Two-clerk battle set for tonight

Controversial store ordiance up for vote by Sanford board

LANGE & CHALLING

BANKORD - Lobbyists repreand retail organizations are expected to return to city hall tonight for further debate over a proposed ordinance requiring at least two cierks on duty at their eloren overnighi.

The city commission tonight will hear first reading of the controversial ordinance designed to improve security at convenience stores by requiring at least two cierks in the stores between 8 p.m. and 4 a.m., installation of security cameras and drop sales, better lighting in store parking lots and clearer visibility through store windows.

Representatives from 16 convenience store chains and retail organizations have argued that the regulations, in effect in four other Florida cities, do not deter robbery and violence. Instead, they have employees to violence.

The lobbyists for convenience store chains have also said their own voluntary crime prevention techniques are effective. Southland Corp., parent company of 7-Eleven, and the Florida Food and Fuel Retailers both have said the programs they affer for their employees and local law enforcement have helped reduced robbery and violence in their stores.

ford City Commission's delibera tion over adopting the regulations. Gainesville Police Chief Wayland Clifton said the ordinance has reduced convenience store rob-beries by about 70 percent since its adoption.

The city commission voted unanimously to draw up the convenience store ordinance Nov. 13. although one commissioner has opposed the regulations because it; places government controls on private enterprise.

Commissioner A.A. McClanaba has said the regulations may be unconstitutional, while he believes they may be effective in deterring crime. Government should not dictate the number of employees a business must staff, he said.

Amid controversy over regulat-ing the stores, a clerk at Circle K. 1606 W. First St., was stabbed to death during a robbery last week. Herbert Allen, 48. Deltona, had turned down an invitation to represent Circle K's opposition to the said, doubling the number of ordinance one week before his clerks on duty exposes more death because he supported the two-clerk concept, his wife Ruby Allen said last week. Store Man er Terry Witt has said he is oposed to the proposed ordinance.

Thomas Miller, president of the parent company of Handy Way Food Stores, said in a letter to the commission last week Miller Enterprises supports provisions of the ordinance requiring better visibiliment have helped reduced robbery and violence in their stores.

The ordinance is patterned after legislation adopted by the city of Gainesville in 1986. During San-

Survey: Convict Street was exception

MIAMI - A survey of 94 inmates granted early release from prison on the same day as Charlie Street showed that more than half were arrested again, but only 12 percent were involved in violent crimes.

Street sparked statewide outrage when he was charged with murdering two policemen 10 days after he was granted early release from prison. The survey, published Sunday by the Miami Herald, suggests Street's case was a fluke, not the norm.

Of the 95 men released under the administrative gain time program Nov. 18, 1988, Street was the only one later charged with murder, the Herald said.

Fifty-four were re-arrested on charges ranging from burglary and shoplifting to cocaine possession. But only 11 of the subsequent arrests, or 12 percent, involved violent crimes.

Street was the only one of the 94 charged with murder. He had been serving time for attempted murder when he was released Nov. 18, 1988. His trial is acheduled for April 2, and Street could face the electric chair if convicted.

FBI probes corruption at ports

MIAMI - The FBI is investigating members of the longshoremen's union for allegedly engaging in acts of extortion and racketeering at ports in Miami and Fort Lauderdale, a newspaper reported.

Double suicide watched by children

CRYSTAL RIVER - A Citrus County couple killed themselves in a double suicide witnessed by three of their children, authorities said.

Investigators said the three boys, aged 10, 14 and 15, were outside the family's mobile home when the heard their parents arguing Sunday. The boys looked through the window and saw their mother shoot herself to death.

They then went inside to find their father reloading the gun. They pleaded with him to stop, but he loaded the weapon and shot himself, police said.

Both adults were dead at the scene. The boys' 12-year-old sister was away at church at the time.

The children were taken to a friend's home after the shooting. Investigators have not released the cause of the argument that prompted the shootings.

Police, fire consolidation discussed

PORT RICHEY - Officials from Port Richey and Richty are discussing possible consolidation of their police and fire dispatching and other services, but they said total consplication is not imminent.

