Subway robbery suspect nabbed

Following an extensive search of a wooded area near Howell Branch Road, the man accused of robbing the Subway Shop in Oviedo yesterday was finally apprehended.

Joseph Ruiz, 27, of 4729 Goldenrod Road, Orlando, was taken into custody by Seminole County Sheriff's deputies. "This was a cooperative effort between us, the Orange County sheriff, Casselberry and Oviedo police departments," said Sheriff's spokesperson George Proechel.

Ruiz reportedly robbed the Oviedo restaurant, during which time he shot one of the employees in the head.

He then fled to a wooded area off Howell Branch Road near the Seminole/Orange County line. The search involved several dozen officers from all four agencies.

"Ruiz had been going down a drainage ditch near the Eastbrook subdivision," Proechel said. "At about 11 o'clock, he came out and was apprehended by deputies."

Ruiz was charged with armed robbery, aggravated battery, and attempted murder.

The store clerk who was shot in the head was listed in serious but stable condition.

Bridge remains closed to boats

SANFORD — The U.S. Highway 17-92 bridge at the St. Johns River will continue to remain closed to large boats throughout this week, opening only during times the Rivership Grand Romance is scheduled to pass.

Other than periodic openings, the bridge will be kept closed from 6 a.m. until 7 p.m. each business day while a barge drives pilings for its replacement. Normal openings will occur throughout the evening and on weekends.

The scheduled openings are:

- Tuesday: noon and 2 p.m.
- Wednesday: noon and 1 p.m.
- Thursday: noon and 2 p.m.
- Friday: no openings.

The bridge clearance is about 14 feet.

Churchgoers worship in Klingon

RED LAKE FALLS, Minn. — The reading at St. John's Lutheran Church told the story of the Tower of Babel — in Klingon, one tongue God didn't include when he confounded the languages.

Klingons are the alien adversaries of those on the "Star Trek" starship Enterprise. And they are imaginary, but that didn't stop Glen Proechel from planning a Sunday service in "thlingan," the Klingon language.

"Sometimes you have to use fiction to deal with the problems of real life," said Proechel, director of a two-week camp in northwestern Minnesota where the Klingon language is being taught.

About 50 people attended Sunday's service. Proechel translated the Lord's Prayer and the Apostles' Creed into Klingon.

The term Holy Spirit presented a problem, because Klingons aren't big on holiness, nor spiritual things.

Correction

Due to a reporting error in Monday's Sanford Herald, the impact of proposed county garbage collection fees under consideration this afternoon were exaggerated.

The increases over current monthly rates will range from 38 cents to 64 cents, depending on the garbage hauler.

Decision day today

Will Main Street choose Sanford for revitalization?

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Today is decision day on Sanford's request for entry into the Florida Main Street Program. The decision could be made by late this afternoon.

Traditionally, only three applicants are approved each year. Last year, only two were selected.

This year, local leaders hoped there would be only three applicants, but there were some last-minute filings, which increased the number to five. In addition to Sanford, applicants include the cities of Eustis, Zephyrhills, Port St. Joe, and Homestead.

The examination of the application papers is being conducted today in Ocoee by a selection panel. Sanford delegates were scheduled to present their case at 10 a.m.

On hand for the meeting are interim Sanford Main Street program director Neil Fritz, co-presidents Christ Cranias and Hal Welch, economic restructuring chairman Helen Stairs, promotions chairman Kay Bartholomew, and Laura Straehla, chairman of the design committee.

Scheduled to join the group were Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith, City Manager Bill Simmons, and several other city and county dignitaries.

The city's original involvement came in the form of a $10,000 grant used to hire Fritz to See Program, Page 5A

Traffic noise

State study says no barrier walls needed

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — Although Interstate 4 traffic between State 434 and Lake Mary Boulevard is expected to increase by more than 50 percent after the road is widened, noise levels won't increase enough to justify costly barrier walls, according to a study performed for the state.

"I guess I'll have to plant more trees back there," said Bruce Wallace, a highway-side resident of the Mandarin subdivision west of the Interstate.

The Florida Department of Transportation is planning a $21 million project to widen the four-lane highway to six lanes sometime after 1996. Current traffic levels of 81,000 vehicles per day would peak at 84,400 if the road isn't widened but would eventually explode to 126,700 vehicles per day if two lanes are added.

Wallace and other residents living adjacent to I-4 lanes say the traffic noise is annoying now and See Traffic, Page 5A

FP&L cuts costs, shuts down Sanford office after 20 years

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — After 20 years in downtown Sanford, the Florida Power and Light customer service office on Myrtle Avenue will close Oct. 8 as part of a statewide cost-cutting measure.

The fate of the 10 employees in the office is uncertain. FPL spokesman Steve Dickinson said the company plans to transfer the workers to Daytona Beach and elsewhere. But Dickinson added FPL will begin a $100 million corporate trim in January. The number of layoffs is expected to be announced by the end of this month.

"It is our plan to transfer those people," said Dickinson. "But I cannot say whether they will be affected by the cost-reduction."

Dickinson said FPL will close all of its customer service counters throughout the state, including those in its corporate hometown of Miami. A survey found more than 90 percent of the utility's customers pay by mail, so there is less need for the walk-in offices. The company has contracts with Eckerd Drugs to take bill payments.

Sanford customers will still be able to pay their bills at the Eckerd's on South Orlando Drive, he said.

When opened in 1974, the 11,000-square-foot building at 310 Myrtle Ave. served as the FPL's district offices for portions of Seminole and southwest Volusia counties. District offices were eventually consolidated and the Myrtle Avenue building continued primarily for customer services and temporary offices for engineers and land purchase agents, Dickinson said.

City agrees on land lease for golf course

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Eagles' Nest Golf Course moved a step closer to reality last night. The Sanford City Commission reached preliminary agreements on the leasing of the land.

Disagreements on the length of the leasing arrangement were resolved during work session discussion last night.

The course is to be built on Site-10, property owned by the city near Geneva, used for the discharge of reclaimed water. Brad Simms is the applicant.

Simms overall proposal is for two 18 hole courses, with a club house, driving range, and educational facilities for youth as well as adults.

At the present time, Simms is suggesting only one 18 hole course and a practice field as Phase 1 of the project.

During negotiations with the city over the leasing of the property, disagreement arose over the length of the lease. Simms had requested a 50 year lease, while the city indicated it would only approve a 25 year lease.

Simms appeared before the commission in a work session last night, to explain his reasoning. "While I wouldn't personally have any problem with a 25 year lease," he said, "it's a matter of capital. I could not obtain financing and amortize it over only 25 years. I must be able to tell a lender that the lease would hold for longer than that."

City Manager Bill Simmons suggested the matter may be resolved with a 25 year lease followed by an agreement for renewal for the additional 25

'Last' first day of school was 'pretty serene'

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Principal Jim Shupe is using some pretty unusual words to describe the first day of school at Lakeview Middle School yesterday.

"It was pretty serene and peaceful here yesterday," Shupe said this morning. "I think it went very, very well."

He said the school has adopted some new practices as well as a new attitude that is manifesting itself in a more exciting, but more subdued, atmosphere.

Shupe said the first day of school went surprisingly smoothly with few complaints and very little confusion.

As with all things, there were a few bugs to be worked out, but certainly nothing that couldn't be solved with only minor adjustments to a schedule or two or with a bit of clarification.

"This was the best first day of school I can remember," said Shupe who has about a quarter

Grand jury indicts man on 1971 rape

ST. AUGUSTINE — A St. Augustine man will be arraigned Sept. 7 on charges he sexually assaulted an 11-year-old girl, a relative, more than two decades ago, authorities said.

Robert Rains, 57, is free on $25,000 bond after being arrested Friday on charges he raped the girl in the summer of 1971, court documents released Monday showed.

The woman, now in her 30s, brought the case to authorities in recent months and a formal complaint was filed June 30. There is no statute of limitations on rape and Rains, a lieutenant with the city fire department, could be sentenced to life in prison if convicted.

Assistant State Attorney Patrick Canan declined to be any more specific about the woman other than to say she is related to Rains and decided to pursue the case after "living with it for so many years."

The grand jury charged Rains with rape — as the charge was called in 1971, Canan said. Under current state laws, the charge would be sexual battery.

Fifth launch date for Discovery Sept. 10

CAPE CANAVERAL — NASA has chosen Sept. 10 as the fifth launch date in two months for space shuttle Discovery.

The satellite-delivery flight has been delayed four times since mid-July: three times by mechanical problems, including an engine shutdown, and once by a meteor shower.

Technicians finished replacing Discovery's three main engines over the weekend. An engine shutdown halted the last countdown on Aug. 12 three seconds before scheduled liftoff; a faulty fuel sensor was to blame.

Shuttle Director Tom Utman said a Sept. 10 launch date is based on successful testing of the new main engines, scheduled for this week. Liftoff would be at 7:38 a.m. EDT.

The five-man crew is to deploy an experimental communications satellite and an ultraviolet telescope. A spacewalk also is planned to test tools needed for the Hubble Space Telescope mission in December.

Coast Guard to investigate oil spill

TAMPA — Members of the Coast Guard board of inquiry will visit the site in Tampa Bay where barges collided earlier this month, dumping 250,000 gallons of industrial oil, the chairman says.

Board members plan a night-time ride through the bay's shipping channel in vessels similar to the tugs and barges involved in the accident, Coast Guard officials said Monday.

"We want to get a feel for what it's like out there," said Capt. James E. Calhoun, chairman of the panel. "It's not a re-creation. We just want to see what it looks like and observe its lights at night."

The Coast Guard in Tampa said it was unknown when the trip would take place.

The Balsa 37 collided Aug. 10 with barges being pushed by the tugs Seafarer and Fred Bouchard. On Monday, board members continued to hear witnesses discuss whether the inbound Seafarer was over the center line as it neared the outgoing Balsa 37.

Tommy Baggett, pilot of Balsa 37, has testified that the Seafarer was on the wrong side of the channel, headed for his ship, shortly before the crash.

Crew members from the Seafarer have contradicted his story, saying Baggett apparently became confused about whether to pass on the right or left.

Community struggles to save homestead

CHRISTMAS — Keeping the old homesteads of the Christmas area alive is proving difficult.

This Central Florida community with some claim to history has several old homes that the Christmas Historical Society wants to restore. But some people don't care, bureaucrats are indifferent and money is short.

The primary objective for preservationists is the Bee Head Ranch House, once home to cattlemen and hunters, but built deep in the Toxohatchee State Reserve, four miles from the nearest paved road. Nevertheless, the society and the county consider it an important part of Florida's past.

Service commemorates hurricane

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

HOMESTEAD — Hurricane Andrew's victims held a prayer service to mark the anniversary of the storm's early morning assault, preceding a day of events from ground-breakings to block parties to celebrate their survival.

A year after south Florida residents took shelter as the storm screamed across Dade County, Gov. Lawton Chiles marked the anniversary at a sunrise service in the city which felt the full wrath of Andrew.

