Cardinal Industries defunct

SANFORD — As of today, Cardinal Industries Inc. no longer exists. A new company, Cardinal Realty Services Inc., emerged from the reorganization of the former manufactured homebuilder which once employed more than 500 people here.

The new Cardinal will fly with a $39.6 million loan completed Monday with Huntington National Bank in the corporate headquarters of Columbus, Ohio. Frank McDowell, a former Texas banker, takes the reins as president and CEO.

Cardinal Realty will not continue to manufacture modular homes, apartments and motels, but will act as general partner with investors in up to 634 apartment complexes, motels and retirement villages. The company will have 16 subsidiaries, offering a range of services including debt restructuring and mortgage services.

Creditors of the former Cardinal Industries will be the major stockholder in the new corporation. Shares will be traded over the counter, according to corporate spokesman Don Durocher.

Under the terms of the reorganization, former Cardinal employees who have unpaid salary claims will be paid within a year. About $7.5 million in employee retirement accounts will be distributed to the workers, although an additional $980,000 amount is unfunded, said spokesman Mike Chapp. Within a year, the new Cardinal will redeposit $685,000 of the unfunded amount. The balance will be reimbursed with stock from the new corporation.

WASHINGTON — Anyone who becomes ill from eating seafood can call a new hotline run by an organization that has been trying for years to get the government to strengthen seafood inspection policies.

Public Voice for Food and Health Policy will gather information from callers to 1-800-886-FISH to determine the extent to which contaminated seafood is reaching consumers. Ellen Haas, executive director of the organization, said Monday in announcing the hotline.

Lowered tax rejected

Sanford millage remains same

By MICK PFEPAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The city's property tax rate will remain the same for another fiscal year, according to tentative action taken last night by the city commission. The lower, rollback rate was rejected.

For the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, commissioners unanimously approved on first reading a balanced, $13.37 million operating budget. The amount is down slightly from the current budget, which is paid for by property tax revenue, according to the Carolyn Small, city finance director.

City Manager Bill Simmons said the proposed operating budget maintains services, such as police and fire protection or recreation, at about the same levels as the current year. The budget also allows city hall workers to earn merit pay increases that range from 3-to-6 percent as well as an extra week of vacation.

The total budget, including capital expenditures that are financed from non-property tax sources, such as state and federal grants, amounts to $40.22 million, which is down from the current budget of $50.55 million. The total proposed budget is lower because certain water and sewer construction projects, such as laying pipes for city's wastewater discharge program, have been completed.

The budget is scheduled for a final vote on Sept. 28.

Commissioners decided against adopting the slightly lower, rollback tax rate recommended by the county Appraiser. By not approving the lower rate, the city will take in an extra $120,000 in revenue over the current fiscal year.

No one came forward to speak when public participation was called, and none of the commissioners discussed any aspects of the budget. See Tax, Page 5A

SANFORD — Only the good points of downtown Sanford were stressed this morning. In introducing four speakers, Sanford Historic Downtown Waterfront Association's Kay Bartholomew said, "Let's keep this completely positive, let's be cheerleaders for the downtown area."

Several dozen merchants gathered for the The Sanford Historic Downtown Waterfront Association monthly meeting at the First Street Gallery this morning. The subject was identified by Bartholomew as "making the most of our own back yard."

Speakers included Nancy Yuronis, sales and marketing director for the rivership Grand Romance, Bob Hopkins, of St. Johns River Cruises, Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Dave Farr, and Jack Wert of the Seminole County Tourist Development Council.

Yuronis spoke first, telling the gathering about the benefits of living on the shore of the St. Johns River. "From this waterway," she said, "we can go anywhere in the world. We are a port city, but we often forget to promote our waterways when we talk about Sanford."

She continued, "We also forget about all of the history we have. One hundred years ago, there were boats on the St. Johns much larger than ours, and we should use this history as an asset."

"One thing we have been talking about for some time," she added, "is to create an approach between the waterfront and the First Street area. We should see Merchants, Page 5A

Novice politician fills Longwood seat

LONGWOOD — Steven Miller's first try at politics will apparently be successful. Miller was the only person to qualify for the City Commission District 3 seat in the Longwood municipal elections.

Longwood City Clerk Jeri Zambri said, "The city charter specifies that a person who is unopposed in a city election is automatically elected, as he or she is presumed to have voted for themselves."

"But we follow state laws regarding a write-in candidate," she said. "A person will have through this Friday to come in and qualify to run for a write-in candidate." She added, "The person would have to fill out the same paperwork, but not pay the $273 qualifying fee."

"If no one files as a write-in," Zambri said, "Mr. Miller's name will not even be on the November 3rd ballot, but if there is a write-in candidate, Miller's name will be on the ballot, but no other candidate's name, just a blank space for the name to be written in by the voter."

Miller, 42, lives with his wife, two children and a stepson, at 381 E. Jessup Ave., in Longwood. He has been affiliated with Jimmy Bryan Honda for the past six years.

He will be replacing Commissioner Clancy Keith, who previously announced she would not seek re-election because of the demands of her job. Keith is district director for the Central

Former Humane Society head blasts directors

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — Diane Albers blasted the directors of the Humane Society of Seminole County two days after her $25,000 a year position was eliminated, saying they have not managed the organization properly.

"It's nothing more than husbands and wives that get on the telephone and talk and accept rumor as fact," said Albers today. "They come in and use the telephones for personal business. You have directors that yell and curse at employees. This isn't a business. It's a kindergarten."

Following a stormy two-and-one-half years as the society's executive director, Albers was laid off Sunday afternoon by the society board of directors.

"I worked hard for that place," said Albers Monday afternoon. "I had turned it around. But the board is running the show now. I just hope they take care of the animals."

"Nothing will change," said Bo Simpson, society president. "Everything will continue the way it has been."

Protest delays rezoning

By MICK PFEPAUF

SANFORD — The rezoning of school board property east of French Avenue between 15th and 18th Streets was postponed again. The City Commission may hold off on a final decision for as long as 90 days.

Over 100 citizens swarmed the Commission chambers last night, most saying they came to speak in opposition to the request to rezone the property so it could be used for a strip mall.

The applicant however, had submitted a written request, asking that the matter be postponed for an additional 90 days. Rulon D. Munna, attorney for Richard Hardwick, the applicant, made the presentation. See Rezoning, Page 5A

Rivership Romance Improves land site

By MICK PFERPAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The owners of the rivership Grand Romance have received permission from the City of Sanford to place a temporary trailer next to its office on Marina Isle. The structure is to be used as a dressing room for expanded entertainment on the ship.

The request was approved on a four-to-one vote during last night's City Commission meeting. Commissioner Whitey Eckstein cast the lone dissenting vote.

"I'm opposed to this," he said. "They could use some facility at the Holiday Inn if they need a room." Eckstein added, "Putting up a temporary building isn't pleasant, by approving this we may be setting a bad precedent."

Mayor Bettye Smith said, "I have a tendency to agree, but these are hard economic times, and I think by doing this we will be offering some help to them."

Bill Sternberg, one of the owners of the cruise ship operation, has asked for permission to place a 10 by 55 foot trailer at the northern side of the existing office building.

