Diesel Fuel, Gasoline Spill Into River

Residents Face Water Shortage After Oil Spill

JEFFERSON, Pa. (UPI) — Gov. Robert P. Casey put the National Guard on alert today to make emergency drinking water deliveries to hospitals and thousands of residents whose supplies are endangered by a 20-mile-long oil slick on the Monongahela River.

A utility that serves 750,000 customers in Pittsburgh was forced to shut down one of its two water pumping stations for fear of contamination from the 2 million gallons of diesel fuel and 20,000 gallons of gasoline that spilled Saturday from an Ashland Oil Corp. refinery.

Officials pleaded with the public to conserve water and predicted outages in parts of large sections of the city today. Hospitals were alerted and officials considered closing schools.

"We've asked our public to please conserve water. Some of our storage tanks are empty," said Robert Ross, vice president of Western Pennsylvania Water Co.

Ross predicted outages would affect about 4,000 residents in four sections of Pittsburgh.

About 1,200 people were forced to evacuate Saturday because of fears the potentially explosive mix of diesel fuel and gasoline would ignite. They were allowed to return home Sunday after 12 hours when workers contained the spill with 4,000 feet of booms and began the cleanup with vacuum trucks. Officials said the work would take weeks and cost millions of dollars.

The diesel fuel spilled from an 80 percent full tank that collapsed at the Ashland Oil Corp. refinery. The gasoline gushed from a 1 million-gallon tank that was punctured by debris from the collapse.

The cause of the collapse was under investigation, but officials said they believe the bottom of the tank weakened. There had been no previous spills at the refinery, authorities said.

Ashland spokesman Roger Schrum said no fish kills had been reported, and utility officials said there were no reports of tainted drinking water. But Ross said the pumping station was closed while federal Environmental Protection Agency officials determined whether the water could be treated properly.

Gov. Casey placed the National Guard on alert to be ready to provide emergency water supplies. He also urged the governors of Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois and members of Congress to request that the EPA declare the accident "a federal spill," clearing the way for federal help in the cleanup.

Pittsburgh Mayor Richard Caliguiri ordered public safety workers to try to stop as much of the oil slick as possible at a point near downtown where the Monongahela meets the Allegheny River to form the Ohio River.

Pittsburgh Public Safety Director Glenn Cannon said the oil spill stretched from bank to bank of the Monongahela.

"The size of the spill, the enormity of it, is just far beyond anything we're ready for down here," Cannon said.

Air bags and booms were used to encircle the remaining fuel on the ground to keep it from reaching the river.

Court Will Rule On Drug Profile

Composite Used To Stop Suspect Drivers

By Richard Whittaker
Herald Staff Writer

The Florida Supreme Court will soon decide if law enforcement officers can legally stop vehicles on state highways if the driver is suspected of transporting drugs on the basis of a "drug smuggler's" profile compiled by police.

The State Attorney General's office, in Daytona Beach, is preparing to file a brief with the Supreme Court asking if officers can stop cars that are suspected of carrying narcotics on Florida's highways but are not in violation of traffic or safety laws.

Richard Martell, assistant State Attorney General, said even though initial paperwork on the case has been filed with the state, it should still be months before the court makes a ruling on the matter.

The Fifth District Court of Appeals, in Daytona Beach, requested the question be submitted to the highest court of the state earlier this month. The appeals court made the request as it upheld Volusia County Circuit Judge C. McFerrin Smith's decision to suppress evidence against a New Jersey man arrested for trafficking 326 pounds of marijuana on June 4.

The judge ruled the evidence couldn't be used because the drugs were discovered as a result of an improper stop by the Florida Highway Patrol of a vehicle driven by Paul Chive Johnson on Interstate 95.

While the court upheld the ruling, it stressed that drug smuggling was reaching epidemic proportions in Florida. 195 has become a major route in the trafficking of narcotics to cities in the north, according to the appeals court.

Because of that drug traffic, the court said it is important for the Florida Supreme Court to settle the question of officers can use profiles of suspected smugglers as the sole basis for stopping a car.

FHP spokesman Randy Harper said there's a misconception with the public about the profile. He said officers are using the profile all over the state right now, but the courts just aren't allowing them to stop a car based only on their suspicions gathered from the profile.

Yankee Lake Grand Jury Reconvenes

By Richard Whittaker
Herald Staff Writer

The grand jury investigating the 1985 agreement between the Seminole County Commission and developer Jeno Paulucci that resulted in the county's purchase of 2,867 acres at Yankee Lake convened again today.

Meeting at the Seminole County Courthouse, the grand jury is investigating allegations of improper and possible illegal activities connected with the commission's handling of the purchase of the land for $7.5 million.

Those allegations have been made by numerous critics of the deal between the commission and Paulucci.

In a 2 a.m. vote on Nov. 5, 1985, the commission approved the purchase from the developer, who'd also been negotiating to sell the property to the city of Sanford.

Voting in favor of the purchase were Commissioners Bill Kirchhoff, Sandra Glenn, Fred Streetman and Robert Strum. The only commissioner to vote against the deal was Barbara Christensen.

Both Sanford and the county commission wanted the land, located next to the St. Johns River in northwest Seminole County, for use as a water treatment facility site.

Today marks the fourth time the 18-member jury has met to probe the controversy.

The investigation is being led by Ed Austin, state attorney for the Fourth Judicial Circuit (Jacksonville). Austin was selected as special prosecutor in the case last July by Gov. Bob Martinez.

Stephen Kunz, Austin's assistant, said he doesn't know how much longer the grand jury will need to finish its probe of the deal.

Goldsboro CDBG Applications Being Accepted

Beginning today, applications will be taken from residents of the Goldsboro area, who are interested in having their homes rehabilitated through the Goldsboro Community Development Block Grant (GCDBG) program, according to Richard Woods, community development officer. A citizen's committee to oversee that program will meet on Jan. 19.

Woods also said that about $300,000 has been spent in the Georgetown area, for residential improvement there, through a Small Cities block grant that Sanford obtained from the state, in 1985. He expects the rest of that $650,000 to be spent by the end of the first quarter of 1988, he said.

Woods said that applicants may apply at either the Community Development office in the city building, or at the WINS headquarters on W. 13th St. He prefers that applications would then be turned in directly to his office, he said, since that will assure the applicant that his or her application will be held in strictest confidence.

An interlocal agreement between Sanford and Seminole County has paved the way for the GCDBG, under which $300,000 has been made available for housing rehabilitation. An additional $103,000 for general improvements and costs was also allotted. Of the $300,000, about $265,000 will go directly to housing, Woods said, and the rest will go to administrative costs.

Three key criteria will be evaluated in considering applications, he added: first, the person's income. Whether the applicant is a renter or home owner, he or she must be in the middle to low income bracket, Woods explained. The condition of the property must also be

Reputed Drug Dealer Returning For Trial

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

A Winter Springs man sought since June on drug racketeering charges was arrested in Houston, Texas, and will be returned to stand trial in Federal Court in Orlando.

Robert Allen Castoro, 40, was ordered by a U.S. Magistrate to stand trial in Orlando after hearing two days of testimony in Houston.

Castoro's wife, Diane, an associate, George William Baron III of Eustis, and others were scheduled to go on trial in federal court in Orlando Monday on charges of evading income tax and laundering more than $2 million in illicit drug money. Thursday U.S. District Judge Patricia Fawcett postponed the trial until February to allow Castoro to be tried with them.

Castoro and Baron are accused of being two of the leaders of a drug ring which imported at least 360,000 pounds of marijuana and 440 pounds of cocaine between 1977 and 1984.

At the hearing in Houston Tuesday and Thursday an Internal Revenue agent testified that Castoro had also bribed Bahamian and Mexican government officials to protect his drug-smuggling operations.

Castoro was arrested Dec. 22 outside a Houston shopping center. At a hearing shortly after his arrest he asked to be returned to Florida. However, after retaining attorney David Bires, he asked for a hearing to set bail.

U.S. Attorney Joe Porto told Magistrate H. Longo Platter that Castoro had made millions in illicit drug deals and could flee to the Bahamas, where he once lived, if released on bail. After Platter denied bail and ordered Castoro returned to Orlando for trial, Bires asked that his client be returned as soon as possible.

Aerial, Ground Survey Planned For Designated Disposal Land

By Nancy Simmons
Herald Staff Writer

Topographical survey work is set to begin soon on the 2,200 acres of land Sanford purchased earlier this year near Geneva for effluent wastewater disposal, according to Bill Simmons, Sanford's director of engineering and planning.

A contract for the topographical survey was awarded Saturday to Donald W. McIntosh Associates, Inc., of Winter Park, in the amount of $132,512. City commissioners had approved the contract at a regular commission meeting last Monday, but made the contract effective Saturday, at the request of McIntosh.

Simmons explained that the survey is to be conducted in two phases. The first phase will include aerial photography; the second phase will involve ground work. Using aerial photography will help conserve cost, he added, noting that of the various contractors the city contacted on the project, McIntosh was the only one willing to conduct the aerial photography phase, within the financial limits the city required. The aerial survey will also point out the sections of acreage that need the closer ground survey work he said.

The Geneva property was acquired late this summer, after the city initially approved that land to be "insurance" in case any other part of the 201 Wastewater Facilities Master plan did not go as planned, Simmons explained. The problem being addressed is that the State Department of Environmental Regulation has mandated that by 1989 Sanford cannot put any more treated effluent waste water into Lake Monroe, Simmons explained. First, the city negotiated to buy Yankee Lake, but the county bought that land instead. Then, the city investigated using land at the airport, but the Federal Aviation Administration ruled that out, Simmons continued.

So now, the Geneva site is not just insurance, but necessary, Simmons said that before the contract was awarded for the topographical survey, boring work had already been done to determine the amount of treated effluent application that would be acceptable at the site. He noted that some of the land is under the 100-year flood level, and could not be irrigated, large areas of the land could be irrigated with six-tenths gallons of effluent per week, but other areas could take as much as three or three and two-tenths gallons per day.

A letter is now being prepared to send to the DER, Simmons said, notifying them of progress at the site. That should help to free up the grant money for further use at the site, he said, explaining that the funds are there, designated for the effluent wastewater disposal project.

Trio Rolling Copper Wire Accused Of Burglary

Three Orlando men were arrested Friday after they were allegedly discovered stealing rolls of copper wire from a business referred to as the old Coca Cola Plant, located on Orange Ave near Forest City Road in Seminole County.

Arrested on charges of burglary and grand theft were:

- Gary Wayne Hutchins, 28, of 5507 Riordan Way, Orlando.
- Troy Allen Clark, 23, of 5619 Elon Drive, Orlando.
- Kevin Joseph Pluta, 22, of 4218 Seybold Ave., Orlando.

Police reports indicate that two witnesses said they observed the men rolling the wire under the fenced-in property of the plant to a waiting pick-up truck in a nearby wooded area.

After the men were apprehended, deputies allegedly found numerous electrical tools inside the truck, as well as some of the wire the men reportedly took from the property.

All three men were taken to the Seminole County jail where their bond was set at $1,000 each.

Man Arrested On Drug Charge

Oviedo police reported receiving a tip that a man wearing a white fur coat, who was in the area of Franklin Street and Douglas Boulevard at about 11 p.m. Tuesday, had cocaine.

Police reported spotting a man wearing the described coat and he was singled out from a group of other men. He reportedly gave police a fake name, and they reported they knew his true identity. The man appeared nervous and police said they told him to take his hands out of his pockets.

The man ran and a policeman grabbed the coat, pulling it from the man as the policeman fell.

Crack cocaine and a metal pipe were reportedly found in the coat's pockets. The suspect was nabbed, Fredrick Lewis, 35, of 112 Ave. B., Oviedo, has been charged with possession of cocaine and drug paraphernalia and resisting arrest without violence. He has been released on $2,000 bond to appear in court Jan. 25.

Deputy Pursues, Arrest Suspect

A Seminole County sheriff's deputy who spotted a man he knows has a suspended driver's license pursued that man when he spotted him driving erratically on Howell Branch Road at about 9 a.m. Wednesday.

The man stopped his car at 1922 Heathwood Drive, and in the meanwhile two persons told sheriff's deputies that he had almost run over them.

The man was confronted and arrested. In a search, a mirror, a straw, two razor blades, a bottle of five pills and capsules of different types and a packet of marijuana were reportedly found.

Scott James Lindsey, 19, 1953 Bonanza Court, Winter Park, has been charged with possession of controlled substances and drug paraphernalia, and driving with a suspended license. He was being held in lieu of $2,000 bond.

Burglaries, Thefts Reported

Diving gear with a total value of about $1,200 was stolen Wednesday from the home of Dan P. Hattaway, 24, of 1364 Terra Circle, Winter Park. Sheriff's deputies have the name of a possible suspect in the case.