Chiles said he is seeing the despair that gripped the area lifting.

"In the last few months, there is a totally different look," Chiles told a crowd of several hundred at the city's refurbished sports complex.

"There's a totally different feel. Homestead is never going to be the same, but we are going to make them better."

Despite the scars — boarded windows, smashed roofs and snapped trees — there are signs of healed wounds, including a Miracle House in Florida City being constructed in 24 hours. A block party is planned in the city tonight.

Chiles planned to visit that house, to attend the opening of a Social Security office, and later make an appearance on CNN's "Larry King Live."

"We're gaining on it," Chiles said on a bus tour Monday with U.S. Housing and Urban Development Secretary Henry Cisneros, new Federal Emergency Management Agency Director James Lee Witt, and Florida lawmakers.

From bare survival, officials said they're shifting their focus to the future of devastated south Dade County.

Cisneros said $148 million of the $250 million Congress has allocated for recovery will go to South Florida, and $82 million of that will be for housing. The rest goes to Louisiana and Hawaii.

About 100,000 people have left south Dade County since Andrew. "I've got to believe that if we could rebuild affordable housing many of them would want to come back to their native area," Cisneros said.

Chiles, who spent 12 days in the devastated region after the storm, revisited some rejuvenated areas, such as Miami's Fairchild Tropical Gardens.

Though a thunderstorm loomed, he put on a sombrero and danced when serenaded at the newly revived Centro Campesino farmworkers' camp.

Other areas, like the condominiums of Naranja Lakes, remained shattered, with walls spray painted with insurance company's names and warnings such as "Bad Dog," and "Looters Welcome. I Need Rifle Practice."

The Inter-Faith Coalition for the Andrew Recovery Effort, a group of churches and synagogues that has housed up to 300 people from as far away as Seattle and Canada, said volunteers still have more than 1,000 homes to work on where damage was uninsured.

"These are people living in houses where you look up at night and see the sky," said executive director Mary Louise Cole.

At Homestead Air Force Base, only 300 military and civilian personnel remain of the 7,400 before who lived there before Andrew destroyed 158 buildings. The base is being prepared for a transition to a mixed-use military and civilian facility.

Jitney service ends Sept. 3

By Associated Press

HOMESTEAD — A free shuttle service which linked those victimized by Hurricane Andrew to jobs and necessities has been extended to Sept. 3 while officials determine how it can be turned into a pay-for-ride basis.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency planned to end the jitney service tonight when original post-Andrew funding of $38 million ran out. Officials cited a survey which showed victims had solved their transportation problems and no longer needed a free ride.

But Metro-Dade County Commissioner Bruce Kaplan and Federal Emergency Management Agency Director James Lee Witt Monday decided that wasn't the case Monday after meeting with several of 26,000 daily passengers of the service.

In a joint release, Kaplan and Witt stressed "it was never the intention of the county or FEMA to allow disaster victims with legitimate transportation needs to fall through the crack."

However, "it is time for this emergency service to become self-supporting," they said.

Sliger named as interim president

By BRENT KALLESTAD

TALLAHASSEE — Bernie's back and Chancellor Charles Reed hopes the once popular Florida State president will keep things running smoothly at the university for awhile.

Reed and the Board of Regents put Bernard Sliger into his old job Monday while a search committee looks for a permanent replacement by year's end.

Dale Lick, who took over the job after Sliger retired in 1991, resigned under pressure last week.

The regents unanimously approved Reed's nomination of the 68-year-old Sliger during a telephone conference call. Board Chairman Alice Courtelis of Miami then designated Regent Tom Petway III of Jacksonville to chair a committee to quickly find a permanent president.

Doctors' murders to close one of two Florida abortion clinics

By BILL KACZOR
Associated Press Writer

PENSACOLA — The murders of two doctors within little more than five months has resulted in the closure, probably permanently, of one of two Florida Panhandle clinics where both performed abortions.

"I don't see any hope of reopening," said clinic administrator Sandra Sheldon at Family Planning of Fort Walton Beach. "Without the doctor, there is no business."

Her facility, about 35 miles east of here, will refer patients to its sister clinic, Pensacola Women's Medical Services, which still has a doctor and will remain open, said Jeanie Singletary, a medical assistant at the Pensacola clinic, on Monday.

"We are a little heartbroken, but we will carry on," Singletary said.

Dr. George Wayne Patterson, 44, was gunned down Saturday in Mobile, Ala., where he lived and also worked. Police were unsure whether Patterson's slaying in a nightclub district was related to his work or the result of an argument or robbery.

Patterson had worked many years at the Fort Walton Beach clinic but also replaced Dr. David Gunn at the Pensacola facility after the Eufaula, Ala., physician was shot March 10. Gunn, 47, was slain as he arrived for work at the Pensacola clinic in the midst of an anti-abortion demonstration.

Michael F. Griffin, the protester accused of murdering Gunn, is set for trial Sept. 20.

Gunn sometimes had filled in for Patterson in Fort Walton Beach, Sheldon said. Gunn also had worked at a second Pensacola clinic, The Ladies Center. He was succeeded there by Dr. John Bayard Britton of Fernandina Beach. Britton said

Sunday he would still perform abortions but declined to say where or when.

Singletary declined to identify her clinic's remaining doctor. "We are protecting him with our lives," she said.

Clinic personnel contended Patterson's slaying like Gunn's, was related to his work.

"It's too much of a coincidence," Singletary said.

"I have absolutely no information other than what I have heard in the press, but you'll have to prove to me it was a random shooting and a robbery," Sheldon said in a telephone interview.

In the second report, $830 in various items were taken.

The third incident a rifle and $140 in currency were said to be missing.

Two vehicular thefts were reported Saturday at Bridgewater Apartments. In one, a 1981 vehicle valued at $2,000 was reportedly taken. At a nearby apartment, a radar detector and CD stereo were removed from another vehicle, and the steering column had been damaged.

Postal Service offers rural carrier exam

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Applications to take U.S. Postal Service Rural Carrier Associate examinations are now available in Sanford and 62 other postal facilities. The exams will be taken later this year.

Rural Carrier Associates (RCA's) are part-time, non-career employees. When full-time, career rural carrier positions become available, they are first offered to career rural carriers.

If there are no career rural carriers, the positions are then offered to RCAs with at least one year of continuous service.

The career position is then generally awarded to the RCA with the most service.

There is a small chance of using the hiring list from this testing to fill career positions directly.

Rural carrier associates are required to accept, collect and deliver all classes of mail up to 70 pounds, as well as sell stamp supplies and money orders.

They may have irregular hours, and must provide and maintain their own vehicle with the help of a maintenance allowance. Starting salary is $9.29 per hour.

The open announcement information on how to apply is posted at designated post offices throughout the state.

To register for the DeLand (Sanford) area, applications are available at post offices in Orange City, DeBary and Sanford, plus several other locations.

To register for the Orlando area, application forms are available at post offices in Altamonte Springs, Apopka, Casselberry, Geneva, Oviedo and Longwood, in addition to several other locations.

The time period for obtaining and submitting applications is Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. until 3 p.m., through Sept. 3.

The time and date for the actual exams will be announced at a later time.

Florida man's death sentence upheld as 2 more executed

By The Associated Press

Texas held its fifth execution in as many weeks today as a ninth-grade dropout was put to death for murdering a man during a 1984 robbery. Two hours later in California, a man who refused a last-minute appeal of his sentence died in the state's gas chamber.

And in Florida, a federal judge late Monday denied a motion to stop Wednesday's scheduled execution of Michael Durocher, 33, condemned for the 1983 murders of his 6-month-old son, his girlfriend and her 5-year-old daughter. Durocher faces the electric chair and does not support appeals of his death sentence.

Ruben Cantu, 26, died seven minutes after receiving a lethal injection in Huntsville, Texas. Asked if he had any final statements, he replied, "No, sir," and shook his head.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals on Friday refused a request that Cantu's execution be blocked. There were no attempts Monday to halt the punishment.

Cantu maintained that he wasn't in San Antonio during the Nov. 8, 1984 robbery and shooting that killed one man and wounded another, who recovered from his wounds and identified Cantu as the gunman.

Cantu was 18 when convicted in 1985 and at the time was the youngest man on death row in Texas.

Cantu became the 67th inmate put to death in Texas since the Supreme Court in 1976 allowed the death penalty to resume. That total is by far the nation's highest.

In California, David Mason, 36, was executed in the San Quentin prison gas chamber this morning for the murders of four elderly people and a prison cellmate.

Mason decided earlier this year not to appeal his sentence to federal courts after it was upheld by the California Supreme Court. He said he wanted to atone for his crimes, avoid a last-minute furor and make state justices responsible for his death.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals refused Monday to extend a court order blocking the execution. Appeals were filed against Mason's wishes by a lawyer he had hired.

The same court had ruled Friday that Mason was mentally competent to consent to his execution.

He was sentenced to die for the 1980 robbery-murders of four elderly people and the 1982 strangling of a fellow jail inmate.

At one time he admitted to the killings, but later said he only killed the inmate. He also admitted to a sixth slaying for which he was never tried.

He was only the second person executed in California since the 1976 Supreme Court ruling. Robert Alton Harris was executed in April 1992 for the murders of two San Diego teenagers.

Why must it be made law?

Last Thursday night, Lake Mary Police Chief Richard Beary proposed the city enact a new ordinance which would make it a violation of the law to leave car keys in an unattended vehicle.

If enacted, the law would allow the city's police to issue a parking ticket against the vehicle, regardless of whether or not the engine is running.

Is this a case of government taking away more personal freedom? It's a shame that such restrictions must even be considered. People must blame themselves for bringing it about.

During this past week, Sanford police received at least 13 reports of stolen cars within the city limits. Only a few were recovered.

If that could be considered an average, Sanford residents could have 676 cars stolen per year. Police Commander Dennis Whitmire said the average is approximately 10 per week at this time. For the entire year of 1992, 331 cars were stolen in Sanford, an average of 4 1/2 per week.

These figures are shocking. People who leave their keys in an unoccupied vehicle are daring someone to steal it. Because the driver is too rushed or unconcerned to remove the ignition keys, a vehicle, possibly worth tens of thousands of dollars, could be stolen.

It would be foolish to expect police to watch each person's car at all times. Individual motorists must be their own protectors. When the vehicle is stopped, whether for a few moments or several hours, take the keys out and lock the doors.

It must be noted that many of the thefts are caused when the window is smashed and the steering column is broken to where the vehicle can be started.

Taking the keys out will not eliminate all of the thefts, but it will certainly reduce the number.

We agree with Chief Beary that removing the keys is also a safety factor when children might be in the vehicle and accidentally cause it to move.

Beary explained that the state has given individual cities the authority to enact, by ordinance, a prohibition against leaving the keys in an ignition.

Sanford police and other area law enforcement agencies are already operating under a state statute regarding leaving keys in an unoccupied vehicle, but only while the motor is running. Lake Mary is looking into stopping the practice in parked cars as well.

