Proposal: Transfers OK if racial balance remains

By VICKI DeSOMMIER

SANFORD — Tired of the process of having parents give volumes of documentation for wanting to transfer their students from one school to another, the school district has proposed a one rule policy. Superintendent Paul Hagerty said. Students may transfer to any school they choose so long as they do not leave behind a racially imbalanced school.

What it amounts to is people all over the county can go where they want, but Sanford people can't," said Linda Johnson.

Johnson, who along with a group of other parents rented an apartment in Lake Mary so her children could attend Greenwood Lakes Middle School rather than Sanford Middle where she said they were unsafe, believes the current policy has not been administered fairly.

Hotel managers air safety policies

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Finding ways to attract more tourists to Seminole County, to increase hotel occupancy rates while providing a safe, secure environment for the visitors were discussed Tuesday at a meeting of hotel general managers.

A series of security seminars in several Florida cities sponsored by the American Automobile Association also began in Jacksonville yesterday.

Sanford Super 8 motel manager, Dick Cartwright said security was discussed in some detail at the local meeting and most hotel and motel operators are taking steps to become more aware of security. The local meeting was at the Longwood Quality Inn.

Although he has been manager of the motel near Interstate 4 for only two months, Cartwright has nearly 30 years experience in the hotel management field.

"In Sanford and most of Seminole County," Cartwright said, "we don't seem to have the problems that are throughout the rest of Florida. We're sort of unusual here," he added, speaking about the Super 8 motel "because both the manager and assistant manager live on the property. We are always out walking around and are aware of what is going on."

Security tips outlined in the Jacksonville seminar such as employees checking that locks and deadbolts, smoke alarms, and sliding door locks are working are already in place, at some local motels, including Super 8 and the Holiday Inn at the I-4 interchange.

Rick Elliott, the new I-4 Holiday Inn manager, said all prospective employees' backgrounds are checked by an outside company.

Cartwright said Super 8 also has a good working relationship with the sheriff's office which provides patrols in the area.

"We really don't seem to have much problems, except with occasional vandalism," he added.

Both Elliott and Cartwright said daily inventories are made of motel room keys. Locks are changed if a key is missing. Elliott said a room is not rented until the lock is changed.

Henry Fonde, of Landcom Management, who is the court appointed receiver for the Lake Monroe Holiday Inn, said security and guest safety are top priorities.

Deputies to nab speeders in Heathrow

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

HEATHROW — Sheriff Don Eslinger says he's unhappy with charging Heathrow residents for traffic enforcement duties, but he'll abide by the state law which requires him to do so.

In a first for Seminole County, the Sheriff's Office and county will provide traffic regulation and enforcement by contract to the private community of Heathrow. The Heathrow Master Association will pay the Sheriff's Office $28.55 per hour to have a deputy patrol the private streets of the exclusive community for speeders and other traffic violations.

The HMA will also pay to install and maintain any traffic signs required to meet county traffic regulations at their own expense. Enforcement is expected to begin by mid-October.

Eslinger said while the public at large may be prevented from driving on Heathrow streets, residents there pay taxes for services they do not receive.

"The state law mandates that we have to charge them hourly, but I strongly disagree with that," said Eslinger. "We have to charge them for something that's a basic law enforcement service anyway. It's a double taxation issue."

Eslinger said he may request the local legislative delegation to seek removal of the payment requirement from the law.

Eslinger said deputies patrol Heathrow and respond to criminal complaints, but cannot enforce traffic regulations on the private

Navy salvaging World War II aircraft

PENSACOLA — The Navy is salvaging 17 more World War II-era aircraft from the bottom of Lake Michigan near Chicago where they have been for half a century. They will join 14 other planes recovered from the lake, many in very good condition, over the past four years, said Robert "Buddy" Macon, deputy director of the National Museum of Naval Aviation. Macon said the latest recovery effort began over the weekend after it was approved by Navy Secretary John Dalton. All of the planes were lost in training accidents off the USS Sable and USS Wolverine, two Great Lakes steamers converted into aircraft carriers and used to train pilots. In June, two of the recovered aircraft, a Grumman F-4F Wildcat fighter and a Douglas SBD Dauntless dive bomber, went on display at the museum just as they were when found on the bottom of the lake.

Missing girl found sleeping

LAKE WORTH, Fla. — No white rabbits or walruses were blamed, but a 5-year-old girl whose disappearance set off a frantic police search turned up sleeping behind a looking glass. Police mobilized 15 patrol cars, a canine unit and a helicopter in the two-hour effort to find Fawn Davis after her mother reported her missing Monday, said Palm Beach sheriff's spokeswoman Teri Barbera. Officers had searched the house twice, and were talking to her mother, Denise Weimann, when Fawn emerged sleepily from her nap. "She apparently was rolled up in a ball behind a mirror in the laundry room," Barbera said Tuesday. Unlike her counterpart in "Alice in Wonderland" and "Through the Looking Glass," however, Fawn did not blame rabbits, queens or even Tweedledee. She just wanted to know if she was in trouble, said her mother. "I didn't know whether to hug her or beat her up," Weimann said.

Orlando bans certain gun ranges

ORLANDO — City leaders appalled by the images of guns near Mickey Mouse have adopted a six-month ban on new gun ranges in areas frequented by tourists. Mayor Glenda Hood and the City Council voted 7-0 without discussion Monday to keep any more gun ranges from opening on the International Drive commercial strip dominated by hotels and restaurants. "This is all about perception," Hood said. The council acted after two ranges sought permits last summer to open under existing zoning laws and city officials realized they were legally powerless to intervene. Council members are still contemplating a permanent ban along International Drive northeast of Walt Disney World and downtown Orlando. A zoning ban is needed in part because of the widespread publicity over the killings of foreign tourists in Florida, most recently at a highway rest stop near Monticello in North Florida and in Miami, Hood said.

Bankers to receive awards

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Bankers Association will recognize banks that boost lending in low-income areas under the federal Community Reinvestment Act, the group's president said. "We hope that these bankers who receive community reinvestment awards will be emulated," Wendell Coleton told a news conference on Tuesday. The awards will recognize programs such as enlistment of church members by Northern Trust Bank in St. Petersburg to help mortgage applicants and a "Home Ownership Made Easy" program at Central Bank of the South in Pensacola, Coleton said. The lenders will be given the awards by the bankers' group, which represents 369 banks and 33 trust companies in Florida, said Coleton, who is also chairman of SunBanks Inc. in Orlando.

Encephalitis reported

NAPLES, Fla. (AP) — The second confirmed human case of St. Louis encephalitis in southwest Florida has been reported in Collier County. The ill person was recently hospitalized but has been released, said Mark Crowley, epidemiologist with the Collier County Public Health Unit. Officials can't release the name of the person with the disease or any details because of confidentiality rules, the News-Press in Fort Myers reported Tuesday. The Collier County Public Health Unit issued an encephalitis alert Friday after learning about the second case. Lee County has been under an alert since Sept. 16. Encephalitis, which is spread by mosquitoes in the Culex group, can lead to swelling of the brain.

Crime against tourists

Public safety No. 1 issue to lawmakers

By CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — State Rep. Debbie Wasserman Shultz, like many Florida residents and visitors, has become wary of night travel. Shultz said she's made the trip from Gainesville to Tallahassee scores of times. But since last month's slaying of a British tourist at an Interstate 10 rest stop, she doesn't like to make the drive after the sun sets. "I was afraid, I really was. I remembered there was a tourist killed," the Davie Democrat said Tuesday after making the trip. "That's really wrong." Although 10 foreign visitors have been slain in Florida over the past year, some lawmakers and police said violent crime has been a festering problem for years — and it's finally getting some attention. "We realize the need to address this issue now," said Rep. Larcenia Bullard, D-Miami. "We are looking at a wound that has been infected, and it's oozed over into some other areas." Gov. Lawton Chiles plans a special session in early November to deal with crises in workers' compensation and homeowners' insurance. Although the governor hasn't said he will add crime issues to the agenda, it's clear lawmakers are ready to take them up. "It's a shame that negative worldwide attention has served

4 teens nabbed in Briton's slaying

By BILL BERSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Four teenagers have been arrested in the highway rest stop slaying of a British tourist, but by order of a local judge, authorities are keeping tight-lipped on the details. "I moved for a gag order on behalf of all the kids involved," Greg Cummings, attorney for one youth, said Tuesday. "It's to prevent a poisoning of the public who may have to hear the case." A nighttime news conference had been called amid indications the four had been charged, but the judge's order forced it to be canceled.

