WIN AT BRIDGE

In the papers, one way or another

By Phillip Alder

No doubt you will have noticed that these columns primarily relate to declarer play. Good defensive deals are far harder to find and are often difficult to explain in the space provided. However, a recent issue of the Bulletin of the International Bridge Press Association featured the good one.

The deal occurred during the Marlboro China Cup, an elite invitation-only event played in Beijing last October. It featured a play that is written up regardless of result. How did the defense go against four hearts?

I confess for the nation — experts will be aghast! North responded with a one no-trump because that was his partner's total bid when holding a hand like either, weaker hands were also possible. South's double was for taking, showing extra strength. The rest followed North and South playing uncertainty in unexplored territory, though eventually they came ashore in the normal contract.

This position had made it easy for East, Ed Rosen, to show his best suit. So, West, Dai Jianming, led the diamond three. Now, true, he would have led the three from any tripleton, but that was willing to gamble. After winning the first trick with the diamond queen, Rosen returned the diamond five. What is with his lead? West had no difficulty in finding his match to a club, giving East the vital suit. And in a moment, the heart king defeated the contract.

The open treatment was won by four French world champions. In the women's series, China finished first by a wide margin — a team that will surely win the Venice Cup or Women's World Team Olympiad in the next three years.

Phillip Alder's "Win at Bridge" column appears in the Comics in over 100 of the Seminoles Herald.

ASK DR. GOTT

Colitis is worse than spastic colon

DEAR DR. GOTT: That is the difference between colitis and spastic colon?

DEAR READER: Colitis means inflammation of the intestinal lining. It is characterized by diarrhea and abdominal pain. There are several causes for this inflammatory condition. The most common is ulcerative colitis, which is a chronic disease that causes inflammation and ulcers in the large intestine. Other causes include Crohn's disease, which can affect any part of the gastrointestinal tract, and infectious colitis, which is caused by bacteria or parasites.

Spastic colon, also known as irritable bowel syndrome (IBS), is a functional disorder of the large intestine. It is characterized by abdominal pain, bloating, and changes in bowel habits. Unlike colitis, there is no inflammation or damage to the intestinal lining in IBS.

The symptoms of colitis and IBS can be very similar, but the underlying causes and treatments are different. Colitis often requires medical treatment, while IBS is typically managed with dietary changes and stress management.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 52-year-old man who has been diagnosed with high cholesterol and hypertension. I'm also a smoker. I've been told that I should quit smoking and exercise more. I'm also told that I should take medication for my cholesterol and blood pressure. I'm confused. What should I do?

DEAR READER: It's important to take control of your health. Quitting smoking is one of the most important things you can do to reduce your risk of heart disease and stroke. Exercise is also crucial for lowering cholesterol and blood pressure. Medication can help, but it's best to combine it with lifestyle changes. Talk to your doctor about the best treatment plan for you.

Living in a disposable world

I've lived through The Atomic Age and The Nuclear Age. Now I'm living through something much more frightening: The Disposable Age.

Did you read about the Smithsonian Institution exhibit called "The Material World?" It featured a Styrofoam cup and a disposable Bic pen. Those were symbols of modern society in which everything is used and then thrown away. Nothing endures; nothing is permanent.

Kleenex exchanged for handkerchiefs. Throw-away plastic razors. Paper plates instead of China. Handwipes and Pampers supplanting cloth towels and diapers.

Modern technology provides consumers with disposable watches, cameras, contact lenses and telephones. People in a hurry want convenience without clutter, so once a TV dinner is zapped in the microwave, food containers are tossed in the garbage. It's easier and less expensive to discard things than to have them repaired, so few material things outlast their owners.

