaz was one of three gunmen involved in the killing of Nagy and Diaz was linked to the murder scene by a fingerprint found on a matchbook at the bar.

He claimed he lived with several other people at the time and suggested that one of them may have taken the matchbook to the bar and left it there. But Norman Bulanda, a bartender at the Velvet Swing, had testified that he placed new matchbooks on the bar before the three gunmen entered.

Clarification

A pay raise story Sunday regarding salaries for elected county officials should have said state officials were dividing 7 by 100 and adding it to one, instead of multiplying it times one, in creating the millions of dollars in overpayments.

Brandon Community Hospital with stab wounds to the head. Kellner is based at MacDill Air Force Base.

Rule found the suspect in front of Cigar City/Gene's Hotel. He said the man went inside the establishment and began attacking other people.

He stabbed John Saunders, 40, in the left cheek. Saunders was listed in stable condition late Sunday at University Community Hospital. Gordon was treated at the scene.

"He was just yelling and screaming something, but you just couldn't understand it," said Gordon. "He stabbed me three times. If it hadn't been for the deputy and (Saunders) he would have killed me."

Rule identified himself and ordered the man to put down the knife, but the man said, "You'll have to kill me," police spokesman Jack Espinosa said.

Rule, who has been suspended pending a routine shooting investigation, fired two shots inside the hotel and when the man fled the deputy fired three more shots, killing the suspect, said Espinosa.

and we want to keep it lit at night. We're also keeping it marked."

Ms. Paredes said a geologist told her the hole will not abate until its walls are at a 45 degree angle. "Right now they're standing straight up," she said. "So we still consider it active."

"We've got a house in tiny pieces down there and the owners said 37 years of memories are down there with it. They only got out with their coats and some papers, everything else went with the house," Ms. Paredes said.

The home is owned by Park of the Palms administrator William Erickson, she said.

"This is Keystone's first sinkhole, so it's all pretty new to us," Thomas said. "It's putting us on the map, well, really it's taking us off."

Sinkholes occur when underground limestone deposits deteriorate from depleted water pressure. In 1981 a Winter Park sinkhole grew to an estimated 400-feet across and took with it 250,000 cubic yards of property. The estimated $2-million in damage it caused, included the five sports cars, a three bedroom home and an Olympic size swimming pool that fell into the chasm.

43 Dominicans Rescued

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — Forty-three Dominicans, adrift at sea for four days without food or water in a 30-foot wooden boat, were rescued by the U.S. Coast Guard, a spokesman says.

One pregnant woman was hospitalized.

Petty Officer Reginald Reese said the Coast Guard cutter Papaw, based in Charleston, S.C., found the boat about 20 miles northwest of the island of Mona, about halfway across the channel separating the Dominican Republic from Puerto Rico.

...Farm Bill

But reducing grain and cotton price supports to make U.S. farm products more competitive overseas made the difference for the administration.

Block said Congress made a "good faith" effort to trim the commodity program costs for the first three years of the bill to $52 billion, within $2 billion of Reagan's target. The target was revised upward throughout the year to compensate for worsening economic conditions in agriculture.

Heavy costs represent taxpayer subsidies to offset the lower price supports. Income supports, which combine crop price supports with direct subsidies, are frozen and then reduced starting in 1987 for cotton and rice and in 1988 for wheat and corn.

During congressional debate, Rep. Byron Dorgan, D-N.D., complained the bill fails to target financially stressed medium-sized farmers and that "the biggest chunks of money go to the biggest producers."

The rice program is the best example. While the administration and Congress refused to change this year's soybean program to spur foreign sales, the rice provision could be used to permit farmers to repay price supports of $8 per 100 pounds for as low as $4. Taxpayers will swallow the difference, although costs of storing surplus rice will be reduced.

The bill also extends supports for wool, sugar, peanuts and honey.

A historic part of the bill will pay farmers to take up to 45 million acres of the most highly erodible cropland out of production and plant it with trees and grass. Farmers will have until 1995 to practice conservation on other erodible land that remains in crops.

It broadens government programs to finance foreign trade and, in a victory for the maritime industry, gradually raises to 75 percent the share of U.S. food aid that must be shipped on more expensive U.S. vessels.

It extends agricultural research, credit and rural development programs and increases food stamp benefits.

It enables beef and pork producers to assess themselves to finance national advertising programs to try to stem a decline in consumer demand for red meat.