There are many commercials expounding the merits of a device to be placed over the steering wheel to prevent theft. Unfortunately, only a small percentage of the total number of drivers have purchased them. Even fewer bother to use them when a vehicle stops for a brief period.

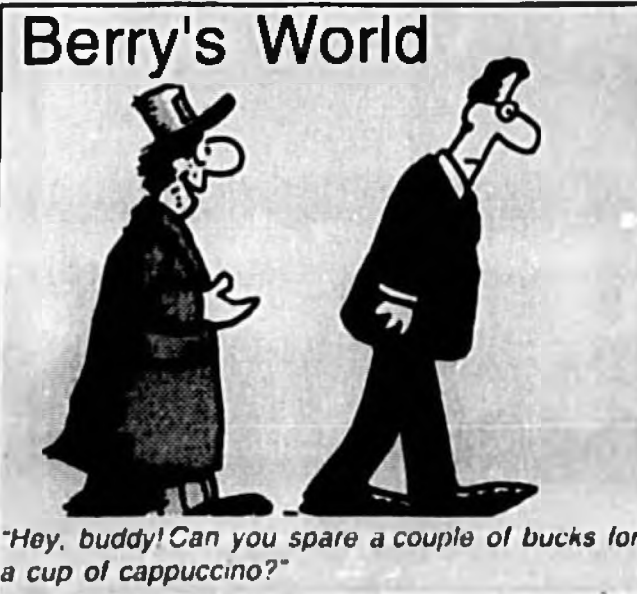

The use of such a device and removing keys from the ignition will go a long way toward reducing car thefts.

Endangered animals

I am one among many people that wish to have the school of Tiger's Eye Productions continue at the location of Oak Hollow Lane. The school and its students have touched and educated thousands of people, many of them children. There are still so many people including the Seminole County commissioners that do not realize the beauty of these creatures and just how endangered they are. These animals do not have voices so people have to take the stand and fight for them. It is the humans that have brought them near extinction, for some it is too late, for others there is still hope. They must be able to continue their work so that future generations will be able to see magnificent creatures survive in reality and not just in books.

Reagan era looks good from here

The Aug. 16 cover of Time magazine features an upside-down photo of Ronald Reagan and a glib headline: "Overturning The Reagan Era." An accompanying article hails the recent passage of Bill Clinton's economic package as "the first real rejection of Reaganomics" and "a return to the economic orthodoxy of balanced budgets." Who are these guys kidding? A Democratic president with a solid Democratic majority in both chambers of Congress wins approval of his program by a tiny two-vote margin in the House and a scant one-vote margin in the Senate.

That hardly can be considered either a resounding victory for Clinton, or a real repudiation of Reagan.

As to the notion that the Clinton plan somehow brings us closer to a balanced budget, one wonders in what Cloud Cuckoo Land the editors of Time reside.

Over the five-year period covered by the president's economic program, the gap between what the government spends and what it raises in revenues will never fall below $200 billion in any given year. And by the time the Clinton plan expires, the annual deficit will be rising rather than falling.

Here's a prediction: Once the full brunt of Clinton's $496 billion in new taxes and illusory spending cuts is felt throughout the economy, most Americans will long for the Reagan era.

For while Clinton and the Democrats like to cast the 1980s as a decade of greed, a decade in which the rich got richer at the expense of the poor, the reality is that most Americans were far better off under Reagan than they were under Carter, and than they will be under Clinton.

It should be remembered that when Ronald Reagan inherited the White House, America was mired in its worst economic crisis since the Great Depression. The unemployment rate topped 10 percent during the depth of the downturn. Inflation stood at more than 13 percent. Interest rates were beyond 20 percent.

By the time Reagan left office, America had enjoyed its longest period of peacetime expansion since World War II. Inflation had been pared by two-thirds, to just over 4 percent. Interest rates were cut in half, to just over 9 percent (and lower still under Reagan's successor, George Bush).

But perhaps the biggest economic accomplishment of the Reagan era was the creation of a record 20 million jobs. Democrats try to advance the fiction that most of those jobs were of the low-wage variety, but the Bureau of Labor Statistics says differently.

Its numbers show that 82 percent of the jobs created during the Reagan era were high-paying, high-skilled positions -- managerial, professional, technical and the like.

The rich did get richer during the Reagan era. But so did the poor. In fact, the poorest fifth of Americans saw a 15 percent increase in total income between 1980 and 1988, from $105 billion to $120 billion, taking inflation into account.

One wonders in what Cloud Cuckoo Land the editors of Time reside.

Mercury: How much toleration?

Mercury has been a known human toxin since Roman times, when slaves who mined the silvery liquid metal suffered convulsions and sometimes died.

In our own time, much more has been learned about mercury, widespread in commercial applications and emitted as a gas when coal is burned.

While not a known carcinogen, mercury in sufficient dosage is "toxic to developing fetuses," according to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. The metal disrupts the developing nervous system and chronic exposure can produce mental retardation, among other symptoms.

Recent research has shown that mercury can be mistaken as a human hormone in the body, damaging a growing embryo so subtly that the effects may not become apparent until adulthood.

Further, mercury is a bioaccumulator, once ingested it stays in the body. Most of the mercury accumulations in people come from eating fish. The fish get it from the aquatic food chain where mercury from coal-burning and waste incineration falls directly into the water or is eventually deposited there as runoff from land sprinkled with a microscopic dust of quicksilver.

In fact, mercury has been so widely dispersed by being flushed into the atmosphere and then falling back to land that "the watershed transport of mercury to the lakes will remain elevated for long periods of time, perhaps several centuries," says a recent report to the EPA. Mercury concentrations in Minnesota and Wisconsin lakes, for example, have increased on average by 2 percent every year for the past 140 years.

Because mercury accumulates in living tissue, fish from water containing only one-in-a-trillion parts of mercury, may typically have mercury concentrations 1,000 times as great, measured in parts per million. "There is widespread evidence in the United States, Canada and Europe," according to an EPA study of mercury concentrations in fish "that exceed local, national and international public health guidelines. This situation represents a serious human health concern."

Several European governments have taken it seriously enough to severely restrict mercury emissions from coal-fired power plants, the main source of mercury contamination.

Progress here at home has not been as dramatic. No regulations exist on mercury emissions from coal-fired utilities, the annual source of about 192,000 pounds of mercury released to the air. Nor do any federal regulations exist on the second largest source of mercury emissions, the estimated annual 100,000 pounds of releases through the smokestacks of municipal waste incinerators.

Total emissions add up to about 540,000 pounds of mercury annually. "The problem is, mercury is ubiquitous," says EPA environmental scientist Martha Keating. "It's spread out over lots of sources and is basically everywhere."

But the situation is changing, however slowly. As of 1991 the use of mercury in paints, once the third largest emissions source, was banned. "Within a couple of years" nearly all alkaline batteries sold in the United States will be virtually mercury-free, says Eugene Lee of the EPA's solid-waste division. About half of the mercury from urban incinerators comes from discarded batteries.

European manufacturers began selling non-mercury alkalines five years ago. The next target is hearing aid-type button batteries, which, Lee says, are being phased out with non-mercury replacements. Sensing regulation was only a matter of time, the U.S. battery industry has developed mercury substitutes "on their own accord," Lee says.

Major research efforts are under way to review human health tolerances for mercury in fish, to identify the sources for at least 90 percent of mercury emissions and to document the deposition of hazardous chemicals, including mercury, into the nation's major lakes and its coastal waters.

Regulations to curb mercury emissions from incinerators were written a year ago. But they never got out of the Bush administration's Office of Management and Budget. The Clinton administration is reviewing that effort and may be ready to act by the end of this year.

Under the 1990 amendments to the Clean Air Act, the EPA was supposed to have a study completed this year on mercury emissions from coal-fired utilities. The EPA's Bill Maxwell, who is in charge of the project, says the work is being delayed until November 1995. It may take a year or two after that to finally require reductions in the worst source of mercury contamination in the country.

"There is an awful lot going on," the EPA's Keating says, "but these things take time."

When it comes to curbing the dangers from mercury, patience is no virtue.

Recent research has shown that mercury can be mistaken as a human hormone in the body.

What Foster's death means

A suicide profoundly changes the lives of those left behind and teaches them things they'd sooner not learn. The public suicide of the president's boyhood friend who became the deputy White House counsel can teach us all something, if we're willing to listen.

Vincent Foster was obviously a man in fragile emotional health, even though his brittle shell might not have cracked had he stayed out of Washington. The despair that wishes for the relief of death can build over time, and the factors that contribute are numerous and complex. That Foster came to the end he did cannot be blamed on all the sources he accused in the note found torn to pieces in his briefcase, as much as he may have wanted it.

Foster blamed the FBI, the Republicans, the Washington political establishment and the press. In his mind, they formed a whole to which "ruining people is considered sport." Yet legions who came before him have endured the same treatment and have not broken -- or at least, have not broken in public. Crocodile skin is a requisite for life inside the Beltway, and the hearty grow it and live.

Among other things, Foster accused the FBI and Republicans of lying and of contributing to the appearance that he and other Clinton cohorts had acted improperly. If his complaints are true, Foster is certainly numbered among some of the greatest company on Earth.

Yet Foster's case has much to say to those who so relish the rough sport in Washington, as well as to those of us in the press, the last category he castigated. Foster made it clear that he was brokenhearted at the way he had been portrayed by the media. He believed that he had helped earn a press whipping for his longtime friends, Bill and Hillary Clinton. For each of us who has had the privilege of investigating facts and reporting them, Foster's words ring powerfully: "The ... editors lie without consequence."

Do I believe that editors lie? No, not intentionally. Do I believe they sometimes ignore the nagging question that pops into their heads when they view incomplete copy, when too many questions might ruin a story or even weaken an alliterative or witty TV news teaser? Do I believe that an editorial writer sometimes looks at a reporter's conclusions and writes a scathing editorial without knowing whether those facts are thoroughly researched and verifiable? Without a doubt, I do. Are there consequences to the journalists? Rarely.

One of the most poignant punctuations to the Foster suicide was the response by The Wall Street Journal's editor, Robert L. Bartley. He answered Foster's allegations that the newspaper had treated him unfairly without knowing all the facts. "There is no way to cover national government on the assumption that a high official and steered litigator secretly suffers from depression and may commit suicide," Bartley said. "What we said about Mr. Foster was nothing compared to the abuse we heaped on the likes of Ed Meese, Robert Bork and Clarence Thomas."

Abuse? Is that what the Fourth Estate is supposed to be "heaping" on the "likes" of Ed Meese, Robert Bork and Clarence Thomas? Is that my job?

I don't think so. I can't say I've never pondered to what I perceived as the public's thirst for the "phrase well turned," nor let my sense of fairness be overruled by my wish to entertain or incite the reader. That's what journalists sometimes believe they must do to stay on the editorial page. But I'm not proud of it. Those were times I missed the mark. In my estimation.

