Season's first tropical storm forms

MIAMI - Tropical Storm Andrew, the first named system of the 1992 Atlantic hurricane season, strengthened a little but was no immediate threat to land, forecasters say.

Andrew swirled into action from a tropical depression Monday morning.

'We've been watching it for several days," said hurricane specialist Hal Gerrish of the National Hurricane Center in suburban Coral Gables. "It's been moving so fast it's just slow getting wound up, so to speak."

Often, fast-moving storms don't grow as strong as slower ones, but there have been exceptions, Gerrish cautioned.

At 5 a.m. EDT this morning, the system's center was near latitude 14.3 north, longitude 48.9 west or about 800 miles east of the Lesser Antilles. Andrew was traveling west-northwest at about 21 mph with top winds near 50 mph.

A tropical depression becomes a named storm when its maximum sustained winds reach 39 mph. It graduates to hurricane status with winds of 74 mph.

Nests down at Sea Turtle refuge

MELBOURNE BEACH - Fewer loggerhead turtle nests have turned up at the Archie Carr National Wildlife Refuge this year than last year, but scientists say the number still is above

Liewellyn Ehrhart, a turtle biologist from the University of Central Florida, said 12,400 nests of the threatened loggerheads have been found on the refuge.

Another 300 likely will be found at the refuge at the Brevard-Indian River County border by the end of the nesting beson in late August, he said. During the 1980s an average of 9,500 loggerhead nests were counted each year.

A mid-season surge put the loggerhead nests near the 13,100 found in 1991 and 14,000 found in 1990.

"We were lagging behind in nests through the middle of the season (early July)." Ehrhart said. "Because of this late-season nesting, we're catching up to last year."

Ehrhart said he couldn't be certain the higher nesting

Universities' financial aid scrutinized

Accordated Press

TAMPA - Some state lawmakers and education officials say statewide guidelines might be needed to curb questionable spending by private foundations that support Florida's public universities.

"Years ago, we passed a bill to give the universities greater autonomy and flexibility, state Rep. Mary Figg. D-Lutz. The trouble with autonomy is it gives them the flexibility to do bad things and the opportunity to get in trouble."

Recent reports in newspapers have focused on spending from discretionary funds at both the university and community college level.

For example, the University of South Florida medical school treated faculty members to a $20,000 weekend retreat at a Longboat Key resort and a $7,300 Christmas party last year.

The money came from a $60 million discretionary fund, fed by patient fees to doctors affiliwith USF's University Medical Services Association.

At Hillsborough Community College in Tampa, $73,000 in bookstore, snack bar and vend-ing machine profits were earmarked for a special fund that was used primarily for promotion and entertainment

The expenses included tickets to a reception for Barbara Bush and a luncheon with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers Only $9,000 was spent on student activities.

Although community colleges are separate from the university system, Ms. Figg said the problem is the same at both . discretionary funds managed under rules that vary at er school, with spending left to the judgment of administrators.

Most of the money spent by the university foundations pays for professors' salaries. classrooms and athletic fields. scholarships and other essential educational needs.

Burger King's new boss breaks rules in comeback

Associated Press

MIAMI - Barry Gibbons says Burger King's flame-broiled Whopper is here to stay, but the British boss of the perennial No. 2 in fast food also endorses one of its old advertising alogans:

Sometimes you've gotta break the rules."

Gibbons has run Burger King for Grand Metropolitan PLC since it bought the chain as part of the Pilisbury Inc. takeover in 1989. He's reformed the 6,400-restaurant, 45-country operation, which had grown sloppy and stale.

"It's my kind of job — open-heart surgery. I love going in deep into what I call the structural problems," said Gibbons. 46, chief executive officer and chairman. "It's the biggest transition in our history.

Gibbons was given the title of chairman Monday, succeeding Ian Martin, who is chief operating officer and group managing director of Grand Met. James B. Adamson, president of Burger King's USA Retail Division, was named Monday to the title of chief operating officer,

New Tribes Mission on the edge of downtown

Under Pillsbury's ownership, the 38-year-old chain founded in Miami had lost what Gibbons calls "the quality ethic."

It went through five presidents in 10 years, alienated franchise holders and became the butt of jokes for dead-end ad campaigns.

Burger King had a lot of these kind of things deep-scated injuries that weren't really evident. They were hurting. They were limping, but on the surface it look OK," he said in an interview. We really had to go down deep."

Things were so bad that some franchisees feared Grand Met, a food and liquor retailer with $15 billion in 1991 sales, planned to sell.

MIAMI — The massive corruption scandal threatening the government of Brazilian President Fernando Collor de Mello centers on several South Florida companies, a newspaper re-

Investigators of the Brazilian Congress are attempting to find out if Collor de Mello's former campaign manager. Paulo Cesar Farias, used the South Florida companies to hide millions of dollars that allegedly were part of a slush fund for the president's personal expenses.

Those millions, The Miami Herald reported Friday, allegedly were extorted from wealthy businessmen and augmented through bid-rigging on official contracts.

The FBI has begun investigating the scandal, focusing on the export papers of three alreraft sold to Brazil by one of the companies. The FBI is trying to determine whether the papers were forged, said FBI spokesman Paul Miller.

Last week, the congressional panel overseeing the Brazilian investigation recommended that Farias be arrested and his bank accounts frozen.

While the scandal has rocked Brazil four three months, its South Florida connections have emerged only recently, uncovered by Brazilian congressional investigators with help from Kroll Associates.

What an offer

The Russian government has made an offer that the rest of the world can scarcely refuse. Desperate for hard currency, the Russians have approached the United States, France and Japan with a proposal to sell the uranium from the former Soviet nuclear arsenal for use in domestic power plants.

Dismantling all of those nuclear missiles under existing international accords will release thousands of pounds of highly enriched uranium — enough, according to Dr. Thomas Neff of the Massachusetts institute of Technology, to supply all the needs of 20 commercial reactors.

If they can't sell it, the Russians will have to keep this deadly material in storage. That would pose all the familiar environmental threats with one more added one: Experts predict that the enriched uranium would inevitably start turning up on the interna-tional arms market because, unlike the uranium in power plants, this stuff is ready-made for use in a wide range of

U.S. manufacturers are eager to participate in the proposed sale, since diluting weapons-grade uranium to the levels of radioactivity suitable for reactors promises to be a very profitable business for them. That could provide a welcome shot in the arm for some sectors of the domestic economy, and it might give a boost as well to the moribund market for new nuclear power plants.

But there are problems. Figuring out how to transport the material safely from the former Soviet Union is the most important one. As a result, it may make more sense to process the material right there, which could provide ome much-needed jobs and technical training for Russia's work force.

In addition, even if a plan can be worked out for the uranium, that won't resolve the problem of disposing of the plutznium that's also being extracted from those warheads.

