Hibbard Casselberry Expresses Opinion On 17-92 Four-Laning

A founder of one of Seminole County's thriving communities, spoke up yesterday and expressed his opinion on "Why I like the four-laning, widening and paving of the present route of 17-92."

Hibbard Casselberry, leaned back in his desk chair, reminding, in a way, and talking freely about today's plans.

"When we came to Seminole County in 1926," he said, "the Sanford-Orlando Highway ran through the business districts of Longwood, Altamonte Springs and Maitland. We can remember full well what happened to businesses on the old highway when the new highway opened up."

"When we purchased our property in the wilds of the back country there were only rattlesnakes, jack rabbits and one still where the engineer said, for the safety of the public, they must build a new highway entirely east of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad. The property owners did not hesitate to donate that wonderful land full of sunshine and palmettos."

"Today, the property along this highway is worth anything you have never enough to ask for and will continue to be worth more and more, provided that a new highway is not built before this one is four-laned."

"I've heard much discussion about people wanting a four-lane highway without a center safety zone. I have personally seen 'hot rod Harry's' on 411 make complete circles by skidding across all four lanes in an effort to make the circle as quick as possible and continue in the same direction that they started. Any number of people, every day, (Continued On Page Eight)

Hyacinth Control Act Good News To County

Nautican Secured For River Cruises; Pier Work Begun

One of Seminole County's fishing camp operators is happier today than he has been in a long time.

Only yesterday, J. L. Toler of Lakeland, the Information and Educational Officer of the Hyacinth Control Division of the Florida State Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, called on Rube Crowe for some information relative to the hyacinth condition in the lakes and waterways of Seminole County.

Toler told Crowe that Seminole County is the only place in Florida, that he has found so far, where the people are suffering economically from the hyacinths.

"We will be here, in all probability," Toler told Crowe, "to begin the eradication and control of hyacinths by Oct. 15."

Crowe related the details of his conversation with Toler when the acquisition of a bigger plant for the eradication program was told. "We have a bigger plant," Toler said, "that will spray 60 acres at a pass to replace the old one with which only 10 acres could be sprayed."

Crowe said that the program, to be carried out by the Hyacinth Control Division of the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, would not cost the county or the property owners a dime in extra funds. "There was a time," Crowe said, "when we were required to raise additional funds to purchase chemicals and materials used in the spray program."

Yesterday, Toler called on Senator Douglas Stenrood to obtain information relative to the Seminole County area and to assure him that the representatives of the Hyacinth Control Division would be in Seminole County to carry out the obligations of Senate Bill 637 which was adopted during the 1955 session of the State Legislature.

Shrimplike Beings Seen In California Flooded Dry Lake

CAMP IRWIN, Calif. (AP)—Tiny, shrimplike creatures springing up in a recently flooded dry lake today brought a trio of scientists to this desert outpost to search for eggs that may be 100 years old.

The leader of the group, Dr. James P. Welsh, Los Angeles State College zoologist, already has about 40 of the small specimens which thrive only in hot water and look like a throwback to the trilobite, an extinct prehistoric crustacean.

Dr. Welsh will be joined by his colleagues Arthur Lockley and John Beardon of Los Angeles State and Army researchers in the investigation of Bicycle Dry Lake and its ridge of the rebar shrimp.

Here is Dr. Welsh's story: As far back as anyone can remember, and that's roughly 100 years, the lake was dry until last Aug. 28, when desert thunderstorms suddenly deposited a foot of water.

Sowder Reviews New Law

A review of the law, adopted during the last session of the Florida legislature, appropriating $500,000 for the hospitalization of indigent patients was heard last night at a meeting of the Seminole County Medical Association.

Dr. Wilson T. Sowder, State Health Officer, of Jacksonville explained in detail, the intricacies of the law which was recommended by Governor LeRoy Collins' Health Committee and the Florida Medical Association.

However, explained Dr. Sowder the original request of the legislature was for $1,000,000 instead of the appropriated $500,000.

The law becomes effective Jan. 1, 1956, said Dr. Sowder with the administrative details yet incomplete.

Each county will share in the fund, Sowder said, and will be eligible on a per capita basis. He explained that in order for counties to participate a 50 cents per capita fund must necessarily be budgeted.

"When funds become available from the half million dollar appropriation, county commissioners will be required to certify that funds to be matched were spent for hospitalization of indigent patients," said Dr. Sowder.

Fringe Area Group To Meet Tuesday

A meeting has been set for Tuesday, Sept. 20, at 8 p. m., at the Farmers Auction Market on Highway 17-92 for fringe area residents and those using city water outside the city limits.

All interested persons are urged to attend and an invitation has been extended to the City Manager and City Commissioners to be present to answer any questions that may arise on the water issue.

Scheduling the meeting was the committee previously appointed to confer with City officials and take a report back to the people. Those on the committee are T. V. Brown, chairman; Mrs. Edna Heister, secretary; Alex Smith, Archie Smith, Gayle Howe, and Chester Miller.

Clemency Appeals Heard By Cabinet On Rebuked Pair

TALLAHASSEE (AP)—Thirty-five appeals for clemency, including those of a pair of condemned cop killers, will be heard by the Cabinet Parole Board at its quarterly meeting Sept. 27.

The two men seeking to escape the electric chair for the killing of police officers are George Limpy Anderson, sentenced to death for the slaying of a Miami motorcycle policeman, and Samuel J. Hornbeck, condemned for the killing of a Duval County road patrolman.

The pardon board already has heard appeals for commutation of their death sentences from Percy (Waste Blue) Ambriester and Richard (Fatback), Floyd convicted with Anderson in the Miami cop killing. It has delayed a decision pending consideration of the Anderson plea.

Adenauer Summons Cabinet, Leaders To Quick Approval

BONN, Germany (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer summoned his Cabinet and leaders of his government coalition today in a bid for quick acceptance of his Moscow agreement to set up diplomatic relations between Russia and West Germany.

To become effective, the pact must be ratified by the Bundestag (lower house) of West Germany's Parliament as well as by the President of the Supreme Soviet.

While Soviet Premier Bulganin's verbal promise to return German prisoners has naturally been welcomed in Bonn, some politicians voiced doubt about the wisdom of exchanging ambassadors with Moscow.

They argued this would imply acceptance of a division of Germany into rival states.

CONVICTED BY WOMEN

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—An all-women jury convicted Jimmy Walsh, 29, of driving while drunk yesterday, sentenced him to three days in jail and fined him $50. Dallas City Marshal McCulloch said one of the women told him: "We would have acquitted your young man except that we talked it over and decided that the police would never pick up anyone who was not guilty." Walsh said he would appeal.