According to the proposal, Sternberg requested only a one year time period for the variance.

In his letter requesting the trailer, Sternberg wrote, "...due to our new and expanding show schedule, of which there will be nine show cruises per week of our twelve scheduled cruises, are requesting a variance." He continued, "As our new facility located at Myrtle Street and Seminole Blvd. will not be completed in time for the new and expanded shows, we are in need of more room for costumes, warm up area and changing rooms."

In a report to the Commission prior to last night's meeting, Sanford Director of Planning and Development, Jay Marder recommended approval of the request, but he also approached the negative aspects of it. "The placement of a trailer on the Isle is seen as a negative and undesirable addition from an aesthetic standpoint," he wrote.

Marder's recommendation for City approval is based on a limit of one year, with construction on the new facility on Fulton Avenue to be started within six months.

Marder also called for the structure to be painted to match the present office building.

City Manager Bill Simmons had also recommended approval, subject to conditions suggested by Marder.

The vote included all of the stipulations recommended by Marder. Sternberg gave no indication as to when the temporary structure would be installed.

There's something new to remember. From now on, when you make long distance calls within the 407 area, dial 0 or 1 + 407 and then the number you're calling.

Florida's tremendous growth has created a shortage of telephone numbers. By dialing the area code on every long distance call, numbers are freed up for new businesses and residential customers.

So remember, when you dial long distance, be sure to use the area code. And if you have a 407 long distance number on any programmed services, like Speed Dialing, Call Forwarding, or even a FAX machine, now's the time to reprogram them.

Competition and competing views

George Bush and Bill Clinton agree on the need to make America's labor force more competitive in a rapidly changing global economy. But the sharply contrasting solutions they offer illustrate fundamental differences in their approaches to government and the economy.

The president has proposed a $3 billion-a-year program for retraining adult workers and providing young people with the skills needed to enter the high-tech work force. He said he would pay for this relatively modest training project by cutting spending on other domestic programs. Yet he failed, disappointingly, to specify where the cuts would be made.

Clinton's remedy is far more sweeping and calls for large-scale federal intervention in the private sector.

Under the Democratic nominee's economic blueprint, all companies with 50 or more employees would be required to spend 1.5 percent of their payroll each year on continuing education and training.

This new government mandate on employers would apply to blue-collar workers and executives alike. Any firm that failed to devote this percentage of its payroll to improve employee skills would be required to contribute a like amount to a government fund for training workers of smaller companies.

The most obvious difference in the two candidates' proposals is their scope. Clinton's payroll mandate would require $30 billion a year in private-sector spending on training — 10 times the cost of the president's initiative.

The Democratic plan also represents a much bigger intrusion by government into the work force.

For example, the payroll-mandate approach would require a new set of federal regulations and entail increased inspections of businesses by the Labor Department to enforce the training guidelines. Government regulators would decide what kinds of activities would qualify as acceptable training for, say, bartenders or waiters. And what if workers themselves balked at participating in the mandated training programs?

Another drawback of Clinton's plan is that it would drive up the cost of labor and therefore become a disincentive for job creation. Employers would have to factor in the new training costs in deciding whether they could afford to hire additional workers. At least at the margin, this would cost the economy jobs because employers would be less willing to increase their payrolls and thereby incur heavier training costs.

By contrast, Bush's strategy is much more narrowly focused.

It targets, in part, workers who would be dislocated by cutbacks in defense spending or the recently completed North American Free Trade Agreement. To help retrain these and other workers, the government would provide vouchers of up to $3,000 a year for two years.

The vouchers would enable workers to refine their job skills or learn new ones in vocational schools or colleges of their choice. Instead of imposing a new mandate on employers, the Bush plan would empower employees to improve their economic opportunities through increased education and training.

The competing job-training proposals portray a basic difference between the two presidential contenders. To make American workers more competitive, Clinton would rely on an activist federal government; Bush would rely on individual initiative and the private sector, with only a slight nudge from Washington. For American voters, that is a clear choice for November.

Youth criminals need punishment

A 13-year-old San Diego gang member participates in the drive-by shooting death of another youth. A 13-year-old boy in DeKalb County, Ga., rapes and kills a 7-year-old child. Four teen-age girls in Madison, Ind., bludgeon and sodomize a 12-year-old girl before dousing the victim with gasoline and burning her alive.

These are horrible, real-life cases that recently came before state juvenile courts. They bring squarely into focus the epidemic of juvenile violence that has beset cities and towns throughout the country. They also raise serious questions about the efficacy of the present juvenile justice system.

Youth arrests for violent crimes increased 27 percent during the decade ending in 1990, the FBI reports. This largely is due to an explosion of youth violence toward the latter part of the decade. Juvenile arrests for murder soared nearly 50 percent between 1988 and 1990, according to the National Center for Juvenile Justice. Robbery arrests climbed 38 percent. Aggravated assault arrests rose 30 percent.

Law enforcement authorities throughout the country bear witness to the emergence of a new breed of young offender. These hardened, violent juveniles have utter contempt for the law. They have little regard for human life.

They would, for instance, have little or no qualms about blowing away a grandmother if she hesitated to hand over her Social Security check. They didn't think twice about torturing a little girl and setting her ablaze.

Meanwhile, the juvenile justice system is stuck in a time warp. It approaches this 1990s epidemic of juvenile violence with a liberal philosophy left over from the 1960s. It continues to operate based on the premise that youth are not fully responsible for their actions; that they do not fully appreciate the difference between right and wrong.

But we are not talking here about the proverbial juvenile delinquent. The kid who gets caught joy riding in a stolen car or busted for shoplifting or gets collared for flat fighting. We are talking about rapists. Drug peddlers. Gangsters. Murderers. With rare exception, they are beyond redemption. It is time the juvenile justice system faced up to this.

The young and the lawless thumb their noses at the juvenile justice system. They recognize, all too clearly, that because they are underage, they will be treated with kid gloves by judges in the juvenile justice system. They know that no matter how heinous their crime — even burning someone alive — there is little prospect that they will face sentences commensurate to their crimes.