Plutznium can't be assumed to the country of the plutznium can't be assumed to the country of the plutznium can't be assumed to the country of the count Plutonium can't be converted to other uses as easily as enriched uranium. Japan has proposed developing a new kind of reactor for the Russians that would burn plutonium, but it's not clear who would — or could — afford to pay for it.

The U.S. Department of Energy is reviewing the uranium coal. That agency has a special interest in the issue since it's the world's largest producer of reactor fuel and would likely see a sharp decline in its business if the Russian offer is acco

Brought to justice

It is fitting that former East German leader Erich Honecker is confined to Moabit prison while he awaits trial on manslaughter charges. The prison is very near where the Berlin Wall once stood.

Honecker is charged in connection with the deaths of 49 East Germans who were killed trying to escape his communist dictatorship. If convicted, he could be sentenced to life.

After seven months of hiding in the Chilean Embassy in Moscow, the 79-year-old Honecker has been returned to Berlin to stand Honecker has been returned to Berlin to stand trial. One of the last surviving communist rulers, he took refuge on the grounds of a Soviet military base in eastern Germany after reunification in 1990. When the German, government filed charges against him the following year, he fied to Moscow.

His return to Berlin ends a 17-month diplomatic chass game involving Germany, Russia and Chile.

Bussian President Bosia Veltain deserves

Russian President Boris Yeltsin deserves most of the credit for handing over Honecker to German authorities. Unlike Mikhail Gorbachev, who granted Honecker asylum, Yeltain made clear months ago that the German government was justified in holding Honecker accountable for his crimes.

The most egregious of these was a standing order to border guards to shoot to kill any East German who tried to escape to the West. He also stands accused of plundering the East German treasury.

Erich Honecker is one of the most notorious leaders in East Germany's brief history.

Nonetheless, he will be accorded a fair trial and given a full opportunity to defend himself. That is more than he gave to those desperate souls who were slaughtered as they tried to get across the Berlin Wall.

Doctors with AIDS keep lethal secret

As she lay dying last fall, Rimberly Bergalis made a poignant last request of federal lawmakers: Require that physicians and dentities regularly test for AIDS, and restrict those who are infected from performing invasive medical

If such a law had been in place, the 23-year-old Florida woman testified during a congressional hearing, she would not have contracted the deadly disease from her dentist.

The National Commission on AIDS apparently was unmoved by Kimberly's heart-rending plea. It declared recently that it sees no reason why AIDS-infected medical professionals — like the dentist who gave young Kimberly AIDS - should restrict their practice. It also said that AIDS-infected physicians and dentists need not inform their patients.

The commission's advisory is important because it is expected that states will draw upon it to set down guidelines for medical workers with AIDS, rather than more stringent recommendations that previously have been developed by the federal Centers for Disease Control. Congress has required that states develop policies by Oct. 28 to continue receiving federal funds for public health programs.

While the commission's recommendations were greeted favorably by the AIDS lobby, it almost certainly did not sit well with much of the American public. A Gallup survey last year revealed that 94 percent of Americans-icel that HIV-infected doctors and dentists should be required to disclose their condi-

What we have here is a clash between the privacy rights of medical professionals afflicted with AIDS and the right of pa-tients to be confident that they will not be unknowingly exposed to infectious diseases while receiving medical treatment.

In similar conflicts. the rights of patients usually take precedence. For instance, doctors and dentists are required in most states to stop practicing if they are infected with, say, tuberculosis or Hepatitis B or a venereal disease. Yet, they face no such restriction if they test HIV-positive, or even if they have full-blown AIDS.

The commission rationalizes this perverse medical double standard by saying that patients are at minimal risk of contracting AIDS from a medical worker. That conclusion is based in part on the research of Dr. Albert Lowenfels of New York Medical College. In an article published last year in The New England Journal of Medicine, he calculated that patients have only a one in 48,000 chance of contracting HIV from doctors.

This risk - which probably does not strike most Americans as minimal, no matter what the commission says — will get progressively greater as more medical workers are infected with the virus and more patients are exposed. It hardly is comforting to know that lurking in America's medical community are an estimated 360 surgeons, 5,000 doctors, 1,200 dentists and 35,000 other health care workers who are infected with the AIDS virus, without their patients being the wiser.

It truly is unfortunate that there remains much prejudice and discrimination against people with AIDS. And it is somewhat understandable that HIV-infected physicians and dentists might be wary of informing patients of their condition for fear that they would lose much of their medical SARAH OVERSTREET

Conservation models cut costs

New York City is preparing a major innovawater treatment and supply costs.

What's happening in New York is part of a national trend demonstrating that it can cost less to increase effectively than to pay for new for the part of a new to increase effectively than to pay for new to the part of the part of the part of the pay for the p sources of supply. Where it works, this approach creates a market and jobs for more efficient products, cuts costs, and has the added benefit of making better use of natural resources. Several measures to push this trend forward are part of the national energy legislation Congress is close to passing.

The New York situation is this: The city confronts the unpopular options of spending up to $12 billion to upgrade 14 waste-water treatment plants or eventually slapping a moratorium on new hook-ups to the sewer system. On top of that, another half-billion dollars or more may have to be spent on the system to get additional supplies of fresh water. Unless, that is, there's a way to make water. Unless, that is, there's a way to make the system more efficient.

"We could probably save in the neighborhood of 200 million gallons of water a day by replacing all the city's water closets" with more efficient units, says George Whalen, executive director of the New York-based Plumbing Foundation. It's a possible 2-for-isolution that could resolve about 80 percent of the treatment and most of the fresh supply the treatment and most of the fresh supply problems at the same time.

To make it work. A rehate of $275 to $300 per fixture is being considered. Not glamorous, but the investment can potentially deal with the problem at about a tenth of the cost of building new water facilities.

The same thinking is already revolutionizing the utility industry. California's power companies intend to provide 75 percent of the state's additional electricity demands to the year 2001 by paying their customers to switch to more energy-efficient products. Rebates are being offered on everything from compact fluores-cent light bulbs for homeowners to water and energy-saving valves used to trrigate farm land. Several other states have followed California's lead, requiring utilities to consider whether efficiency investments can meet future electrical needs at less cost than building new power plants.

A provision in the energy bill before Congress would extend that requirement to all of the states.

Another section of the bill requires that energy and water conservation measures that can pay for themselves in less than 10 years through reduced cost be installed in all buildings owned by the federal government. "We're talking about saving 81 billion a year in the energy costs alone in federal buildings." in the energy costs alone in federal buildings," says James Wolf. executive director of the Alliance to flave Energy. Those kinds of savings can pay for a lot of retro fit work on everything from lighting and water fixtures to heating and cooling equipment. And that means work for the people who make and install those products.

Wolf notes another advantage, one he says , be the most important long term of all. With some 500,000 federal buildings across the country, the program can atimu-late the now anemic distribution system for more efficient products. If it proves it can save money for federal taxpayers. there's no reason states and cities can't adopt similar programs to do the same for the people who foot their bills.