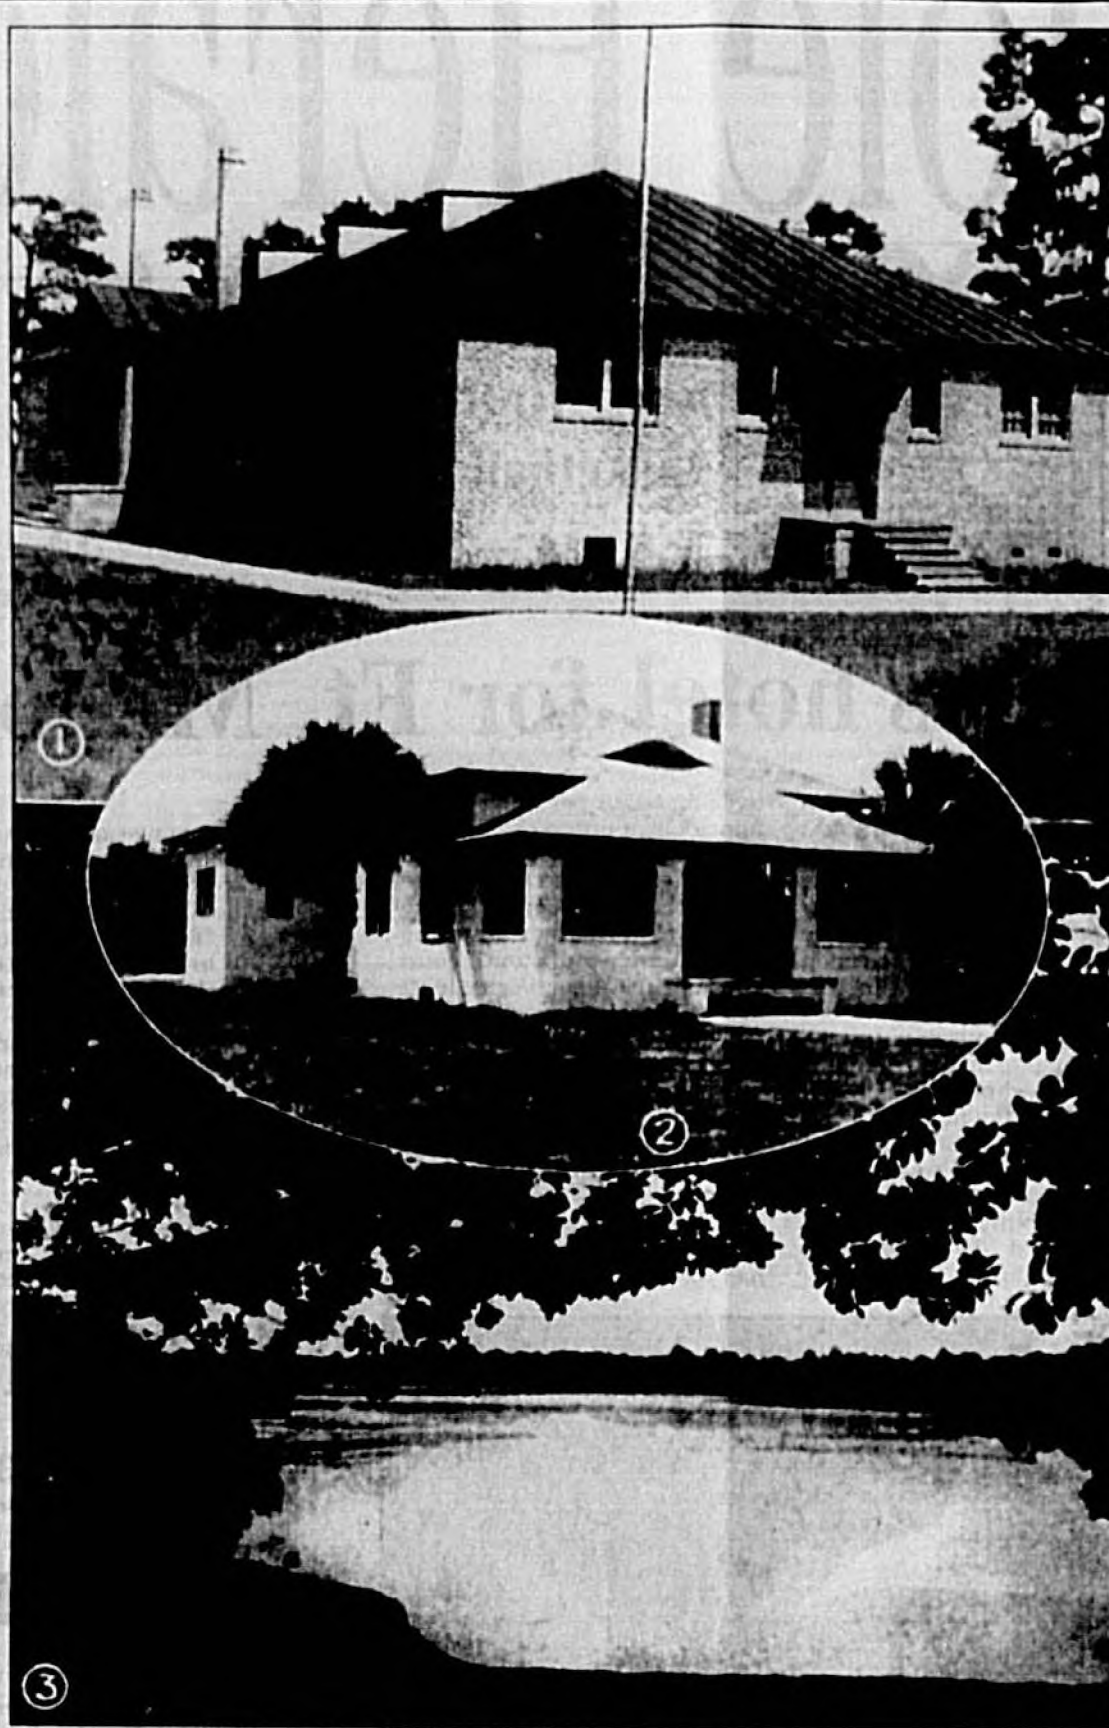

My grandmother lived with us until advanced age and numerous illnesses required a nursing home. She was a misfit in The Disposable Age. She liked to cook from scratch and save old things. Newer wasn't always better, she said. She told stories about her early life among cotton fields in Alabama. On the day she left us, I remember thinking that the modern trend was to dispose of people too. Sometimes, more for convenience than of necessity, inconvenient or bothersome people are taken elsewhere—to nursing homes, to divorce courts, to asylums or to day care centers. Just as with material things that break down, it's easier to dispose of worn-out relationships and broken commitments than to take the time and effort to mend them.

Traditions, values and standards also are discarded too readily. Heroes like Lincoln and King David have been exchanged for Rambo and King Kong. Classic literature and music have given way to TV soap operas and Hip-Hop. People are too busy to keep journals or diaries. They don't explore books when research data is at their fingertips on the Internet. Respect for God, country and family erodes when fake evangelists, crooked politicians, deadbeat dads and open marriages take the spotlight. What was good, true and absolute yesterday has been swapped for relativism and personal preference today. Even government officials' efforts to hold on to the Ten Commandments became a legal dispute. Is nothing worth preserving?

Personally, I've begun to preserve everything. Maybe it's just pernicious nostalgia that comes with facing up to one's own mortality upon growing older and, I hope, wiser. I've started cooking old, traditional foods I found listed under my mother's and grandmother's names in dusty recipe books. I'm listening to music that has withstood the test of time, and I'm reading again the books I loved as a child. I'm collecting family heirlooms, restoring old pictures, making lots of scrapbooks and writing down treasured memories I want maintained and cherished.

Instead of buying Christmas toys that will be broken and discarded, I've begun writing original books for my grandchildren. I want to give them a connection to their past heritage. When they come to visit, I don't read to them from somebody else's works. I tell them stories my grandmother told me—amusing incidents, family traditions and bits of history I want them to tell the next generation. It

