Caribbean chamber

SANFORD — The Caribbean American Chamber of Commerce will hold its monthly Business After Hours gathering this evening beginning at 6:30 p.m. at the Orlando Sanford Airport conference room.

Special guest speaker will be Senator Philip Goddard, Minister of International Trade of Barbados, West Indies. The senator's subject will be "Barbados: An Emerging Gateway to International Business."

Admission is free and the gathering is open to the general public.

For additional information, contact Desmond Langton, at the Caribbean American Chamber of Commerce, (407) 880-6575.

Building official

LAKE MARY — Philip McMahan, inspections director and building official for the City of Lake Mary, has been re-elected chairman of the Standard Building Code General Design Committee of Southern Building Code Congress International, Inc.

The elections were held in Birmingham, Alabama late last month.

McMahan will chair the hearing on the code change proposals to the Standard Building Code with deal with general design issues.

Having joined the city of Lake Mary approximately one and a half years ago, McMahan was formerly employed in a similar capacity in Altamonte Springs. He has been a member of the committee since 1989.

Storytime at the library

SANFORD — A new storytime has been added at the North Branch of the Seminole County library, 150 N. Palmetto Ave. in Sanford.

Baby Storytime features nursery rhymes, songs, fingerplays and stories appropriate for youngsters from infants to 18 months old.

The program takes place every Wednesday beginning at 10 a.m.

For more information, call 322-2182.

Bikes wanted

The Seminole County Professional Fire-Fighters are gearing up for their annual bike drive and are asking the public for new or used bikes that are repairable. These bikes will be donated to area charities for delivery by Christmas.

The final day to make donations is Dec. 11. Repair days are scheduled for Dec. 13 and 14 at the Five Points Complex.

For additional information, phone 298-FIRE (298-3473).

HOPE forum

SANFORD — Sanford-Seminole HOPE's Family Support Services component will host a welfare to work informational forum for Sanford residents and surrounding areas effected by the new Welfare Reform Bill.

This forum, to be held Wed. Nov. 20 beginning at 10 a.m., will be at the West Sanford Boys & Girls Club on Perimmon Avenue.

Ann Brookby of the Project Independence and Treena Kay of Central Florida Legal Services will be on hand to answer questions.

There will also be information about the projected cuts in welfare benefits, and how long before they will go into effect. The bill will affect the average welfare recipient, teen-age mothers, and grandparents taking care of grandchildren.

The forum is free of charge and open to the general public.

For additional information contact Phyllis Richardson or Lillian Morris at 328-5202.

Deputies rescue boy from drowning

BY NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

OVIDO — Two off-duty Seminole County sheriff's deputies are being credited with saving a 13-year-old boy from drowning Monday afternoon near Oviedo.

According to sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough, the incident began shortly before 4 p.m. Monday as Deputy Steve McElvey spotted a boy who had run away from the Boys Town facility in Oviedo. The youth was seen in an area off SR 444 near the Seminole GreenWay.

As McElvey attempted to make contact with the boy, he reportedly attempted to escape by climbing a fence and leaping into a retention pond. The pond however, was larger and deeper than the boy apparently expected, and after drifting 60 yards off shore, he began to panic and began yelling that he was going to drown.

About the same time, off-duty deputies Terry Arndt and Chris Stronko, both in civilian clothing, were driving in a patrol vehicle on the GreenWay and spotted the teen in the pond, apparently having difficulty.

Cougar's knee implant surgery a success

By VICKI DeBORNIER

SANFORD — A Sanford resident has been the recipient of some cutting edge medical technology that is being pioneered at the University of Florida.

Tabatha, a 17-year-old cougar who lives at the Central Florida Zoological Park in Sanford, is the first exotic animal to have had knee implant surgery.

This is pretty common surgery for humans, and even some dogs have had this done, but this is the first time this has ever been done on an exotic animal.

Bonnie Brethel, assistant curator at the zoo said,

Tabatha is considered a very old cat (most large cats in captivity live between 17 and 21 years) and she was suffering some ligament damage that was caused by an old injury.

"She wasn't vocalizing any discomfort," Brethel said of the cougar, but she wasn't using the upper platforms in her enclosure and the joint seemed to be affected. It just didn't seem to be as easy for her to get around anymore.

Doctors at the University of Florida's School of Veterinary Medicine were beginning to ex-

Lake Mary man nabbed for lewd acts

From staff reports

Alfred Wagner, 59, of 1695 W. Lake Mary Boulevard, Lake Mary, was arrested Saturday by sheriff's deputies. The arrest stems from an incident that reportedly occurred Thursday, Oct. 14 at Red Bug Lake Park near Casselberry.

The Seminole County sheriff's office will recommend that State Attorney prosecute him as a violent career criminal.

According to sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough, last Thursday, Wagner approached three boys, one age 7, two age 8, and exposed himself. He also is said to have given them pornographic literature and said he would be back at the park on Saturday.

When Wagner returned to the park as promised, he was identified and placed under arrest.

In connection with this case, McDonough said Wagner has been accused of three counts of lewd and lascivious assault on a child under 18, a second degree felony.

The recommendation to try him as a violent career criminal was made after an examination of his criminal record Monday by sheriff's investigators. They reported Wagner was convicted in 1982 in Seminole County of lewd and

Schools celebrate American Education Week

By VICKI DeBORNIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County Public Schools are celebrating American Education Week in a variety of ways, but all want to be sure to honor those whose job it is to teach our children and those who volunteer their time to help mold the students into good citizens.

The theme of this year's program, which is being celebrated now through the end of the week, is "The Future Begins in Today's Schools."

Goldboro Elementary School in Sanford is taking time this week to honor all those who work with the students. From a breakfast and school tour for the business partners to a staff appreciation reception, the youngsters and the administration will be honoring those who help them. A reading celebration sponsored by the PTA will honor the educators who bring the work of the teachers full circle: the parents.

Greenwood Lakes Middle School in Lake Mary will be honoring everyone from the bus drivers who deliver and pick up the students to the non-instructional personnel who support the teachers every day. The teachers will be honored with a variety of cards and gifts as well.

At Hamilton Elementary in Sanford, the school will be opened to parents and business partners who want to see the exciting educational opportunities and extra-curricular activities being afforded the students at that school. Teachers and non-instructional personnel will be honored and the teacher of the year and the non-instructional person of the year will be named.

Sanford's Idyllwild Elementary School will also honor their employees who work so hard to educate the youngsters. They will be rewarded with special gifts and with a PTA-sponsored car wash. A special emphasis is being placed on the parents also with luncheons planned for the parents of the students at each grade level.

At Sanford Middle School, the student government representatives will learn about the business of educating the students by shadowing the administrators in their day-to-day activities. Students will be honored with candy bars.

Dems, GOP House members reach accord for smooth power switch

By GUYTON BAYL
Associate Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — With only hours to spare, House leaders struck a deal to avoid chaos at today's organizational session.

Democratic and Republican leaders finally agreed late Monday to choreograph the session so that Orlando Republican Daniel Webster and Pensacola Democrat Buss Ritchie would be the two candidates for speaker.

The deal ended speculation that Ritchie would throw his votes behind renegade Hialeah Republican Luis Rojas' bid to outmaneuver Webster and become Florida's first Cuban-American speaker.

Leaders didn't want to "blacken the eye of the institution," said Rep. Tom Feeney, R-Oviedo, a Webster adviser who helped craft the deal after two weeks of backroom intrigue and politicking.

With Democrats and Republicans not even agreeing on what rules would be in effect or who would preside over their session, a chaotic meeting loomed ever more likely. Ritchie and Webster hadn't even spoken since the Nov. 8 election as each sought to consolidate his votes.