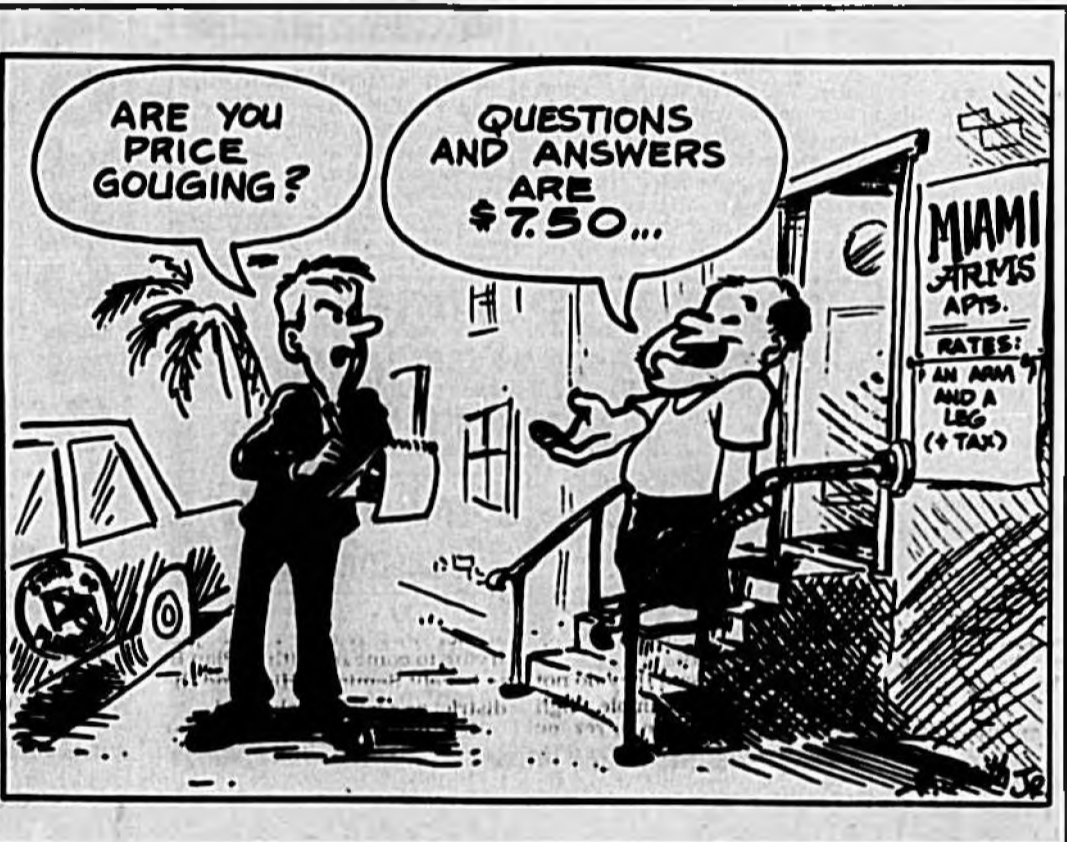

Even in the 5 percent of cases in which young violent offenders are tried as adults, the full weight of the law is rarely brought against them. And in many states a youthful offender under the age of 16 cannot be sentenced past the age of 25, no matter how heinous the crime.

Along the same perverse lines, in many states a young offender with a lengthy record of violent offenses may have that record expunged when he or she turns 18 years old. Prospective schools, employers, landlords or other interested parties are none the wiser.

If the epidemic of youth violence is to be abated, the juvenile justice system must be reformed. Violent youth must no longer be protected by age.

These hardened, violent juveniles have utter contempt for the law.

Recycling industry advancing

What do bald tires, old sneakers, squishy softballs and bent bumpers have in common? They are all part of a growing stream of materials being recycled into new products.

But let's face it, we've all seen the reports that the stream is becoming a glut, and in some cases it's true. Recently a national news magazine reporter was calling around trying to find a warehouse stuffed with recycled newspaper that he could photograph to prove the point. Some communities have had to haul recycled and sorted waste off to landfills. A sense of jitter is developing about whether recycling has become too much of a good thing.

Whenever any big new undertaking runs into snags, some people will caution to back off the project entirely. And recycling does represent a major shift in how we design products, the materials we put into them, and what we do with what's left over. Trimming away the excesses of a disposable society isn't a fad. It's a long-term pull to put the old-fashioned notion of "waste not, want not" into practice.

"The supply revolution is well under way and the demand revolution is just beginning," is how Phil Bailey of the Buy Recycled Business Alliance sums up what's happening with recycling now. The supply revolution Bailey talks about is the enormous backing average citizens have given to the idea and the practice of recycling. Just three years ago there were 600 curbside recycling programs in communities across the nation. Today there are nearly 4,000 serving some 18 million households and several thousand businesses. Poll after poll reaffirms the point that large majorities of American citizens support recycling.

Increasing demand is where extra attention needs to be focused now: the job of making products and developing markets for recycled materials. While government initiatives can help create those markets, the private sector shows tremendous promise.

For example, hands down, the most successful recycling effort involves aluminum cans. Last year in the United States just over 62 percent of all aluminum beverage containers were recovered and reused. There's good reason for it. Recycling aluminum consumes 95 percent less energy than smelting new stocks of the metal. But it took the industry 20 years to reach its current level of recycling efficiency.

The next big strides in expanded markets for recycled goods will probably come with paper. Just over half of all newspapers are already recovered for recycling. All told, about 35 percent of the nation's paper and cardboard are channeled into the recycling stream. Within the first five years of this decade, says the American Paper Institute, the industry will invest $3 billion on expanded paper recycling capacity. A large chunk of that money is slated for 34 new or modernized plants now on the drawing boards or under construction to de-ink printed paper. As these facilities come on line, we can expect to see a narrowing of the gap between the supply and demand of recycled paper.

The same sort of thing is happening in other sectors of the economy. Three years ago a privately published national guide to recycled products listed 60 manufacturers offering 360 items for sale. The latest edition has been expanded to make room for 600 manufacturers offering 4,000 products to buyers.

The Aqua Pore Co. in Phoenix is a good example of recycling industry growth. They make garden hoses — with two innovations. Their hose sweeps out water to soak the ground, a method that cuts down on evaporation. And 85 percent of the material they use to make their product comes from old car tires. Over the last four years, the firm has quadrupled its work force to 100 employees. "And we anticipate doubling our business again in the next three years," says company spokeswoman Carrie Tullman.

In short, the underlying story is that small businesses and large industries are increasingly finding ways to capitalize on recycling's advantages. The whole idea is that in the long run recycling will produce high-quality goods at competitive prices with the added benefit of environmental efficiency. The transition won't always be smooth, nor should it be expected to occur overnight. The evidence is mounting, however, that even in a recession, the transition is under way.

Increasing demand is where extra attention needs to be focused now.

The recent flooding of my basement via a leak sprung in the tank that holds water pumped up from the well has me re-evaluating a few of my life choices. There's something about taking up soaked carpet tiles and tools and boxes of stuff-too-valuable-to-throw-away and laying it all on the floor of the barn to dry that gives a person plenty of time to contemplate things such as:

(A.) What in blazes do I need with all these things I haven't found a use for in 10 years? Why can't I just load up the Jeep and take it to Goodwill, and not waste any more time storing, boxing and moving it from room to room, wishing I could free up the space it's taking up?

(B.) Why am I still living in the woods where the elements keep trying to reclaim the house, and hornets have dibs on the mailbox? Why can't I live on the city water line like sane people?

The answer to the first question is easy. I am living the legacy my parents left me, that Hard Times lurk around every corner and just as sure as I throw something away, I will want it more than life itself.

Married in the Depression, they barely eked out a living for so long that even after they began making upper-middle-class salaries, they spent the rest of their lives saving balls of rubber bands, drawers of plastic bread sacks and aluminum foil, tin cans filled with used nails.

This 1930s parsimony was a difficult concept to reconcile with the freedom of the '60s, where possessions were seen as weighing one down instead of providing a safety net in case of an aluminum foil shortage.