POLICE LOG

The following reports were compiled from the Seminole County Sheriff's Office for incidents recorded through Feb. 7:

Disorderly intoxication:

SANFORD, French Avenue, 1500 block, Feb. 6, 10:26 p.m. A 29-year-old man was arrested for disorderly intoxication by Sanford Police. They found him lying on the pavement outside a grocery store. Sanford Police and emergency medical personnel responded to the scene. Officers said he responded in an abusive way when asked why he was on the ground and said he was combative when medical personnel tried to examine him. He refused to be calmed and told them to take him to jail if they wanted to.

Domestic violence:

SANFORD, Orlando Drive, 3600 block, Feb. 7, 1:01 a.m. A 27-year-old man and a woman who did not give her age were arrested by Seminole County sheriff's deputies for domestic violence. Deputies said they arrived to a complaint of a domestic dispute to find a man giving a "bear hug" to his live-in girlfriend while she screamed and struggled against him. Witnesses said they were arguing about his drug use when the woman asked him to leave. When he refused, she allegedly threatened him with a knife. Based on what they saw, deputies arrested him for domestic violence. During a routine check it was found she was wanted on an unrelated warrant so they brought the woman to jail as well.

DUI:

LAKE MARY, Lake Mary Boulevard at 5th Street, Feb. 6, 2:02 a.m. A 38-year-old man was arrested by Lake Mary Police for driving under the influence.

OVIEDO, Mitchell Hammock Road at State Road 434, Feb. 7, 4:11 a.m. A 46-year-old man was arrested by Seminole County Sheriff's deputies for driving under the influence.

Drugs:

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS, Ballard/Longwood Avenue, Feb. 8, 4:32 a.m. An 18-year-old man was arrested by Altamonte Springs Police for possession of cocaine, for driving with a suspended license and for an open container violation. Police said they stopped him for a traffic violation and said they knew his license had been recently suspended so they arrested him for that. During the arrest procedure, they searched him and found a rock of cocaine in his pocket and an open can of beer in his car.

Conference Center, updated in June, 1997, according to the agreement.