For years, there has been talk of merging the two cities into one. New Port Richey incorperated in 1925 to avoid becoming part of its larger neighbor. New Port Richey has a higher tax rate, but its residents also enjoy more city services. Officials from both cities said they hope to work out additional sharing of services.

Abducted child found safe

ORLANDO - Orange County authorities said a 4-year-old boy was found unharmed two hours after he was abducted Sunday.

The boy told police his abductor hit him on the head once when he tried to escape from the car, but investigators do not believe the boy was seriously injured during the ordeal. The child was outside his family's apartment when a stranger offered him a quarter for some ice cream. Witnesses said they boy willingly got into a car with the man and took off. About two hours later, a passerby found him wandering in traffic and called police.

Police said the descriptions of the suspect and the car are similar to those in the August abduction of another small boy from a nearby apartment complex. They are not sure whether the cases are related, but they said in both cases the suspect offered to buy the child ice cream.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Mercury threat source suspected

From staff and wire reports

ST. PETERSBURG - Interference with Florida's wetlands may have released naturally occurring mercury now showing up in the food chain, posing a long-range threat to humans, according to state officia

The theory may provide a clue to high levels of mercury state biologists have found in largemouth been in the St. Johns River and elsewhere throughout the state.

In October, state health officials issued warnings that been caught south of Lake Monro e should not be eaten more than once a week by health adults or once a month by children and pregnant women.

Health and environmental officials have looked for evidence linking the mercury pollution that began appearing last spring to coal-fired power plants, pesticide runoff from farms and other single sources.

But the levels were too high over too vast an area, encompaning most of the state. Half the state's water bodies contain wildlife that is tainted with the deadly toxin, these officials said.

Now Bob Pennington, the environmental contaminants specialists for the Florida Game and Freshwater Fish Commission. and University of Florida researcher Tom Crisman have a new hypothesis: Humans - by dredging, filling, digging canals and in other ways interfering with Florida's wetlands - have stirred up mercury that occurs naturally in the peat bogs underlying the wetlands.

Acid rain plan cost set at $1.8 billion

TAMPA - President Bush's plan to reduce acid rain could cost Florida's utility customers more than $1.8 billion over eight years, according to state officials.

The figure represents the Flor-ida Public Service Commission's estimate for costs that would likely be passed to ratepayers between 1996 and 2004, when the plan would take effect. The Tampa Tribune reported Sun-

When adjustments are made for inflation, the costs could rise to $7.6 billion. The money would pay for pollution scrubbers. cleaner but more costly fuels and construction of cleaner power plants.

Bush's plan calls for utilities to either cut their current emissions of pollutants or to freeze emissions if their levels are already low. The Florida power companies contend it would punish utilities that already have cut emissions and face increased demand from population growth.

"Our ratepayers would pay a higher rate, and that's not fair." said Rep. Mike Bilirakis, R-Paim Harbor, who sits on the House committee handling the president's bill.

The plan's corneratone is an "emission reduction credits" system designed to bring market incentives instead of traditional red herring in their move to get regulation to the industry.

emission levels, which could not be exceeded unless utilities have enough credits.

Utilities could earn credits and sell them to other utilities. Utilities such as Florida Power and Light Co., already cleaner than most utilities nationally. would not be able to carn enough credits by cutting emissions. FPL expects it will have to purchase credits in order to build the new plants it expects to need to meet its projected 23 percent growth by 1997.

The PSC estimates the cost to the utility's customers at $12 million a year.

Tampa Electric Co. and Gulf Power could earn credits because they currently use a lot of high-sulfur coal and could switch to cleaner, if more expensive, fuels.

A Tampa Electric spokesman said $271 million of the total cost of $530 million for a single plant the company has build were for scrubbers. The Tribune said Florida's utilities are joining forces with the Edison Electric Institute, a national group of utilities, to oppose the president's plan.

But Daniel Weiss of the Sierra Club says Florida power companies should create more credits by conserving energy. He accused them of balking at paying for legitimate costs for growth.