Silver Regiment Members Named To All-State Band

Lake Howell's High School's Silver Regiment Band is truly a whole "regiment" of outstanding young musicians. Several of the members have been named to All-State Band positions.

Elected to the All-State Symphonic Band are Elizabeth Boulter, Chris Cannariato and Kendra Knickerbocher. Cathy Walker, and Kelly Sauter will be playing in the All-State Senior High Orchestra.

Three of the above named students, Cannariato, DeZutto and Carp, along with Kevin Ulrichko have been tapped to serve with the Tri-State Band featuring the best band students from the states to Florida, Alabama and Georgia.

Our whole county takes pride in this 140-member high school band, conducted by Greg Martin. Not only were they selected to march and play in the 1985 Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade in New York City, but were chosen as the subject of a promotional film being made by the Disney Corporation.

Maitland Garden Club held their Christmas Jubilee last week with an enjoyable program. The group was really into the true spirit of Christmas — each person brought a gift to be given to the Life Care Center. They also presented the Maitland Public Library a beautifully trimmed tree covered with handmade ornaments constructed from natural botanical materials.

Cloud Of Cologne Incites Heavy Breathing At Office

DEAR ABBY: As I write this, my head is splitting! The reason? Too much perfume and cologne. I can hardly breathe.

A fragrance is a very personal statement. I use it myself, but you can smell mine only if you get within three inches of me. My co-worker's fragrance can be smelled from five feet away, and I am not exaggerating!

I have already asked this co-worker to please tone down the stuff, and he did (yes, the offender is a "he"), but a few days, he's back at his old level.

Waiting for it to wear off during the day doesn't help. By that time, I already have a headache. (Also, I suspect he replenishes the dose in mid-afternoon.)

If you print this, I'll bet I won't be the only one cutting it out of the newspaper.

CAN'T BREATHE

DEAR CAN'T: I'm on your side. One of the few retail businesses that haven't stunk this Christmas is the fragrance business. With so many celebrities lending their names to perfumes and colognes, the competition is stiffing.

Scents make dollars, but whatever happened to communication? Tell the offender, hourly if necessary, that he or she is interfering with your right to breathe.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a person who would call her hostess the morning after a beautiful, carefully planned

Thanksgiving dinner and say, "I was sick all night. Have any of the other guests called yet to say they were sick, too?" (She was the only one who called, so I'm sure it wasn't anything I served.)

I was hurt and insulted, Abby. I am not a sloppy cook and use only the finest and freshest ingredients. What do the etiquette books say about a situation like this?

HURT HOSTESS

DEAR HURT: To my knowledge, it's not dealt with in the etiquette books. Don't judge your guest too harshly. While, she may not win a prize for diplomacy, I'm sure her intentions were not to hurt or insult you.

DEAR ABBY: Please alert readers who have had hip or bone replacements that they should advise their dentists.

I was just made aware of the hazards by my own dentist. I have only a pin (or "nail") in my hip, but my dentist had me call my orthopedist for advice.

Before even a routine tooth cleaning procedure, where any bleeding may occur, it is usually advisable to begin using antibiotics. Any foreign object in the body is a prime source of infection.

Abby, please let your readers know. This was news to me.

CALL FROM MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR CAROL: It will be news to a lot of people. Thank you for sharing.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Please get this in before Christmas. What happened to the days when people in business gave Christmas presents to their customers to show their appreciation?

I remember when my mother used to get pretty wall calendars from her milkman, pharmacist and grocer. She had a hard time deciding which one to put in her kitchen, they were all so beautiful.

Now, things are the other way around. All year long I patronize the same hairdresser and manicurist, and give them a nice tip to boot, then comes Christmas and I give them a present. I think they should be giving me a present.

Reagan Honors Teens For Bravery, Service

By Anne Baker
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Four teenagers, whose bravery and service saved lives and helped the needy, have been chosen to receive the Young American Medal from President Reagan, Attorney General Edwin Meese says.

Meese said Sunday the medals would be presented by Reagan in a Rose Garden ceremony Jan. 16. The medals are part of a program established by a 1950 law to honor Americans under age 18 for "exceptional courage without regard for their personal safety in coming to the aid of other persons" and "exemplary acts of community service."

The Justice Department administers the Young American Medals program. The nation's governors nominate candidates, and winners are selected by the Young American Medals Committee, subject to the attorney general's approval.

