Spending a night of crime with elite cop squad

Just another Friday night out on the town in Sanford—but not for me, after riding with the four-member team that makes up Sanford's drug enforcement squad. Led by Commander Ray Bronson, QUAD aggressively battles the increased activity of narcotics while sensitively relating with the residents of the city's drug-infested neighborhoods.

Sanford Police Department Q.U.A.D. Squad (Quick, Uniformed Attack on Drugs) Cmdr. Ray Bronson momentarily could not find the guys. "Where are you all at?" He spoke into his radio as he stood in the parking lot behind the police station after a quick tour of the building in search of his men. "We're in your office," Ofc. Chuck Locher answered. Bronson shook his head and chuckled.

"Come on. Time to update the guys."

On a recent Friday, the squad shift began with a briefing on "hot spot" areas of accelerated drug activity in Sanford neighborhoods. Tenth Street and Pine Avenue, Eleventh Street and Pine Avenue and Tenth Street and Bay Avenue are among those on the agenda for the squad to patrol.

QUAD Squad leader, Ray Bronson, 45, is a 22-year veteran with the Sanford Police Department. He also heads the Special Investigations Division. A Sanford native who attended Mt. Dora High School and Seminole Community College, Bronson and his four-member QUAD squad have made a major contribution to the community as they decrease the use and sale of drugs. He began his service as a policeman in 1974.

The squad officers are: Chief-Locher, 33; Bill McMurrer, 26; Buff Harris, 25, and Mike Plitt, 22 (Plitt was not present during this shift). See QUAD, Page 2A

Nazi flag draws complaints, but owner protected by Constitution

SANFORD — The cheery yellow house with its white picket fence and geranium laden flower boxes would stand out in the neighborhood of drab grey, beige and pale blue houses even without the flags.

But it is the flags that have drawn attention to Norval Angle's little home at 914 Park Avenue.

Angle has been decorating the front of his home with assorted flags.

The City of Sanford started receiving complaints after Angle added the Confederate flag to the American flag and the flag of the state of Florida. No one complained when he added the German flag. Even a Confederate-themed banner drew little notice.

But the complaints really started piling up when he added the Nazi flag to the collection.

"We have gotten dozens and dozens of complaints," said Charles Rowe, community development director for the city. Rowe oversees code enforcement for the city.

As far as he knows, there are no ordinances prohibiting the flying of such flags within city limits.

"I'm not aware of any city ordinance that prohibits such activity," Rowe said. "He does have a First Amendment right to freedom of speech and expression but these symbols could incite feelings to the point where it could be detrimental."

A neighbor who did not want to be identified said he believed Angle had the right to fly whatever flag he felt compelled to put out, but he believed some of the flags Angle has chosen to display are offensive to many.

"He has the right to do what he wants," the neighbor said. "I'm offended by it, but he has the right to do it."

Angle himself had no comment on why he chose the symbols he did or if he believed he was offending anyone.

"I don't have anything to say on that," he said when reached by telephone.

Storage facility will be the first thing you see

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The aim is to have a Recreation Maintenance Facility built to serve the Lake Mary parks and recreation needs. It needs to have sufficient storage space with room to grow.

It will have to be attractive enough so as not to offend anyone through its appearance as they enter Lake Mary city limits. In other words, it will have to be an impressively built structure.

At the same time, it will have to be built with the minimum amount of money available.

Furthermore, the need is immediate, right now, although no plans could be drawn or construction started for several months.

Such is the problem facing Lake Mary Parks and Recreation Director John Holland. The building which has been used for recreation department storage, the old Lake Mary Volunteer Fire Association building, has been rented by the city for $2,400 per month. Now however, the city has been asked to move out by January 31.

Holland says that due to the fact that most of the city parks and property are located a short distance off Country Club Road, it is logical that a permanent maintenance facility should be established within that area.

With that in consideration, during Thursday night's city commission meeting Holland recommended the facility be built on the city's sports complex property.

The young lions of local government

By RUSS WHITE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — They are the young lions of local government, entering the political arena — or jungle — with vim, vigor and vitality.

Their names are Maloy and Lessard. Names you'll be hearing frequently the next few years — many years, perhaps.

Grant Maloy, 31, is the newest addition to the Seminole County Board of Commissioners.

Brady Lessard, 25, is one of the two recently-elected City of Sanford commissioners.

Rep. John Mica (R-Fla.) views the arrival of Maloy and Lessard as a triumph for Seminole County and the City of Sanford. "They're exremely capable young men," Mica said from his office in Washington, D.C.

"Sanford," Mica said, "is just on the edge of a development burst, and I can think of no one better qualified to help lead the charge than Brady Lessard. He represents the new breed of Sanford citizen. He's bright, he's concerned and he'll serve the city well."

Mica said the same applies to Maloy in his bid to serve the citizens of Seminole County. "There's a lot of hope and promise here — from Brady and Grant....They'll have to earn their spurs, of course. Take their bruises and mature in the process."

"I watched Brady Lessard as he grew up," Mica said. "And I'm watching both Brady and Grant today. Watching them with great expectations."

Enter Grant Maloy's office at the Seminole County Services Building.

due to a family emergency). Locher and Plitt have been on the squad since its origination in August of 1995; McMurrer and Harris recently were reassigned from road patrol.

Approximately 10 drug related arrests are made weekly by this combative patrol. Bronson and his men professionally work the streets of Sanford, yet the men remain on a first-name basis with the various citizens they encounter as they circulate the neighborhoods. On several occasions throughout the shift, people of all ages and races come running or waving when they spot the familiar QUAD faces.

Of course, just as many run in the opposite direction as soon as they see the marked cars rolling down their street. They have lookouts all the way down the street to see, and they yell, "QUAD, QUAD, QUAD!" Bronson said. "They know we are down there and they know we are coming down there before we ever get there."

Yet Bronson and his officers sneak into various areas on surveillance and respond to resident complaint calls in accordance to aggressively patrolling the east and west sides of town and making arrests.

Repeat offender says police violated rights during arrest

By JENNIFER EDWARDS
Herald Staff Writer

GOLDSBORO--Aric A. Williams, 20, of 1120 Florida Avenue, was arrested by members of the Sanford police QUAD-Squad Friday, Jan. 17, at approximately 8:56 p.m. He was charged with possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana and having an open container of alcoholic beverage.

QUAD-Squad Cmdr. Ray Bronson spotted Williams standing in the middle of Olive Avenue south of Third St., holding a can of beer. When Williams spotted the marked squad cars, he threw the container into a grassy area at the side of the road.

"He dropped it--he just dropped it," Bronson notified QUAD officers McMurrer and Harris. "You guys come up here and get him. I'll get whatever he just dropped."

While the officers apprehended Williams, who struggled and forced police to hold him down against the hood of their vehicle, Bronson retrieved the can and searched the surrounding ground for narcotics.

Williams continued to struggle with police, yelling for the commander's attention. At one point, he began to melodramatically complain of self-inflicted pain from the handcuffs he caused by refusing to stand still.

"If you would quit struggling, we wouldn't have a problem," McMurrer told Williams, who did not stop until he was placed in the back of a police vehicle.

A crowd that had gathered to watch the incident did not speak up for Williams or try to interfere with the police. "They know he's guilty," Bronson said. "He's putting on a show for them."

Transported to the Sanford Police Department, Williams insisted his rights were violated when police searched him and found approximately 5.8 grams of marijuana in his right front pocket. He insisted police held no legal rights to search him for drugs when he was arrested for an open alcoholic container, which is a violation of Sanford city ordinance. "They didn't read me my rights. I didn't have the beer in my hand. They have no right to search me, he said, his breath smelling of alcohol.

Asked of his drug use, Williams replied: "I smoke the drug, not sell it--it gets me high...I'll smoke it till I die."

Harris told Williams it is against the law to possess open alcoholic containers on public streets.

Bronson explained why police did not have to read Williams his Miranda rights: "We are not going to ask him any questions because we saw him with an open container."

Williams continued to insist police did not see him holding the can of beer. He denied that he used drugs such as marijuana. Reminded that he had just stated he would "smoke till I die," Williams would not reply.

Williams admitted he "can't count" how many times he had been arrested and has a lengthy police record. In the past five years, he has been apprehended seven times for drugs, once for grand theft, three times for disorderly conduct and once for battery on a law enforcement officer.

Questioned by police to which religious denomination he belonged (for record purposes), Williams answered, "Thug."

He was transported to John E. Polk Correctional Facility, where Bronson said Williams would receive a bond of about $500. "He'll be out by the morning, if not sooner."

Since Williams was found with less than 20 grams of illegal substance, he was charged with a misdemeanor. "If he had a few more bags like those packages," Bronson said, indicating the five plastic bags that held Williams' marijuana, "we could have charged him with possession with intent to distribute because it's obvious it's not for personal use. But we just got the five bags. He may have been selling, but that's all we caught him with at the time."

an arrest, which can be made once an officer has witnessed a drug possession or transaction.

The steps are, in order: officer presence, verbal contact, hands-on, use of a chemical agent such as Mace, use of an impact weapon such as a baton and, as a last resort, deadly force.

"We use our best judgment for the steps," Locher said. The steps do not have to be used in order.

QUAD officers have been punched in the face and held up in the air. On occasion, suspects who resist arrest have even attempted to take their weapons away.

Despite the rough circumstances, McMurrer said while officers' personal safety was a priority: "We all want to get the arrest, but we make sure we're all safe and nobody gets hurt."

And, naturally, the officers look out for each other, Plitt said. "It is always nice to have a partner, as opposed to road patrol, which does not."

11th Street and Sanford Avenue.

The squad headed out of the station after a tip from Chief Joe Dillard, who reported spotting prostitutes in the area of 11th Street and Sanford Avenue.

When the QUAD cars pulled up at that location, two women were standing on the sidewalk despite the No Trespassing sign posted, warning that they are not permitted to stand on the property. Bronson knew the ladies by name; he said that they are two of the 10 to 12 prostitutes currently in Sanford.

These women played dumb as QUAD approached, as if they were on the corner merely to chat. "I'm a good girl," one of them told Bronson.

"You're a good girl?" he asked. "You're not working the streets?"

She denied his claim; the squad has no choice but to let the women go since they did not witness solicitation or drug possession.

A group of young men are suspiciously gathered farther down the road. Bronson said the squad will break up large clusters of people on the streets since they recognize drug dealers among them. "We know they are drug dealers because we have watched them and seen them do it."

11th Street and Pine Avenue.

Locher pointed out a boarded-up house that the QUAD-Squad closed before Christmas due to drug activity.

When the squad pulled up moments earlier, a group of young men that were loitering in front of the house ran off. Officers searched the ground for controlled substances the group may have dropped. Plastic sandwich bags blew on the ground, some still containing remains of white powdered crack cocaine.

They may have sold drugs to someone before we came by. They do not know if it was an undercover or not or an informant working for us (who they may have sold to)," Bronson explained. "Rather than them taking the chance on getting caught with the drugs on them, they go ahead and throw it on the ground or hide it in the bushes...so if we do come by and arrest them, we do not catch them with the drugs on them."

Locher discovered what appeared to be the remains of someone's stolen wallet underneath a house on this street. Various business cards and a gasoline credit card are among the abandoned items.

11th Street and Hickory Avenue.

Here also are plenty of empty, ripped plastic bags decorating the ground. The officers made rounds with the children and young men who are gathered under a tree off to the side of the road.

Bronson stopped a young man to ask how his brother (someone who has been in trouble with the law) was doing. Locher told a little boy to "stay away from those (older) boys. You know they are trouble." Meanwhile, Sanford Police Dept. Inv. John Evans arrived to provide McMurrer and Harris with information on more "hot spots."

"We're just hanging out with you guys--the good guys," Bronson told the young children.

Resident Pimp Wayne, 17, had this to say about drug activity in the neighborhood: "That's just life. I will not fall victim." He went on to say that he realized he still had a lot of growing up to do; he attends Crooms High School.

