Museum plan in danger

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County will ask the state to delay the demolition of the 55-year-old Unit 5 building at the Sanford State Farmer's Market until a proposal is considered to establish the facility as a county agricultural museum.

County historical officials said the Florida Department of Agriculture had planned to award a bid March 30 to demolish the building and pave the site for additional parking at the market at 1300 French Ave.

In other county historical matters, county library services director Jean Rhein asked commissioners to determine who is managing the county museum.

On the demolition matter, Cecil Tucker, president of the Seminole County Historical Society, said he had met with state agriculture officials and gained their tentative approval to give the 10,500-square-foot facility to the county without cost.

Tucker suggested the warehouse facility could be used for displays, depicting celery and citrus packing operations and other agricultural practices used in Seminole County many years ago.

The building was believed to have been built in 1935 or 1936, only a year or two after the market was first opened. The Sanford State Farmer's Market is the first state farmers market in the United States. Unit 5 was used for a transfer terminal for 17 years by Midwest Coast Transport Co. until last year when the company left.

Tucker said the county might pursue a suggestion by Steve Provost, a member of the Seminole County Historical Commission. Tucker said the county could accept ownership of the building, then seek state grants for the museum. If the grants could not be obtained within five years, the building could be returned to the state.

Commissioners agreed to pursue the plan, but with assurances there would be no cost to the county except to secure the building from vandalism when it is not in use.

Regarding the county museum, Rhein has said during recent interviews with candidates for museum curator that she had become aware there was no clear line of responsibility the curator would follow.

Although county museum operations are financed through the Library Services Department, the county commission-appointed Seminole County Historical Commission often acts independently of the libraries, Rhein said. She cited the example of the agriculture museum negotiations Tucker made with state officials separate from the county.

Ex-governor Collins left mark on Seminole County residents

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN

SANFORD — The political vision and leadership of former Gov. LeRoy Collins, who died Tuesday in Tallahassee, profoundly influenced lives in Seminole County and across the state, two former legislators from the Sanford-Lake Mary area said today.

"Collins is remembered locally and nationally for his commitment to civil rights.

Douglas Stenstrom, of Lake Mary, was elected to the Florida Senate in 1954, one year before Collins moved into the governor's mansion. Both men served in Tallahassee until 1961.

"I think LeRoy Collins touched more lives through his public service than any public official in Florida history," Stenstrom said this morning. "Governor Collins' passing ends an era."

"He was an old-fashioned-type public official who voted and did what he felt was right without regard to polls and modern political techniques. Yet he was, I suppose, the most far-sighted public official of his generation," he said.

"He left an indelible imprint on state government," said Sanford attorney Mack Cleveland, who served in the state House of Representatives from 1952 to 1967.

Collins was a state senator during the first two years of Cleveland's tenure in the Legislature.

"There are not too many live statesmen left anymore, and I feel he falls into that category," Cleveland said. "Anybody who can win and lose the battles he has and still be a gentleman is a true statesman."

Collins, in part, earned his statesman status by weathering stormy battles over segregation, Cleveland said. The former governor not only took an unpopular stand on civil rights, but worked to maintain peace among both sides of the issue, he said.

"I admire the way he would stand up for his principles. And on most of them, he was right," he said.

"He gave the kind of leadership the state needed at that time," the Rev. James Hagin of Sanford said today. "He will always stand out with me as being one of the greatest leaders of Florida."

Hagin, of Providence Missionary Church in Lake Monroe, said the former governor's firm and aggressive stance on racial justice made him a leader in the South during the turbulent '60s.

Stenstrom said he collaborated with Collins on the creation of Florida's community college system. Collins had urged the Legislature to develop the system, which now claims 28 schools, including Seminole Community College in Sanford.

Collins appointed Stenstrom to a commission charged with studying methods of acquisition of rights of way in Florida. Stenstrom also worked with Collins as the Senate's representative on a joint committee on mental health. The work of that

Recycling in county hits level

Sanford increase outpaces others areas of Seminole

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Residents of Seminole County recycled about the same amount of garbage in February as they did in January, according to figures released by the county recycling office.