The energy bill will also set efficiency standarda on newly manufactured show er heads, faucets and tollets beginning in 1994. The standards, which received industry backing, are expected to reduce water use in new homes by 20 to 25 percent. All these measures treat efficiency as an investment strategy, not as a form of rationing or an conservation for its own sake. They have to prove themselves in the marketplace. It's important not to oversell efficiency by creating expectations that cannot be met. While efficiency is no magic bullet, it holds tremendous potential to climinate waste to the benefit

This isn't kinder, gentler campaign

Primary night has come and gone in Missouri, with winner after winner vowing before TV cameras to "take the high road" on to November. "I can guarantee the voters a race on the issues and not on negative innuendo," one promised. "And I'm sure my opponent feels the same way."

Uh-huh, sure. I just hope she didn't bet the war chest on it.

This has been the most negative primary campaign anyone here can remember, and voters primarily feel rode hard and put up wet. We spent the last month with our Olympics, talk shows, prime-time favorites. Sunday morning church services and even infomercials, for heaven's sake, in-vaded by a parade of video-taped charges, denials and countercharges. It started with the Voters primarily feel rode hard and put up wet.

Republican governor's primary when our secretary of state, Roy Blunt, hired political consultant Roger Alles, the architect of the famous George Bush "Willie Horton" ad. That was the ad that planted racial fears of Michael Dukakia freeing black prisoners to rape and murder whites.

in this new campaign ad, Ailes and Co. focused on a legitimately questionable situation that Blunt's opponent, state Attorney General William Webster, found himself in. They acted it out with a cast of sleazy-looking actors on a merry-go-round, scooping money out of a barrel as they rode around smoking eigars and leering.

Those of us who had worked with Blunt professionally and considered him among the most honorable of public servants were stunned. He lost.

A host of other races featured a blur of TV ads, with candidates using unflattering photos of opponents and illustrating amorphous allegations with graphic built points: "He did THIS, bang! He did THAT, bang! Then he did THIS, bang!" Newspapers tried to do follow-ups on the ads and present both sides of the allegations, but even viewers who took the time to read the articles were confused. It was the viewers who felt shot by the bullet points and left dazed on the road. "What did he say? He did

A bright 21-year-old co-worker, a recent college graduate, asked me, "What in blazes is going on with these ads?" I asked him if he remembered Willie Horton. "Well, I was still in high school ... oh, was that the one with the prison and all the inmates coming out a gate?"

"Close. That all you remember?"

"Yeah, pretty much."

"Count yourself lucky." If there was any doubt that of Willie set the tone for the first of the '92 Rules of Political Advertising, this election settled the issue. And if the Mary Matalin-Hillary Clinton mud-speaks are an indication, we can also count on yet another '92 Rule being well-entrenched: The custom of having a campaign cohort plant goasip or innuendo to get a mudball out onto the selection folds. mudball out onto the playing field without the team captain having to kick it out there is alive and well.

troduced themselves Monday night, but did not debate. They will face each other in November.

"Promises are not being kept to those people at Seminole High School," Larry Strickler said in response to a question about district-wide redistricting. "We can't be arbitrary about changing lines though they need to be changed.

Bob Goff said that the decision can not wait until a new high school is built in Oviedo in 1993.

'We don't have enough room to put all the portables we will need if we wait until 1995-96,"

Norris Jennings added that the board needs to listen to the what people have to say on the matter, though a decision has to be made "right away," Dr. Robert Kilcourse said that families often buy their homes based on the school zones in which those homes are.

We have to be very careful with how we change those zones," he said.

Candidates agreed that the administration in Seminole County schools is top heavy.

'We need to, as in all big businesses, spread managers as thin as possible," Strickler said. But management decisions have to be made at the schools."

Dr. Donald MacCuish agreed that the administrator-teacher ratio was too high, but had a different solution to the problem. "We need to him a management consultant to look at the structure from the top down." he said. "Each school is different and must be looked at different." On the subject of year round Kilcourse said he would like to see that matter placed on a public referrendum.

"I believe it cost more money than it saves and that it disrupts families," he said. "I'd like to see the matter go befor the public."

Goff said he doesn't believe the district can do without year round education.

"It's either raise taxes $1,000, put more and more portables up at out schools or go to year round education.

Jennings said he believes the parents, administrators and teachers have already given their approval to year round education.

"It is positive," he said. "They support it."

Heterogenious grouping in the schools has been the object of much controversy for several years. One questioner wanted to know where the candidates stood on the issue.
"I support it," said Strickler.

"It prepares students for the real world where everybody is not equal in their learning skills."

MacCuish said that he has been teaching the advantages of heterogenious grouping in the classroom for years.

"I believe it works." he said. Kilcourse said he was not sure what he thought about the subject, but that if studies showed that "It works, I'd be for

The question of what should be done about the fact that atudents are gradualing without being able to read brought more agreement among the candidates. "We should begin in the elementary grades to prepare atu-dents for the real world," Jennings said.

Strickler said the district needs to take care of the problem by utilizing volunteers to help students learn to read. That, he said, would help solve the problem without expending additional tax dollars.

Regardless how, MacCulsh said, the problem must be solved.

"We have a moral obligation to students to teach them to read, write and compute."

Parent involvement in the education of the students must be a top priority, candidates agreed.

"Do we become all things to all people," Goff said. "We need to look to reducing our role (in the lives of students) and expanding the role of parents."

MacCulah said "it is not the schools' responsibility to get into the parents' role." According to Strickler, "the schools do not want to be parents, they want the parents to be parents." The question of whether condoms should be distributed at high schools brought giggles from the crowd and squirms from the candidates. Goff, blushing noticably, said he believes in education as a

Current members of the staff and physicians' groups will be added to the new emergency room treatment center.

The regular emergency room will remain open 24 hours a day. but the four new treatment rooms will only be open to patients approximately 12 hours a day, Kaulman said. For now, walk-in patients will register and go through the screening process in the tempo-rary portable office located at the rear of the hospital.

In addition to the new facility. the existing 4.879 square feet of the emergency department will take on a new look.

"The nurses station will be moved and patient flow improved," Kaufman said. "We will also redecorate the depart, supposed to begin in October of the first floor, which will also be renovated this year."

For the past few years the hospital has gradually updated each floor of the hospital.

"The rejuvenations of each floor have come out of the hospital's pocket." Vinson said. But the additions to the hospital are coming from HCA."

For now the hospital staff will remain the same.

Because the additions are mainly expansions of current services, we can't say that there will be a certain number of openings here," Vinson said. "But ultimately as The Heart Center nears completion. because it is a new service, ves we will need more people."

In the next three years the hospital will continue to grow.

The powerhouse, which will heat, cool and supply emergency power to the new additions of the hospital, is already under construction.