Crocodile skin is a requisite for life inside the Beltway, and the hearty grow it and live.

Wetland policy aim: protect acreage, give owner flexibility

By RITA BEAMISH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Clinton is trying to defuse longstanding conflicts over preserving the nation's wetlands by offering new protections, but also giving landowners some flexibility they long have sought.

The plan, expected to be announced today by the White House, contains measures that will close loopholes developers have used to build parking garages and shopping malls on wetlands.

But it also outlines plans through a formal rule making to exempt from federal protection 53 million acres of wetlands that were drained and converted to farm use before 1985.

The policy, a copy of which was obtained by The Associated Press, endorses the Bush administration goal of "no net loss of wetlands," but does not attempt — as Bush had tried unsuccessfully — to redefine what a wetland actually is.

Clinton is leaving the task of crafting a better definition to the National Academy of Sciences.

There are an estimated 100 million acres in the United States, not counting the 170 million acres declared wetlands in Alaska.

The swamps, marshes and other wetlands support crucial wildlife and biological systems, and are key to flood control, filtration of ground water and maintenance of water quality, as well as ecosystem protection.

The Clinton policy reiterates the need to protect the millions of acres of wetlands. The loss of hundreds of thousands of wetland acres a year from human activity and natural processes "occurs at great cost to society," according to the new policy that was developed by a White House-directed interagency task force.

The new policy kills a rule left hanging from the Bush administration that would have lifted federal protection from 1.7 million acres of Alaska wetlands, 1 percent of the state's wetlands. Exempting the Alaska acres would have freed them for development and left "significant adverse environmental consequences," the policy concluded.

While rejecting the Alaska exemption, the administration is backing some other Bush-era approaches to wetlands, including "mitigation banking" by which a wetland may be developed if another wetland is created elsewhere.

Bob Szabo, counsel for the National Wetlands Coalition, representing about 70 farming and other landowning organizations, said the plan appeared to have "acknowledged some of our problems. They moved in our direction."

Environmentalists said that while some aspects of the policy are constructive, the agricultural exemptions may open the way for construction projects on some of those sites in the future.

Tim Searchinger, senior attorney for the Environmental Defense Fund, said the policy could lead to some benefits, or potential "disasters," depending on how it is implemented.

The agricultural provisions appear to be aimed at protecting farmers instead of wetlands, and other provisions may make it easier for developers to appeal government restrictions, the environmentalists said.

Some of the policy provisions will be implemented administratively, while others will require changes by Congress in the Clean Water Act. The administration will use its regulatory authority to close loopholes that developers used to build on fillings in wetlands, and will ask Congress to agree with that policy through language in the Clean Water Act.

Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., chairman of the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee, said the plan "addresses the legitimate concerns of both those who work our lands and those who care about them."

Sen. Frank Murkowski, R-Alaska, however, objected to the administration reversing course on the Alaska wetlands. "It makes it very difficult for any development to occur in the state of Alaska" where nearly half the territory is wetlands, said Chuck Kleeschulte, the senator's press secretary.

century of first days under his belt as an educator. "I can't recall a first day of school that went so calmly or had so few problems."

Lakeview Middle has undergone some changes. Shupe said, that he believes contributed to the smooth start of the year and that he believes will continue to bring "peace and serenity" to the school throughout the year.

"First of all," he said, "we've minimized the student movement."

He explained that students travel no more than a door or two down the hall when they go from one class to the next. Rather than having one class at one end of the school and the next at the other, the students stay in the same pod throughout the day.

There are three lunch periods for the students rather than just two, which Shupe said should make things easier.

"There are fewer students for us to supervise in one place at one time," he explained. "And most of the students at each lunch are in the same grade level so there aren't the older kids interacting with the younger kids so much."

Finally, Shupe said, the most quieting aspect of the school's new atmosphere is the absence of bells to mark the start and end of each class period.

"It's quieter and there isn't this mad rush through the halls," he said.

Each day students, teachers and administrators synchronize their watches during morning announcements and change classes when the time to do so arrives.

"And I noticed yesterday that the students were going to their first classes earlier because they wanted to be sure to be on time because there wouldn't be a bell," Shupe said.

Yesterday was the last "first day of school" for all the middle schools in the district as they and all elementary schools will make the transition to the year round calendar in July of 1994.

TALLAHASSEE — Veteran Quincy Democrat Pat Thomas will begin his half of a shared Senate presidency in October with most Senate committees chaired by colleagues on his side of the aisle.

Thomas named 20 committee chairs Monday with 17 going to Democrats in Florida's split Senate, where each party has 20 elected officials. Republican Ander Crenshaw of Jacksonville has served as Senate president since November.

State attorneys file another appeal

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — State lawyers went to work on another appeal on behalf of a killer who wants to die in Florida's electric chair after a federal court denied a request to delay the execution.

Michael Durocher, 33, is scheduled to be electrocuted on Wednesday, late Monday night, U.S. District Judge Harvey Schlesinger in Jacksonville rejected a federal appeal filed on Durocher's behalf, but against his wishes.

Marty McClain, one of the state lawyers who represents death row inmates, said late Monday he would spend the night preparing another appeal to be filed by 8 a.m. today with the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta. He had not read Schlesinger's 25-page decision.

Durocher is condemned for the 1983 murders of his 6-month-old son, Joshua; his girlfriend, Grace Reed, and her 5-year-old daughter, Candice. The family was killed south of Green Cove Springs.

He's also under a death sentence for killing a man during a 1986 Jacksonville robbery and is serving a life sentence for fatally beating a roommate in Jacksonville two years later. The motion filed to Schlesinger included a quote from a psychiatrist who examined Durocher in 1989 and compared him to a kamikaze pilot who wanted to make a dramatic exit from the world.

"He just wants to kind of rev his engines up and, you know, get his — the wings in flame," the psychiatrist said.

Despite Durocher's wish to die, lawyers have pushed ahead with appeals saying he does not understand what he's giving up.

Last week, a state judge questioned Durocher and found him to be legally competent. The state Supreme Court then said he had the right to drop his appeals.

Last Friday, the office asked the U.S. Supreme Court to review the case. It has not yet taken action on the case.

The nation's high court has never ruled on what steps states must take to protect condemned prisoners who want to waive their appeals, according to McClain.

Durocher is under his first death warrant. None of the 31 men executed in Florida since the state resumed capital punishment in 1979 have been executed on their first death warrant.

years, based on satisfactory performance.

Explaining the operation of Eagles' Nest, Simms said the total cost of each course is expected to be approximately $3.5 million. He predicted the annual income of each course could be as high as $1.5 million per year. "The city would then get six percent of gross sales, or at least $100,000 per year, which would amount to $2.5 million over the 25 year period," he explained.

City Commissioner Whitey Eckstein commented, "We are already in the position where we haven't received a penny from the Mayfair Golf Course, are we going to get into this only to have it come back and haunt us in the future?"

Eckstein suggested the wording of the contract be written to insure the city is protected at all levels. "If we can do that," he said, "we can be creating a really good facility for today's children in future years."

Commissioner Lon Howell asked, "What if Mr. Simms decides to sell this in 15 years, would we have the say-so over who can buy it?"

He also suggested raising the percentage of profits to be given to the city if a sale is proposed.

Simms responded that most leases are transferable based on such advance approval. "But it wouldn't be good to try to sell it if the buyer couldn't be certain of what the percentage would be," he added.

"What it comes down to," said Commissioner Bob Thomas, "is, do we want this? We may have to take some chances, but I don't think it's so impossible that we can't work things out."

Simms explained he only wanted 200 acres for the first 18 hole course. "When I am assured everything is working properly," he said, "I would split the course into two 9 hole areas, and add additional 9 holes to each side, ending up with two full 18-hole courses as Phase II."

Following additional discussion on various aspects of the course development such as access roads and the club house location, the commissioners gave a consensus vote in favor of the proposed 25 year lease with a 25 year extension based on performance.

The commission authorized the City Manager to begin preparations on the final draft of the agreement for Eagles' Nest.

Traffic

could become unbearable with the added traffic. Wallace says he has an eight-foot wall between his home and the traffic lanes, but the noise is often too loud to have a conversation outside.

The state will build large walls along highways to reduce the traffic noise if they will accomplish something and are cost-efficient.

A study performed by Environmental Management Systems Inc. for the project determined there were 116 locations — homes, condominiums and two churches — where interstate traffic noise had a significant impact. The structures were grouped into 12 locations, including Mandarin, Des Pinar Lane, and Springwood Village Condominiums.

After readings were taken of current maximum noise levels, an EMS computer model estimated the loudest noise level at the sites in the year 2018, when a six-lane I-4 might become congested. The model found at most, sound levels would increase above today's levels by 3 decibels.

"The human ear can't hear a 3 db change," said Bob Gleason, environmental manager for the FDOT district office in DeLand.

The EMS study also indicated the walls needed to reduce the sound levels by 10 db, an FDOT standard, would range from 12 to 28 feet in height and cost between $69,300 to $990,000.

On a cost-per-structure basis, only one location meets FDOT's $25,000 per location maximum cost standard, Springwood Village's first floor which has 24 units. A wall to reduce sound there would cost $396,000 or about $16,500 per unit. According to the study, current peak sound levels are 3 db above the FDOT 67 db standard but will reach only 72 db at I-4's six-lane capacity.

Gleason said a Springwood Village wall is still under consideration. He said FDOT might consider building the additional lanes inside current lanes, instead of outside them, which would lower the potential sound increase.

Program

coordinate application preparations. He submitted his documents to the decision board on Aug. 1.

The city has since pledged $20,000 and the county has given $10,000 to help launch the local effort. To qualify for a Main Street city, both city and county support, in addition to strong community involvement must be shown.

If approved, the program will provide historic rehabilitation assistance for downtown Sanford merchants and property owners. State as well as national experts will be available to assist in compiling plans and leading developments.

The Sanford group would hire a full time manager to coordinate activities, network with other Main Street communities throughout Florida and the nation, and provide information for residents and visitors to the area.

The informational operation is already underway with the establishment of the Welcome Center, which is operated by Sanford Main Street, at 101-B W. First Street.

There are no federal grants involved. Main Street will be a local private/public partnership financed by members, city and county funds, and voluntary contributions of individuals, local businesses and lending institutions.

The program has revitalized more than 700 small cities across the nation, including 29 in Florida. Main Street officials say it has created almost $2 billion in reinvestment, and tens of thousands of jobs in designated cities.

Among area cities already involved in the Florida Main Street project are DeLand, Ocala, Titusville, and New Smyrna Beach.

If Sanford is not accepted, Sanford Main Street leaders have previously indicated they intend to go ahead with a similar project to revitalize the downtown area

Singer subject of cop probe

By STEVE FARR
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — A police probe targeting Michael Jackson was prompted by child abuse allegations from blackmailers who tried to extort $20 million from the pop star, his security consultant said.