- Carlos Juan Salazar, Orlando, reported to sheriff's deputies that $16,395 worth of his property including a stereo and a microwave oven were stolen Wednesday from Public Storage, 2620 N. Semoran Blvd., Winter Park. A possible suspect has been named in the case.
- Larry B. Chaudoin, 44, of 777 Kyle Court, Chuluota, reported to sheriff's deputies that an $11,000 front end loader was stolen from his yard Wednesday.

Andrew G. Donaldson, 48, of 890 Alberta St., Longwood, reported to sheriff's deputies that a video recorder, a computer, a gold necklace, a gold ring and 1,000 pennies with a combined value of $2,316 were stolen from his home between Friday and Saturday.

Prosecutor: 'New York Has Serious Race Problem'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two black men robbed and threatened a white policeman's wife in New York's second racial attack since the Howard Beach trial ended, and the prosecutor in that case says the city no longer can hide "a serious race problem."

The 28-year-old woman, who was not identified, was dragged into a van by the two men who pulled down her pants, robbed her and said, "This is for Howard Beach" before pushing her back onto the street, police reported Sunday.

The robbery happened New Year's Eve in the predominantly white neighborhood of Bensonhurst in Brooklyn, less than 20 blocks from where two black brothers were beaten by a white gang on Christmas night. The Christmas assault prompted a protest Saturday by more than 400 blacks who marched in a din of racial taunts and jeers through the neighborhood.

Charles Hynes, state special prosecutor for criminal justice who prosecuted four whites in the Howard Beach trial, said in an interview broadcast Sunday that he thinks there is "a serious race problem in New York."

"I don't think we can keep it hidden anymore," Hynes said on W CBS-TV's program "Newsmakers," which was taped before the attack on the woman.

Hynes said he was under no illusion that the successful prosecution of the explosive case would have any effect on simmering racial tensions in the nation's largest city.

"I'm not optimistic that it had some great effect on race relations," Hynes said.

The attack Dec. 20, 1986, in the mostly white Howard Beach neighborhood of Queens divided much of New York City along color lines and became a national symbol of racial strife, prompting calls for a renewal of the civil rights movement.

Three whites were convicted on Dec. 21 of manslaughter for chasing a black man to his death in traffic in Howard Beach, and each faces up to 30 years in prison. They are to be sentenced Jan. 20 and Jan. 25. A fourth defendant was acquitted.

Police said the Dec. 31 assault on the woman, the wife of a Transit Authority police officer, began when two blacks approached her as she was walking in Bensonhurst.

"The dragged her into a van, drove two blocks and pulled the victim's pants down, but she was not sexually assaulted," police spokeswoman Sgt. Diane Kubler said. "They searched her purse where they found a small silver shield indicating that her husband was a transit police officer."

The victim said the two men threatened her husband and made references to the Howard Beach case.

"This is for Howard Beach. This is for Howard Beach. This is for Howard Beach," she told police her captors said.

The two black men took $50 from the woman's purse, returned her identification and pushed her out of the van, Kubler said.

Kubler said the woman walked 13 blocks to a neighbor's house where she phoned police. She was taken to Victory Memorial Hospital and treated for minor injuries before being released.

Kubler said police had no suspects in the robbery, which was reported to the police public affairs office but delayed because the office was closed during the New Year's Day holiday.

In Saturday's protest, the blacks marched through the predominantly white neighborhood to call attention to what they said was the area's racism and to express their outrage over the attack that left the two blacks, Sylvester LaMont, 29, and his brother, Steven, 31, injured.

Before they arrived at the stationhouse where two white suspects were arrested in the attack — the demonstrators were mobbed by hundreds of whites who chanted "Howard Beach! Howard Beach!" and waved signs reading "Tribes Go Home" and "Whites Unite."

The blacks generally ignored the taunts and jeers, but chanted "No justice, no peace!" and "Bensonhurst have you heard? This is not Johannesburg!" Several demonstrators returned obscene gestures made by white observers.

Arrested In Research Theft

Two Seminole County men were taken into custody Friday afternoon after they were discovered by an Altamonte Springs policeman hiding in the woods near a research business after a burglary attempt.

Gregory Lamar Ratner, 25, of 332 Notre Dame Drive, Altamonte Springs, and Emery Jarle Vernone, of 2803 Lakeview Ave., Fern Park, have been charged with third degree grand theft for taking part in an attempted burglary of Custom Research Inc., located at 540 Douglas Ave.

Altamonte Springs police officers were alerted at approximately 3:22 p.m. that three men were involved in the attempted crime.

When officers arrived on the scene they were informed the manager of the business was chasing at least one of the suspects.

Ratner and Vernone were both found in woods close to the scene of the crime by an ASPD officer, who took them into custody.

The third suspect was not apprehended.

Both men were transported to the Seminole County jail, where their bond was set at $1,000 each.

Seminolians Bask As Others Shovel

By Fred H. Cooper
 Herald Staff Writer

You noted the "no sun over Seminole" condition of the day, you say. Wonder why? Some checking was necessary and the fact the sun, on this day, is positioned about 191 million miles away may have a bearing on the matter. The fact that there is a cloud layer about 191 yards up may also have a bearing. Either way, the temperatures haven't been depressed too much. In fact, they're hanging in there just like last week.

Reflecting on the past 24 hours, your thermometer would have ranged from the mid-50s up to 70, depending on where in the county you live or work. You have also had the exhilarating experience of having rain mist in your face, or mess up your windshield. "Twixt now and tomorrow, the highs and lows will probably be about the same - up to about 70, give or take a degree, and down tonight to the mid-50s, then Tuesday up close to 70 again. Skies should stay cloudy.

It's hard to believe the weather elsewhere. Imagine, with the wind-chill factor considered, it was 76 below up in North Dakota! Ice in the Carolinas, then snow further north. Those fans returning home from the Penn State-Clemson game will sure get a lesson in weather contrasts.

And, believe it or not, it gets even worse in other places.

A winter storm spread snow from North Carolina to New York today, prompting a snow emergency in the nation's capital and closing Boston's Logan International Airport, while cold air spilling across the border from Canada blasted the northern Plains with wind chills to 76 below zero.

The National Weather

Service posted winter storm warnings for Washington, D.C., Philadelphia, Baltimore, northeastern Maryland, northern Delaware and much of New Jersey. Light accumulations of less than an inch of snow were reported across the region by early today.

Logan International airport in Boston was shut down at 6 a.m. EST, as 4 inches of snow blocked runways, airport officials said. All incoming flights were diverted to other airports and outgoing flights were canceled while crews worked to clear the runways.

From 2 to 4 inches of snow were forecast for Washington, D.C., where less than an inch had fallen by daybreak. The city's 83 snow-removal trucks were dispatched Sunday night to spread salt and sand on major roads, said Kirk Johnson, the chief snow emergency coordinator for the city.

"The idea is to keep up with the storm and stay on top of it," Johnson said. "We think we've got it pretty well in hand."

A snow emergency was declared in the District of Columbia and in Washington's Maryland suburbs, where about 140 sand trucks took to the streets, said Donna Eldridge, a spokeswoman for the Maryland Highway Administration.

Federal agencies were open but a government spokesman said reasonable tardiness would be excused. Most schools in the city were open, although classes began two hours late in some districts. School was canceled in suburban Maryland's Prince George's and Anne Arundel counties, hit by 3 inches of snow, and in Fauquier County in northern Virginia.

Thieves Rob Nurse's Corvette; Steal Vials Of AIDS Blood

MIAMI (UPI) — Thieves who stole two vials of blood contaminated with the AIDS virus from a private duty nurse's red Corvette could contract the virus if they come into contact with the blood, the nurse says.

The maroon leather briefcase, containing blood samples freshly drawn from an AIDS patient, were stolen New Year's Day from a 1983 Corvette owned by a private duty nurse.

Police said Sunday they had no leads.

Margarita Quinlan, the owner of the car, is concerned that "some kids or unsuspecting persons," not realizing the blood is infected, will come into direct contact with it.

"If they break the glass and cut their finger there is a risk they may contract the AIDS virus," said Quinlan, a private duty nurse who visits patients at home.

Each glass vial contained five to 10 cubic centimeters of infectious blood.

Custody Fight Ends With Hugs

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — Rachel Rauser, a 5-year-old millionaire caught in a custody fight after her father allegedly tried to sell her for $100,000, spent her first night in her new Florida home with her aunt and uncle.

Rachel and her uncle, Gary Stern, arrived at Fort Lauderdale International Airport Sunday evening from Philadelphia to conclude a complex, three-way custody fight that began nearly nine months ago.

Rachel was greeted at the airport by hugs and kisses from her aunt, Deborah, and her niece and nephew, Joshua, 4, and Courtney, 2.

Several clowns had volunteered to put on a show when Rachel arrived, but Mrs. Stern, who is 3 1/2 months pregnant with the couple's third child, said they wanted to keep Rachel's first night in her new home "as quiet as possible."

"We still have our tree up and we're going to have a kind of mini-Christmas for her tomorrow (Monday) morning," she said.

Stern, meanwhile, said he was glad the custody battle was over.

The Sterns won a custody battle with Rachel's stepmother, Cindy Waltman of Salem, N.J., and her maternal grandparents, John and Ruby Rauser of Elmer, N.J.

Rescued Skiers May Lose Frostbitten Feet

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (UPI) — Doctors say they will wait at least a week before determining whether to amputate all or part of the badly frostbitten feet of two skiers who were stranded in their snowbound vehicle for 10 days.

Lisa Barzano, 18, and Jami Goldman, 19, were transferred to Scottsdale Memorial Hospital late Saturday, and doctors upgraded their conditions to fair Sunday.

"They are getting better, but we are a long way from telling the extent of permanent damage. And there will be some permanent damage," said Dr. Leonard Rodell.

Hospital spokeswoman Kay Ferris said the Phoenix-area women, who survived the 10 days on a bag of peanuts, a sweet roll and melted snow, spent a fitful night after they were transferred from the White Mountain Hospital and Care center in northeastern Arizona.

"Obviously, they are still in a lot of pain," Ferris said. "They slept on and off all night and are still uncomfortable. They are being given some medication to ease the pain."

Ferris said that emotionally, the women "are still very upset, very scared."

Goldman appeared to be in the worst shape, with doctors saying they could not find a pulse in either foot. But they said it would take more treatment and testing before determining whether amputation would be necessary.

"It's almost been guaranteed it will be at least seven days before a decision is made," Ferris said. "That's the process. Doctors will continue to see if a pulse is found. Things are not guaranteed until at least Friday or Saturday at the earliest."

Ferris said the women would receive treatment in a hyperbaric oxygen chamber, which maximizes the amount of oxygen and blood flow in the frostbitten areas and "creates the environment for ideal natural healing."

"The whole body goes in, like a body tunnel," Ferris said. "It's increasing the pressure of the oxygen. It's uncomfortable. They will be going through hour-and-a-half sessions, three times a day."

Dr. Kerry Zang, the foot specialist on the case, said a medical team of as many as five experts — including plastic surgeons and neurologists — would work with the women, who were also being treated for dehydration and malnutrition.

Barzano and Goldman were found Saturday in their stalled Blazer in the remote area of Crescent Lake near the New Mexico border by snowmobilers. The two played backgammon and cards to pass the time, family members said.

Jake Estes, 13, who found the pair along with his father, said Barzano and Goldman "... were real happy and stuff and they started saying, 'we love you, we love you.' And then they hugged my dad."

Carlucci Off On Persian Gulf Tour

KUWAIT (UPI) — Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci began a week-long tour of the Middle East today in Kuwait, the oil-rich Persian Gulf emirate most threatened by the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq War.

Carlucci, who left Andrews Air Force Base Sunday night, also will visit the oil nations of Bahrain, Oman and Saudi Arabia, as well as American forces in the vital waterway. Pentagon officials said.

The trip is Carlucci's first to the region since he succeeded former Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger in November.

The Defense Department declined to elaborate on the purpose of Carlucci's visit, saying only that the secretary planned to meet with "senior government officials" in the four Arab nations.

But the trip coincides with increasing efforts by the United States, primarily through the United Nations, to force an international arms embargo on Iran in an effort to end its 7-year-old battle with Iraq.

In Tehran Sunday, Hojatoleslam Rahmani, the chief of Iran's Basij paramilitary forces, said in an interview with the Islamic Republic News Agency that an international arms embargo against Iran would have no impact on the war effort.

Rahmani said that "as long as the Pentagon promotes secret arms sales to other countries," an arms embargo against Iran "will not make the Iranian government compromise with Baghdad," the news agency reported.