Woody Allen loves Mia's daughter

Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK - Like a character from one of his anget ridden comedies, filmmaker Woody Allen says he has fallen for a much younger woman - the adopted daughter of Mia Farrow. his longtime leading lady on screen and off.

Allen, 56, confirmed Monday that he is romantically involved with 21-year-old Soon-Yi Farrow Previn, whom Farrow adopted when she was married to conductor Andre Previn.

'Regarding my love for Soon-Yi — it's real and happily all true," the filmmaker said through a spokeswoman. "She's a lovely, intelligent, sensitive woman who has and continues to turn my life around in a wonderfully positive way."

Meanwhile, Connecticut State Police said an investigation is under way somehow involving Allen. Farrow's lawyer. Alan Dershowitz, was quoted by The New York Times today as saying the case concerns suspicions of sexual abuse of another of Farrow's children.

The police spokeswoman, who would not give her name, said the officer in charge of the inventigation, Lt. John McGoldrick, had instructed her to comment that "there is nothing further to any except everything is under investigation." It was not known whether Allen is a suspect.

Allen's spokeswoman, Leslee Dart, told the Times, "Anybody who wants to can make a complaint, whether false or not false, and the police have to investigate."
Deranowits said the investigation was spurred by a doctor who examined the child two Allen said the affair with Miss Farrow Previn, a college student in New Jersey, had nothing to do with the lawsuit he filed Thursday seeking custody of three of Farrow's 10 other children: their 44s-year-old biological son and two youngsters they adopted. The New York Post reported today that Farrow learned of the affair when she discovered nude pictures of her daughter in the young woman's bedroom in Farrow's apartment and realised they had been taken in Allen's apartment.

On Monday night, Allen brushed past reporters and photographers outside Michael's Pub, a bar where he plays his clarinet once a week. He left after a 40-minute medley of ragtime and Dixieland jazz.

News reports Monday said the affair had led to Allen's breakup with Farrow. But a source speaking on condition of ano-nymity said that the affair began seven months ago, "at a time when the relationship with Mis was virtually over."

The Daily News quoted Farrow's 81-year-old mother, Maureen O'Bullivan, as saying she was "revolted" by the affair. 'Maybe Soon-Yi was charmed by an old man of fame ... who is old enough to be her grandfather," she said.

Farrow was Allen's principal leading lady in all 13 of the movies he has made since they met in 1980. But the two neve wed, and they lived in separate spartments facing each other across Central Park.

Beveral of Allen's movies deal with nebbishy older men in affairs with younger women.

In the 1979 film "Manhattan."
Allen plays a 42-year-old writer

In "Hannah and Her Staters" in 1987, Farrow plays a woman whose husband has an affair with her younger sister. Ma. O'Sullivan plays her character's mother

And in "Husbands and Wives," scheduled for release next month, Allen plays a college professor who becomes romantically involved with a student, played by 19-year-old Julictic Lewis.

A lawyer familiar with the child-custody application said Allen charged that Farrow, 47, is an unfit mother. The lawyer requested anonymity because the court papers are scaled. A hearing is scheduled Aug. 25.

"In the matter of child custody: The last thing I wanted to do was go to court." Allen said in his statement. "I have tried agonizingly to work out the details privately, but finally I was left with no alternative."

Allen is known for guarding his privacy, often concealing himself with a floppy hat as he walks around Manhattan. But he's no recluse: he eats at the fachionable restaurant Elaine's and plays clarinet regularly at Michael's Pub.

Celebrity divorce lawyer Raoul Felder, who is not involved in this case, said Allen's affair with Miss Farrow Previn will doom hie custody suit.

For all intents and purposes. he has been her father," Feider said. "If this is the case, if the accusations are true, he'll never even be able to visit them, much less have custody."

Storm closes one road in Seminole

SANFORD - Yesterday evening's rainstorm produced temporary flooding, but no serious problems. Upsala Road, C-15, in the Lake Monroe community west of Sanford was closed for a brief time.

Seminole County fire dispatcher Bob Hodges said this morning that records indicated the road was closed to traffic from S.R. 46 north to Orange Boulevard, but only for a brief period of time due to the heavy rains. No serious damage was reported.

Convention '92-The Republicans

Mack uses familiar line for Gov. Clinton

By DAN SEWELL Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON - Sen. Connie Mack called on some of his old tines as he charged that presi-dential nominee Bill Clinton offers old Democratic approaches.

Mack said Clinton's record in Arkanasa shows a traditional Democratic philosophy of "more taxes, more spending, more government: less freedom.

"You know what I say to that?" Mack said Monday to Florida delegates to the Republican National Convention. "Hey Billy, you're liberal!"

Mack, who defeated Democrat Buddy MacKay in 1968 in Flor-ida's closest U.S. Senate election, made "less taxes, less apending, less government; more freedom" his campaign theme. And Mack campaign commercials concluded: "Hey Buddy, you're liberal!"

MacKay, now the state's lieutenant governor, laughed when he heard about the "Hey Billy" line, said Julie Anbender. press secretary to Democratic Gov. Lawton Chiles.

they're not going to be taken again," Ms. Anbender sald.

Jeb Bush, the president's son and chairman of his Florida campaign, told delegates that Clinton is echoing Chiles' 1990 campaign rhetoric and will increase taxes as Chiles has.

Chiles' poll ratings are down and Republicans have said their candidates will make him an issue in this year's Florida elections.

"They've got a candidate whose record is so bad, they're afraid to run on it," Ms. Anbender sald in Tallahassee. 'They can't find a credible line of attack on Clinton, so they've opted to focus on someone who's not even in the race."

Rep. Heana Ros-Lehtinen of Miami, the first Cuban-born member of Congress, spoke to the convention Monday night. to celebrate the major role of President Bush in expanding the growth of freedom and peace throughout the world."

"As a Cuban refugee who came to these shores of freedom when Fidel Castro, by force, raped the island, I know full well

"The people of Florida were ... what it is to lose one's taken once by that line, and homeland to communist ag-

Ros-Lehtinen said.

Clinton has been trying to make inroads with Cuban-American voters who have been overwhelmingly Republican and make fighting communism a gression ... and what it is to start - chief concern. Mrs. Ros-Lehtinen over in a new land," Mrs. also urged Hispanic women across America to support Republicans.

"To you, the Republican Party and our leader. President George Bush, say 'Bienvenida,' welcome," she said.

Senior delegate inspires the young

HOUSTON — Young leaders and the future are on delegate Jeanette Riel's mind at the Republican National Convention. She's 89.

Mrs. Riel, a longtime Republican volunteer from Vero Beach, is the senior delegate here, according to surveys of each state delegation by The Associated Press.

She first announces she is "over 80," then discloses she will turn 90 on Sept. 27. That's more than two months before South Carolina delegate U.S. Sen. Strom Thurmond. She said there's been some joking talk about the two of them having a joint 90th birthday party.

in the meantime, she's telling the other Republicans here the importance of young people to

"We need young people to come up through the ranks. I'd like to see people who will have the vision to lead us," she said. "We have to work with the young people. Older people often have preconceived notions and we need to listen to the young."

