Campaign ads anger family

ST. PETERSBURG — The family of one of serial killer Ted Bundy's victims is attacking some of Governor Bob Martinez's campaign commercials for dredging up Bundy's name.

The ads have been running statewide. Martinez mentions his anti-crime work, and mentions that he was the one who finally put Bundy in the electric chair.

But Jack Bowman says the ads mentioning Bundy are constantly reminding him of things he would like to forget. Bowman's daughter Margaret was one of Bundy's victims at a Florida State University sorority house in 1978.

A spokesman for the governor's campaign says there was no intention to create problems by using Bundy's picture in the Martinez ads. But he said crime is an issue that needs to be discussed during a political campaign.

Victim stabbed 80 times

WINTER SPRINGS — Central Florida authorities investigating the death of an elderly man say an autopsy has found the victim suffered from more than 80 stab wounds.

Police at first thought caretaker Wilburn Castle, 65, had suffered only a couple of stab wounds and may have died from a blow to the head. But further investigation showed he had been attacked more than originally thought.

Castle was found dead in his home earlier this week. The apparent murder weapon was also found in the home, but so far there are no suspects.

Police said robbery appears to have been the motive for the killing. Castle was a well-known and popular sight around the subdivision where he took care of plants and other items.

Murder conspiracy

Custody fight turns into bizarre story; four suspects jailed

By SUSAN LOREN
Herald staff writer

FERN PARK — A grandmother and her two daughters have been charged with conspiring to commit murder in a bizarre child custody case. "This family can't give in to the idea that this girl's lost custody of her children. Instead of going to court to seek custody this is what they did," John Barr, special agent for the Florida

Department of Law Enforcement, said.

Barr and other FDLE agents Wednesday in Seminole County arrested the grandmother Ella Wilbanks Mahr, 54, 8330 W.S. Highway 17-92, Fern Park; and her two daughters Patricia Denise Mahr, 30, 3733 Goldenrod Road Apt. 1115, Winter Park, and Sandra Mahr Lillenthal, 28, 125 Garden Drive, Winter Springs. They are charged with conspiracy to commit murder.

The mother of the children the family hoped to reclaim, Nadine Ellsworth, 35, of Orlando, has been jailed in Orange County since April 5, on a charge of criminal solicitation to commit murder, Barr said.

The three allegedly hatched a plot that, on two occasions in late February, sent three hired killers from Central Florida to shoot Daniel and Cynthia Ellsworth at their home in Marlinez, Ga. The couple wasn't at home when the accused hitmen arrived both on Feb. 21 and Feb. 23, Barr said. On Feb. 21, two of the hired guns allegedly burglarized their house.

The case broke in February, when Winter Park police reported to FDLE they were questioning a suspect who had a gun that was supposed to have been used in a Georgia murder-for-hire hit that fell through. The suspect also mentioned the Georgia burglary. Barr said FDLE agents contacted Georgia authorities and a connection was made between the Mahr family and the Ellsworths, who were marked for death.

The women were arrested on Columbia County, Ga., warrants. They face extradition and See Conspiracy, Page 8A

Tax drought could delay mall roads

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The development director in charge of building the $100 million Seminole Mall said some road improvements may be delayed if a plan to use taxes to pay for the improvements is not approved.

Thomas Schneider, director for property development for Melvin Simon & Associates Inc., Indianapolis, said Thursday that Simon financial officials are reviewing whether certain road improvements near the proposed mall site may be delayed or eliminated because Seminole County commissioners object to their proposal to use taxes to pay for the improvements.

"We're looking at alternative funding," Schneider said. "We're looking at a number of things." Schneider there is no immediate threat of the mall not being built, although that could occur if a resolution to the road problem is not found. "We just can't afford to do it all ourselves," he said.

On April 10, four of five county commissioners said they objected to allowing Simon use a portion of the county taxes generated by the mall to pay for road improvements required to serve the retail See Roads, Page 8A

Sheriff's department captain calls it quits

By SUSAN LOREN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County Sheriff's Communications Capt. Beau Taylor has resigned. Sheriff John Polk said he received Taylor's letter of resignation Thursday.

In his letter Taylor, 43, who has been a deputy 21 years, said he has accepted a position with Westinghouse Security Alarms, a "career opportunity." His resignation is effective May 4.

The resignation follows the Tuesday resignation of Communications Supervisor Deborah Caruthers, who Polk said resigned this week for personal, family-related reasons.

Polk said he may not need to appoint another captain to replace Taylor. He said he will evaluate the department's needs and make that determination.

The two resignations came amid concerns about See Taylor, Page 8A

Candidate takes aim at Neiswender's job

By VICKI BOBROWER
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Daryl McLain, 41, a life-long resident of Sanford, has announced his candidacy for the Seminole County School Board in district five, a seat currently held by board chairman Ann Neiswender. Neiswender has not yet announced her candidacy for re-election to that office.

"I believe the school district has been seriously mismanaged," McLain said Thursday afternoon. "And I believe the people of Seminole County agree with that."

McLain said he believes the 70 percent negative vote on the recent $520 million bond issue proposal was as much an indictment of the school board's planning abilities as it was of the referendum itself.