The medal winners are:
—For bravery, Gregory Delzer, 17, of Lead, S.D. On Oct. 12, 1984, Delzer, then 16, pushed two frightened high school classmates out of the path of a speeding car. With no time to get away himself, he leaped into the air. His head shattered the car's windshield and his legs were broken. The two girls were uninjured. The car's driver did not stop, but was arrested later that day and charged with drunken driving.

"I'm really happy to get the award," Delzer said last week. "It's a privilege to be the only South Dakotan there."

—For service, Trevor Ferrell, 13, of Gladwyne, Pa. During the 1983 Christmas season, when he was 11, Ferrell saw a television story about the homeless in Philadelphia's streets. On a visit to the city, Ferrell and his father gave a homeless man a pillow and blanket the boy had brought from his bedroom. Soon Ferrell was making runs regularly with food, blankets and clothing that friends, church groups and businesses donated.

Ferrell said last week he does not "feel special or anything" but is looking forward to meeting Reagan again. Ferrell was in April to receive a Volunteer Action Award for his help to the homeless.

—For bravery, Richard Makinson, 18, of Pixley, Calif. On June 14, 1984, Makinson, then 16, was taking a rest from swimming in California's Feather River when he heard screams. Kristy Boring, 11, and Susanna Foster, 12, were trapped in the current and heading downstream. Although he suffers from diabetes and tires easily, Makinson dived into the river and saved Foster. He came within a few feet of Boring, who had been trying to save Foster, but the powerful current pulled her under.

Last week, Makinson said his act of bravery "makes me feel good, but I still don't think it was such a big deal. Anyone who was there would have done the same thing. I just happened to be there."

—For service, Janelle Lynn Peery, 19, of Cheyenne, Wyo. In 1980, Peery's cancerous right leg was amputated. She began meeting with other cancer patients to talk about living with disease and in some cases overcoming it. While Peery was in the hospital, her mother made teddy bears for her. She began distributing the stuffed toys to other ailing children. Community groups have taken up her "Tender Loving Bears" project for sick children.

Now a freshman at Brandeis University, Peery said last week she wants to become a social worker helping young cancer patients.

Florida Cities Bid On Political Meets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republicans and Democrats never seem to agree on anything, but Los Angeles and Atlanta seem to be the front-runners for both parties when it comes to choosing a 1988 presidential convention site.

Both parties will name site selection committees in January, and a number of cities have already expressed interest in hosting the weeklong convention to nominate presidential candidates.

A t l a n t a : Philadelphia; Chicago; Houston; Los Angeles;

New York; Miami; San Diego; Kansas City, Mo.; Washington, D.C.; and Orlando, Fla., have made some form of contact with the Democratic National Committee about the convention, a party spokesman said.

Atlanta, St. Louis, Seattle, Kansas City, Mo.; Las Vegas, Nev.; Philadelphia; San Diego, and "the entire state of Florida" are on the Republican list so far. Florida party officials have said any number of cities in the state are interested and available for the convention, a spokesman said.

Issue Tops Foreign Policy Agenda

Terrorism Seized Center Stage In 1985

By Matthew C. Quinn

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The bloody violence of international terrorism seized center stage in 1985, with more hijackings, bombings and kidnappings — and a new willingness by governments to fight back.

Repeated attacks on Americans abroad pushed the issue atop the Reagan administration's foreign policy agenda. In some of the episodes, efforts to join with allies to deal with individual attacks proved divisive, alienating Italy, Egypt and Yugoslavia.

President Reagan's decision to have American F-14 fighter jets force down an Egyptian airliner carrying the Palestinian hijackers of the Italian cruise ship Achille Lauro Oct. 10 sent a message to terrorists defined by the president in a paraphrase of an old Joe Louis quote: "You can run, but you can't hide."

According to experts, however, so long as terrorists think they can achieve their objectives — including provoking "media events" and disrupting U.S. relations with allies — attacks are likely to continue.

"If there is one lesson the terrorists have learned this year, it is that terrorism works," said Robert Kupperman, a consultant on terrorism at the Georgetown Center for Strategic and International Studies. "The United States and other nations are getting somewhat better at dealing with them. But by and large, they achieve their objectives."

The increasingly ruthless tactics of terrorists, such as shooting wheelchair-bound American tourist Leon Klinghoffer and throwing him off the Achille Lauro's deck into the Mediterranean, have begun to galvanize public opinion against terrorism, at least in the West.

"Over the last year, largely because of these very painful events, we see in the United States the menace of terrorism more clearly and so the support for doing something about it is stronger," said Secretary of State George Shultz.