Accompanied by a grandson, Mrs. Riel was looking forward to seeing friends from other states made in earlier conventions. She's attended every one since 1972.

Some of the highlights that stand out in her mind include sitting next to Netl Armstrong. the first man on the moon, at the 1972 convention on Mismi Beach. She also recalls anti-war demonstrations — "a Jane Fonda problem" — at that convention.

The 1976 convention took her back to Kansas City, in her home state of Missouri; at the 1980 convention she was working for Paula Hawkins, who would win the U.S. Senate race that year. and in 1968, she went to New Orleans with her grandson - now a student at Notre Dame and was impressed by his excitement over watching politica

At this convention, she'll be hoping to see Bush — whom she thinks deserves more respect than he seems to be getting invigorate his campaign.

She moved to Florida in 1960.

Lower interest rates?

Committee meets to discuss monetary policy

By JOHN D. |Social) Associated Press Writer

WABHINGTON - Rather than subject themselves to charges of playing politics. Federal Reserve policymakers are expected this week to reject President Bush's pleas to ease interest rates

"They're really under the political spotlight right now with the Republican convention in operation." said economist David Jones of Aubrey Q. Lanston & Co., a New York securities

The Federal Open Market Committee was seting privately today to determine monetary policy for the next eight weeks. The committee is composed of the seven governors of the Federal Reserve Board and the presidents of the 12 regional Fed banks, five of whom are eligible to vote.

The governors were appointed by either former President Reagan or President Bush, both Republicans. But despite being presidentially appointed, board members cannot be fired and pride themselves on their political independence.

Bush and members of his administration have been urging further cuts in interest rates to atimulate the economy, which remains sluggish despite a dramatic reduction in two short-term on July 2. "I don't think the data has been conclusive gh to justify a further move at this point." and Laurence H. Meyer, head of a St. Louis economic forecasting company. "I believe the Fed would prefer to sit on the sidelines and wait and see if its earlier actions are having any effect."

Economist Jeremy A. Gluck concurred. "The Fed's relatively bold ... casing on July 2 is. at wrote in Mitsubishi Bank's weekly Money Market

The last easing included a drop in the discount rate that the Fed charges commercial banks for loans from 3.5 percent to 3 percent, the lowest level since July 1983.

It was accompanied by a decline from 3.75 percent to 3.25 percent in the federal funds rate - the interest that banks charge each other for overnight loans.

Other rates, including the prime rate that banks charge their most credit-worthy corporate customers, have dropped since then. Fixed-rate, 30-year mortgages are below 8 percent for the first time in nearly 20 years. Analysis say that should help revive the housing industry.

But many other economic sectors remain weak. Manufacturing, which had been one of the bright spots, was flat in July. Automobile sales have softened and retail sales were no higher in July than they had been in May.

It was against the backdrop that the Fed's Open Market Committee was meeting today. Analysts said they expected it to decide against any change in monetary policy for now.

"We doubt that anything will inspire the Fed to ease prior to the release of the August payroll report" on Sept. 4, said Mijaubishi's Gluck The last Fed casing came immediately after the Labor Department released its employment report for June. It showed that the jobless rate had jumped to 7.8 percent, the highest since March 1984, while payrolls unexpectedly had shrunk by 117,000 jobs.

The Fed said then it had acted because of 'sustained weakness in credit and money growth, continued movement toward price stability and the uneven progress of the economic

The unemployment rate improved slightly in July, dipping to 7.7 percent with the creation of 195,000 new jobs.

Even if the Open Market Committee adopts no change this week, it could give Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan authority to call a special meeting if there is another weak jobless number. Jones of Lanston & Co. said.

He said any decision then to ease further probably would be a dramatic one, to a 2.5 percent discount rate and a 2.75 percent federal funds rate.

Quayle vows to keep talking about traditional values during campaign

By CHRISTOPHER COM Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON - Vice President Dan Quayle vowed to "never back down from talking about traditional values" and ridiculed Bill Clinton's lack of foreign policy experience as he began his Republican convention duties Monday.

Quayle stopped first at a Pat Robertson "God and Country" rally. Two small groups of hecklers tried to interrupt the vice president, only to be drowned out by the cheering crowd of more than 2,000 members of the Christian Coalition. Robertson's political arm.

"I don't care what the media say. I don't care what my critics say. I will never back down from talking about traditional values," Quayle said to cheers.

Later, at a briefing for pro-Israel delegates aponaored by the American Israel Political Action Committee. Quayle said. "Bill Clinton's foreign policy experience is a summer internship with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.'

. The vice president said there "is no comparison at all" between the foreign policy experience of Bush and Clinton.

Quayle New to Houston on Monday morning with his family. He survived weeks of ques-tions about whether he might be dropped from the ticket and was hoping "to reintroduce myself to the American people" in his convention speech Thursday

He promised in recent interviews that, "I'm not going to repeat the mistakes I made in 1988," recalling his rocky start when he was announced as Bush's surprise running mate in New Orleans.

Robertson, the Christian Broadcasting Network president and one-time White House aspirant, hailed Quayle as "a man of courage" unafraid to take on Hollywood, the media and the legal establishment.

The vice president, with his family arrayed behind him before a huge flag, defended his headline-making attack of last May on television character Murphy Brown for her illegitimate child.

The elites laughed at the reference to Murphy Brown and they sneered at my defense of traditional values. It wasn't just me they were laughing at my friends, it was you. It was your families and it was your values." he told the Christian Coalition. which claims 250,000 members.

"We are not laughing. We are working to make America better," he said.

"Our opponents believe that when a teen-ager decides to have an abortion, her parents don't even have the right to know. We believe in the sanctity of life."

said Quayle. Avi Weiss of the Jewish Defenne League briefly disrupted both of Quayle's speeches in the Sheraton Astrodome Hotel.

At the ATPAC briefing, Welsa shouted, "You've been wonderful, but tell your boss to stop bullying larael." He was removed by guards.

Several AIDS activists were forced out of the Christian Coalition rally after they began shouting. "AIDS is killing America'

Annual PONY meeting set

FIVE POINTS - The annual general membership meeting of Seminole PONY (Protect Our Nation's Youth) Baseball Inc. will be conducted on Sunday, Aug. 30, at 4 p.m. at the Five Points Complex on Highway 419.

All individuals interested in the operation and organization of Seminole PONY Baseball are urged to attend.

All regular members of the Board of Directors are requested to be present.

Jensen back at QB

MIAMI - The Miami Dolphins' elder statesman is their newest quarterback.

Twelve-year pro Jim Jensen, a backup passer for the Dolphins in the mid-1980s, shored up a position depleted by injuries when he returned to quarterback at practice Monday.