The squad prepared to head back over to 11th St. and Pine Ave. Driving there, Bronson passed a woman riding a bicycle. She held a five dollar bill. When Bronson asked her what she was going to purchase with the money, she told him that she intended to buy beer. He then asked her if she was using drugs.

She said that she did but not while the QUAD was around. "I respect you all," she explained and rode off.

Bronson said he knows better: "She used to be a registered nurse. Now she rides up and down the street on a bike, tricking and doing cocaine."

10th Street and Bay Avenue.

Community citizens are to the point of tears, they are so frustrated with the drug activity terrorizing their neighborhoods. Some are too scared to talk to Bronson and the rest of QUAD. Bronson has issued citizens' complaint manuals throughout Sanford; his cellular telephone number is known by several who will call in updates or alert the squad should their immediate presence be needed in a particular area.

He stopped the car to briefly speak with a 23-year old who shot another man in the head earlier in January on the east side of town. "It was a drug rip-off," Bronson revealed. The victim did not die since the bullet went around his skull rather than straight in.

And why is this individual back out on the streets so soon?

"A lot of 'rug dealers that we have seen today," Bronson said, "have been arrested on numerous times, and a lot of them have got convictions."

Due to sentencing guidelines, the courts are unable to sentence these individuals to any great length of time, Bronson said. "Drug violations are to the point that they are not a crime that is punished as much as a violent crime."

Most violent crimes that occur are connected to drug abuse in one form or another, either by the dealer or the drug addict who has to do crime to support his habit.

Offenders carrying less than 20 ounces of narcotics can be charged only with a misdemeanor by law. Felonies are above 20 ounces, yet it is difficult now to find a dealer carrying that much.

Locher described how dealers will only carry low amounts of drugs, just enough to make a few sales, to specifically avoid being busted possessing large quantities. "You used to be able to get eight or 10 grams at a time off the dealers," he said. "Once we have busted someone for carrying so much, they know to just take a little bit on them. When they run out, they go home or wherever they have it hid, and get some more. Some guys only carry one or two rocks (of crack) at a time. Just enough

Mission opens women's shelter

By STEVE BARNES
Herald Staff Writer

The Rescue Mission Outreach celebrated the opening of its new shelter for women and children Saturday with an open house. The new 6,000 square-foot facility is located at 1700 West 13th St., right next door to the existing shelter for men. Women in need will begin being sheltered sometime in February.

The facility will be able to accommodate approximately 30 women and children. It provides private rooms for women with children and dorm style rooms for women who arrive at the shelter alone.

According to Kurt Howland, who helps out with public relations, the only real requirement for obtaining shelter will be need. Women who seek refuge at the shelter will receive educational opportunities, counseling, and spiritual guidance in addition to food and housing. The facility will offer a GED course in conjunction with the Seminole Community College Outreach Program, as well as continuing education and life skills training. Women will also be able to take advantage of existing programs located around the community including a free computer course offered at the Boys and Girls Club by the Private Industry Council.

The facility is designed with children in mind and has a fully equipped play room which was decorated and supplied by the American Legion Auxiliary, Campbell Lossing Unit 53, which also provided funds to help with construction of the building. Child care will be provided so that women can return to the work force and become self-sufficient. According to Howland, work is an absolute requirement for staying at the mission. "If you're not working, it's time to start looking for a new place to live."

Mother Blanche Belle Weaver, who is the pastor of The Rescue Outreach Mission Church as well as the administrator of both shelters, has been involved in serving the local community for 10 years. She said she was thankful that God had established this ministry and that she could not take credit for the good works being done at the shelters. She also said she hopes to establish a free clinic some time in the future.

The Mission survives on donations from local businesses and private individuals and relies on volunteers for many of its projects. If you would like to help, call (407) 321-8224

Trespassing

Gabriel J. Cruz, 18, of 970 High Point Loop, Longwood, was arrested by Seminole County sheriff's deputies Thursday. After he had been ordered to leave the campus of Seminole Community College by a security officer, deputies said they found him as a passenger in a vehicle stopped for a traffic violation.

Cruz was arrested on a charge of trespassing after warning. He was also found to be wanted on an active warrant for resisting an officer without violence.

Assignment

Sanford police arrested LaGloria Law, 32, listed as homeless, following an undercover prostitution sting Thursday at Seventh Street and Sanford Avenue. She was charged with assignment to commit prostitution and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Sheriff's deputies arrested Paul Q. Ramsey, 35, of Altamonte Springs, at the Seminole Environmental Center on Osprey Trail. He was charged with assignment to commit a lewd act.

Burglary

Kevin Mitchell Ryan, 19, of 500 W. Airport Blvd., Sanford, was arrested by Winter Springs police Thursday. According to the arrest report, on Jan. 17, he had reportedly forced his way into a previous residence in the 500 block of Osprey Lane in Winter Springs. He has been charged with burglary, grand theft and criminal mischief.

Sanford should loosen distance rules for bars

We believe it's time for a change in Sanford's ordinance requiring a distance of 2,000 feet between businesses serving alcoholic beverages and churches. Figures supplied by Sanford's Planning and Development Director Jay Marder regarding other distance requirements in the immediate area indicate that Sanford is much more strict than anywhere else.

Distance requirements include 1,500 feet in Longwood, 1,000 feet in Lake Mary, Orlando and unincorporated Seminole County, 750 feet in Apopka and Casselberry, and 300 feet in Altamonte Springs.

With Sanford requiring a 2,000-foot separation, is it any wonder that a certain (and well-known) major restaurant, which serves alcoholic beverages, is hesitant to locate within a block or two of downtown Sanford. The reason was apparently that the business would have had five or six churches within 2,000 feet. Will they try to fight City Hall?

It isn't a problem for only commercial businesses wishing to sell alcoholic beverages, but with not-for-profit organizations such as AMVETS, which is presently fighting for the right to serve alcohol at a facility at 410 Sanford Avenue. It is within 1,000 feet of six churches in a direct line of measurement.

This is a group wanting to do something on Sanford Avenue, which has long been one of the major areas in Sanford which needs revitalization. With present codes, the city must say no.

Sanford is often referred to as the city of churches. There can be no objection to that concept. And certainly, we don't want it to be known as the city of bars. That's stretching it a bit.

But with the city's restrictions so tight, churches are about all Sanford can expect to have, other than mom-and-pop stores or fast-food restaurants.

Yes, there are some facilities serving hard liquor which are within only a few hundred feet of churches, but they were grandfathered in, having been in existence before the ordinance came into play.

Have we had serious problems with these places? Generally, we have not.

Our recommendation? We urge the city commission to table the AMVETS request, and concentrate instead on reworking the ordinance.

Possibly even putting not-for-profit organizations out of the restriction consideration.

For a city begging for business development, it's time to prove commissioners are willing to do something about it.

Fine article

The Sanford Christian Sharing Center income for the month of December doubled and half of the increase can be traced to that fine feature Jennifer Edwards wrote on our agency.

In the days following that article's appearance, people came in, handed me check and said how much they enjoyed reading about the work we do. Very gratifying.

When I run into people who do not subscribe to the Sanford Herald, I always tell them "without the Herald you don't know what's happening in North Seminole County."

Thank you

Thank you to Russ White for the excellent article he wrote about the job and benefits and counseling programs. I have received two calls already today based on that piece!

How nice Russ White is to say such good things about me in the Sanford Herald. Being included as one of the "special people" to be remembered made me feel just that--special!

Thank you for helping to spread the word about the food.

Must we sacrifice American values?

Family values.

A term can often be loaded and the term family values is just such a term: loaded with implication and effect. Unfortunately, like a gun, a loaded term can be either good, evil, or ineffectual depending on which way it is pointed. Mention the term family values in any crowd, and the masses will nod their head in agreement. No one in the mindless mass of the easily herded, which purportedly represents common American opinion, can stand and be against family values, yet without a consensus as to what is a family value no one can truly understand what the term means. The term is generic. It has mass appeal, but no substance. What is a family value to one is an unpardonable sin to another. Like the Mona Lisa, the beauty or lack thereof is in the eye of the beholder.

The term family values came to my attention last Friday as I read about efforts in Colorado City, Colorado, by the group Colorado for Family Values, whose agenda is to impose on the schools of that state the requirement to promote abstinence, and affirm traditional marriage, as part of the school's curriculum. It would appear to me that schools should be for teaching reading, writing and arithmetic, and that the family dinner table, the family pew and the family Bible should be the place where the family values of abstinence and traditional marriage are implanted in the minds of children.

Seminole Opinion

Irrespective of my opinion that the function of schools and schooling in a democratic society is to open minds not harness them, I realize that, for me, it is a greater sin to possess the arrogance necessary to believe that I have the right, or the word from God, to compel everyone to sing from my page of the choir book. Who am I to judge? I fear that we are losing our independent American tradition to those who walk among us in goose step, demanding that we all march to the beat of a singular drum.

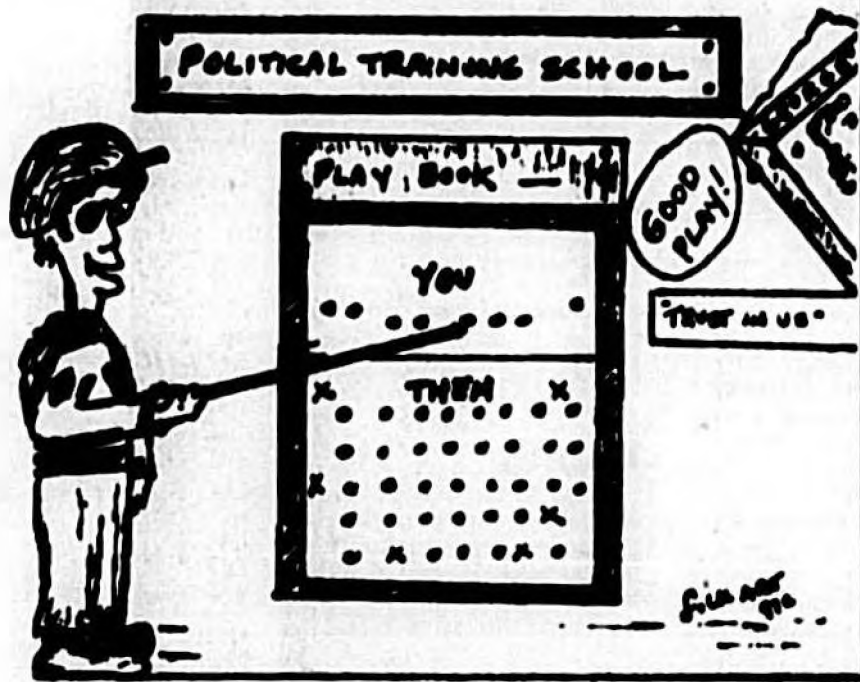

I do not recall whether it was at school, at the family table, or at the movies, where I was led to believe that the American tradition was one of rugged individualists, of nonconformists, the brave and the free. Being an American was presented to me as being uncompromising in my independence, my heroes struck out alone, went where no man went before, overcame immeasurable odds, stood up to authority and were beyond being intimidated. These were not lessons in family values nor were they lessons in personal values, these were lessons in American values.

The American values that I recall have been eclipsed by these demands for uniformity, in religion, conduct, attitude and appearance. Since the 1980s, things have appeared in our society that are so foreign to what I was taught was essential to the American psyche, that it is hard to understand what has happened to us as a society in the last 20 years. Roadblocks in our streets, random urinalysis on our jobs, cameras watching our every move, telephone calls intercepted: these were things which I was taught as a child to expect behind the Iron Curtain, not as common in America.

I know somewhere out there exists an organization, Florida for Family Values. I only hope that they do not sacrifice our American values on the altar of their family values agenda, whatever that might be.

Ok-This is you above the line--notice the formation--S in a row, however you have two on your right flank--that'll be the county attorneys--plus the X marks for the special interests--they'll be in a different formation each time. If you mess up, the attorneys will make a sound, or clear their throats. Stop and let them take over...