Then, in the '70s, I was bitten by the back-to-the-land bug (among a smorgasbord of other critters once I finally got back here), and I began to look at acquisition and saving as a hedge against having to be dependent on The System, whatever it was. "If you save it you won't have to buy it later," the wisdom went. Then the '80s brought the advent of the professional organizer, who counseled: "Get rid of anything you haven't used in two years. If you haven't used it by now, you aren't going to."

So here it is 1992 and I'm still back ON the land, but paying the mortgage with a city job that leaves me no time for actually going back TO the land. I've long since abandoned the notion that my store of saved stuff will stave off The System, and I've decided my best game plan is to put a goodly amount in my 401K account every week ... yet I still have the stuff. So sue me. Maybe someday you'll need a perfectly good roll of never-used Naugahyde salvaged from a shoe factory closing, and I can give it to you.

I was touched recently by an "About Men" column in The New York Times written by a 60-year-old man named John Jerome, remembering as a child being made to pound out bent nails any time he wanted to try some carpentry project. There was no need for the family to scrimp by that time, yet their stepfather insisted that he and his brother pound bent nails that, weak in the bent places, would merely bend again when the little boys tried to hammer them, creating a Depression in the heart where none existed in reality.

Old habits die hard. John Jerome points out. Even though he knows his small stockpiles today aren't necessary, they are satisfying. He isn't sure why. Speaking of a lifelong correspondence with his brother, he remembers, "Until the day of Jud's death he was still sending me letters written on the back of discarded manuscript pages ... I still save paper clips."

There was no need for the family to scrimp by that time.

Secrets Hair Design Attends Beauty; Learns MORE SECRETS!

The staff at Secrets Hair Design is really excited; they have some new secrets they want to share with you. They have recently attended the Premiere Beauty Show, held at the Stouffer Orlando Resort. This show is one of the largest educational events in the southeast, with up-to-the-minute instruction on all the latest styles and techniques. Jamie, Penny and Brenda also plan to attend the Ace Show, in October, at the Twin Towers.

If you haven't been to Secrets Hair Design before, they would like to take this opportunity to introduce their "eager-to-please" staff to you.

Jamie is a native to Sanford, returning after 10 years from many larger cities. He has worked with models and theaters from Key West to Chicago. He specializes in premium perms, spirals, color, highlighting and the new Gemini Wrap spiral or conventional.

"I have taught classes in makeup, skincare and high fashion hair design to others in the field of cosmetology, as well as teaching and helping individuals to create their own look."

Jamie custom designs hair fashions for gentlemen as well as ladies. So if you have a special style in mind he will work with you to achieve it.

"I try to stay on top of my profession, constantly attending seminars and workshops, so I can bring my clients the most up to date and highest quality in hair designs."

Brenda has worked in the Sanford area for four years. She is originally from Lake County. She specializes in premium cuts, perms, color, French facials and waxing. She holds a third place in national competition, a first in the state of Florida and a second in the region.

Penny, originally from Ohio, has been a beauty consultant for 8 years, working in the Sarasota, Bradenton area for 3 years and now in Sanford for 3 years. She specializes in perming, design cuts, braids, color and the new Gemini Wrap, spiral or conventional.

Penny is now offering manicures and pedicures, with sculptured nails coming soon.

"At Secrets Hair Design, all we want to do is make our clients happy. Because, if they are not happy we're not happy. We want to give them the look they are trying to achieve."

"We're people too. And we know what its like to be a client. We've been there."

The staff of Secrets have been cross trained. Not only can they do all the skills of a cosmetologist but also have barbering skills. Whether its a color for mom, or a perm for sis. They can also do brother's surfer cuts to grandad's taper cut. And all at prices no one can beat. And if you do find someone's ad less than ours we'll beat their price by 10%, with the same high quality and guaranteed services.

Secrets now carries three lines of hairpieces, custom ordered and custom fit, for men, women and children. Also, you can bring in your hairpiece and they'll give it "new life".

Secrets is becoming well known for their high quality and everyday low prices. Look for this week's special on this page. Special prices for seniors every Tuesday. Their convenient hours are Monday through Friday 9:00 am - 8:00 pm and 9:00 am - 6:00 pm on Saturday.

Whatever the service, they have it at a price you can afford. Why don't you call them today...for a beautiful tomorrow. 324-9484. Secrets Hair Design is located at 1913 South French Avenue in Sanford.

The Kader's Jewelers Tradition Continues With New Managers

Rick Chessey and Brenda Johnson, new managers of Kader's Jewelers, join familiar faces Caryl Hogsett and Danny Lott.

If you have been reading the Kader Jewelers ad in this Business Review section over the past few weeks, you may have noticed there are some new faces at the store.

John Kader has decided to "semi-retire" after 49 years in the jewelry business. (I wonder if he will give himself a gold watch?) John knew Rick Chessey, a Sanford resident for 23 years, who had been working at another jewelry store. John persuaded Rick to come to work for him and run his business.

Rick joined his fiancée, Brenda Johnson. (Rick and Brenda are engaged, not married, yet, as was mistakenly reported in our Business Review ad. I bet they got their engagement ring at Kader's.) Brenda, who is assistant manager, has been at Kader's for 3 years.

With these new faces will continue the tradition of fine quality jewelry you have always found at Kader Jewelers.

For many Sanford residents, Kader's name is synonymous with jewelry. The Kaders have watched trends come and go, but gifts of jewelry continue to hold the same value they have for many years.

Kader's will trade your old diamond jewelry for current styles just to keep you in the now, and to update your collection.

For the graduate, though styles have changed and some items are not as popular as they used to be, you can still find gifts ranging from pen and pencil sets and key chains to pearls, watches and pendants.

If the unusual gift is what you are looking for, why not start at Kader's? The store carries many one-of-a-kind items, such as a giant handmade wine bottle made in 1899. The wine bottle is not for sale, but it exemplifies the types and variety of investment quality pieces to be found.

If you have a jewelry item that needs to be repaired and you want to take it to someone you can trust, then Kader's is the place to go. All repairs are done in the store. Some repairs can be done while you wait.

Kader's encourages you to come in now and layaway for the coming holidays. Layaways require a ten percent down payment and even discounted items can be put on layaway.

As a special offer to the readers of this story, Kader's is offering 20% off all diamond rings, engagement and wedding rings, dinner and diamond cluster rings in the store. The offer is good for two weeks only.

If you haven't been to Kader's in a while, why not take this opportunity to come in and meet Rick and Brenda.

Some faces that may be familiar to you are Danny Lott and Caryl Hogsett. Danny is Irma Kader's son and has been a jeweler for seven years. Caryl has been a salesperson with the company for five years.

Kader Jewelers is located in downtown Sanford, at 118 South Park Avenue. If you have any questions on jewelry or gifts available at the store, give them a call at 322-2363. The store is open 9:30 AM to 5 PM daily, except Saturday and Sunday.

Apparel By Silvuh Celebrates Grand Opening In Longwood Historic District

There's a "new" shop open in the "old" Longwood Historic District, and Wednesday, September 16, they are celebrating their grand opening. Everyone is invited to come.

The "new" shop is Apparel By Silvuh, owned and operated by Penny Brown and Thelma Bellman. Apparel By Silvuh is a "unique boutique" featuring custom clothing for those on a budget.