Margaret Ann Jagger, wounded in the Sept. 14 attack that killed her boyfriend, 34-year-old Gary Colley, said Florida Department of Law Enforcement Director Tim Moore called her in England with news of the arrests. Moore told her charges were being brought against two 17-year-old boys, one 15-year-old boy and one 13-year-old boy, Jagger said when reached by WTSP-TV in St. Petersburg. "For kids so young to get hold of guns, it's scary. It's sad," Jagger told WTSP reporter David Klugh, a friend she and Colley visited prior to the shooting. "I still love America." The two were shot in a botched robbery attempt at a rest stop on Interstate 10 near Monticello, 25 miles east of Tallahassee. Jagger, of Wilden, Yorkshire, was slightly wounded in the arm.

Brenda Armitage, Colley's mother, said she didn't want her son's killers to receive the death penalty.

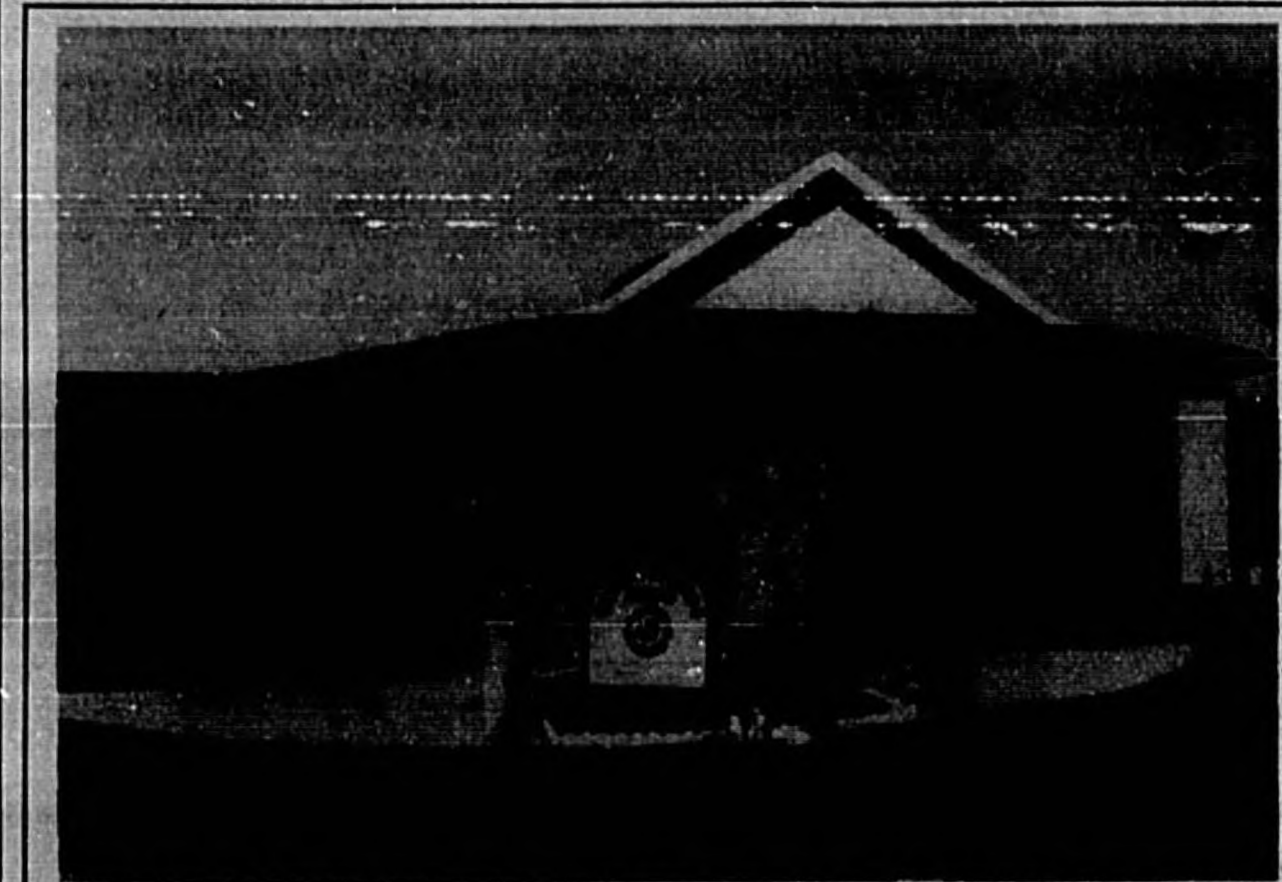

"I don't want them to get the death penalty because I know Gary would not have wanted that. He was against capital punishment," Mrs. Armitage, of Shipley, England, said. "The only reason I want them caught is so that they can't kill anybody else and nobody else can go through what we're going through."

The 13-year-old arrested in the case has been in jail on an unrelated auto theft charge since a few hours after the shooting and could have been released Tuesday if charges were not filed or an extension sought.

FDLE spokesman John Joyce and Jefferson County Sheriff Ken Fortune said the gag order barred them from discussing reports of charges against the 13-year-old or three others.

They called off a news conference they had scheduled for 10 p.m. EDT in front of the Jefferson County Jail in Monticello. "It's a bizarre development," Joyce said.

"The judge's order allows them to say that there have been four arrests in the case and that the children arrested were juveniles," said Cummings.

State legislator wants bullfighting in Florida

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — A state legislator wants to bring bullfighting to the Sunshine State, and the idea has some animal-rights activists seeing red. "All the civilized countries of the world — Spain, Portugal, Mexico, Colombia, Brazil — do this," said Rep. Eladio Arnesto-Garcia, R-Hialeah. Arnesto-Garcia has pre-filed a bill for the 1994 legislative session that would allow simulated, bloodless bullfighting in Florida. The bill would prohibit physical contact with the animal, except with the traditionally red cape in the hands of the matador or matador's assistant, and would limit a bull to 30 minutes of Florida fighting during its lifetime. Animal-rights activists are not appeased by the limitations. "It's one of the most ridiculous ideas I've ever seen," said Scott Fuerst, a Fort Lauderdale attorney for the 4,000-member Animal Rights Foundation. "It's so outlandish to be practically unbelievable. We'll try to defeat it every way we can." Laura Bevan, southeast regional director of the Humane Society of the United States, said Florida bullfighting would be as abusive as the more violent kind found in other countries. "You have to get the bull upset enough to fight," she said. "Cruelty to animals is defined as unnecessary torment. We consider this to be tormenting an animal unnecessarily." But Arnesto-Garcia says bullfights could provide a boost for tourism, and he has found some boosters. "I think any new, diversified attraction we can offer is something to be examined," said Vicky Knappenberger, a spokesman for the Florida Department of Commerce. "The international tourist is always looking for something new to experience. We won't turn away novel approaches to tourism." Bullfighting in Florida has been banned since 1971. Arnesto-Garcia's proposal (HB 71) would allow a county or city to stage such an event. The bill would have to pass a series of committees before it could even come up for a vote in the full House and Senate. The legislative session begins on Feb. 8. "In the legislative arena, most of the bullfighting doesn't involve animals," Ron Sachs, communications director for Gov. Lawton Chiles, joked. "I think (the bill) will provide fleeting amusement for legislators, but it doesn't even register on the governor's list of priorities."

Officials: Fake report intended to win big bucks

By The Associated Press

ORLANDO — A rape reported at a Walt Disney World hotel last Halloween was a hoax devised by traveling scam artists who hoped to win big money in a lawsuit, authorities said.

An arrest warrant has been issued for Wanda Mary Normile, 21, who said she was raped, and her brother, James William Burke, 33. Charges include filing a false report, conspiracy to commit grand theft and attempted grand theft. Orange County sheriff's officials said.

Investigators said the woman, who claimed to be from Maine, lied when she said she was beaten, tied, raped and robbed by a man who attacked her after she entered her darkened room.

Sheriff's officials said that with her consent, Burke bound Normile to the hotel room bed with tape and then battered her with a stick.

"She was beaten pretty badly," said Sgt. Ken Cox, chief sex crimes investigator. "They made it look very realistic."