GUEST COLUMNIST

A temporary truce

You will read an article called "Is this a soap opera, or do I live in Seminole County?" I hope that you enjoy the article, and the point that I have presented regarding tax increases.

I do believe that there are reasons why we need to raise taxes from time to time. I am always interested in finding out why tax increases are needed and intend to investigate the various taxes/fees presented. I also feel that it is in the interest of all of us to get involved in this procedure and to make suggestions.

Seminole County has taken quite a beating lately and with good reason. However, there comes a time when it may become more productive to let those who are still working very hard to make changes and to restore the faith in our government, the opportunity to do so.

I am willing to offer that opportunity, for a limited period of time, and wish those well who accept my offer. I will continue to ask questions, I will investigate and, in turn, report back to you, the readers. I would hope that we will be able to feel good about our county government once again.

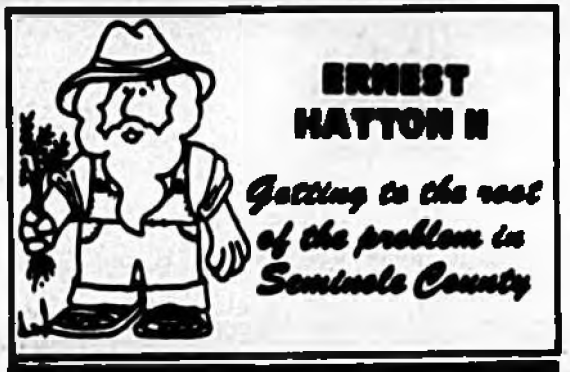

Importantly, however, is truth, fairness and good government. We all want to help in that respect. I feel that the effort will be made to give us that, in which case, I will retreat briefly allowing sufficient time for the process to start to take place. All efforts to present honest answers, materials and information has been given to this writer without hesitation.

Let us watch and report to you the efforts that are being put forth to rectify what has happened. The predicament that our county is now in did not happen overnight. That is why I must stress that everything that happens these coming months will be looked at with great care by those of us who are concerned with our county government and how it functions.

We all know that there is more to come, regarding past deeds, and we must comment on those. We also must comment on present efforts to rectify the past and to find solutions to present problems. With that, I wish the present commission well and would be pleased to write about successes rather than failures.

The shortfall regarding the county budget should have been addressed some time ago. Now it will be necessary to find additional revenue. The choices on many of these issues will have to be made in the next month. I will present the choices and the decisions. I also will express my opinion and other possible options. I would hope that you will do the same. Many readers have expressed opinion that, I believe, have merit and should be given consideration.

There are issues that require us to have an open mind. I would hope that most would grasp the opportunity to listen to the other side and when possible, find common solutions.

ERNEST HATTON II

Is this a soap opera, or do I live in Seminole County?

This is real, and it is happening to you and me.

Change the script! Fire the writers! Turn the cameras off! Change the channel! Somebody do something! Save us!

Take us to a different studio! A different county!

While we have what very few would call an on-going investigation into the Roads and Public Works Department with people resigning and being investigated, and on and on, we have suddenly realized that we (the county) are going to have a $43.5 million dollar shortfall over the next five years in our county budget!

First, let us understand that if government, says $43.5 million, it really means a lot more than that, based on previous experiences.

I have a great idea: everybody resign. Could it be worse?

Folks, there is only one thing we can do. We have to think about what could happen next.

They are going to blow up the sewers, exploding and spreading waste all over the county. No, that's not bad enough. It has to be something worse, something we are not thinking about.

What could it be? This is going to be hard since they have so many people to come up with ideas. The taxpayers are not as united, nor are they used to thinking like the county officials. They are all in the same building and have great communications (and not so great communications), but they are in the same building.

One of my notes has just passed along good news. He said that he believes the story of the "shortfall" may be a diversionary tactic to get our minds off the audit. I do not believe so, since there already is such diversion.

There have been other reports, such as the building permit plan, a real operating tactic, or to condemn the little guys' property for a buck and give millions away to a pretend company plan.

No, those tactics frequently have been used. It has to be something new....

There is not much, or maybe tomorrow, Commissioners had a meeting....

What it's like to be well 'red'

Every writer wants to be read. Or is that "red"? I guess I was a little confused a couple of weeks ago when I saw a young lady with gorgeous ruby red hair at another table in the restaurant where we were having dinner.

"That's what I want. Red hair," I said, flipping my dark brown locks back and forth across my face. These locks have been the same color for 34 years.

"You wouldn't dare," glared my husband across the table.

Now you have to understand that I translated that statement to mean "Rush out and buy some dye and change your hair color within 24 hours under penalty of death."

I knew I wanted to spice up my look. What better way than to change my hair color?

So, in a casual conversation in the ladies room a short time later, I casually acquired the name of the color of her hair.

The next afternoon's foray to Barnes and Noble for my literary fix, included a side trip to the drug store where I purchased a box of Clairol Burgundy 47. Oh...and it's not dye: it's "hair colourant."

Though I've never taken a chemistry class (I just stuck with various Biology classes to fulfill college requirements in high school and science), I began mixing liquids and gels in the prescribed order. After shaking...and shaking...and shaking the concoction for what seemed an eternity, I applied the pinkish grey gook to my hair.

"The color is not the hue of the final result," the instructions said.

Thank goodness! I really would prefer not to have hair the color of a half cooked steak.

"Lemme see! Lemme see!" pleaded Genevieve, my 7-year-old daughter, from the other side of the locked bathroom door.

"I'll show you in a few minutes," I told her nearly 637 times in the 25 minutes it took the "colourant" to alter my hair color.

Meanwhile I flipped through some inane magazine that gave instructions on how to make yourself "more appealing to your mate" and a pair of quizzes designed to determine if you "really like yourself" and if you "need more excitement" in your life.

One article detailed how 87 percent of women chemically treat (color, perm, etc.) their hair. Wow! I don't think I've ever been in the majority (on a fashion-related topic) before.

Anyhow, just under a half an hour later, I emerged from my lair with burgundy (Genevieve says "dark purple") hair, a new attitude, and the satisfaction of knowing I'm well red.

Just like Brenda Starr, Red Barber, Lacy Loar and all those other great red-haired journalists of our time.

But, maybe next time, I'll fade to black...

to make a deal."

Yet, having a long arrest record is seen as an admirable among young people now, and the easy money drug sales provide, Bronson reported. "They see the way their peers walk around with five or six hundred dollars in their pocket and drive the cars with the hydraulic systems and big stereo systems and the paint job. It is a status symbol for them."

West 13th Street

"What's up?"

"How you doing, Mr. Bronson?"

The QUAD-Squad officers are virtual celebrities as they cruise westbound on 13th Street. Several residents immediately recognize the four-man crew and stop to wave or chat for a moment. A Health Department worker even walked up to Bronson's car, holding out a handful of the condoms that she has been distributing in Sunshine Liquors parking lot.

A group of what Locher called alcoholics and crack addicts has moved back onto private property behind the parking lot once they spot the squad. "It's a way of life for these people," he said in explanation.

Bronson elaborated: "West 13th Street has always had a reputation...what has happened now is that we have put so much pressure on the other areas of town, a lot of the drug dealers that originally were in other areas have moved here because it is so wide open. We know there are a lot of people that stand around on 13th Street but they have been doing that all of their lives."

Four hours later in the shift, the QUAD-Squad spotted a man with a black cap pulled down over his ears carrying a large quantity of crack cocaine in his jacket pocket. He was laughing and showing "a whole bag of crack rocks" to the crowd gathered outside of Barbara's House of Fun, according to Locher. The moment the man spotted police, he ran into the pool hall, shoving through the crowd of people in his haste.

By the time Harris caught up with this individual, he had managed to slip out into a courtyard behind the pool hall.

Bronson cleared everyone out the building and patted the suspect down. Nothing was found on him.

Harris thoroughly searched the courtyard; Bronson found more empty plastic bags in between the arcade machines. And half-empty beer bottles and cups. He warned the poolroom supervisor to prevent underage drinking.

After a lengthy search but unable to locate any drugs, Bronson ordered Harris to release the man: "If I can find the dope, I can find him anytime."

Later, Bronson said, "I don't ever get upset about it. There will be another day--it will happen again."

Locher was disappointed. "He had it out there...it was a plastic bag, and it was halfway filled with what looked like white rocks," he said. He went on to say that the supervisor was not as innocent as he pretended to be with the officers.

"Well, sure," Bronson said, "but he is like the rest of those businessmen up there. He is making money."

East 2nd Street

There are no established gang groups in Sanford other than neighborhood drug rings that call themselves names such as "The Weedboys" or "The Compound," Bronson reported. However, the squad entered an East 2nd Street home to survey the premises. This abandoned house reportedly has been used as a gang hideout.

The two-story Victorian home that no doubt once probably was a valuable residence in historic Georgetown is now demolished. Piles of filthy clothes and scattered papers lined the floors; shattered bottles and jagged mirror shards paved the way to a broken-down flight of stairs.

Several walls displayed gang graffiti from Folk Nation, Bloods and Crips, among others. The coded messages are made up from an alphabet conceived by youth to confuse the police and the general public. The Folk Nation symbol, a pitchfork, is sprayed onto the closed toilet seat lid in an upstairs bathroom.

Inside of the backyard utility shed, a greeting card is found among more piles of clothing and cigarette butts. It is addressed to a name Locher recognizes as a Sanford prostitute currently in jail. Thinking of You, is written across the front of the card, which has a recent mailing date.

He's young, idealistic, and wants to make a difference.

Kathy Bowlin, Maloy's aide and 15 years his senior, said Maloy met Andrews during his door-to-door campaigning. He told Andrews that if elected, he would hang his picture in his office.

"Commissioner Maloy is a good guy who keeps his promises," Bowlin said. "He has integrity. His highest priority is constituent service. He's concerned with doing the right thing. If he can serve the people well, he'll be satisfied."

What's discouraging, Bowlin said, is the response at times from some of his fellow commissioners and from a certain media critic, who wrote that Maloy is "31 going on 18."

"Pretty soon, I'll be the same age as my 2 1/2-year-old son," Maloy mused.

Brady Lessard, blessed no doubt from having been taught by the Jesuits at Loyola University of New Orleans, is SIX years younger than Maloy.

Sanford's new mayor, Larry Dale, says he's most impressed.

"I didn't know diddley squat when I was his age," says Dale, 48.

"We bumped into one another several times on the campaign trail, and I liked what I saw," Dale said. "Brady was going door to door, winning votes. A lot more astute than I was when I ran for office in Lake Mary an eternity ago."

Lessard treasures his door-to-door campaign.

"I met the most wonderful people," he said. "My favorite was and always will be Mrs. Scott on Scott Avenue. She encouraged me more than anyone else. She said not to worry about being so young."

"She put it this way - 'Run, run, run. You can run faster than all of us old folks. Please run for us.'"

The other day as he visited the Hopper Academy restoration project in Georgetown, Lessard demonstrated his passionate desire not only to please Mrs. Scott but to dream what seemed once to be an impossible dream.

"I know I have to deliver," he said. "Rhetoric is fine for older politicians... in order to do what I know I can do for Sanford is to get out and deliver. When I deliver, I'll receive support. It's up to me to earn that support."

It pleases Dale that Lessard is on Sanford's first team. "He's not beat up yet...and he's willing to get into the fray." Dale said. "He's a terrific new ingredient to the commission. So is Verrell Pugh. I believe this commission is going to make good things happen in Sanford."

To date, Lessard has no media critics.

He does get occasional complaints when he isn't on the nose with his National Football league predictions column which has run in the Sanford Herald for three years.

"Is Brady Lessard for real?" asked one reader.

It's important, of course, that Maloy and Lessard retain their energy and enthusiasm, and not be discouraged.

Maloy has some older, wiser politicians say, "you'll learn, you'll find out you can't do something this way. It just won't work."

"Well, I don't want to be disruptive or disagreeable," Maloy said. "But I'm not about to go with the flow when I know there's something better that should be done."