City Commissioner Kerry Lyons said PRA development and Sheraton may build a hotel without County support. Dale said he would rather not see that happen.

The city entered into a Memorandum of Agreement with PRA Development in October, 1997. The city held a referendum to approve plans for a hotel/conference center at Fort Mellon Park on Nov. 3.

Several residents spoke out against the proposed hotel/conference center.

Millard Hunt, a Sanford resident, said the referendum did not address the question of how to preserve Fort Mellon Park.

"A hotel is no more desirable in the park than a hotel and conference center," Hunt said.

The building of the gateway park and trail head is additional to the original $5.5 million contract for the construction of Rinehart Road, but Terwilliger said, even with the additional project, all work will be done by June, when the contract expires.

Sanford names hotel for Ft. Mellon project

By Bill Kerns
STAFF WRITER

SANFORD - Sheraton Hotels and the PRA Development Company have reached an agreement to build a hotel in Sanford, Mayor Larry Dale announced at the regular commission session Monday.

The agreement with Sheraton depends on PRA development funding a feasibility study, Dale said.

A letter from George Wallace, an attorney representing PRA, to Sanford City Manager Tony VanDerworp dated Feb. 2 confirmed "that PRA Management and Development Company has identified its flag as a Sheraton facility . . ."

Wallace said the feasibility study will begin "immediately following the county's selection of its design criteria for the conference center."

The City Commission granted PRA Development an extension on the time frame of the feasibility study Monday, so Seminole County, the City and PRA can determine the final nature of the project.

The feasibility study would be performed 10 days after Seminole County representatives and PRA personnel determine design criteria.

On Feb. 18 or 19, PRA President Joseph Pacitti will charter an airplane for county representatives to visit sites at Kingsport, Tenn. and Stone Mountain, Ga. that have been identified by the county as matching the needs for a county conference center, according to Wallace's letter to VanDerworp.

In Lake Mary, Pizutti development plans to build a 300-room hotel with conference capabilities. The company has not named the hotel they are working with, although Dale has said it is likely the Marriott hotel chain.

County Commissioner Daryl McLain said the county has voted in favor of Sanford as the site of the county conference center, and committed $400,000 in Tourist and Development Council funding toward the conference center.

"I can't remember us ever renegeing on an agreement," McLain said. "One of the things I've been concerned with is making sure we get a Flag (Sheraton) on board. We're going to commit the funds."

Dale said there is only room for one county conference center. He said the commission

"will move forward in carrying out the referendum" regardless of Pizutti's plans in Lake Mary.

"We're not going to build a county conference center without county support," Dale said.

PRA development's plans do not depend on working with the county, according to the revised agreement approved by the Commission Monday.

If in 60 days the county and PRA do not come to an agreement, PRA will build a Conference Center with total meeting space of 66,000 square feet as set forth in the Seminole County Feasibility Study for a Please see Hotel, Page 2A

David A. Giersch, Porter and Holmes Engineering, and Al Crump, Lake Mary commissioner attend ground breaking ceremonies for the trail head slated for Lake Mary. Rick Diaz, public works director, was also on hand for the festivities. The event attracted visitors and officials from around Seminole County.

Happy trails ahead for Lake Mary

By Brad Beale
STAFF WRITER

LAKE MARY - Traffic streamed by constantly as officials gathered Monday to break ground on the gateway park and trail head to be built at the corner of Lake Mary Boulevard and Rinehart Road.

Not yet completed, the four-lane Rinehart Road is already showing signs of becoming a busy north-south artery, driving home the need for the open space the new park will provide.

"We've had a lot of ground-breaking in Lake Mary lately, this is the nicest," said Deputy Mayor Thom Greene, who presided over the ceremony. Greene said he had heard criticism from residents for the preponderance of new office and retail facilities under construction in the city. He said he hoped the city would now focus on the development of open spaces for public use.

"It's very hard in an urban area to find open space," said Greene. "We feel we've made the right decision in building this."

In December of 1997, the city purchased two acres on the northeast corner of Lake Mary Boulevard and Rinehart Road for $750,000, with the goal of building a "gateway" to the city. The site will serve as a trail head to a two-mile, multi-use trail which runs north along Rinehart, and eventually to State Road 44.

The trail head will include a plan with fountains, bathrooms, pavilions, vendor space, lighting, signage, a bridge across the wetlands area, and other amenities for bikers, joggers, walkers, and in-line skaters. A committee, including members of the Lake Mary Parks and Recreation Advisory Board, made suggestions of the design of the park and the trail.

Greene noted that the trail is already popular with residents. As if to emphasize his point, several bikers and a jogger passed the gathering assembled under a canvas pavilion, near the park. When completed, the 14-foot wide paved trail will be designated as a Florida National Scenic Trail and be part of the Cross Seminole Trail.