Smathers Urges Public Alertness

Peace Is Stressed In Talk

Senator Greeted At Sanford Base

"It's nice to be home again," said Senator George Smathers, as he passed the Welcome Smathers banner across Park Ave. today when he arrived in Sanford to address a joint meeting of Sanford civic clubs under the auspices of the Seminole County Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Senator Smathers arrived by plane from Tampa, at the Sanford Naval Auxiliary Air Station where he was greeted by Bill Kirk, personal friend of the Senator's Randall Chase, Captain Robert W. Jackson, Commanding Officer of SNAAS, and Tommy Stringer, JACCC chairman of the event today.

Accompanying the Senator to Sanford were his Administrative Assistant Jim Powell and Scotty Peck, aide.

Senator Smathers, speaking to the combined civic club luncheon at the Parish House of the Holy Cross Episcopal Church, said, "Our biggest accomplishment in the third Congress was in the field of peace. Not too long ago, tension gripped the nation. Everyone was greatly concerned with the future of the country. There was much worry on the part of every Senator in Washington."

"It wasn't until the communist aggressors of the world were told to stop—so have put up with your aggressiveness—you can do no further—that we began to see a change. Molotov smiled for the first time in three years. There came the Geneva Conference. Today there is no tension—no apprehension—only friendship—as can be seen."

"It seems to me that we should remember a couple of things. A communist is a communist."

Secretary Wilson should not be making statements that we should cut a million dollars from our defense budget, before Moscow has had an opportunity to speak. We should not put our faith in Khrushchev, Molotov, or any of the Russian leaders. We should be ever alert. Only then," Senator Smathers concluded, "will we continue to have peace here for a long time to come."

Following the address, and a roundup of the accomplishments in the third Congress, Mayor Denver Correll presented Senator Smathers with a resolution of welcome, and naming the Senator as Honorary Mayor of Sanford. Mayor Correll presented the Senator, along with the resolution, a Gold Key To The City.

Smathers was introduced at the luncheon today by Kirk, local automobile dealer and a friend of the senator.

Reds, East German Talks Announced

MOSCOW (AP)—Moving swiftly to follow up its negotiations with West Germany, the Soviet Union has announced it will open talks tomorrow with leaders of Communist East Germany.

The Soviet news agency Tass said East German Premier Otto Grotewohl would arrive in Moscow for conferences on "questions of interest to all sides." The announcement came only a few hours after West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer ended his Moscow conference and left for Bonn.

The announcement was expected but Western observers were surprised it came so soon after Adenauer's departure.

The Soviet-West German talks resulted in an agreement to establish diplomatic relations.

NEXT TIME HE'LL KNOW SPALDING, Neb. (AP)—Emil Kavalec is another granddaddy who underestimated granddaddy. He promised little Charlene Kavalec he would pay her a nickel for every four leaf clover she found in granddaddy's front yard. Charlene called in playmates Ollie and Max Muller. And in a half hour they collected 130 pay-off clovers — 66.50 from granddaddy's pocket.

New Auto Financial Responsibility Law Is Told To Drivers

Seminole County Sheriff Luther Hobbs has received a supply of pamphlets from State Treasurer and Insurance Commissioner J. Edwin Larson explaining the new Financial Responsibility Law which goes into effect on Oct. 1.

Sheriff Hobbs said today that the pamphlets are available without charge at his office.

However, as a public service, and to acquaint the public with the facts about the new law adopted by the 1955 State Legislature, questions and answers concerning the Financial Responsibility Law appear here, as the leaflet explains, "not to attempt to cover all statutory provisions or explain any of them in legal detail."

What is the Financial Responsibility Law? It is an act of the 1955 Legislature which completely replaces the law that was enacted in 1949. Its purpose is to protect everyone in Florida against financially irresponsible motor vehicle owners and operators who become involved in accidents and fail to pay for the damage they cause. It also promotes safety by (Continued On Page Eight)

Bath, Tennis Club Ends Year Sunday

The Mayfair Inn Bath and Tennis Club which has enjoyed, for the past four months, the facilities of the resort hotel owned and operated by the Miami Golf and Country Club, officially ends its season Sunday evening.

Members are asked to take notice that the pool will be available this weekend as a special courtesy on the part of the hotel management.

Pilot's Principles Pointed Out

Pointing out the basic principles of Pilot International, "Friendship and Service," Mrs. Marc Gleason of Ocala, lieutenant governor of District Four which comprises 40 clubs in Florida, Tuesday night reminded members of the local club that the promotion of these principles would make for a "better club, better community and nation."

Mrs. Gleason made her official visit to the local club at a meeting which was held in the Yacht Club at 8 p. m. Preceding the meeting members honored Mrs. Gleason with a dinner party at Jim Spencer's Restaurant.

Greetings were brought the local club from Mrs. Edith Macleod Cameron, newly elected president of Pilot International, of Gainesville; Mrs. Alice Thompson of Tallahassee, governor of District Four; and other P. I. officials.

Mrs. Gleason explained the functioning of Pilot International's "Special Funds" which consists of the True Course Ever fund and the Ruby Newhall Memorial Scholarship fund.

Vocational School Interest Runs High

The Seminole County Vocational School has been in operation for over a week now. Student interest has been very good. Registration will continue in all subjects except beginning shorthand. After Monday, Sept. 19, new students will not be accepted for the beginning shorthand class.

This enables students to progress at their own rate of speed. For example, a student may complete a year's bookkeeping or typing course in a few months instead of a full year. Students may thus be placed into office positions at a much earlier date. The demand for office workers has been great.

The school offers any adult in the county, 16 years of age or older the opportunity to take advantage of this training. It is a public school. The only fee is a $1 registration fee, and the students are asked to buy any workbooks they may need. Business courses are offered both in the day and at night to accommodate the needs of the people in the county.

Business Executive Robert Butler Dies

NEW YORK (AP)—Robert Butler, business executive and first United States ambassador to Australia, died today in New York Hospital after a brief illness. He was 56.

Butler, who had suffered from a heart condition, became ill suddenly after his return here Tuesday aboard the liner United States after a three-week vacation trip to Europe.

For many years he had been active in the construction and shipbuilding business in Minnesota. His home was on Stonehome Peninsula, White Bear Lake, Minn.

Coast Guardsman Gets Commission

NEW LONDON, Conn. (AP)—A 23-year-old Coast Guardsman who wasn't commissioned an ensign last April because his mother was a former member of allegedly subversive organizations got his commission yesterday.

N. Pierre Gaston graduated from the officer training school at the Coast Guard Academy here four months ago. After simple commissioning ceremonies yesterday, he was assigned to report to the Humboldt, a weather ship at Boston Oct. 1.

Mrs. W. L. Harlow Sr., chairman of the Seminole Memorial Hospital committee, announced that a check for $150 had been presented to H. M. Weir, administrator to pay for a Hi-Lo bed which the club is donating to the hospital. It will be placed in the club's room at the new hospital.

Mrs. George A. Stine announced that $32.50 had been realized on a recent plasticware party.