"The reason I ran for this position was because I sincerely thought I could help bring about the right changes. I told people this when I met them. I looked into their eyes and told them what I believed we needed to do."

Is he too young? Too naive? Having captured 60 percent of the votes to defeat incumbent Pat Warren for the commission position, indicates the people of Seminole County strongly believe in Grant Maloy.

They - the record shows - aren't concerned about his being too young.

But commissioner for the district, Brady Lessard, said he did talk to Angle, and Angle told him he would take the flags down by Feb. 1.

"Angle told me his point is the Historic Preservation Board (which oversees exterior changes to buildings in the historic district) doesn't supersede the Constitution," Lessard said.

"Fortunately he has the right to freedom of expression protected by the Constitution. Unfortunately there are those who use that right for purposes like this."

Rental properties, including one which is for sale, are on the other side of the house and neither residents nor property managers in those locations had any comment on the flags. Former city Commissioner A.A. McClannahan, who owns an adjacent property, was unavailable for comment.

Rowe said the comments collected by the city were mild until the Nazi flag was raised.

"Even with the Rebel flag, we had people who called to ask if he could do that, but said to let him keep it up if it was OK with city code," Howe said. "But when that Nazi flag went up the calls really started coming in. People have been 100 percent against the Nazi flag."

Rowe said he has sent a letter to the City Attorney in an effort to get a clarification on the city ordinance to see if Angle does, indeed, have the right to display any flag and any number of flags on a house in the city's historic district.

So far, he has not received a reply to the request and he will continue to assume Angle's display is within the confines of the law.

"People are not happy with the flags, or at least the Nazi flag," he said. "But it seems that he has the right to have it there."

"It would be just west of the intersection of Country Club Road and Rantoul Lane," he said. People entering Lake Mary from the north, using Country Club Road, rather than turning left toward the city or right down Rantoul Lane, would only have to cross straight ahead to reach the maintenance facility.

Commissioner George Duryea questioned if, to be built almost directly across Country Club Road from Grace United Methodist Church, would it look like an industrial development?

Commissioner Thom Greene also expressed the desire that, as the building would be the first place to be seen as someone entered the city, as much as possible be done to conceal its appearance.

"We don't plan for just a plain building," Holland said. "We have been looking at ways to make it most attractive. We don't just want to make it look like a barn. We also plan on screening the area with appropriate landscaping."

Mayor David Mesler questioned if the city might go into partnership with SunTrust Bank for the project. Holland said he would examine that possibility.

Holland said SunTrust owns the property immediately south of where the facility would be built (if approved). Most of the SunTrust property is a fence-enclosed retention pond abutting Country Club Road.

Holland has been looking into the possibility of the structure and location with assistance from Architect T. Gray Frazier.

Frazier explained that the building alone, according to preliminary estimates, might be $260,000. The total including paved parking and other amenities might jump to approximately $330,000.

Holland said the present budget indicates the city would have $250,947 with which to work on this. "T. Gray and I will be looking into other possibilities however," he told the commissioners, "and hopefully, we'll be able to come up with a much better figure in the near future."

As the matter was brought up during the city commission work session, no formal vote could be taken on the proposal, but the commissioners voiced a consensus to have Holland go ahead with preparation of a formal presentation on the suggestions.

Let's see if I can get through this column without using terms like beating, flogging and tar and feather. Although I'm sure smokers like the idea of tar. They suck it down every chance they get. I'm not just a non-smoker. I'm a loud non-smoker. I'm the one who fakes a cough when a smoker lights one up.

Sure smokers have rights. They have a right not to pollute the air and my lungs with their addictive habit.

They have the right not to chuck their cigarette butts out of the car so that the curbs at every red light in town look like ash trays.

They have the right not to hack disgustingly into the air while I'm trying to eat dinner. Even when smokers aren't smoking, do we have to listen to that obnoxious gagging cough all the time?

I have a right to smoke. Smoking is legal, I am of age and I'm going to smoke anywhere and everywhere that it's permitted. I have rights.

I cannot smoke in any public place that does not have a designated smoking area. I understand and respect that.

I cannot smoke in my friends homes who don't smoke. I understand and respect that.

NOTICE OF FUND AVAILABILITY

SEMINOLE COUNTY, FLORIDA
VOLUFA/SEMINOLE HOME CONSOLIDATION
(Southern Sector)

CITIZEN PARTICIPATION - CONSOLIDATION PLAN PROCESS

Seminole County is a recipient of federal grant funds through a number of programs administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). These include the Community Development Block Grant Program (CDBG), the HOME housing grant program (Volusia and Seminole counties formed a consortium in 1991 to qualify for this program), and the Emergency Shelter Grants Program (ESG). These programs are designed primarily to assist the County's low and moderate income residents. In order to streamline the administration of these programs, HUD has consolidated all of the local planned and citizen participation requirements of these various federal programs into a single administrative process: "The Consolidated Plan."

1996-1997 Grant Amounts:

CDBG	$2,886,000
HOME	$768,004
ESG	$71,000
TOTAL	$3,531,004

Range of Activities: The County can undertake a wide range of activities under these programs if they benefit low/moderate income people or areas where the majority of the people living there are low/moderate income.

Applications will be accepted from eligible organizations during the period of February 3-24, 1997. An informational workshop will be provided on February 3, 1997 at 9:00 a.m. in the Board of County Commissioners Chambers, 1101 East First Street, Sanford, Florida 32771 to answer any questions that may be pertinent to the program and activity eligibility.

Additional Information: A copy of the complete Citizen Participation Plan, or a Citizen Assistance Packet can be obtained from the County's CD Office. Contact Anthony Pelt at (407) 321-1130, Extension 7374.

Public Notice

This is a notice to the citizens and residents of Seminole County that the County intends to amend its Consolidated Plan. The Consolidated Plan governs the use and expenditure of Community Development Block Grant (CDBG), HOME Investment Partnerships (HOME) and Emergency Shelter Grants (ESG) Program Funds.

Currently, the CDBG Program funds the salary and benefits of a Clearance Inspector to process and demolish vacant dilapidated buildings and structures throughout the County. The County intends to amend that activity by splitting the funding between the Clearance Program and a new activity called Code Enforcement. Hence, the Clearance Inspector will, should the amendment be approved, be funded half with Clearance funds and half Code Enforcement Funds, all funds of which are CDBG Program funds. Accordingly, it is projected that the funded staff position will spend half of his/her time on Clearance-Program activities and half of his/her time on Code Enforcement Program activities.

All of the Code Enforcement Program activities performed by the funded position will be performed in deteriorating or deteriorated areas where such enforcement together with public improvements, housing rehabilitation and other activities may be expected to arrest the decline of areas.

The proposed amendment to the Consolidated Plan is being advertised to solicit public comment for a 30-day period, ending February 26, 1997. Your comments and input is invited and encouraged. The Seminole County Board of County Commissioners will be approached after the 30-day period to add the new activity and thereby amend the Consolidated Plan.

Please submit all comments and input to the Community Development Office of Seminole County at the following address:

County Services Building
1101 E. First Street
Sanford, FL 32771

Comments may also be submitted by telephone to the Community Development Office staff at 407-321-1130, extension 7384. Office hours are from 8:00 am to 5:00 pm, Monday through Friday.

IN BRIEF

Blood Bank seeks donors

SANFORD — Central Florida Blood Bank is asking donors of all types of blood — especially O-type donors — to donate at its Sanford branch, 1302 E. Second St. This is an on-going need. The blood bank needs a constant flow of donors to keep up with the demand for blood that comes from local hospitals and emergency rooms. For information, call 322-0822.

Living rationally

LONGWOOD — A self-help group using scientifically-based clinical techniques to help people learn to live rationally will meet on Thursday evenings at 7. The Longwood Help Yourself to Happiness group meets every week at 465 W. Warren Avenue in Longwood. The group helps people deal with problems with stress, depression, anxiety, anger, alcohol, drugs and eating, as well as self-growth through self-discipline and emotional control. There is no cost for participation in the group. For more information, call 262-4623.

Community First Aid and Safety

LONGWOOD — The American Red Cross will be presenting a comprehensive course which has three components: Adult CPR, Infant and Child CPR and First Aid. Participants will learn CPR for various age groups, lifesaving first aid skills and skills needed to care for sudden illness or injury. The course is held at the American Red Cross of Central Florida's Seminole County Service Center, 705 W. State Road 434, in Longwood. The classes will be on Saturday and Tuesday, Jan. 18 and 21. Saturday's session is from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. The other session is from 6 to 9 p.m. The classes are occasionally also offered elsewhere in central Florida. The cost of the class is $40. For more information, call 894-4141.

Yoga class

LAKE MARY — The Seminole County Family YMCA is offering a class in yoga for the adult who is interested in improving their flexibility and their breathing. Yoga also promotes physical stability, energy and relaxation. Classes are offered every Tuesday from 7 to 8 p.m. and every Thursday from 7 to 8 a.m. The cost is $28 a month for members and $42 a month for non-members. The Seminole County Family YMCA is located at 665 Longwood-Lake Mary Rd. in Lake Mary.

O.K., seniors, let's get physical

SANFORD — While most people think of seniors as sitting back in their rockers creaking their time away while endangering the tails of wandering felines, the reality today is much different.

People today are living longer and healthier lives.

One of the ways they are staying healthy is by exercising regularly.

Now seniors in the northern part of Seminole County have a couple of places they can take part in aerobics classes that are lower impact, but just perfect for the cardio-vascular workout they need.

Columbia Medical Center-Sanford's Senior Friends program is now offering Senior Aerobics classes in two locations: in Sanford at the Sanford Civic Center and in DeLand at the DeLand Activities Center.

The Sanford classes are on Mondays and Wednesdays from 9 to 10 a.m. Classes in DeLand take place on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 8:30 a.m. until 9:30 a.m.

The classes are taught by Ellen Rollins, an AFPA certified instructor with eight years of senior aerobics experience.

The classes are carefully geared to meet the fitness needs and goals of the mature population, Rollins noted.

She noted that even the oldest people in our community would benefit from regular exercise.

"Research shows that exercise is beneficial for even the oldest adult, helping them improve the quality of their lives," she said. "We want to get older adults excited about physical activity and help them begin to take advantage of the many health and fitness programs available to seniors through our Senior Friends program."

While everyone needs to exercise, Rollins said a physician should be consulted before this, or any other exercise program is begun.

Participants in the classes will be asked to sign a waiver and to consult with their doctor.

Loose comfortable clothing, supportive shoes with absorbent soles and exercise mats are recommended for anyone who takes part in the class.

Participants are also encouraged to join the National Association of Senior Friends for a $15 annual fee.

For more information about the classes or about Senior Friends, call Rollins at 321-4500, ext. 5784.

Genetics plays a role in athletic potential

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Training can go only so far. Much, if not most, of children's differences in athletic abilities may be inherited, a study says.

The study was an attempt to say which is more important in determining a child's skill level — nature, in the form of genes, or nurture, in the form of opportunities to develop skills.

"The majority of the evidence comes down to the nature side of the equation," said researcher Michael C. Neale, an associate professor at the Virginia Institute for Psychiatric and Behavioral Genetics in Richmond. But the findings can only predict trends, not individual cases, so parents can't tell for sure whether their children will be like them, he said.

The scientists looked at athletic test scores by 105 10-year-old twin pairs and their parents who participated in a long-term study in Belgium. About half the twins were identical, so their genes were the same. The rest were fraternal, so their genetic similarity was no more than would be expected of non-twin brothers and sisters.

The team, led by researcher Hermine H.M. Maes, then looked at how likely the children and parents were to have similar scores. The findings were reported in the American College of Sports Medicine's Journal, Medicine and Science in Sports and Exercise.

In several activities, parent and child scores were remarkably in line. Heredity was associated with about three-quarters of the abilities to pull weights with the arms and to do bent-arm hangs. Heredity was associated with about two-thirds of vertical jump ability. In aerobic fitness tests, heredity was associated with about two-thirds of ability in male children and almost 90 percent in females.

However, the associations can only indicate a likely relationship. They are not proof genes are the cause.