They met for the first time Monday morning, for a 18-minute chat. Throughout the afternoon and evening, their lieutenants met to orchestrate the session. The final 9:45 p.m. meeting brought the agreement that Webster and Ritchie would be the two candidates for speaker.

Feeney said Rojas is free to nominate himself, but probably would only get two votes — his own, and that of fellow Dade Republican Alex Diaz de la Portilla.

"The hallmark of a successful democracy is a peaceful transition in a period like this," he said.

Rojas, who at one time claimed support of an 80 Democrat vote, said as several Republicans could not be reached Monday.

Party leaders also agreed on former GOP House and Senate member Curt Rinaldi, a St. Petersburg lawyer, as the chairman to preside over the 10 a.m. meeting.

Commission: privatize prisons

TALLAHASSEE — The Legislature should put more of Florida's prisons in the hands of private businesses to increase education and job-training programs for inmates, a citizens' group recommended.

In its annual report, the Florida Corrections Commission said the three privatized prisons in the state offer more and better educational, vocational and recreational opportunities than the five dozen state-run prisons, commission chairman Ed Dunn said Monday.

"We tend to be warehousing prisoners in our state system," Dunn said, adding that some of the policies adopted by the Legislature in recent years — limiting prisoners' access to television and weights, for example — seemed to have been motivated by a political desire to be tough on prisoners.

Privately run prisons, which typically pay guards less than their state counterparts, also are free from many of the restrictions applicable to state prisons, which are "micro-managed and hamstrung" by legislative rules, said Dunn, a former state senator.

In recent years, Florida has embarked on a prison-building program to increase the amount of time most prisoners spend behind bars. This year, the state will fund about 7,000 to 8,000 more prison beds, and the state should consider having private companies run them, the report said.

The report also said Florida should increase the number and kinds of prison industries, and invite private businesses to use prison labor in manufacturing. The money inmates earned could offset the costs of their upkeep, help pay any attorney and child support they might owe and contribute to inmates' savings accounts they could use after their release, Dunn said.

State joins action against Tampa home

TAMPA — The state agency that gives out Medicaid money has joined a private lawsuit against a nursing home, saying the home's care was so bad the state should get its money back.

It's the first time such action has been taken in Florida and possibly in the nation, said Jerome Hoffman of the state Agency for Health Care Administration.

"We're just not getting what we paid for," which is especially troubling in an age of dwindling government support, he told The Tampa Tribune for today's edition.

Attorney Jim Wilkes sued the company that owns Tampa's Manhattan Convalescent Center last year on behalf of William D. Oimstead III, a resident who choked to death on a sausage.

So many people had complained to Wilkes about Manhattan that in August he filed a motion to expand his case into a class-action suit.

He said the home was deficient throughout. And for at least five years, all 350 residents had suffered from bad food, dirty conditions and inadequate care, he said.

His suit demands Manhattan's parent company, Beverly Enterprises, pay the residents $25 million because it failed to provide the care it promised when they agreed to pay the roughly $3,500-a-month charges.

Now the state is saying it has a right to join the breach-of-contract suit to get back the Medicaid money it gave Manhattan on behalf of the residents. Medicaid helps pay the nursing home expenses of people whose incomes fall short.

"It's our dollars at stake," Hoffman said. "We've got a responsibility to get involved."

Said Wilkes: "It's about time."

Officials of Beverly, which owns 65 homes in Florida, said only that they believe the home provides good care, and they expect to fight the suit.

Helping tourists

ORLANDO — Two big health-care providers are going after Central Florida travelers with a series of walk-in clinics and offering services near theme parks and in the tourist districts.

Centra Care and Orlando Regional Healthcare System are cashing in by putting a new emphasis on treating ailing travelers in one of the nation's top tourist destinations.

"You have two corporate medical giants going head to head," said Susan Gentry, founder and president of East Coast Medical Network. "They want the business, and they're vying for their share of the market."

East Coast Medical Network sticks with hotel visits and making referrals to doctor, specialists and clinics. The network doesn't encourage walk-in business.

But Ms. Gentry said the recent proliferation of walk-in clinics could make a dent in her business.

Centra Care has set up six new facilities over the past 18 months near Walt Disney World, Universal Studios, Splendid China and Lake Buena Vista.

Orlando Regional Healthcare System is bolstering its business in the tourism quarter by acquiring Medi-Clinic and House Med, businesses that have treated tourists and offered doctors' visits to hotels since 1984.

ORHS plans to open a third facility early next year on International Drive, almost across the street from Centra Care.

Winds take a toll on Fla. beaches

By The Associated Press

Dade County beaches will be scrutinized by coastal engineers to assess the amount of erosion from a weekend of relentless high wind.

"We are going to be sending out engineers to Dade County, because they were the hardest hit," Jacquelyn Griffin, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in Jacksonville, said Monday.

She said the engineers would visit the beaches early this week and determine whether they will need to be renourished after the weekend Northeast then pounded the Atlantic coast the length of Florida.

Ms. Griffin said the Corps also was concerned about possible beach erosion in Broward County.

Most of the other reports of erosion, she said, including some of Cape Canaveral, were believed to be minor.

The uncalculated weekend damage renewed the debate of the economics of continually renourishing Florida's beaches, a temporary fix that has been around in the Sunshine State since 1930s.

For decades the Corps has directed, paid for or overseen hundreds of millions of dollars in renourishment projects.

About $450 million was spent in Florida between 1965 and 1984. In two decades, about $23 million in state, federal, county and city money has been spent in Palm Beach County alone, with Washington paying about half, the state about a third and local and county governments about 18 percent.

Earlier this year, when the White House suggested leaving the cost to local governments, a coalition of coastal lawmakers — such as Sen. Bob Graham, D-Fla., and U.S. Rep. E. Clay Shaw, R-Port Lauderdale — pushed through legislation that put the federal money back.

"Without the beach, we lose our lifeblood of tourism," Shaw said. "That's why people come to South Florida. It's much more than saving some rich person's front yard."

The industry says the ripple effect of tourism in Florida is about $15.4 billion.

The weekend weather was the worst in South Florida, where Florida A1A was closed in the Fort Lauderdale area because drifting sand covered part of the road.

There could be another hurricane

By The Associated Press

MIAMI — Hurricane forecasters expected a late-blooming depression to become Tropical Storm Marco today.

The Atlantic hurricane season, which began in June, ends Nov. 30. The depression formed Monday, said forecasters at the National Hurricane Center.

At 4 a.m. EST the system was near latitude 14.4 north and longitude 81.0, or about 370 miles southwest of Kingston, Jamaica. It wasn't moving much; forecasters thought it might drift northeast today.

The depression, 13th of this season, had top winds of about 35 mph; winds of 50 mph would make it a tropical storm.

POLICE NEWS

Revenge sought

James Wilbur Knight, 54, of 9457 Poinsettia Avenue, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police Sunday. Knight reportedly started as the victim of a robbery, but ended up in jail. According to the incident report, Knight was seated in his Jeep in the 1300 block of Hickory Avenue, when two men approached him. He said one reached in and took his wallet and to contain $300 in cash. The two men then reportedly fled on foot from the area.

Later Saturday, Sanford police said Knight confronted a man he believed was one of the persons involved in the robbery, in a parking lot in the 700 block of Elm Avenue. Police said Knight, armed with a revolver, attempted to approach the man, who managed to run to a vehicle and leave.

Police subsequently located Knight in his Jeep, and conducted a traffic stop at 10th Street and Cypress Avenue, where he was placed under arrest on a charge of aggravated assault with a firearm.