Life Gets Easier As Mexico Grows

MEXICO CITY, (AP)—After more than a century of almost constant internal disturbances which slowed her development, Mexico is growing up and life is easier all around.

Mexico was settled by Europeans almost a hundred years before the United States. Even before that she had a whole mosaic of Indian cultures, some of them very advanced. Her National University is older than Harvard and she was printing books while the Jamestown settlers were still wondering if they could hold out.

Mexico's living now is a two-layer matter—U.S. luxuries overlaid on a basis of Mexican's corn-and-beans way of life. The average Mexican eats corn tortillas and goes to Hollywood movies. He wears sandals in the country but when he travels he goes by Detroit made buses. The farmer may plow with oxen or burros, but he plants the newest hybrid seed corn.

Mexico has remained a Latin, Catholic country. Lengthy and late lunch hours are still the custom even in U.S. advertising agencies, these hidgeheads of America energy. Mexico has its own movie industry and its best films are good. Politics are noisy, not notoriously honest. Newspapers still publish poetry.

In 15 years Mexico has increased her population 40 per cent. But her national income, the total value of all farm and factory goods, has doubled in that time. That means that 40 per cent more people are getting 100 per cent more goods. And that means that everybody is eating more, dressing better and spending a little more on luxuries.

Typically, the reason for all this is the return of migrant farm workers after helping with U.S. harvests has had a big effect on Mexico, socially and economically. Probably one of every 20 Mexicans has visited the United States. They bring back not only the dollars they earned but, generally, an admiration for American ways.

Health is still a problem. Too many Mexicans are still drinking contaminated water, particularly in the capital.

Education is still insufficient. Literacy is around 40 per cent despite the government's best efforts—and they are very good.

There's another dark cloud on the horizon—inflation. The value of the peso has dropped from 22 cents in 1928 to 4 cents now. Every time the trade balance goes against the country, the government has dropped the value of the peso again.

This makes imported goods cost more and reduces imports, thereby balancing trade again. But it can't go on indefinitely because it raises the price of imported necessities such as trucks and railroad equipment and drugs. The only solution is to keep the country back to its normal proportions.

A leftist government, if elected, would make tourists doubtful about coming here—witness the Guatemalan tourist traffic which dried up under the pro-communist Arbenz government.

Violence to tourists, either by holdup men or during a political demonstration, would also scare off the tourists. High prices would not act as quickly but would gradually dry up the flow.

All in all, Mexico is doing all right now. But she will need all her luck to keep improvements coming.

The United States has about three million horses.

Seminole County Receives Honor In Visit From Senator Smathers

Seminole County today has been honored. Senator George Smathers one of the nation's most popular lawmakers, pays Sanford and Seminole County a visit, bringing with him the details of all that was done during the 83rd Congress.

From coast to coast and from border to border, Senator Smathers has carried, not only the story of the accomplishments of the 83rd Congress, but the story of Florida. No doubt, the young senator has been responsible for many of our visitors and in turn, many of our new citizens.

Most notable among the efforts made by Senator George Smathers, are those in behalf of South America and some of that country's impoverished nations.

Realizing that some of the South American countries were on the threshold of answering the beckoning of communism, Senator Smathers has carried their story from South America to Congress. Still processing their resources by antiquated methods, Smathers has attempted to provide modernized equipment, guidance, education, and financial leadership, to thwart the hammer and sickle preachings that have invaded the Latin American countries.

We believe that the young senator has made friends for our country, far and wide, with his personality, his friendliness, and his affable manner and approach that can well make a state man instead of a lawmaker. In his broad and healthful attitude toward the future of the United States of America, Senator Smathers, has in turn, promoted a healthful picture for the future of Florida.

The automobile of today is the "trade-in" of tomorrow. Take care of it. Sanford automobile dealers enjoy a healthy new-car season.

Annexation isn't such a problem. We're just making a mountain out of a mole hill. Everybody prospers when a family becomes bigger and Sanford isn't an exception to the rule.

The two words "juvenile delinquency" were coined when round dining room tables and drop lights went out of style.

More Businessmen Born; Fewer Die

NEW YORK (U.S.)—Chalk up another item of prosperity and business confidence: More new businesses are being born this year than last; fewer are dying.

Even though his stay in Sanford necessarily must be short, our leaders will have an opportunity to place their problems before him. No doubt, with the reception afforded the eminent Senator, the problems and wishes of the Sanford community will receive paramount consideration.

As we welcome Senator Smathers to Sanford we also invite him to come again to share with us the firsthand information from our nation's capital and to take back with him some of our problems that can well be solved with the friendly presentation for which he is so noted.

Constitution Week

As a result of the continuing efforts of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, President Dwight D. Eisenhower has proclaimed the week of Sept. 17 as Constitution Week.

The proclamation reads in part, "We the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquillity, provide for the common Defense, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America."

So reads the Constitution of the United States and the declaration setting the important historical week to observe and study the course of events by which our Constitution came into being.

The proclamation invites the people of the United States to observe the week of Sept. 17 with appropriate ceremonies in schools, churches, and other suitable places.

The week-long event will be observed in Seminole County Schools when, the entire week, pupils of the schools will be participating in discussions, studies, programs, and classroom observance centering around the Constitution of the United States.

Gertrude S. Caraway, President General of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution said in a recent message, "Our Constitution is not just a Bill of Rights, significant as they are. It is also a Bill of Obligations. In the words of the American's Creed, by the late William Tyler Page, whose memory we will honor in October by unveiling a marker at his grave: 'It is my duty to my country to love it, to support its Constitution, to obey its laws, to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies.'"

Too many Americans today do not take the time to learn the fundamentals of our Constitution and the liberties granted us by our forefathers in their unmatched wisdom in planning the future of the world's greatest democratic nation.

"Constitution Week" will provide the school children of today an opportunity to learn more about the American way of life through patriotic education. With a background of such knowledge, young citizens will be better prepared to withstand the serious threats from within as well as from without our borders.

Adult citizens should join with the school children in the observance of "Constitution Week".

Authority On Fashion Offers Tips

NEW YORK (U.S.)—The average American husband may doubt whether his wife has horse sense—but he's sure she does have clothes sense.

The chances are he's got her wrong on both counts. She probably could beat both Swaps and Nashua on a quiz program, but when it comes to dressing—well, after all, all racetracks do insist on wearing shoes that fit them. Many women absolutely won't.

Charles Le Maire, famous Hollywood fashion authority, says the four most common clothing faults among both housewives and career girls are these:

"They don't know how to wear furs. They don't know how to put on or take off gloves. They don't know how to handle veils. They won't pick the right size or kind of shoes."

Le Maire, wardrobe head of the 20th Century-Fox film studios, speaks from experience. He has designed the costumes for Broadway shows as well as the outfits worn by such glamorous stars as Susan Hayward, Jennifer Jones, Jane Russell and Marilyn Monroe.