But Sanford residents nearly doubled the amount of garbage they separated for recycling during the second month of the city's recycling program.

Residents of unincorporated areas and those in the six cities with recycling programs separated a total of 710.7 tons of glass, plastic, newspapers and aluminum from their garbage for recycling. In January, a total of 739.6 tons were recycled.

County solid waste officials are uncertain why the recycling levels have remained constant for up to three months now. In December, residents recycled about 450 tons.

"We're still in the beginning months," said Sherry Newkirk, county recycling coordinator. "We just don't have any idea yet what's out there and whether this is all we can do or people are still catching on. We're still in the building stage of residential recycling."

One possibility, they say, is the maximum amount of unincorporated recycling may have been reached under the current voluntary garbage collection program. Officials estimate about 70 percent of the unincorporated residents have garbage service because of the increase in rates following last year's start-up of the franchising and recycling system.

The county is planning to begin a mandatory collection program later this year if the rates can be lowered.

Educators answer questions on hot line

From staff and wire reports

ORLANDO — Many of the hundreds of calls on a nationwide telephone hot line to school principals meeting in Orlando can be traced to society's problems, one of the educators says.

"Our schools are a product of what goes on at the family level everywhere," said Michael Cipriano, principal at Ocean City High School in New Jersey.

Cipriano was one of the scores of volunteers who took calls on the hot line at a conference of the National Association of Secondary School Principals Monday and Tuesday.

Our schools are a product of what goes on at the family level everywhere.

-Michael Cipriano

High school and middle school principals from Seminole County attended the NASSP meeting, but according to Don Smith, principal at Lake Mary High School, none participated in the hot line project.

"As far as I know, none of the Seminole County representatives had anything to do with it," he said. Most of the principals answered simple questions such as what classes a child should take to prepare for college and whether too many after-school activities get in the way of studying.

But then there were the toughies. A parent in Maryland asked how his homosexual son could get along with ninth-graders at a new school.

A man just released from a Pennsylvania prison blamed himself for his son's lack of motivation in school. A mother with a newborn baby wanted to know how to get her high school diploma.

Parents and students are offered anonymity to discuss school discipline, peer pressure, drug abuse and other subjects.

A father asked John Spradling, principal at Park Junior High in Artesia, N.M., for advice on dealing with his homosexual son.

The teen-ager is moving to a new school, the father said, and he worries that the youngster would be ridiculed.

"It was a real tough question," said Spradling, who has worked in

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Skull discovered next to grave

JACKSONVILLE — The discovery of a skull lying next to a freshly dug grave prompted the closing of a 106-year-old church cemetery, at least until authorities can determine the source of the loose bone.

Jeff Waltz was walking his five dogs through the cemetery Sunday at Mount Zion AME Church when his Labrador retriever grabbed the skull in its mouth.

The church followed a state official's suggestion Monday that the cemetery be closed at least until the investigation is over.

The skull may have been dug up when a new casket was buried Feb. 23, said Albert Winter, manager of the state comptroller's office in Jacksonville.

"It's not fair to the people who are buried here or the families of people buried here" to keep the uncharted cemetery opened, he said.

The cemetery contains hundreds of marked and unmarked graves. Many graves are marked only by oval depressions indicating buried caskets.

Cases rest in racketeering trial

MIAMI — Both sides rested their cases in the federal racketeering and extortion trial of longtime Hialeah mayor Raul Martinez.

However, the 12-member jury was unlikely to get the case before Friday, at the earliest.

Martinez's chief counsel, James Jay Hogan, told U.S. District Judge James W. Kehoe Tuesday he was resting his case, and Steven Chaykin, assistant U.S. attorney, said the government would call no witnesses.

Chaykin said the prosecution closing arguments would take three to five hours, with up to two hours of rebuttal after the defense makes its arguments. Hogan said he would need about the same amount of time as the prosecution.

Kehoe recessed the trial, which began Jan. 22, until Thursday.

Martinez, 42, was mayor of Florida's fifth-largest city from 1981 until he was suspended last year following his indictment. He is charged with selling influence and votes.