The American response to the Achille Lauro hijacking, Shultz said, "sent a very good, strong, positive message," he said, adding that the refusal of other nations to give haven to the hijackers was "sending a god message."

Progress, however, has been slow. In January 1981, taking office at the end of the 444-day-long Iran hostage crisis that consumed the Carter presidency, Reagan promised "swift and effective retribution" against terrorists.

Despite repeated attacks against U.S. targets in the Middle East, including the October 1983 suicide bombing of the U.S. Marine barracks that killed more than 240 American servicemen, nothing tangible was done.

And despite the Achille Lauro response, the administration has been stymied in a number of other cases.

Six American hostages — if U.S. embassy official William Buckley is still alive — are listed as captives of Shiite Moslem extremists in Lebanon with no prospect that they will be released. Reagan has repeatedly refused to negotiate, at least openly, for their freedom.

"We have worked every angle we can think of and we continue to do so and the brutal fact is the hostages are still there," Shultz said.

According to the administration, there were about 1,000 incidents of international terrorism in 1985. The Rand Corp. puts it at about 500.

"No matter which figures you use," said Kupperman, "terrorism quantitatively is going up at a rate of 12 percent to 15 percent a year. We're facing a problem that is going up in number."

In one of the year's major acts of terror, Lebanese Shiite gunman commandeered Trans World Airlines Flight 847 en route from Athens to Rome with 153 people aboard, crisis-crossed the Mediterranean and held 39 American men hostage for 17 days in Beirut.

The administration played coy about whether the Israeli government should meet the hijackers' demand for the release of 766 Shiite prisoners. The Americans were released only after the intercession of the Syrian government and what many critics considered an orgy of U.S. media coverage that gave the hijackers a platform they wanted.

"The incident taught us that we end up in bed even with people (who) a week before we called terrorists," said Kupperman. "There is no such thing as a non-concessionary, non-negotiation policy."

The prisoners demanded by the TWA hijackers were released by Israel in stages after the hostages were released, with Israel saying it planned the release anyway.

"We are learning more and use other governments as levers," said Kupperman.

The expansion of target countries to more than 80 (according to a Rand Corp. analysis) has enhanced the prospects for international cooperation. Following the kidnapping of four Soviet diplomats in Lebanon, the Kremlin took a new interest in addressing the problem.

The Reagan administration has pointed to a number of undramatic programs intended to fight terrorism. These include rewards for the capture of terrorists, a multibillion-dollar construction program to strengthen diplomatic outposts most vulnerable to attack and intelligence sharing with friendly governments.

The Salvadoran government, crediting intelligence sharing with the United States, has arrested suspects in the June 19 attack on a San Salvador sidewalk cafe in which 13 people were shot to death, including four U.S. Marines and two American businessmen.

On May 23, the Egyptian government announced it foiled a Libyan plot to blow up a truck in front of an unidentified embassy in Cairo, believed to have been the American embassy.

"The degree of technical, diplomatic and intelligence sharing and cooperation is at an all-time high among our allies," said Kupperman. "We're going to be able more and more to choose how we are going to operate."

But despite the cooperation and improved technical capacity, political problems remain a barrier.

American relations were strained when Egypt, Italy and Yugoslavia decided against arresting Mohammed Abbas, alleged mastermind of the Oct. 7 Achille Lauro hijacking and a Palestine Liberation Organization official, for fear of disrupting relations with the PLO.

Things were patched up and Mubarak subsequently showed his resolve on Malta, where he sent commandoes against hijackers of an Egyptian airliner with heavy loss of life. Still, differences remain over the PLO, which the administration views as aiding and abetting terrorism.

What was expected to be a low-key official visit to Yugoslavia erupted over the matter Dec. 17 when Shultz pounded the table and shouted "It's wrong" when the foreign minister suggested that the "causes" for terrorism be addressed and defended Yugoslavia's recognition of the PLO.

Then there are domestic political concerns. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has cut to $22 million the administration's $54 million counter-intelligence program for Central America and loaded it up with amendments reflecting concern the money will be used to perpetrate human rights abuses.

As for the outlook for terrorism in 1986, there is concern that despite the heightened awareness of the problem and precautionary steps, the problem will continue to escalate.

"Terrorists have become technically more proficient, enabling them to operate on a higher level of violence," author Brian Jenkins wrote in "The Future Course of International Terrorism," published by the Rand Corp., a Santa Monica, Calif., think tank. "The religious aspect of current conflicts in the Middle East pushes toward mass murder."