Before staging the rape and burglary at the Caribbean Beach Resort Hotel, the woman had sex with an acquaintance elsewhere in Orange County so investigators would find signs of recent sexual activity; her sex partner didn't know he was part of a scam, Cox said.

In June, Normile filed a lawsuit accusing Disney of negligence and seeking an unspecified amount of money. Her attorney, Ernest Eubanks Jr., was unavailable for comment Tuesday.

From the start, deputies had doubts about the case because some details of the scene didn't make sense, Cox said.

For example, the tape used to bind Normile wasn't strained and twisted as it would have been if she had really struggled with an attacker, Cox said.

But most of the story made sense, and the inconsistencies weren't serious enough to divert investigators from treating the case as authentic, Cox said.

Then last week, an informant angry with the brother and sister called investigators to say the rape had been a hoax. Cox said the tip was corroborated by others, including some who were present when the scheme was hatched at an Orlando-area restaurant several days before the alleged rape.

Investigators said they spent thousands of hours on the case, which caused an uproar because it highlighted deficiencies in the way emergency calls were handled on Disney property.

Normile dialed 911 on her room phone, but a half-hour passed before Disney officials alerted the sheriff's office. Disney paramedics treated Normile.

Emergency calls for law enforcement from Disney property now are transferred immediately to the sheriff's office. That change, already in the works before the alleged rape, was sped up after the case became public.

Sheriff Kevin Beary said Normile and Burke are part of a group of con artists known as the Irish Travelers which visit Central Florida in the fall.

They could be anywhere, but they have been known to travel in North Carolina, Georgia and Ohio, Cox said.

EDs Note: Authorities say Normile, also known as Wanda Mary Burke, Wanda Mary Cleveland and Leah Ann Kelly, is 4-foot-9, 100 pounds, with blonde hair and blue eyes. Burke, also known as Ivory Morgan, James Brown and Jamie Johnson, is 6-foot-3, 200 pounds with black hair.

Joey Buttafuoco admits tryst with Amy Fisher

By PAT MILTON — Associated Press Writer

MINEOLA, N.Y. — The hooting talk show viewers were on to something. Joey Buttafuoco, who for 1½ years denied to anyone who would listen that he ever had sex with Amy Fisher, has finally admitted it.

"On July 2, 1991, I had sexual relations with Amy Fisher at the Freeport Motel," Buttafuoco declared Tuesday in a packed courtroom. Fisher at the time was 16; the age of consent in New York is 17.

The 37-year-old Long Island body-shop man, wearing a dark blue suit and black-and-white snakeskin boots, pleaded guilty to statutory rape, setting himself up for a six-month jail term. His wife, Mary Jo, was not in court.

"That does not matter now," said Buttafuoco's lawyer, Dominic Barbara. "She loves him very much, and will continue to stand by him."

Fisher's lawyer, Philip Catapano, said of the guilty plea: "At least the world will know Amy Fisher was not lying."

Tuesday's courtroom drama was but the latest installment in a saga that began in 1992, when Fisher shot Mrs. Buttafuoco in the head to clear the way for her affair with Buttafuoco. Fisher is serving five to 15 years.

The Joey and Amy story captured the public imagination like few others. There were an instant book and three TV movies. The Buttafuocos were guests on "Donahue," where Joey was vilified. David Letterman drew laughs simply by saying "Buttafuoco." Madonna tore up Joey's picture on "Saturday Night Live."

"Let me tell you something. I don't cheat on my wife. No. Oh, no. Oh, no," Buttafuoco told radio host Howard Stern last year.

Fisher, now 19, has said their affair included trysts in four Long Island motels. Buttafuoco's auto body shop and aboard his boat, Double Trouble.

Buttafuoco, who will be sentenced Nov. 15, had nothing to say after the 20-minute hearing. Under the plea bargain, he will get no more than six months in jail, five years' probation and a $5,000 fine. If he gets the maximum, he could be out in four months.

"It was a difficult and hard day. I thought he handled it well," his lawyer said. "Joey Buttafuoco is prepared to do whatever he has to do for his children and his family."

What he wouldn't do, prosecutors said, was participate in a blood test and a physical examination.

Hospital merger: Wish for success

The merger of Hospital Corporation of America (HCA), which includes HCA-Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford, and Columbia Healthcare Corporation, has been big news for stock holders.

On the surface, except for a difference with stationery letterheads and business cards, the Sanford facility will not be making any major changes. The merger will not necessarily mean employee raises or an increase in services.

What it will mean however, is an expanded field of operation for the two hospital systems. People in outlying areas with insured approved for health care plans through HCA who have had to drive many miles to Sanford, now have three other area hospitals.

Likewise, people in the Sanford area, who have had health care insurance approved for Columbia Healthcare System, will no longer have to drive to Orlando or Daytona Beach for medical care.

Central Florida now has three major health care hospital organizations. In addition to the newly established Columbia/HCA Healthcare Corporation, the others are Orlando Regional Health Care System, and Florida Hospital System.

Depending on certain medical insurance provisions, the merger will increase the number of "provider hospitals" available in the state and nation.

There will now be hospitals in 20 cities around the state under Columbia/HCA Healthcare Corporation.

In Sanford, Hospital Administrator Roy Vinson said the medical staff has nothing but positive praise for the merger, and the hospital staff was jubilant.

While the merger can be perceived as a good business move, it is clearly an added tag to what people in the local area as well as throughout Florida.

We commend this merger, and wish the newly combined companies success.

Will of the people

Re: the "Property Taxes" article in the Sept. 22 issue of the Herald.

Seminole County Property Assessor Bill Suber now joins several other public officials who are wailing about the "Save Our Homes" amendment and trying to scare taxpayers with tales of the cost if this amendment is applied to 1993's taxes.

It appears Suber has joined the other bureaucrats in fighting the will of the people who voted for this amendment.

Suber and others of his ilk want Florida to delay the effective date of this amendment until they can increase assessments as high as possible thereby raising taxes paid on property as high as they legally can. We in Seminole County are paying more for our politicians and bureaucrats than most other counties in Florida and most of the money has to come from the property owners.

The Florida Supreme Court, if true to form, will affirm the Lee County Judge's ruling that the amendment should take effect in January 1994 and not for the 1993 tax year. After all, they, like all our public servants, are paid from taxes. Besides, why should a public official be inconvenienced by having to recalculate taxes.

Several years ago the taxpayers of Florida voted to raise their homestead exemption to $25,000. It didn't take the politicians and bureaucrats long to figure a way to get around this exemption.

Now, they the politicians and bureaucrats, instead of serving the taxpayers, are using the courts in an attempt to circumvent the will of the people.

It seems our government has forgotten they are in office at the wish of the people and instead acts solely in its own interests.

BEN WATTENBERG

Cherries are good for your health

Cherry-pickers unite! Your time has come!

The phrase goes back to the last health-care debate, which occurred a couple of years ago. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen was pushing for new federal health insurance legislation. The Bush White House, gradually coming out of its political stupor, was interested in the idea.

The time seemed ripe. Corporations were going leaner and meaner, which led to leaner and meaner health insurance programs. Insurance companies were denying coverage on the basis of "pre-existing conditions," thereby cutting down "portability," specializing in covering people least likely to need insurance. (How sweet.) Malpractice awards were soaring, yielding "defensive medicine" driven by juries not doctors. Middle-class Americans, the kind who vote, were getting worried and angry. In Congress a new consensus for reform was growing.

Bentsen's legislation tried to fix what was most obviously wrong. He aimed at encouraging small businesses to provide their employees with insurance, in a way both political parties could agree upon. Applicants could not be turned down for pre-existing conditions. Portability would be enhanced. When the Bush White House finally came up with its own proposal, it drew heavily on Bentsen's work, adding tough controls on malpractice, a universal insurance form to cut down on wastes, and health-care vouchers to cover most, although not all, of the remaining uninsured.

And it never happened. The opposition in Congress came principally from liberal Democrats. Borrowing an epithet from the insurance industry, they said it was "cherry-picking," taking just the good stuff that most folks agreed upon. (What a terrible way to legislate that would be.) Good was Bad. If the ripe cherries got picked, horrors, voters wouldn't upset any more. The motivation for broader health reform might dissolve before America took its bitter medicine. The liberal prescription for such medicine came under many brand names, but the generic label on the bottle was always "More Government Control."