"We think the Florida utility companies are using this as a more allowances." Weiss said.

achools. Critical thinking skills, while designed to be used in all academic disciplines, can help mathematics students by letting them understand the problem. design a plan to solve it, carry out that plan and decide whether the plan worked.

Dr. Michael Hynes, director of the Institute for Research and Program Development in UCF's College of Education, said that the standard "paper and pencil tests are not telling us what the students are learning" in math

Hynes suggested that testing methods be developed that test the methods by which an answer was obtained as well as the answer itself.

"Too often the process of obtaining answes has been overshadowed by emphasis on the product," he said. "We want to impress upon teachers that they must question a student's thinking that led to solving a pro-

Hynes, a professor of education whose specialty is mathematics, has begun the "library study" part of his research and hopes to find out where there has been the most sucess with the critical thinking skills in other areas. He hopes, then to apply his findings to mathematics. According to Hynes, Americans have placed all their emphasis on the calculation process' in mathematics.

"But they put nothing into: The method is very much like unswering why a problem is: done a particular way." he all levels, but especially in the noted. "As we expand our ways" elementary grades, for all sub- of learning, we must naturally answer that question."

Clem Boyer, the Seminole! County school district coordinator of mathematics, said that teachers in Seminole! County schools have begun to teach their students the methods by which to think critically, but they have not yet begun testing the way in which a student arrives at an answer.

Hynes said that it is really impossible to separate one from another. "Teaching and testing are all: intertwined," he said. "It isn't! possible to look at one without! looking at the other."

Beginning in the spring of 1990, he hopes to go to Central Florida schools, including those in Seminole County and teach brief workshops to interested teachers. Later, after synthesizing the feedback he receives from those instructors, he will teach a more intensive class at the university.

"I think interested districts can have these methods in place by the beginning of the 1990-91 school year." he said.

He said that several Seminole County instructors have expressed an interest in the

A new museum for American Indians

This country doesn't really have a national museum devoted to the culture and history of the American Indian. The Museum of the American Indian in New York City functions as something of an unofficial national institution, but the museum is terribly inadequate.

It's handicapped by its out-of-the-way location on New York City's Upper West Side. Its handsome, old neoclassical building is so cramped that only 1 percent of the museum's prised Heye Collection of Indian artifacts has ever been on view. The museum does the best it can with limited resources, but its best is it can with limited resources, but its best is woefully inadequate.

Now, after years of talk and no action,

Congress is moving to address this major cultural inadequacy. This week, the Senate unanimously passed legislation that would establish a Smithsonian institution museum devoted to American Indian culture and history. The House already has passed similar regislation.

The museum will be in Washington, D.C., and Space on the Mall next to the Air and Space Museum. It will house the million-piece Heye Collection, estimated to be worth $1 billion, and the Smithsonian's own extensive collection of Indian artifacts.

To appease New York City, which is not happy about losing the Indian museum, a $25. million satellite institution will be housed in the city's Customs House. A $46 million museum support center also will be built in Suitland, Md.

The museum on the Mall is expected to cost $106 million. Most of the money will be provided by the federal government.

President Bush is expected to sign the legislation. Americans, and foreign visitors from around the world, will have an opportunity to better understand and appreciate the cultural and artistic contributions that native Americans have made to this continent.

An instrument of freedom

More than a million people are now packing their bags on the other side of what used to be called the Iron Curtain. They can now walk through holes in the Berlin Wall, they can climb in their little Lada or Skoda cars and drive to the West and they can now girdle the world as tourists, sightseers to the wonders of the free side of the globe.

As President Bush draped our Medal of Freedom around the large shoulders of Poland's Lech Walesa in a White House ceremony a few days ago, those millions east of the Curtain must know that this Polish shipyard worker is the instrument of their freedom.

Certainly the struggle against oppression in Eastern Europe is larger than the efforts of Mr. Waless. East German food riots in 1954. the Hungarian uprising of 1956, the terrible Prague summer in 1968 all have martyrs to the revolution that the Polish shipworkers competed. Yet in Lech Walesa, there seems to be the summation of the East European struggle against Soviet imperialism. In the shape of this bulky man from Gdansk, the yearnings of the people of the "Captive Nations" to be free culminated in a deliberate, peaceful upheaval. Poland's future is by no means secure.