Although the business is new, the house in which it is located is old, seventy years old, which qualifies it to be included in the collection of businesses promoting the historic district. The owners say you would not recognize the house as it is now, if you had seen it before it was lovingly resurrected from the vines and trees and underbrush which had all but overtaken the property. Restoration of the building was done with creating a relaxed, comfortable atmosphere in mind, while accentuating the features of the interior, such as the tongue and groove ceiling and the brick fireplace. The owners say the make-over has been sanctioned by the historic commission.

The grand opening Wednesday will showcase the house and all of the wonderful fashions available at Apparel By Silvuh.

The collection features Bridal and Formal Wear, as well as Business Coordinates and Dressy Sportswear. Some, but not all, are hand created by Penny.

One focus of the boutique is to create custom apparel for the working woman on a budget or the bride on a shoestring. Penny says, "bring in your ideas." If you see something in one of the fashion magazines, that is not available locally, she will try to create the same look just for you. Even if you are accustomed to shopping at some of the finer department stores, Apparel By Silvuh has something for you. You can eliminate the extra charges for alterations by having fashions made to fit your body shape.

For the bride, Apparel By Silvuh offers everything from the gown and veil, bridesmaids and mother-of-the-bride dresses, personalized trousseaus to heirloom quality gifts. They can even "recreate or remodel Mom's wedding dress or veil, even Grandma's dress." The gifts for the wedding party or the bride range from picture frames to ring pillows, all are handmade and beaded with no glue to crack or discolor.

Apparel By Silvuh is also offering gown rental for the bride and some bridesmaid dresses, starting at $100.

Other services offered are calligraphy, make-up and color analysis, gift counseling and accessory coordination. Not only is there a wide selection of jewelry, scarves and belts, but Apparel By Silvuh has the resources to find something unique to provide a "total look" package for the professional woman who doesn't have time to do it for herself.

Some advice for the bride or the career woman considering a new wardrobe is to plan ahead. While most of the fashions available at the boutique are "off the rack", others will have to be custom designed, and that takes time. Other events to consider are upcoming high school homecomings, holiday parties and high school proms. And don't forget you can pick that gift with a special touch for Christmas, anniversary or birthday, too!

The festivities of the grand opening open house will include a door prize drawing. Register for a free color analysis and make-up and free tuxedo rental. The grand opening will be held Wednesday evening from 5 PM to 9 PM. The boutique is open Tuesday through Saturday from 10:30 AM to 6:30 PM, with special hours available by appointment. You are invited to come in often and browse. The inventory will change often with new and exciting fashions always available. If you have any questions on the services available, call Penny or Thelma at 322-0212.

The shop is located at 313 West Bay Avenue, two blocks north of State Rd. 434, on the street directly behind the Enchanted Cottage.

GARAGE SALE GUIDELINES

1. Cleanliness counts. Wash, vacuum, mop, trim, and tidy up. Clean, neat, and organized are the most popular items.
2. Make it convenient to shop at your garage sale. Be sure there is adequate parking space. Post signs with directions to parking areas. Make arrangements with neighbors.
3. Make it easy to pay! Have plenty of change and a system for handling. Make sure one person is on duty at all times. A calculator is handy with a calculator or adding machine.
4. Priced right. Do not make every person ask. "How much is this?" Prices make for quick, effective sales or a good place for customers to start bargaining.
5. Get an early start. Set up displays the evening before, if possible.
6. Segmentation. Separate the inexpensive items from the more costly ones. Group furniture, dishes, toys, lawn equipment and other items with similar uses.
7. Good weather and good luck! Open for 1, 2, or 3 days. Consider having a bank of items that are "FREE" with purchases of $20. Remember the youngsters, too. Encourage this with small, low-priced items that are appropriate for this purpose.
8. Time your sale carefully! Have it at a time when most people are at home and unmolested with special events.
9. Consider your effort! Incorporate your sale with a reason for being nearby and your reason.
10. Be organized! Have your items grouped by category, not by individual item. Don't allow your "treasure" to be hidden. Each time you list an item, you are broadening the list of potential customers.
11. Be generous! If you have items left over, give them to a charitable organization. If you see that some items are not moving well during the sale, mark them down during the last hours. Remember, the price reason for holding the sale is to low your unwanted items into cash!

Forget the gridlock Congress

WASHINGTON — Remember the gridlock Congress? Forget it.

President Bush now says it is certain to be supplanted by a new look Congress he could work with in a second term, even if the Democrats remain in solid control, as they almost certainly will.

Besides, Bush said, if he can't get his agenda through the House and Senate, he'll go around them to get things done.

"With a new Congress, I think we'll have something entirely different than the gridlocked Congress that I've been facing," Bush said, explaining how he'd push his repackaged economic program, Agenda for American Renewal, the new centerpiece of his re-election campaign.

Hawaii continues hurricane cleanup

LIHUE, Hawaii — Relief supplies and federal troops poured into hurricane-thrashed Kauai, replenishing a hospital and buoying those with bare cupboards. Gasoline and other items remained in short supply, and price-gouging was reported.

Wilcox Memorial Hospital was running low for a while on tetanus vaccine because so many people were stepping on nails, said Wilcox Memorial Hospital spokesman Steve Hoaler. Many on the resort island wear sandals.

On Monday, military and emergency flights ferried in supplies and brought out people, even though the airport was still without a control tower.

The USS Belleau Wood, an amphibious assault ship, arrived with 27 five-ton trucks, Humvees, 10 field kitchens, field showers and about 300 troops.

Red Cross needs relief

WASHINGTON — An unprecedented string of natural disasters from Florida to Guam has left the American Red Cross and sister agencies in need of relief themselves.

Hurricane Andrew was only the most visible of one of the worst strings of natural calamities in modern times. Hundreds of thousands have been victimized by rapid-fire blows from Andrew in Florida and Louisiana, tornadoes in Wisconsin, Typhoon Omar in Guam and the latest, Hurricane Iniki on the Hawaiian island of Kauai.

"It's fair to say that this kind of situation is unprecedented," Red Cross spokesman David Giroux said Monday.

Peacekeeping force to quadruple

UNITED NATIONS — The Security Council has voted to more than quadruple the U.N. peacekeeping force in Bosnia-Herzegovina, to at least 6,800 soldiers, and is giving the troops authority to fight back if attacked.

The peacekeepers are to protect humanitarian aid convoys and Muslims and Croats released from Serb-run detention camps.

The council voted 12-0 on Monday to accept a report from Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali recommending that peacekeepers commanding convoys in Bosnia be allowed to use force if attacked or if their mission is blocked.

Ferraro makes comeback bid

NEW YORK — Her double-digit lead in the polls wiped out by personal attacks from her opponents, Democrat Geraldine Ferraro waged a too-close-to-call comeback bid in a U.S. Senate primary today.

In a New York congressional race, Democrats were urged to vote for a dead man — Rep. Ted Weiss — instead of a fringe candidate running as a Democrat.

Six other states and the District of Columbia also were holding primaries today.

Runoff candidates account for funds

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Candidates for Seminole County sheriff and elections supervisor reported slow campaign activity in the days immediately before and after the Sept. 1 primary.