Robbery

Virgil W. Jenkins, 37, 1913 W. 15th Street, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police Saturday. According to his victim and a witness, Jenkins was seen in a parking lot in the 2700 block of Orlando Drive, knocking a woman to the ground and stealing her purse before fleeing on a bike. Another witness reportedly saw the incident and gave chase. After police arrived, Jenkins was apprehended, and reportedly identified by the two persons. He was charged with robbery.

Traffic stops

Laurie Susan Brown, 36, of 104 Kaywood Drive, west of Sanford, was stopped by sheriff's deputies Saturday at Orange Avenue and North Street. She was charged with operating a motor vehicle with a cancelled/suspended/revoked driver's license.

Lafayette Henry, 41, 3351 Water Street, was stopped by Sanford police Saturday at 25th Street and Myrtle Avenue. He was charged with driving with a suspended license. Officers also found he was wanted on a warrant for failing to appear on another charge of driving with a suspended license.

Howard R. Robinson, 33, 1508 Roosevelt Avenue, was stopped by Sanford police Saturday in the 3400 block of S. French Avenue. He was charged with driving with a suspended license, obstruction by a disguised person and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Cassandra Buckner, 39, 111 Academy Avenue was arrested by Sanford police Saturday following a traffic accident at Ninth Street and Palmotte Avenue. She was charged with driving under the influence.

Shannon M. Pedersen, 22, of Satellite Beach was stopped by Lake Mary police Friday on Lake Mary Boulevard. Pedersen was charged with driving under the influence, and driving with a suspended license.

John Eastman, 32, of 1200 W. 22nd Street was stopped on U.S. Highway 17-92 near 22nd Street by sheriff's deputies Friday. He was charged with driving under the influence.

James A. Albritton, 39, of Cassiberry, was stopped on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Longwood by sheriff's deputies Friday. He was charged with operating a motor vehicle with a cancelled/suspended/revoked driver license.

Felice B. Sharp, 38, of Altamonte Springs was reportedly found in his vehicle by Sanford police Saturday in the 900 block of W. 18th Street. Officers said he was sleeping with the motor running. He was charged with driving with a suspended license.

Michael D. Elder, 22, of 38 William Clark Court, Sanford, was stopped by sheriff's deputies Saturday on U.S. Highway 17-92 and Dunbar Blvd. He was charged with having an illegal license plate and driving with a suspended/revoked license.

Sanford police reports

An 84-year-old woman told police she was accosted by a man Friday in the 700 block of E. First Street in Sanford. She said the man grabbed her purse and knocked her to the ground before fleeing on a bike.

A woman's purse with over $125 in contents was reported stolen Friday from an apartment in the 1500 block of W. 25th Street in Sanford.

A 9mm handgun was reported stolen Saturday from a vehicle parked in the 700 block of Santa Barbara Drive.

A $600 TV set was reported stolen Saturday from a residence in the 200 block of E. 21st Street.

Fishing tackle and other items with a reported value of $360 were said to have been stolen Saturday from an apartment in the 2000 block of Sanford Avenue.

An estimated $940 in cash was reported stolen Sunday from a business in the 2800 block of S. Orlando Drive.

A $900 riding lawn mower was reported stolen Saturday from a residence in the 3000 block of Meltonville Avenue in Sanford.

A man using a pay phone at a business in the 1300 block of W. 25th Street Saturday said he was approached by five men who hit him in the head with a beer bottle, and took his wallet with $100 in cash. He said three of the men fled on foot while two others took his 1981 Dodge. The vehicle was later found abandoned in the 2300 block of E. Mitch Street.

A man reportedly entered a convenience store Saturday in the 200 block of S. Park Avenue in Sanford, jumped over the counter and armed with an automatic handgun, demanded money. Police said he took $2,230 in cash plus food stamps and checks for a total value of $3,809.18.

Three pieces of jewelry with a reported value of $3,650 were reported stolen Friday from an apartment in the 1400 block of Rosehill Circle in Sanford.

Three tires and rims, valued at $900 were reported stolen early Monday from a 1984 Nissan pickup truck parked in the 1800 block of W. 15th Street in Sanford.

School board members to be sworn in tonight

By VICKI BOBBERSHAW
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — While she is not completely convinced the issue of Bob Goff's residency has been settled, Nancy Warren said she will relinquish her seat on the Seminole County school board quietly this evening.

The school board meeting this evening will change hands at the start of the 7 p.m. meeting with two new members being sworn in and the new board electing a new chairman and vice chairman to lead them for the next 12 months.

Goff, who beat Warren for the District 3 seat, and former county commissioner Larry Furlong, who will take over the District 4 seat from retiring board member Larry Stricker, will be sworn into office and immediately take their seats on the date for their first meeting.

A trio of Warren's supporters had sued Goff over the issue of his residency prior to the Sept. 3 election. The suit was rejected and Goff was victorious in the election.

Warren herself refilled the lawsuit after the election contending that since, she believed, Goff did not live within the district he was elected to represent at the time he qualified for the office, she was the only qualified candidate and should be allowed to retain the seat she had held for 16 years.

Because Goff had merely signed a lease for a room within the district, but had not filed any official change of address forms because he continued to maintain his previous residence as an office, Warren said he had not really changed his residence at the time he qualified for office.

Goff has since purchased a home in District 3.

Judge Alan Dickey ruled in Goff's favor, saying he had met all the residency criteria required by law.

Warren said she is not ruling out further appeals of the decision saying the issue of a candidate's residency at the time of qualification for office has not been settled to her satisfaction. She is no longer fighting to regain the seat she once held, she said.

"Let him have the head."

Earliest human?

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — A jaw bone found in Ethiopia is the most convincing and earliest dated fossil of the genus to which humans belong, extending the age of the human family line by about 400,000 years, The New York Times reported.

The discovery was announced Monday by an international team of scientists, the Times said in Tuesday editions. A detailed description and interpretation of the fossilized bone will appear in next month's issue of The Journal of Human Evolution.

Found in fossil sediments in the Hadar highlands of northern Ethiopia with a scattering of crude stone tools, the 2.33 million-year-old jaw links the very beginnings of the human family to evidence of toolmaking, the Times said, quoting researchers from the United States, Canada, Ethiopia and Israel.

Faulty heaters

When we talk about many of the problems affecting life in Sanford and Central Florida, it is normal to suggest neighbors must help neighbors. People must work together to prevent serious situations from becoming disastrous.

At this time of year, we begin to approach another problem which needs everyone's attention. If not taken care of, it could have fatal results.

Cold weather is coming. There is no stopping it. But with it will come more and more structure fires caused by ineffective heating equipment. There was already one this past weekend in Sanford, and the weather wasn't really that bad.

Most of the time, faulty heating equipment is created because many people simply can't afford to get it repaired or serviced. They think, "well, it's worked so far, let's give it another year." Then, boom, without warning, a house is destroyed, and possibly there are injuries or even deaths.

There may be a few cases where people are completely unaware of problems. They may have no knowledge of heating apparatus. This is usually the elderly, living alone in older homes, trying to make ends meet on a fixed income if there even is an income.

Others may live in rented homes or apartments. They may believe the landlord or owner is always looking out for faulty heating equipment, but this is not something on which people should bet their lives.

What we are suggesting here is that anyone who has even the slightest doubt about heating equipment, if they can afford it, call a serviceman. If they are not certain if equipment may be dangerous, call a friend or neighbor and have someone look it over and give an evaluation. It won't be a professional evaluation, but it might be all you need to know you could be heading for trouble.