"I am pleased to report to you, our stockholders, that when it comes to fraud and misman-agement — WE'RE NO. 1."

Do as we say, not as we do

WASHINGTON - It's an average day in the nation's capital.

In a downtown office a former government official, now a lawyer or "consultant," is meeting with a client. "I'm having a problem with a federal agency," says the client. "You have an old friend who heads that agency. Can you call him and convince him to give me what I want?

what I want?"

Meanwhile, in his Capitol Hill office, a member of Congress is meeting with a longtime supporter. "I'm having trouble with a federal agency," says the supporter, "You sit on the committee that passes on this agency's budget. Can you call in the head of the agency and convince him to give me what I want."

For their services, the lawyer/consultant receives a fee and the member of Congress gets a campaign contribution. The lawyer has traded on an old friendship. The member of Congress has exercised what almost amounts to blackmail.

Yet to hear members of Congress describe it, the representative or senator was simply doing his job, while the former government official was probably involved in a criminal act. Far from being a flight of fancy, this dual scenario is a daily occurrence in Washington, one that is presenting Congress with some ethical questions its members would rather not face. The House committee investigating the scandal at the Department of Housing and Urban Development has been very anxious to receive testimony about how Reagan administration officials — like former interior Secretary James Watt — received huge fees by making a few phone calls to former HUD Secretary Samuel Pierce for approval of HUD grants to clients' projects.

But the committee actually refused to receive testimony from several current and former housing officials who were anxious to describe pressure that here had been put under by describe pressure they had been put under by influential members of Congress. Twice, former HUD officials were cut off as they attempted to describe such contacts.

"There is not a day goes by that we do not hear from senators and congressmen about support for some pending grant," says a longtime HUD official who asks that his name not be used. "Some of them are clearly simple inquiry or courtesy letters being sent on behalf of a constituent.... But quite often the letter is followed by a demand for a visit to the congressman or senator's office, and then some real arm-twisting takes place. And if this guy is sitting on your budget or oversight committee, you had better believe his wishes get very close attention."

Take the case of New York's Republican Sen. Al D'Amato, who sits on the Senate Housing Committee. Proof is beginning to surface that D'Amato put pressure on Pierce to approve grants to several projects in New York that were sponsored by supporters — and, in one instance, by his own brother.

D'Amato initially denied the charge. Now, however, actual letters from him to Pierce are being leaked. D'Amaio says they were sent by staffers in his office without his knowledge. He insists he would have approved them in any case because supporting projects in his home state is precisely what a member of Congress is elected for — even if it might result in a sizable campaign contribution.

Much congressional arm-twisting of federal agencies is done in the name of constituent service.

Several cur-rent and former hous-ing officials who were anx "I was elected to help the people back home," is what all members will tell ious to de scribe pre you. Sometimes. though, 'back home' seems to cover a lot of territohad been put under by in fluential ry. For example, members of Congress. D'Amato appears to have pushed a number of HUD projects in Puerto Rico. The regional HUD office in New York does administer grants in Puerto Rico, but nobody in Puerto Rico votes for Then there is the case of Charles Keating Jr., owner of Lincoln Savings and Loan, the nation's largest failed S&L. In 1987, Keating and his associates donated more than $1.3 million to the re-election campaigns of five senators: Alan Cranston.

D-Calif. (the state where Keating had most of his S&Ls): John McCain, R-Ariz.; Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz. (Keating's home state), and banking committee members Don Riegle, D-Mich., and John Glenn, D-Ohio. On April 2. 1987. Cranston, DeConcini. Glenn and McCain called Federal Home Loan Bank Board Chairman Edwin Gray to Cranston's office to effectively tell him to get off Keating's back. A week later the four were joined by Riegle in a meeting with San Francisco-based regional banking officials who were raising questions about Lincoln. A new lobbying regulation bill making its way through Congress. It would require all federal agencies to keep a detailed, centralised log of contacts they receive from former government officials. But the same bill specifically forbids agencies to keep centralized records of congressional contacts.