McLain, who is a co-owner of McLain, Pierce and Associates, a Sanford insurance agency, said the school board needs the input of a business leader to help survive the tremendous growth it is experiencing and will continue to experience.

"All of the board members pay on the Seminole County School Board are educators," he said. "We have educators answering to educators." He also said the board has mismanaged growth through irresponsible financial planning.

"They chose what they thought was best for us and would not listen to the alternatives," he said. "We will need some bond money in the See Candidate, Page 8A

Lake Mary asks residents to help decide projects

By MICK PFEIFAU
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — It looks as if people who live here have something to say about recreational programs and facilities the city should offer.

The city mailed 2,200 surveys to Lake Mary residents in March. Results from a stack of the surveys nearly two feet thick are now being tabulated.

The results will be used to guide the city commission in See Survey, Page 8A

Recycling program aimed at saving wildlife

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

MAITLAND — Hoping residents will want to accomplish two goals with one good deed, the Florida Audubon Society has begun their "Recycle for Wildlife" aimed at not only cleaning up the environment but also saving the lives of hundreds of animals injured in central Florida each year.

"It's a two-sided win-win situation," said Charlene Sammon, recycling coordinator for the Maitland-based state organization, based in Maitland.

Residents can take aluminum cans, newspapers, glass bottles and other recyclable materials to any of six commercial recycling centers in Seminole County or 14 centers in Orange County. With the words "I Recycle for Wildlife," the recycling center will give the proceeds to the Audubon Society to help pay for the care of injured animals.

The centers are accepting recyclables for the program now, Sammon said. Eventually, participants will receive a red and white Recycle for Wildlife decal and a See Wildlife, Page 8A

Three killed in plane crash

FORT MYERS — A single-engine airplane carrying two local fire officials and one other person crashed shortly after takeoff from North Captiva Island, killing all three, a Lee County Sheriff's official said.

Coast Guard spokesman Luis Diaz said the plane went down Thursday in about eight feet of water after its engine failed shortly after takeoff about 5 p.m.

Capt. Bill Kiphardt of the Lee County Sheriff's Office said the small plane crashed near the northern tip of North Captiva Island.

By the time rescuers reached the scene, only one wing was visible, he said.

Kiphardt identified one victim as Carl J. Drew, 47, fire chief of San Carlos Park, a community south of Fort Myers.

A second victim was identified as K. Frank "Andy" Anderson, 58, fire chief of North Captiva, also known as Upper Captiva Island.

The third victim was identified as Malcolm Street, 53, a relative of Drew.

House kills cigarette-tax increase

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Bob Martinez's plan to increase cigarette taxes by 19 cents a pack was shot down Thursday in the Florida House of Representatives.

The vote to gut the measure was not even close. By a vote of 105-to-11, members simply struck the enacting clause of the bill — the part that says "Be it enacted by the Florida Legislature" — which nullified the bill.

The Constitution requires all new laws to carry an enacting clause, and striking it is a seldom-used means of killing legislation.

Martinez had called for the increase to help bail out a $250-million deficit in the Public Medical Assistance Trust Fund. The Democratic leadership of the House said that even with a 18-cent increase, which would have given Florida the nation's highest cigarette tax at 43 cents per pack, the indigent health-care fund would still be deep in the hole.

House tentatively OK's gas-tax hike

TALLAHASSEE — A $3.6-billion transportation package that includes a 4-cent increase in the gasoline tax was tentatively approved by the House Thursday despite Republican warnings that the measure is destined to be vetoed.

A final vote on the package is expected next week. The package (CS-HB 2515) is substantially the same as the program approved by the Senate on Tuesday, but minor differences must still be worked out before the bill may be sent to Gov. Bob Martinez.

House Republicans offered a series of amendments Thursday designed to make the package more palatable to the Republican governor, but they were defeated on party line votes.

Martinez objects to various elements of the package, not least to the proposed gas tax hike. He is expected to veto the bill — "About five seconds after it hits his desk," said Appropriations Committee Chairman T.K. Wetherell, D-Daytona Beach — unless the formula for that increase is substantially changed.

Computer program tracks pesticides

GAINESVILLE — Two computer programs developed at the University of Florida will help soil scientists track the movement of pesticides through soil and determine if the chemicals pose a threat to groundwater, a UF professor said Thursday.

"The danger of groundwater contamination, coupled with growing anti-chemical sentiment across the nation, underscores the importance of using pesticides and other chemical products properly and knowing how these chemicals move through the soil," said Arthur Hornsby, a soil and water management expert with UF's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences.

Hornsby's new software programs, "CHEMRANK" and "Chemical Movement in Layered Soils," are among the first in the nation that allow county extension agents, farmers and others to make quick estimates of how a hazardous chemical may move through the soil and affect groundwater.

Stuart jumps on Chiles bandwagon

TALLAHASSEE — Only one day after dropping out of the Democratic race for governor, state Senator George Stuart said Thursday that former U.S. Sen. Lawton Chiles is his choice for their party's nomination.

The Orlando lawmaker, who switched Wednesday to a race for state treasurer insurance commissioner, said Chiles has the same purposes and ideas that he had promoted in his campaign.

"I'm pleased with the campaign that we ran for governor. I think we did that very well," he said, standing besides Chiles on a deck outside Chiles' home. "Now, I'm proud to endorse Lawton Chiles for governor."