Ozger Hols, with the county's planning department, said the connection to the system started near Winter Springs and Oviedo, will be made through power easements in The Crossings. She said preliminary plans also show the trail continuing north along Rinehart and eventually connecting along Uppala Road, to Sanford's Riverwalk.

Hols said Uppala is scheduled for widening and she wants to include the trail design and construction in the request for proposal.

The Rinehart Road trail will also connect to the Seminole-Webb Trail, which will follow an abandoned rail bed close to International Parkway, in the Heathrow International Business Center. A $3 million pedestrian fly-over will bridge Interstate-4 near the United States Postal Service regional distribution center.

As construction on Rinehart continues, work has already begun on the trail head park, with completion expected in late March.

The southbound lanes of Rinehart will be open by 2 p.m. Wednesday, David Terwilliger, of CFI Engineers, announced today.

"It's going real well," he said. Please see Trail, Page 2A

McLain opposes 'watered-down' billboard code

By Russ White
STAFF WRITER

SEMINOLE COUNTY - Commissioner Daryl McLain said he is against the "watered-down" land development code amendment for outdoor signs and billboard regulations. The issue was debated at a first public hearing today.

McLain and Commissioner Randy Morris oppose the amendment that would allow billboard advertisers to have larger and higher billboards.

The other three county commissioners favor the amendment. Commissioner Grant Maloy said he believes the advertisers who follow the county's request to spruce up their outdoor signs should be compensated. The advertisers have asked for 40-foot billboards - 10 feet higher than presently allowed.

The ordinance reflects the direction of the commissioners by addressing the ability to bring non-conforming billboards located on county roads into compliance by a certain date (five years from adoption of the ordinance).

The commissioners want to protect and preserve the character and appearance of the county, to lessen congestion in the streets, to provide adequate light and air, to prevent overcrowding of land and to preserve the existing environment.

It is the intention, therefore, that the all non-conforming signs and billboards in the county that are not located on interstate or federal-aid primary highways, shall be brought to conformity with the requirements of the new code. The commissioners supporting the code say the advertisers have benefited for 10 years from their signs and have been given ample notice of the new regulations.

The board expects to hear from some of the advertisers today, and from citizens who wish to express their concerns.

Law requires two public hearings - the first today at 1:30 p.m. A second hearing will be held at 7 p.m. on Feb. 23.

The proposed ordinance does not contain a provision for billboards to be located on the GreenWay - an issue that has stirred debate. It is a non-issue at the moment. Current Planning Division Manager John Dwyer said.

The ordinance does allow provisions for junior poster boards, reduced setbacks in M-1 zoning, setbacks from residential zoning and land use, landscape waiver provisions, elimination of the 150 foot separation from any ground/pole sign and the height increase from 30 feet to 40 feet.

"We're giving the people a chance to speak," McLain said. "A chance to say what they think about the billboard issue."

Dwyer said that county staff is recommending that on Feb. 23 the board enact the proposed ordinance subject to review of comments by Planning & Zoning and the Local Planning Agency.

The Board of Commissioners began a triple-header of meetings at 9 this morning. Their Please see County, Page 2A

Clean team sets wheels in motion

By Bill Kerns
STAFF WRITER

SANFORD - After literally picking up a ton of litter during Project Pride, The Scenic Improvement Board is seeking volunteers for a Clean Team to continue beautification efforts in Sanford.

Two weeks ago, from 9-11 a.m., 44 volunteers picked up more than 2,000 pounds of litter in Sanford for Project Pride. The Scenic Improvement Board formed The Clean Team Wednesday to spearhead efforts to clean up the city.

"I was shocked at what I saw people throwing away," Scenic Improvement Board member Ron Ross said. "I think education is one of the best answers."

Members of the Scenic Improvement Board will seek volunteers for The Clean Team by speaking at public schools.

The accumulation of junk and debris is regulated on a complaint basis, according to Dan Flitman of the Code Enforcement Board. This means that the city is dependent upon residents calling with complaints.

"When we get a complaint we send an inspector," Flitman said. "But we need to have a complaint."

The Code Enforcement Board accepts anonymous calls, at (407) 350-8844.

The next scheduled clean up is April 10, from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. Anyone interested in volunteering can call Eric Stines at (407) 322-9881.

Trouble spots the Scenic Improvement Board will focus on include Lynn Inn stop trash containers, South Street west of Ponce and Olive Avenue, the abandoned CEK Amtrak Depot, U.S. Highway 17-92 between 10th and 11th streets, and parts of 12th Street.