Abortion: GOP strength or trap?

WASHINGTON — President Bush may be letting his political opponents paint him into a corner on a conservative issue, something Ronald Reagan never let happen.

This issue is abortion, and Bush already cost four vetoes because they contained some abortion-related provisions the president found unaccepatable. None of these bills — all appropriations for 1989-90 government programe — was solely or even mainly con-cerned with abortion.

But Bush rejected money bills to finance the Department of Health and Human Services, the District of Columbia gov-ernment (twice) and the entire foreign aid program because of what he said were unacceptable abortion provisions.

The foreign aid bill, for example, contained increased assistance to encourage democracy Hungary and the veto briefly held up that high visibility effort.

As has been said many times, in Washington, the perception of power becomes power and the same is true of the perception of helplessness. Bush. showing his veto muscle on the issue of abortion, may be in danger of appearing to be jerked around by it. There is not much doubt that the Democrats are helping this along. They may have been on the short end of this dispute early in the year when Bush began vetoing any lation that contributed to abortion for anything less than to save the life of the prospective mother. No lawmaker enjoys going to all the work of shepherding a bill to age only to have the president demonstrate his power with a stroke of the veto pen. Thus, the mere threat of veto often can kill a

But then came the 1989 elections in Virginia, New Jersey and New York City. which appeared to make the Bush position on abortion politically hazardous. The Demo-crats in those campaigns were generally in favor of the abortion laws as they developed after the 1973 Roe Vs. Wade decision and the Republicans were for something more restric-

The Democrats all won, probably not solely because of the abortion debate, but some other Republicans began worrying that they were getting mousetrapped on the issue. One Republican senator, a long-time supporter of abortion rights, offered the opinion that Bush masy have found the one issue that could defeat him for a second term.

That is a rather broad swing, inasmuch as presidential contests usually center on economic or foreign policy issues and on candidate personalities. But it is possible to see how what Bush is doing could hurt Republicans running for state and congressional offices.

Some of them might have completely or even slightly different ideas about abortion than Bush and the GOP's firmly anti-abortion platform, but unless they are willing to openly repudiate their president and their party, they are stuck with the Bush position.

Reagan never put his fellow Republicans in that kind of bind. He declared himself to be even more opposed to abortion than Bush. making no exceptions. But in eight years he vetoed not one bill because of abortion concerns and some of the legislation he signed had the same kind of provisions that Bush has refused to let by. And anti-abortion activists never questioned his dedication to their cause.

Washington, the perception of power becomes power and the same is true of the percep-tion of helplessness.

Raiders drop pair

PANAMA CITY - The road wasn't kind to the Seminole Com-munity College men's bashetball team over the weekend as they dropped a pair of games to out-of-state junior colleges in the News Herald Gulf Coast Classic.

The Raiders dropped a 96-87 decision to the defending Georgia juco state champion Emmanuel College of Franklin Springs, Ga., on Friday night and suffered a 97-82 defeat at the hands of Jefferson State Community College of Birmingham, Ala., on Saturday Seminole, now 7-3 on the se will have two days to regroup before hosting Central Florida Community College Wednesday night in the opening game of the Raiders' Mid-Florida Conference schedule.

Central Florida returns three starters and its No. 6 man from last year's state tournament team and also have picked up University of Florida transfer Jose Ramos, mak-ing the Patriots the pre-sesson choice to win the conference. Game time will be 7:30 p.m. in the Health and Physical Education Center on the SCC campus.

'Lucky' Bucs beat Cardinals

TEMPE, Aris. - Vinnie Testaverde, whose last-minute touchdown pass to Mark Carrier Sunday gave Tampa Bay its second straight 1-point victory, agreed with his coach that the Buccaneers were more lucky than good.