Stuart urged his supporters to follow his lead and support Chiles and his running mate, former Congressman Buddy MacKay, who is running for lieutenant governor.

A barrier to helping the sick

It should be obvious that doctors shouldn't have to compromise their medical judgment by concerns about being sued. But some specialists are now saying that not all Americans may be getting the best care, for that very reason.

New clot-dissolving medicines can stop a heart attack if given promptly. But a relatively rare side effect — a stroke — and the possibility of being sued have caused many doctors to shy away from using the drugs, according to Dr. Robert Califf of Duke University. He raised the issue at a recent meeting of the American College of Cardiology. Some of his colleagues said they agreed with his view.

Specialists said that the new drugs clearly save lives, when all goes well. In some studies, the treatment has cut the heart-attack death rate in half. Strokes occur in one out of every 200 or 300 people who receive the drugs. About 25 percent of heart-attack victims are considered good candidates for the drugs; about five percent actually receive the treatment.

Califf said doctors have told him they are reluctant to offer the drugs because they fear lawsuits.

This is what can happen when a society goes lawsuit-happy. Legitimate life-saving treatment goes unused while patients die needlessly. The world isn't perfect. Doctors aren't infallible. Medicine will never be risk-free, but too many lawyers and plaintiffs behave as though they believe it already is.

When a doctor applies his or her skill honestly, without making foolish errors, how can any reasonable person expect more? People die not because of some plot or malicious neglect on the part of doctors but because patients and illnesses are different. They don't always respond the same way to the treatment.

Doctors can make mistakes and errors can occur in medications, treatment or care. In those instances, insurance settlements or lawsuits may be appropriate. But every bad outcome doesn't mean that a doctor has erred.

Obviously, doctors should treat patients in the best, most effective manner available. If that isn't being done, a variety of people, including doctors, lawyers and litigious patients, should share the blame.

Oil companies sink safer tankers

WASHINGTON — A desperate lobbying effort by a petroleum industry notorious for its lack of social responsibility is frustrating efforts to enact new federal legislation that would enhance the safety of oil tankers.

In the wake of the spill of 11 million gallons of crude oil from the Exxon Valdez off the coast of Alaska last year, both the House and Senate have approved measures to reduce the risk of a recurrence of that calamity.

The House bill requires that all oil tankers constructed in the future have double hulls. Moreover, oil tankers already in service must be retrofitted with double bottoms within seven years and double hulls within 15 years. In both instances, the law would apply to ships serving any domestic ports.

The Senate bill — supported by the American Petroleum Institute and by most major oil companies — contains no such requirements. Instead, it calls for further study of the issue that already has been repeatedly examined. The Department of Transportation would then resolve the matter at some unspecified time.

Because of the industry's intransigence, the conflicting bills have been trapped in a deadlocked House-Senate conference committee since late last year.

The Coast Guard, which investigates oil spills, estimates that double hulls can reduce by an average of 60 percent the amount of oil released into open waters in major shipping accidents.

Indeed, in a grounding or collision that results in the piercing of only the outer hull, the inner hull can contain all of the oil, thus preventing any spillage. That protection typically costs an additional 5 to 15 percent when a ship is being built.

A study prepared for the Alaska Oil Spill Commission, the special agency created by the state to probe the Exxon Valdez disaster, concluded that double hull design "provides the highest probability of surviving damage, either from a collision or grounding, with no loss of cargo."

The Coast Guard estimates that double hulls can reduce by 60 percent the amount of oil released into open waters.

In its final report, the commission recommended that "double hulls and other technological advances in tank vessel design should be required on an accelerated timetable, including prohibition of non-qualifying vessels." The industry — arguing that double hulls are too expensive and that their benefits have not been conclusively established — has successfully resisted pressure for the reform following all the oil spill calamities of recent decades.

In addition to the Exxon Valdez spill, they include 20 million gallons dumped off the southwest coast of Britain in 1969 by the Torrey Canyon; 7.5 million gallons released off the New England coast in 1976 by the Argo Merchant; and 68 million gallons discharged off the Brittany coast of France in 1978 by the Amoco Cadiz.

One major domestic oil company, Conoco Inc., recently broke ranks with the rest of the industry by placing orders for two new tankers with double hulls and declaring that all ships it buys in the future will include that protection.

Conoco's new vessels, each of which will have a displacement of 95,000 tons, are scheduled to be delivered in mid-1992 and then placed in service in the Gulf of Mexico.

GEORGE F. WILL

Williams plays to 'Bubba vote'

DALLAS — The candidate, a carnivore, is hankering for red meat and is not real interested in any backchat from the American Heart Association. "I read in Reader's Digest something about cholesterol not being so bad for old boys like me."

So he shows his booted feet beneath an oak table already laden with fried onion rings and, knowing that barbecue spatters, flips his tie over his shoulder, under his suit jacket. It is a Hermes tie, French and fashionable.

This god of 'em, whose drive for the governor's mansion is powered in part by the energies of Aggledom (the network of Texas A&M graduates), is a fourth-generation Texan who would be the state's first governor fluent in Spanish. And Aggie-ese. "Gig 'em, Aggies!" he says, with gestures. The rest of us probably do not want to know what it means. He owns two maroon-and-white (Aggie colors) tuxedos, and matching boots.