There was a second reason that Bentsen-style incremental reform didn't succeed. The 1992 presidential election year approached, with health care looming as a big issue. Some of Bentsen's Democratic colleagues said, "Don't send Bush a bill he could sign" -- lest Republicans get political credit.

And so, we now have the proposed Clinton remedy. Surely, he deserves credit for bringing the issue front and center on the political agenda. Surely, there is much that makes sense in his plan. In fact, most of the good old cherries are right there, including portability, elimination of pre-existing conditions, and a universal insurance form. (Although tough treatment of malpractice abuse is missing.) The Clinton plan goes further than Bentsen's or Bush's: Everyone gets coverage, including prescription medicine.

But, alas, with these fine Clinton cherries, we also get a coated pill of more government control.

JACK ANDERSON

Clinton rightfully inspired by the words of JFK

WASHINGTON — At our request, 31 years ago, President John F. Kennedy penned "to an unknown youth somewhere in America" some advice on how to prepare and handle the Presidency.

We recently came across his response and it sent chills down our spine, considering it was written at the very time when he was a hero to a young high-schooler named Bill Clinton.

One of the most enduring images of the Clinton campaign was the picture of the young Clinton at the White House, shaking hands with his idol, President Kennedy. It was considered the coup of the campaign when a campaign worker found it at the JFK library in Boston.

Since then it's been clear that Clinton, in his words and his deeds, wants to emulate the vision and characteristics of Kennedy. That's what makes Kennedy's response, which was published in Parade magazine on Sept. 23, 1962, so moving. Kennedy responded to this question: "Somewhere in our land today there is a high school or college student who will one day be sitting in your chair. If you could now speak to this future president, what advice and guidance would you give him or her?"

President Kennedy began: "The first lesson of the Presidency is that it is impossible to foretell the precise nature of the problems that will confront you or the specific skills and capacities which those problems will demand."

He pointed out that "there is no program of vocational training for the Presidency; no specific area of knowledge that is peculiarly relevant." Presidents have included great scholars like Thomas Jefferson and Woodrow Wilson, the president of Princeton University, he noted. But nine of the presidents, "among them some of the most brilliant in office, did not attend college."

President Kennedy advised youngsters like Clinton that presidents have come from all walks of life.

JFK felt he could not counsel "you about what subjects to study or what vocation to follow. But whatever you do, you would be well advised to practice stern discipline and vigorous, unremitting effort." Kennedy did offer some concrete pointers.

First, Kennedy advised, "It will help you to know the country you seek to lead. It was one of the great strengths of a President such as Theodore Roosevelt that he knew and loved the diverse magnificence of our fields and mountain ranges, deserts and great rivers, our abundant farmlands and the thousand voices of our cities."

Second, Kennedy tutored, it's vital for a presidential aspirant to "have a deep sense of history. For of all the disciplines, the study of the folly and achievements of man is best calculated to help develop the critical sense of what is permanent and meaningful amid the mass of superficial and transient events and decisions which engulf the Presidency."

Third, he continued, and "most important of all, and most difficult to consciously pursue, is an understanding of the people you will lead." The last paragraph of Kennedy's letter demonstrates the ennobling qualities that inspired the nation:

"No one can guarantee that if you follow this or any other advice you will become a great President. For the Presidency is peculiarly an office which is shaped by the individual who holds it. And greatness depends on the times as well as the man."

ELLEN GOODMAN

Eleanor would have loved it

BOSTON — Okay, so there were a few moments of high squirm. The reaction to Hillary's appearance in Congress was a touch breathless. Hillary took the Hill. She came, she spoke, she conquered. She wowed them. No, she dazzled them. No, she absolutely knocked their socks off.

One Congress member compared her to Martha Washington, another to Abraham Lincoln. Someone joked that he was going to auction the tea cup with her lipstick marks. Another said that she should go on "Jeopardy."

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski gagged more than a few people by cooing, "I think in the very near future the president will be known as your husband. Who's that fella? That's Hillary's husband."

At times, it seemed like an update of the infamous Samuel Johnson remark about women preachers and dogs walking on their hind legs: "It's not done well; but you are surprised to find it done at all." In the Congress, they're still surprised to find it done well by a first lady.

Even the media was in full gush. The networks were agog. A wire service reported that the president's wife was "effortlessly answering complex questions in great detail." Stop the presses.

But this is being picky, picky, picky and certainly p.c. The fact is that Hillary Clinton worked the Congress like a pro.

She knew the cast of congressional characters, knew who was a pharmacist and who was an enemy. She knew how to use charm on nonagenarian Strom Thurmond and deadly wit on critic Richard Armitage. But more than anything else she knew her stuff.

If this had been a three-day, 12-hour oral exam for a Ph.D. on health care she would have gone directly to tenure. And when all is said and done, it must be great to finally get graded on substance.

What a chapter this was in the ongoing, best-selling Hillary Chronicles. Remember when it all began with Hillary as "Not Tammy Wynette"? Remember Hillary as Betty Crocker? Then there was the Hillary from Hell as a feminist harridan and Hillary the Home wrecker who wanted kids to divorce their parents.

The Year of the Woman was a hard year for this political wife. The people who saw Hillary as a heroine thought she should be running for office. The people who dislike her thought she should shut up.

When the Clintons moved into the White House, we had pictures of Hillary sitting the table and stories about her setting the agenda. The jokes were about "Billary" and co-presidencies. "What happens if Hillary becomes incapacitated?" asked the late night comic. "Bill Clinton becomes President."

When she was appointed to head the health-care task force, we got tales of Hillary the Power Hungry. There were polls on her power, news panels on the dangers of an unaccountable wife at the health helm. Serious policy people sputtered pillow talk paranoia.

Last spring, she was transformed, magically and sarcastically into Saint Hillary. The first lady had talked about a "crisis of meaning" in America. She was trashed as a sophomore virtue-monger for suggesting that "we need a new politics of meaning. We need a new ethos of individual responsibility and caring... a society that fills us up and makes us feel we are part of something bigger than ourselves."

Meanwhile, along the way, we had Hillary and Her Hair. Her hairdos, don'ts and redos.

Compared to all this, Hillary on the Hill is a much saner chapter, if not yet an ending. She went to the hearings as "a mother, a wife, a sister, a woman," as well as honcho. She won raves as a pol and policy-wonk as well as White House Woman.

This first lady sees herself as a wife and work, a First Lady and Independent Woman, someone who works numbers and worries about meaning. The country is still not wholly comfortable with such duality. But we're beginning to get the hang of Hillary. And many other women who are trying to make whole lies out of the divided parts.

During the campaign, during the Hillary from hell days, the candidate's wife held imaginary conversations with Eleanor Roosevelt. When she was feeling down, she would talk to the much-more-maligned Mrs. Roosevelt who would say, "Get out and do it and don't make any excuses about it."

Before she stepped into the hearing room Tuesday, an aide said to her, "This is Eleanor Roosevelt time." Hillary on the Hill. Hillary as herself. Eleanor would have loved it.

No, she absolutely knocked their socks off.

Rinehart landscaping regulations

By NICK PFENPAUF
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — New regulations governing landscaping regulations along Rinehart Road, have been proposed. The City Commission is expected to approve the suggestions Thursday night.

The landscaping regulations were originally designed to be included in similar specifications for Lake Mary Boulevard, but there were several differences, and the two matters were divided into two separate ordinances.

The Commission has already approved restrictions along the boulevard.

For Rinehart Road, the new ordinance calls for an increase in buffer width from 10 to 15 feet.

Other sections of the ordinance specify the size and type of trees to be planted, separation distance, minimum diameter of plantings, and who would be responsible for the purchase, installation, maintenance and irrigation of all required landscaping.

Similar to the ordinance on the boulevard, all mechanical units, such as air conditioning equipment, will be required to have screening from view on public right of way.

If approved, the new restrictions would apply both to residential as well as non-residential developments on what is to be known as the "Rinehart Road Corridor District."

The district includes all property within the corporate limits of Lake Mary abutting or within 300 feet of the road's right-of-way.

The city's Planning and Zoning Board recommended approval of the ordinance by a unanimous vote when it was originally presented.

The City Commission has already approved the ordinance on first reading. The second and final reading of the Rinehart Road Corridor Ordinance is on the agenda for tomorrow night's City Commission meeting, beginning at 7 p.m., at Lake Mary City Hall, 100 N. Country Club Road.