He says that experienced actresses don't make these obvious clothing errors but that "if it's any consolation to the housewife, young starlets often do. They have to be taught."

What's wrong with the way American women wear furs? "Very few know how to handle a fur gracefully," said Le Maire. "They hold it awkwardly in their hand like a football halfback looking for someone they can throw a downhill pass to."

"They don't know how to drape it gracefully around their shoulders or drape it over their arm. It's the draping that creates the effect."

"They hang it around their neck like Daniel Boone fighting his way out of the forest. And many a woman thinks the more fur she wears the better she looks. Actually, they only make her look like a fur trapper's bride."

"A small stole is graceful. A large stole is hard to handle. A woman would be better off with a fur coat."

Now about the gloves? "Too many women take off their gloves by tugging separately at each finger, as if they were plucking a goose. The removal of gloves shouldn't be a public struggle. The gloves should fit loosely enough so that they can be pushed on or off easily, not pulled off. Very, very few women have learned this art."

And the veil? Well, a woman with a veil can be downright pitiful.

"The most common mistake is they wear them too long," said Le Maire. "The big problem then is how a woman can eat, smoke or put on lipstick."

"She has to keep raising and lowering her veil as if it were the visor in a suit of armor. She should wear the veil short enough so that she can get at her face without all this trouble."

On the problem of shoes, Le Maire observed:

"Women want their feet to look small. But they go about this in the wrong way. They do it by buying shoes too small for them instead of picking shoes the right size which are designed to look smaller."

"They also do foolish things such as wearing dancing shoes for walking. I love open-toed, thin-strapped footwear in the evening, but not with a tailored suit. I like a lot of the feet to show in the evening, but almost all the feet covered in the daytime."

Le Maire gave this final tip:

"When it comes to dressing well, many wives don't know how to handle their husbands."

"The man of the house should have certain responsibilities about his wife's wardrobe. He should teach him not to bring her home expensive surprises of either clothing or jewelry unless he is sure they are exactly the kind she wants."

"And her husband should be a partner in any expensive clothing ventures she makes herself. Husbands say they don't like to help pick out their wife's clothing, but that's only talk. They do like to."

Red Party Puts New Twist To Fight

WASHINGTON (U.S.)—The American Communist party has put a new twist into its five-year fight for life.

It gave a number of reasons for asking the Supreme Court yesterday to save it from having to admit it is a Russian agent. This one stood out:

Things are different now, after the Geneva conference.

This may be less than persuasive with the nine justices who are supposed to base their decisions on law and not on international moods, real or imagined.

But other parts of the party's plea — its constitutional reasons — may be persuasive. It is not certain the court will uphold the government in this case. This is the case:

In September 1950, Congress passed the Internal Security Act, whose purpose was to crush the Communist party in this country. The act didn't say anything about killing the party outright or forbidding its existence.

What the law said in effect was that if the party could be proved a tool of Moscow, a part of an international Communist conspiracy, it should have to admit being a tool by registering as such with the government.

Theoretically, that would let the party continue to exist. The effect, though, would be to kill it, at least under the Communist party name. No one doubts it would go on, even though badly crippled, underground.

Under the 1950 law the Subversive Activities Control Board was created to rule on complaints that organizations are subversive. It gave the Communist party a hearing to determine whether it was a Russian agent, and ruled that it was.

That meant the party had to register unless the U.S. courts ruled otherwise by declaring the law unconstitutional. The party appealed to the Federal Court of Appeals. It lost there.

Then it made its final appeal — to the Supreme Court. Yesterday through its lawyers the party filed its written arguments with the court whose justices are still on vacation. They'll get copies of the appeal by mail.

When they return this fall the justices will hear the party and government lawyers in oral arguments in open court. The justices will probably hand down their decision sometime in 1955.

The party argues the 1950 law was "spawped" at a time of intense public feeling against Communists—the Korean War started in June 1950—and violated the Constitution's Bill of Rights and civil liberties in general.

The party argued further: If the court upholds the constitutionality of the law and the SACB's registration decision, it would be doing so at a time when the mood of Korea has given way to the mood of Geneva.

Then the petition to the court said:

"The President has stated, on the basis of his experience at Geneva, that Soviet leaders are as sincere as he in their desire for peace. . . . This perspective of the peaceful coexistence of the two systems is incompatible with the premise of the act."

The petition was referring to that part of the law which said American Communists, working for Moscow, are awaiting a chance to overthrow this government.

How To Tell Which Eye Is Doing All The Work

By HIRSHAN H. BUNNEN, M.D.

MANY of you at one time or another probably have jokingly called on one of your friends to "use your good eyes."

This might have been occasioned by his missing the target in a shooting gallery, at an archery range or at some other sport.

Actually, he probably wasn't using his "good" eye.

Dominant Eye

Most of us have a dominant eye, which sights or fixes on an object seen in binocular vision. Your dominant eye does the main job in sighting for photography, shooting, archery and other instances where you have to line up an object.

Like to find out which is your dominant eye?

It's easy. Just cut a hole one inch in diameter in the center of a sheet of paper six inches square.

Use a Pebble

Take the paper in your right hand and hold it about 14 inches in front of your nose. Now take a pebble between the thumb and forefinger of your left hand and hold it about a foot beyond the paper.

Using both eyes, look through the hole at the pebble. Without moving the paper, close your left eye.

If you can see the pebble, you are right-eyed.

Close Right Eye

If you can't see it, close your right eye and you'll find it is your left eye that fixes the pebble.

You can't see the pebble through the hole with both eyes at the same time.

These little home tests, suggested by the Better Vision Institute will, I think, help you understand a little more about your vision.

COMMON AND ANNOYING

Mrs. G. W. I have white patches on my arms and neck. What causes this and is there any treatment for this condition?

Answer: The exact cause for leucoderma or vitiligo is not known, but too much exposure to the sunlight may be partly responsible. Heredity is thought to be a factor by some investigators.

There is not a great deal that can be done for this condition. Certain drugs have been given internally, such as extracts of the thyroid and suprarenal glands. Applying vitamin juice to the white patches is a good method of disguising them. Use of the pigment around the white patches may be masked out with a bleaching solution.

You should consult your doctor concerning treatment.

TOMMY CROY, in "Our Will Rogers," tells how Betty Blake, J. A. later Mrs. Rogers, introduced the town of Rogers, Arkansas, to commerce served in coffee cups. Her neighbors were stumped. They sat staring at their cups. Then Betty made an important decision.

She put some cream and sugar in her conoma and stirred it. Her guests followed suit. Then the cook came in from the kitchen and asked, "Well, folks, how's the soup?"

There was a moment of agonized silence, then everybody burst into laughter.