Clayton Williams 58, roared out of West Texas on a wave of his own money ($6.5 million of the $8.5 million his campaign has spent) to sweep the Republican gubernatorial primary without a run-off, getting 61 percent of the vote while his closest competitor got 15 percent. Motivated by the drug problems of one of his two adopted sons (he has three other children), his ideological signature was a commercial promising to introduce drug offenders to "the joys of busting rocks."

The more the condescenders criticize his rough edges — yes, he has had several fist fights — the more his popularity soars. "Dang right I'll fight. It's a pretty good management tool." When one of the Republicans he whipped accused him of "playing to the 'Bubba vote,'" Williams replied, "I am Bubba."

Some Bubba. He has prospered, right through the Texas bust, in oil, gas, ranching, banking, real estate and high-tech communications.

Williams is West Texas Reagan, right down to the science information plucked from Reader's Digest, the indifference to the opinions of the intellectuals, his capacity for bursting out thoughts that cause his handlers to cringe, his warm feelings for Franklin D. Roosevelt (for giving Texas roads and parks). And most of all, Williams is Reaganesque in being a political force because he embodies a mood.

The mood is: Let's get on with it — Texas is back and standing tall. What the Iranian hostage crisis was to the nation — emotionally deflating — the 1980's were to Texas. Williams wants to be what Reagan was: the Great Inspirer.

He also wishes to do things, about drugs and education and courts and the business climate, so he is a conservative who wants to concentrate central power, that of the Govern-

nor. He denounces as "archaic" the weakness of that office, which resulted when Texans codified in their constitution their resentment of Reconstruction governors.

However, Texas is one of just ten states with no income tax, and every candidate vows to die in the last ditch to prevent one. Therefore, every candidate is a Reaganite in insisting that "re-organization" and "efficiency" and "growth" will work wonders.

It had better. Texas, which by 1990 will pass New York as the second most populous state, ranks 49th in per-capita spending on public welfare, 47th on health care, 29th on per-pupil expenditure — and about one-third of Texas students drop out of school.

Williams' Democratic opponent is State Treasurer Ann Richards, who last week won — well, survived — the Democratic run-off against Attorney General Jim Mattox, who may be the meanest campaigner in America — even meaner than Richards. She got into the run-off by running ahead of former Gov. Mark White, who she accused — in an ad long on innuendo, short of fact — of getting rich off public office. He now compares her to Gestapo chief Heinrich Himmler (perhaps he means propaganda chief Joseph Goebbels?).

In the run-off, Mattox accused her of using hard drugs. She, a recovered alcoholic, refused to respond, saying such inquiries discourage people with chemical dependencies from solving their problems. Then several people swore they saw Mattox use drugs more than a decade ago. By their scratching and gouging in the gutter, the Democrats have immunized Williams against the charge that he lacks the requisite grace to be governor.

Six of the ten largest Texas cities have women mayors, and Texas elected a woman governor in 1924. It is too soon to say Texas will not elect another in 1990. Both Williams and Richards are mistake-prone, but she is the more experienced campaigner, and has the majority with her on the abortion issue. (She is pro-choice; he has been emphatically right-to-life, but probably is about to get blurry on that subject.)

Clayton Williams roared out of West Texas on a wave of his own money.

Whistleblowers should get kudos

WASHINGTON — Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, has a dream. Some fine day, President George Bush strides onto the White House lawn and pins a badge of honor on a government whistleblower.

Grassley is co-author of the Whistleblower Protection Act enacted last year. But he knows the act is only a fine piece of paper.

"There is still this attitude that you are disloyal if you are a whistleblower," Grassley told us. "You've got to have a White House ceremony if you're really going to send a clear signal from the top of the bureaucracy down to the bottom that, by golly, you're honored!"

The Whistleblower Protection Act is designed to put some armor on civil servants who are too often left naked before the vengeance of those they have exposed.

Despite the well-intentioned act, whistleblowers still put their jobs on the firing line. Our associates Jim Lynch and Tim Warner compiled these examples:

— Joe Richards is perhaps the only garbage truck driver in the United States with engineering credentials. Richards was a top engineer for the Navy working on nuclear submarines when he spotted a flaw in the $5.6 million submarine sonar systems. When he was told the problem wasn't serious, he went to the Defense Department Inspector General's office. He was fired shortly thereafter. Richards can't get his old job back. Private contractors — fearing Pentagon retribution — are treating Richards like a leper when he applies for work.

— Dr. Richard Burroughs was ousted from the Food and Drug Administration last fall after challenging the rubber-stamp treatment the agency is giving Bovine Somatotropin — a synthetic growth hormone injected in dairy cows to induce higher milk yields. The hormone is believed dangerous to dairy cows and possibly humans, but the FDA wasn't interested. Burroughs now is working in private veterinary practice.

— Curt McRae flew planes for the Army's Rock Island Arsenal before he fingered the Arsenal's shoddy safety system that regulates the flying of poisonous chemicals. After working with Pentagon investigators, McRae was fired last November. The blow was softened last month when an administrative judge ruled that McRae was dismissed partly because of his whistleblowing and should be rehired by the Army. Ernie Fitzgerald, one of the nation's most famous whistleblowers who received notoriety for exposing waste at the Pentagon, says even a vindicated whistleblower gets no peace. "They (the authorities) put you right on the bullseye of the target and let everyone take shots at you for as long as you want to hang around. They don't do anything to the bad guys," Fitzgerald told us.