If the heater is not in good condition, and you cannot afford to have it repaired or replaced, and if no one is able to give assistance, don't use it. Visit someone else in the family on extremely cold nights, or seek some other residence, but don't take a chance.

We have city aid for people who can't afford to pay water bills. Citizens voluntarily donate to the fund, and it has helped many people. There are also funds available for people with other problems.

But there is no assistance, at least as far as we know, for people who may have heater problems. It becomes a case of using it and taking a chance, or not using it and spending a frigid night cuddled in blankets or visiting relatives.

Faulty heating equipment is just as dangerous as leaving a loaded gun in plain view. It can kill just as easily, and without warning.

Every cold snap, the pages of the Sanford Herald tell of people who have lost their homes, their valuables, even their families and lives because of a faulty heating device.

Don't let this happen to you.

LETTER

Keep choices alive

The Veterans Day flurry of attention to war experiences seems an apt time to reflect on alternatives to military service.

I recently attended a conference involving some of the nearly 13,000 conscientious objectors who served in Civilian Public Service during World War II. There were others of us there who went to federal prison because of our religious and moral beliefs. In addition to members of the "historic peace churches," there were Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians, Catholics, Jews, etc.

The long history of resistance to war as a means of solving political problems continued up through the Vietnam and Gulf Wars. Amazingly, in 1973, during Vietnam, CO status was granted to more men than were drafted that year.

The search for conscientious means of defending freedom without violence has had its costs, too. I was dismissed from the student body of a Baptist university for my own stand for peace. An ironic action by a "freedom of individual conscience" denomination.

I do not wish to belittle the sacrifices of those who chose, or submitted to, the way of violence. I submitted myself, at one time. Through the influence of Christian ministers, I came to see a better way than military service.

Though history books tell us little about it, the choice of that way has been made by many down through the ages. It is important the choice be kept before our young people today.

Communism and the end of Hiss

The death of Alger Hiss at 92 last week was used by the media as an occasion to recall the now-distant battles over domestic communism that convulsed the nation in the late 1940s and early 1950s. Most people now living cannot personally remember those days, and to such people it must all seem rather irrelevant -- interesting perhaps, but without much, if any, contemporary significance.

To those of us who can personally remember "the Hiss case," however, Hiss's obituaries revealed a fascinating fact: To this day, many of America's liberals still cannot force through their clenched teeth an admission of his guilt.

When Whittaker Chambers named Alger Hiss as a Communist in 1948, liberals instinctively leaped to his defense. On one side was Chambers -- a pudgy, self-confessed former Soviet spy. On the other was Hiss -- slender and debonair, formerly the director of the Office of Special Political Affairs of the Department of State, now president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. Who could doubt that he was simply being defamed by this ugly accuser from the shadows?

But when Chambers produced long-hidden microfilms of classified State Department documents typed on Hiss's typewriter and given to Chambers for transmission to the Soviet Union, it was Hiss who spent nearly four years in a federal penitentiary for perjury. Some part of a lot of sentimental liberals went with him. To his dying day Hiss continued to protest his innocence.

Over the years, corroboration of Chambers' accusations came from many sources. Nathaniel Weyl testified that he saw both Alger Hiss and his brother Donald pay their dues as Communists when all three were in the Harold Ware cell in Washington. In Hungary, intelligence sources confirmed that Noel Field, a Foreign Service officer and secret Communist who fled behind the Iron Curtain, identified Hiss as a fellow Communist.

To this day, many of America's liberals still cannot force through their clenched teeth an admission of his guilt.

In 1978 Allen Weinstein, who had begun to research a book on the case from a viewpoint fundamentally sympathetic to Hiss, concluded that he had in fact been guilty as charged.

About three years ago a Russian general, Dmitri Volkogonov, was persuaded by friends of Hiss to inspect certain KGB files, and reported that they contained nothing about Hiss. There was no reason that they should, since Chambers and Hiss had been recruited not by the KGB but by the GRU (military intelligence), and Volkogonov quickly retreated from the fray. But his assurances briefly revived the Hiss cause.

Unfortunately for Hiss, this year the National Security Agency released hundreds of pages of deciphered and translated communications from KGB residents in New York and Washington to Moscow Center between 1942 and 1945.

Yet when Hiss died, scarcely a single account of his death in the liberal media breathed a word of any of these incriminating facts. The question of his guilt was left open -- as if, after all these years, it was in doubt.

Personally, I am glad Alger Hiss lived to see the collapse of the bloody regime for which he betrayed his country, and the confirmation of his guilt from its own meticulous files.

MORON ON DRACK

Amend independent counsel rules

Members of Congress should read and take to heart this month's Vanity Fair article on the financial devastation that Washington's "blood-sport" politics wreaks on people who serve in the federal government.

Then they should amend the independent counsel statute so that it operates like a rifle aimed at highest-level wrongdoing, not a shotgun that maims innocent bystanders.

Writer Judy Bechrach has done a real service by pointing to the burden of debt inflicted on federal appointees who get targeted by special prosecutors and Congress -- even if they are found blameless -- along with those who are merely called as witnesses.

She focuses on two Republicans, Janet Mullins and Margaret Tutwiler, who were investigated on charges of rummaging through Bill Clinton's passport files in 1992. Even though they were vindicated, Mullins ended up with legal bills totaling $400,000 and Tutwiler, $180,000.

In addition, the two had their reputations shredded, as newspapers reported charges against them on the front page but barely covered the fact that special prosecutor Joseph DiGenova ultimately declared the charges groundless.

During the Reagan and Bush administrations, Democrats used the criminal process to destroy Republicans, the most prominent example being former Labor Secretary Ray Donovan, falsely accused of consorting with mobsters. Cleared after years of hounding by Congress and a special prosecutor, Donovan plaintively asked, "What office do I go to to get my reputation back?"

Now, Democrats are reaping the whirlwind, as Congress and special prosecutors ravage the Clinton administration, inflicting enormous legal bills on tangential figures, such as former White House aides Mark Gearan and Dee Dee Myers.

Bechrach tends to sympathize equally with exonerated innocents and persons whose complicity in wrongdoing remains in question, such as senior Clinton adviser Bruce Lindsey.

Still, her major point is correct: Between special prosecutors, congressional investigators, and a scandal-seeking press, serving in government is getting to be a dangerous activity. In his suicide note, former White House deputy counsel Vince Foster called present-day politics "a blood sport."

DiGenova told me in an interview: "I don't know how we can expect anyone to serve. I'll tell you, I wouldn't take an appointment in the executive branch at triple the salary."

DiGenova and Democratic ethics attorney Stan Brand agree that the independent counsel statute needs to be amended to make it applicable to the kinds of cases for which it was intended: suspected wrongdoing by the president and his family; and circumstances in which the Justice Department cannot act impartially.

The statute was written in the wake of Watergate to prevent a president like Richard Nixon from firing a prosecutor investigating him.

Now, however, an attorney general is practically forced to appoint a special prosecutor whenever a Cabinet officer or White House aide is accused of wrongdoing.

Special prosecutors can run out of control, as many experts think was the case with Iran-contra prosecutor Lawrence Walsh, who decided to re-indict former Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger on the eve of the 1992 election in an apparent effort to defeat then-President George Bush, and Donald Smalts, whose investigation of Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy has gone far afield.

"The system is totally out of kilter," says Brand. "Most of the cases taken up by independent counsels could be investigated by the Justice Department. After all, professionals from the Justice Department do the investigative work for independent counsels and would get the word out if there were a cover-up."

Both DiGenova and Brand think that Attorney General Janet Reno is doing the right thing in holding off on the appointment of a special prosecutor and allowing career officials in the public integrity section of Justice to handle charges that the Democratic and Republican National Committees broke campaign finance laws during the 1996 campaign.