Reports for candidates in the Oct. runoff and Nov. 3 general election were required to file contribution and expense reports with the Supervisor of Elections Office Monday. The report period covers Aug. 29 to Sept. 7.

In the sheriff's runoff, incumbent Don Ealinger reported taking in a $100 contribution from James Campbell of Orlando, a lawyer, as his only contribution. Ealinger reported spending $71 from petty cash.

Ealinger's GOP challenger Larry Conniff was busy during the 11-day reporting period. Conniff reported taking in eight contributions totaling $1,331.

Conniff's contributions included $500 each from Butch's Chevron in Sanford and Dave Jones Wrecker Service in Fern Park. Conniff also reported taking in $100 each from J.D. McGraw and Co., Altamonte Springs, and Richard L. Fletcher, Sanford. Conniff reported spending $826.

The GOP winner will face Democrat Charles Fagan in November. Fagan reported taking in no money and spending $9 for a bank service charge. Fagan reported a campaign account balance of $157.

In the supervisor of elections race, incumbent Sandra Goard reported taking in no contributions nor spending any money during the report period. Goard reported an account balance of $533.

Goard's Democratic opponent, Sandra Brown, reported making a $100 contribution to her own campaign and receiving two smaller amounts. Brown reported spending $250 for campaign signs. Brown reported an account balance of $143.

Astronauts levitate liquid drops

By SUSAN MONTGOMERY
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Endeavour's astronauts today levitated liquid drops using sound waves, after achieving the fertilization of eggs produced by frogs in orbit — a space first.

Mae Jemison balanced reddish beads of mineral oil in an acoustical chamber using sound waves from three speakers before some of the eight or so drops drifted off and burst.

But scientists said they had some success manipulating a few of the drops, which ranged in size from less than a half-inch to nearly an inch.

The experiment may help scientists develop methods of processing materials without contaminating them by touching container walls.

Monday, Endeavour's astronauts got some good news on their frog embryology experiment.

Four South African clawed frogs aboard the space shuttle were injected Sunday with hormones to induce ovulation. The two frogs then were chosen to provide 600 eggs that were drenched with sperm. Half the eggs were placed Monday in a centrifuge providing artificial gravity; the others were incubated in low gravity.

"It's the first time we've had ovulation (in space) in a higher species, in this case the amphibian," said principal investigator Ken Souza of NASA's Ames Research Center in Mountain View, Calif.

"We've also had fertilization," he said Monday. "We now know that the eggs can be fertilized in the absence of gravity."

Souza said he won't know until after the flight exactly how many eggs were fertilized. The tadpoles should hatch by Wednesday afternoon.

Jemison, the chief frog handler, received special thanks Monday night from NASA's payload control center. The four frogs also were saluted. "especially Mrs. No. 118, who performed superbly," said payload control's Homer Hickam.

Meanwhile, another of Endeavour's animal studies hit a snag.

One of two orange and silver Japanese carp, or koi, became tangled in its electrode line and couldn't swim around in its cylindrical aquarium.

The fish was "in great shape" despite its predicament, payload commander Mark Lee said. The other koi, which had its own aquarium, could move without restriction, he said.

Surgically attached electrodes are recording the electrical activity of the fishes' brains as they are stimulated by light.

One of the fish also had its otolith removed before flight. The otolith, a gravity sensor, helps maintain balance, and scientists hope to apply the findings toward space motion sickness in humans.

Most of the Spacelab experiments are Japanese; besides fish and frogs, Japan has 7,600 flies and 30 fertilized chicken eggs aboard Endeavour. There also are 180 hornets, an Israeli experiment, aboard for the seven-day research mission that began Saturday.

Now you can make heat out of thin air.

A few years back, scientists developed something that could keep you warm in winter without burning a single drop of oil or molecule of gas in your home. And keep you cool in summer without using one kilowatt of electricity more than necessary.

They called it a "heat pump" that innocent-looking thing you see at the right. But it wasn't until today that anyone developed something to help the average homeowner afford such sophisticated technology.

We call that the "FPL Heat Pump Discount." You don't have to understand all the technical details of how a heat pump works (and they can get pretty technical) to take advantage of its efficiency. All you have to know is that there are scores of reliable, hard-working contractors ready to knock up to $584 off the price of qualifying equipment if you just tell them FPL sent you.

You'll save money on the cost of a heat pump system. And the system will save you every month on your energy costs.

If you'd like a list of FPL participating independent contractors, plus a buying guide and discount details, call us at 1-800-DEAL-FPL (1-800-342-5375).

We can help make high heating and cooling bills vanish into thin air.

IN BRIEF

AROUND THE STATE

Woman shines for Lightning

LAKELAND — Manon Rheaume, the first woman to try out for a National Hockey League team, is unmistakably the crowd favorite as she seeks a berth on the Tampa Bay Lightning.

During her 25-minute stint on the ice Sunday during scrimmage games at the Lightning's training camp, Rheaume had 11 saves and allowed three goals, one on a penalty shot.

Her total from two scrimmage games so far with the expansion team are 25 saves and three goals. That put Rheaume in a three-way tie with J.C. Bergeron and Wendell Young as the stingiest of the eight goalies in camp.

AROUND THE NATION

Dolphins survive opener

CLEVELAND — Very few quarterbacks can make you nervous when they're three points down, 84 yards away, with a minute left in the game. Joe Montana comes to mind. John Elway. And of course, Dan Marino.

After the Miami Dolphins blew a 20-3 fourth-quarter lead Monday night, Marino hit four quick passes on an 84-yard, 68-second drive that beat the Cleveland Browns 27-23. Mark Higgs finished it off by diving over from 1 yard out with seven seconds remaining.

It's the 18th time Marino has brought the Dolphins back from a fourth-quarter deficit. He went 23 of 35 for 322 yards, leaving him eight completions away from surpassing Johnny Unitas for fourth all-time.

Game to benefit storm victims

DURHAM, N.C. — Money from ticket sales at Saturday's football game between Duke and Rice universities will be donated to efforts to aid victims of Hurricane Andrew.

Duke athletic director Tom Butters told reporters that all proceeds will be donated to the American Red Cross/National Disaster Relief Fund. In addition, all gates at Duke's Wallace Wade Stadium will have information tables and collection boxes available for fans to make a cash donation to the relief fund.

San Fran. to protect investors

SAN FRANCISCO — The San Francisco Board of Supervisors voted unanimously to provide a legal shield for investors willing to buy the San Francisco Giants and them in the Bay area.

The nine supervisors voting said the city would indemnify the investment group headed by George Shinn from damages arising from its bid to purchase the Giants from Bob Lurie.

A group of Florida investors said they would sue if their $115 million agreement in principle with Lurie is interfered with.

"This is an issue that is worth the calculated risk," Supervisor Jim Gonzalez said.

Gonzalez and others argued that the benefits of keeping the Giants outweighed the risk of a financial judgment against San Francisco.

Knicks acquire Campbell

NEW YORK — Tony Campbell, after three years as Minnesota Timberwolves leading scorer will reunite with coach Pat Riley on the New York Knicks next season.

The Knicks surrendered a second-round draft choice for Campbell, a 20.8-point scorer in three years with Minnesota.