Tom Devine is the legal director of the Government Accountability Project, which has been a safe port in the storm for whistleblowers. "So far President Bush hasn't gone beyond lip service," he said. "Every politician supports whistleblowing in public, but almost no one in power will tolerate it in private."

Not since Teddy Roosevelt has an American president turned the White House into a bully pulpit for a whistleblower's cause. Faced with a Navy lieutenant who claimed he was not being promoted because of his repeated warnings about the vulnerability of our battleships, Roosevelt promoted the man to admiral.

Whistleblowers still put their jobs on the firing line.

IN BRIEF

BASKETBALL

Sixers, Pistons mix it up

Rod Thorn, clear Friday's schedule. You've got your hands full.
 In a game that will surely be closely reviewed by Thorn, the NBA's Vice President of Operations, for the brawl that spilled into the stands, the Philadelphia 76ers defeated the Detroit Pistons Thursday night 107-97.

Philadelphia forward Charles Barkley and Detroit center Bill Laimbeer exchanged punches and were ejected from the game with 14 seconds left in Thursday night's 107-97 76ers' victory over the Pistons.

The incident began when Mahorn made a driving layup with 14 seconds to go and was fouled by Dennis Rodman. Laimbeer flipped the ball in Mahorn's face and Barkley made a run at Laimbeer.

After calm prevailed, the fracas renewed on the way off the floor near the 76ers bench. Then a fan taunted Barkley, who, unable to reach him, leaped up and spat in the fan's face.

In other games, Dallas dumped Charlotte 111-102. Milwaukee nipped New York 96-95. Chicago stopped Washington 120-117. Denver nipped Houston 130-127 in overtime. Seattle outran Sacramento 130-118, and the LA Lakers downed Minnesota 113-89.

SOFTBALL

Women's coaches to meet

SANFORD — This evening at the Downtown Recreation Center office, the Sanford Recreation Department's Spring/Summer Ladies Softball League will conduct a coach's meeting at 6 p.m.

Registrations are still being taken through next Friday. The $275 registration fee and roster are due before 5 p.m. next Friday. For information call Jim Adams, 330-5697.

TENNIS

ACS tourney this weekend

The Sanford/Lake Mary Unit of the American Cancer Society will play its Third Annual Doubles Tennis Tournament this Saturday and Sunday at Sanlando Park in Altamonte Springs. Play begins at 9 a.m. Saturday.

For more information call the American Cancer Society office in Sanford at 322-0849.

FOOTBALL

Buccaneers acquire Anderson

TAMPA — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers Thursday reached tentative agreement with the San Diego Chargers to acquire veteran running back Gary Anderson, who sat out the 1989 season in a contract dispute.

Anderson, who turned 29 on Wednesday, started three years with the Tampa Bay Bandits of the United States Football League and resides in Tampa. He joined the Chargers in 1985 and rushed for 1,119 yards in 1988 — his last year in professional football.

The Buccaneers agreed to send third-round draft choices in 1990 and 1991 to San Diego, with the '91 pick improved to a second-round selection if Anderson gains 1,000 or more yards from scrimmage this season.

The trade is contingent on Anderson signing with the Buccaneers by noon EDT on Saturday, one day before the NFL draft.

HOCKEY

Moog shuts out Montreal

BOSTON — Andy Moog stopped 20 shots for the first playoff shutout of his career Thursday night and Dave Poulin scored a power-play goal in the second period, leading the Boston Bruins to a 1-0 victory over the Montreal Canadiens in the opener of their Adams Division final.

Game 2 of the best-of-seven series will be played Saturday night at Boston Garden.

Poulin, acquired from Philadelphia in a Jan. 16 trade, scored his fifth goal of the playoffs at 17:37 of the second period, knocking home the rebound of a Ray Bourque slap shot.

Nichols leads Ranger romp

NEW YORK — Bernie Nichols scored a hat trick and assisted on another goal and goaltender John Vanbiesbroeck stopped 32 of 35 shots Thursday night to lead the New York Rangers to a 7-3 victory over the Washington Capitals in the first game of their Stanley Cup playoff series.

Game 2 of the best-of-seven Patrick Division final will be Saturday night in New York.

Nichols' second goal of the game, an unassisted tally at 11:49 of the third period, gave the Rangers a 5-3 lead after the Capitals had rallied from a 3-0 deficit.

From staff reports

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Lake Brantley avenged a mid-season loss to Lake Mary and defended its Seminole Athletic Conference softball title with a 7-3 triumph over the Rams at Patriot Field Thursday night.

Kelly Hartman scattered 10 hits and her mates collected 14 hits of their own as the Patriots won for the 19th time in 22 decisions, averaging a 6-3 loss to Lake Mary earlier this season. Lake Brantley completed its conference schedule with an 11-1 mark.

The Rams finish the regular season with a 17-6 record overall and a 10-2 conference mark.