Army man killed in Mideast is buried

BRANDON — Master Sgt. Randy Hatcher, an 11-year Army veteran killed in a munitions explosion in Saudi Arabia March 2, was buried with military honors at Bushnell National Cemetery in Central Florida.

Acting Army spokesman Master Sgt. Mark Taylor said death of the 32-year-old platoon leader is under investigation and most details, including where he was killed, are classified.

Car Jones said Tuesday all she knows is that her son was killed March 2 when an ammunition storage trailer exploded. That was three days after President Bush declared victory in the Middle East.

"It's hard to understand," she said. "It bothers me because it was all over with."

Survivor at sea arrested on drug charges

VERO BEACH — A man who survived two days at sea and watched his brother die after their boat capsized was arrested in his hospital bed on drug trafficking charges.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Coast Guard said Tuesday it had suspended the search for three men missing from the 21-foot boat. The men originally reported engine trouble on Saturday, and the boat capsized Monday in heavy seas.

Kendrick Perriera Lochan, 25, has been wanted since August 1989 for allegedly serving as a broker for two drug dealers who had approached an undercover police detective posing as a cocaine supplier, Fort Lauderdale police spokesman Otis Cefkin said.

Schools confronted on rape prevention

TALLAHASSEE — A handful of women lawmakers confronted state university presidents on rape prevention and victim assistance.

Twenty-eight percent of the nation's female college students have reported rapes, but administrators have not made the issue a priority, said Sen. Helen Gordon Davis, D-Tampa, said Tuesday. She was one of six legislators who met with the presidents.

"The assumption that we have not always dealt with it properly is ... correct," said John Lombardi, president of the University of Florida.

It's not enough to have services that are technically correct, Lombardi said. They must also be receptive to students.

Charles Reed, chancellor of the university system, defended Florida's schools.

"Protection of our students is paramount," he said, adding, however, that accountability for student safety was a two-way street. The Legislature has not funded requested increases in campus police departments since 1985, he said.

Morris Marx, president of the University of West Florida, also said all of Florida's state universities had counseling programs to help victims.

Special projects out in House

By CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Lawmakers in a House committee showed disappointment over a bleak budget that will include virtually no special projects by approving a tax on advertising to finance political campaigns.

"It was a frustrating day for the members," said Rep. Bo Johnson, D-Milton.

The 0.1 percent tax on print and broadcast advertising, proposed by Rep. Keith Arnold, D-Fort Myers, would raise some $6.5 million a year to fund races for governor and Cabinet. Gov. Lawton Chiles favors a surcharge on existing government trust funds to raise the money.

The House Finance and Taxation Committee, voting on the heels of an announcement Tuesday by legislative leaders that lawmakers' special projects won't get funded this year, approved the rewritten bill (CS-HB 2251) 23-5.

Johnson, chairman of the influential

Rules and Calendar Committee, said the tax probably would not remain in the bill and was a sign that lawmakers are skittish of funding political campaigns while worthy state programs go begging.

"I think there was a message delivered by the members today," Johnson said. "I think this issue will fall out along the way."

House Speaker T.K. Wetherell, D-Daytona Beach, hopes to bring the campaign finance bill to the floor on Thursday. The measure, a cornerstone of Chiles' legislative package, would also impose a flat limit of $500 on contributions to all political races.

Indian population up in state

Associated Press

TAMPA — Florida's American Indian population registered a dramatic increase over the last decade, even though many new residents are not showing up on tribal rolls.

The U.S. Census reported Florida's 1990 Indian and native Alaskan population at 36,335. In 1980, the figure was 19,257.

Peter Gallagher, a writer for the Seminole Tribune, a tribal newspaper published from Hollywood, Fla., said the surge in Indian population could be a combination of a strong effort by the Census Bureau to persuade Indians to be counted, plus ethnic pride and immigration of other tribes into Florida.

Edna Paisano, a Census Bureau statistician and liaison with American Indians, said Florida's growth is in keeping with a national trend, but higher than average.

"The national increase for the American Indians, Eskimos and Aleuts was 37.9 percent from 1980," she said.