Couple of Maine folk were being shown the wonders of New York's Museum of Natural History. "These stuffed birds," announced the guide, "are valued at fifty thousand dollars."

"Fifty thousand?" gasped the man from Maine. "What are they stuffed with?"

highest percentage of failures, 17.2, was among firms that had started up the previous year. And 57 per cent of the total of failures were of firms that had been in business five years or less.

Human babies seem to be playing a role in this unfortunate phase of business, too. The chance to cash in on the recent bumper baby crops proved too great a temptation, apparently, for many would-be merchants. Among retailers, the highest 1954 failure rate was 166 per 10,000 for infants' and children's wear stores.

Appliance, radio and television stores went under at a rate of 106, for second place. Sporting goods ran third with 104. Lowest retail rate was eight per 10,000 for peck-aged liquor stores. Food outlets were second lowest at 19.

Makers of furniture had the highest rate among manufacturers with 184; electrical machinery second with 165; leather and shoes third with 161. Lumber was the lowest in this category with only 19 per 10,000; and printing and publishing next with 24.

As Dun & Bradstreet likes to put it, if 62 out of every 10,000 concerns in business in the United States in 1954 failed, there were 2,922 that kept right on going.

A bedtime bath can do wonders in releasing tension and relaxing tired muscles. As you sit and soak, you can literally feel cramped muscles in your legs begin to straighten out. Lie back in the tub so that your arms and shoulders and back all get the soothing benefit of those warm suds. Even if you feel fit as a fiddle after a day in the open, you'll still get a sounder night's sleep after a tub bath. It lets you start the next day feeling your best.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN
THE OTHERS . . . A haunting phrase, vaguely menacing. Not police or emissaries from Mogur, since the Indian would have known about stunts. Not ordinary jewel thieves or receivers, since the ruby was available. What then? Had these others been waiting for Gerry when he walked away with a box in his pocket, believing he had the ruby?
 "Are you sure the ruby is available?"
 "No jeweler or fence would dare to handle such a famous stone intact and it can't be cut in half without destroying its value. Monster rubies are rarer than monster diamonds. There is only one Fire of India. I know why Mogur wants it back. I can see how the American government might want it as evidence against Mogur, if they are beginning to believe he stole it. He has turned embassier. But why should anyone else want a stone that cannot be sold or displayed?"
 "A riddle in the shadows . . ." repeated Sara, under her breath. "A sense of being watched . . . a footstep behind me in a quiet street—like a limp, only faster?"
 His eyes, liquid brown and white in the dark face, moved with a sudden glitter. "Yes." He spoke softly. "Have you heard it since you acquired the ruby?"
 She nodded. "Walking home from the Automat this evening, but I didn't see anyone who looked like—" Mogur heard it, too—according to Mrs. Mogur. But he never saw anyone who looked like—"The brilliant eyes glared with introspection. "A god of death and destruction and—who knows what field of force generated by ancient belief, now ever mistaken? I'm a god of the creation of his worshippers? Somehow, I was hardly surprised when Mogur died."
 He is trying to frighten me, thought Sara. It's the usual uneasy blend of Western materialism and Eastern mysticism, as fashionable now as it was in the decadence, and as absurd. He could have murdered Mogur himself without any feeling of guilt. . . .
 "Why were you following Mogur this afternoon?"
 "The evening before, I met near him in a small bar on Greenwich Village. Another man was there. Mogur didn't know me, so I sat near them. They talked in low voices, but I heard enough. Mogur was arranging to meet the man again today, at Fifth avenue and 30th, at 8:30. From what Man-on said it was obvious he was going to deliver the ruby. There was talk of money. But Mogur didn't stop at 30th street. He turned into the 10-cent store. Was it because he realized that I was following him? I doubt it. He didn't know me by sight. I think he discovered someone else following him—someone he did know. . . . And here my story ends." He smiled. "As we say, the Nanyah-thorn withers. . . ."

 Beyond the window, the sky grew paler, morning noises came up from the street. A milk wagon. A solitary car. . . .
 Her eyelids drooped. She fought to keep them open. . . . She opened her eyes with a start. How long had she been dozing? The sun was shining brightly through the window blinds. She must have really slept. She hadn't seen the sun rise. Her mind felt dull and heavy as if she had slept more deeply than usual.
 She eyed a sherry glass, empty and sticky, on the table beside her. What had she done here? A street noise? Or the Indian? Where was he? The room was empty.
 She sat tense, listening, sure that some sound had awakened her. But now there was only the steady sur-mutter of traffic coming up from the street and she was used to that. Within it was so still she could hear her own breathing.
 She called out, "Are you in the next room?"
 No answer. There was a dead silence in the silence that told her he was gone, but when she took the sherry glass into the kitchen to rinse it, she glanced into the bedroom and bathroom to make sure. All empty, all as tidy as she had left them.
 She looked at her watch. Almost 10 o'clock. She had slept much longer than she had realized at first.
 She came back to the living room with a glass of water and drank it slowly. Her mouth was dry, her head ached. Yet she had only one glass of sherry. Looking about the sunlit room it was hard to believe the Indian had ever been there. Her memory of him was blurred and shadowy like the memory of a dream. She caught her breath. Had the Indian been there at all? Or was the whole thing a long, vivid dream?
 She could have fallen asleep in her chair over a glass of sherry, while her subconscious mind conjured and elaborated all the chance incidents of the day—a big ruby, Mogur's death, an Oriental with a cat lassoed on his wrist—weaving them into a pattern as birds weave stray threads of silk or cotton into the fabric of a nest.

 She heard a heavy footstep, the dragging of a chair. Some sharp, isolated sound like that must have awakened her in the first place, for she was still sleepy. It took her another moment to realize the noise came from overhead. There was someone in Gerry's apartment.
 She ran to the telephone. Her hand was on it as it rang.
 "Miss Deere? Capt. Sanders. I'm in Mr. Home's apartment. Will you please come up at once?"
 When she went up, the door of Gerry's apartment stood open. Capt. Sanders was waiting. Beyond him she saw a young policeman in uniform and another older man who stood at the sunlit window, his back to the open door. Her glance took in a head of brown hair, broad shoulders, and long legs in herringbone tweed. He turned as he heard her step.
 Sara looked up at brown eyes under thick brows set in a rugged, deeply lined face. "Gerry! What happened? Why did you walk off and leave me in the Automat last night without a word? I waited and waited. I was afraid something dreadful had happened."
 He frowned. "What do you mean, Sara? I don't know what you're talking about."
 At the sound of his voice she felt back a step. No one spoke as they gazed into each other's eyes. Sara, not Deere, now. He was annoyed and he showed it as he moved forward and the sun fell on his face. Her eyes took in every detail.
 Capt. Sanders was annoyed, too. "Miss Deere, just what did you mean by all this nonsense about Mr. Home's disappearance? He came back here this morning. He never disappeared at all."
 At last Sara spoke. "I wouldn't have believed it!"
 "The resemblance. It's amazing, almost like twins."
 "What are you talking about?" rasped Sanders.
 Only a moment ago Sara had felt sleepy. Now she had never been more wide awake in her life. Her anger was like a draught of black coffee laced with brandy. The pick-up was sudden and complete. She could almost feel adrenaline pouring into her bloodstream.