The next action for the two teams will be next Wednesday when they open play in the 4A-District 5 tournament at Lake Brantley. The draw for the tournament will be announced Monday.

"The game was a lot tougher than the score indicated," said Patriot coach Debbie Frank. "They (Lake Mary) hit the ball as hard as anyone."

From staff reports

LONGWOOD — Willie McCloud stole home to score the go-ahead run and Scott Ferguson singled in an insurance run to cap a three-run seventh inning as Seminole defeated Lyman 9-8 in high school baseball action at Greyhound Field Thursday night.

With the win, Seminole ends its regular season at 7-18. The draw for the 3A-District 6 tournament, set for Occochee Stadium in Kissimmee next week, will be held Saturday.

Lyman falls to 14-10 and will close out its regular season with a Seminole Athletic Conference contest tonight at home against DeLand. Game time is set for 7 p.m. at Greyhound Field.

Coach Mike Powers of Seminole jumbled his line-up and started the five freshmen (four in the infield) that he brought up from the junior varsity last week. The gamble paid off as the freshmen collected six of the Seminoles' 12 hits.

"It sure is nice to win a one-run game for a change," said Powers. "The young kids played just an excellent game. The older kids backed them on the bench and did."

LONGWOOD — For the only time this season, all seven Seminole Athletic Conference high schools will be at the same track meet. Of course, it happens to be the SAC championship meet.

Competition begins at the Lyman High School stadium at 3 p.m. with the field events. The running preliminaries are scheduled to start at 4 p.m. with the running finals set to begin at 7:30 p.m.

Going into the meet, both the Seminole boys' and girls' are favored to take the team titles.

"Unless someone really rises to the occasion, it should be Seminole, Lake Mary, Lyman, Lake Brantley, Lake Howell, DeLand and Oviedo," said Lyman boys' coach Fred Finke on Thursday night.

Scoring the latest county track honor roll (on Page 2B) as a meet, Seminole would edge Lake Mary in the girls' competition while the Tribe would run away with the

DAV Royals extend lead

From staff reports

SANFORD — Alexis Acosta hit a three-run home run and William Wynn pitched two innings of hitless relief as the Disabled American Veterans Royals stopped the First Union A's 5-4 in American Division play in the Sanford Recreation Department Little Major Baseball League at Roy Holter Field Thursday.

In the other game, Terrance Perkins and Henry Taylor combined on a 10-hitter and Robert Randall had three doubles as the Seminole Ford Red Sox defeated the Sun Bank Orioles 9-5.

The Royals now own a three-game lead in the American Division with a 6-1 record. The A's and Red Sox are both 3-4 and the Orioles are 1-6.

Next action for the Little Majors will be Saturday with four inter-division games. At 10 a.m. the Royals take on the First Federal of Seminole Cardinals, at 10 a.m. the Red Sox battle the Rinker Dodgers, at noon, the A's challenge the Sunland Pirates and, at 2 p.m., the Orioles tackle the Railroaders Cubs.

After the Royals scored a run in the top of the first inning, the A's went ahead 2-1 in the bottom of the frame on a two-run home run off the bat of Richard Badger. The A's increased their advantage to 3-1 in

Some places to land on Earth Day

By ROCK FREEMAN
and LACY BOSSIN
Herald staff writers

Activities around the state and nation center next week on the 20th anniversary of Earth Day, April 22. The intent is to call attention to reclaiming the purity of the air, water and living environment. Although there is reportedly no on-going organization nationwide, activities are planned for Sunday in Seminole county and nationwide. Earth Day coincides with the vernal equinox, according to the Office of Public Awareness of the Environmental Protection Agency.

Parks celebrate

Both the Florida Park Service and Homosassa Springs Wildlife Park announced Earth Day celebrations.

Lighthouse Point Smyrna Dunes Park, located on South Atlantic Avenue, 10 miles south of Daytona Beach, will offer a newly developed guided walk through the salt marsh, coastal hammock and dunes at 9 a.m., 11 a.m., and 1 p.m. April 28. A Living History program will be held at sundown on April 27 and 28. For more information, call (904) 788-2507.

Homosassa Springs Wildlife Park, state owned and operated, has a yearly population of manatees in residence. The public can adopt one of these manatees through Save the Manatee Club. On April 22 at the park, the first 50 people wanting to adopt a manatee will receive a free adoption-membership good for one year.

Many environmental groups will have education booths at the park on Earth Day, and Fran Mainella, Florida's new Director of Recreation and Parks will celebrate Earth day there. For more information on Earth

Day at Homosassa Springs Wildlife Park, call (904) 828-8343. For more information on the Adopt-A-Manatee program, call 1-800-432-JOIN.

Day at the zoo

On April 21, Central Florida Zoological Park will feature educational displays on conservation, endangered species, recycling, wildlife in your backyard and more, from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. Education curator Tom Williams will speak on Conservation and the Purpose of Zoos at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. The first 500 people after 11 a.m. will receive a 12-inch bare root pine tree courtesy of the Seminole County Agriculture Department. There will be a children's area with storytelling, games and other activities.

Admission is $5 for adults, $2 for children three through 12, and $3 for seniors. Children two and under are admitted free.

Zoological Society members are admitted free.

For more information, contact the zoo at 323-4450 or 843-2341.