Jenkins wrote that terrorists have historically adjusted to technological advances in security, although there will probably be no basic change in the "basic repertoire" of bombings, assassinations, armed assaults, kidnappings, hijackings and barricade and hostage incidents.

"Seizing embassies was a popular tactic in the 1970s. It declined as security measures made embassy takeovers more difficult, and as governments became more resistant to the demands of terrorists holding hostages and more willing to use force to end such episodes," Jenkins wrote.

"If one tactic ceases to work, they abandon it in favor of another one and merely shift their sights to another target."

"How might terrorists respond to the new security measures aimed at protecting embassies against car bombs? Conceivably, they might resort to aerial suicide attacks, which are technically and physically more demanding," he wrote.

Kupperman said terrorism is expanding geographically and predicted the next target will be the Philippines, possibly with attacks on American military bases by communist insurgents battling the Marcos government. "The distinction between insurgency operations and terrorism is going to become more blurred," he said.

Jenkins predicted: "Terrorism certainly will persist. Probably it will increase. Large-scale incidents will become more common."

"And terrorists will create crises, forcing governments and corporations to divert more and more resources toward combatting them."

...The Mob

By Frank Spotnitz

NEW YORK (UPI) — The gangland murder of godfather "Big Paul" Castellano outside a Manhattan steakhouse has made headlines that federal authorities would like to parlay into more public backing for their drive to crush organized crime.

While the motive for the shooting, reportedly approved by rival Mafia dons, remained uncertain, authorities said the dramatic hit is evidence of the government's increased pressure on the top echelons of the American underworld.

Castellano, 70, and his heir apparent, Thomas Bilotti, 47, were getting out of a limousine in front of Spark's steak house last Monday when three triggermen in trenchcoats pulled automatic weapons and shot each man six times at close range, execution style.

"The La Cosa Nostra has been over-glamorized over the decades by Hollywood and others," said Arthur Brill of the Presidential Commission on Organized Crime in Washington.

"The Godfather" gives the image of a modern-day Robin Hood in a way. I don't think the public realizes the impact they have. They take. They don't give to this country. They take from it."

Ronald Goldstock, executive director of the state's organized crime task force, said the killing could act as a catalyst, stirring the same kind of public activism responsible for a spate of anti-drunk driving legislation.

"The American public has put up with organized crime for 55 years, maybe longer," he said. "It is a national disgrace. At some point, the public's got to get fed up with it and do something about it."

Castellano was facing racketeering trials and was about to be slapped with two other indictments at the time of the killing.

"There used to be a time when the mob could protect itself and keep pressure from being put upon its leaders by eliminating witnesses and making it difficult to prosecute them," Goldstock said.

"But at the present time we've got aggressive prosecutors, more people who've turned informant, a competent witness protection program and increased use of electronic surveillance. So what's occurring is increased pressure on the mob to eliminate those who are potential informants, and those who would cooperate with law enforcement."

That same pressure could lead to racketeering charges against John Gotti, the man believed most likely to succeed Castellano as boss of the Gambino family and therefore "boss of the bosses" in the New York crime syndicate.

The Gambinos have traditionally been strongest of the New York gangs and Castellano was reputed head of a Mafia crime commission that the government says oversees crime in America. He was to stand trial in March along with the other four dons of New York crime.

Gotti reportedly could be brought to trial as soon as January, accused by police of running illegal gambling, loan-sharking and planning armored-car holdups.

Authorities said they believe Castellano was killed as part of a power struggle within the Gambino family, and that the heads of other mob families gave their approval because they were concerned that his legal problems might endanger them.

Gotti, described as a "cowboy" by police, was believed to have been dissatisfied with Castellano's leadership. It was rumored Castellano was planning to promote his aide, Thomas Bilotti, while moving Gotti down in the organization.

Officials theorized that with the recent death of Aniello Delacroce, the underboss who had been keeping peace between Gotti and Castellano, the path was cleared for the Castellano and Bilotti hits.

While authorities continue to investigate the slaying, the coverage of the event also has sparked a public battle over the use of the word Mafia.

Officials including Gov. Mario Cuomo and Rep. Mario Biaggi said the word unfairly links Italians to underworld crime.

"Every time you say it, you suggest to people that organized crime is Italian," Cuomo said. "It's an ugly stereotype that gets used over and over against Italians."