Police and prosecutors confirmed Monday that a complaint was being investigated, but refused to elaborate.

"We have to be sensitive to everyone involved," police Cmdr. David Gascon said. "We intend to be very professional in the way we conduct this investigation."

Gascon said the probe began Aug. 17. He would not confirm reports that search warrants were served Saturday on Jackson's Century City condominium and his "Neverland" ranch near Santa Ynez.

The investigation was prompted by "an extortion gone awry," said Anthony Pellicano, a private investigator who said he has worked with Jackson for four years.

Pellicano told reporters that people he would not identify who knew Jackson tried to extort $20 million by alleging that he had abused a child.

"We had no intentions to do anything with it, we wanted to see how far they went," he said. "They made threats that they wanted to go to the district attorney's office and I says, 'Go.' I says, 'Why you waiting?' ...

"When we would not pay, a phone call was made to Child and Family Services, which started this investigation."

Pellicano said Jackson gets 25 to 30 extortion attempts a year.

Jackson was in Thailand preparing to launch his "Dangerous" world tour with concerts tonight and Wednesday. Contacted in Bangkok, Jackson spokesman Lee Solters declined to comment about the allegations.

Jackson, who turns 35 Sunday, also is to perform 15 concerts in Singapore, Taiwan, Japan, Moscow, Israel, Turkey and the Canary Islands.

A Santa Maria locksmith, who identified himself only as "Duane," said he went along on the raid at Jackson's ranch, about 120 miles northwest of Los Angeles.

"I was just there to do a job," the locksmith told The Associated Press. "It's between them (the police) and me, and I just don't want to comment further."

Duane said he signed a statement promising not to discuss the raid or anything he saw at the ranch.

900 schools face dismissal student loan program

By ROBERT NAYLOR JR.
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — More than 900 colleges and trade schools stand to lose their eligibility to participate in the federal student loan program because too many of their students have defaulted.

The Education Department was releasing figures today showing the default rates for every school in the United States that participate in the Federal Family Education Loan program, formerly called the Guaranteed Student Loan program.

Most of the schools in danger of losing their eligibility are one- or two-year, profit-making career schools. They commonly have much higher default rates than more traditional academic institutions.

The Education Department, armed with a 1989 law designed to drive down the number of defaults, has been dropping schools with default rates of at least 30 percent for three consecutive years from federal aid programs, including the Pell Grant program. The cutoff default rate drops to 25 percent next year.

In 1991, taxpayers lost an estimated $3.6 billion on bad student loans.

The department announced last month that overall default rates were decreasing because of the tougher collection methods.

The number of defaults declined from 22.4 percent in the 1990 fiscal year to 17.5 percent in 1991, the latest year for which figures are available.

Last year, about 1,000 schools were handed suspensions, which can last a year or more depending on the school's corrective actions.

The government bases a school's default rate for a particular year on the number of borrowers scheduled to begin paying on their loans who defaulted either in that year or the following year.

Students apply for loans through the schools, which verify the student's eligibility. Banks furnish the money.

The government pays the interest on the loan while the student is in school. If the student defaults, one of 47 guarantor agencies repays the lender and then tries to collect. If they are unsuccessful, the government pays off the loan.

Schools, faced with the loss of a major — sometimes primary — source of revenue, have been using collection agencies to go after the delinquents.

You are so caught up with the serene setting that you probably wouldn't notice if one of those birds flew smack into your window. You catch yourself on the last two words...your window. How it pales in comparison to the gorgeous view. With the fading curtains and torn vinyl shade, your window is not much to look at. But who has the time to do all the shopping and searching it takes to decorate? By the time you find it, the price is usually as high as the blue sky outside of your window or you cannot get the personal service you need to settle all of the details. Omni Window Designs, Inc. can change your point of view about the view of your window.

For the past four years, Jack and Beverly Diemer have combined Christian principles and hard work to satisfy their customers needs for professional window covering decorations. If you choose to order at that time, installation can begin within 3 days to two weeks depending on the merchandise you request. Whether you ask for custom made vertical blinds, mini blinds, 2" wide blinds, or draperies, Omni has any one of those and more! If you're looking for Graber, Hunter Douglas, Levelor, Delmar, or Kirsch, you can find it along with many other major brands at Omni.

After receiving your order, Omni will take care of all of the details from manufacturing to installing and top it off with a full guarantee. Your specialty order for vertical and draperies will be prepared out of Omni's facility. Since Omni manufactures some of its own products, the middle man is eliminated and greater savings are passed along to the customer. Omni conducts all of its business out of the manufacturing facility to keep the overhead low. Lower overhead means lower prices. How low are the prices? As Omni says, "Even lower than Home Depot and we install FREE!"

Omni's eight employees have experience ranging from 4 to 11 years each and will use it to carefully handle your order with your satisfaction in mind. Twenty-one years of sales experience has taught Jack Diemer that it is more important to concentrate on the customer's happiness than on profits. This is one place where the adage "the customer is always right" is backed by honest and sincere people.

Maybe it's time to take another look at your window. Not out your window, but AT it. If you would like to change your view of your window, call Omni Window Designs at 323-1144 or 294-4319. Let them show you how they can make your view of your window look as beautiful as your view from it.

After 10 years, dream of a monastery lives on

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

EAGLE HARBOR, Mich. — Ten years ago, Brother Peter and Brother Steven abandoned big-city careers, worldly possessions, even surnames: They would establish a monastery to serve God and humanity through the arts.

They settled on the beautiful but remote Keweenaw Peninsula in the northernmost corner of Michigan. Their century-old frame house was uninsulated, and their firewood ran out the first winter. There was no running water. They credit neighbors' generosity and divine mercy with keeping them alive.

The Society of St. John, as their community is named, has come a long way since that desperate winter of 1983. But it has a long way to go — largely because the two founding monks remain its only members.

At least five monks are required for a monastery to receive Catholic Church recognition. A number of candidates have shown interest, but none has stayed longer than a couple of months.

Each day they pray for "men of like mind and heart to share in the life, work and love of this community." They patiently wait, running a small bakery to support themselves and planning for the growth they're sure will come.

They say they've never regretted the path they chose.

"All the trials resulted in spiritual growth," said Steven, 47. "That's what sustains the monk ... you struggle, you worry, you grow, you become closer to God."

They met in the early 1970s while students at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor. Peter went on to manage restaurants, while Steven directed an art center and conducted a choir and orchestra.

Arts projects in the Detroit area brought them together again. They discovered that they shared deep religious faith and frustration with secular life.

The arts, they agreed, should be a path to godliness — a form of worship inspiring piety and faith. That didn't seem to be happening for the troubled urban youths with whom they worked.

Even church was dissatisfying. Peter and Steven saw traditional messages of discipline, clean living and repentance of sin giving way to "feel-good music and emphasis on boosting self-esteem."

"It's campfire music ... composed for pop musicians. You might hear it in church, but also at the bar down the street," Steven said.

They finally decided to set the example — to renounce worldly pursuits for a monastic life of prayer, poverty, chastity and obedience.

But they also wanted to minister through the arts, a twist that other monasteries didn't offer. That meant starting their own.

They came to this spot because it offers isolation and affordability — as well as breathtaking views of Lake Superior, a beach strewn with colorful pebbles, thick woods and the nearby Jacob's Creek waterfall.

The region usually gets more than 300 inches of snow a year. Deer, wolves and black bears roam the forest.

"When we first told our friends what we were going to do, they thought we were crazy," said Peter, 46. "But the first monks went to deserts, swamps, mountaintops — places no one else wanted."

Summer tourists keep Peter and Steven laboring day and night making baked goods, jams and jellies for their shop, the Jampot.

But only a few locals stick around for the long winters, when the monks close the Jampot and spend more time in prayer and contemplation.

As Benedictine monks, they follow the "rule" for daily living written by St. Benedict in the sixth century. They rise hours before dawn for "vigils" — Scripture readings and recitation of Psalms and prayers.

The rest of the day consists of meals, manual labor, joint prayer sessions and private prayer and meditation. The monks usually retire shortly after sundown, following the evening prayer.

Still, they wear jeans and gym shoes underneath hooded, gray tunics. They have a truck and telephone. Their "community house" is heated with wood, but they use a computer to compose a quarterly newsletter, "Magnificat." It keeps about 1,200 supporters familiar with the monastery's progress and offers mail-order goodies from the Jampot.

The men arrived in the Keweenaw with no plan for earning a living, trusting God to show the way. They relied on family and friends the first winter, then spent the summer picking berries and making jam to cover expenses.

A couple of years later, they opened the Jampot in an abandoned roadside burger stand near their house. They've since expanded the kitchen, helped by equipment donations from area churches and businesses. The 7,000 customers who visit each year find the counter packed with jellies — every flavor from wild thimbleberry to spiced apple — plus breads and fruitcakes.

Mingling with the tenet of separation from the outside world. Some monks are nearly always silent.

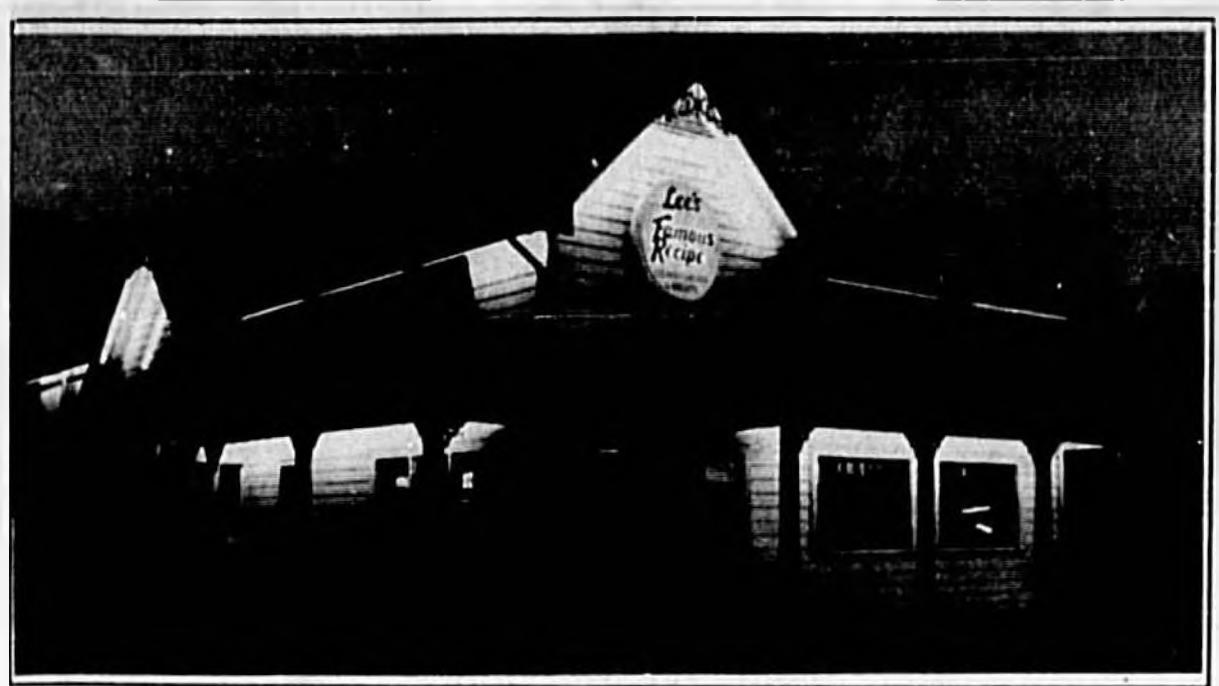

For Peter and Steven, social interaction is virtue borne of necessity. The Jampot pays the bills and enables them to witness and minister.