Celebrate at school

Idyllwild Elementary School will celebrate Earth Day which coincides with the school's anniversary. After a barbecue lunch from 1-3 p.m., Sunday, the school's chorus and cheerleaders will perform from 3-4 p.m. The public is invited free of charge for the entertainment at 3 p.m. Tickets for the barbecue are sold out.

For couch potatoes, ABC will present a two-hour television spectacular, "Time Warner Presents The Earth Day Special." Touted as enlightening and inspiring, the show features an all-star cast. Airdate and time: 9-11 p.m. Sunday, April 22.

Man who stole may be just a thief of hearts

DEAR ABBY: I am a female who had a best friend (male) for many years. We could talk about anything and everything. I loved and trusted him. Then through a series of events, it became painfully obvious that he was stealing from me!

I do not usually jump to conclusions, but over a period of time I became sufficiently convinced of this to write him a letter, explaining what I perceived to be true, and stating, therefore, that we could no longer be friends. It was one of the hardest things I've ever done.

Since then, he has left a couple of notes on my car expressing his indignation that I could believe such a thing, and letting me know that he would be available if ever I wanted to contact him. So far I haven't called him, but I miss him so much my heart aches. I always felt we were soul mates.

Abby, there is a tiny bit of doubt on my part, but I wouldn't have written that letter if I hadn't had to burst in the house. So, I guess I have no alternative but to leave things as they are.

What are your thoughts on the matter?

SAB, SAB, SAB
DEAR SAB: I can feel your pain. Our judicial system instructs jurors: "If there is a shadow of a doubt that the defendant is guilty, then the verdict should be 'innocent.'"

If you err, let it be on the side of mercy. Call that friend who once was your soul mate and tell him you miss him, then prepare for a tearful reunion.

DEAR ABBY: Speaking of

ADVICE

toddlers and babies who scream and carry on, thereby disturbing people in restaurants, how about babies on airplanes?

I had looked forward to enjoying a lovely flight to California, but the minute the plane took off, a baby started to scream until that ear-piercing noise nearly blew out my eardrums! I was terribly annoyed, and so was everyone else on that plane—not so much with the baby as with the mother. Mothers who can't control their children should stay home!

FROM CONNECTICUT:
DEAR FROM CONNECTICUT: Flight attendants, on seeing babies being carried aboard, should advise the mother (or adult traveling with the baby) that the change in cabin pressure on takeoff and landing can cause a child excruciating pain if the eustachian tube (in the ear) is blocked. Therefore, in order to keep the tube open, the baby should be given a bottle or a pacifier to suck on during takeoffs and landings.

DEAR ABBY: I need one of your wonderful one-liners in response to this question: "When are they going to get married?"

My daughter lives with her friend. They are both mature adults. I would just like to let these people know, first of all, that I really don't know the answer and, second, it is really none of their business. I am tired of trying to think of something new to say.

"Why don't you ask them?"

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

Help find best mom

Sanford Herald is searching for an area mom deserving of our annual "Mom of The Year" title.

We need our readers to help by writing letters of nomination, to be reviewed by our panel of judges.

Judging will be based on sincerity and clarity, with specific examples or anecdotes about why your nominee is a special mom a plus. Your nominee need not be your own mom.

Only residents of Seminole County are eligible to be nominated but their nominators need not live in Seminole County.

us a letter about a special mom, telling us why she's so special.

Letters should be typed or printed legibly. Include the nominee's name, street address, city, and daytime phone number at the top of your letter.

At the end of your letter, include your name, address, daytime phone number and age (if under 18).

Deliver or mail to "Mom of the Year," Sanford Herald, 300 N. French Ave., Sanford, Fl., 32771.

Entries are due at the Herald office by 1 p.m. Friday, April 27.

Tonight, set your alarm half an hour earlier than usual. When you arise tomorrow morning, take a stroll through God's world.

Enjoy the early spring flowers strewn over a carpet of green. Overhead, wispy white clouds play tag in the clear blue sky. Early birds whistle their cheerful morning serenade.

Just smell that aroma... that unmistakable energizing scent of early spring. Poets are inspired by it. Lovers are mesmerized by it.

Touch the rough bark of the tree in front of you. Then stroke a tiny green leaf growing from that same tree. What different textures. Springtime... a picnic for the senses!

After your walk, visit God's house. Thank Him for sharing with us all of His wonders of nature, and let us never take them... or Him... for granted.

Old, new music aids churches

By DENISE BAYNE
Herald correspondent

Contemporary Christian music has made a significant change in the way music is used in churches in Seminole County as well as elsewhere in the nation.

Musical directors and other representatives of churches in Sanford, Lake Mary and other Seminole County communities say they choose to mix traditional hymns with a more contemporary sound.

It was not always that way. Twenty-five years ago, Christian music consisted of traditional hymns with a smattering of Southern gospel. Nowadays, music ministers and directors have a more important decision in choosing what music to use.

"If the text and melody are appealing, I use it. It doesn't matter if it is contemporary or traditional," said Liz Jennings, Music Director of All Souls Catholic Church, in Sanford.

Linda Stoops of Holy Cross Lutheran in Lake Mary also mixes traditional, classical and contemporary Christian music. She says that Lutheran Church tradition encourages lay participation and the mix of musical styles helps ensure that everyone participates and enjoys the services.