Scott Mitchell was on the verge of clinching the No. 2 job until he was sidelined by a fractured finger suffered in last weekend's 31-27 preseason victory over the Denver Broncos in Berlin. Mitchell will sit out Saturday's exhibition game at home against Tampa Bay, as will Scott Secules, who has missed all three preseason games because of a sore shoulder.

That leaves the Dolphins with just three quarterbacks — Dan Marino, free agent Doug Pederson and Jensen, normally a reserve receiver and special teams standout.

Church softball on deck

Date set for Fall league

SANFORD - The planning stage is almost over, let's play softball.

Monday night at Central Baptist Church the Sanford Church Softball League held its annual coaches meeting to put together plans for the 1992 Fall Softball League.

The League is hoping to again have three six-team divisions as it did for the Spring League. The league has a competitive division (very strong teams), a Fellowship division (middle of the road and just a step behind the competitive teams) and a Fun division (for new teams and co-Ed teams who want to have a good time with a less competitive atmosphere). "The Spring League went very well with 18 teams," said league President John Townsend. "For the first time we divided the league into three divisions according to team strength and everyone seemed to like the method because you were playing a team you were competitive with and women interested in playing could also be involved. There were very few blowouts.

"I think we lost some teams in the past because there were no divisions and some teams just could not compete with the top teams and they did not want to show up each Saturday with no chance to win and get embarassed. One thing we want to do this fall is try to find a way to get done a little earlier in the day. Nine games in one day makes for a

Florida driver killed

ALBANY, Ga. - Police are investigating an accident on a drag strip that killed a veteran driver during a race.

Doyle Tindail, 38, of St. Cloud died Saturday when his car veered into a guardrail halfway down the quarter-mile track on U.S. 19 Dragway. Police reports said he was going more than 100 mph.

The Southeast division sanctions 22 drag strips in Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, South Carolina, North Carolina and Virginia.

Gathers trial starts selections

TORRANCE, Calif. - Jury selection began in Los Angeles County Superior Court for what remains of a lawsuit filed two years ago following the death of Loyola Marymount basketball star Hank Gathers.

Gathers collapsed during a West Coast Conference tournament game on March 4, 1990. and was pronounced dead less than two hours later. He was 23. An autopsy listed the cause of death as an unknown cardiomyopathy, a heart disorder.

In the aftermath of Gathers' death, lawsuits were filed against 14 defendants, alleging they contributed in some way to the events leading to his death.

MAITLAND - The awards keep pouring in for the Baseball World AAU 11-and-Under national champions.

The team that went 6-1 in the tournament and was coached to the title by Baseball World staff member Gary Ridge and Dennis Bodenmiller had four of its players named to the AAU (Amateur Athletic Union)

Among the locals named All-Americans were Andrew Brown from the Volusia Bronco League, Blake Bodenmiller from the Winter Garden Little League and Jason Cloar and Bubba Sullivan from the Ormond Beach Little Major League.

The 11-year-olds almost didn't get a shot at the title as they lost a 5-4 decision to Louisiana after victories over Oklahoma (7-1) and Indiana (7-3). Three of the four teams in the Pool finished 2-1, but Baseball World

Pernfors recovers at Indy

By MARK BUSINETF Associated Press Writer

INDIANAPOLIS - Former Seminole Community College star Michael Pernfors came from behind to beat Richie Reneberg 3-6, 6-4, 6-4 in the opening round of the U.S. Sports Center Monday.

Most of the tournament's top players, including the world's No. 1 ranked player, former Sanford resident Jim Courier, Pete Sampras and Jimmy Connors, won't play their first singles matches until today or Wednesday. This event is considered one of the final tuneups before the U.S. Open. which begins in less than two weeks.

Pernfors, originally from Sweden, was a two-time Na-tional Champion and First Team All-American in both doubles and singles while leading SCC to back-to-back National Championships and was also a two-time All-American and singles NCAA champion while playing at the University of Georgia.

After turning professional, Pernfors lost in the finals of the 1986 French Open to then No. 1 ranked Ivan Lendl and appeared to be headed for the top of the tennis world.

But a series of injuries have slowed the ex-Raider, who was a qualifier in this tournament. He has been trying to work his way back into tournament □Gee Tennis, Page 33

Dodgers' Gross hurls first no-hitter of season

By Accorlated Proce

LOS ANGELES - Finally. a no-hitter.

There were seven no-hitters in 1990, and seven more in 1991. But they were conspicuously absent from the 1992 season until Monday night, when Kevin Gross of the Los Angeles Dodgers ended the drought. Gross retired 22 of the final 23 batters, threw 71 strikes and came close to allowing a hit only once as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the San Francisco Gianta 2-0.

"The later it got, the more the adrenaline started pumping." Gross said. "It was just a blur when that Gross (6-12) allowed secondinning walks to Cory Snyder and Matt Williams and hit pinch-hitter Mark Leonard with a pitch in the ninth. The ball that came closest to inning that shortstop Jose Offerman caught while moving to his right.

"Offerman made that great play for me," Gross said, "I thought it was a base hit. When he caught it and came in after the inning, he said 'We're going to get it."

When Willie McGee filed to left for the first out of the fir

the final out, catcher Mike Scioscia dashed to the mound and hugged Gross. His teammates mobbed him on the mound and a crowd of 25,561 at Dodger Stadium gave a standing ovation.

"It was good for the team and an inspiration for everybody, and for myself, especially. I've had a bad record, but I've pitched good all year. It's a big lift for us all, and we'll live on it for awhile." Gross

St. Cloud product a God-send for Pirates

By ALAH ROOM AP Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH - With a flitter and a flutter and a whole lot of foolery, rookie Tim Wakefield's dancing knuckleball has given the Pittsburgh Pirates' pitching staff a much-needed wake-up call for the pennant race.

"He's been like catching lightning in a bottle," Pirates manager Jim Leyland said.

So far, that lightning has struck three teams: the Cardinals, Mets and Braves, and Wakefield, from St. Cloud, has a 3-0 record and 1.32 ERA in four major-league starts to show for Wakefield, who started the season 10-3 at Triple-A Buffalo. has pitched at least eight innings in every start. He has two complete games and hasn't never allowed more than two runs in any outing.

The Braves, whose pitching staff consisted of knuckieballing Phil Niekro and not much else for years, became the latest victim of Wakefield's wobbier, losing 4-2 Sunday in a weekend shootout of NL division leaders.

Atlanta had outscored Pittaburgh 22-5 in the first two games of the four-game series, only to be shut out on four hits until Greg Olson's two-run double in the ninth inning.

"His knuckleball is comparable to Phil Niekro's. His knuckleball is real," Pirates general manager Ted Simmons said. 'To sum it up, he's for real."

Now the Braves know what other teams felt like trying to hit a pitch that tumbles like an out-of-orbit satellite in need of a NASA rescue mission.