They disagree, though, about the propriety of recent comments in Detroit by Whitewater special prosecutor Kenneth Starr that his investigation is "about public trust" in the White House and that he is not getting adequate cooperation from unnamed high-level officials.

DiGenova, a Republican, said that Starr was "entirely justified" in defending his office against charges -- leveled most vociferously by former White House aide James Carville -- that his investigation is partisan.

Brand, a Democrat, said that it's "out of bounds" for a special prosecutor to discuss an ongoing case before a "political audience," such as the Detroit Economic Club.

Legislation to amend the independent counsel statute will be re-introduced next year by Rep. Jay Dickey, R-Ark. In addition to narrowing its targeting and requiring congressional appropriations, it should increase financial reimbursements for officials' legal fees.

One Republican socked with six-figure legal bills during the Reagan years declared, "The statute ought to lapse -- but not until after the Democrats have suffered from it."

Now, Democrats are reaping the whirlwind, as Congress and special prosecutors ravage the Clinton administration.

Mexico's culture of political corruption

MEXICO CITY -- Every Mexican knows that their government is riddled with corruption. Oddly enough, however, no high-ranking cabinet official -- many of whom become quite rich while in office -- has been officially charged with corruption or any other crime in decades.

Most of these corrupt officials are too embarrassed to stay in Mexico after their terms have expired. Often they'll flee the country in a self-imposed exile. For this reason, current office holders rarely investigate the shady affairs of their predecessors.

But some here believe it's time to start holding crooked former officials responsible for their unseemly behavior in office. Calls are growing louder for an investigation into suspected links to drug cartels by cabinet officials who served under former President Carlos Salinas. The allegations against Salinas -- who is himself in voluntary exile -- and his cabinet have centered on Emilio Gamboa, former secretary of communication and transportation.

Current President Ernesto Zedillo has been pressured by at least one federal legislator to investigate Gamboa for the source of his unexplained wealth. Public accusations against the former official have repeatedly been aired in reform-minded newspapers and magazines.

Knowledgeable intelligence and diplomatic sources provided additional information to our associate Dale Van Atta. Although Gamboa would not respond to our requests for an interview, he has previously denied any suggestions of impropriety.

Gamboa's chief accuser is Eduardo Valle, who was Mexico's chief counter-narcotics official in 1983-84. Valle, who is currently living in the United States, keeps his whereabouts secret out of concern for his safety. But he agreed to sit down with us to review his findings.

Poring over police and intelligence reports during his first days in office, Valle soon figured out that the only way the major drug cartels could enjoy their unfettered access to Mexico's airports and other drug trafficking routes was by gaining influence in the transportation ministry.

At first, Valle had no direct proof. Then he started examining the wiretaps that federal law enforcement officials had made of a prominent drug cartel headed by Juan Garcia Abrego. That's when he made the connection.

The connection was Marcela Bodenstedt, who called Gamboa and one of his top aides regularly. A former television announcer and drug detective, Bodenstedt was also an alleged fixer and money launderer for Garcia Abrego, according to Valle and several Mexican media reports.

She has been portrayed by the Mexican press as an irresistible siren, the "Mata Hari of Mexico." Leaked transcripts of wiretaps to Reforma, a Mexico City newspaper, reveal that the second most powerful man in the Salinas administration, Chief of Staff Jose Cordoba Montoya, had a fairly interesting relationship with Bodenstedt.

In the transcripts, Cordoba Montoya cooed to Bodenstedt on the phone, referring to her as "my little dear," while she calls him "my pirate." Pressed about this compromising relationship at a news conference, Zedillo refused to speculate on drug trafficking implications, calling it "a transgression ... that requires his (Cordoba Montoya's) wife's forgiveness."

Most of these corrupt officials are too embarrassed to stay in Mexico after their terms have expired.

Report: Women's status by state

By LARNA BROWLIE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Women in Maryland, Vermont, Connecticut and the District of Columbia are better off than women in other states when it comes to income, political clout, health and access to abortion, a private study said today.

The study, released by the Institute for Women's Policy

Research, examined women's status using a number of factors. States where women earn more money, participate in politics, have access to abortions and avoid poverty did the best.

"We're devoting more federal authority to the states. If women want to know how they're doing, they have to know what they're doing at the state level," said Heidi Hartmann, director of the institute.

The study did not give a composite rating for each state, although authors indicated which states did the best and the worst.

According to the study, the top states were Maryland, Vermont and Connecticut, plus the District of Columbia. Also scoring well were Washington, Alaska, California and Oregon.

The bottom states were Mississippi, Kentucky, Arkansas and Tennessee. Also scoring poorly were Alabama, West Virginia, Louisiana and South Carolina.

Overall, women's status varied widely among states on a number of different statistics. The report grouped them into four general categories, analyzing states' performance in each:

—Political participation. Measured percent of women registered to vote, voter turnout among women, number of women holding elected office and number of governmental bodies established to advance women's issues.

For instance, California, Kansas and Maine have each sent two women to the Senate at one time, while Alaska, Delaware, Iowa, Mississippi, New Hampshire, Vermont and Wisconsin have never sent a woman to Congress.

—Employment and earnings. Measure women's earnings, the gap between men's and women's earnings, number of women in managerial or professional jobs and number of women in the labor force.

In the District of Columbia, women make 88 cents for every dollar men earn, giving it the narrowest gap in the nation. On the other end of the spectrum, West Virginia women earn 69 cents for every dollar a man takes home.

—Economic autonomy. Attempting to measure "women's ability to exercise control over their economic lives," this considers college education, health insurance, business ownership and poverty rates.

While 25 percent of women in Mississippi live in poverty, less than 8 percent do so in Connecticut, New Hampshire and New Jersey.

periment with the surgery and wanted to attempt it on an exotic animal, perhaps on a big cat.

The knee replacement will, of course, help Tabatha in the short run, but Brettbil said it will help other endangered species who need to be fit to survive and perpetuate the species.

"This is very exciting," she said. "And not just for our cat."

Tabatha underwent the surgery on Friday afternoon in Gainesville and is expected to return home to Sanford by the end of this week.

"It looks as if it was very successful," Brettbil said.

Tabatha has lived at the Central Florida Zoo since she was three-years-old. The injury that evolved into the damaged joint probably happened before she arrived at the park.

The cat is expected to begin some physical therapy when she arrives home, and she will probably be as active as a young cat within a few weeks.

McDonough said Arndt and Stonko exited the GreeneWay, stopped the vehicle, and jumped into the pond, swimming out to the boy. The deputies were able to pull the youth safely to shore.

The boy was not injured. McKiyes drove him back to Boys Town in Oviedo and turned him over to authorities. The Boys Town staff was to arrange for counseling.

Deputy Arndt is assigned to Seminole County's Policing duties in District 4 which covers the Oviedo area. Deputy Stonko is assigned to Seminole Neighborhood Policing duties in District 5, which covers the Casselberry-Winter Springs area.

Both deputies said they didn't feel like they had accomplished any heroic act, rather, that they just did what any other person in a similar situation would have done.

lascivious assault on a child under 16 years. He served seven and a half years of a 15 year sentence.

In 1980, 1991 and 1992, Wagner was arrested for violation of probation.

In 1990 he pleaded guilty to a charge of battery, a first degree misdemeanor. The guilty plea was the result of a plea bargain that reduced the original charge of lewd and lascivious assault on a child under 16.

At the time of his arrest Saturday, Wagner was on probation as a result of the previous charges against him. One of the conditions of the probation was that he attend mandatory counseling sessions for sexual offenders.