Rahmani's warning was made against a backdrop of intensifying support for the arms embargo because of Tehran's refusal to accept a U.N. Security Council resolution calling for a cease-fire.

The Soviet Union appears to have abandoned its resistance to the U.S. call for an embargo and joined the other 14 members of the Security Council in December in stating its readiness to draft such sanctions.

The Security Council in July approved Resolution 598, which demands an immediate cease-fire and negotiations toward a political settlement. Iraq accepted the peace terms but Iran said it first wanted Baghdad declared the aggressor.

The Security Council is preparing to debate an arms embargo against Iran for refusing to accept the call and Iranian leaders have protested strongly in recent days, vowing an embargo would have no impact on the fighting.

The Soviets had suggested that its approval of the arms embargo package would be linked to the establishment of a U.N. naval force to protect merchant shipping in the Persian Gulf.

The Defense Department did not say where Carlucci planned to visit U.S. forces in the gulf.

The Reagan administration sent a fleet of warships to the gulf last summer to escort 11 reflagged Kuwaiti oil tankers threatened by the ongoing conflict between Iran and Iraq.

Published reports have speculated that the Arab leaders, especially the Saudis, would ask for more protection for their ships. In recent weeks, a large number of Saudi tankers have been attacked by the Iranians.

The reports also say Carlucci expects to meet with Saudi King Fahd, Crown Prince Abdullah and Defense Minister Prince Sultan.

Voice Of Reason On World Debt

It's not surprising, given this country's obsession with the October stock market collapse and the declining dollar, that for the time being we've ignored the Third World debt crisis. Of course, it's not being ignored in Mexico, where a peso devaluation and new government austerity measures make life miserable for a great many Mexican people.

And it's not being ignored in Peru, Brazil, Argentina and other Latin American countries facing economic crisis. Peru has limited repayment of its foreign debt to 10 percent of its export earnings. Brazil declared a moratorium on debt payments last spring and Argentina is likely to declare a moratorium on most of its $35 billion debt in the next few months.

And in the United States, the Bank of Boston announced the other day that it was effectively declaring worthless $200 million of the $1 billion in loans it has made to Latin America. It won't be the only bank to make that decision.

The Latin American economic crisis began in 1982, and neither conventional nor unorthodox policies have restored the region to health. Washington has not been particularly helpful either.

The so-called Baker Plan, initiated by the American secretary of the treasury, has exacerbated the problem. It encourages banks to pump money into Latin American countries to enable them to pay interest on old loans. This practice allows the total amount of debt to get larger and larger—and even more difficult to pay off. Almost all the progress the debtor nations make at repaying the debt comes at the expense of domestic economic growth.

One voice of reason on Latin American debt has been that of Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J. For the past couple of years, he has argued that piling more debt on Third World borrowers is hardly the answer. Disaster lies ahead, he warns. If Latin governments continue trying to generate trade surpluses, while imposing austerity at home—in order to get the cash to help pay off the debt.

American loan officials don't seem particularly concerned. They look at Mexico, for example, and note that its foreign reserves continue to hover at about $15 billion, the highest in history. And they point out that Mexico will register a trade surplus of more than $7 billion this year.

Bradley is not so optimistic. In a recent speech quoted in The Washington Post, he asked how Mexico can accommodate a projected 50-percent increase in its work force in the next decade without huge internal investment. "How can it invest (at home) while paying foreign creditors 7 percent of its gross national product?" he asked. "Absent more investment and less debt service, the result is sure to be mass unemployment, social and political turmoil and an enormous wave of illegal immigration" into the United States.

The senator also noted that the trade surpluses the debtor countries are trying to create—at the expense of growth at home—are mirrored by the U.S. trade deficit. At some point the United States will have to wipe out that deficit. What's going to happen, Bradley wonders, when "The U.S. trade deficit no longer absorbs surplus production?"

Bradley seems to recognize what political economist Robert Reich calls the "ecology of the world economy." It's of mutual advantage to reverse the flow of capital from poor nations to rich, to invest in the Third World and look for mutual gains. We should be encouraging other advanced nations to join us.

No one gains if Latin American countries, many of them fragile democracies, succumb to social unrest and political turmoil. We are all in this together.

Playing Dangerous Game Of Politics In Gulf

The best treatment I've seen of U.S. involvement in the Persian Gulf is a recently completed study by the U.S. Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, which concludes that "there is less mounting evidence that shipping in the gulf is less safe now than before the U.S. naval buildup began."

Administration spokesmen stress that the United States has been militarily involved in the Gulf ever since World War II, implying that the current buildup is a continuance of American policy. In fact, the role assumed over the past year is a new one.

The current policy is based on the "Carter Doctrine" enunciated by former President Carter in 1980 following the Soviet move into Afghanistan. In what I regard as a mistake, Carter made a unilateral pledge that the United States would go to war if necessary to prevent "any outside force" from seeking to control the area.

Kuwait has sided with Iraq from the early period of the Iran-Iraq war because of its fear of the extremist religious force that controls Iran. Iraq has long claimed much of Kuwait's territory, but the conservative ruling Sunni group in Kuwait feared even more the threat of Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini.

Thus the Kuwaitis opened their air space to Iraqi planes for strikes against Iran, opened their ports and territory for the shipment of weapons from Syria and France, and joined Saudi Arabia in giving billions of dollars to Iraq's war effort.

In September 1986, the Kuwaitis appealed to both Moscow and Washington for help in the form of flagging ships in the gulf. The Reagan Administration responded in a limited way, contending that the American flag would be made available only if Kuwait could meet U.S. regulations for this procedure.

Moscow, however, offered full cooperation, including refueling of 11 Kuwaiti ships with Soviet escort protection. Once the Soviet offer became known to Washington, the Reagan administration matched it, offering to refuel the 11 Kuwaiti ships with U.S. escort protection.

The Kuwaitis accepted the American offer and limited the Russians' role to the charter of three small Soviet tankers.

The administration's decision to move into the gulf was poorly conceived. There was little consultation with Congress, the gulf states or our allies.

Administration officials did not anticipate that the Iranians would lay mines that threatened both the tankers and their naval escorts. When this threat materialized, it became clear that the U.S. navy had no adequate mine-sweeping capability.

There are several lessons that should already be clear in the U.S. gulf operations:

- 1) Such decisions should not be made hastily before military factors are fully evaluated.
- 2) The United States urgently needs to beef up its mine-sweeping equipment and procedures.
- 3) Efforts of this kind should involve the cooperation and participation of other countries.
- 4) Congress should be fully consulted before such actions are taken.

Salt To Taste Test Reported

By Larry Doyle
UPI Science Writer

CHICAGO (UPI) — In a study that "shatters the myth of the salt shaker," researchers have found that people fed a low-sodium diet but allowed to season their food to taste will end up cutting their salt intake by 40 percent anyway.

"For years people have been saying that if you want to restrict salt, take away the salt shaker, but I think this shows people won't put too much salt on their food unless it's already in there," says Gary Beauchamp, a biopsychologist at the Monell Chemical Senses Center.

"It's nice to reaffirm common sense," concurs co-researcher Dr. Karl Engelman of the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia.

The researchers, who published their study recently in the Journal of the American Medical Association, say their findings could be a boon for people who want to restrict their salt intake to control blood pressure but find low-sodium foods unpalatable.

The study also suggests that the main source of excess salt in the American diet is not on the table, as is frequently suggested, but hidden in processed and prepared foods, says Beauchamp.

"This really shatters the myth of the salt shaker," he says. "I would hope it would also send a message to food manufacturers that they don't need to add as much salt as they traditionally have, but I do think that the public will have to change their taste and buying habits as well."

Daily salt consumption in the United States averages between 6 to 18 grams a day, a level considered far above the body's requirements. An essential mineral, salt can cause or aggravate high blood pressure if taken in excess, and many authorities believe all Americans would do well to limit their consumption. Others contend only those with high blood pressure, or who are sensitive to salt, need to restrict their intake.

But getting people to cut back on salt is another matter, Engelman says.

"People like salt. They're used to it," he says. "If you put them on a low-sodium diet and tell them to put away their salt shaker, they'll end up hating it and unless they have a pressing reason to do so, they won't stay on it."

JACK ANDERSON

Jim Wright And Special Interests

By Jack Anderson
And Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — Bank regulators, administration officials and members of Congress are struggling behind the scenes to rescue the financial system from collapse. They have bumped up against the fiery, bristle-browed figure of House Speaker Jim Wright, his gavel raised against them.

Just one month after Wright took custody of the speaker's chair, he summoned three high-level officials from the Federal Home Loan Bank Board into his office. He was enraged over a proposal that would recapitalize the insolvent Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp.

Bank regulators had been trying for months to shore up the bankrupt government insurance fund. Without it, savings and loan companies would face a Depression-style panic.

Wright lobbied fiercely to strip the recapitalization bill of any authority that would permit regulators to shut down failing banks. He demanded that the regulators specifically ease

WILLIAM RUSHER

Nuke Arguments

The year 1988 is clearly going to witness an enormous amount of debate on the subject of reducing or eliminating various categories of nuclear missiles.

The INF treaty, eliminating intermediate-range (or "theater") nuclear missiles, has already been signed, and the Senate debate on ratification lies ahead. About the time ratification finally occurs, President Reagan will fly off to Moscow for another summit with Secretary Gorbachev, and out of that will emerge at least the outlines of a further agreement ("START" for short), reducing intercontinental nuclear missiles by 50 percent.

Obviously, what one thinks of either of these agreements depends, in large part, on what one thinks of nuclear missiles in general. Are they devices of a new and especially terrible kind, or simply another useful weapon?

For more than 40 years, one of the highest propaganda priorities of the left (and for this purpose I am including in the term everyone from the worst cynic in the Kremlin to the mildest liberal on the editorial board of the New York Times) has been to promote the former view. The promoters have not always had the same motive: The Kremlin has intended to frighten its enemies into avoiding (or not using) such weapons, while preserving its own freedom to do so; liberals in the West have fatuously hoped to intimidate both Washington and Moscow, in the interests of "disarmament."

What matters, however, is that the campaign has been spectacularly successful. We can set aside, for the moment, such borderline cases as tactical nuclear weapons — artillery shells and the like. But the unique awfulness of nuclear missiles is now, and has been for decades, the mutually agreed perception of the entire human race.

To be sure, as long as there was no apparent alternative to deterrence through mutual assured destruction, it was possible to hold at bay liberal and leftist pressures on the West and maintain a defensive arsenal of nuclear missiles to match the Soviet array.

But two things have now happened that radically change this state of affairs. First, technology has made it possible to deploy defensive satellites that can render a first strike with nuclear missiles unacceptably risky for an aggressor. As one might expect, such a defense naturally impresses any thoughtful person, trained to consider nuclear missiles the last word in awfulness, as a vast improvement over mutual assured destruction. It also cuts the ground out from under those who had been using the dreadfulness of nuclear missiles as a useful prod toward mutual, or even unilateral, disarmament.

Second, the Soviet Union has reversed its traditional strategy, which was based on deployment of ever more powerful missiles, and is now willing to negotiate the elimination of some categories of missiles altogether, and the substantial reduction of others. This, too, understandably strikes the human race as very much a step in the right direction.

It is simply too late for Western strategists such as Henry Kissinger to dash forward now and try to say a kind word for nuclear missiles.

Election Year Promises

By Arnold Sawilish
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There being no way to deny it, we recognize today the onset of Election Year. In hopes of making it less painful, this space will be devoted to a few voters' resolutions for 1988.

1. We will not believe any information offered this year in the form of results from a "straw poll."

Genuine public opinion surveys that attempt to assess candidate standings have enough built-in shortcomings (e.g. margins of error that could be larger than the gap between the candidates) without paying attention to polls based on return mail coupons or interviews.

2. We will believe very little information offered this year in the form of results of polls commissioned by candidates or political parties.

Pollsters who conduct these surveys may not be entirely qualified, but if they are directed to ask people whether they prefer Jones, who is for increasing public services, and reducing government spending, or Smith, who wants to raise taxes and continue the same wasteful programs now in place, the results could be somewhat skewed.

3. We will be wary of candidate claims that they are riding a crest of popularity based on the size of the crowds they are attracting to rallies and speeches.

Reporters who covered George McGovern's 1972 presidential campaign remember well one of his largest crowds in New York. The candidate showed up to shake hands during the evening rush hour at a major subway-to-bus transfer point in Queens and was surrounded by a huge crowd. The photographs might have been impressive, but most of the people were simply trying to get home.

As for set speeches, watch the shots of the audience. If a lot of the people seem to be wearing the same caps, they may be the members of the same union local bused to the event. The same is true if there are lots of identical signs and banners evident — the candidate may have "powered the house" with his campaign workers.