"We made an extensive effort to work with the Seminole tribe and the Miccosukee tribe to get a good count in all their reservation and trust land areas," she said.

She said some of the increase across the country could be a sign that people who had not claimed an Indian ancestor were identifying themselves as Indians.

Paisano said the Census Bureau will know more about whether the growth was caused by births, immigration, or a change in racial identification after it reviews the census forms in more detail.

The Indian share of Florida's 12.9 million population remains small, however.

Car crash kills teen heading to reunion

Husband heads home from war

Associated Press

AUBURNDALE — A 17-year-old senior headed for what should have been a joyous reunion with her husband as he returned from the Persian Gulf instead was killed in a head-on collision.

Dreama Mann died in the car crash last Friday as she drove to a farewell dinner at her father-in-law's Polk City home where she stayed while her husband was at war. She was to be laid to rest today.

Mrs. Mann had planned to leave Friday night for Fort Bragg to meet her husband, Sgt. Timothy Alan Mann, as he arrived in Fayetteville, N.C., with the 82nd Airborne Division.

The couple's one-year anniversary would have been March 17. The high school sweethearts had been separated since August when he was called to duty in the Middle East.

"I don't second-guess God, because I can't. But the timing was terrible," Walter Mann, Timothy's father, told The Ledger in Lakeland.

Mann spoke to his son by phone and told him what had happened. "I don't know how well it's hit him," the elder Mann said. "It's going to be much more of a reality after he sees her, I'm sure."

Mrs. Mann was killed when Clarence Wayne Beverly, a 34-year-old Lake Alfred man wanted for violating probation on a cocaine possession charge and driving on a license suspended 12 times, was driving south in a northbound lane, police said. Beverly didn't survive the crash, either.

A warrant was out for Beverly for violating probation on drug charges. Court records showed he failed urinalysis tests three times and was dropped from an outpatient drug program.

City to pay for public safety inoculations

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN Herald staff writer

SANFORD - The city will pay to inoculate up to 152 city public safety workers against a national epidemic of Hepatitis B.

The city commission Monday approved spending up to $20,852 for inoculation of all sworn police officers and certified firefighters. The commission is also considering dipping into its reserves to pay for Hepatitis B inoculation of about 50 sanitary sewer workers.

Police Chief Steve Harriett, who called for the inoculations last month after the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta issued a health alert, said the shots would probably cost about $6,000 less than the allotted $20,000. The initial figure was based on all public safety employees, he said, when only those at risk actually need inoculation. Clerical workers and dispatchers would not need the shots, he said.

Hepatitis B is transmitted through body fluids, and can be contracted by police officers or firefighters through blood of accident victims or other contact with infected persons.

City Manager Bill Simmons said city staff would report cost estimates for inoculating sanitary sewer employees.

AN OPEN LETTER TO OUR SANFORD PLANT NEIGHBORS:

During the past few weeks you may have noticed more smoke from one of the stacks at our Sanford power plant. Let me assure you, as a Sanford area resident myself, there is no cause for alarm. With regulatory approval, we're testing an exciting new fuel and the situation is only temporary.

Here's what's happening at the plant. We have begun test burning a new type of fuel called Orimulsion - a fuel that is less expensive than oil and found in vast deposits in Venezuela. It could substantially reduce our dependence upon oil supplies that are subject to the often unstable conditions in the Middle East. That's been a very important goal for us since we began searching for alternative fuel supplies and sources in the early 1970s.

This is the first U.S. test of this fuel in a power plant. We're testing it because we believe Orimulsion has many characteristics that could make it a very attractive alternative fuel. In addition to saving customers millions of dollars in fuel costs, with the addition of pollution control equipment Orimulsion can be made to burn cleaner than our present oil-fired units.

We have been working very closely with state and federal environmental regulators to ensure that government standards for air quality around our plant are maintained during this test period. These goals are being accomplished. As a major part of the test, we also are evaluating various kinds of equipment to reduce the emissions caused by burning this fuel. I assure you that if a decision is made to burn Orimulsion as a permanent fuel at the Sanford plant, we would take the necessary steps to reduce emissions even lower than they were before the testing began.