New York Attorney For Another Term Loses Out On Bid

MINNEAPOLIS — The air New Yorkers breathe is contaminated each year with more than 1 1/2 million tons of odorous sulfur dioxide gas, enough to form 2,300,000 tons of sulphuric acid.
 Most of it comes from burning coal and fuel oil, they said, but other villains are auto exhausts, outdoor trash fires, smoky incinerators and "polluted air blowing in from the state of New Jersey."
 This report was made to the American Chemical Society by Dr. Morris B. Jacobs, laboratory director, New York Department of Air Pollution Control, and Dr. Leonard Greenburg, New York's commissioner of air pollution control.
 Sulfur dioxide gas is blamed for causing irritation to eyes, throats and lungs and damage to growing plants. The airborne acids are charged with causing peeling of paint, corrosion of metal roofs and of air-conditioning equipment.
 Dr. Greenburg said his department expects cooperation from all major users of fuel in the New York area and, if necessary, to induce them to make a gradual conversion to using natural gas or a higher grade of fuel oil containing less sulfur.

Promising Weapon Offers New Hope In Cancer Battle

PHILADELPHIA — Radioactive phosphorus offers a promising new weapon in the fight against potentially curable cancer, the International College of Surgeons were told Wednesday.
 Dr. Komei Nakayama of Chiba University, Japan, told of using the radioactive material together with a special tracer counter inserted into the throat and stomach.
 He said radioactive phosphorus injections give off atomic "signals" which are picked up by the counter.
 Early cancers of the alimentary tract have thus been diagnosed in time for effective treatment.
 Radioactive material concentrates more heavily in malignant tissue than in normal tissue, yielding more "signals" from a cancer area than from a noncancerous one, he said.
 He said his method has shown value in differentiating between malignant and "benign" growths—and in certain instances offers advantages in diagnosis over conventional methods such as X-ray.
 Conventional methods of diagnosing alimentary tract cancer, he said, are based on studying the form of the growth under suspicion whereas the radioactive method is based on the biochemical activities of the growth.
 He said diagnosis with his method was 100 per cent accurate in 33 cases of malignancy in the esophagus or of the "cardia," the upper part of the stomach. There was a perfect batting average on 17 cases with "benign" lesions in these same areas.
 In 54 cases of cancer of other parts of the stomach, 98 per cent were diagnosed correctly prior to operation and in cases of benign lesions were all correctly diagnosed.

Enlistments Open For 3 Or 4 Years In U. S. Marines

Immediate enlistments are now open in the United States Marine Corps.
 According to Technical Sgt. George, local Marine recruiter, there is no delay or long period of waiting for men desiring to enlist in the Corps. Qualified applicants are now being accepted at the Marine Corps recruiting station located at the Sanford Post Office Building.
 "If you're ready to go on active duty and want to leave right away, you can be enlisted immediately and sent to recruit training at Parris Island, S. C. Although some applicants previously experienced delay in being accepted," the recruiter pointed out, "there is no longer any waiting period. Volunteer now and you're on your way to becoming a Marine," he said.
 Currently, sign are being accepted for three and four years with liberal bonuses paid upon enlistment. Retirement benefits have also increased under the new pay raise enacted by Congress.

 Florida is the next door neighbor, so to speak, in the promotion of our "Good Neighbor" policy. South America, Central America and the Caribbean area hold limitless possibilities for the development of goodwill and profitable business relations.
 It is fitting that we extend the hand of welcome and do everything we can to make our neighbors feel at home when they visit us, and provide adequate sample rooms where Latin American buyers may acquaint themselves with American products and place orders for the tremendous volume of goods and materials they need.
 The money we invest in the establishment of an Inter-American Center should prove tremendously worthwhile and it is gratifying to note that a real effort in that direction is being made.
 Former Governor Fuller Warren has been named chairman of Miami's "Inter-Am" committee. His energy and enthusiasm behind the effort should bring the ambitious program to a successful conclusion.
 While many Latins speak English, millions of others with whom we hope to do business speak only Spanish or Portuguese. If we are to make the most of our opportunity it is imperative that we become familiar not only with the languages of our neighbors but with their history and habits as well.
 In Miami, Tampa, Pensacola, Key West and many other cities people are finding that their chance of obtaining employment is very much enhanced if they can speak Spanish. Organizations like Pan American Airways, Eastern and National Airlines, hotels, restaurants, clubs, brokerage houses and distributors all need Spanish speaking employees.
 Realizing the need for teaching Spanish by a simplified method, three Tampans got their heads together and came up with a book on the subject entitled "How Do You Say It In Spanish"; a complete course in one volume that enables the student to learn Spanish without the troublesome problem of mastering Spanish grammar.
 It points out that in Spanish the vowels are always pronounced the same; they never change as they do in English. Take the letter "A" for example. In Eng-

Radioactive Clouds Can Be Watched With Sky Scanner

MINNEAPOLIS — A new kind of telescope can tell you the size, shape and potency of some radioactive clouds, an Atomic Energy Commission scientist said Wednesday.
 Named the Sky Scanner, it sweeps the sky and pulses every time an X-ray from the cloud strikes its eye. The resultant pulses are used to draw a pattern of the cloud, and its direction.
 The scanner was described to the American Chemical Society by Dr. G. Victor Beard, director, Health and Safety Division, Idaho Operations Office, AEC.
 The scanners, used in groups of two or more, are proving extremely useful in helping track movements of invisible clouds of radioactive rare gases coming from the stack of an atomic reactor at the national reactor test site in Idaho, he said.
 They can be used to calculate how fast the cloud is being diluted as it is carried away by wind. A safe rate of dilution can be checked. As more and more atomic power plants arise in the atomic age, this checking could help keep radiation at harmless levels.
 The scanners wouldn't be much if any help in tracking radioactive clouds from atomic bomb tests. After a bomb cloud has traveled a very short distance, its radioactivity is so diluted that it would be below the level the scanner could detect.
 The eye of the scanner is a small sodium iodide crystal mounted in a tube of lead an inch thick and a foot long. The tube can be moved automatically to make full sweeps of the sky.
 The pulses created when X-rays hit the crystal eye are amplified and recorded to draw a kind of chart indicating size, shape, X-ray intensity and direction of the cloud.

