BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

SAFEGUARDED: — He shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways.

Psalm 91:11.

Sometime sent Hoey Long a bunch the other day probably figuring it would help with his boom.

We suppose if the State has to keep this branch line for the repayment of taxes, Jim Lee may claim he's being railroaded.

There is certainly a brilliant red glow on the horizon. The "Brain Trust" has gone red. The government is in the red. And the taxpayers are seeing red.

They were giving old Uncle

Andy a dry cleaning. By the time this investigation is over, he ought to have a pretty good idea of what he is worth.

One of the major failures in the world today is that there can be no war because no government can afford one. As a matter of fact most nations fight wars because they are broke.

According to the Bureau of Aggricultural Economics, the price of eggs and meat will continue to rise for the next twelve months at least. That will be a big help to those who have meat and eggs to sell.

THE KINGFISHERS, long a habit in Louisiana for another special session of the legislature. We don't see why they don't just move

Congress down to Baton Rouge so that the "Kingfish" won't have to make so many trips back and forth.

Major LaGuardia of New York, whatever else he may be, is no play. When asked the other day after his conference with President Roosevelt regarding Public Works, "How much do you expect to get in federal funds in 1935?" the Major replied, "All I can spend."

Beware of out-of-town promoters, salesmen and racketeers!

There is scarcely a day that goes by that some scheme is not advanced which has for its sole purpose the extraction of coin from the pockets of local merchants for the enrichment of some Kinerantaker. If everyone would just say

"No" to every proposition, that comes along, by the end of the year we would be sitting pretty.

The government estimates that there are still 16,000,000 unemployed, in spite of the four million men which the NRA put back to work, in spite of several hundred thousand in the CCC camps, in spite of all those who have been given permanent government jobs in the AAA, the HOLC, and some of the other organizations, and in spite of all those who have been given jobs in private industry as a result of the huge sum of money which the government is spending. The unemployment total in 1935, if all this is true, must have been terrific.

Demands for inflation in Congress are increasing—not the kind of inflation which we have been having for the past two years, but the kind of inflation which comes from printing new currency and distributing it rather freely. If this country is too poor to pay the prevailing rate of pay on its public works with borrowed money, some of our Congessional leaders insist, then the government should print the necessary money. If we must make every man a king, printing the money will do it.

It avoids the burdens of indebtor debt, and the popular anxieties of high taxation to repay debts. It would introduce the whole country with an unexpected wave of prosperity for the moment. Just what a long time.

War And Capital

Whether the government takes over the actual operation of munition plants in the next war or not, there will be no profits from them comparable to those of the last war. Further there will be no profits in any industry of tremendous proportions if the government and the people of this country have their way about it. Laws are now being drafted which will fix prices, and hence, profits, at their pre-war level. All additional profits will be drafted by the government just as the soldiers who do the fighting are drafted.

Commenting on the testimony of Eugene C. Grace of the Bethlehem steel and shipbuilding companies that "there is a difference between drafting manpower and drafting capital," the New York Herald Tribune takes a realistic attitude toward the problem when it says: "We agree with Mr. Grace that the problems of government operation of industry in war time are difficult in the extreme. We disagree with him totally if he imagines that in another major war the presidents of munitions companies are going to collect bonuses of $1,500,000 a year or that private capital is going to be permitted to operate comfortably on cost-plus contracts and the assurance that it will be fairly compensated" for its services. If another major war does not start with the conscription of everything in sight, it will come to it in short order as surely as Great Britain and the United States in the last war came to universal conscription of men and a certain amount of confiscation of capital as well.

"What, in heaven's name, one is tempted to ask, do these great industrial magnates who have been paraded before the Nye committee imagine that another major war will be? They can see something of the immense horrors driven by the last one through the whole social and economic structure of early twentieth-century civilization. The Nye committee has devoted most of its attention to the hope of preventing another war by chivying munition manufacturers. This seems to us utterly illusory, and the committee's own suggestions for financial and economic preparation have been unimpressive. But what suggestions have come from the industrial great men of the last war?

"As far as can be made out it has not even occurred to them as yet that if they do not study practicable plans under which the government can draft the whole productive power of the nation in the next war, the drafting, which is sure to come, will probably be not only inefficient and confused but may well threaten the end of private capital for good."

More About The Sales Tax

Further comment on a statewide sales tax for Florida to help raise revenue lost through the adoption of the Homestead Amendment and for other appropriations which must be anticipated is offered by the Miami Herald which points out the progress which the sales tax is making in a number of states.

Colorado has just adopted a 2 percent sales tax, bringing the total number of states experimenting with the tax to 13, the Miami paper says. Ten state legislatures are considering general sales tax bills. In Alabama, Massachusetts, Missouri, Nebraska and New Mexico, bills have been introduced calling for 2 percent taxes on retail sales. Three percent tax rates are proposed in Wisconsin, Tennessee, Arkansas, Georgia and Texas.

The 13 states that have a 2 or 3 percent general sales tax are Arizona, California, Colorado, Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky, Michigan, Mississippi, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Utah and West Virginia. The struggle with the proposition at its coming session.

The adoption of the amendment to exempt homes up to the value of $5,000 will dislocate the tax situation in Florida materially, which, in all probability, will increase the pressure on the legislature for some sort of sales tax.

Major LaGuardia of New York, whatever else he may be, is no play. When asked the other day after his conference with President Roosevelt regarding Public Works, "How much do you expect to get in federal funds in 1935?" the Major replied, "All I can spend."

But hope if not more press conference would break the deadlock over equivalent wage issue to be broken as Senate reconvenes.