Wagner is being held at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility under $75,000 bond.

Parents at Wilson Elementary School in Sanford are being invited to lunch at the school with their youngsters and to read to offenders. Last Thursday, he attended one of those sessions only two hours after he allegedly committed the assault on the three boys at Red Bug Lake Park.

With the addition of the violent career criminal designation, if Wagner is convicted of these latest charges, he would be sentenced at one level higher than the original charge called for.

Lewd and lascivious assault on a child under 16 is a second degree felony which normally carries a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison. However, under the new designation, the charge would be elevated to a first degree felony which carries a maximum penalty of 30 years in prison.

Wagner is being held at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility under $75,000 bond.

She helps tiny ones survive in the real world

By SUGAN WESSER
Herald Staff Writer

MATLAND--Rocking a tiny baby is something Doris Rosenblatt no longer takes for granted because it is part of her job as a volunteer with the pediatric and neonatal units at Arnold Palmer Hospital.

Yet, her duties go far beyond being a babysitter and rocking machine. She assists the nurses in stocking, works in the office and preceptor for the organization.

There are no longer days when she assumes much free time to run her part-time baking business. She spends from 20 to 60 hours a week with infants needing a lot of love, touch and attention and, at times, the sole affection of a "primary volunteer" like Rosenblatt.

Her caring and loving of these little ones helps them to thrive in the world whether out of bassinets and isolets or in. When mom and dad can not be there, Rosenblatt, nurses and other volunteers are found nearby, assuming the role of caregiver, mommy and one who takes the time to cuddle and nurture.

Rosenblatt discovered the program from someone already involved in classes. "I had heard about Arnold Palmer Hospital," she said. "A friend told me she was in a class for pediatrics. I used to be a Pink Lady, so I thought I would really like this."

She began with the pediatric course that takes place four times a year. The class lasts one day from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Subjects such as infection control, proper hand washing, policy and procedures, fire codes and codes of the hospital, and confidentiality are discussed.

"With pediatrics, we take students around the floor," she said. "We show them where the supplies are and where to stock from. We introduce them to the staff members and help the head of the volunteers. In new classes, we have four hours of training with a preceptor, and there are two to three students that we precept."

The neo-natal program is a bit more involved, according to Rosenblatt. This course, offered two times a year, lasts over a one month period, once a week. Volunteers are requested to work at least three hours a week.

Most importantly, according to Rosenblatt, is to learn "to let go." Some of the babies are released for adoption. Others return to the parents after they begin to gain weight and become healthier.

She admitted one may become attached to the child they are assigned to care for. She has had the opportunity to follow one baby from the neo-natal unit and then to pediatrics. In the seven years she has worked with the hospital, she has cared for 20 different babies, usually one at a time but in July, she assisted two.

"Some need more help than other," she said. "The nurses love to have the help. We cannot do anything medically, just take temperatures, bathe and change diapers. We are taught a myriad of things by the nurses. We also must wrap the babies tightly and feed them."

Although few of the infants are drug addicted or snow babies, Rosenblatt said most of the other children return to the parents' home. "It's the diversity of working with the different children that keeps me interested," she said. "We try to comfort or hold them and just be there to feed them. It's very gratifying. You feel like you are really doing something special. There is just something so gratifying about working with these babies. It's wonderful to even be a tiny part of their lives. You have a child whose parents do not come all the time or cannot come. It's nice to know that someone is there for them."

Rosenblatt has been married to her husband, Edward, for 36 years. They have three children, Lea, Susie and Beth, and two grandchildren. The couple are members of Congregation Beth Am.

Arnold Palmer Hospital is in constant need of additional volunteers. All volunteers, whether working in the mailroom, peds, neo-natal or other aspects of the hospital, are required to attend a general orientation. For more information, contact the Volunteer Office by calling (407) 646-0111 extension 5932 or 1463.

Terrariums provide indoor gardening

With increasing numbers of people living in apartments and condominiums, access to natural beauty is becoming limited, and more and more people are becoming interested in miniature indoor gardening. The terrarium, then, becomes a beautiful and relaxing device for the creation, preservation and maintenance of living plants.

A Self-Sustaining System: In many cases, a closed terrarium might be considered a miniature, self-operating greenhouse, and can be equated to a small ecosystem. The water from the soil is taken up by the plants and transpired into the surrounding air. In the closed container, the water vapor is trapped within the system, creating a desirable high humidity environment for certain shade-requiring mosses, ferns and tropical plants. When the room temperature is lowered, the excess moisture within the glass enclosure condenses on the side of the terrarium and is recycled back into the soil. The moisture is again taken up by the plant roots and the process is repeated. At night, plants use oxygen and release carbon dioxide. During daylight hours, plants use that carbon dioxide for photosynthesis, releasing, in turn, oxygen and water vapor.

Containers: Traditionally, clear glass is used for terrariums. In addition to clear glass, many types of acrylic or clear plastic containers are available. Colored glass or plastic can be used but they should have only a very slight tint since light has to enter the terrarium for the plants to survive, and you want to be able to see clearly every small detail of the terrarium to appreciate it. The container opening should be large for ease of planting.

Soils: Premixed potting soils can be purchased for terrariums. These soils are sterilized, and therefore do not contain pathogenic organisms which may cause rot or deterioration of the plants. Common garden soil needs to be mixed with equal amounts of peat. Sterilization of the soil mixture will be necessary to destroy weed seeds and disease organisms.

Accessories: If you want the terrarium to be more than just plants growing in bottles, some accessories can be added such as small pieces of driftwood, pine cones, acorns, lichen-covered rocks, pea gravel, small stones or even sand.

Assembling the terrarium: Line the bottom and about 1/3 of the side walls of the container with sphagnum moss, small stones or ground charcoal. A 1/2 to 1 1/2 inch layer of drainage material should be used. Materials such as fiberglass draperies, nylon stockings or discarded curtains are good materials for drainage because they are porous enough to allow water to pass through, and fine enough to hold particles. A common mistake for beginners is to crowd too many plants into the container. Use plants sparingly. The terrarium might look bare in the beginning, but once the plants start growing, the terrarium will soon be filled with plants. If the terrarium is to be viewed from all sides, the largest plant should be placed near the center. If the terrarium is to be seen only from two or three sides, the tallest plant should be placed in the background. Never allow standing water to remain in the container. Place the terrarium where it is exposed to bright indirect light, usually in a northeast or north window. Avoid direct sunlight.

Plant materials: Choose small plants with dwarf growth habit. Some plants can be kept from getting too large if they are cut back periodically. Use plants that do not need to be replaced often.

Give kids a gift of literacy

DEAR ABBY: During the holidays, many communities sponsor programs in which people buy new toys or clothes for needy children. Many of these children come from homes where there are no books.

An ongoing cycle of illiteracy haunts children on the edges of poverty. When teachers ask their students to bring a favorite book to class to share, these children show up with an advertisement or a coupon book because they have no books at home.

Abby, please help these children learn to love books and reading. If your readers are buying toys or clothes for needy children, please ask them to consider tucking in one or two children's books.

D.W. IN RENO, NEV.

rebind and re-cover books and Bibles. My parents' rebound Bible is one of my most treasured possessions.

Most Bibles contain blank pages to record births, baptisms, marriages and deaths. If civil records are lost or destroyed, the Bible is accepted as proof in most states.

When my sister became eligible for Social Security, I took my parents' Bible to the records department in the courthouse. The clerk testified to the authenticity of the old Bible, and my sister's claim was approved.

Also, when tracing our roots, a family Bible can be invaluable.