Other churches take a more conservative approach to contemporary Christian music.

At First Presbyterian of Sanford, Nancy Long, Director of Music, uses some contemporary music, but with piano or organ accompaniment instead of studio sound tracks. She personally likes some contemporary Christian music, but keeps the preferences of the congregation in mind as she selects music for services. "People are moved by music," she says and she selects music the congregation will respond to.

One of the most popular types of contemporary music is the praise and worship music released by publishers such as Integrity and Marantha. Praise music combines scriptures and contemporary melodies.

Father Brokaw of St. Peter's Episcopal

If the text and melody are appealing, I use it. It doesn't matter if it is contemporary or traditional.

—Liz Jennings, All Souls Church

Church, Lake Mary, uses praise music as background music during Communion services.

Liz Darnell, Music Director of New Life Assembly of God, finds that if the congregation sings scriptures, they are more responsive to the pastor's teaching. She finds an added benefit in singing scriptures. "Songs are the answer. There is no better way to learn scripture than by singing it."

Many churches find that by using contemporary music, teenagers are encouraged to participate and to feel more a part of the congregation.

"Teens are more responsive to their own music," said Chris Oent, Resident Musician of the Episcopal Diocese of Central Florida. He likes to use contemporary Christian music because it blends with the informality of youth services.

At New Mt. Calvary Baptist Church, Sanford, Rev. Bobby Player finds that contemporary Christian music helps keep his young people in church. He feels the teens become more active participants in worship services if they are allowed to express themselves through music. "We allow them (the teens) self-expression, expression of God in their own way. We allow them room to grow," said Rev. Player.

The teens at New Mt. Calvary are also nurtured in traditional music. Rev. Player says the teens are attracted to the beat of contemporary Christian music, but as they are encouraged to carefully read the lyrics, they find similarities between the lyrics they sing and the lyrics in traditional hymns. He finds that if the teens are allowed to express themselves freely in worship through their music, they will make the transition to traditional music on their own.

At the First Baptist Church of Sanford, contemporary Christian music is used in outreach ministries, as evidenced by a recent concert by Al Denon. Why use contemporary Christian music for outreach? Rev. Tommy Johns, Minister of Education said, "The Old Lighthouse doesn't do it for youth. We want to reach the audience, the field, and still honor God with the music."

Some churches do not choose to use contemporary Christian music at all. Jay Williams, Minister of Music at Palmetto Avenue Baptist Church, does not use any contemporary music because he feels the message contained in the lyrics is weak and the theology is poor. "We believe we come to worship God in truth and spirit," he said. He then chooses music with a scriptural emphasis that appeals to his congregation. Williams uses traditional hymns and new music published by Musical Ministries, Greenville, S.C., that does not have a contemporary sound.

"In ten years what is now considered contemporary will be traditional," said Mark Eastman, manager of Long's Christian Music Center. His inventory ranges from traditional music and Southern quartet music to heavy metal and progressive rock.

The Pickering's in concert

The Pickering's, a gospel singing group, will perform at The First Church of Nazarene in Longwood on April 22 at 10:45 a.m. There will be a freewill offering taken during the service with a carry in dinner following the event. The public is invited.

Marriage, a pledge to oneness

Erica Jong has a new book out: "Any Woman's Blues." Although it is already a best seller, I don't intend to read it. I did read her "Fear of Flying," but that was rather by mistake. I picked up a copy at the airport newsstand as I was about to board a flight for California quite a few days ago. I wonder how many other copies were sold at airports. I am not really afraid of flying. But I know how the little old lady felt when she stepped off the plane after her first flight. She said she was glad to have her feet "back on terra firma." She had her Latin a trifle mixed up but I know what she meant. I always feel relieved too when I get off a plane. Anyway, figuring that by reading "Fear of Flying" I could lick the butterflies, I bought the book. Well, boys and girls, "Fear of Flying," as you may know, has nothing to do with flying, and much to do with sex. For my traditional audience, I would have to give it a double-X rating. But, Erica Jong has some things to say — which are worth pondering — about marriage and the search for happiness. "I know some good marriages," says Jessica Wing, the narrator in Jong's story. "Second marriages rarely, however, where both people have outgrown the (expensive) dated of me-Tarzan, you-Jane and are huswife, the glorified American mother. To be ordinary." But "that fantasy burst like the bubble it was," she says. Neither dominating nor being dominated was what she wanted. The trouble with leaders was that she, like most of us, was approaching marriage from a point of view of "what will make me happiest?" We have lost sight of the truth of the Bible paradox: "He that loath his life shall find it." That is, it is when we forget about our own happiness in our desire to make someone else happy that we find happiness. The happiest marriages I have known are those where this question is frequently on the lips of both spouses: "What can I do for you?" To put it another way, we are happiest when we make those we love happy and when those we love make us happy. Marriage is a "commitment to oneness" — not in the sense that two people must think alike, or have the same opinion, or that one party must be a mere reflection of the other. But oneness in the sense that in marriage the happiness of one is bound up with the happiness of the other. Neither one can be happy if the other is unhappy. To use Sam Levenson's phrase, marriage should not be a matter of "an I for an I but an I for us."