All of us at FPL understand how a change in the amount of smoke you have become accustomed to seeing - or not seeing - can cause concern. We thank you for your understanding during this temporary testing. We all hope that some smoke now can be the key to a brighter future for all of us. If you would like some printed information about our testing, call us at 904-257-7149, weekdays 8:30 am-4:30 pm.

Peace economics

When Saddam Hussein invaded Kuwait, he took the world economy hostage. Oil prices rose dramatically. Financial markets took a beating. Interest rates climbed. And the confidence of American consumers ebbed.

In fact, the conflict in the Persian Gulf contributed significantly to the recession that began in the United States during the fourth quarter of 1990, interrupting the longest peacetime expansion in modern American history.

But now that the conflict is over, the American economy appears poised to move into recovery. That the U.S. economy was closely related to developments in the Gulf is evident from the trend lines of several important economic indicators during recent months.

For instance, since Jan. 18, when the allied air offensive began, the price of oil has declined from $32 a barrel to less than $19. As a result, pump prices have fallen more than 10 cents a gallon from an average $1.24 to $1.13. Gas prices would be even lower were it not for the nickel-a-gallon federal tax that kicked in last December.

The successful war effort also has proved a stimulant to Wall Street. The Dow Jones industrial average stood at just over 2,500 in mid-January and is now at just over 2,900, a 15 percent gain. The U.S. market euphoria has spilled over to exchanges in London and Tokyo.

Meanwhile, consumer confidence began to rise in February after falling to a 10-year low in January. More encouraging is the fact that the consumer survey was conducted before the conclusion of the war. Next month's numbers should show a marked improvement.

Perhaps more than any other single bellwether, consumer confidence is key to the overall state of the economy. That is because consumers drive two-thirds of the nation's economic activity.

When consumers are optimistic about business conditions, employment, prices and other economic factors, they spend money, which in turn produces economic growth. When they lack confidence, they do not spend and the economy softens.

It may be premature at this point to declare that the economy has shaken off the doldrums. Various indicators suggest that the economy is still contracting. Nonetheless, with the Persian Gulf war behind us, the economy is almost certain to get better rather than worse.

Make our pundits accountable

The crucible of war distills reality in doubletime. The "lessons of Kuwait" are tumbling forth from every corner, touching every aspect of humanity. I offer three that stuck with me:

About women: If you didn't know it before, know it now — they can do anything.

There was a marvelous interview on CNN with helicopter pilot Maj. Marie Rossi just before she flew a wartime mission into Iraq to bring supplies to American troops. She was asked: Wasn't it really a combat role? She said, very low-key: We're professional soldiers, we volunteered, we're here to do a job.

She seemed tough and soft, beautiful and bright. She was crisp and well-spoken. In that military way, in the interview, she lit up living rooms everywhere, a symbol of can-do feminism, based on meritocracy.

The day after the war ended, her chopper went down, and Maj. Rossi was killed.

About the Soviets: The weaker they are, the better off we are.

America could never have organized the Gulf operation if the Soviets were in their old menacing posture, always backed by 30,000 nukes.

This time, in the beginning, they helped. But during the endgame, they came close to monkey-wrenching the operation by playing footsie with Iraqis. A nuclear ex-superpower, even in a diminished condition, must still be taken very seriously.

The question about whether it would be desirable for the Soviet Union to fragment into its component ethnic parts has been answered. From our perspective, it would be. It weakens them.

About pundits, experts and journalists: Make them more accountable.

David Gergen of U.S. News & World Report makes a sound point: Every other industry in America is moving toward quality control — what about the pundits, the experts and the journals? It's a good question. What about them? Many have much to answer for.

Consider these 100 million who were purveyed to the public: There would be 20,000 American bodybags. Blacks would bear the burden. We needed a draft. The Arab "street" would erupt. An air war can't be surgical. An air war can't work. The president hasn't prepared the country for war. Americans wouldn't support the war. The anti-war movement was growing. The coalition wouldn't hold.