"It's not like we can turn the genes on and off," Neale said. "We are only estimating through the correlation."

Contract with county issues aired

By MIKE PFEIFER
Herald Staff Writer

During the next three county commission meetings, Maloy says he intends to bring three of the contract items up for discussion and hopefully call for a vote.

At the Tuesday, Jan. 28 meeting, following the 7 p.m. public hearing, he says he will bring the following items up before the commission:

• No tax increases unless approved by the voters. Maloy says, "Taxes in Seminole County are higher than ever. Allowing voters to decide if taxes should go even higher would force the politicians to start spending wisely. It separates the power to tax from the power to spend."

• Eight is enough term limits. He observed, "Voters overwhelmingly approve of the idea of term limits to break up the power of special interest and introduce new people and fresh ideas to government."

• End corporate welfare. Maloy said, "Raising taxes on one group of people to give tax breaks to large corporations has not been proven to help the economy. It also violates a basic principal of government that all citizens should be treated fairly and that laws and taxes will be applied equally to all."

He explained that these items, if enacted, would have to come as a county charter change. "Approving them would allow the proposals to appear on the ballot for voters to decide yes or no at the November 1997 ballot," he added.

IN BRIEF

Lunch with Hill

The Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce is holding a "Lunch with Coach Brian Hill" event Wednesday, Feb. 5. The event is being presented through the sponsorship of Crown Ban and Florida Hospital Altamonte, along with the chamber.

Chamber Manager Wayne Weinberg said there will be an opportunity for Orlando Magic fans to question Hill following a brief talk.

The luncheon is being held at Maison et Jardin in Altamonte Springs, beginning at 1 p.m. Cost is $12 for county chamber members and $17 for guests or walk-ins. RSVP is suggested by Feb. 3, by phoning 428-2570.

Zoning meeting

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary Planning and Zoning Board will meet Tuesday, Jan. 28, beginning at 7 p.m.

Items listed on the agenda include a site plan review for River Oaks Presbyterian Church, at the southeast corner of Washington Street and Longwood-Lake Mary Road.

Also to be discussed is an ordinance regarding fence setbacks and planned urban developments and decorative fences.

The meeting will be held in the city commission chambers of Lake Mary City Hall, 100 N. Country Club Road.

The way we were: 1951

There is much more Seminole High School news in the June 7, 1951, edition of The Celery Pad, which I will continue with today.

GRACE M. STINE-CIPNER

Sally staff party

The Salmagundi staff was given a party by photographer Robert L. Cox and his wife at their home near Green Springs.

During the afternoon, the members enjoyed swimming in Green Springs after which they returned to the Cox home for supper. It must have been delicious as here is a quote from Betty Lou Partin:

"I am ahead of Brodie as so far I have had four Cokes, eight ears of corn, some cucumbers, several pieces of chicken and other bits of morsels."

After the meal, the staff presented gifts to their sponsors. Mac Fort received a beautiful lamp, and Rebecca Stevens was given a piece of her silver.

Principal Herman Morris led the group in singing and Naidee Williams played marbles with Ernie Morris.

Others attending were Edwige Dial Boyle, Betty Lou Partin, Donna Lou Harper, John Pitt, Pat Casasube, Carleen Hollenbeck, Carolyn Patrick, Lourena Casady, Dorothy Teslo, James Brodie, Arlene Jacobson, Rudolph Smith, Gladys Morris and Bobby Morris.

Bible Club

The Bible Club was a new organization at SHS that year. It was organized by Youth for Christ Director of Orlando Lacy Hall, who met with the group each week.

Officers were President Margaret Hunt, Vice President Merle Crissey, Secretary Martha Shannon and Treasurer Joe Hutchison.

The club met every Wednesday afternoon and enjoyed a special program and discussion. As one of their projects, they gave a donation over the PA system every Monday morning.

Commencement program

Baccalaureate would be held June 10, 1951, in the SHS auditorium. The program was to include "Pomp and Circumstance," by the SHS band as both the processional and the recessional, and the congregation would sing the Doxology. The choir was to present several selections, and three local pastors were to take part. Invocation would be given by the Rev. L.A. Allen, the Rev. Joe Crews would read the scripture and the sermon would be delivered by the Rev. F. R. Horton.

Father H.L. Zimmerman was scheduled to give the invocation.

Various honors were awarded by Superintendent of Schools Dr. T.W. Lawton: Kaylie Householder, American Legion Award; W.H. Stemper, Jaycee Award and Mrs. A.L. Lee, D.A.R. Award.

After Principal Herman Morris presented the diplomas, the senior class would sing "Alma Mater," and the Rev. J.E. McKinley would give the benediction.

The senior class had elected marshalla Terry Cordell and Banks Register.

Serving as ushers would be: Joan Wright, Barbara Flint, Ann Raborn, Jancie Reel, Alice Brown, Carolyn Rowland, Margaret Morrison, Doris Jones, Patry Edwards, Gail Bittling, Rosa Coke Boyle and Linda Leonard.

He

smelling like a chimney sweep.

Let's examine the places where a smoker has the right to pollute their lungs.

Hmm. There's always inside their own homes. Inside their own cars.

I'm running out of ideas on other places smokers have the right to smoke.

A class action suit, Kellie? My religious beliefs and racial beliefs aren't polluting people who don't agree with my stands.

And don't give me that nicotine about smokers trying to be considerate of other people. Sure, some of them have the courtesy to not light up around non-smokers. There are many more that don't and furthermore, don't care.

I also don't buy the argument that second-hand smoke is no worse than hazardous waste or chemicals in food.

A non-smoker can avoid eating foods with chemicals and I certainly don't think anyone supports hazardous waste.

Of course cigarettes shouldn't be banned. Tobacco is a major money-maker in the South and banning it wouldn't do much good anyway. You know how a desperate smoker can be when they are deprived, for even a minute, their right to inhale their cancer.

But while you smokers may have a non-caring attitude when it comes to our harping and moaning, don't expect us to roll out the nicotine-stained red carpet for you.

What is the solution? Smoke where we can't smell it. Join cigarette smoking clubs where you can enjoy the same tons of fun as some of your cigar-smoking brethren (don't get me started on that filthy habit). Just think, there can be a special group of Marlboro smokers and you can debate the wonders of menthol versus filters.

Donate your cigarette budget to the American Cancer Society. You've been helping to keep them in business for years.

Until then, light one up for me. Just don't do it where I can smell it.

She

of what I am doing.

Tough! I have rights. Smokers are severely persecuted and discriminated against. If smokers were a racial, religious, or ethnic minority, we would have grounds for a class action suit.

It is permissible for an employer to put in a classified advertisement that a prerequisite for a job is to be a non-smoker and they can turn someone down for employment on the basis of the fact that they smoke. Restaurants, airlines, malls, and even open-air football stadiums can banish smoking all together.

Most smokers try to be considerate of other people. We understand that those who do not smoke would appreciate not breathing something that can give them cancer. But, when we are constantly put down, told that we should be ashamed, and treated like outcasts, we tend to develop a non-caring attitude.

People need to let it go. Smoking is something that is a personal decision and all the preaching in the world isn't going to abolish it. If everyone would worry more about the things that they need to instead of what other people are doing to their bodies, more things in the world would be better.

My second hand smoke is no more a hindrance to people than the pollution that they breathe, the hazardous waste that is everywhere in their environment, or the chemicals that infest their food. Actually, my little puffs of smoke are the least of their worries.

I realize that everyone has to have a cause. But pick one that is conquerable. My smoking habit is non-negotiable until I am ready to quit. Until that time, I, and all of the smokers in the world do not want to be preached to. We want to be left alone to smoke in our little corners that are provided for us.

I, along with the dying breed (literally) of smokers that share my habit, have that right.

Frustration vented

Lake Howell rallies to knock off Lake Mary

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Editor

LAKE MARY — Lake Howell got to take out a lot of frustrations Friday night.

The Silver Hawks looked headed for another blowout at the hands of one of the powerhouses of the Seminole Athletic Conference when it fell behind Lake Mary by 18 points in the third quarter.

But Lake Howell got off the deck, outscoring the Rams 17-2 in the final six minutes to defeat Lake Mary 59-54 in a boys' basketball game at Lake Mary High School.

The Silver Hawks (19-6) had suffered big losses to both the Rams and Oviedo earlier this month and was on the verge of falling out of the conference race before the big rally.

"We panicked," said Lake Mary head coach Mike Gaudreau. "We let the pressure get to us. We didn't even get the ball across half court for two minutes. If we could have got the ball across we could have got into the offense and ran some time off the clock. But even when we did get the ball across we shot too quick, taking the first open shot, even when it was not a good look at the basket."

The turnovers also hurt us badly. They (Lake Howell) were playing good defense, but it wasn't great. We tried to force the ball too much and weren't patient and they were able to get really pretty easy steals."

The Rams got off to a good start, leading 15-9 after one period and 38-22 at intermission. But the second half was a different matter as Lake Howell outscored the home forces 37-18 in the second half, including a 20-4 bulge in the final eight minutes. The catalyst for the Silver Hawks was Ryan Smith, who came back from a third period shoulder injury to score the first six points of a 15-0 run and also had a big assist and a crucial offensive rebound during the surge.

Also playing big in the final period was Basim Hussein. The guard eight points, including going six-of-six from the free throw line.

Smith led Lake Howell with 23 points, while Basim added 14 and Reggie Kohn nine. Lake Mary (18-7) got 15 points from Paul Bell, 14 points from Matt Townsley and 12 points from Randy Abrams.

The Rams wrap up SAC play with a pair of crucial road contests at Oviedo on Wednesday and Seminole on Friday.

Ex-Celt saves Magic

Associated Press

BOSTON — The play was called for Penny Hardaway, but an ex-Celtic ended up taking — and making — the game-turning shot.

Brian Shaw put Orlando ahead for good on a 3-pointer with 29 seconds left as the Orlando Magic beat Boston 121-117 Friday night.

"The play was set up for Penny, but they denied him the ball," Shaw said. "I was open and just took the shot."

Boston took a 114-112 lead with 1:18 remaining in overtime on Antoine Walker's dunk, but Nick Anderson answered with a 3-pointer from the left wing.

Walker then drove the right side for a layup over Rony Selkaly and was fouled, then See Magic, Page 2B

It's more than just a game

Life for a high school student isn't always easy.

Especially if that student is a varsity athlete in three sports.

Couple that with the fact that the student maintains a very high grade point average and is enrolled in the Health Academy at Seminole High School, and life just got a little more difficult.

Top it all off with a devastating family tragedy, and life might seem unbearable.

That's not how Armstrong looks at things.

Last year, Armstrong lost his mother to a four year battle with cancer. Only a sophomore at the time, he decided to turn his tragedy into the drive to accomplish what never helped his mother — finding a cure for the disease that took her from him.

Armstrong has known that See Armstrong, Page 2B

Seminole winning where it counts most

SANFORD — Sometimes winning is everything.

If that's the case, former Seminole High School football coach Ernie McPherson is a winner.

The McPherson era ended officially last Saturday as Coach Mac presided over the Tribe's year-end football banquet. He announced his retirement just prior to the season-ending win over Lake Mary.

But McPherson wasn't about winning on the field. As a matter of fact, his final two Seminole teams had a total record of 8-15.

Despite one of the best defenses in Central Florida, the offense wasn't able to put points on the board.

To get to the real bottom of the Seminole success story — that's right, the 3-7 team was a success story — you have to look at another won-loss record.

Undeclared. A perfect season. That's the record that was overlooked when the often undermanned Tribe struggled, going 1-4 against Seminole Athletic Conference teams.

The undefeated record came in the classroom. Can any longtime Seminole football fans recall a season in which not one player was lost in mid-season to grades?

It would take a heckuva memory. McPherson, more of a father figure than a football coach at times, had his kids in class, in the library and eligible.

As McPherson said goodbye to Seminole football, a parade of players walked to the stage to accept letters for at least a 3.0 grade point average. That's the success story of the Seminole football team and the result of McPherson's four years of work.