They want their monastery to become a hub of religiously oriented arts, with concerts, seminars and perhaps a summer art center. They open guest houses on their property for religious retreats, and even offer a "junior monk" program for interested teens.

"We're not here to escape the world," Steven said. "We have a call to deal with the world."

They've bought 87 acres of land and hope to break ground next year on a chapel and "community house" with living, study and worship space for up to 24 residents. Long-range plans include construction of an abbey and an orphanage.

"We're happy, and we believe other men will see that and want to take part," Steven said. "When it's time, they will come. Until then, we are here and will live the life until we die."

Heavy drinking remains a serious problem in military

By MALCOLM RITTER
AP Science Writer

TORONTO — Years of efforts to reduce heavy drinking in the military have largely failed, and alcohol abuse remains a serious problem, says a study of American service personnel.

The prevalence of heavy drinking is down to about 15 percent from 22 percent in 1980. But virtually all of the drop is due to an influx of older, better-educated recruits who are more likely to be married, said Robert Bray, who directed the research project for the Pentagon.

Such people are less prone to heavy drinking, he said. Once their impact is removed, heavy drinking rates stayed almost the same since 1980, he said.

Heavy drinking was defined as having five or more drinks on a single occasion at least once a week during the prior 30 days.

Bray, of the Research Triangle Institute in Research Triangle Park, N.C., presented the work Monday at the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association with colleagues from the institute and Brandeis University in Waltham, Mass.

The data shows the military has been unsuccessful in fighting heavy drinking, said Cmdr. Ralph Bally, senior policy analyst for alcoholism and mental health issues in the office of the assistant secretary of defense for health affairs.

"Where we're at right now is getting military leadership aware of this continuing problem, so we can then devise more specific intervention programs" targeting heavy drinkers, he added in an interview.

The new study included 16,395 active duty personnel serving around the world who filled out anonymous questionnaires in April and May of 1992. Participants were chosen to give a representative sample of personnel in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force.

Results were compared with the outcome of similar studies done in 1980, 1982, 1985 and 1988.

The new study found 7.6 percent of personnel had experienced serious consequences of heavy drinking within the prior year. These included being court-martialed, kept off duty at least a week because of illness, hurt in an accident or arrested for driving while intoxicated.

The number was down from 17.3 percent in 1980, said James Luckey of the institute.

In addition, 16.4 percent of personnel said their job performance had suffered because of alcohol, down from 26.7 percent in 1980.

The military rate of heavy drinking could not be compared directly with civilian rates because of differences in demographic makeup between the two populations.

The JFK hodgepodge

It's the stuff of history, but mostly stuff

By MIKE FEINSLBERG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — "What is Past is Prologue" says the chiseled legend at the National Archives, which received some 800,000 pages of documents on the assassination of John F. Kennedy, thanks largely to the exertions of film maker Oliver Stone.

Maybe so, but in this case what is past is prologue to a whole lot more bewilderment on the who-killed-Kennedy question that Stone answered his way and that others answer other ways.

Primarily as a result of Stone's sensational movie, "JFK," and the theory it propounded — that Kennedy's killing in 1963 was generated by a massive conspiracy within the U.S. government — Congress passed the JFK Assassination Records Collection Act of 1992.

The law requires every government agency with a relevant scrap of paper to ship it to the Archives building on Pennsylvania Avenue, excepting only those needed to conceal the identities of intelligence agents or sources.

At first glance, what was released Monday, in a chilly research room filled with 90 assassination buffs, historians, tourists and journalists, was unlikely to change many minds or shed much light.

If, going in, you believed that the murder was the work of the CIA, or the Mafia, or the Teamsters, or Fidel Castro, or the Martians, your belief would not be shaken by this new salvo of raw material.

And if you thought that a psychopathic Lee Harvey Oswald, acting alone on instruction of his inner voices, killed Kennedy, you will find here no reason to think otherwise.

The Archives got a hodgepodge.

Here was a biographical sketch of Oswald's mother. Here was a CIA analysis of Soviet press reaction to the shooting. Here were nine folders listing telephone calls Lyndon Johnson made between Nov. 22 and Nov. 30, 1963. Here were the names of nurses on duty that day at Parkland Hospital in Dallas. Here were tickets to a dinner Kennedy was to have attended that night in Austin.

Here was a CIA memo from an informer saying that Oswald's Russian wife, Marina, worked in a Minak bar frequented by foreigners and, "source insists," must have been a KGB informant "since, in his firm opinion, employees of such bars are ipso facto obliged to report to the KGB."

Here were the wounded John Connally's replies to get-well messages. Here were records from a Soviet hospital that treated Marina at 5 p.m. on April 15, 1960, for lacerations on three fingers of her right hand.

What becomes most evident is that a document written in excitement 30 years ago grows no more informative with time. Straws grasped then remain straws. The JFK Assassination Record Collection Act had the effect of a vacuum cleaner. The accumulation is more impressive than illuminative.

What it shows mainly is how the government accumulates.

Here from the CIA is an "official routing slip" addressed to Julia Last Name Blacked Out.

Someone has typed: "The attached does not pertain to our office; I would think that the action office would take care of this?"

And Julia (but signed "Julie", hmmm) has written: "CI Staff had the responsibility for answering this cable. Do you want it in Oswald's 201?"

The next sheet is a "confidential" "Routing and Record Sheet" to CI:

"Cables forwarded herewith have not been integrated into the DO record system. If you feel they should be classified into a DO file, please indicate file number (and other necessary processing) and return to Sender."

No indication of how recipient felt.

Finally, the cable itself, dated Oct. 2, 1978, 15 years after the assassination:

"Subject: Lee Harvey Oswald"
"1. While reviewing old files we ran across an August 77 memo from (blacked out) concerning Rimma Semenovna Zmltruk (aka Shirakova), born 18 Jan 39 or 18 Jan 37, Soviet citizen, who visited the UK from 22 April to 20 May 77 as leader of a group of some 20 Russian students on a one month English course..."

"2. Para two of this memo states: 'She is on record with us as a suspected member of the KGB. She has come to notice on several occasions notably as the Intourist guide assigned to Lee Harvey Oswald during the latter's stay in Moscow.'"

"3. We assume this info is known to HQs, but wished to make certain before destroying memo."

It wasn't destroyed, as you see. Now it belongs to the ages, or whatever. It is the stuff of history. But mostly it is stuff.

Princess Di, sons may visit Disney

By The Associated Press

ORLANDO — The castle at Walt Disney World will get a visit from some real royalty: Princess Diana and her two sons.

Diana and her children — Prince William, 11, and Prince Harry, 8 — will be escorted by Orange County sheriff's deputies to the Grand Floridian hotel after their scheduled arrival today, said sheriff's spokesman Deputy Carlos Padilla.

The Grand Floridian is one of Disney's plushest resorts where the best rooms go for $1,450 a night and tea is served from 3 to 5 p.m. daily.

Absent from this family outing: Diana's estranged husband and heir to the throne, Prince Charles.

"Her request was to be here for a low-key vacation with her children," Orange County Capt. R. Roger Clark said.

The princess three weeks ago had complained vacations are never relaxing because of persistent photographers.

Diana and the princes would be the highest-ranking British royals to visit a Disney park. Disney officials would neither confirm nor deny the royal visit.

Church League continues to grow with the times

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD — To paraphrase an old saying, "you have to keep up with the Joneses."

Or in this case, the Sanford Recreation Department.

As the Sanford Recreation Department adult softball leagues continue to develop and improve with each successive year, the Sanford Church Softball League has tried to follow suit.

And this fall will be no different as the church league will play all of its games at Sanford's two best softball fields, at Chase and Pinehurst parks, and also will become associated, officially, with the Amateur Softball Association (ASA).

The league has played for several seasons under mostly ASA rules, but this season each team will be registered with the ASA so they (the teams) can play in ASA-sanctioned tournaments and also could attempt to qualify for national tournaments, should a team wish to do so.

Joining the ASA also gives the umpires some protection, as the ASA carries insurance on umpires in ASA-sanctioned leagues.

The league will kick off its 10-week fall season on Saturday, September 11 and will have either two, three or four divisions, depending on the number of entries.

The league hopes to attract between 12 and 16 teams for its fall season and then hold the always popular tournament after the conclusion of the season.

The winner of each division will receive a trophy, that the church will keep, and the winner of the tournament will also get a trophy.

The Sanford Church League has become one of the most popular leagues in the area, as it has attracted teams from Winter Springs, Oviedo, Deltona, Osteen, Chuluota, Caselberry and Longwood, in addition to Sanford and Lake Mary. Interest has also been shown from a couple of churches from DeLand.

The just completed spring season had 13 teams entered in one of the most competitive seasons ever. Sanford First United Methodist was the Competitive Division champions, Trinity Assembly of God from Deltona was the Fellowship Division winner and the Church of the Nativity Catholic-Disciples from Lake Mary claimed the Fun Division.

In the post-season tournament, Trinity Assembly, playing in its first season in the church league, became the overall champion, knocking off two-time defending tournament champion, First United Methodist in the winner-take-all final.

Last year's fall champion was Sanford Central Baptist, which is expected back to defend its title.

The new league officers for the coming season, which were chosen during the spring tournament, will be — president: Dean L. Smith from First United Methodist; vice-presidents: Jim Nulte from Sanford All Souls Catholic and Dale Yates from Sanford Church of God of Prophecy; and treasurer: Doug Atkinson from Central Baptist.

ASA approved umpires and scorekeepers again will be supplied by the Sanford Officiating Service and booking agent Dwayne LaFollette.

Entry fee for the fall season has been set at $200, including a $15 ASA registration fee, and registration will remain open until 11 p.m. on Thursday, September 2.

Parties wishing to find out more information about entering the fall league, should call Dean Smith at (407) 574-8474 (Deltona) between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. or at (407) 322-2611 after 9 p.m. in the evening.

Coach shortstop Mike McCoy and his Sanford Central Baptist team are expected to defend their 1992 Fall championship when the 1993 Sanford Church Softball League opens its Fall Season on Saturday, Sept. 11.