Also remember "Bruno's Kennedy," named for the legendary Kennedy political advance man who instructed organizers to make a realistic estimate of the crowd that might come to hear the candidate and then rent a hall too small to hold that number.

budget. Still, Jim Wright has sipped too long at the table of the moneyed interests. He is attentive to the plights of banking moguls and the discomforts of oil producers.

A few years ago, Wright cornered the president of Egypt, Anwar Sadat, in a private cloakroom and handed him a letter. It asked Sadat to intervene in a deal involving a Fort Worth, Texas, oilman who wanted to develop an oil field in the Sinai.

Just a month earlier, the oilman had included Wright in a private gas well venture in eastern Texas. Wright called the implication of any wrongdoing "insulting."

A close friend, George A. Mallick Jr., has also taken Wright under his wing. The speaker has bought scores of oil and gas wells, real estate, stocks and nursing homes — which he belatedly placed in a blind trust. Wright snorts that reporters can look "until they are blind and never find anything dishonest or improper."

The worst he has done, he says, is serve his constituents. It is true that oil and banking privileges have been engineered and safeguarded by a long line of Texans, Oklahomans and Louisianans, whom Democratic Congresses have elevated to leadership in both the House and Senate.

As speaker of the House, he has been whispered to be beyond the pale by Sam Rayburn, Bob Kerr and Lyndon Johnson. They set the rules for the political games that Wright still plays.

But as speaker, he is pursuing a constituency wider than Texas. He is a shrewd politician and a forceful leader. His name has been mentioned as a candidate who would easily outclass the present crop of Democratic presidential contenders.

These presidential fevers, like a first slight heart attack, may be some of those definitive shocks which cast all that lies ahead in a new light.

Meanwhile, Wright has established a cordon sanitaire around the House Banking Committee, which oversees financial legislation. He has let it be known to one and all that this is his preserve.

IN BRIEF

President Opens Book On 1988 In Week Dealing With Money

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan entered his final year at the White House today with domestic economic worries and a heavy level of foreign diplomacy on his official agenda in the coming months.

A refreshed Reagan returned to a freezing Washington Sunday after a weeklong vacation in Southern California, where he rang in the New Year in traditional fashion with longtime wealthy friends.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater told reporters traveling aboard Air Force One that with Congress recessed until Jan. 25, administration budget director James Miller would begin briefing the president Tuesday on the new federal spending blueprint that he will send to Capitol Hill in mid-February.

Meanwhile, Fitzwater said, Reagan is awaiting the Friday presentation of a report on the stock market from a commission led by financier Nicholas Brady in the aftermath of the Oct. 19 Wall Street crash.

Reagan also plans to sign into law this week a $4 billion bailout of the Farm Credit System, Fitzwater said, and he has arranged an extraordinary series of meetings between the National Security Council and the Economic Policy Council to review U.S.-Japanese issues in advance of a Jan. 13 visit to Washington by Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita.

Jury Seeks Mechem Papers

PHOENIX (UPI) — On the eve of the first anniversary of his inauguration, Gov. Evan Mechem has been ordered to turn over documents today to a grand jury investigating alleged campaign finance improprieties.

Mechem, who faces a recall election, a state House probe to determine whether enough evidence exists to warrant impeachment in addition to the grand jury investigation, took office Jan. 5, 1987, on his fifth try for the position.

The probes center on his having improperly reported a $350,000 campaign loan. The Republican governor has denied intentional wrongdoing and has since amended his campaign disclosure forms.

'Irresponsible' Iraqi Pilots Seen As Gulf's Growing Threat

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — An apparently accidental Iraqi missile strike on a Maltese-registered freighter has added to fears that "trigger-happy" Iraqi pilots rather than Iran's Islamic zealots pose the greatest danger to U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf.

An Iraqi jet fighter sent a sea-skimming Exocet missile slamming into the 16,134-ton Alga late Friday as it steamed southward through the Persian Gulf with cargo from Kuwait, a supporter of Baghdad's war against Iran.

"These guys are some of the worst and most irresponsible pilots in the world," one U.S. serviceman complained privately Sunday. "We are on constant alert out there and for good reason."

A senior shipping executive in Dubai, the United Arab Emirates, port where the Alga struggled into repair Saturday, said, "It seems like this was another case of a trigger-happy Iraqi pilot."

Israeli Air Strikes Kill 20

BARJA, Lebanon (UPI) — Israeli air strikes against suspected "terrorist bases" in Lebanon left at least 20 people dead and 11 wounded, many of them civilians, Palestinian guerrillas and rescue workers said.

Search teams using bulldozers pulled 15 bodies from the rubble of bombed houses Sunday, one day after Israeli warplanes and helicopter gunships hit the coastal town of Jiyeh and outside the mainly Sunni Moslem village of Barja, 10 miles south of Beirut. They also struck the Palestinian refugee camp of Ain El Helweh, east of Sidon, 24 miles south of Beirut, Lebanese sources said.

Several single-story houses were flattened near the hilltop village of Barja, leaving only piles of stone and twisted metal.

Agreement Faces Tough Political Test

By Laurie Watson
OTTAWA (UPI) — The historic agreement committing Canada and the United States to a freer and fairer trade relationship faces a tough test in the months ahead as politicians in both nations consider its ramifications and decide its fate.

ANALYSIS

Support for the agreement in Canada is sharply divided along regional lines.

Using his past experience as a labor negotiator, Mulroney has won the cautious backing of seven provincial premiers. But Ontario leader David Peterson, whose province conducts more trade with the United States than any other, remains firmly opposed, along with leaders in Manitoba and Prince Edward Island.

The lack of consensus among the Canadian provinces has generated concern on both sides of the border. Influential Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., said recently that Congress will approve the legislation needed to implement the agreement only if all 10 provinces support it.

The agreement also could make or break Mulroney's political future. The Canadian leader, his Conservative government faring poorly in public opinion polls after a series of scandals and ministerial resignations, hopes the pact will divert attention from the issue of his government's integrity in the next general election, expected to be called before September.

Although polls indicate 57 percent of Canadians support the idea of free trade, only about 40 percent support the actual agreement signed Saturday. Mulroney's lack of credibility, his political opponents say, has hindered his ability to sell the agreement across the country.

The elected House of Commons, where the government holds 208 of 282 seats, is expected to easily pass the legislation, though there is concern within the government that the Liberal-dominated Senate will use its power to veto the package or force amendments that could imperil its future.

The prospects for approval also are clouded by calls from provincial leaders for Mulroney to withdraw from the pact if the United States does not exempt Canada from onerous trade legislation now before a House-Senate conference committee in Congress.

Congressional leaders intend to bear down on that legislation before tackling the free trade agreement. Some lawmakers have said there is too little time and even less desire to grant Canada an exemption from any new trade laws, especially in view of the refusal by the U.S. side to accept a similar position during the negotiations that led to the free trade accord.

Once its review has begun, Congress will have 90 legislative days to accept or reject the agreement. If the free trade agreement becomes law, it will dramatically alter the way Canada and the United States do business.

Consumers in both countries would pay marginally lower prices for goods produced in North America since those products will eventually travel across the border duty-free.

Canada will gain improved access to a market of 230 million people; the United States a market of only 25 million people. The expanded trade, business leaders say, will translate into more jobs, greater production and a more attractive investment climate in both countries.

On the other hand, critics warn that non-competitive industries such as textiles, footwear and wine in Canada and base metal and uranium producers in the United States will face layoffs under free trade.

Perhaps the most remarkable aspect of the agreement is the way in which the two trading partners will settle trade-related disagreements.

A unique, cabinet-level bilateral panel, operating apart from traditional U.S. trade remedy laws, will have the power to review duties imposed by either country and order them removed if judged to be unfair.

Diet Pills Sweeping U.S.

Doctors Invent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight

New 'Fat Magnet' Diet Pill Guarantees Fast Weight Loss

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special) — An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose fat by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

No Dieting—Eat Normally
Best of all, "you can continue to eat all of your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You will start losing fat from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight and figure you desire."

There has never been anything like it before. It is a totally new major medical breakthrough for weight loss (worldwide patent pending).

Flushes Fat Out of Body
The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in fat particles. Then, all that trapped fat is naturally "flushed" right out of your body because it cannot be digested.

Within 2 days you will notice a change in the color of your stool as the fat particles are being eliminated.

Pills Do All the Work
According to the doctors, the fat-magnet pills do all the work while you quickly lose fat with no starvation diet menus to follow, no calorie counting, no exercising, and no hunger pangs. It is 100% safe. You simply take the pills with a glass of water before meals.

The fat-magnet pills have just been offered to the American public and are already sweeping the country with record sales and reports of dramatic weight loss. It's the "lazy way" to lose weight for people who enjoy eating.

Now Available to Public
If you need to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these new highly successful fat-magnet pills (now available from the doctor's exclusive manufacturer by mail or phone order only) by sending $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$2 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), cash, check or money order to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. W248, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. (Unconditional money-back guarantee (if not 100% satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard and American Express OK. (Send card number, expire date, and signature.) Torrential Rain Damage May Exceed $30 Million

HONOLULU (UPI) — Damage from a torrential New Year's Eve downpour that split open streets and flooded homes is expected to be substantially more than the early estimate of nearly $30 million, and hundreds of people were still living in shelters or with friends because their homes were uninhabitable, officials said.

After surveying the damage, Terry Bosgra, a State Farm insurance agent in the area for 25 years, said, "I'm an agent, not an adjuster, but I fear the worst. I'd like to be Santa Claus, but some things are just not covered."

A team of 40 Red Cross

volunteers was conducting house-to-house interviews Sunday at 810 homes to assess the extent of damage on the most populous of the Hawaiian Islands.

The Red Cross said about 100 people left homeless by the floods remained sheltered at an elementary school. Hundreds of others spent the night with relatives or friends, a spokesman said.

A preliminary damage estimate was placed at $28.7 million and Red Cross officials said the total is expected to be well above that figure. There were no injuries.

Gov. John Waihee toured the worst hit areas Saturday and said he was considering declaring a major portion of an area east of Honolulu a disaster area.

Residents of the areas, with support from mobilized federal, state and city work crews, spent the weekend shoveling mud and moving massive boulders pushed down hillsides by a wall of water caused by more than 17 inches of rain within a 24-hour period.

A hillside street that was split open and washed out by the rushing water was in the process of being refilled with 20,000 cubic yards of coral hauled in from an area west of Honolulu.

Officials said it would take four or five days to repair the road.

Procrastinators Look Ahead To Last Year

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — True to its name, the Procrastinators Club of America waited until New Year's Eve to make its predictions for 1987.

And here they are 12 months late, as usual:

1. Americans will see new evidence that wild Rice is bad for the heart.
2. 3,100 tons of lucky Long Island garbage will be treated to a four-month cruise.
3. Hot-shot drivers will be shooting up the Los Angeles freeways.
4. Waterproof mascara will be subjected to live torture tests on national TV.
5. An evangelist will end up in the dog house as his dog ends up in a people house when a church lady alters the course of his career.
6. A borrowing Biden bidding bye-bye.
7. Beards with Supreme Court nominees attached will be disapproved by the U.S. Senate.
8. Gary will re-run for president after a "Hart-to-Hart" talk with his wife.
9. Republicans and Democrats will "Fawn" over a White House secretary after she announces she can actually type.
10. Billy Martin will be fired.
11. A low-flying German teenager will land in Red Square and in jail.
12. Joan Collins will go "Holm" and discover there's no one upstairs.
13. Congress will raise the national speed limit to the speed drivers drive anyway.
14. Mario Cuomo will walk for president.
15. The stock market will plummet in October, so be sure to sell all your stocks in September.

God will make front page news for supposedly holding an evangelist hostage for big bucks.

Les Waas, who has been the club's acting president for several years because the members have not gotten around to voting, said members of seven chapters in the United States had to make their predictions by telephone because they kept postponing a meeting.

"It takes a whole year for us to get our predictions together because we have a record of accuracy to maintain," Waas said.

Stocks Open Sharply Higher

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened sharply higher today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues after the dollar staged a comeback after hitting new lows in Tokyo and was higher in European trading.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 60.84 last week, was up 26.03 to 1964.85 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 908-222 among the 1,424 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 13,524,000 shares.

Stock prices seemed to take their cue from the dollar's rebound in Tokyo, where the U.S. currency closed at 121.65 Japanese yen after opening at 120.45 yen, yet another record low.

The sharp opening rally in New York came despite a fall in Tokyo stock prices in their first day of trading since last Monday. The key Nikkei index of 225 stocks slipped 346.96 points to 21,217.04. It last closed at 21,564 on Dec. 28.

The opening was in contrast to the market's final session of 1987, when the relentless decline of the dollar undercut confidence and prices closed mixed.