"Well, we didn't play very well," Testaverde said after the 14-13 triumph of the Phoenix Cardinals. "We had some penalties and I was missing my receivers." Testaverde didn't miss Carrier.

however, as the wide receiver caught the winning 5-yard TD page with 43 seconds left. Even with that, the game was not decided until the Cardinals' Al Del

Miami melts in downpour

MIAMI - The Pittsburgh Steelers handled the rain and the mud better than the Miami Dolphins and it paid off in a 34-17 victory Sunday.

Merril Hoge scored three touchdowns as he and the Pittaburgh Steelers powered past the Dolphins in a heavy downpour that submerged the nataural-grass field in two inches of water.

"We haven't had one in the mud like this in a long time," Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noil said. "Playing in the mud and winning it really makes you feel good."

The Dolphins built a 14-0 lead in the first quarter, but appeared to fall apart when the heaviest rain began falling in the second period. Miami fumbled five times in the first half, losing two, and Pittaburgh did not turn the ball over. Miami finished with three lost fumbles and two intercep-

"Obviously it (the weather) didn't affect us so much as it did Miami," Noll said.

Both interceptions were thrown by backup Scott Secules, who had replaced a hurting Dan Marino. But the Steelers had the game in hand by that time.

"It was raining on both sides,"
Miami Coach Don Shula said. "I'm just disappointed that we didn't handle the adverse weather."

Marino, who had suffered bruised ribs a week ago, said he left the game in the third quarter because of a sore shoulder.

'I got hit on my shoulder and fell on it before halftime," he said. "I didn't have any zip on the ball after that." ☐ See Delphine, Page 2B

He said he doesn't think his houlder will be a problem next shoulder will be a problem week and his ribs felt fine.

The Dolphins opened the acoring on a 1-yard run by rookie Sammie Smith and on a 06-yard pass from Marino to Mark Clayton.

But as the monacon intensfied, it the Steelers took control. Hoge scored on two 1-yard runs and one from 5 yards out. They added a 23-yard fumble recovery and lateral from Carnell Lake to Dwayne Woodruff and field goals of 42 and 27 yards by Gary

It was the first time in Hoge's three-year career he had scored three times in a game.

"I think the rain was kind of beneficial to us," Hoge said. "What it did was wake us up. We needed something to get us going and that's what it was.

"I think (the rain) had a big effect on them — they fumbled the ball a couple of times and I think that took their running out of it and their passing game is so much timing and stuff that the conditions made it tough."

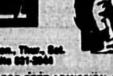

The rain began in the first two minutes of the game and built in intensity as the first half continued. By halftime there were two inches of water on the field and it was ankle-deep on the sidelines. The downpour stopped as the third quarter began, but the damage to the field was done.

It became apparent the game had turned around in the second quarter when Pittaburgh scored on the fumble recovery.

Smith fumbled the handoff from Marino and Lake picked it up and ran for two yards before lateraling to Woodruff, who took it the remaining 21 yards for the acore.

Stangents of New England, 1 p.m.

Against Emmanuel, SCC fell behind 15-8 six minutes into Friday's contest and continued to lose ground, falling behind by as many as 15 points. A sixpoint run at the end of the half closed the gap to 49-40 at the halftime and gave the Raiders reason to hope for a better second half.

SCC made several runs at Emmanuel in the second half, but the Lions would answer with a spurt of their own and Emmanuel stayed between seven and 13 points ahead most of the second half. Seminole made one last run late in the contest, closing to within five, but turnovers and foul trouble plagued the Raiders and the effort came

The free throw totals told the difference in the outcome as Emmanuel made 31 of 42 free throw chances while SCC made only 10 of 15. The only two Raiders having decent nights were Tony De Jesus (with 23 points) and Mike Gaskill (12 points and 12 assists). SCC also committed 31 fouls and turned the ball over 28 times.

Emmanuel was led by All-American candidate Eric Smith

Freshest Christmas trees are live

A greet family activity during the holiday season is purchasing a Christman tree. This year, for lots of fan, why last visit a Christman tree form and pick your own tree from those grow-

Most people prefer a live Christman tree. Usually, we go to a place that sells trees that have been grown somewhere up north. But local tree farms sell trees that are grown right here in Seminole County? By purchasing your tree right off the farm, you are gassuated of getting the freshest tree passible.