Return brings checkered success

By BILL SIEBERT
Special to the Herald

BARBERVILLE — Tuck Trentham of Orange City brought his Kar House Pro Late Model back home, running for the first time on Volusia County Speedway's new dirt track after a long season of touring the Southeastern United States and came away a winner Friday night.

Trentham ran from the pole position to the checkered flag, never relinquishing his lead in the 25-lap feature to better a strong challenge from Don Emsinger and Joe Hall.

In other feature events, Tiny Green of Palatka took the Pro-Stock Division, Monty Stratton was the winner in Mini-Stocks and Mike Shields took his first win in the Hobby Stocks.

"I had a little over-heating problem," Trentham said. "The car started going away from me at the end. We didn't exactly know what the race track was going to do."

But Trentham's crew must have guessed right because he set sail on the groove throughout the night.

"It's a fine race track," Trentham said. "It's a lot of fun to run. We'll be back. It's been fun coming back out in front of the hometown crowd. We've been on the road for the big shows, you know."

Trentham led Emsinger and Hall, as well as Gary Sweet and Garry Flynn to finish out the top five in the Pro Late Models.

Green was elated with his return to the winner's circle when he was able to hold off recent winners Brian Bales and Bobby Layman for the 15-lap Pro Stock crown.

"I didn't know who was going to be popping up next," Green said of the group battling for the runnerup spot behind him. "(Layman) has been running good and I didn't know if we were going to get him tonight. We finally got him."

Win or lose, Green is getting excited about running on the 3/8's-mile clay oval, now finishing eight straight Friday night's of racing.

"We're promoting this track everywhere," Green said. "There isn't any better track anywhere. We're looking forward to maybe running for points here next

"Mice" finish season at 5-5

From Staff Reports

WINTER SPRINGS — The Paddy McGee Mice completed their initial season in the Winter Springs Recreation Department Monday Night Women's Summer Class C Slowpitch Softball League on a winning note, coming up with a wild 12-11 victory over the Bruisers at Central Winds Park.

Lisa Berg drew a bases-loaded, two-out walk in the bottom of the seventh inning to plate Terri Mann with the game winning run as the Mice wound up the season with a 5-5 record, good enough for fourth place in the eight team league.

The Mice were put behind the eight ball early as second baseman Lori Lingo was hit in the eye with the ball in the first inning and was forced to leave the game. And with only nine players left on the field the Mice were forced to give up an automatic out every time Lingo's spot in the order came to the plate.

The first two times Lingo was scheduled to bat the bases were loaded and two were out, ending the inning with no runs scored.

Mann started the winning rally with her fourth hit of the game, but the next two batters popped up. Karen Kohs kept the inning alive with a single and Phyllis Baynes drew a walk to load the bases, setting the stage for Berg's heroics.

Mann finished the night a perfect 4-for-4 with three runs scored. Also contributing were, Heide Green (two singles, two runs, three RBI), Connie Thomas (single, three RBI), Kohs (two singles, two RBI), Baynes (two singles, three walks), Tammi Chesser (three singles), Denise Levinson (two singles, two runs) and April Stoner (two runs).

The Mice will return to action in three weeks at Red Bug Lake Park to play in the Seminole County Parks and Recreation Department Monday Night Women's Class C Fall Slowpitch Softball League.

Fins get nod in AFC-East

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

The Buffalo Bills should be happy about the chance to become the first team ever to make it to four consecutive Super Bowls. Instead, they're apologizing. Having lost in each of their first three appearances, each time by an increasing margin, the Bills find themselves having to defend their success, particularly in light of last year's 52-17 thrashing by Dallas. "It's unfair to us and the fans and city of Buffalo that people remember us like that, as three-time losers," says running back Thurman Thomas, who has been rewarded for his part in the Bills' "success" with a new four-year, $13 million contract. "I guess that's the nature of the game and critics always are out there."

There's more out there to challenge the Bills than critics. For one, there are the Miami Dolphins, who won the AFC East last year, winning a tiebreaker against the Bills after both finished 11-5. For two, there are the Indianapolis Colts, who improved from 1-15 to 9-7 last year under new coach Ted Marchibroda and grabbed Buffalo's best offensive lineman, Will Wolford, during free agency.

There might even be the New York Jets, if they can get production from the old-timers they picked up in the off-season like Boomer Esiason, Ronnie Lott and Leonard Marshall. The only team totally out of it: the New England Patriots, rebuilding from scratch under Bill Parcells, their new coach.

The Dolphins probably are favorites to win the division, if not the whole AFC. En route, they'll make Don Shula the winningest coach of all time. Shula now has 318 career victories, six short of George Halas.

After years of throwing to Mark Duper and Mark Clayton, both deep threats, Dan Marino has a new and more varied set of receivers. They include Mark Ingram, signed as a free agent from the New York Giants; Irving Fryar, obtained in a trade with New England; and rookie O.J. McDuffie.

McDuffie and Fryar are deep threats; Ingram more a possession type. Add free agent fullback Keith Byars, a great short receiver, and tight end Keith Jackson, who went through his first Miami training camp, and there's an awful lot of receiving depth. "These guys are successful veterans," Jackson says of Fryar and Ingram. "They're going to draw and lot of coverage outside and we're going to be able to do a little more work inside. And when you've got a guy who's been playing quarterback for 11 years, he's going to pick you apart if you're open."

Byars, replacing the retired Tony Paige at fullback, also will help the running game, where Mark Higgs is the sole reliable back.

But the biggest improvement is defense, where it may not even be mandatory for injury-prone linebacker John Offerdahl to stay healthy. Rookie Dwight Hollier stepped in and did a decent job in Offerdahl's place last season.

There's plenty of other help. Defensive end Marco Coleman and cornerback Troy Vincent, rookies last year, can only get better; linebacker Bryan Cox emerged as one of the league's premier pass rushers; and defensive backs J.B. Brown, Louis Oliver and Jarvis Williams are all solid.

Buffalo's biggest loss was Wolford, who signed with Indianapolis. John Fina, the Bills' top draft pick last year, is slated to replace him. But Buffalo also lost inside linebackers Shane Conlan and Carlton Bailey, as well as backup offensive lineman Mitch Freato.

But the Bills still have an explosive offense, piloted by Jim Kelly, including Thomas, wide receivers Andre Reed and Don Beebe, and augmented by Billy Brooks, signed from the Colts to replace the departed James Lofton.

Defensively, the loss of Conlan and Bailey will make the middle soft, so Marcus Patton is being moved to inside linebacker - Cornelius Bennett has been promised he will be kept outside. Jeff Wright remains one of the game's best nose tackles; Bruce Smith a franchise pass rusher; and Henry Jones a Pro Bowler at strong safety in his second year.

The Colts went out and strengthened their weakest link with Wolford, just recovering from a knee injury, and Kirk Lowdermilk, signed from Minnesota. But they still need help for their running game and, as usual, they're in a fight with a player - quarterback Jeff George, who finally reported last week after asking for a trade.

George may actually start the season as the Colts' third-string quarterback - Jack Trudeau and Don Majkowski have both been productive as starters.

The problems are a running game that was last in the NFL last season - the team's leading rusher, Anthony Johnson, averaged just 3.3 yards a carry and the team average was 2.9.

The offensive line improvement may help, though, and so may rookie Roosevelt Potts, the team's second-round draft choice.

Defensively, the problem has been the holdout of Duane Bickett, the team's franchise player. Linebackers Jeff Herrod and tackle Steve Emiman and linebacker Quentin Coryatt, the latter two chosen 1-2 in last year's draft, are also standouts, although Emiman and Coryatt are coming off injuries.

The Jets are trying for a quick fix with Marshall and Lott, both of whom have seen better days, and Esiason, who immediately got the quarterback job over third-year-man Browning Nagle, last year's starter, was supposed to be the quarterback of the future.

"It was stacked against me from the minute they traded for Boomer," Nagle complained, noting that Esiason had worked with Jets' coach Bruce Coslet when Coslet was the Bengals' offensive coordinator.

The Jets should be decent at running back, where Johnny Johnson, picked up in a draft day trade with Phoenix, should have an impact at linebacker, although he reported late.

But the Jets continue to have a problem on the offensive line, and the defensive line is also thin, particularly if Jeff Lagman is slow to recover from a knee injury that cost him all of last year.

The Patriots? Parcells, who spent two years at NBC after coaching the New York Giants to the 1990 NFL title, will tear down in New England before he builds up - and it's hard to tear down further than 2-14.

"If you evaluate the players day to day, then you're making a mistake as a coach," Parcells says as he tries to find players he can call in his way, "my guys." "You can't just say, 'This guy is good. Oh, he's not good. Oh, he's good.' So you take the whole camp and the whole preseason."

And longer than that. The Pats will probably go with Drew Bledsoe, the No. 1 pick in the draft, at quarterback, but there's little talent around him. Parcells will probably make the Pats competitive in most games, but more than that is a bonus.

- 1994 AFC EAST PICKS:
1. Miami Dolphins (11-4)
2. Buffalo Bills (11-3)
3. Indianapolis Colts (8-8)
4. New York Jets (6-10)
5. New England Patriots (5-13)

Holt among 13 cut by Dolphins

Associated Press

DAVIE - The Miami Dolphins on Monday cut 13 players, including Isaac Holt, a cornerback on last year's Super Bowl champion team, the Dallas Cowboys.

Along with Holt, the team released four other veterans - linebacker Ned Bolcar, quarterback Troy Taylor, tackle Kevin Robbins and center Chris Conlin.

Fullback Kamome Bell, tight end Coleman Bell, kicker Jay Kirchoff, guard Charles Hope, defensive tackle Mark Caesar, defensive end Marty Hochtertz and wide receivers Jason McGill and Reggie Brown joined the veterans on the waiver wire. All were free agents.

The Dolphins also placed running back Aaron Craver on the injured reserve list with a torn anterior cruciate ligament in his right knee. Linebacker Mark Sander was placed on the Reserve/Physically Unable to Perform list following off-season surgery on his wrist. Craver must miss the entire season and Sander is eligible to be activated by Oct. 24.

The moves leave Miami with 64 players on the active roster. The team must be at 60 by 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Guard Eddie Hines missed Monday's workouts and is not scheduled to return to the team until Thursday.

Coach Don Shula said Blake was absent "because of a previously arranged NFL evaluation program that he has to attend," and declined further comment. Blake was unavailable for comment and his agent Lamont Smith declined comment.

Blake tested positive for cocaine at the NFL's pre-draft scouting combine last year. The team would not state if Blake's meeting was related to drug or steroid testing. A second positive drug test would mean a six-game suspension, but he could appeal.

Blake, a second-round pick in 1992, missed his rookie season due to injuries. He fractured his left foot before training camp when he dropped a weight on it. He began practicing on Oct. 23, but suffered a slight tear of the medial collateral ligament on Nov. 6 and finished the season on injured reserve.

The Dolphins originally planned to use Blake as a defensive tackle, but this spring moved him back to guard, his position at Auburn. Blake is competing with Bert Weidner for the starting right guard position. Blake missed Miami's preseason opener with a knee injury before making his NFL debut against Washington on Aug. 14.