Practices started later as players went to extra tutoring and grades were emphasized as never before.

And it goes deeper. Tom in the jayvee and freshmen teams and only one unnamed jayvee player was lost for the entire program.

Who said Coach Mac was 8-15?

Besides keeping his players in the classroom, he also served as a father figure for many of his players who, to be honest, don't have fathers.

If anything, McPherson's biggest downfall was that he cared too much about his players, maybe too little about X's and O's.

The wins and losses on the field can be debated. Half of Seminole's games were played against Class 6A school and except for an early season blowout loss, the Tribe was in every game. Too many players were forced to go both ways and the team was wearing down by the fourth quarter.

Next season, Jim Worthington will be roaming the Seminole sidelines but McPherson promised he'd always be close by.

The team may be able to improve on the field, but off the field?

You can't really improve on perfection.

What's Up in the NFL 1996...The SUPER BOWL

My fellow football fans, I come to you this morning humbled by the fact that today a new champion will be crowned in the National Football League.

Sure, we could chat about how my LOCK OF THE WEEK returned an amazing 87-percent of the time this year, and yes we could spend time discussing the stunning upsets I have called throughout the season. However, even a great handicapper knows when he is outclassed by another act in town.

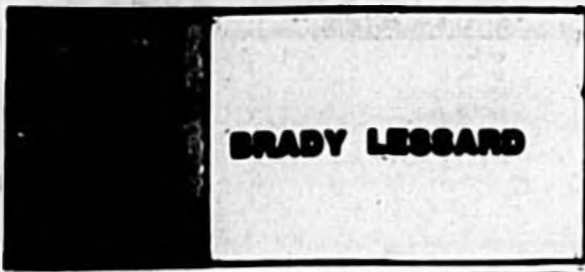

In all seriousness, regardless of the outcome of today's game, I urge you to realize the significance of the Super Bowl. Unlike any other major professional sport, the National Football League selects their champion based on one game.

There is no homefield advantage, no series that allows a team to recover from a poor performance, and no excuses that a decent football fan will accept in the aftermath.

This is the game that every young boy in America dreams to one day compete in. This is not idle talk, this is a cultural reality that is not difficult to comprehend. The Super Bowl has pushed the circus aside, making itself "The Greatest Show on Earth," and the price of a commercial proves it.

I've attended the last six Super Bowls and barring Christmas and Easter, I can without hesitation, declare it the greatest day of the year. Do you realize that the Internal Revenue Service estimates that over $7,000,000,000 will be wagered on today's game? That my friends is amazing, and clearly illustrates the fervor that surrounds the Super Bowl.

Sure much of that money has been wagered by football junkies like myself (legally of course, but ever), I think he spent a little too much time on Bourbon Street this week. One of my more re-

BRADY LEPPARD

Now, multiply that by the 260,000,000 Americans we call our neighbors, and $7,000,000,000 is pretty easy to see.

Do you realize that you could buy 11 NFL teams just with the "juice" bookies and casinos will be making today?

It is no wonder that your average die-hard football fan can no longer afford to buy a ticket to the Super Bowl. I always said that if I every was caught sneaking into the Super Bowl, I've done it three times, I would take my chances in court. Brady Leppard would never plead guilty to criminal trespass unless the National Football League simultaneously plead guilty to criminal extortion.

Something is terribly wrong when it is easier to get a ticket to the Presidential Inauguration, even if it is Bill Clinton, than it is to the Super Bowl.

Enough about the cruel injustices of the football world, let's talk about the Game.

The Patriots seemed dazed with the lights and attention all week, and today it will show. Parcells has allowed these guys to approach the game at a leisurely pace and I think it's a mistake.

While I'll be the first to admit that he is one of the best "big game" coaches (not just active, but ever), I think he spent a little too much time on Bourbon Street this week. One of my more reliable sources in New Orleans has informed me that Wednesday night Parcells stumbled into his hotel lobby and proceeded to recite the Declaration of Independence.

I get it, "Patriots and Declaration of Independence," while I admire Parcells for his obvious interest in history, I don't think it bodes well for his young team. This is the Super Bowl, and when you have less talent than your opponent, you don't need to be out drinking before the game.

Mike Holmgren and his animated Packers are going to crush the Patriots.

Pretty bold statement? Let's look at the facts. The Packers have been focused on this game since training camp and have maintained the intensity through injuries and drug problems. In the talent department Brett Favre and his squad probably have a slight edge over the Patriots, but the defensive side of the ball is where the game will win.

Reggie White, and more importantly Sean Jones, will hurt the young Bledsoe in his first Super Bowl performance. I'm not happy about this. I like Drew Bledsoe, but my job is to tell the truth. This column has never, and will never, allow my emotions to cloud my vision of the game.

An interesting aspect of the game pertains to the "third quarterback" behind Bledsoe and Favre, Jim McMahon is back! After traveling the League like a salesman, Jimmy Mack has found a home in Green Bay. He acts as a tutor for the relatively young Favre and in doing so is also his backup.

Can you imagine if Favre gets hurt? The franchise has risen on his shoulders, but the Super Bowl has been known to injure quarterbacks on an annual basis. Patriot fans have envisioned victory only one way, Favre getting knocked out of the game. Folks I think Jimmy Mack could handle the call to arms.

Back to Parcells' history lesson....Jim McMahon played in the 1985 Super Bowl with the Bears. His opponent? The Patriots. The venue? The New Orleans Super Dome. The score? Well I think we all remember the thrashing he gave out that year.

Each week I have issued the game that I considered to be the best pick against the spread in the schedule. These were games that after research and contemplation I felt most confident about releasing as my LOCK OF THE WEEK.

After a wonderfully successful season, I have decided to "let it ride" on my selection for today. The GREEN BAY PACKERS (-14) OVER THE NEW ENGLAND PATRIOTS is that selection.

I apologize to all of you who are instinctively hoping for the upset by the underdog, but this is all business. My conscience will not allow me to fall into that trap. PACKERS 48, PATRIOTS 13.

I'd like to thank you for a great year. Winning money isn't near the thrill if we don't have fun along the way, and we did.

On the day of The Game, it's time to say thanks.

We had a good time, and fill our banks. The Broncos were bad, I told you so. First round of the playoffs, they had to go. I was usually hot, no, always on fire.

Caused many a bookie, to retire.

An exciting season, the shouts and cries.

Thank you folks, for the letters and ples. P.S. The winner of last week's trivia contest was Commissioner Whitey Eckstein with the correct response, Stanley Wilson. (He beat an eight year old boy by three minutes). Forty-two people guessed Icky Woods, better luck next time.

Hunter Education Course

The Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission is again offering its Hunter Education Course to the public in cooperation with Seminole Community College.

For information about this course, you will need to call the college at (407) 328-2121, Community Education Department. There is a registration fee required by the college of $10.

The dates will be: Saturdays - February 22 through March 1 from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. The Range Date will be Saturday, March 8 at 7 a.m. at the Titusville Rifle and Pistol Club.

The course covers many interesting topics including survival, wildlife identification, hunting laws, ethics, first aid and gun safety. Students will be able to practice what they learn in class by participating in a field trip where they will get a chance to shoot rifles, shotguns and bows and arrows.

The course is open to anyone and families are encouraged to attend and learn together. Children 12 years of age and younger must be accompanied by an adult during each session.

Each student will need to bring a pen/pencil and paper for notes. All other materials for the course are provided, including guns and ammunition for the

JIM SHUPE

A new law, effective January 1, 1997 requires anyone born on or after June 1, 1975 to complete a state certified hunter education course before he or she can buy a hunting license at age 16.

THE ISSUE OF HUNTER SAFETY IS CRITICALLY IMPORTANT. STATISTICS ON HUNTING FATALITIES REVEAL THAT THE MAJORITY OF INCIDENTS OCCUR WHEN INDIVIDUALS INDISCRIMINATELY SHOOT INTO BUSHES AT UNIDENTIFIED TARGETS. SUCH BEHAVIOR IS IRRESPONSIBLE AT BEST, AND HUNTING SAFETY COURSES ARE DESIGNED TO HEIGHTEN AWARENESS OF SAFETY AND RESPONSIBILITY IN THE WOODS.

Expect bass to be on the prowl in the river. The three days before and three days after the full moon will be prime time for a lunker largemouth. From Passaic Lake south will be less crowded, and this stretch of the river is home to many bass over eight pounds. Large shiners are the top bait for heavyweight bass this time of year.

Big flounder are the main attraction at Sebastian Inlet. Flatfish to 12 pounds are hitting finger mullet bounced slowly across the bottom. Small bluefish are also numerous.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports that offshore action blazes on the marine forecast. Plenty of blackfin tuna are being caught around the shrimpboats anchored in 180-240 feet of water. Inside the Port, expect good action with sheepshead and flounder. Trout and redfish are scattered in the Banana and Indian rivers.

Sheepshead and small bluefish top the action at Ponce de Leon. Live shrimps and fiddler crabs are the preferred sheepshead baits, while it is hard to find anything that bluefish won't eat. Trout and redfish are rated as good in Mosquito Lagoon.

Marian and Lester Rethwill

Marian and Lester Rethwill celebrated their golden wedding anniversary all last week. They were married Jan. 17, 1947 at Mankato, Minn.

The celebration got under way with a dinner at their home last Saturday night when 34 gathered for "food, fun and fellowship," Marian said. These guests were mostly relatives from out-of-town. Sunday morning the Rethwill clan attended the early services at First United Methodist Church followed by an 11:00 a.m. cruise aboard the Romance on the St. Johns River.

The last of the guests, Phyllis Dallman of Mankato, a longtime friend of Marian's, departed for her home Saturday. Marian said they have been sightseeing and visiting Central Florida's landmarks and attractions all week.

Among the other guests attending were: Lester's two sisters and their husbands, Corrine and Donald Tieg and Carol and Harry Cluntz, and his brother and wife, Robert and Virginia Rethwill, all of Minnesota.

The honoree's children and families attending were: Amy and Robert Duggar of Fort Pierce; Pat and Paul Mueller, Tavares; son-in-law Johnny Lambert and his wife, Annette, Tampa; and John and Kathy Rethwill of Sanford.

The Rethwills have lived in Sanford for more than 30 years. They moved to Palatka from Minnesota when a friend recommended to Lester that the sunshine state would help his bronchial problems. Lester was employed at a paper mill there and Marian was a secretary at St. Johns River Junior College under the supervision of Dr. Earl Weldon. When Dr. Weldon took over the charter presidency of Seminole Community College in 1966, the Rethwills were not far behind. Marian remained Dr. Weldon's secretary until she retired in 1990.

In Sanford, Lester began his career with the Seminole County Engineering Department ("thanks to Ashby Jones," Marian said) and remained until his medical retirement in 1985.

Immediately after arriving in Sanford, the Rethwills became active in the First United Methodist Church and remained active over the years. Marian has held office on all the church boards and Lester has been on the administrative board off and on through the years. Marian also sings in the choir and is a member of the church bell ringers.

Lester is a member of United Methodist Men and is a former president of the Sanford Toastmasters. He is an avid gardener and shares his harvest with friends and neighbors. He can usually be found reading, his favorite pastime.

Marian joined the Sanford Pilot Club soon arriving in Sanford and is still a member. She has held numerous offices, including president. She is currently vice president of the United Methodist Women and is a life member of the Florida Association of Community Colleges.

The Rethwills own a motor home and enjoy extensive travel. Annually, they attend the Pilot International Convention and build a two-month excursion from that locale. They also enjoy their 13 grandchildren and two great grands.

The couple have enjoyed life to the fullest, and, oh yes, they would do it all over again.

Local dancer returns to perform

The Terps are celebrating 64 years of dance. Hampton University dance company carries a great history.

Chairman of the Physical Education Department Charles H. Williams formed the group in 1924.

This dance group represents a number of majors across the campus including students in premed, marketing, accounting, prelaw and computer science just to name a few.

Students have auditioned with a background in modern ballet, jazz, ethnic and tap.