"It's like a butterfly. It doesn't fly straight," the Braves' Otia Nixon said. "It goes all over the place.

One of just two pure knuckleballers in the majors — Charlie Hough is the other -Wakefleid, 26, is a rarity among pitchers, a young gun who doesn't rely on heat or a sizzling slider. The Dodgers' Tom Ca diotti glao uses the knuckler, be throws just as many breakin

One scout clocked a Wakefiel knuckler at 46 mph, or less that the speed limit on most high ways. That's not even half fast as Nolan Ryan's 98-mp heater, but the frustration wearing on NL hitters. "As a hitter, you're condi-tioned to hitting the 90-mph fastball and the slider. But you can't take batting practice against the knuckleball," Pirates catcher Mike LaVailiere said.

trying to hit a pitch that dark and dances and dips is alread

"It's like nothing clse you see." No hitter has yet stepped out of the box and yelled at Wakefield to challenge him, but if one does. "I'll challenge him ... I'll throw it slower," Wakefield

"It don't buy the theory that hitters will adjust to him once they've seen him." Leyland said. "As long as he can throw it for strikes, I don't know if you can adjust. With the knuckleball. there's no way you can prepare for what it's going to do.

It's evident what Wakefield has meant to a first-place team that's won 13 of its last 16 games. He's stabilized a rotation that has lacked an effective fifth starter - the Pirates' No. 5 starters are 4-8 with a 4.81 ERA - and soon may be without Zane Smith, who has a sore shoulder.

Remarkably, Wakefield didn't turn to pitching until 1969. He and his father fooled around with the knuckler in their backyard in Melbourne.

But he was drafted as a first baseman in 1988 after graduating from St. Cloud High School. Only after he hit .189 in his first pro season and rookie ball manager Woody Huyke spotted him throwing the knuckler did he turn to pitching.

What he's done is keep the Pirates in first place in the NL East.

Another top match Monday found Pernfors' fellow countryman Anders Jarryd on the brink of pulling off an upset over 12-seeded Olivier Delaitre. Halfway through the match against Delaitre, Jarryd seemed in control. While Delaitre was funning and furning over line calls, throwing his racket on the ground, spiking the ball and complaining about a ball girl whom he felt was "too small." Jarryd stayed focused on tennis.

As Delaitre rushed his serves. repeatedly double-faulting and struggling to get the first ball in play. Jarryd calmly but accurately served and volleyed Kevin Curren defeated Pablo himself into contention for the Arraya of Peru 7-5, 1-6, 6-3.

But in the second half of Monday's first-round match. It was Jarryd's turn to unravel, as the veteran Swede started yelling at himself and questioning the umpire's calls while Delattre kept quiet, and Delaitre came back to post a 4-6, 6-4, 6-2 victory.

"I had a lot of chances in the second set and I also had some early break points in the third, but I lost four games in a row."
Jarryd said. "I just couldn't beat

Oross, whose previous best performance in 253 career starts was a three-hitter on three ocsince shutting out St. Louis on July 12.

The right-hander retired 13 Gianta on ground balls, five on fly balls, two on pop-ups, one on a line drive and six on strikeouts.

Seventy-one of Gross' 99 pithes were strikes. After hitting Leonard in the ninth, he retired pinch-hitter Mark Litton on a Reider's choice, Mike Felder on a weak liner to left, and McClee.

"I told my coaches before the game I've never understood why this guy didn't win more ballgames because he's a big, strong guy and he's got out-standing stuff. His fastball's not what you'd call 93, 94, 95, but it moves so good," said Giants manager Roger Craig.

"He went to his breaking ball late in the game and got com-mand of it. He's always capable of doing that because he has such good stuff. He had great stuff tonight and he got better as the game went along," Craig

The no-hitter was the eighth since the franchise moved to Los Angeles in 1956 and the first by a Dodgers pitcher since Fernando Valenzusia best St. Louis on June 29, 1990. it was the first in the majors since Kent Mercker, Mark Wohlers and Alejandro Pena of the Atlanta Braves combined to no-hit San Diego last Sept. 11. The last time a Dodgers pitch-er no-hit the Giants was June 27, 1980, when Jerry Reuss did it at Candlestick Park. The last time the Giants were no-hit at Dodger Stadium was May 11. 1963, when Sandy Koufax beat them 8-0 for one of his four no-hitters.

It was the 14th career shutout and third of the season for Gross, who had dropped his previous 10 decisions against National League West teams dating back to last season.

Eric Karros, whose 17 homers are the most by a Dodgers rookie since Greg Brock's 20 in 1983, opened the scoring against Francisco Olivares (0-2) in the second inning with a drive over the fence in left center. The other run scored in the fourth when Brett Butler doubled and scored on a single by rookie Henry Rodriguez.

Until Monday night, Gross was perhaps best known for a 10-day suspension in 1987 when he was caught with andpaper in his glove while pitching for the Phillies.

His no-hitter was a spectacular way for the Dodgers to avert their first four-game sweep at home against the Giants in 69 years. The last team to sweep a four-game set at Dodger Stadium was Philadelphia in T985 — and Gross pitched the second game in that series for the Phillies.

Monday marked the first time the Giants were held hitless since Aug. 15, 1990 when Philadelphia left-hander Terry Mulholiand accomplished the feat. Gross' no-hitter was the first pitched by anyone at ager Stadium since July 28, 1991 when Dennis Martines pitched a perfect game for the Montreal Expos. Oliveras (1-1) allowed four hits and two runs in five innings, striking out two and walking

Older bride's shower chance for splash

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dear Abby is on a two-week vacation. Following is a selection of some of her favorite past letters from 1972 and '73.

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe I'm actually writing a "Dear Abby" letter, but a friend has just put me on the spot, and I don't know how to handle it.

Sarah is a 59-year-old widow who is marrying a 72-year-old widower she met on a cruise last winter. They are being married soon. She was just here and is as excited as a teen-ager. I think she's flipped her lid. She wants a bridal shower! Abby, Sarah has everything she needs, and she can afford to buy anything she wants, but she insists it's not the gifts, it's just the idea of having a shower.

She said when she was married the first time, things were rough and she never had a shower, and now she'd like one. Sarah is such a dear and generous person I hate to let her down, but, Abby, how can I invite women to a bridal shower for a 59-year-old bride who has everything? ON THE SPOT IN PASSAIC

DEAR ON: Easy. Make it a gag gift shower. Ask everyone to bring a cute little inexpensive present for the 59-year-old bride of a 72-year-old groom. The possibilities are endices.

DEAR ABBY: I am a single girl living in New York City. I have my own car and I am dating a guy who doesn't have a car. It takes about an hour and 15 minutes from his house to mine using public transportation, but it's only 15 minutes by car. I find myself in the position of picking him up and taking him home whenever we go out.

Compounding the problem is the fact that I must use the toll bridge to get to and from his house, which adds up considerably for me.