County gives approval for land purchase

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners gave a cautious go-ahead to buy five acres of land adjacent to the Wekiva River for preservation and a canoe launch under the county Natural Lands Program.

Commissioners agreed to buy the property from Honna and Louis Lucas for $168,000 contingent upon the St. Johns River Water Management District and other agencies permitting the county to place a canoe launch and limited parking on the property, located adjacent to State Road 46.

Only commissioner Dick VanDerWeide opposed the purchase saying the property had limited recreational value and questioning the environmental value.

The Natural Lands Committee is seeking a low-impact public access to the river. Wekiva River access in Seminole County is limited to private or commercial locations. They do not want to disturb the sensitive 573-acre Plantation property south of Markham Road for an access.

Commissioners fielded a $600,000 offer to buy Katie's Landing near the Lucas property. The committee recommended the purchase to provide an existing access which would relieve pressure to clear a path through Plantation wetlands.

Commissioners felt the $56,000 per acre price was too high and use of the natural lands money to buy a business questionable. They referred the proposal to the Parks and Recreation Division. The Lucas property price will be about $32,200 per acre.

In other natural lands proposals, the committee has scheduled a site visit Oct. 9 to the tract of land east of the Econlockhatchee River once proposed for homes. The High Oaks East proposal caused a large controversy because it would have required extending water lines and a bridge over the river. The development proposal was subsequently withdrawn.

The property is greater than 1,000 acres. No purchase price has been submitted, said Colleen Logan, county natural lands planner.

He said security information is sent to managers on a weekly basis.

Cartwright said it is also his company's policy to immediately change a lock if a key is not turned in. If the lock cannot be changed that day, he said a "boot" is installed on the door to make it impossible to open the door from the outside with a key, providing added security.

"Florida is the No. 1 tourist destination in the world and the No. 1 thief destination in the world," said Ray Wood, a detective for the Orange County Sheriff's Office, who works with Orlando tourist hotels. Wood was speaking at the Jacksonville seminar.

About 35 hotel and motel workers attended the first in a series of safety seminars Tuesday being sponsored by the American Automobile Association in cities across Florida.

In the half-day seminar, Wood and Rick de Treville, director of security for the Central Florida Hotel-Motel Association, gave out advice on security, locks, lighting, "distraction" thefts, credit card fraud and even theft by employees.

Tom Schroder, manager of public affairs for AAA, said the goal of the seminars is "to maximize security of tourists staying at a motel or hotel."

In Orlando, Wood said 40 deputies work exclusively with the hotels and motels to provide security for the tourists.

"We've had a dramatic increase in the number of tourists, number of motel rooms and a dramatic decrease in crime," Wood said.

Wood showed videotapes of tourists being victimized by distraction thieves who work in pairs to steal wallets, purses and other valuables.

Both Wood and de Treville also urged the motels and hotels to do criminal background checks on their employees and prospective employees.

"Some of your employees may be lying to you," Wood said.

De Treville showed some sting operations in which a video camera hidden in a room caught employees stealing from guests.

Hotel and motel officials were impressed by the seminar.

School

"The new change won't make it any better," she said.

Because of the 1970 federal court desegregation order, which states that there may be an enrollment of no more than 35 percent black students at any given school, the proposed school district policy would, in effect, ban white students from leaving Sanford schools which hover close to that mark.

According to Hagerty, black students at schools that fall short of the 35 percent black population would be banned from transferring out of such a predominantly white school.

"It evens out," Hagerty said. "The school district will grant any transfer that is racially positive or racially neutral."

Some parents, who have filed a complaint with the U.S. Department of Justice and the U.S. Department of Education, claim that the black population at Seminole High School has already exceeded the 35 percent mark and is closer to 38 percent.

Those who have filed the complaints believe the civil rights of Sanford students are being violated by a system which, they say, financially favors schools in the south part of the county over schools in Sanford.

Seminole High was also required, under the desegregation order to maintain a student population of "not significantly less than 2,000 students."

Should a number of students, black or white, transfer out of that school, the district would be unable to meet the enrollment requirements.

Hagerty said there have been 980 transfer requests this year, the great majority of which would be easily granted under the proposed policy.

District officials said they have an obligation to deal with the desegregation issue.

"I believe this is something that we are legally, and morally, obligated to deal with," Hagerty said.

The proposed policy would offer educational choice to students in Seminole County, a change many believe will improve the quality of education in district schools by creating a kind of competition between schools to improve their product.

Hagerty believes the quality of education will be improved by other methods, but the relaxed transfer rules are a psychological boost to parents, even those who never intend to use the option.

"They feel better knowing the option is there," he said. "But most people do not request transfers for academic or educational reasons. For most, it is a matter of convenience."

The school district staff is still working on the details of the transfer policy changes. They will work up a final draft and present it at a public hearing which will be announced at a later date.

roadways. He said speeding complaints are the principle problem on the streets.

Heathrow is a low-crime area, according to sheriff's statistics. During the first seven months of the year, deputies responded to 16 complaints in the community. Of those, only four were for burglary reports. The community has a privately-contracted security force.

Similar traffic enforcement agreements may follow in other private communities.

Lt. Jerry Riggins, in charge of the Special Operations Division, said periodic discussions have continued for several years with The Springs residents for traffic patrol. "I think we'll see others," said Riggins. He said a deputy will probably be assigned to Heathrow patrols an average of four hours daily, depending on the needs of the HMA.

Neal Harris, president of the Alaquia Homeowners Association, said he is unaware of any significant traffic problems in his 200-lot community. Harris said he was interested in the service, but said the $28 expense far exceeds the $15 hourly cost for security services.

HMA president Michael Dick could not be reached.

as our wake-up call," said Rep. Also Reddick, D-Orlando.

Among the items under consideration:

— A ban on possession of weapons by anyone under age 18, unless they're legally hunting or target shooting under adult supervision. The proposal by James T. "Tim" Moore, commissioner of the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, would force first-time offenders to serve five days in detention and 100 hours of visible community service.

— Construction of even more prison beds. The Legislature authorized more than 10,000 new prison beds during its May special session and promised to build thousands more over the coming years. What's missing from the promise is the money to do it.

— Taking the worst youthful offenders — Moore put that number at up to 3,000 — and locking them in secure detention instead of the community-based programs that allow them back on the streets. Many are repeat offenders.

"They're opportunists, they're predators and they're thugs," Moore said. "We've got to put them in a facility that's not a hand-holding facility."

— Hiring more police at the state and local levels and setting up more violent-crime task forces in Florida's hot spots, such as the one now operating in Miami. Moore said the effort has shown some success in cutting down on armed robberies, burglaries and auto theft.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department is continuing its damage control efforts following the tourist killings, which made headlines worldwide and are hurting international travel to Florida.

Commerce Secretary Greg Farmer said print ads along the "One Florida, Many Faces" theme would resume abroad on Oct. 15. Those ads were suspended following the Sept. 14 slaying of 34-year-old Gary Colley of Britain at a highway rest stop near Monticello.

Broadcast ads will resume in November, Farmer added. But he said international visitors will drop this year because of the killings.

"In tourism, image is the business," Farmer told the House Tourism and Economic Development Committee. "Image is what sells. The perception is, the crime problem is much worse than it really is in Florida."

felony. Police Commander Dennis Whitmire commented, "From what we have been able to ascertain at this point, the shooting was apparently over a woman which both of the men knew."

Ruffin, 22, of 319 Pecan Avenue, was reportedly struck possibly three times by bullets from what some witnesses said could have been an Uzi type machine gun.

Whitmire said the gun was identified as a Tech-9 semi-automatic pistol. "This is the kind of gun available from most any gun dealer," he said, "at a cost of about $300. It can be used with clips holding anywhere from five to 45 shots, and we don't know how many, Mike may have had."

The weapon was not recovered. Ruffin reportedly identified Mike during questioning conducted by a police investigator.

Ruffin is still in Central Florida Regional Hospital. His condition was listed as serious but stable, as of this morning, and he was to be moved out of the Intensive Care Unit before noon today.

When he was first admitted his condition was listed as critical.

Whitmire said medical reports indicate one bullet penetrated Ruffin's right cheek, under his right eye, traveled through his skull, and exited on the left side.

Other shots reportedly penetrated Ruffin's shoulder and possibly his lungs.