Nation's First Black Broadcaster Dies

COCOA BEACH (UPI) — Services were scheduled for Tuesday for Andrew R. Carter, the owner of KPRS-FM, the first black-owned and black-operated radio station in the nation.

"Skip" Carter, who was 68, died Sunday at a Fort Lauderdale hospital, officials said.

Carter moved to Kansas City, Mo., from Boston in the late 1940s. He owned KPRS-FM, an urban contemporary format station, and KPRT-AM, a gospel and jazz format station, for 35 years. The stations went on the air in Kansas City in 1952.

The stations have been run by the Carter family since 1969. The executive offices of KPRS were moved to Cocoa Beach in 1972.

Intervention Steadies Dollar

By United Press International

Central bank support steadied the dollar on major world money markets today after closing at a postwar low in Japan. The price of gold moved lower.

Dealers in Tokyo said the Bank of Japan purchased at least $200 million and as much as $600 million worth of dollars to stem the U.S. currency's fall.

The intervention helped to raise the dollar from an opening of 120.45 yen to 121.65 yen at the close. But that was still lower than last Thursday's close of 122 yen which was the previous record low.

evaluated. If the property is too dilapidated to be improved, Woods said that money would not be spent on that structure. He said that any structure needing rehabilitation would need to be in sound enough condition to last 15 years. Otherwise, a new home might be built for the applicant. The location of the property is the third standard to be considered, he added. It has to be in the Goldsboro area, which is bounded by French Avenue on the East, Olive Avenue to the West, 13th Street to the south and a railroad right-of-way to the north.

The citizens advisory committee, which oversees the block grant program will meet Tuesday Jan. 19, in the city manager conference room, at 4:30 p.m. Members of that committee are: Altermese Bentley, Turner

Clayton, Jr., W.E. "Pete" Knowles, Katie Sandifer, Velma Williams, Ruben Burch, Leroy Johnson, Bob McKee and Alfreda Wallace.

Twenty-one homes in the Georgetown area, have been rehabilitated through the small cities block grant, and that sparked interest among residents of the area, so that many people began improvements on their own, Woods explained. He said that he knows of at least 18 homes which have been "self-rehabilitated." Also, seven structures have been demolished.

Three projects are underway in Georgetown at this time, Woods said, adding that he hopes the funds for that area are spent by the end of March.

The Georgetown area is bounded by Hickory Avenue on the east, Bay Avenue on the west, 11th Street on the south, and 7th Street on the north, Woods said that now applications are being accepted for areas just outside those boundaries, also.

Various strategies have been used in implementing the Georgetown program, Woods said that in one case, block grant funds were used to demolish a structure, so that the owner of the property could then go ahead and construct a new residence to use as a rental unit. Had he demolished the existing structure himself, the property owner would have paid about $1,000, Woods explained.

Woods sees the Georgetown and Goldsboro projects as positive steps in helping people to become more involved in and proud of their communities.

"I just hope the people will get more involved in their communities," he said. "I just hope more community pride will come out of the projects because that's something that really makes a community viable."

day confirmed Castoro is still in custody, but has not been returned to Central Florida yet. "Nobody here knows when he's (Castoro) being returned," she said.

The details of Castoro's return to Orlando won't be made public by the government because of security precautions, she said.

The spokeswoman said she didn't know what facility Castoro was being detained at before his extradition to Orlando.

The IRS seized more than $2.3 million in homes and luxury cars in Seminole and Lake counties from Castoro and Baron in June after their indictment by a federal grand jury in Orlando. Castoro had been sought since then.

At Tuesday's hearing in Houston, IRS investigator

Thomas Aliff or Orlando testified Castoro has used several aliases in the past. When arrested he was carrying a driver's license bearing his photo and the name Frank Carucci, which is the name of the U.S. Secretary of Defense, Prosecutor Porto said.

Castoro also faces a state charge in Texas of possession of a small amount of cocaine, which was found in his truck at the time of his arrest.

Also, a contract is being drawn up with Conklin, Porter and Holmes Engineers, Inc., to do hydrology studies, and also studies in geology, the environment, agricultural and archeological studies.

These studies should result in the preliminary planning for a storage pond on the site.

Simmons also explained that the engineers believe some of the land to be useful for any number of agricultural endeavors, such as growing hay or pine trees. A farmer could lease a portion of the land, use it for such, and make money off of it, he said. Whatever crops grown, would, of course, be irrigated with the effluent spray.

"Different types of plants use water at different rates," Simmons explained. "We'll have to match the evaporation-transpiration rate of the plants with the amount of water we put out there. We don't expect to do much with groundwater recharge and we don't plan to have runoff."

By August or September, Simmons said the city hopes to be able to go to Seminole County for approval of a conditional use on the site, for a utility rated use. He said the land is now rated agricultural. By that time, the city also hopes to be able to move into the final design of the facilities to be located on the property, including setting up a pipeline system by November, he said.

He is survived by his wife, Mildred, two daughters, three grandchildren and a great-grandson.

reason to stop the vehicle besides just a suspicion based on a trafficker profile—such as a traffic or safety violation to make a stop, according to Harper.

In the Johnson case, the man was driving north on I-95 when he was spotted by FHP Trooper Robert L. Vogle of the department's Volusia County office.

Vogle had received state and national attention for his ability to recognize drug traffickers based on a combination of characteristics he'd observed such criminals share during his 13½ years as a trooper.

While the appeals court said it was bound to uphold Smith's decision of not allowing the marijuana seized to be used as evidence, it also noted Vogle's success rate at determining drug traffickers on I-95 with the profile.

During one nine-night period, Vogle reportedly made 15 to 20 stops, which resulted in seven arrests of people transporting drugs.

The court maintained it had to rule in favor of Johnson because it had made a similar decision in a previous traffic-stop case involving Vogle.

Vogle, who is now in a special position with the Volusia County State Attorney's Office, used a combination of individual characteristics (profile) smugglers often exhibit to determine if a car might be carrying narcotics.

Some of the characteristics of the profile used by Vogle included:

- Day of the week the car was traveling.
- Time of day.
- Type of vehicle.
- Whether the vehicle was two-door or four-door model (smugglers most often use four-door cars).
- The license tag of the vehicle. (Vogle looked for out-of-state tags.)
- The presence of a C.B. radio or radar detector in the vehicle.
- Number and age of the passengers in the car. (Younger looking men traveling alone or in pairs were most often found to fit the drug trafficker profile.)
- Whether the vehicle has tinted windows.
- The destination of the vehicle.

Harper said he would love to see the Supreme Court allow officers to stop suspected drug smugglers on the basis of a common profile, but he also recognizes that not all officers have the experience or expertise to consistently make correct determinations whether a car is being used for drug trafficking.

Harper said that if the courts allowed inexperienced officers to stop vehicles based only on the profile a lot of problems could be caused in the state because of improper traffic stops.

"In a way, it's a lot like drug dogs," Harper said of officers being able to accurately detect drug traffickers. "Some dogs can be used for detecting drugs and some just can't use the old sniffer."

Harper said it would probably be difficult for an officer to prove his experience in recognizing smugglers, but that the profile could go a long way in helping solve the narcotics transporting in the state. "The courts should want that. In fact, we all want that," Harper said.

In its upholding of the ruling in the Johnson case, the appeals court said the government has a compelling interest in stopping drug trafficking.

The appeals court agreed that no single factor of a profile in itself is enough to provide a reasonable suspicion of criminal activity. "But, the presence of enough factors, though each one may be innocent of itself, is sufficient to make a trained observer reasonably suspicious," according to the appeals court.

Martell said the issue raised an interesting legal question, but other than just filing the paperwork with the Supreme Court he wouldn't get much of a chance to deal with its resolution. "Those of us this far down on the totem pole really don't get to answer stuff like that," he said.

Wild Card Upsets: Vikes, Oilers Victorious

Minnesota Rips Saints, 44-10

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The Minnesota Vikings, labeled a playoff interloper with no chance of surviving a trip to the Louisiana Superdome, remains alive in its quest to match the shocking feat of their baseball counterparts.

The New Orleans Saints, however, have learned that the regular season and playoffs are two vastly different things.

Minnesota brought a stunning end to New Orleans' best season Sunday with a 44-10 NFC Wild Card game rout that earned the Vikings a trip to San Francisco for a Saturday meeting in the divisional round with the Super Bowl favorite 49ers.

The Minnesota Twins surprised the baseball world two months ago by capturing the World Series and a victory over San Francisco would be a giant step for the Vikings toward pulling off the football equivalent.

"San Francisco is favored to go to the Super Bowl," said Vikings quarterback Tommy Kramer. "We're going to be the underdog. We can afford to take chances. We're not intimidated in any sense of the word."

Minnesota beat the Saints in every phase of the game, but the chief reasons for the victory could be found in two first-half plays.

An NFL playoff record 84-yard punt return by Anthony Carter with three minutes to play in the first period put the Vikings ahead for good.

Then, with Minnesota already in front 24-10, time running out in the half and the Vikings barely inside New Orleans' territory, the Vikings chose to let the clock expire without going for a touchdown.

But because the Saints had 12 men on the field on what should have been the final play of the half, the Vikings were given another chance and this time they went for the score.

From the 44-yard line, quarterback Wade Wilson lofted a "Hail Mary" pass to the goal line, where Hassan Jones tipped it and then caught it for the touchdown that quieted the Superdome crowd for good.

"That," said New Orleans coach Jim Mora, "was a real downer for our side."

The whole day, however, was a downer for the Saints, who came into the game with a nine-game winning streak and had their fans in a froth because of their first trip ever to the playoffs.

Gibbs: 'Skins Will Be Tremendous Underdogs

HERNDON, Va. (UPI) — Coach Joe Gibbs says his Washington Redskins will be "a tremendous underdog" when they face the Chicago Bears in a divisional playoff game next Sunday at Soldier Field.

The Redskins have faced the Bears in the playoffs twice in the past three seasons, with Washington winning at Chicago 27-13 last season as an underdog and Chicago winning 23-19 at RFK Stadium in 1984 as an underdog.

Gibbs said the Bears will be seeking revenge for last year's playoff ouster, when the Redskins ended Chicago's hopes of repeating as Super Bowl champions. The two teams will meet again as Minnesota thrashed New Orleans 44-10 Sunday in the NFC wild-card game. Quarterback Jay Schroeder, benched in favor of Doug Williams for Sunday's game, threw for two touchdowns and the Redskins outgained the NFL's No. 1 defense 302 yards to 220 yards in that game. Chicago started the since-traded Doug Flutie at quarterback, but Jim McMahon is expected to start this year.

"Obviously, about last year, they're going to be mad about that. We're now playing a team that has their quarterback there, which last year they didn't. There are a lot of reasons I didn't want to play Chicago — and obviously we didn't want to play the 49ers either. The Vikings did not do us a favor," Gibbs said.

Houston Nips Seattle, 23-20

HOUSTON (UPI) — Tony Zendejas had the worst and best kicks of his career Sunday.

Zendejas, who kicked two field goals in regulation but had two more bounce off the uprights, kicked a 42-yard field goal 8:05 into overtime to give the Houston Oilers a 23-20 AFC wild-card victory over the Seattle Seahawks.

"After that horrible kick, I felt like I let the whole team down," Zendejas of a 29-yard miss with 1:47 left in regulation that would have sealed the win for Houston. "I'm just grateful that I got a second chance."

"That's the shortest kick of my career that I've missed. There are no excuses. I just flat-out missed it. I knew if I had another chance, I would make it."

Zendejas, who had field goals of 47 and 49 yards and a miss of 52 in regulation, redeemed himself with the 42-yarder that capped a 61-yard, 13-play drive. The Oilers advanced to the AFC divisional playoffs against AFC West champion Denver Sunday. In the other AFC divisional playoff, Indianapolis plays at Cleveland Saturday.

"I never said a thing to him (Zendejas)," Houston Coach Jerry Glavin said. "He knew what he had to do. We could've made it easier if he had made the (29-yard) field goal, but Tony is still the best kicker in football."

Seattle forced overtime on Dave Krieg's second touchdown pass of the day to Steve Largent, a 20-yarder with 26 seconds left to cap a 10-play, 80-yard drive. The drive consumed 1:21 after Zendejas' 29-yard try hit the left upright and was no good.

Houston held Seattle on downs to open overtime, then marched downfield. Warren Moon completed three of four passes and Mike Rozier carried six times for 27 yards.

"We had a chance to make some big plays," Seattle Coach Chuck Knox said. "We were right in there, seven points away, and came back and tied it up. In overtime, we just didn't do anything with it."