Campbell, 30, who has played small forward and guard, replaces forward Xavier McDaniel, who signed as a free agent with Boston.

Campbell averaged 23.2 points in the Timberwolves' inaugural season of 1989-90, then fell to 21.8 and 16.8 the last two years.

Wet and sloppy debut

Slow going for Super C

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Neither rain, nor mud, nor gloom of night can keep a softball player from his appointed game.

That take-off on the old Postman's Motto fit the opening night of the Sanford Recreation Department Men's Super C Fall Slowpitch Softball League at Chase Park to a T as the field was wet and messy and the skies were threatening but most of the teams showed up for night of highly competitive fun.

In the first game of the evening the "new" Ken Rummel Chevrolet (formerly The Regulators) edged the "old" Ken Rummel team (now sponsored by Whiskey River) 11-10 in eight innings on a two out single by Bobby Keefer.

In the second game, defending Spring League champion Cafe Sorrento picked up were it left off by beating Sanford Ace Hardware 9-2. The scheduled game between Crazy Wings and Franklin Ball Bonds turned out to be a 7-0 forfeit win for Franklin after Crazy Wings failed to field a team.

Next week, Franklin Ball Bonds opens the night's action against Cafe Sorrento at 8:30 p.m., Whiskey River plays Sanford Ace Hardware at 7:30 p.m. and Crazy Wings takes on Ken Rummel Chevrolet at 8:30 p.m.

Mike Marshall's two-run homer in the first inning helped stake Ken Rummel Chevrolet to a 3-0 lead. Rummel built a 4-1 lead, but Whiskey River came up with four runs in the bottom of the fourth inning to tie the game at 4-4.

The winner's again took a three-run lead, 10-7, but once again Whiskey River came up with three runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to tie the game at 10-10 and force extra innings.

Eric Johnson started the fateful eighth inning by reaching on an error and, after a pair of outs, advanced to third when Jerry Governale also reached on an error, setting the stage for Bobby Keefer's game-winning single.

Contributing to Ken Rummel's 19-hit attack were Bobby Keefer (three singles, two RBI), David Goldstick (two triples, two runs scored), Chris Nickle (double, single, run, RBI), Governale (two singles, two runs, RBI), Cary Keefer (two singles, run, RBI), Jim Smith (two singles, RBI) and Scott Murphy (two singles, run).

Cleveland makes big plays count

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

LONGWOOD — Lyman High School's Todd Cleveland proved Friday night that if you don't have to win all of the battles to win the war.

The senior quarterback did not have one of his better statistical performances, but two long touchdown plays was all it took to turn a 9-0 deficit into a 15-9 upset victory over visiting Sanford-Seminole.

For his efforts, Cleveland has been selected as the first Sanford Herald Player of the Week for 1992.

Within a span of a little over eight minutes from late in the third quarter until the mid-point of the fourth period Cleveland tossed a 45-yard scoring bomb to Bobby Washington and then took back a punt 73-yards for the game winner as the Greyhounds broke a seven game losing streak and gave Larry Baker a win in his initial game as Lyman's head coach.

"I don't know if I can break it down to feature Todd," said Baker when asked of Cleveland's performance. "We were real proud of all of the kids, especially their play in the second half. I felt they showed a lot of character, they could have thrown in the towel when they fell behind 9-0."

"But they realized they had to play a little tougher than they had been playing. Obviously Todd was

Brown's girls qualify for sectional and state

From Staff Reports

PALM BAY — Brown's Gymnastics Central of Altamonte Springs continued to show its stuff as the top gym in Florida as all 30 girls who competed in the First Local for the Level IV and Level V Girls at Palm Bay this past Sunday qualified for a trip to either the sectional or state meets.

Nine of the 10 girls who vied at Level IV came up with enough points to qualify for state, while 15 of the 20 Level V's also accumulated state qualifying points. In fact, 2/10ths of a point was all the difference that kept all 10 of the Level IV girls from qualifying for state on their first attempt.

The sectional meet for both the Level IV and Level V girls will be held at Brown's Central the weekend of November 7-8.

Kim Wood, Jennifer Baldrige and Kelli Exum were the class of the event as each picked up All-Around titles at their respective levels. Wood was the Level IV, 8-8 age group All-Around winner, while Baldrige earned the title at Level V, 9-11 and Exum was the champion at Level V, 7-8.

Also earning top 10 finishes in the Top 10 All-Around at Level V were Michelle Irvine, 10th, 9-11; Katie Hardman, 2nd, 6-8; Brooke Sullivan, 3rd, 6-8; Stefanie Buhak, 5th, 6-8; Whitney Shepard, 6th, 6-8; Brittany Crupe, 7th, 6-7 and Charlotte Campbell, 9th, 6-8.

Women share experience of breast loss

DEAR ABBY: I would like to share my experience with "Inhibited and Embarrassed" who lost a breast to cancer.

I am a 41-year-old divorced mother of four — I am also a grandmother. I, too, had a radical mastectomy (last year), have undergone six months of chemotherapy and am facing a bone marrow transplant and radiation.

Abby, I lost all of my hair — including my eyelashes. Needless to say, I was not a very pretty sight.

I have been dating a handsome, successful, 41-year-old bachelor for two years, and he never once made me feel that I was ugly or repulsive. I can tell by his touch that he still finds me attractive — and even sexy.

ADVICE

Yes, there are men out there who see beyond physical perfection and will love you for what you are — inside and out. I hope you find one of them.

LUCKY AND LOVED IN DENVER

DEAR ABBY: By my 47th birthday, I had had a double mastectomy. There were only two things my surgery prevented me from doing: (1) becoming a topless dancer and (2) a nursing mother. I should add, neither would have been likely regardless of the surgery.

What I didn't realize, however, was that for many years I subconsciously remained in a marriage that was increasingly unsatisfying and hopeless. It was the fear of being alone that made me settle for this kind of marriage.

Finally, the situation got so bad that I took action and divorced. I am here to tell "Inhibited and Embarrassed" that I was amazed to find that I had many dates and one relationship before meeting and marrying a wonderful man. (We just celebrated our 10th anniversary.)

A real man is interested in the person the woman is. If all he wants is a pair of "boobs," what kind of woman would be interested in him?

When I asked my husband if he thought I should have reconstructive surgery, he replied, "Please don't do it for me — I love you just the way you are." I'm age 63 and "breastless," but he makes me feel more like a beautiful, sexy woman than I ever have before.

TOPLESS WINNER IN CINCY

DEAR ABBY: I had a mastectomy at age 38, and thanks to modern plastic surgery, I look better now than I did at 18!

I had a reconstructive surgery on my left breast, and an uplift on the other one. The results have done wonders for my morale. The surgeon used a saline solution implant, so there is no reason to worry about leakage.

If "Inhibited and Embarrassed" hesitates to date because of fear of rejection, she should consider reconstructive surgery. She could very well end up looking better and feeling better than before. I did.

SHEILA S. IN PHOENIX

DEAR ABBY: Here are more facts about U.S. presidents: I don't recall having seen this piece elsewhere. It was published in the Oakland, Neb., newspaper some years ago.