Mike is being held in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

Disabled children especially vulnerable to abuse

By JENNIFER DIXON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — It is a heartbreaking image: children with disabilities, abused and neglected far more often than other children.

Yet that is the stark picture from the first nationwide study of maltreatment among children with physical, mental or emotional disabilities.

Researchers found that disabled children are physically abused at twice the rate of other children, sexually abused at nearly twice the rate and emotionally neglected at almost three times the rate.

Overall, children with disabilities are maltreated at 1.7 times the rate of other kids. And in nearly half of those abuse cases, the child's disability was at the root of the abuse or neglect.

In all but 14 percent of 1,834 cases studied, the maltreatment was either committed or permitted by a child's primary caretaker, who is generally the mother, the study said. The maltreatment was substantiated by child welfare agencies.

The study, done by the National Center on Child Abuse and Neglect of the Department of Health and Human Services, dramatizes the crushing pressures on families of these children.

"Children are vulnerable. But children with disabilities are the most vulnerable," Sen. Christopher J. Dodd, who sponsored 1988 legislation requiring the federal study, said in an interview. "It's terribly disturbing to realize that children with disabilities are being maltreated to such a high degree."

The researchers' findings are based on data collected from 35 child protective services agencies. Each agency provided information on all cases of substantiated maltreatment over a four-to-six-week period in early 1991.

The study also found that maltreatment often causes children to develop a disability. More than half of all children who were neglected developed a disability, as well as 62 percent of children who were sexually abused, 48 percent who were emotionally abused and 15 percent who were physically abused.

Dodd, D-Conn., said the report underscores both the "tremendous economic and social pressures that are crushing" many families with a disabled child and the need to help them, a view echoed by some pediatricians.

"It's an ugly thought — how could anyone maltreat a child, a child with a disability," Dodd said. "But I'm not sitting in public housing, out of a job, taking care of four kids, trying to raise a family on my own, with back rent due and a number of outstanding doctor bills. That's not an excuse, but you begin to understand."

Dr. Edward Schor, associate professor of pediatrics at Tufts Medical School, and Dr. James M. Perrin, associate professor of pediatrics at Harvard Medical School, agreed that caring for a disabled child can be expensive, stressful and physically exhausting.

Parents may also become isolated from friends, family and their community.

"They often don't have the kind of social support systems that they need to help them through difficult times," Schor said. "It just makes their situation and their ability to parent a little bit more fragile, a little bit more likely to take a direction that is not good for the child or good for their relationship with the child."

Perrin, chairman of the American Academy of Pediatrics' committee on children with disabilities, also believes the risk of abuse increases when parents don't bond with a newborn, a problem for sick babies hooked to all sorts of hospital equipment.

But Nora Baladerian, a clinical psychologist and director of the Disability, Abuse and Personal Rights Project of the Spectrum Institute, a research and educational organization in Los Angeles, says she's not convinced that family stress is to blame.

Baladerian says disabled children are particularly vulnerable because they may be less able to fend off an attack or to tell someone about it. And the signs and symptoms of abuse may be attributed to the child's disability.

She estimates that the rate of abuse among disabled children is much higher than the government estimates — from four to 10 times greater — and that 99 percent of abusers are well-known to the disabled child.

High-fat diet ups risk of prostate cancer

By CONNIE CASS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — There's another reason to eat less fat, at least for men: it might reduce the risk of developing life-threatening prostate cancer, researchers say.

Eating animal fat, especially from red meat, seems to promote the growth of small, latent prostate tumors, making them more likely to become dangerous, a study at Harvard's School of Public Health found.

The study adds to mounting evidence that a fatty diet increases cancer risks, notably for breast, colon and prostate cancer.

"It says, just like other studies, high fat is bad," said Dr. Kenneth J. Pienta, a cancer researcher and assistant professor at Wayne State University in Detroit who is familiar with the study.

Researchers don't know that cutting back on fat will help a man prevent advanced prostate cancer. But the study suggests it might help, Pienta said.

"It's a safe recommendation, because if you cut down on fat you live longer, you get less heart disease and less chance of other diseases," he said.

Prostate cancer is the second most common cause of cancer death among American men, behind lung cancer. In 1991, an estimated 122,000 men were diagnosed with prostate cancer, and 32,000 died of it.

The Harvard study, published today in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute, found that men who ate red meat as a main dish five or more times a week were 2.6 times as likely to suffer advanced prostate cancer as men who ate red meat only once a week or less.

"The risk went down as the intake decreased," said the lead researcher, Dr. Edward Giovannucci of the Harvard University School of Medicine. "Even eating red meat three times a week rather than five times a week, you did get some benefit."

Because the study followed men for only four years, it suggests that recent diet is important — generating hope that a man can improve the odds by changing his diet even late in life, Giovannucci said.

Vegetable fats and fat from fish and dairy products — except butter — don't increase the risk of advanced prostate cancer, researchers found.

The study also didn't find a link between animal fat and the more common early stages of prostate cancer, which often go undetected and cause no health problems. This is consistent with earlier research.

Autopsies performed around the world have found latent prostate cancer in from 15 percent to 30 percent of men who died after age 50 — the rate is similar from country to country.

But countries where high-fat diets are prevalent, such as the United States, have significantly more cases of advanced prostate cancer.

The American Cancer Society recommends reducing fat to 30 percent or less of total calories consumed, it says the average U.S. diet is about 40 percent fat.

Scientists don't know how animal fat acts to promote prostate cancer. There are several theories. It may alter sex hormone levels in the blood. The culprit could be carcinogens formed when animal fat is cooked. Or fatty acids found in meat may interfere with cell functions.

Using questionnaires about diet and health, the progressive study followed 47,855 American men, ages 40-75, from 1986-1990. During the study period, 300 were diagnosed with prostate cancer, and 126 of those were advanced cases.

Whitman's Sampler: Chocolate factory is auctioned off

By TED ANTHONY
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA — The sweet aroma of candy still hangs in the air at the Whitman's Chocolate Factory. But it is a bittersweet week for Philadelphia, as a tradition that began in 1842 with one man's confectionary comes to an end.

The factory that for 30 years turned out box after all-purpose box of Whitman's Samplers — suitable for Mother's Day, a get-well gift or sweet-tooth binge — is being auctioned off piece by piece, like Vanilla Butter Creams, Nut Crunch Cups and Marshmallow Mint Jells plucked from their compartments.

"I feel like an undertaker who knew the deceased," said Sid Dvorak, a Philadelphia native who bought the building from Pet Inc., which had owned Whitman's for 30 years.

However, the yellow box featuring more than a dozen varieties of chocolates will live on.

Russell Stover, Whitman's chief competitor in the gift-chocolate market, paid Pet $35 million last spring for the Whitman name and contents of the factory.

The flagship product will be manufactured from now on in Abeline, Kan., by a new Stover subsidiary called Whitman's Candies Inc.

The Philadelphia plant's machinery is idle now, and the factory's 700 workers, laid off in June, have gone home. Most of the one-story building is silent except for bidders plotting their next moves in whispers.

On the main assembly line, they can't get the smell of chocolate out and probably never will. But what once pumped out the popular morsels is now labeled for auction, wiped clean of sweet stickiness and ready to move out.

Cordial Cherry and Almond Truffle molds by the thousands?

Going once.

Barrel-sized kettles and empty chocolate racks? Going twice.

Contraptions with names like "Otto Hansel Boxline-Chocofil Setup Station?" Sold!

"It's a bonanza," one bidder, presumably a chocolate manufacturer, said Tuesday.

Not for Northeast Philadelphia, it isn't.

It's the latest economic blow to the area, which lost 504 jobs when Mrs. Paul's Kitchens, a manufacturer of fish sticks, left in July. Sears, Roebuck & Co., a Sealtest dairy operation and a 3M Co. plant also have joined the exodus.

"There really has been a negative effect in some of this conglomerate diversification," said John L. Stanton, a professor of food marketing at St. Joseph's University.

"The people who owned Whitman lived in Philadelphia, worked in Philadelphia, were part of Philadelphia. This was everything to them and there was a specialness about it."

Confectioner Stephen F. Whitman founded the company in 1842 when he set up a shop near the waterfront and began buying exotic candy ingredients from sailors. The Sampler first was marketed in 1912 with its trademark cross-stitch. At its height, the company sold up to 12 million boxes a year.