Houston dodged a bullet on its winning drive when Jeff Bryant batted Moon's pass at the Oilers 37 and All-Pro linebacker Fred Young made a diving try for the interception. The Seahawks argued Young caught the ball but replay official Tony Veteri ruled the pass incomplete, allowing Houston to keep possession.

Moon then completed a pass to Drew Hill at the Seattle 41 and Rozier carried to the Seahawks 32 to put the Oilers into position for Zendejas' kick.

Raiders Entertain UCF JV

By Mark Blythe
Herald Sports Writer

A continuous improvement from now to the Mid-Florida Conference tournament is what Seminole Community College mens basketball coach Bill Payne hopes to accomplish in the second half of the season.

The Raiders, 9-5 and 1-1 in the MFC, will return to action tonight against the University of Central Florida's junior varsity squad at 6:00 at the SCC Health Center. The Lady Raiders will play Patrick Air Force Base directly after the mens game.

"We did all right in the first half of the season," Payne said. "We didn't do anything spectacular, but we held our own."

Payne will hope his team can come together in the latter half with more players contributing points. Seminole has been led by sophomore shooting guard Malcolm Houston and sophomore center Barry Dunning so far this season.

"We're going to need to get more people involved with the offense and scoring points," Payne said. "We'll need to share the ball much more on offense."

Houston and Dunning have been the two solid scorers thus far with help coming from Vince Emerson who will be starting for the first time tonight.

Emerson, a 6-5 freshman, has come on strong lately for the Raiders. Emerson will be filling the small forward position, the third player to be starting in that position this year for Seminole.

Point guard Holly Keller will be back running the SCC offense, the 6-4 sophomore now has enough experience to control the games tempo. The Raiders will also receive help from power forward Robert Williams. Williams has been a dominating rebounder for the Raiders all season long.

In tonight's matchup Payne is not sure what to expect as he knows nothing about the UCF JV team. The Raiders have also been idle since Dec. 12, when they played in the finals of the Brevard Christmas tournament.

"I feel if we come out and play our game we'll be alright," Payne said. "I don't know anything about the team we're playing but know we'll be a little rusty at the beginning of the game."

The Raiders will play three games this week with two of those teams already having a victory over them so far this season.

On Wednesday Seminole will host Indian River Community College with Palm Beach Junior

WOMENS BASKETBALL: Patrick Air Force Base at Seminole Community College (7:30 p.m.)

College coming in on Saturday, both games will begin at 7:30 in the SCC Health Center.

"Both those teams beat us on the road and are very good," Payne said. "We're hoping we can do a little better against them at home."

"We just want to keep improving till the tournament," Payne said. "There is no way we'll win the conference so we want to be ready late in the year."

Seminole went to the state semi-finals a season ago and will put its hopes of returning with its performance in the post season tournament.

"If we play to our capabilities we'll be all right," added Payne. "We're playing with the tournament on our minds and just want to keep getting better with each performance."

SCC WOMEN HOST PAFB

The Lady Raiders, 1-1, dropped four wins due to ineligible players will return to action tonight in hopes of its second win over Patrick.

Lady Raider coach Illeana Gallagher found out about the ineligible players over the break just before her team traveled to Miami for a pair of games. "We had a couple of players drop some classes without telling me," Gallagher said. "The rest of us are pulling together and hope to get on track real soon."

Tammy Johnson and Cathy Cleveland have provided most of the offense for the Lady Raiders so far this season. Johnson, a graduate of Lake Howell, was named as a Junior College all-American in her freshman season at SCC.

LADY LIONS HOST OSCEOLA

Oviedo High's girls basketball team, off to one of its best starts in some time, will look to keep its good fortune going tonight when it hosts Kissimmee Osceola's Kowgirls.

Oviedo, 5-3 on the season, is led by forwards Suzanne Hughes and Bobbie Kelley, center Bridget Jenerette and guards Jodie Switzer and Adrienne Wood.

Ruling Upsets Young

HOUSTON (UPI) — Red-eyed linebacker Fred Young sat in the Seattle locker room, unwrapped the tape from his ribs and shook his head.

Young was upset about a ruling by replay official Tony Veteri, who decided that a pass Young claimed he intercepted in overtime was incomplete. The Houston Oilers held the ball, and drove to the winning field goal in a 23-20 AFC wild-card victory over the Seahawks.

"I know I had it," Young said. "We had a tipped ball. I had it clean. No doubt, I had both hands under the ball. Both hands. One official said it was good, and one said it wasn't. If it was good, we can kick a field goal and win the game. I'm disappointed but I couldn't help but to catch it. It was right there."

"I'm disgusted. Season's over. Wait until next year. Nothing you can do about it now."

Referee Bob McElwee explained how the incomplete call was made.

"The ruling was incomplete," McElwee said. "I am the referee, but I did not make the call. One of my men made the call. One who was looking in at the play called incomplete. Replay confirmed the incomplete by review and so we proceeded with an incomplete pass."

"(I) was downfield about five, six yards looking straight across into the play made the call," head linesman Dale Hamer said. "I thought that the ball, the ground, and the hands all came together at the same time. It's an incomplete pass."

Veteri said the view of the play was obstructed, causing an inconclusive ruling.

"We could not tell whether the ball hit or not so we had to go with the call on the field," Veteri said. "We did not get a clear cut view whether he (Young) caught the ball before it hit the ground. Part of his arm covered up the ball. So we had to go with the call on the field."

Seattle cornerback Melvin Jenkins was in pass coverage a short distance away.

"He (Young) caught the ball from the angle I had," said Jenkins, who intercepted a Moon pass in the first quarter and returned it 28 yards to set up Seattle's first touchdown. "When they took it away from us, we were really deflated."

Seattle Coach Chuck Knox would not elaborate on the officials' ruling.

"We just have to go with what they (officials) say," Knox said. "But we couldn't control the ball. Time of possession had to be two-to-one. They executed and made the big plays and we didn't."

Pete McNally, Lake Mary

McNally, Lake Mary's senior goalkeeper, put on a spectacular display during the Pizza Hut Invitational. McNally had a shutout against previously No. 1 ranked Tampa Leto and allowed only one goal to powerhouses Miami Killian and Lyman. McNally also saved a pair of penalty kicks in a shootout against Lyman. McNally was later selected the tournament's Most Valuable Defensive Player. Lake Mary finished second, losing to Tallahassee Leon in a shootout in the finals.

Also receiving votes — Lake Mary defenders Scott Schmitt, Rod Butering and James Noble. The Rams allowed only four goals in four games and all four games were against teams ranked in the top five in the state. Schmitt and Butering, both seniors, were named to the All-Tournament team. Noble, despite playing with a sprained knee, had a tremendous tournament as he marked out some of the state's best offensive players. Lake Mary forwards Jon Brooks and Manny Roldan Brooks, a junior, scored three goals in the last two games of the tourney including the tying and winning scores against Miami Killian. Roldan, also a junior, scored the winning goal against Leto and also scored the tournament's fastest goal ever, 32 seconds into the game against Leto. Lyman's Shaler Bowers and Kelly Walden Bowers, a senior sweeperback, was a dominant player for the Greyhounds in the tourney as he played his usual sound defense and also contributed to the offensive attack.

Miami No. 1, FSU No. 2

First Time Schools In Same State Finished 1-2

Football

NEW YORK (UPI) — Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden refused to question himself three months after making a decision that cost his team a chance at the national title.

Bowden found out Sunday what he expected — Miami had earned the 1987 United Press International national championship unanimously, and what he hoped — Florida State had ended ranked No. 2.

The Miami-Florida State finish marked the first time in the history of the UPI ratings that teams from one state were ranked 1-2 in the final poll.

Oklahoma finished No. 3. Miami, then ranked No. 2, defeated the top-ranked Sooners 20-14 in Friday night's Orange Bowl to gain the national title. Miami was selected No. 1 on all 47 ballots cast by UPI's Board of Coaches, securing its second national title in five years.

The final scenario was aided Oct. 3 when Miami scored its narrowest victory of an undefeated season, edging Florida State 26-25. The Seminoles, whose only loss came in that game, led 19-3 with 16 minutes left. But Steve Walsh fired three touchdown passes to send Miami ahead 26-19.

The Seminoles, who dominated the game statistically, got a touchdown with 42 seconds remaining. Kicker Derek Schmidt had missed an extra point and failed on two second-half field goals, leading Bowden to go for two points instead of the extra point and tie.

Miami's Bubba McDowell knocked down the two-point pass from Danny McManis. If that game ended tied, the Seminoles would have been in as strong a position to play Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl as Miami.

"I have never really sat back and thought about that day and regretted what we tried," said Bowden when reached Sunday and informed of his team's final ranking. "The loss bothers me, but not the progression of events that led to the loss. After that we put it in others' hands for us to win a national title."

"This is our highest national ranking to finish a season ever," added Bowden, whose team beat Nebraska 31-28 in the Fiesta Bowl. "The fact we played Miami so well and probably should have beaten them makes us feel we can beat anybody in the country. It would be hard to convince ourselves of that if we were No. 3."

The Hurricanes, criticized for numerous problems including

NFC Title Game 56 Years Old

By John Grabowski

The first NFL championship game was more an afterthought than anything else.

In 1932, the last year of one-division play in the NFL, the Chicago Bears and Portsmouth Spartans (forerunners of the Detroit Lions) tied for first place in the eight-team league. A playoff game would determine the undisputed champion.

In a contest played indoors at Chicago Stadium, the Bears shut out the Spartans, 9-0.

This season marks the 56th contest for the NFC championship, a heading under which the NFL officially records its 1932-69 title games.

●The New York Giants have made more appearances (15) in the NFC championship game than any other team. Unfortunately for Giant fans, the New Yorkers have lost 11 of those contests, for a .267 winning percentage.

Only the Tampa Bay Buccaneers have a lower NFC percentage, having lost their only appearance in 1979. Before this season, New Orleans and Atlanta were the only clubs yet to appear.

●The dearth of NFC title outings for the Buca, Falcons and Saints is understandable given their status as "expansion" teams.

Harder to explain, though, are the two appearances of the St. Louis Cardinals. Cardinal fans have not seen their club in the big game since 1948 when the then-Chicago franchise was blanked, 7-0, by the Eagles.

●With the Giants excluded, 1987 will mark the fifth straight year with a new NFC champion. If the Redskins come out on top, it will mark the third time in five years that the loser of the NFC championship game has gone on to win the following season. A year prior to their title victories, the 49ers (NFC champ in 1984) and Bears (NFC champ in 1985) lost, respectively, to Washington and San Francisco.

●Nearly one of every four NFC title games (13 of 55, or 23.6 percent) has been a shutout, including the last three. The 49ers defeated the Bears 23-0 for the 1984 crown, the Bears blanked the Rams 24-0 for the 1985 championship, and the Giants whitewashed Washington 17-0 last season. Each of those NFC champs went on to score decisive triumphs in the Super Bowl.

●Although the Giants have played in the most NFC title games, their rate of appearances (15 in 55 years, for 27.3 percent) isn't tops. The Dallas Cowboys have taken part in 12 games in their 27 years in the league for a mark of 44.4 percent. The New Yorkers' percentage was hurt by the 22-year drought from 1964 to 1985.

●Each decade up to the 1980s has seen one team lead in NFC title appearances. The Giants made five in the 1930s, the Bears five in the 1940s, the Browns seven in the 1950s, the Packers six in the 1960s, and the Cowboys seven in the 1970s. Before this season, San Francisco, Washington and Dallas had each appeared three times in the 1980s.

●An excellent indicator of the increasing popularity of NFL football over the years is the average attendance by decades at NFC championship games. It has increased from 26,634 (in the 1930s) to 35,129 (1940s) to 55,613 (1950s) to 59,729 (1960s) to 63,348 (1970s) to 63,818 (1980s).

●Three NFC championship games have been decided by a single point. The Cleveland Rams defeated Washington, 15-14, in 1945; the Lions beat the Browns, 17-16, in 1953; and the 49ers edged the Cowboys, 28-27, in 1981. The largest winning margin was 73 points in 1940 when the Bears beat the Redskins, 73-0.

Red Grange shows the way it was in the early day of the NFL.

Warner's Absence Aids Oilers

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston Coach Jerry Glanville's plan to keep the Seattle offense off the field in Sunday's AFC wild-card playoff was made easier by the absence of injured Seahawks running back Curt Warner.

The Houston offense used a balanced ball-control attack to stay on the field more than twice as long as the Seahawks, whose running game was decimated without Warner.

Warner finished second in the AFC in rushing with 985 yards but was relegated to a spectator's role Sunday because of a sprained ankle.

The Oilers pulled out a 23-20 overtime victory Sunday to advance into the AFC divisional playoff next weekend in Denver.

"Our ball control was important today," Glanville said. "It really made their offense stand on the sidelines and watch, and with guys like (Dave) Krieg and (Steve) Largent, that's where you want them."