MONICA KOSZPL, EDLICHMAN, TACOMA, WASH.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem for which I see no solution. Next month I will be going out of state to visit a friend of mine for about a week. This stay is part fun and part personal business. She and her close male friend who will be present most of the time both smoke. I do not smoke. In fact, cigarette smoke makes me rather ill. Since I am visiting her, how can I possibly tell her not to smoke in her own home? What can I do in this situation?

LUCIE, PORTLAND, ORE.

DEAR LUCIE: You certainly should not tell her not to smoke in her own home. But do tell her that cigarette smoke makes you "rather ill" so she shouldn't be offended if you take a little break from her home when she smokes. And take an old-fashioned to use conventional, reasonable in the realm in which you will sleep.

Tribe girls win opener

WINTER GARDEN — Laura Williams scored three goals as the Seminole High School girls' soccer team opened its 1996 campaign with a 4-1 victory over West Orange Monday.

Sabreena Sapp added the other Tribe goal on a rocket from 22-yards out, while C.C. Gullian had two assists and Niki Snell added one assist.

Seminole outshot the Warriors 24-6 and had four corner kicks to only two for West Orange. Karen Potter had five saves in goal for the Tribe.

"It was an outstanding effort on everyone's part," said Seminole head coach Anthony Arena. "They stepped it up in the second half. Laura Williams played superb. C.C. (Gullian) distributed the ball well all night. Tracy Hetrick anchored the defense and Karen Potter displayed outstanding leadership skills."

Seminole hosts Lyman tonight at 7:15 p.m.

'Hounds-Pats tie in soccer

LYMAN — The game was a lot better than the score would indicate as the Lyman and Lake Brantley boys' soccer teams battled to a 0-0 tie Monday night.

The game featured end-to-end action and both teams had chances to score, including a couple of shots off the post, but none in the net.

Both teams had 14 shots on goal and Lyman had four corner kicks to three for the Patriots. Both goalies, the Greyhounds' Shane LaPlaca and Brantley's Phillip Copman had six saves.

Lyman plays Wednesday at Seminole at 7 p.m.

Oviedo ties Satellite

COCOA — Mike Thelen scored three goals as Oviedo battled back from a 3-0 halftime deficit to tie the Satellite in Boys' soccer action.

Mike Zigler added two assists and Mike Varley one for the Lions, who outshot the Scorpions 27-15 and had eight corner kicks to three for Satellite. B.J. Meert had 10 saves for Oviedo.

Lake Brantley is at Oviedo on Wednesday.

Champions crowned in V-ball

SANFORD — Kathy's Baby Shop and Hopkins Meats added tournament titles to their regular season championships in the Sanford Recreation Department Fall Recreational Volleyball Monday at Sanford Middle School.

In the A League, Kathy's Baby Shop went 4-0 in the tournament and 29-3 overall and were trailed by Church of God and Park Air (both 15-17), Longwood Tech Center (11-21) and Westview Baptist #1 (9-23).

In the B League, Hopkins Meats also went 4-0 in the tournament and was 37-3 overall. Completing the standings were: Westview Baptist #2 (26-14), C.J.'s (24-16), CSI (16-24), YKnots (14-26) and Lighthouse (2-38).

Hackers finish perfect season

WINTER SPRINGS — The PDS-Hackers scored seven runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to erase a 7-4 deficit and went on to beat Soap Box 11-10 in Winter Springs Women's Fall Monday Night Slowpitch Softball League action.

The Hackers finished the season 10-0 and claimed their fifth pennant in six leagues.

Hitting for the winners were Phyllis Baynes (4-for-4, run, two RBI) Terri Mann (3-for-4, two runs, RBI), Kristy Kessinger (2-for-4, run), Tereasa Walburger (single, run, RBI), Judon Marlette (2-for-4, two runs, two RBI), Tiffany Potter (2-for-2, two runs, RBI) and Connie Thomas (2-for-2, run, two RBI, which drove in the tying and go-ahead runs in the sixth).

Toucan Willies wraps up title

OVIDEO — Toucan Willies claimed its third championship in four leagues as it completed a 9-1 campaign with a 16-10 victory over the Jokers in Oviedo Men's Fall Slowpitch Softball League action last Wednesday.

Toucan Willies scored eight runs in the first inning, but the Jokers battled back to tie the game at 10-10 in the fifth. But TW stormed back with four runs in the sixth inning, with the big blow being a bases loaded triple by Ronnie Gardner, and then added two runs in the seventh on Ryan Aikire's triple.

Hitting were Troy Kessinger (3-for-5, double, three runs), Harold Hitt (3-for-5, run), Aikire (3-for-4, triple, three runs, three RBI), Joe Brandon (2-for-5, run, two RBI), Greg Register (2-for-4, double, two runs, two RBI), Gardner (triple, two runs, three RBI), Rick Tribbit (triple, double, two runs, two RBI), Chris Tulp (single, run, RBI) and Kenny Tuttle (single, run).

Hawks, Pats prevail Gutsy two-point conversion calls decide 6A-4

passes and Lake Brantley's Joey Cuzmar (with ball, right photo) scored two touchdowns and a two-point conversion at Richard L. Evans Field Monday night.

WINTER PARK — Back in August when Lake Howell lost to Oviedo 16-0 in a half of the pre-season "Classic" there probably were not a lot of people who gave the Silver Hawks a chance to make the state playoffs.

But today, because of some gutsy play calling by its coach and heads up play by its quarterback, Lake Howell is the Class 6A-District 4 champion.

Monday night in the 6A-4 "Kansas Tie-Breaker" at Lake Howell's Richard L. Evans Field, Matt Mara threw a clutch fourth-down touchdown pass to Guy Parent and then avoided the rush to hit Chris Harris with a two-point conversion pass as the Silver Hawks edged Lake Brantley 15-14 for the district crown.

A two-point conversion also decided the first tie-breaker as Jamie Cuzmar broke through a tackle and fell into the end zone to give the Patriots a 22-21 triumph over Oviedo.

Lake Howell will now host 6A-District 5 runner-up DeLand at Richard L. Evans Field at 7:30 p.m. this Friday and Lake Brantley will travel to Ocala to take on 6A-5 champion Forest, which edged the Patriots 31-27 at Tom Storey Field on November 1, also at 7:30 p.m. The Lions will probably not be left out as they are expected to receive a bid to the Rotary Bowl at Lyman.

Overall it was a very exciting evening with super offensive football on display.

Oviedo and Lake Brantley squared off in the first tie-breaker, with each team getting four plays from the 10-yard line.

The Lions started first and after two incomplete passes, Andy Neufeld found Josh Greer for a 10-yard touchdown pass and Dan Dyke added the extra point.

It took the Patriots three plays, with the help of an offside penalty, to tie it up. Ryan Pagan carried the ball three times for three-, two-, and two-yards for the touchdown and Bart Linamen booted the extra point.

Lake Brantley started the second

SCC hoop teams crush foes

By DEAN SMITH Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD — The Seminole Community College basketball teams pulled off a crushing doubleheader sweep this past weekend at the S.C.C. Health and Physical Education Center.

The Raiders' women's basketball team improved to 3-0 under head coach Ken Patrick on Friday evening with an easy 89-54 clubbing of North Florida Junior College from Madison.

The score could have been even worse as Patrick called off the horses with four minutes left in the game and his team already with 88 points on the board.

Saturday night, the men of first-year coach Roderick Henderson got their chance to show their stuff as they used two big runs to bury St. Petersburg Community College 105-77.