By Esther Pessin

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bernhard Hugo Goetz, who one year ago Sunday blasted himself into the national conscience by shooting four teenagers on a speeding subway with a silver gun, rarely rides the trains anymore but brags he's taught "the liberals" a lesson.

The gawky, bespectacled loner became a legend in the image of movie vigilante Charles Bronson last Dec. 22 with five shots from an unlicensed .38-caliber revolver. Goetz said the four black youths intended to mug him.

The shots took just eight seconds to fire, but they struck a raw nerve that still reverberates in the crime-weary American psyche.

"There may be a lot of muggers out there who might hesitate out of fear they're going to get hurt," said Goetz's lawyer, Barry Slotnick.

The 38-year-old divorced electronics engineer, dubbed the subway vigilante, rarely rides subway trains any more, however.

"When something horrible happens to you, it's only human to try to keep out of that situation," said another of his lawyers, Mark Baker.

Goetz, free on $5,000 bail awaiting trial on attempted murder, told United Press International the shooting "educated a lot of liberals. Like everything, it has its good points and bad points. It's been a good thing for society."

But, he laughed, "Educating liberals is a difficult and tedious process."

The downtown IRT subway was crowded with Christmas shoppers that Saturday afternoon. Goetz was on his way to have a drink with friends when at least one of four teenagers, all of whom had arrest records, asked Goetz for $5.

The subway gunman, injured in a mugging nearly four years earlier, rose from his seat and fired four bullets from his silver gun into the youths — Darrell Cabey, now 20, Barry Allen, 19, and James Ramseur, 19, Troy Canty, 20, all of the Bronx — hitting at least two in the back as dozens of terrified passengers dived for cover.

Goetz then walked over to Cabey, saying, "You don't look so bad. Here's another," firing a fifth shot and leaving the youth partially paralyzed and brain-damaged.

At first, New Yorkers made the mysterious gunman a hero, calling him the "Death Wish" vigilante after the citizen-turned-avenger in the 1974 Bronson movie. More support came in the days after Goetz confessed New Year's Eve.

Phone calls poured into the police cheering the subway gunman. Some people said they wanted him to run for mayor; others offered to pay his legal expenses.

But the more New Yorkers learned about their new idol, the less they liked him.

Neighbors said they had heard Goetz use racial slurs.

Goetz's confession revealed he wanted to murder the youths and would have kept shooting if he had not run out of bullets.

And Goetz began talking to the press, at one point suggesting more New Yorkers should be trained to use guns so they could join the battle against crime.

The tide of support turned amid charges of racism and a public debate over the morality of vigilantism.

One grand jury declined to indict Goetz for attempted murder, charging him instead with illegal weapons possession. But, in March, a new panel charged him with attempted murder.

The case has yet to come to trial, mired in appeals directed at alleged improprieties in the second grand jury. No trial date has been set.

Civil rights lawyer William Kunstler, an attorney representing Cabey in a $50 million civil suit against the subway gunman, compared the shooting to a Southern lynching.

"Lynchers became a hero. Lynching was done as a protective measure, to protect white womanhood. It's not quite the same, but something like that was taking place here."

"What bothered me more than the racism of Bernhard Goetz was the racism of the general public, the white public that turned him into a hero," he said.

Kunstler acknowledged that Goetz's victims were "street kids. Maybe they have records. They're probably sassy. They probably hustle for a buck. I'm certain they approach people in subways."

But the lawyer added, "If you're a rational human being and not out to kill people, you give them the five bucks. Is that such a hard thing to do?"

Shirley Cabey, 39, a widowed food service worker who quit her job to care for her son Darrell, said she was upset by the support for Goetz and the hate mail his victims received.

"How could people say things like that, knowing one of the boys was paralyzed? They treated them (the youths) like dirt on the back of their seats," she said.

None of the youths was charged in the subway shooting. But since then, Ramseur was arrested on charges of faking his own kidnapping and again on rape charges. Allen was arrested on charges of robbery.

Canty is awaiting sentencing for robbery conviction, but armed robbery charges lodged against Cabey before the shooting were dismissed because of his condition.

And recent revelations, such as a statement by the first police officer on the scene after the shooting who said Canty told him the youths planned to rob Goetz, seem to support the subway gunman's self-defense contentions.

Still, prosecutors are confident about their case.

"You can't shoot four people, two in the back, with impunity," said Mary de Bourbon, a spokeswoman for the district attorney. "You'll face prosecution."