I find this a very difficult adjustment, as I have been accustomed to having my dates pick me up and take me home. Should I continue this pickup and delivery service? He's not a native New Yorker and is afraid to take the subway late at night. DOOR-TO-DOOR BERVICE DEAR DOOR: Thirty minutes in an automobile beats two and a half hours in a subway, no matter who does the driving. If he hasn't offered to pay for the toll, suggest it. If he can't or won't pay for it, you will have to decide whether dating him is worth the portal-to-portal service clergymen are overworked and underpaid, so since you say you 'well afford it." offer him a gift of cash. If he wishes to donate it to the church, let it be his option. Your letter indicates that your clergyman went far above and beyond the call of duty on your behalf, so be as generous with him as he was with you. (And if he's "in-suited," you can blame me.)

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine recently experienced the heart-break of losing her cats. Her cats drank anti-freeze which, as you may or may not know, has a sweet taste which is appealing to animals.

One died within several hours and the other died several days later of kidney failure. Please remind your readers to dispose of household chemicals in a safe and proper manner. It is everyone's duty to protect animals and small children, not to mention the environment. from toxic substances. Thank

LISA WILT, RICHMOND. VA.

DEAR LISA: Since I'm sure the departments that handle the disposal of toxic waste have different names in the various communities across the country, one's best bet would be to call City Hall and inquire about responsible disposal practices.

There are many substances that should not be poured into the newern - or placed in the garbage for general collection. To name a few: used motor oil, house paint and thinner. turpentine, corrosive cleaners and pesticides.

DEAR ABBY: I have read your column faithfully for years, but I never thought I would be writing to you - but here I am.

I will get right to the point: I am 20, and separated from my husband because he was doing drugs and cheating on me. Wel, I met a very nice man who is 33 years old. He recently left his wife because he caught her in their bed with another man, so we had something in common right away.

I was called back home to another state because my mother was critically ill. I got there in time to see her...but she died three days later. When I returned from that trip, two weeks later, my boyfriend game me the news that he and his wife are back together again! I couldn't believe I really love him, and I know he loves me. What went wrong?

He said he went back because he and his "ex" have three young children, and he has to consider I know he still loves me, and I am going crazy. Please help me.

HEARTSHOELEN IN ILLINOIS

DEAR MEARTSHOELEN:
Having three young children to consider is a legitimate reason.

The amount for memory to the form. for a man (or woman) to try to make a marriage work. I think he is to be admired.

Do your best to go on with your life without him. See a therapist, and join a support group. People in the same boat can be wonderfully helpful for someone who's hurting as you are. Get going - and don't look back. Good luck!

DEAR ABBY: List this one. please, in the "Dear God, thank you!"category.

Our 2-year-old son, Raoul. regularly wakes up at about 5:30 a.m., toddles into our room and crawls into bed next to his mom.

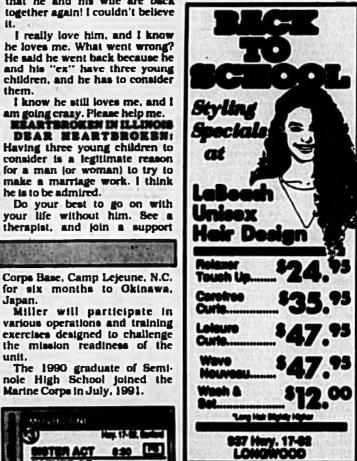

Two nights ago, at about 3:30 a.m. — two hours earlier than usual — he repeated this procedure.

And about half an hour later, my wife and I were joited awake by a very loud crash. Running into the children's room, we saw all the contents of one of those bolted-into-the-wall shelves, including several sharp-cornered boxes, splayed all over Raoul's bed. There had to be 50 to 75 pounds of stuff on that shelf. At best, my son would have been seriously injured.
Please, Abby, tell your readers to make sure that anything above their child's bed is secured. Or, better yet, just remove it.

We still get the shivers thinking of what might have been.

DEAR DENNIS: Thank you. thank you, thank you!

When to rely on estrogen therapy

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please elaborate on the use of estrogen therapy. I used it for five or six years and for reasons that I will not detail here was without the therapy for three months. During that time the hot flashes stopped and I was able to retain my normal weight. After discussing this with my personal physician, I still have nagging doubts about the benefits of this

DEAR READER: Estrogen. female hormone, is prescribed to ameliorate the symptoms of menopause and to retard the development of osteoporosis (bone softening). It should be used in conjunction with progestin, another female hormone. to lessen the risk of uterine cancer. Entrogen can cause fluid retention and patchy darkening of the skin.

If you experienced hot flashes during the time you took entrogen, you probably were getting the wrong type or an improper dose. Apparently, you are one of a handful of women who have an uneventful menopause with sudden cessation of symptoms. You're lucky. You evidently don't require estrogen therapy - unless you have os-teoporosis and your doctor believes the medicine would help that condition.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I was recently diagnosed with crystpelas that necessitated a hospital stay. During the hospitalization I suffered a high fever and my scalp was very painful. On discharge from the hospital, my hair began falling out and it still is. In there a connection between erysipelas and my hair

DEAR READER: Erysipelas is a type of streptococcal infection involving parts of the skin and underlying tissues. Typically, the area is hot, red, painful and swollen; any part of the body can be affected. High fever is common. And this is the cause of your problem, I believe.

Patients frequently lose hair sometimes quite a lot - during illnesses marked by fever. Most of the hair loss may occur at the conclusion of the fliness, when the fever has disappeared. Ordinarily, the hair grows back in time Without doubt, if the erystpelas involved your scalp, this could cause hair loss. However, in most instances, the hair loss is caused by the fever, not by the infection itself, which is treated with high doses of penicillin.

Have you ever thought about giving duplicate (or tournament) bridge a try? I suggest you do: it is an exciting form of the game. However, if you are nervous, you can make your baptism casier by starting with a novice game at your local club. There you will receive helpful instruction as you play against other newcomers. Also, buy a sub-scription to Mike Lawrence and Edith McMullin's 0-20, 99cr and 299er Newsletter, full details of which are available from McMullinat 301-890-2744.

The newsletter describes the popular bidding and play con-ventions in use today. In addition, it gives practical advice on all aspects of the game. Today's deal, taken from the newaletter, would trip up most players. After winning the first trick with the diamond ace, how do you plan to win 11 tricks?

Your two-club opening was atrong, artificial and forcing. However, the non-vulnerable opponents showed no respect for your bid, driving you to the five-level.

After winning with the diamond ace, South immediately cashed the spade ace. But when East discarded, play stopped for a couple of minutes. There was no way for declarer to recover. Every time West won a heart trick, he returned a trump. South lost three heart tricks and his contract.

"Sorry, partner," said South.
"I played too quickly. If I just lead a heart at trick two, they cannot stop me getting a heart ruff in the dummy."

The moral, of course, is to take