Education Week Is Designated By Ike

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower today designated Nov. 6-12 as American Education Week and called on the nation to observe the period as a "pledge of citizen interest in better education."
 "Our people have a right to take special pride in our nation's education system, and an obligation to demonstrate a desire and capacity to meet the major problems facing American education," he said.
 The National Education Assn. is sponsoring the week along with the American Legion, the U.S. Office of Education and the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

ple of Seminole County, the County Commissioners or the State Road Department, wish to have someone donate their life blood. If they're badly hurt, they should be compensated. But if they have sufficient depth in their lots, outside of municipalities, they should give the strip alongside the highway if the strip next to it is just as good.
 "I am told that the Seminole County Commissioners will arrange for the moving of such houses as are moveable and the replacement of equal facilities. And I believe that the people along this highway wish to keep it and are willing to work for its four-laning on a safe and sound basis as can be reasonably expected without hurting its citizens."

Casselberry, realizing the many-fold benefits of a new four-laned, widened, and paved thoroughfare from Sanford to Orlando over the present route of 17-92, is one of the leaders in the Citizens Committee, assisting Bralley Odham, the committee's chairman, in securing the donations of unimproved property along the highway on a "civic pride" basis for the right-of-ways.

 facilitating the state's ability to remove habitual accident causers from the road.

Remember these points: Enforcement begins automatically Oct. 1, 1955. This law is much more stern than the one it replaces, so don't make the mistake of confusing the two.

Whom Does It Affect?: It affects all motor vehicle owners and operators, including non-residents, (except motor vehicles owned by the United States Government, the State of Florida, or any political subdivision of or municipality in this state), when they become involved in an accident resulting in the death or injury of a person or property damage totaling $50 or more, regardless of fault.

What Must You Do After An Accident?: Immediately after an accident in which a person is killed or injured, the driver of every vehicle involved must notify the local police if it occurred in a municipality; otherwise, the county sheriff or nearest state highway patrol station.

In addition, if a person is killed or injured or property damage totals $50 or more, the driver of every car involved must send a written report to the Department of Public Safety, in Tallahassee, within 24 hours.

Remember these points: Accident reports must be made regardless of fault. Official forms must be used and may be obtained from police departments, sheriffs' offices and highway patrol stations.

Can You Lose Your Motoring Privileges?: Yes, both your driver's license and registration plates may be suspended under the Financial Responsibility Law. Within 30 days after receiving a copy of your accident report from the Department of Public Safety, the State Treasurer and Insurance Commissioner must suspend both unless he has received satisfactory evidence that you have—Obtained a release from liability signed by all persons involved in the accident; or

 Been finally adjudicated not liable by a competent court; or Surety company covering all claims, not exceeding $25,000; or Deposited with the commissioner sufficient security to cover all claims, not exceeding $25,000; or
 Had your insurance company file evidence that you were properly insured at the time of the accident.

What Is The Proper Kind of Insurance?: The law specifically provides that the suspension requirement shall not apply to the operator or owner of a motor vehicle under any of the following conditions:

To the operator or owner if such owner had in force at the time of the accident an automobile liability policy or bond covering the motor vehicle involved.

To the operator, if not the owner, if there was in effect at the time of the accident an automobile liability policy or bond covering his operation of motor vehicles not owned by him.

To the operator or owner whose liability for damages resulting from the accident is, in the judgment of the commissioner, covered by any other form of liability insurance or bond.

Insurance carried by resident owners and operators must be issued by an insurance company authorized to do business in Florida and must provide the following minimum coverage:

 $10,000 for injury of one person,
 $20,000 for injury of more than one person in any one accident,
 $5,000 for property damage.

Insurance carried by non-residents will be accepted if it is written by an insurance company authorized to do business in their state. Persons who have obtained a certificate of self-insurance from the commissioner also are exempt from the suspension requirements of this law.

Are There Any Other Exemptions?: Yes, if you furnish proof that your car was legally parked at the time of the accident, or that the accident caused neither injuries nor property damage to any person except the operator or owner of the motor vehicle involved, your motoring privileges will not be suspended under this law.

What Is "Future Proof"?: This law provides, as previously explained, a number of ways in which owners or operators of motor vehicles that are involved in accidents can furnish proof of their ability to meet damage claims. If, however, you are involved in an accident and are not insured at the time, you must furnish proof of future financial responsibility. The amount of such proof is $25,000, it must be kept in force for three years, and it is mandatory regardless of whether or not you have satisfied damage claims arising out of the accident.

Spectacular Fire Sends Out Flames Destroying Pier

JERSEY CITY, N.J. — A spectacular fire that sent up torrents of thick smoke wrecked a huge pier last night and caused damage estimated at more than a million dollars.

Only the shell of the 650-foot pier was left standing today as the blaze of undetermined origin—burned itself out.

A fleet of fireboats from throughout the New York harbor battled the stubborn flames that raged out of control for at least seven hours.

Fifteen firemen were affected by the smoke or suffered other injuries, but they did not require hospitalization.

When the blaze broke out at 3:22 p.m. yesterday, two ships and seven barges scurried away from the vicinity of the pier at the foot of Grand Street.

Accident Appears More Complicated, Prosecutor States

EATON, Ohio — What had appeared to be only an automobile accident in which a man and his wife burned to death apparently had turned today into a mystery that "looks like murder."

Everett Fahnenholz, Probable County prosecutor, said Harold C. Bowman, 49, of near West Alexandria did not burn to death in his wrecked automobile early on the morning of Sept. 4 but died of a shotgun wound behind his left eye.

The exact cause of the death of Bowman's wife Maybelle, 47, has

A. J. Thomas Jr. 1956 President American Legion

A. J. (Arch) Thomas Jr., young attorney of Starke, was elected Department Commander of the American Legion at its 37th annual convention in Sarasota. He will serve the Florida organization until June, 1956.

Thomas has been active in his home Post No. 56 at Starke. He has served as post adjutant, post commander, and county service officer. Other American Legion offices include District Commander, Department Membership Chairman, Vice Commander and Judge Advocate.

"Arch" is a member of 40 of 8 society which is affiliated with the American Legion organization. In the Vulture 1388, he has served as chef de train, chef de gare, and Grand Avocat of Florida.

not yet been determined definitely but Dr. Robert Sleh, Probable County coroner, said, "There is a possibility of strangulation."

Sheriff Floyd Spiller, who conferred last night with the prosecutor and the coroner on the autopsy report, said "it looks like murder but we are continuing our investigation before we reach a decision. If it is murder, there can be only one suspect."

LIMITED EXPERIENCE GAINESVILLE. — Captain Steve DeLaTorre played only one year of high school football before entering the University of Florida and assuming the job of center and linebacker.

Since graduating from the University of Florida Law School in 1948, Thomas has been equally active with civic and community organizations including the First Baptist Church of Starke, the Rotary Club, the Elks, the Masonic Lodge and Shrine, and currently in serving as president of the Bradford County Young Democratic Club which he helped to organize a few years ago.