The Oilers held the ball for 47:44 to 20:21

Football

for Seattle.

"We couldn't control the ball, and our defense was on the field a long time," Knox said. "The time of possession was astronomical."

The Seahawks could not compensate for Warner's absence. His replacement, John L. Williams, rushed for 27 yards on seven carries. Randall Morris carried four times for 2 yards.

Houston countered with a 178-yard rushing performance, led by Altonzo Highsmith's 74 yards.

"We tried to move John L. over to fill Curt's shoes, but this is a team game," said Largent, who caught two touchdown passes, including a 12-yarder with 26 seconds left in regulation to tie the score.

"We just didn't move the ball effectively. We had a chance to win the game. That would have been a grave injustice to the way the Oilers played. We were fortunate to be in a position to tie it."

Houston quarterback Warren Moon threw for 273 yards, completing 21 of 32 attempts. Krieg, forced to go almost exclusively to the air, completed 16 of 38 for 237 yards. Houston's defense was effective except for one series.

Seattle took over at its 20 after a missed Houston field goal with 1:47 left in regulation. Glanville stuck with Houston's man-to-man defense, but Krieg was able to move the Seahawks downfield for the tying touchdown to send the game into overtime.

"We were in our 'man rat' defense and we probably should have been in a zone," Glanville said. "We had taken away everything that they do offensively but using the bump and run for 59 minutes. I didn't want to change defenses for the last minute. "Now you see why they have prevent defenses."

The Oilers held the ball for 47:44, running 84 plays for 437 yards to Seattle's 52 plays for 250 yards.

Houston scored in regulation when Rozier scrambled the width of the field for a 1-yard touchdown and Moon threw a 29-yard scoring strike to Willie Drewrey, Drewrey's first NFL touchdown in three seasons.

Krieg threw touchdown passes of 20 and 12 yards to Largent, and Norm Johnson kicked field goals of 33 and 41 yards for the Seahawks.

On Seattle's final drive in regulation, Krieg completed a 10-yard pass to Largent on fourth down from the 30 and hit the veteran receiver for the tying touchdown.

The Seahawks played without injured running back Curt Warner, the AFC's second-leading rusher with 985 yards. Warner suffered a sprained ankle in the final game of the regular season and was replaced by John L. Williams, who led the Seahawks on the ground with 27 yards on seven carries.

Houston, in the playoffs for the first time since 1980, was led on the ground by rookie Altonzo Highsmith, who had 74 yards on 12 carries.

The game was the first AFC wild-card game to go into overtime since the NFL began matching two wild-card teams in each conference in 1978.

Houston led 13-10 at halftime, but Bobby Joe Edmonds had a 12-yard punt return to the Houston 39 on the Seahawks' opening drive of the third period to set up a tying 41-yard field goal by Johnson.

Moon marched the Oilers from their 16 to the Seattle 29, where he threw a long, high pass to the back of the end zone. Drewrey made the catch between three defenders with 2:34 left to give Houston a 20-13 lead.

The Oilers dominated the first half but led only 13-10 at halftime because of an interception and a special teams breakdown.

Moon Riddles Seahawks' Secondary

HOUSTON (UPI) — After throwing an interception on his first pass, Warren Moon gave his teammates an example to follow Sunday in the Houston Oilers' first playoff game in seven years.

Moon, much-maligned in Houston before this season, gave the Seahawks no other gifts and riddled the Seattle secondary for 273 yards passing and a touchdown in a 23-20 overtime victory in the wild-card game.

"I tried to throw the ball deep early just to show them," said Moon, who played in the Canadian Football League before joining Houston in 1984. "I was really concentrating. I was in this game as much as any since I've been here."

Moon used the Oilers' Red Formation — four wide receivers — to give the Oilers a 20-13 lead with 12:26 left in the third quarter. Wide receiver Willie Drewrey caught his first touchdown pass, a 29-yard pass, on the play. "This offense we are running now is wide open," Drewrey said. "Warren has four wide receivers to look at and he can see the defenses better."

However, Houston's young secondary allowed Seattle's Dave Krieg to direct an 80-yard drive to tie the score 20-20 and force overtime.

"They were pushing off on us and hitting the deep routes," Houston cornerback Patrick Allen said. "Being a young team, our hearts quank when they scored. We suggested we change defenses after the score and we went to the zone. That worked."

Moon, who completed 21 of 32 passes, brought Houston 61 yards to allow Tony Zendejas to kick the winning field goal 8:05 into overtime. The Oilers credited Moon's leadership with their success in overtime.

"I looked in his eyes and he was very determined at the start of the overtime drive," rookie running back Altonzo Highsmith said. "Warren did a great job. He just said, 'hold on to the ball, let's do it.'"

"That last drive couldn't have been executed any better," Oilers Coach Jerry Glanville said.

The Oilers were successful on 10 of 18 third downs, compared to Seattle's 2 of 12. Houston held the ball for 47 minutes and 44 seconds, while the Seahawks' time of possession was 20:21.

Moon completed three passes before the Oilers went to the running game to get Zendejas into position to redeem himself for a missed 29-yard kick with less than two minutes remaining that would have put the Oilers up 23-10.

"It was kind of a sigh of relief because we've been under the gun around here for quite some time," said Miami Coach Jimmy Johnson, who failed in the two previous years to win a Jan. 1 game with national-title implications. "Winning the national championship is even more satisfying than what it normally might be because we've come so close."

Miami, which ended with Division I-A's only perfect record at 12-0, totaled 705 points. The Seminoles, 11-1, got 648 points. Oklahoma, which had 595 points, has lost just one game in each of the last three seasons — all to Miami.

Syracuse, 11-0-1, stayed at No.

4 following a controversial 16-16 Sugar Bowl deadlock with Auburn. Tigers Coach Pat Dye decided for a tying field goal in the final seconds instead of going for a winning touchdown. That move greatly disturbed Orange men Coach Dick MacPherson.

No. 5 Louisiana State, 10-1-1, climbed two notches with a 30-13 Gator Bowl rout of South Carolina. No. 6 Nebraska, 10-2, slid a spot, but reached the final Top 10 for the 14th straight year and the Top 20 for the 19th time in a row.

No. 7 Auburn, 9-1-2, dropped a place and Michigan State remained at No. 8 following its 20-17 Rose Bowl decision over Southern Cal. No. 9 Texas A&M soared four places with its 35-10 thrashing of Notre Dame. No. 10 Clemson, 10-2, jumped two spots after a 35-10 Florida Citrus Bowl drubbing of Penn State.

No. 11 UCLA, 10-2, slipped a notch despite a 20-16 Aloha decision over Florida and No. 12

Oklahoma State, 10-2, also sank a spot even with a 35-33 Sun victory over West Virginia.

No. 13 Tennessee, 10-2-1, powered three positions with a 27-22 Peach triumph over Indiana. No. 14 Georgia, 9-3, inched a spot with a 20-17 Liberty win against Arkansas. Tied at No. 15 were South Carolina, 8-4, and Iowa, 10-3, which edged Wyoming 20-19 in the Holiday.

Southern Cal. 8-4, was No. 17 and Michigan, 8-4, entered the rankings at No. 18 with a 28-24 Hall of Fame victory over Alabama. No. 19 Texas, 7-5, joined the rankings for the first time this season with a 32-27 Bluebonnet decision against Pittsburgh. Indiana, 8-4, held at No. 20.

Notre Dame, Penn State and Pittsburgh fell from the Top 20. The coaches each vote for 15 teams with points based on 15 points for first place, 14 for second, etc.

MIAMI CELEBRATES

MIAMI (UPI) — The Hurricane booster club honored Miami's national championship football team Saturday night prior to the Miami-Georgetown basketball game.

Students and boosters packed the James L. Knight Center and overflowed into the lower level Hyatt Regency to celebrate Miami's 20-14 victory over the University of Oklahoma in Friday's Orange Bowl.

Defensive end Derwin Jones and quarterback Steve Walsh were among those players present, along with Miami Athletic Director Sam Jankovitch. The team was also honored at halftime. The Orange Bowl trophy was shown off as was the UPI-Garrett's National Championship trophy.

The UPI trophy was being displayed in anticipation of being voted No. 1 in the UPI coaches poll. The official results will be determined Sunday after balloting is completed.

The Hurricanes lost to Georgetown 82-78 before a record crowd of 5,023.

Minnesota outgained New Orleans, 417 yards to 149. New Orleans turned the ball over six times. The Vikings controlled the ball for 41 minutes and 18 seconds. Saints' running back Rueben Mayes suffered a knee injury in the first half and didn't return. Carter caught six passes for 79 yards and returned six punts for 143 yards.

"We did not play well in any area today," Mora said. "I don't know how many areas our team didn't get whipped in."

"But this team (New Orleans) went a lot farther than anyone would have thought by a long shot. We are disappointed. But the players have nothing to be ashamed of. They can leave here with their heads held high."

Minnesota lost three of its last four regular season games, finished at 8-7 and had to have a Dallas win over St. Louis on Dec. 27 to get into the playoffs.

"We had a lot of negativism displayed by the Minnesota fans in letters and remarks in the media," Carter said. "This playoff game gave us the emotion to prove the fans and media wrong. Anytime you get by the first game in a playoff situation, you've got to feel good."

Kramer fumbled the snap on the game's second play, leading to a 10-yard touchdown pass from New Orleans quarterback to Eric Martin. Saints fans had no further opportunities to cheer.

Chuck Nelson kicked a 42-yard field goal for the Vikings midway through the first period and Carter then put Minnesota ahead with his punt return.

Wilson, who came in to replace Kramer after two Minnesota possessions, threw a 5-yard scoring pass to tight end Steve Jordan early in the second quarter. Carter caught a halfback pass from Allen Rice for a 10-yard score and Wilson hit Jones with their shocker just before the half.

The Vikings added second-half field goals of 32 and 19 yards by Nelson and D.J. Dozier ran 8 yards for a touchdown with 1:46 to play.

The NFC East champion Redskins, 11-4, face the NFC Central champion Bears, also 11-4, at 12:30 p.m. EST Sunday. Chicago hosts the game because of a better record against conference opponents.

"I'm sure we're going in this year as a tremendous underdog. Nobody's going to look at that any differently," Gibbs said.

While the Bears experienced what is widely regarded as a down season, Gibbs said he sees nothing wrong with his playoff foe other than too lofty expectations.

"Sometimes it's a real unrealistic approach to think that a team is going to win every game. They won a lot of ball games and they're a super football team. In my opinion," Gibbs added, "I don't know of a weakness."

Gibbs said he is preparing under the assumption that Jim McMahon will start at quarterback. McMahon, an inspirational leader for the Bears, missed the final three games of the season with a hamstring injury suffered against Minnesota.

"The mark of great quarterbacks is to make the most out of something when something's not there and he seems to be a great playmaker. He's been that way since he was in college. I think that he is one of those rare guys that can make good things happen when there's not a lot there. He just seems to be a winner," Gibbs said.

The game will pit Chicago's defense, ranked No. 2 in the NFL, against Washington's offense, ranked No. 3.

"I think you've just got to try to be balanced and take whatever shot you can get when you can," Gibbs said. "It's kind of what we did last year. You're hoping that you're going to play a great football game. That's probably what it's going to take."

Gibbs, whose team has been idle for a week, prepared for both the 49ers and the Bears — but more for the 49ers.

"We spent more time on the 49ers because we were going to have one extra day if we played the Bears. But we did a lot of work on both teams and I'm glad we took that approach. I've tried to guess at other times in the past and I've normally been wrong and I would have been wrong on this one," Gibbs said.

Gibbs announced last Wednesday that Williams would start over Schroeder. Three-time Pro Bowl wide receiver Art Monk is a question mark with a knee injury and Gibbs is choosing this week between kickers Ali Haji-Sheikh and Jess Atkinson, who are locked in a kicking competition.

Without their top inside scorer, the Portland Trail Blazers were left without an outside game.

On the strength of a game-high 31 points from Byron Scott, the Los Angeles Lakers pounded the Blazers 98-81 Sunday night.

Portland played without center Steve Johnson, sidelined with bone spurs in the ankle. Also out for the Blazers was forward Kiki Vandeweghe, suffering from a back ailment. Without the duo, the Lakers were able to concentrate on stopping the Blazers' outside shooters.

"We caught them without a post game," Lakers Coach Pat Riley said. "With Steve Johnson out and Kiki not available, it left them with few offensive options."

Said Portland Coach Mike Schuler: "We could not establish an inside game and we tried to live by the perimeter jump shot."

Wife's Inner Beauty Triumphs Over The Ravages Of Disease

DEAR ABBY: I noticed with sadness the letter from "Half a Woman." She should know that any truly caring man would not be put off after learning of her mastectomy.