President Lincoln and President Kennedy were both deeply concerned with civil rights.

Lincoln was elected president in 1860; Kennedy was elected president in 1960.

Both Lincoln and Kennedy were assassinated in the presence of their wives.

Their successors were both named Johnson. (Lincoln's successor was Andrew Johnson; Kennedy's was Lyndon B.

Johnson.) Both successors were Democrats as well as Southerners, and both had served as U.S. senators. Andrew Johnson was born in 1808, and Lyndon Johnson was born in 1908.

Lincoln's assassin, John Wilkes Booth, was born in 1839. Kennedy's assassin, Lee Harvey Oswald, was born in 1939.

The wives of both Kennedy and Lincoln lost children through death while residing in the White House.

President Kennedy had a secretary whose last name was Lincoln. And President Lincoln had a secretary whose last name was Kennedy.

W.W.E., BLOOMINGTON.

DEAR W.W.E.: Thanks for sending it. It has been published many times over the years. The version you sent, however, contains an error: John Wilkes Booth, according to the sources I consulted, was born in 1838, not 1839.

Why is ex-smoker prone to asthma?

DEAR DR. GOTT: My friend has been a heavy smoker for over 30 years. She attempts to quit smoking but is stricken with asthma each time. She claims this is a phenomenon even her doctor can't explain. Can you?

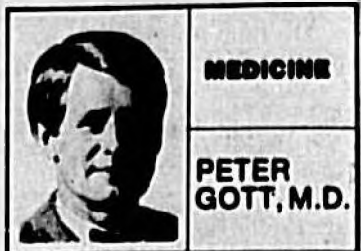

Temporomandibular-joint syndrome is caused by an abnormality at the hinge joint where the jawbone (mandible) attaches to the skull (temporal bone). In essence, there is an abnormality of this joint, leading to clicking (when opening the mouth), muscle tension (in the neck and cheek) and headache.

DEAR READER: I'm sometimes told by patients who are ex-smokers that they felt worse, coughed more and generally viewed life with less optimism when they quit cigarettes. Other ex-smokers experience increased appetite, constipation, nervousness, insomnia and a host of other complaints, which -- fortunately -- tend to disappear as the period of tobacco-abstinence continues. I have never heard of asthma worsening in a new non-smoker. I have been told that some asthmatics wheeze under stress; their breathing is worsened by anxiety and psychological pressure. Perhaps this is why your friend complains of asthma in the absence of cigarettes; the stress that was once relieved by nicotine now has "nowhere to go."

Regardless of the cause of this phenomenon, your friend made an appropriate choice to stop smoking. Her doctor should be able to get the asthma under control with a minimum of effort, using sprays, pills or special nebulizer breathing treatments. In this case, the doctor need not explain the idiosyncrasy (smoking usually makes asthma worse); all he needs to do is treat the asthma so that your friend doesn't have an excuse to return to smoking.

DEAR DR. GOTT: While hospitalized recently, I discovered I had TMJ. I've heard some alarming stories about this condition and don't mind telling you I'm worried sick. What type physician should I see for control of my condition?

DEAR READER:

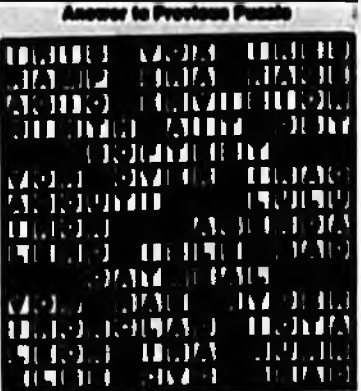

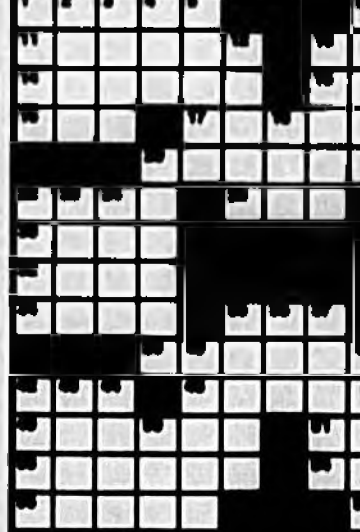

MEDICINE
PETER GOTT, M.D.

I do not believe this condition should alarm you, as it doesn't affect health or longevity. See a dentist for diagnosis, advice and treatment.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
It is a reliable rule of thumb that if you are in a 4-4 fit and faced with a 4-1 break, you do best not to try to draw all the trumps, but instead to play primarily on the side suits. Today's deal, taken from the 1992 Pan American Championships, is a good example of this.

The deal was played during one semifinal of the Open Teams. At the first table, the declarer won the club lead with dummy's ace and played a spade to his jack. West won with the queen and led the club king, forcing declarer to ruff. South cashed the spade ace, East discarding a heart. Now declarer turned to diamonds, but it was too late. West ruffed the third round, drew South's last trump with the spade king and led a club to his partner's jack: one down.

In the given auction, one club was Precision: artificial and strong, promising at least 16 points. North's one-diamond response was artificial and weak, showing at most seven points. The rest of the auction was natural.

Larry Cohen, on his way to the gold medal, saw the danger. After a club to dummy's ace, a spade to his jack and West's queen, and the club king ruffed, Cohen played on diamonds immediately. West ruffed the third round and led another club, but Cohen ruffed, cashed the spade ace and then went back to diamonds. When West ruffed with his last spade, he led a club, but it was ruffed in dummy. Declarer had conceded three trump tricks but had won the other 10 tricks.

Always allow for a bad trump split, if doing so doesn't endanger your contract.

ASTROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Oost
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Sept. 16, 1992

You could be rather fortunate in the year ahead in the way of business favors that may be granted to you by those you know socially. Keep on the best of terms with everyone in your club, church or bowling league.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 23) Try not to introduce volatile issues today into casual conversations with friends. A heated debate could result with very little provocation. Virgo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for Virgo's Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 81428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) An ineffective counselor could give you confusing financial advice today, so don't look to individuals who have trouble balancing their own books.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In order to sustain your independence today, you might unwisely reject the support of associates who only want to be helpful. This would be counterproductive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Business or financial decisions you make today could be overly influenced by your negative perspective, thus causing you to limit your possibilities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone you're quite friendly with is not looked upon as favorably today by another of your close pals. Don't arrange anything today that forces one upon the other.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you fail to lay all your cards on the table today, someone you'll be dealing with is apt to hold back critical information from you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you don't have something good to say about a friend who isn't present today, it's best not to say anything at all. Your comments will be reported in detail to this individual at a later date.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Only nominal achievements are likely today, yet this won't be due to a lack of initiative. You'll have the industrious inclinations, but your methods could be self-defeating.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you're not careful, poor judgment on behalf of someone you're closely associated with could cause complications for you today. Keep a tight reign on your ally.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If someone you know casually heaps unwarranted praise on you today, be aware that this individual may have ulterior motives. Don't succumb to flattery.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you're hoping to do something rather sticky without offending friends today, social matters must be negotiated with skill and understanding.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Two important career objectives can be achieved today -- if you handle them methodically. Be careful, however, you don't let go of what you own.