The Raiders (4-3) jumped out to a 41-20 lead, but the Trojans closed to within 50-46 at halftime, then actually took a 53-51 lead early in the second half.

try and again took three plays, with Pagan running for two- and three-yards but Cusmer dashed in from the five and again Linamen hit the PAT.

It took Oviedo just two plays to tie it up again as Neufeld passed one-yard to Leroy Jackson before passing nine yards to Christian Sanders and Dyse hit the extra point.

It was the Lions' turn to start the third O.T. and Neufeld went right back to Sanders for a 10-yard touchdown pass. Again Dyse nailed the extra point.

Cusmer matched Sanders on the next play as he took a pitch from quarterback Dominick Shaw and ran untouched into the end zone. Lake Brantley coach Fred Almon then decided to go for the win. The Patriots ran the option again and Cusmer very nearly dropped the pitch and then was hit at the one-yard line, but he broke the tackle and fell in for the win.

After a 20-minute warm-up period, the finale began with Lake Howell getting the first shot. After an offside penalty, Lucious Cooper ran for four-yards and then lost a yard before scoring from four-yards out. Victor Neespeca added the extra point.

Lake Brantley had to go to fourth down to tie the game as Pagan gained one- and seven-yards on two carries and Shaw then gained one-yard on two straight plays to score the touchdown. Linamen added the extra point.

The Patriots started round two and Pagan scored right up the middle on the first play and Linamen added the extra point to give Lake Brantley a 14-7 lead.

Things did not look good for the Silver Hawks as Cooper gained two, then lost two yards and Mara lost two yards on third down. With a fourth down from the eight yard line, Mara dropped back and found Parent open in the end zone.

Lake Howell coach Mike Biceglia then went for two, but the play looked doomed as Mara rolled to his right and was being chased by the Patriot rush from the front and the back, but just before going out of bounds Mara flipped the ball into the end zone and found Harris for the "two" and the win.

The victory was sweet revenge for the Silver Hawks, who lost in a tie-breaker to Lake Brantley during the regular season on a blocked extra point try.

Who's right? Pap tests, home birthing

DEAR DR. GOTT: Your opinions are completely insane. I wanted to say something stronger but, as a doctor, thought better of it.

You have spoken out against Pap tests for post-hysterectomy patients. Wrong. You said that women have given birth for centuries without doctors and that home births are entirely safe. Wrong. You even said that male gynecologists "had" babies, not the mothers themselves. Ridiculous. You haven't a clue about medical matters and have failed to use medical science. Your columns are driven by a false ideology. Please publish your trashy diatribes in some psychobabble publication. I dare you to print this letter.

DEAR DOCTOR: Wow! You really gave it to me, didn't you? Well, I did print your letter. Now let's examine your objections.

The Pap test checks for cancer of the cervix, which is the opening of the uterus. At the time of a hysterectomy, the uterus (and the cervix) are usually removed. So what's left to "Pap"? I'll admit that rare cases of vaginal cancer can be diagnosed by Pap-testing post-hysterectomy women, but these patients usually have symptoms, such as bleeding or discharge.

To me, it doesn't seem cost-effective to test ALL such women. I think that gynecologists could be more selective — and my view is shared by many authorities.

I never wrote that home birthing is safe. There are risks, of course, in any birth. However, many young mothers feel more comfortable having their babies at home and — as long as they accept the risks (such as hemorrhage), employ an experienced midwife and have suitable M.D. backup — I see no reason why they shouldn't.

I still think that many older obstetricians "had" babies. Back in the 1940s, '50s, and '60s, pregnant women had zero options. They were told "Honey — or dear (the accepted name-calling to keep adult women in their place), don't you worry about this birth. I'll take care of it."

So the women were admitted to hospital, knocked out with general anesthesia (or given a lower-body-numbing spinal anesthetic), the doctor "had" the baby, and the new mother was given a chance to hold it briefly (if she were awake) before the infant was trundled off to the newborn nursery. That's just the way it was. And the fathers were consigned to the waiting room, where they handed out cigars.

Today, all that has (mercifully) changed. New mothers and their husbands are now encouraged to participate in the wondrous process of birthing. Natural childbirth and home deliveries have become routine. Licensed mid-wives can successfully assist in most births.

There is minimal anesthesia — a blessing, because the newborns are not affected by the powerful drugs examinations to detect birth defects or placental abnormalities, many birth-related health hazards can be predicted, treated and averted. Of course, not every woman experiences a problem-free pregnancy and delivery. Such women should undergo hospital deliveries under close monitoring and M.D. supervision.

MEDICINE

Thus, I see no reason to alter my opinions. Pregnant women need choices that are safe and economical, not some male doctor who unfairly insists on hospital deliveries because 1. it's more convenient for him, 2. he doesn't want to lose control, 3. hospitals need the income, and 4. he might miss out on the substantial delivery fee.

I look forward to your future comments, doctor.

previously given to their mothers. Even hospitals have re-designed their delivery suites to be more home-like and user-friendly. In short, there is unmistakable evidence that women are having their own babies, with obstetrical care to assist only.

Moreover, with increased knowledge about obstetrical problems and the ubiquitous use of ultrasound

The Israeli connection

By Phillip Alder

Another independently published bridge magazine in the United States is Bridge Today. The editors, Pamela and Matt Granovetter, started it from their home in Jamaica, Queens. A few years ago they moved to Israel, but by using the Internet, fax machines and the mail, they seem to have no trouble producing six issues a year. The material aims primarily at the duplicate player, but there is a lot of variety.

Here is a deal from this year's July-August issue. How should South play in two spades? West leads the club 10, East winning with the king and cashing the ace before switching to the spade 10.

South's opening bid is a weak two, showing a decent six-card suit and some 6 to 10 high-card points. With four top losers in the minors, South must avoid two trump losers. Normally, one would finesse the spade queen (or cash the ace before leading up to the queen), but here that cannot be the right play. Why?

East has produced the two top club honors. Also, if West had the ace and king of diamonds, surely he would have led one of them rather than a club. So, East is also marked with a top diamond, yet he passed as dealer. This means West must have the spade king.

Declarer should win East's crafty switch with the spade ace and continue with a low spade. When the king falls out of the air, the contract is made.

Your Birthday

Wednesday, Nov. 20, 1998

Involvement with individuals who proved fortunate for you previously could be even more so in the year ahead. Do everything within your power to cultivate these contacts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23) Let your hair down and enjoy yourself today, keeping in mind that social occasions should be fun. You can help to make the day exciting. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1788, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10188.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you do good things for others today, you will receive benefits in return. If someone needs your help, do not hesitate to offer your services.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This will be a good day to get in touch with friends you haven't seen much lately. They will welcome a phone call or even a brief visit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Something fortuitous might develop unexpectedly today, and you will know how to use it to your advantage. It will be triggered in a roundabout manner.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You can be a surprisingly determined person if you set your mind on a specific target. Today your aim will be good, so go for the gusto!

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Remain alert for opportunities today, because you might find yourself in the right spot at the right time to profit from something initiated by a colleague.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Circumstances could develop in a manner today that will afford you an opportunity to reinforce a relationship which needs to be patched up.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You will still be in a strong achievement cycle and it will behoove you to establish meaningful objectives. Go for something bigger than usual while you're hot.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may be more fortunate than usual today in developments which contain elements of risk. Do not gamble impulsively, but don't be too timid either.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This will be a good day to make some adjustments if you feel they could benefit your loved ones. If everyone agrees, take the initiative and get things started now.

VRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Focus on the positive aspects of a situation today instead of dwelling on the negative. You will get better results if your outlook is confident.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) It will be important to do something constructive today that will provide you with a sense of accomplishment. Try not to waste time.