Terps are currently touring with Sanford's own Demetria Petty, who has a wide experience of dance. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Petty, and a Seminole High graduate, she started dancing when she was four years old. At the school of Dance Arts, Demetria studied ballet, jazz and pointe, and also gymnastics for 12 years.

She was a member of the Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole at the age of 10. Eventually, she taught dance at Tajiri Arts for three years before becoming a community dance instructor for Hampton University in Virginia.

Demetria is the president of the Terps dance, and is a senior majoring in electrical engineering. She aspires to complete her studies in biomedical engineering and complete her Ph.D. in electrical engineering.

The Terps have traveled throughout and will perform Jan.

Let's talk money

The Central Florida Chapter of the International Black Women's Congress (IBWC) will be sponsoring a biblical assisted workshop: Destroying the Root of Debt and Living a Prosperous Life.

Come to understand God's purpose for money and wealth, sowing seed properly and reaping an abundant harvest.

This workshop will be facilitated by Elizabeth Gallon McGhee of Daytona Beach.

Attend this workshop on Monday, Jan. 27, from 8 p.m.-9 p.m. at the Midway Community Center, located on the corner of Hurston and 51st St.

Don't forget your Bible! This opportunity is for people who are indebted and are searching for alternatives.

Feel free to bring family and friends. For more information, call 331-5665, 330-6583 or (904) 255-5225.

This workshop is free to the public.

Musical benefit

A musical program in the memory of the late Deacon Arthur and Mother Pearlene Henderson will benefit the Holy Trinity Church of God in Christ.

This program will be held Saturday, March 1, at 7:30 p.m., at Trinity on 1405 South Mangoustine.

The service is designed to benefit the Holy Trinity Church of God in Christ where Arthur and Henderson served for a combined total of 109 years.

Anyone wishing to make a spiritual or financial donation to support this benefit program, please make checks or money orders payable to Holy Trinity Church of God in Christ. Mail or deliver to Sister Arthur Mae Scott, 2980 W. 23 St., Sanford, 32771.

During Mother Henderson's 60 years of service, she served as Mother of the church, Sunday school teacher, held a seat on the Mother's Board and was an advisor to the church youth. She also was secretary and treasurer of Trinity.

During Deacon Henderson's 49 years of worship and service, he served as chairman of the Deacon Board and was the resident carpenter, among many other tasks.

Hobbyist of the Week

Discovering Indian roots led to hobby

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Indian artifacts fill a room in the Sanford home of Tom Carpenter. After discovering some eight years ago that his roots derived from Native American background, he began a hobby of collecting these treasures.

"I knew my mother was an orphan," he said. "But I didn't know that my father was. I thought he was raised by the Hamiltons in Hamilton County, Ohio. I later found out that I came from American Indian roots."

He continued by saying, "I had always been interested in the Indian culture, theories and philosophies. I found out eight years ago about my father's roots and I began collecting Indian artifacts."

Some 10 wood-carved and stone-carved eagles and various other birds fill his home. "I have some of the other birds too that the Indians used in their ceremonies," he said. "They are all common birds. They were used in ceremonies and other things that the Indians did."

Carpenter also mentioned that the few arrowheads that he possesses were retrieved from Flint Ridge, Ohio, where there are the biggest deposits of flint that was exposed. "Indian Mounds fill the area, according to Carpenter."

He further added, "As we know Native Americans made use of what was in their garments. We know they had numerous garments."

Carpenter also acquired a variety of feathers. "They are difficult to collect," he said. "So many are outlawed because some are now endangered species."

A "death mask or cycle of death mask" was also cited as another find. "It came from a trip my son made to Peruvian ruins," said Carpenter. "The mask is overlaid and open. It represents birth, life and death so it is sometimes referred to the 'cycle of life' mask."

Tom Carpenter poses by Indian artifacts over the fireplace in his Sanford home.

In addition to the numerous treasures Carpenter also has a wooden totem pole. It represents some five generations.

Before and at times during his moments of collecting the Indian artifacts Carpenter also creates wood benches which are "designed off copies of Amish benches with a triple function, bread boxes and shelves "that are for function rather than glamour."

Carpenter has been a Sanford resident off and on since 1966. He has been married to his wife, Phyllis for 31 years.

They have three children, Tamara, Thomas and Todd which he affectionately refers to as "triple trouble." Carpenter graduated from Seminole Community College in 1969 while his sons both graduated in 1986. They now attend STetson University. The couple also have four grandchildren.

He is employed by the Orlando Sanford Airport as a U.S. Customs Inspector. For one and a half years Carpenter has been involved as "new membership coordinator" of his Neighborhood Watch program.

Previously he served for four years as a Precinct Committeeman for the Democratic Party and also served four years on the County Electrical Licensing Review Board.

Kimberly Ann Matthews and Michael Brown

Matthews-Brown

The Rev. and Mrs. Dale E. Matthews of Deltona, announce the engagement of their daughter, Kimberly Ann, to Michael Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brown Jr. of Sanford.

Born in Hammond, Ind., the bride-elect is the maternal granddaughter of Richard Tetter of Deltona and the late Mrs. Opal Tetter. Her paternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Matthews.

Ms. Matthews is a 1993 graduate of Deltona High School where she was a member of the marching band. She attended Daytona Beach Community college and is employed as head cashier at Home Depot in Lake Mary.

Her fiance, born in Orlando, is the maternal grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Chambers of Sanford, and the paternal grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brown Sr. of Orange City. He is a 1992 graduate of Seminole High School in Sanford and studied electronics at Seminole Community College. He is employed in the garden shop at Home Depot in Lake Mary.

The wedding will be an event of Nov. 1.

AARP to sponsor driving course

There is an easy way seniors can save money on their car insurance. All they have to do is take the AARP Safe Drivers Driving Course.

Driving course instructor Wilbur Simms came to the January meeting of the Lake Mary Chapter of the AARP to tell the members about the course. The class is designed to help seniors refine their driving skills and to learn safe defensive driving techniques.

Florida law requires insurance companies to give all seniors who take the course a discount on their car insurance. The discount varies anywhere from 2 percent to 10 percent, depending on the company. Drivers must have a good driving record to receive a discount and keep it.

For example, Wilbur's company offers a 5 percent discount which saves him $30 a year. At the conclusion of the course, you will receive a certificate which is good for three years.

The course will be Monday, March 17, and Tuesday, March 18, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. each day at the Educational Building of the River Oaks Church in Driftwood Village. The cost is $6 per person. Non-AARP members are welcome to take the course. To register, call Wilbur Simms at 323-7513.

AARP also is offering free tax help to any senior who needs it. The help will be available at the Sanford Senior Center at 403 Seminole Blvd., in Sanford on Mondays and Fridays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. from Feb. 3-April 14; at the Barnett Bank at 11:45 . State Road 434 in Longwood every Tuesday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., Feb. 4-April 15; at the Church of Annunciation at 1020 Montgomery St. in Altamonte Springs every Tuesday, from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., Feb. 4 through April 15; and at the Casselberry Senior Center at 300 N. Lake Tripiett Drive in Casselberry every Monday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

and every Wednesday from noon to 4 p.m. beginning Feb. 4-April 14.

Program committee chairwoman Ruth Dresser announced that the February meeting would be a pot luck dinner in honor of Valentine's Day. The meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, Feb. 18, at 1 p.m. at the Frank Evans Center. Ruth also announced that the Lake Mary Dancers will be entertaining members at the March meeting.

Paulee Stevens delivered a report to the members about the families who were helped over the holidays thanks to donations from AARP members. She also showed the members the heritage dolls that the seniors are making to sell at Olds Lake Mary Days. The dolls, which will sell from $2 to $4 each, will come with a story explaining how they came about. The seniors are looking for donations of wash cloths, lace and hankchiefs. They also need making the dolls each Tuesday from 9 a.m. to noon at the Frank Evans Center.

President Jim Carmona then read a thank you letter from Better Living for Seniors. The Lake Mary Chapter of the AARP donated $150 of the AARP donated $150 to the organization to use for Meals on Wheels.

After the business meeting, the AARP members sat back and enjoyed the entertainment.

Country/Western entertainer Eldon Cox came with his electric guitar and his cowboy hat and played everything from "Blue Eyes Crying in the Rain" to "People Will Say We're in Love." The audience enjoyed singing along with the songs they knew.

If you are interested in joining the Lake Mary Chapter of the AARP, meetings are held the third Tuesday of every month at 1 p.m. at the Frank Evans Center.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Cook

Emily Priest bride of Thomas E. Cook

Mr. and Mrs. R.D. Priest of Sanford are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Emily Marie, to Thomas Edward Cook of Orlando.

Born in Sanford, the bride is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. A.F. Stich of Clearwater and the late Mr. and Mrs. C.C. Priest of Sanford.

The wedding took place on Oct. 22, 1996.

Mrs. Cook is office administrator at the Loucree Company in Sanford.

Cook, born in Atlanta, GA, is the son of Mrs. Sarah Cook and the late J.I. Cook. He is employed by General Medical Corp.

For their honeymoon, the newlyweds went on a cruise to Key West and Cosumel, Mexico.

The newlyweds are making their home in Lake Mary.

DEAR ABBY: I am really confused. I am 21 years old and I have two small children. I got pregnant and married at 17, so I haven't had much experience at life. I felt if I was woman enough to get pregnant, I was woman enough to take care of the child and raise it as best I could.

ADVICE
ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

It never bothered me that I didn't have much of a teen-age life because I had been through a lot and had grown up fast. My husband, on the other hand, was not at all ready for a family. He married me, but when my baby was 8 months old he started messing around, so I left.

When I came back, things were OK — but then he started drinking a lot and got both mentally and physically abusive. Things just seemed to get worse and worse, so I kicked him out. Then I found out I was pregnant with our second child. I didn't know what to do. He was living with some other girl and still coming to my home, making my life a living hell.

Then he told me he wanted to come back to his family — so like a fool, I took him back. After my second child was born, I thought things were all right. But then I discovered that he was still seeing the same girl and that she had a baby. He swears it's not his; she says it is.

Now he has decided that he's finally ready to be a father and husband. I don't know what I want to do. I have held on and been through so much for him. But I don't trust him and don't know that I ever will.

I don't have the same love for him that I once did.
Should I continue this relationship? Should I call it quits? Do you believe someone can change his whole way of life in only a few short months?
Please help me. I don't know what to do.

LOST IN JACKSON, MISS.

DEAR LOST: A person can make great strides in changing his or her attitudes if there is sufficient motivation — but considering your husband's history, I wouldn't bank on this reconciliation. Continue this relationship only on the condition that he agree to joint marriage counseling with you, and that he make it possible for you to continue and complete your education. That way, if things do not work out, you will be able to support your children without having to depend on him. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: Your column reaches so many people and is so effective, I have a request I would like to get out to people.

As I visit in a local nursing home, I see a tremendous need for help. So many of the people are lonely for someone to share with.

They love to tell you about their past, and many never get to go outside because the nurses and aides are too busy to take them out for a walk. Each time I take my friend out in the fresh air and sunshine, I can see a difference in her. I live in a warm climate and can do this often.

Even if people just visit and listen to the residents for a while, the people love the attention. Often there are organized activities the director needs help with, if people are reluctant to visit on a one-to-one basis at first.

If any of your readers are looking for a way to cheer up someone else and feel better in return, I suggest they look for ways to help others. Maybe a nursing home is not their answer, but many people need help in various ways.

My plea to your readers: Look for a way you can be of service to another. You will be blessed.
MABLE'S FRIEND IN FLORIDA

DEAR MABLE'S FRIEND: For years I have pointed out the many rewards of volunteerism. I know from personal experience the satisfaction that is derived from reaching out to others, and I recommend it to those with time on their hands and charity in their hearts.

Hazel and Woodrow Cash celebrated their 59th wedding anniversary on Jan. 19. They were married on that day in 1938 at Bluefield, W. Va. The Cashes are still talking about their golden gala celebration and "it all just seems like yesterday."