"He'll be back for practice Thursday and he'll have to catch up," said Shula, who added, "He's had a lot of catching up to do" since arriving in Miami last year.

Holt was cut despite intercepting a pass in each of Miami's first two exhibition games. His 37-yard TD return clinched the Dolphins' 19-10 win over Washington. However, he was beaten for a touchdown in last Friday's game with Denver.

Holt, a nine-year veteran, was Minnesota's second-round pick in 1985. He was traded to Dallas in 1989 as part of the Herschel Walker trade. Holt started 41 games during the last three seasons for the Cowboys, but was released on May 11.

Bolcar missed the 1992 season following arthroscopic knee surgery. He played in eight games for Miami in 1991.

Craver was expected to compete with veteran Mark Higgs and rookie Terry Kirby for the starting running back position. He carried eight times for 72 yards and one touchdown in Miami's playoff win over San Diego last January. He gained 60 yards in the team's first exhibition game before he injured his knee on Aug. 10.

Shula said linebacker Dwight Hollier (knee) and cornerback Troy Vincent (neck) may miss Saturday's preseason finale with the New York Giants.

Tight end Keith Jackson (back), defensive end David Griggs (knee) and cornerback Bruce Alexander (back) also missed practice on Monday.

Bucs must cut eight players today

Associated Press

TAMPA - Kicker Eddie Murray and linebacker Van Walters were among eight Buccaneers placed on waivers Monday as Tampa Bay trimmed its active roster to 68 players.

Bucs coach Sam Wyche faces a deadline Tuesday to meet the NFL-mandated limit of 60. Murray, who will turn 37 on Sunday, lost a training camp duel with rookie Michael Husted, who wrapped up the job by booting two field goals and continuing to perform well on kickoffs in last weekend's exhibition game against the Buffalo Bills.

Murray finished the 1992 season as the fourth-leading active scorer in the NFL with 1,141 points, trailing only Nick Lowrey, Jim Breech and Matt Bahr. He made 5 of 9 field goals and was 13 of 13 on extra points in one game for Kansas City and seven with Tampa Bay last season.

Walters, who played for the Cleveland Browns from 1988-91, signed with the Bucs as a free agent after spending last season with the Minnesota Vikings.

Also waived were wide receivers Curtis Mayfield, Walter Wilson and Derrick Branch, defensive end Al Chambles, defensive back Chris Barber and linebacker Jonathan Perry.

African Ball boosts coffers of NCNW for club projects

By MARVA HAWKINS
Herald Columnist

The National Council of Negro Women, West Volusia Section held its First African Ball recently at the Sanford Civic Center to help raise money for its charitable and educational programs.

"This affair was the celebration of our African heritage," said President Priscilla Gill.

The evening included dinner, catered by Ernest Culbreath; music by Cliff the Islander on steel drums and a dance feature by Tropical Steel Band; raffles and door prizes.

The NCNW was founded by Mary McLeod Bethune in 1935. The West Volusia Section was chartered in October of 1991. It is a voluntary non-profit membership organization helping women to improve the quality of life for themselves, their families and the community. NCNW-WV sponsors educational, economical, social, cultural and spiritual self-help projects.

The NCNW's emblem signifies a desire to improve on the present and that the present was shaped by the past (racial heritage).

"The NCNW pledges to make a lasting contribution to all that is best in America," according to Gill. "To cherish and enrich her heritage of freedom and progress by working for the integration of all people regardless of race, creed or national origin."

"These contributions into her spiritual, social, cultural, civic and economic life will help to achieve the glorious destiny of a true and unfettered democracy," she said.

Mother-to-be feels anxious hearing tales from the front

DEAR ABBY: Right now, I am so upset I want to get this off my chest to relieve my own anxiety, and if you print it in your column, it will be a big favor to many women.

I am in my eighth month with my first child, and today I had a checkup. Coming home on the bus, I sat next to a motherly looking woman who struck up a conversation with me. She talked about nothing but the horrors of childbirth!

She had had six and lost two.

Her sister had a child who was born deaf and blind, and her daughter's first child was retarded because of the long and complicated labor she had endured. Then her neighbor's baby strangled on the umbilical cord during the birth process. Abby, by the time I got off that bus, I was shaking like a leaf!

Please tell well-meaning (?) women that pregnant women do not want to hear such tales, and if they can't say something cheerful about childbirth to not say anything at all.

object, and whistling at a woman is an insult.

I'd like a woman's point of view.

T.C. IN HOUSTON

DEAR T.C.: THIS woman's point of view is the same as yours. (P.S. Whistling at women also indicates a juvenile mentality.)

DEAR ABBY: The letter in your column about the kids who wet their pants in school brought back this memory:

My son Steven, went to nursery school with Elizabeth Taylor's sons by Michael Wilding, when we all lived in Palm Springs during the winter. At the time, Elizabeth Taylor was married to Mike Todd. Mike took the boys to school and enjoyed sitting with them on one of those little chairs...and he would tell them stories. Those children hung on every word and listened intently...so when a puddle started to creep across the floor, Mike and the children got up and looked around for a "spilled orange juice..." or whatever...(Mike's idea). He graciously ignored my son's wet bottom!

The driver who brought my son home told me this story to explain why Steven was brought home in a skirt!

UPSET

DEAR UPSET: You've said it all. And very well. Let's hope it gives those bearers of bad tidings cause to pause.

DEAR ABBY: We built a lovely patio, bought furniture and a grill, and planned for a pleasant summer. But whenever we cook over, stand around and watch us eat!

Once I gave them each a slice of watermelon and told them nicely to run along home, but they came back with some other children, forming a ring around the grill and remarking on how good the barbecued ribs smelled! I like children and don't want to be unkind or petty, but our budget can't be stretched to feed more than our own family. Shall I call the parents and explain how embarrassing this is? Or move?

HAD IT

DEAR HAD IT: Call the parents and tell them you'd like to feed their children, but you can't afford it, so would they please keep them away from your cookouts.

DEAR ABBY: My husband

Surgery is best bet for rectocele

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've had a rectocele for about 10 years and it is getting progressively worse, causing problems now with my bowel movements and bladder. My concern is how successful the surgery might be.

DEAR READER: In older women, especially those who have borne children, the tissue separating the rectum from the vagina can thin, stretch and become inelastic. Eventually, this causes part of the rectum to protrude into (or, in advanced cases, out of) the vagina. Not only is this an unpleasant and embarrassing situation, it can lead to constipation and bladder weakness as well.

In my experience, surgery to repair such a rectocele is universally successful. In the process of "tightening up" the tissues, the gynecologist may choose to remove the uterus, particularly if it has badly sagged out of position and may be contributing to the problem.

If you have progressive problems with a rectocele, I advise you to consider surgery. As operations go, it's relatively easy and will make a big difference in your life.

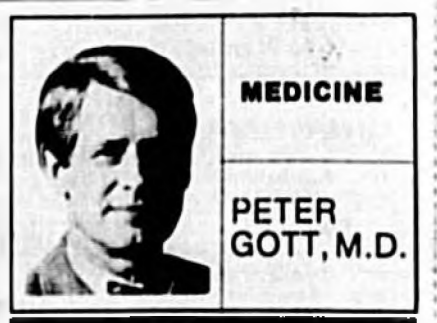

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 35-year-old healthy woman who recently suffered a grand mal seizure during a tennis tournament. An MRI revealed I have small lesions in my brain. I lived in Brazil from 1981-1987, and my doctor did test me for one kind of bug that can cause lesions. He doesn't know if there is a connection to the lesions and the seizure. Any ideas?

DEAR READER: Small "lesions" in the brain could, indeed, have caused your seizure. But what are these lesions? They could be scar tissue from a previous infection, small nests of tumor cells, evidence of strokes, or -- as a way-out possibility -- the consequences of a parasitic infection (such as toxoplasmosis or malaria) that you may have picked up in Brazil.

In particular, I'd worry about cysticercosis, pork tapeworm infection, which frequently causes human disease in South America. The parasites enter the body through the intestinal tract, reproduce and form cysts in various body tissues, including the brain. These cysts can cause seizures.

The diagnosis is partially based on MRI or CT scanning of the brain and is confirmed by a blood test called an immunoblot assay.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

A crucial skill in bridge is vision. In trying to anticipate possible snags, I see pictures in my mind's eye with the cards positioned in a particular way. But whatever works for you is fine.

To test your visionary powers, cover the East-West cards. You reach six hearts and West leads the diamond queen. Play on.

The auction was good, if slightly convoluted. North couldn't give an immediate positive to two clubs, because his spade suit wasn't good enough. Three diamonds was fourth-suit forcing, asking for more information. After South bid three hearts, North temporized with four clubs. When North bid four hearts, South knew that his partner had spade losers, so he cue-bid with four spades. That was all North wanted to hear.

Most players would win the first trick and immediately start drawing trumps. But when they break 4-1, the brakes come on. Suddenly they realize there is no way to recover. Two major-suit tricks must be lost.

If there is a trump loser, the contract has but two chances. An unlikely singleton spade king, or the player with four trumps having the spade king and at most three diamonds.

The key play is to ruff a diamond at trick two. Draw three rounds of trumps. Cross to dummy with a club and ruff the last diamond. Cash all the clubs before giving West the lead with a trump. If your luck is in, he will have to lead a spade away from the king.

Keep an eye on how the cards may lie.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Aug. 25, 1993

Your probabilities for increased earnings look very good for the year ahead. You should fare well whether working for others or for yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may have an opportunity today to finalize a matter that affects you and others to everyone's satisfaction. It will be up to you, however, to design the blueprint. Virgo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Ideas and concepts that are of significance to you at this time are also relevant to persons with whom you are involved. Be sure everyone treats them with the respect they deserve.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your financial trends look favorable today and you should be able to do something worthwhile that could be of benefit to you materially. Make it a priority.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Independence will be of importance to you today, so don't let others establish or lay out your agenda for you. Do what you want to do when you want to do it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Maintain contact with today's events, but do not try to manipulate them. If you let nature take its course, your probabilities for success will be greater.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is a good day to touch bases with two friends you haven't seen too much of lately. Ideally it would be very nice if you could arrange something for all three of you to get together.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your competitive spirit could be aroused much easier today than usual. If someone throws down the gauntlet, you're not likely to ignore the challenge.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In order to gratify your mental and physical restlessness, some type of intensive activity might be required today. Try things that offer elements of friendly competition.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today you might do better for yourself in joint endeavors than you will with your independent incursions into the commercial world. Operate where you feel the strongest.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Take stock of your recent affairs and activities and try to bring balance into your life. If you've been playing too much, work harder. If you've been working too hard, stop and have some fun.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In order to feel gratified today there must be a purpose to your life. Select meaningful objectives and work toward them as productively as possible.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Today you might become a bit bored if you do the same things with the same people. You need a little variety. Try something new with different friends.