Pet Milk, later known as Pet Inc., bought the company in 1963, two years after the northeast Philadelphia plant was completed. But profits fell, and Russell Stover announced plans to buy the name and assets in March.

The state attorney general sued in April to block the deal, arguing it would violate antitrust law. But a judge disagreed.

Pet, it seems, is trying to keep a low profile as it leaves. Photographers aren't allowed inside, and reporters are barred from interviewing bidders. The auction continues through Thursday.

freshman at North Carolina, was to report to the Bulls training camp on Friday.

There was speculation if he would cite his father's dying this summer as a reason for quitting, but apparently there are other reasons.

"People will say that I'm leaving because of my father's death," Jordan was quoted by the Sun-Times as being another unidentified friend. "But that's not the main reason at all. It's a variety of things."

Jordan's father was shot to death July 23. His luxury car was later found stripped and his body discovered in a South Carolina creek two weeks later. Two North Carolina teenagers have been charged with murder and robbery.

"The thrill is gone. I've done it all. There's nothing left for me to do," Sun-Times columnist Irv Kupcinet said Jordan told him.

"It's time for me to move on to something else," the Sun-Times said Jordan told friends Tuesday. "I know a lot of people are going to be shocked by this decision and probably won't understand. But I've talked it over with my family and friends, and most of all I'm at peace with myself over the decision."

Lake Mary Sweeps

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS - With everyone on the roster playing just about everywhere in almost every possible combination, the Lake Mary Rams rolled to a 15-6, 15-8 victory over the host Lake Brantley Patriots in a Seminole Athletic Conference girls volleyball match Tuesday.

Lake Mary also won the junior varsity match in three games.

"This was a real team effort," said Lake Mary coach Cindy Henry. "We played everybody and we played them at different positions, so this really was a team win."

Now 14-4 overall and 6-0 in the SAC, Lake Mary will play again Thursday at Lake Howell. Lake Brantley (0-10, 0-6 in the SAC) is at Deltona tonight.

OCS RAMS WIN

Orangewood Christian also won the junior varsity match 15-8, 18-16.

The Rams will play at First Academy this Friday before hosting their eight-team tournament on Saturday.

Schoenfeld. "The race just got started and I get slammed from the rear. Next thing I know, I'm heading for the wall and wham!

"I know this will hurt my points lead. We'll work some more on the car and just start digging all over again."

On the restart, Orr, who just missed the crash, lined up fourth. He quickly passed the third and second-place cars of Regan and Bryan Campbell and set sail after Garvey.

No sooner had the field gotten back up to speed than a double caution flew as Kevin Durden spun into the infield and Schoenfeld was involved in his second melee of the evening.

"Boy, you talk about bad luck, this just wasn't my night," Schoenfeld said. "It looked like a lapped car cut a tire and then he just turned into me. We're done for the night. We'll start work on the car and have it ready for tomorrow night."

With Orr still applying pressure, Garvey maintained his lead through lap 50 to earn the $100 Marcone Appliance Parts Halfway Award. But on the 52nd lap, Orr found a crack, moved to the inside of Garvey, and assumed the lead.

Three laps later, Garvey's night came to an end when he dropped a cylinder.

"When they say, 'That's racing,' this is probably what they're talking about," said Garvey. "At this point, I'd say we had the car to beat. I know I had enough to race Pete (Orr) at the end, if I could have been there."

his challengers.

"This is so great," said Orr. "This is one of the most competitive fields of cars and drivers I've raced against in quite a while. To pull off a win at my home track is really exciting."

For his winning efforts, Orr picked up the $2,000 purse.

Campbell held off Regan for second. Jimmy Britts claimed fourth with Scott Bramlett finishing fifth.

"I started on the outside pole and knew I would have to drive a real consistent race if I wanted to finish close to the front," said Campbell. "This was one tough field and I'm real pleased to come home second."

Regan also was pleased with his finish.

"Six times this year I've drawn the pole and only finished in the top five one time," said Regan. "I'm not at all disappointed with my third-place finish. As a matter of fact, I'm extremely pleased. I know the other drivers feel the same way about this. The competition tonight was just awesome."

At night's end, Schoenfeld still maintained a slight lead in the points standings over Bramlett, who currently is the top contender for the series' Rookie of the Year award.

"It turned out to be a good clean race," said Bramlett. "At first, some of the guys got crazy, but then things settled down."

"I'm second in points and leading the rookie standings, but I'm not going to dwell on that. We have a lot of races still to go. I'll take one race at a time and just continue to do my best."

The race had six caution periods, two lead changes, and took 45 minutes to complete.

Other feature event winners were Gary Schlechter (Limited Late Models), Bill Loomis (Sportsman), Ed Meredith (Modifieds), Bobby Sears (Mini Stocks), John Mitchell (Bombers), Jerry Orr (Run-Abouts), and Steve Moldon (Mini Bombers).

handful trying to get around him."

Following the lead due to the checkered flag wore Lawrence, Garvey, and Scott Bramlett.

"As the race was winding down, I started to develop a terrible push," said Lawrence. "The more I raced, the worse it got. I realized when I took the checkers that my tire was going down."

"I'm pleased with my finish, though. We had a good third place car tonight. We qualified third and finished third."

A five-car incident involving Dennis Schoenfeld, Rob Lyons, Tony Alteri, Kevin Durden, and Kevin Dicks on lap four brought out the first caution period of the race. After some minor repairs, Schoenfeld - the series points leader - and Durden were able to continue.

Four other caution periods bunched the field for new restarts, but none of the front-running drivers chasing Orr was able to better his position.

"We're happy with our fourth-place finish tonight," said Garvey. "Our team is less than a month old, so we feel we did OK. We weren't bad, but we weren't as good as we wanted to be. We'll have it all together before long."

St. Cloud's Bramlett, who leads the series' Rookie of the Year chase, was pleased with his performance over the weekend.

"With Dennis (Schoenfeld) falling out, we might have taken over the points lead also," said

"As the race was winding down, I started to develop a terrible push," said Lawrence. "The more I raced, the worse it got. I realized when I took the checkers that my tire was going down."

Schoenfeld can attest to bad weekends. On Friday night at Orlando, he hit the wall early but was able to return to action, only to be taken out several laps later when his ride tangled with a lapped car and suffered extensive damage.

On Saturday night, Schoenfeld survived an early-race fender bender, only to blow blow his engine later on the race.

"Lady Luck wasn't with Dennis this week," said Schoenfeld. "I feel real bad for the crew. They worked all last night, getting me ready for this race, and then we fall out. I know we'll be back strong because my guys will put me there."

For his winning effort, Orr pocketed $2,700.

The race, which took one hour and 10 minutes to complete, saw six caution periods and one lead change.

Curried Goat stars at Jamaican weddings

LONGWOOD — One can never say enough about teachers today, and this week's Cook of the Week, Joan Stoney, has an established career in the field of education. Although she'll be the first to admit the feeling of fulfillment she gets from teaching, she also has some very different and delicious ways of preparing food that, without a doubt, will get a compliment or request for the recipe from a friend or neighbor.

Joan was born in Jamaica, moving to the Cayman Islands when she was 8 years old. Living there for 14 years is where and how she learned to develop her native style of Jamaican cooking. She moved to Longwood in 1986 and has lived there ever since.

Milwee Middle School in Longwood is where Joan has been a sixth grade science teacher for the past four years. "I enjoy working with all of the people there," says Joan.

She also enjoys saltwater fishing and a little quiet time at home with a good romance novel. "You know, you just can't help but wish that kind of love would be the same way as it's expressed in the books," she said.

Joan is also a member of the Florida Association of Science Teachers. "This organization helps me keep up to date on all the current science issues," said Joan.

As a single mom, Joan has decided to do her best to provide for her children. She will go back to college to get her master's degree in science education. "You have to have a goal," says Joan. "This is (getting my master's) my next goal. Who knows from there?" she said.

Joan has two children. Desmond is 10 years old and currently attends Longwood Elementary School. He is in the fifth grade. Her daughter, Felicia, is three years old and attends Noah's Ark Pre-School.

Most everything Joan does, she does with her children in mind. If it's a nice day out, she knows the kids will enjoy having a little barbecue-type picnic. As Joan says, I know I'd much rather be outside doing my cooking on a nice day instead of stuck over a hot stove."