Hazel and Woodrow came to Sanford in 1948 where he attended dry cleaning school with M.L. Raborn. He was associated with Downtown Cleaners for 15 years and later operated the dry cleaning facility at Orlando Naval Training Center.

Woodrow has been a member of the Free and Accepted Masons of Florida for more than 40 years and has advanced to York Rite and Scotch Rite. He has received numerous honors and is past Worshipful Master of the Sanford Lodge.

Hazel worked for 35 years in Sanford at Strickland Morrison's, Sanford Atlantic National Bank and the Seminole County Sheriff's Office. She is a past president of the Sanford Woman's Club and has been a member of the church Altar Guild for years.

In celebration of their anniversary, the couple's son, Jack Cash, and two grandchildren took them out on the town. Also, they enjoyed opening gifts from their daughter, Nancy Cash, who makes her home in Alexandria, Va.

The couple's interests include walking. They rise ahead of the sun and take leisurely strolls every morning.

Hazel said, "We've had a good life. It's been good years for us."

Queen candidates honored at coffee

The Wilson Place home of Linda Keeling was the site of an elegant Valentine Coffee last Saturday honoring the three Beta Sigma Phi Valentine Girls. During the coffee, judges from the BSP DeLand City Council, Susan White, Marilyn Meyers, Mary Ann Howard Margie Helton, judged the candidates.

In keeping with a Valentine motif, the dining room table was decorated in red and white with a yellow rose centerpiece, the official flower of Beta Sigma Phi. Refreshments included tea sandwiches, assorted, toasted nuts, Valentine confections, fruit compote, petit cheesecakes, and a delicious cake which were served with coffee and punch.

The three Valentine Queen candidates attending were: Dorinda Todaro, Betty Jack and Amoret LaRosa. Others attending were: Laurel Goodenough and 1986-87 Valentine Queens: Helen Hammer, president of the BSP Sanford City Council; Cathy McGuire, Joyce Sammet, Eve Rogern, Viola Frank and Jo Secor.

The Valentine Queen will be announced and crowned at 7 p.m., at the Valentine Dinner, Feb. 6, at Glen Abbey Restaurant, DeBary. Anyone interested may attend by calling 323-7247. Tickets are $15 per person and deadline for reservations is Jan. 29.

The festivities include a parade of former BSP queens. The sorority needs help in locating missing queens. Sharon Comstock and Martha Lyle. For information, call 323-7247.

Eunice to turn 86

For a number of years, Eunice Martin celebrated her birthday at a big party at the small frame home on Country Club Road in Sanford where she lived for nearly 70 years. Eunice is a descendant of early Swedish settlers brought to the Upsala section of Sanford in 1871 by Gen. Henry Shelton Sanford, founder of the city.

Relatives came from far and near for the birthday celebration of "Aunt Eunice," who never had any children of her own.

Eunice, who will celebrate her 86th birthday Jan. 29, no longer lives in the humble home of cherished memories, but has moved to Winter Haven, to be near her family. For those who may be interested in sending her birthday greetings, her address is: Eunice Martin, 17 Buckeye Circle NE, Winter Haven, 33881.

Business

IN BRIEF

Pinnacle manager

LAKE MARY — Judi Echterling, a Lake Mary resident, has been named center manager for Pinnacle Office Center's new Orlando downtown suites on the top floor of the renovated 18 Orange Avenue building.

Echterling is responsible for coordinating service and space agreements and maintaining relationships with clients.

Prior to joining Pinnacle, she leased professional business offices for Apex Professional Services in Heathrow.

She has been active in the Greater Lake Mary/Heathrow Chamber of Commerce and the Executive Suite Association.

A native of Cincinnati, she relocated to Central Florida four years ago and currently resides in Lake Mary with her son Jack and daughter Jessica.

The Pinnacle Office Centers in Central Florida are in Altamonte Springs, Longwood, and downtown Orlando.

Harris earnings

MELBOURNE — Strong sales of communications and office equipment and electronic systems helped boost Harris Corp.'s earnings 13 percent to $45.5 million in the quarter ended Dec. 31, the company said Wednesday.

Sales of satellite and other communications gear to the federal government, which accounts for 25 percent of Harris' business, led a 27 percent growth in earnings by the company's electronic systems sector.

Harris reported net income of $45.5 million, or $1.17 a share, on sales of $945.9 million for the quarter ended Dec. 31, the second quarter of the company's fiscal year. That was up from income of $40.4 million, or $1.03 a share, on sales of $916.6 million in the same quarter a year earlier.

Company separation

NEW YORK — PepsiCo Inc. said it plans to spin off its sluggish restaurant business, which includes the KFC, Pizza Hut and Taco Bell fast-food chains, into a separate company.

The company said Thursday it would give shares in the new fast-food concern to PepsiCo shareholders and focus on its faster growing Pepsi soft drink and Prito-Lay snacks operations.

The new company would rank just behind McDonald's Corp. among the nation's fast-food chains, with more than $20 billion in combined sales, and would be the biggest in terms of units, with about 29,000 restaurants.

New businesses flock to Longwood

LONGWOOD — Two new businesses have begun operations in Longwood recently. AutoZone and Empire Financial Group are now in facilities on SR-434.

AutoZone, a Memphis-based retail auto parts chain, cut the ribbon on its newest location this week, at 812 E. SR-434 in Longwood. The ribbon cutting, with District Manager Larry Fussey, and Longwood Mayor William Winston took place Wednesday morning.

AutoZone, a public company, had national sales of over $2.2 billion in fiscal 1996. It employs approximately 26,800 people.

Plans for the immediate future call for 1,500 stores in 29 states, all company-operated. There are no franchisees. AutoZone plans to open more stores per year than any other retail auto parts chain in the nation.

Empire Financial Group, Inc., has relocated its corporate offices to the Sanlando Center Business Park off SR-434. The relocation swings into full operation Monday, Jan. 27.

According to Empire spokesman Jim Singer, the new location features a resource center where investors will be able to access real-time quotes and news, as well as historical information.

He said other services include the expansion of the full service brokerage division and a new

How are you marketing your service business?

When I went to college many years ago, the direction of the Business Administration Department was toward large manufacturers and retailers. My school had not taken into account that the service sector of the economy was booming and would come to dominate.

There are significant differences in how you market your service versus a producer of hard goods. For example, when you market a service, your client many times comes away empty handed from the sale. A product can be seen and handled; a service cannot. A product is produced; a service is performed.

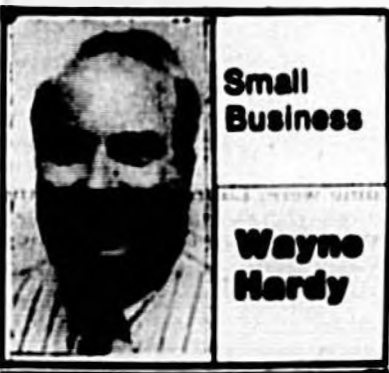

Because services are intangible, your client can't see, taste, smell or touch your product. This puts a heavy burden on your promotional strategy. You can promise yourself through well illustrated brochures, color photographs and letters of commendation from satisfied clients. Which of these you use will depend on the individual characteristics of your service and budget.

Remember that because of the difficulty in demonstrating an intangible product, clients often will be unable to evaluate the quality of a service before buying. As a result, the reputation and image of your company becomes paramount in buying decisions.

Your service business is characterized not by inventory problems but by capacity problems. The usefulness of your service is relatively short-lived. It cannot be created ahead of time and then sold as demand peaks. Your customer must be satisfied, unless you are delivering consistent, high quality performance you will not build loyal clients.

Although most service providers see themselves as professionals, not marketers, you have to sell at all times. You must conform your service to the needs and desires of your clients. To assume that simply because you are as good or better than your competitors, that the world will seek you out, is a recipe for disaster.

Your clients desire for...

Small Business

personal attention often is the dominant need to satisfy by your service. This will give you a unique opportunity to cultivate the clients personal feelings and loyalty toward your service.

How many of us that are selling a service allow a telephone answering device to be our contact with a client. You don't think that is a problem? I will give a real life example. I recently went to contract with an alarm company for a system at the Port of Sanford.

I made six calls and in three of them, I was not greeted with a live human voice but was trapped in a maze of electronic options. Guess who hung up? I don't believe I am the only one. A large number of people are blinded by the need to talk to a tape.

Never forget that in many cases, your service has replaced durable goods as status symbols. This has key implications on how you position your service.

Many service providers don't realize that pricing offers a marketing opportunity also. I have run into many who think that lowering their price will result in an increase in business. In many cases just the opposite occurs. Clients frequently equate price with competence. You send a deadly message to clients as to the value of your service with a low price. It is something to think about.

Chamber recognizes members

From staff reports

OVIEDO — The Greater Oviedo Chamber of Commerce recently recognized leading members and businesses during its 1997 installation and awards dinner.

Bill Winchester of Winchester Insurance was recognized as the chamber's Business Person of the Year. Chuck Pratt, head of Chess, Inc., an area builder, received the organization's Outstanding Service Award.

The chamber's outgoing secretary, Susan Howard, of the Vera Company, received the coveted President's Award.

Citizen Bank of Oviedo was recognized for its contributions to Oviedo and surrounding communities with a special Community Service Award. Receiving the award for the bank was Terry Vargo, head of the bank's loan department.

Former Chamber President Glenda Conley presented the Business of the Year award to A. Duda & Sons. The award was accepted by F.S. Duda.

Speaking at the dinner was Dr. Paul J. Hagerty, Superintendent of Seminole County Public Schools. The chamber presented Hagerty with a framed historic edition of a Nelson & Company citrus label, in recognition of his contribution to the community through the public school system.

Nelson & Company is one of Oviedo's oldest agricultural firms, responsible in part for the community's economic development.

Your Birthday

Sunday, Jan. 26, 1997

A substantial amount of travel to places you have not visited before is indicated for the year ahead. These jaunts might be short, but they will be packed with pleasant experiences.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today you might become aware of an exciting project. You will make a good addition to the team, so don't hesitate to ask to participate. Aquarius, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Try to be a good listener today, because the best ideas will come from others. You will be inspired by several different people.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Other people may overlook significant details today, but you will not. For the reason, you will succeed when others fail.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Generally speaking, you should be able to get along well with everyone today, but you will be most comfortable with people who share your philosophy and politics.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you are not able to stretch your budget as far as you would like at the time, this will be a good day for you and your mate to examine it carefully.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) One of your best assets today is your ability to make others feel important. This can be done without flattery or insincerity.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It doesn't look as though you are getting the acknowledgment you deserve for a current project. Do not hesitate to ask for compensation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will feel rejuvenated today if you can get your mind off mundane matters. Try to participate in activities you enjoy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Information you need can be garnered from others today by asking indirect questions. Associates will talk freely if they are not

Bridge on the Internet

By Phillip Alder

PHILLIP ALDER

As the internet expands, so the amount of bridge on the World Wide Web increases. Every day last October, I followed the World Team Olympiad online. (Though I was pained to discover that I couldn't download the daily bulletin as I don't have a postscript printer. Surely the World Bridge Federation can fix this problem.) Today, though, I wish to highlight the recently opened web site of The Bridge World magazine at <http://www.bridgeworld.com>. You will find material for all levels of player, information, single- and double-dummy problems, even a mystery. Pay the site a visit! This is one of the single-dummy problems. How would you play in four hearts after West has led the diamond ace? It was generous of the opponents, with 12 diamonds and half the high-card points between them, to stay out of the bidding. Although five diamonds goes one down, that is still cheaper than allowing four hearts to make.

This deal is easy if you've seen the theme before. If East has the club ace, there are no problems. But if West has that card (and you know he has!), you must score three spade tricks without letting East get on play for a fatal club switch.

The answer is to discard a spade from hand at trick one. Suppose West switches to a spade, which is as good as anything. Win with dummy's king, draw trumps, play a spade to the ace, and take a ruffing spade finesse, discarding a club if East doesn't cover with the queen. Even if West wins the trick, your con-