"Arch" is the son of A. J. Thomas Sr., realtor, who was prominent in county and state politics for many years. His wife, Jean, is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. J. M. Snodgrass of Scottsboro, Ala. They have two sons, A. J. III and John Milton. Both boys are under school age.

Ernest Byron Pugh, 74, had been a resident of DeBary, for the past month when he came from Richmond, Va. and Huntington, W. Va. He was a member of the St. Giles Presbyterian Church of Richmond.

He was born Dec. 21, 1860, in Norfolk, Va., and was educated at Norfolk Public Schools, Norfolk Academy, Scranton Correspondence School, and LaSalle University.

The former labor leader held a degree in Mechanical Engineering and served his apprenticeship as a machinist and tool maker from 1896 to 1902 at the Elva Iron Works of Norfolk, Va.

Chamber Groups To Meet

The Seminole County Chamber of Commerce will begin its planning for the fiscal year 1935-36 with committee meetings beginning Monday morning. President-elect George Touhy has set the slogan for the meetings as "Planning Galore at Ten, Two and Four."

The slogan carries with it the schedule, as three meetings will be held each day, one at ten, one at two and another at four o'clock.

A program will be set for the coming year as each committee sets its goal. Plans are expected to be a challenge to all outlines in the past and to those to be set in the future.

"In order to adopt a budget and to formulate plans for a membership drive," said Touhy, "the overall picture of the committee plans for next year must be completed and integrated."

Bob Hammond, of the Hammond Advertising Agency, who represents the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce in its advertising program, will be on hand beginning Monday to work with and advise the committees setting their plans.

Committee meeting Monday will be the Commercial Activities Committee, with B. L. Perkins Jr. as chairman, 10 a. m.; the Industrial Committee, headed by Don Dale as chairman, meeting at 2 p. m.; and the Publicity and Advertising Committee, headed by J. Marlon Hartman Sr., will hold its meeting at 4 o'clock Monday.

Other committee meetings are being set to meet each day next week until the more than 15 groups complete their program plans.

Commercial Zones Extension Delayed

Additional Meetings Awaited Request Is Heard From W. Bush Jr.

The extending of commercial zones, into other areas of the city, other than those now authorized by the Board of Sanford City Commissioners, has been deferred until additional meetings are held on the subject.

The Zoning and Planning Commission of the city met last night at the Sanford City Hall to consider a request from William Bush Jr. to zone an area on the northeast corner of Sanford and Geneva Ave.

The zoning and planning group discussed at length the zoning of the corner which is adjacent to two sections already zoned C1 Commercial. The entire block was not in consideration on the subject of the zoning request with each member presenting entirely different ideas.

No action was taken with the explanation from the Zoning and Planning board that they would like to hold two additional meetings before taking any definite action on the request.

The general consensus of opinion was that there was enough property at the present time around commercial in Sanford with the majority of the members feeling that they would like to see what develops along the French Ave. thoroughfare when the widening and paving of the street is completed.

Lots along the French Ave. area, following the obtaining of right-of-ways, are generally 100 feet deep. The depth of the lots will prevent, in many instances, the development of much of the property into commercial areas, according to a report this morning.

Lots offered for zoning by Bush and considered by the Zoning and Planning Commission at its last night's meeting are Lot 12 to 19, and 34 to 43, South Park, as described in Plat Book 3, Page 62, of the Records of Seminole County.

Freak Of Nature Shown In Orange

A Valencia orange was brought to The Sanford Herald office today, showing a distinct freak of nature.

M. Hanson, of Paola, said this morning, "This is the first time I've seen anything like it. I've seen all shapes and colors of oranges but nothing in equal this one."

The orange, about two-thirds mature, is green over half its surface and yellow over the other half. Two small lines of green, as if they were drawn there, appear in the yellow section of the orange.

Seeming to divide the orange in half, the two colors are very distinct and are divided by a predominant ridge.

Hanson, formerly of Hanson Shoe Shop in Sanford, left the orange at The Herald office for others to see if they wished.

Green, Pink These Being Carried Out On Bandshell Work

Richard Sodero, a partner in the new sight-seeing boat enterprise that will operate from the Sanford pier, conferred with City Manager Warren E. Knowles yesterday relative to the redecoration of the bandshell at the foot of Park Ave. and on the pier proper.

City Manager Knowles said that the bandshell is being completely redecorated in two colors, green and pink. The restrooms have been cleaned, repaired, and put in excellent condition for use by the passengers of the "Nautilus" which will operate from the pier beginning Jan. 10, 1936.

In addition to the repairing, Knowles said the new firm operating the boats will install neon lights over the building with a huge lighted sign "Nile of the Americas" extending out over the water and visible from the Lake Monroe bridge.

Colored neon lights, according to the plans by the promoters, will cover the building with floodlights playing on replaced palm trees and a redecorated pier. At least eight floodlights and spotlights will be used, said Knowles.

Smathers Frankly Tells Of Affairs Of 83rd Congress

Senator George Smathers yesterday franked Sanford citizens with his frank and open discussion about the affairs of the 83rd Congress and the growing influence of Florida in its standing among the Union of 48 states.

The Senator, glowing with his usual smile, discounted fatigue from his strenuous schedule of speaking engagements and his round of visits with his constituents to "feel the pulse," as he explained it, and to "determine if it was heating for him."

Apparently his only remark that could be used as a thermometer of his desire to declare himself a candidate again for the seat of U. S. Senator for Florida.

Prior to his address at the joint civic club meeting at the Holy Cross Episcopal Church parish house under the auspices of the Seminole County Junior Chamber of Commerce, Senator Smathers was whisked through town with Sheriff Luther Roby as escort. "It's just like being back home again," he said, as he saw the banner across Park Ave.

Smathers said, during his ride into town from the Sanford Naval Auxiliary Air Station, "I am intensely interested in the welfare of our friends to the south of us, the Latin American countries. With only one-tenth of one percent of the foreign aid money going to those countries that are the target of terrorism, I sponsored an amendment on the foreign aid appropriation this year to earmark money for those countries that so badly need our help. They do not want money and gifts. Senator Smathers said, "they want (Continued on Page 3)"

Residents Witness 40 & 8 Initiation

There was paper-cutting on First Street late yesterday afternoon as a double quartet of member-seeking applicants were put through their paces by the 40 & 8 fun-making organization of the American Legion.

Dressed in the garb of prisoners, the group was propelled by bluecoated members of the 40 & 8 through downtown streets selling old newspapers, tin cans, cheap pig and the like.

The proposed members of the organization were asking fabulous prices for their wares.

Seminole County Prosecuting Karl's Housholder was dressed in a set of old-fashioned prisoner stripes, while Representative Volie A. Williams Jr. and Mark N. Cleveland Jr., as well as others in the group, were dressed in the gray and green now used for the incarcerated. Sergeant R. W.