Now when it comes to her Jamaican-style cooking, Joan always follows a few good family hints. "With spices for instance, I always use fresh or dried as opposed to ground," she said. "Like with the spice, thyme, you'll find it will have a much stronger flavor if you use fresh," she said. "Jamaican cooking also uses a larger combination of spices."

Joan's recipes for Curried Goat is as different as it is absolutely delicious. "There was never a wedding celebration without curried goat," says Joan. Blue Mountain curry powder from Jamaica, (which can be purchased locally) is the only curry Joan uses. "Rice and Beans" is the kind of meal that one would want to cook on the weekend," says Joan. "Since this isn't the type of meal that you would just put together after work, I've just always made it on a weekend when I have some extra time," she concluded.

CURRIED GOAT

Auntie cuts off giving gifts to ungrateful kin

DEAR ABBY: I'm the aunt of an 18-, 16- and 7-year-old. I have no children of my own, and for the past 18 years I have shipped gifts for every birthday, Hanukkah and Valentine's Day. I usually send cards for Halloween, too (and plenty of "no reason" gifts). I have never received a card for an aunt on Mother's Day and none of these kids know when my birthday is. I never get thank-yous or acknowledgments, so I generally have to call to make sure a package has been received.

This past holiday season (my eighth month of unemployment), I didn't send any gifts at all, but picked it up again in January when I started working. I still haven't heard anything from anybody - evidently it made no difference that they didn't hear from me.

I send those gifts because I love them, and nothing will change that, but I'd be lying if I didn't admit that the gifts have grown less and less generous and are sent with resentment. I blame the parents for not teaching those kids better manners, because they will suffer when they get out in the business world and don't have the manners to write a thank-you note.

I have decided that as each child turns 18, no more gifts. (They probably won't even notice!) Do you blame me?

AUNTIE J. D.L.A.
DEAR AUNTIE: No. More "aunties" should gather the courage to follow your example.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

And that goes for generous uncles, too.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a 55-year-old mama's boy who gave his girlfriend an engagement ring in 1970 but does not allow her to show it to anybody because he doesn't want his mother to find out?

Well, I am the girlfriend. I have gone with Arthur for 10 years, and I am pretty sick of this setup. I met his mother just once when Arthur brought her to the eye doctor. He let me go along for the ride. He never told her I was his girlfriend, though. The problem is, Arthur's mother has money, and she says if he marries, she will leave it all to the church.

He was so confused two years ago he wrote to you, and you told him to talk to his pastor. He said he did, and the pastor told him he was lucky to have such a wonderful mother.

What am I supposed to do now? I am 48 and not getting any younger.

ARTHUR'S GIRL
DEAR GIRL: Put the ring through Arthur's nose and send him back to his mother.

Chicken tacos are easy and nutritious. They combine small amounts of meat with vegetables and optional garnish for a fun, fix-it-yourself supper.

CHICKEN TACOS
2 cups cooked chicken or turkey cut into 1/2-inch cubes*
1/4 cup chopped onion
1 (7 oz.) can Jalapeno or taco sauce

HONEY-ORANGE CHICKEN
1 small onion, sliced
1/4 cup sliced celery
2 medium carrots, sliced
2 whole chicken breasts, split
1 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
Paprika
1/4 cup orange juice
1 1/2 Tbsp. cornstarch
2 Tbsp. brown sugar
2 Tbsp. honey
1 tsp. lemon juice
1/4 tsp. nutmeg
1 1/2 cups fresh pea pods
1 medium zucchini, sliced

Arrange onion, celery, carrots, and chicken in 12x8-inch baking dish. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave on 100 percent power 8 minutes. Drain. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, and paprika. Mix together orange juice, cornstarch, brown sugar, honey, lemon juice and nutmeg in 2-cup glass measure.

Microwave on 100 percent power, uncovered, 2-2 1/2 minutes of until mixture boils, stirring once. Pour over chicken. Cover. Microwave on 100 percent power 10 minutes. Baste chicken with glaze. Add pea pods and zucchini; cover.

Microwave on 100 percent power 6-7 minutes or until chicken is done and pea pods are tender crisp. Serve chicken with vegetables and extra glaze.

Arrange onion, celery, carrots, and chicken in 12x8-inch baking dish. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave on 100 percent power 8 minutes. Drain. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, and paprika. Mix together orange juice, cornstarch, brown sugar, honey, lemon juice and nutmeg in 2-cup glass measure.

CHICKEN TACOS
2 cups cooked chicken or turkey cut into 1/2-inch cubes*
1/4 cup chopped onion
1 (7 oz.) can Jalapeno or taco sauce

8 taco shells
1 cup finely shredded iceberg lettuce
1 large tomato, chopped
4 oz. Monterey Jack cheese, grated
1 1/2 cups sour cream
Chopped fresh coriander
Chopped black olives

Mix chicken, onion and jalapeno sauce together in 1-quart measure. Microwave on 100 percent power 2-3 minutes until warm. Fill shells with mixture and top with lettuce, tomato and cheese. Garnish with sour cream, coriander and olives if desired and serve at once.

*Place chicken breasts in casserole and cover. Microwave on 100 percent power 5-7 minutes, rearranging once. Allow to stand, covered, 5 minutes before using. One pound boneless chicken breasts yields 2 cups cubed, cooked chicken.

water to meat. Add other half of seasonings and cook until meat is tender. Keep adding water a little at a time until meat is tender.

RICE AND BEANS
1 cup of dried red beans
1 coconut, grated
1/4 tsp. salt
2 green onions or scallions
1 sprig fresh or dried thyme or 1/4 tsp. ground thyme
2 cups rice, uncooked

Cover 1 cup red beans with water and soak beans over night. Next day, cook beans until tender. Separate coconut milk from pulp. Discard pulp (Note: the pulp makes great bird food). Cut up dry coconut in small pieces and grate in blender. Add coconut milk, dash of salt, green onion and thyme. Boil for few minutes. Add rice to mixture. Cook until rice is tender, about 15-20 minutes.

CARROT JUICE
1 lb. raw carrots
1 can (8 oz.) sweetened condensed milk
1/4 tsp. cinnamon
1/4 tsp. nutmeg
1 tsp. vanilla

Juice raw carrots. This may be done by using a juicer or a blender. If using a blender, wash and cut carrots into small pieces. Add about 4 cups of water and grate. Use a strainer and separate the pulp. Discard the pulp. Add condensed milk and sweeten to taste. Add cinnamon, nutmeg and vanilla. Stir and chill. Serve over ice (shake or stir before serving).

Corn Chowder sure to make a hit this fall

By MARALISA CALTA
NEA Food Editor

My kids and I hiked a small mountain the other day, and when, panting and perspiring, we reached the top, I had an epiphany: Fall had arrived. The evidence was incontrovertible: a 360-degree panorama of beeches in orange and bronze, birches and poplars just spangled with gold, and, of course, the maples, done up in violent shades of crimson and plum, peach and scarlet. There it was: foliage. Time for the annual Fall Foliage Festival in Maple Corner, Vt. to benefit the community center.

For the foliage festival, I am one of several neighbors who contribute large pots of corn chowder, which is part of a luncheon that includes cider, quick breads, cheddar cheese, apples and doughnuts.

Below is my Corn Chowder recipe.
CORN CHOWDER
4-6 strips bacon
1 onion, coarsely chopped
1 red pepper, seeded and chopped
1 green pepper, seeded and chopped

2 medium potatoes, peeled and diced
1 cup water
1 small bay leaf
1/2 teaspoon dried thyme
2 cups frozen corn
3 cups milk (or 2 cups milk and 1 cup cream)

Freshly ground black pepper
Fresh, chopped parsley or chopped chives, for garnish (optional)

In a heavy skillet over medium heat, cook the bacon until crisp. Drain, reserving 2 tablespoons of drippings.

Return reserved drippings to skillet. Heat, and saute onion and peppers about 5 minutes. Add potatoes, water, bay leaf, and bring to a boil, covered. Reduce heat to simmer and cook until potatoes are tender. Add thyme, corn and milk (or milk and cream). Bring to a simmer but do not boil. Season generously with black pepper. Serve immediately, garnished with parsley or chives, if desired.

Note: This can be made without bacon, by substituting 2 tablespoons of vegetable oil for the bacon drippings, but the result is not as tasty.
Yield: 4-6 servings.

Prices in this ad good Wed., Oct. 6 thru Tues., Oct. 12, 1993.
