Friday Grocery Advertising

Thousands of women shop among the grocery ads in The Herald each Friday before visiting the stores.

They find the grocery pages offer them a convenient shopping list, low prices and a variety of foods which provide welcome changes in menu.

In Sanford, women buy or direct the purchase of practically all food consumed in the homes--they constitute a buying power that has control of immense sums of money.

Place your message before this vast, rich audience Mr. Food Merchant. Your advertisement in The Herald will receive careful consideration by "the buying power of the home."

Special Commission Returns Report That Describes Deplorable Condition Among Workers In South Of Wales

LONDON, May 8, -(INS)distressing side of the present unparallel state of depression in the British coal fields is undoubtedly the suffering and hardship imposed on the miners' families and dependents.

Special commissions which have toured the South Wales, Durham, and Northumberland coalfields, (the districts most affected by the slump,) have brought back terrible stories of the plight of many of the towns and villages.

Whole districts are declared to be without work; children are unclothed and undernourished: shopkeepers are struggling under the weight of great debts; and some recital of the administration of families are even on the verge of