A fresh tree has good color and holds its needles well. Our weather usually causes trees to will quickly and then drop their needles. How well the tree nurvives depends as the type of tree and when it was cut. A freshly cut tree will liakt better and last

There are several ways to determine a tree's freshness. First, you can bend the needles. If the tree is fresh, the needles will be supple and bend easily. Feel the bottom of the trunk where the cut has been made. After a cut is made, a tree produces sap within an hour that can prevent the tree from taking up water. This is why you recut the tree before you put it in

The tree you select should have good green color, be full and bushy with a good shape. It depends on how big you want your tree, but look for a nice, full tree in the shape you want, advised Ted Williams, owner of Williams Christmas Tree Farm

"Some people want it for a corner so it can have a side that

"Some want it for a hallway, so they choose a slender one that will not stick out. Most people want the biggest, fattest tree they can find."

Once you find the tree that you like. It is important to care for it properly as it will last through the holidays. If you buy the tree several days before you are going to set it up, store it unide. Recut the trunk at a lingual angle about an inch hove the original cut and place in a container of water in a

When you are ready to set it up, now the trunk again, this time leveling it off. Williams said a fresh tree can drink up to a half gallon of water a day, so it is very important either to put it in a container that holds that much

"I suggest boring a hole in the bottom of the trunk and stuffing it with cotton." Williams said. "It will act like a wick and provide water to the tree." For safety's sake, check all Christmas tree lights for loose connections or worn wires. The tree should be in a place that is believe it's time for Operation Dear Abby V? Again, we will join tional chairman is still Donald P.

Last year. Operation Dear Abby sent more than 6 million pieces of mail to our servicemen and women stationed in Japan. Korea, Iceland and Europe, as well as to those serving in the Mediterranean and Indian Ocean. Tons of letters and packages were dropped from helicopters to aircraft carriers to cheer those who had been deployed for months. Schoolteachers in the United Sates and Canada made classroom projects of writing to our servicemen and women who would be far from home during the hilidays. Men. women and children who enjoyed baking sent cookies, brownies and fruitcakes. (The elderly residents of the Jewish Center for the Aged in St. Louis baked kosher cookies!) I received hundreds of heart-warming pictures of men and women in uniform, gathered around tables on which were piled literally thousands of let-ters and cards. Many wrote to describe how everyone frantically searched for envelopes bearing the postmark of their hometowns-or states. Veterans of World War II, the Korean War and Vietnam wrote to give our young service men and women a lift because they remember how sad it was to be half a world away from home over the holidays.

Last year, at least a hundred long-distance romances blossomed through the exchange of pictures and letters. (They honored me with invitations to their weddings!)

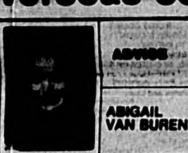

This year, more than 200,000 troops will participate in the program. Please join me in this campaign to let our servicemen and women know that you remember and appreciate them. Send as many Hanukkah and Christmas cards as you can. In previous years, hundreds of readers wrote to say that they were overwhelmed at the responses they received from grateful servicemen and women.

Write to as many as you can. I can't guarantee that every letter will be answered. Last year, one ship with only 500 men aboard received 60,000 pieces of mail! Obviously they couldn't read all that mail, so some of it was airlifted and distributed to other

However, you do not have to tween a blood problem and kidney stones. Probenecid, an anti-gout medicine that inses urinary excretion of uric acid, might be a good option for your doctor to consider. You could then avoid a serious reaction to allopurinol, while still treating your kidney stones. Ask your doctor about this.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Can you provide the medical word for the dying of the femur where it joins the top of the knee? My wife's bone doctor says her MRI diagnosed about two inches of her femur dead.

DEAR READER: I suspect you are searching for the term 'aseptic (avascular) neurosis." When areas of bone, especially those near weight-bearing surfaces (knees and hips), are deprived of blood supply (from injury or the aging process), the affected portions die. This results in pain, stiffness, brittleness and susceptibility to further injury.