At the ripe old age of 32, my wife was diagnosed with metastatic breast cancer. Both breasts were removed. In the next five and a half years, she had extensive chemotherapy and radium treatments, numerous surgeries (including total hysterectomy), and finally ended up in a wheelchair.

After her death, I was left with her memory and three children (12, 8 and 6) to help heal my pain.

However, not once during all those years of her trauma did I ever consider her less than the most remarkable, beautiful, loving person that she had always been. Not once did anyone who knew her consider her as less than a whole woman.

I did not marry her breasts or any other part of her anatomy; I married her, what she was at any given point in time—her personality, her essence, if you will.

"Half a Woman" should understand that the physical "problem" is hers, in her mind, and should really be no problem at all. If I could find any woman who is half the person my wife was will, no breasts, I would never let her go! Sign me.

Dear Abby

STILL LOVING AND STILL LOOKING
DEAR STILL: You appear to be a very special man who deserves to find another high-quality woman. I hope with all my heart you do.

DEAR ABBY: I recently went on a short trip and asked a good friend and neighbor to water my plants. Naturally, I gave her a key to my house. When I returned from my trip, someone told me that in my absence, this friend had taken several people through my house on a "Cook's tour," made coffee and entertained them in my home!

Needless to say, I feel disappointed and betrayed that my "friend" would invade my privacy in this manner.

Am I being too sensitive about this unscheduled "tour"?

BETRAYED

DEAR BETRAYED: At the appropriate time, I would tell my friend what I had heard, and give her a chance to confirm or deny the story. It is unfair to silently buy a tale without giving the accused an opportunity to defend herself—or at least explain the circumstances.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter about the mother-in-law who complained about her 30-year-old daughter-in-law who puts her two small children down to nap while she watches the soaps for two hours.

I also have a 30-year-old daughter-in-law with two small children. She never watches soaps or anything else. She also never puts her children down for a nap; instead she gets up in the morning and heads for the mirror. She has a beautiful face and she knows it. She thrives on constant attention wherever she can get it. So off she goes every day with the two little ones in the car. She runs to tennis lessons, clubs and wanders through stores and malls shopping, dragging her tired, sleepy children with her.

On weekends the kids get a nap while my wimp son baby-sits so his wife can run and shop some more!

What I wouldn't give for a daughter-in-law who would stay home and watch the soaps every afternoon while her little ones nap!

'Sensuous Woman' Author, 50, Is Thinking About Marriage

By Laura L. Myers
PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — A woman known as "J" when she wrote the shocking 1970 blockbuster "The Sensuous Woman," is, at 50, single, childless and an early-morning radio talk show host thinking about marriage.

Terry Joan Garrity, author of the book billed on its jacket as "The first HOW-TO book for the female who yearns to be ALL woman," has never married, and turns 51 in January.

Garrity claims the book was the first sexual manual encouraging women to experience orgasms, published after sex therapists Masters and Johnson wrote their more clinical "The Human Sexual Response" in 1967.

The book was written on a publisher's whim, after Garrity authored a bargain basement guide to New York City and was working as a publicist there.

"I tried to think like Doris Day," Garrity says, recalling her life as a 33-year-old writing the sexual shocker.

Describing herself 17 years ago, "J" wrote: "The author of this book is not particularly pretty. Men never notice her in a crowd or whistle at her when she walks down the street. Yet some of the world's most exciting males consider her to be sexy."

A chapter on masturbation caused the most "str," she recalls. According to the book, "To awaken your body and make it perform well, you must train like an athlete for the act of love."

"The whipped cream wriggle," a title she gave to one sex technique, became so popular that male fans often mobbed her to autograph cans of the caloric treat.

The manual encouraged women to "drive a man to ecstasy" and to explore their own sexual appetites.

"It was just like a cookbook," she says. "A way for women to achieve sexual fulfillment. In those days, women wanted to have orgasms and never knew how."

Garrity interviewed scores of women, men and gynecologists. "I patterned it after new sex therapy techniques," Garrity recalls. "I put it in the first person so it could be cozy. And I wrote it in very simple language, so all women could understand it."

She succeeded — by capturing 13 million readers and earning $1 million from its first year in print.

Many Remember 'The Wreck'

By Steven Glasberg
 CHASE, Md. (UPI) — Robert Booker says the bloody images he still carries with him of dead and dying people from the worst train disaster in Amtrak history one year ago "will play with my mind for the rest of my life."
 "I had a guy die right in front of me," recalled Booker, 19, a resident of this rural waterfront community near Baltimore who helped get the dead and injured off the train after the wreck. "That's pretty tough stuff to forget."

Last Jan. 4, a speeding Boston-bound Amtrak passenger train with more than 600 holiday travelers aboard slammed into a string of three Conrail freight locomotives that had mistakenly crossed into its path.

Sixteen people died and more than 175 were injured in the bloody wreck that made the 14-car Amtrak train resemble an accordion-like carpenter's rule. The train's cafe car was reduced to a 1-foot-high piece of mangled metal. Several other fire-filled cars spilled over into a wooded trackside ditch.
 "The crash sounded like a volcano," recalled Nancy Tharpe, who treated many of the injured at her nearby house. "The screaming, the hollering, the smoke — it is something I will never leave."

The engineer of Conrail No. 5044, Ricky Gates, is accused of ignoring several trackside signals alerting him to stop the train. He faces 16 counts of manslaughter by locomotive and is scheduled to go to trial in Baltimore County Circuit Court next month.

Gates, 34, tested positive for marijuana in toxicology tests following the accident. His brakeman, Edward Cromwell, reportedly testified before a grand jury that he had smoked the drug with Gates shortly before the accident. He is expected to be the prosecution's key witness during the trial.

Residents of Chase, a tiny peninsula about 15 miles northeast of Baltimore, would like to forget the disaster even though it pushed them into the limelight. Several hundred Chase residents were honored by President Reagan at the White House for their help in the wreck's grisly aftermath.

 "People here don't like to discuss the wreck," said Cathi Fischer, whose trackside home was turned into a police and media center following the 1:34 p.m. accident. "It just hit home too closely for us. We dream of it happening again, but we pray it won't."

Amtrak's Colonial No. 94, minutes out of Baltimore's Penn Station, was traveling at 128 mph when it rammed into Gates's stationary locomotives. The Conrail engineer had tried in vain to reverse his train seconds before realizing he had crossed into the path of the Amtrak but it was too late.

Booker, the first of several Chase residents to brave the bitter cold and help people out of the tangled wreckage, is haunted by thoughts that he could have done something more to save the victims.
 "One man was screaming 'God get me out of here,'" said Booker. "He was on fire and he didn't even know it. There he was stuck between two pieces of steel and he died — just stopped talking. I have nightmares over and over about that. Could I have done something more? Probably not. But I'll never stop thinking I could have."

And, Booker said, "I imagine this will play with my mind for the rest of my life."
 Dr. Roger Horn, a professor at Johns Hopkins University, tries to hide his bitterness against Gates, against Conrail and against Congress. Horn's daughter, Ceres, 18, a Princeton University honors student, died in the wreck.
 "My family and I are trying very hard not to let bitterness be the operative emotion," said Horn, who has since carefully tracked every piece of rail safety legislation through Congress. "We are trying to dwell on the positive."

Horn blames Conrail for not voluntarily installing automatic train controls on its trains, which would have stopped Gates's locomotives when he passed the first wayside signal alerting him to slow down.

The mathematics professor also blames Congress for its slow-motion pace in passing rail safety legislation. One year after the accident, bills that range from drug-testing for all rail employees to the mandatory installation of automatic braking devices along the heavily traveled Northeast Corridor remain stalled.

"I think everyone understands what happened in the Conrail train," Horn said of Gates's alleged drug-smoking. "It was so irresponsible, causing so much pain to indulge your personal pleasure. But it's a shame Ricky Gates is going to go down himself for this. This horror could have been avoided."

Horn said his daughter aspired to be an astronaut. "There isn't an hour that goes by where I don't think of her. It is so, so deeply hard to think, even to this day, she will not be a part of us anymore."

Koch Makes Murdoch Plea

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mayor Edward Koch is asking Congress to repeal a law passed "in the dead of night" that would force publisher Rupert Murdoch to sell off either his newspapers or his television stations in New York and Boston.

Murdoch has been trying to build his Fox Television Network and likely would sell the newspapers to comply with the law, which was proposed by Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., approved by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and quietly attached to the massive 1988 spending bill Congress passed last week.

"They did it in the dead of night without alerting their colleagues who became unwitting collaborators," said Koch, a former New York congressman.

The mayor Sunday said the congressional action chips away at the First Amendment and freedom of the press.
 "What Senators Kennedy and Hollings have done rivals the worst in a totalitarian country that still professes to have a parliamentary structure," Koch said.

Better See Specialist On Child's Ailment

DEAR DR. GOTT - My 7-year-old daughter has Henoch-Schonlein purpura. She has had well over 12 episodes. She complains of stomach pains before, during and after the rash, which lasts four to five days. I was told the episodes only occur once or twice, but hers have been recurring for two years. What do you recommend?

month, even in women past the childbearing years. For reasons that are unclear, some women with fibrocystic disease seem to be at higher risk for developing breast cancer. Continue to check with your doctor and follow his or her advice about how best to keep an eye on your breast-problem.

DEAR READER - I recommend that she see a pediatrician who specializes in allergic diseases of children. Henoch-Schonlein purpura is a short-term allergic disorder of blood vessels, marked by wet skin sores and bleeding into internal organs. The doctor will want to identify the factor in your daughter's body (or environment) that is triggering the sequence of allergic reactions.

What are the benefits of VITAMIN E? Dr. Gott's new

DEAR DR. GOTT - My mother, two sisters and brother died from cancer. Naturally, I'm concerned about my health. I'm 72. Recently one of my breasts started aching. A mammogram showed no cancer, but "fibroid changes." Will this problem go away?

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

South was lucky in that he and his partner had agreed that the way to show a weak responding hand with a long minor suit after partner's opening one no-trump was to first bid two clubs and then bid three of the minor. That was perfect for today's South cards. If two clubs had elicited a heart bid from North, South would have passed. When North bid spades, South signed off in three diamonds, ending the auction.

Although there is no way to defeat the contract, look how declarer carelessly threw a trick away. He took dummy's two high spades immediately, shedding clubs. Next came a low club back to his ace, followed by the 10 of diamonds. When West played low, declarer put in dummy's queen. East took the king, played K-Q of hearts and then returned a low spade. Declarer ruffed with the nine of diamonds and was overruled by West's jack. Although there were no more tricks for the defense, declarer's play was pointless.

With all the time in the world, South should play low on the opening spade lead and ruff it. Then a diamond to dummy's queen is relatively safe. Even if East wins the king alone, it is not likely that he will now be able to give partner a spade ruff. It was only the unfavorable vulnerability that had kept East from bidding his seven-card spade suit, but with an eight-card suit, even a milquetoast would have overcalled. Declarer will thus be able to play the diamond ace, dropping the jack, and then play A-K of spades to rid himself of two losing clubs.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

By Bernice Bede Ouel
YOUR BIRTHDAY
JANUARY 5, 1988

In the year ahead you should be able to finalize an enterprise you've had trouble getting off the ground. Once you get it working correctly, it will be very worthwhile.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Trade on the business acumen of an experienced associate today. The outlook for a joint endeavor with this person appears promising, provided he/she lays out the guidelines. Major changes are ahead for Capricorns in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Diplomacy and tact are your two most effective tools for advancing personal interests today. Use smiles and thank-yous as often as possible.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Weather permitting, try to participate in some form of outside activity today that is both physical and fun. It doesn't have to be too strenuous.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Recreational breaks are important at this time, even though it's early in the week. Try to participate in some type of inexpensive, fun activity.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A substantial portion of your time today might be spent looking out for the needs of others. However, you'll do this of your own volition.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The aspects indicate you might come up with a brilliant concept today. Since you're also a capable promoter, you'll have the combination that can spell success.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your inclinations to use your resources will be rather pronounced today. Enjoy your spending spree, but just be sure that what you buy will also provide pleasure for others.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It looks like center stage will be reserved for you today. Your showmanship qualities will be evident and what you do will be favorably received by your audience.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Function as the power behind the throne today. You'll accomplish more by implanting your suggestions in the minds of associates and letting them think the ideas are theirs.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Group endeavors are the ones you are apt to find the most enjoyable today. Don't do something with one or two pals that's designed for a larger crowd.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Success is likely today because you will take pride in your achievements. Others will also admire your efforts and their praise will enhance your image.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll be easily aroused to a righteous defense of what you believe in today. This is because the philosophy by which you live is worth defending.