Many facts were wrong, many opinions were (by my lights) off-the-wall. Yet, the prattle shaped the debate. (We came within four Democratic Senate votes of a constitutional firestorm that would have played into Saddam's hands.)

More than ever, pundits and experts play a powerful role in forming policy. When the Gulf War began, it was called "the battle of the columnists."

An underperforming quarterback is benched. Doctors face malpractice action. Politicians face the voters. A general who makes a wrong call doesn't get promoted. They are all also scrutinized by the press-pundit-experts. Such scrutiny often pushes the scrutineers toward better performance.

ROBERT WAGMAN

Reservists can be laid off, too

WASHINGTON — Not all reservists and National Guardsmen returning home from the Persian Gulf will find their old civilian jobs waiting for them.

A common misbelief is that when a reservist or National Guardsman is called to active duty, the law guarantees that his or her civilian job will be waiting when they return.

Not so, says Michael Yates, a benefits expert with the Alexander Consulting Group in New Jersey. He explains:

"Federal law, in this case the Veterans Reemployment Act, requires that an employee being called to active military duty be treated exactly as if they never left. If the job they left still exists when the worker is ready and able to return, then it, or a comparable one, must be given the worker. But if that job has been eliminated through layoffs or RIFs (reductions-in-force), then the employer is under no obligation to re-employ the returning serviceman."

Given the current state of the U.S. economy, that will happen to some reservists and Guardsmen now serving in the Gulf.

According to the Labor Department, more than 1.1 million jobs have been lost in America in the months since Operation Desert Shield began. Some were undoubtedly held by the 200,000-plus men and women called to active duty.

One company has admitted publicly that some of its employees serving in the Gulf will return home to find their jobs eliminated. U.S. Air recently announced a round of pilot layoffs. Affected, the company admits, will be an unspecified number of U.S. Air Force pilots called to active duty in the Gulf.

The key, says Yates, is seniority. "While the worker is away on active duty, his seniority continues to accrue as if he never left the job. If a layoff occurs it has to be done on a seniority basis. If the absent worker does not make the cut, his job is eliminated as if he were there and had not made the cut. But he can't be laid off out of order because he is already gone."

If a reservist or Guardsman returns to find that his job has been eliminated, he is entitled to unemployment benefits like any other worker. A bill now pending in Congress would extend the unemployment benefits of a reservist or Guardsman laid off while on active duty from 13 to 26 weeks.

In addition, an employer must pay the same severance or other termination benefits to an absent reservist as the employer would have paid had the worker still been on the job.

But according to Yates, most reservists and Guardsmen have little to fear.

"We have done some wide-ranging industry surveys over the past couple of weeks," says Yates, "and what we found is that most companies have been very, very lenient in their treatment of workers who have been called up. Many have agreed to pay the difference between their civilian and military salaries; many have continued benefits — especially health insurance for dependents.

That view was echoed by David Maslen, a tax attorney and benefits expert with Alexander, who is himself a Vietnam veteran.

"What I've seen in dealing with a wide range of clients is that things are very different than they were for reservists called up in Korea or Vietnam," Maslen says. "Employers seem to be going out of their way to give their called-up workers every benefit they can. I would not be surprised if workers returning to companies where layoffs have occurred might be given rehiring preference. But that could run afoul of union contracts."

Though most companies are continuing benefits while employees are on active duty, one legal gray area is the continuation of absent employees' participation in profit-sharing plans and so-called 401K savings plans. Participation in these plans is governed by complex Internal Revenue Service regulations that are unclear on how absent reservists should be treated. One bill now on a fast track in Congress will clear the way for companies to retroactively continue called-up workers in company profit-sharing and 401K programs.

Yates cautions reservists that there are certain rules they must follow to insure retention of their jobs.

"They must return to work within 90 days of their military release, and I would strongly suggest — especially for hourly workers — that they preserve their rights by formally reapplying for rehire. If only by writing a letter saying they're back and ready to return to work."

Another gray area is the activated reservist who has been wounded. According to the law, his or her job — or a comparable one — must be held until the reservist is ready to return to work, no matter how long that is.

If the reservist is disabled and physically unable to perform the duties of the old job, then the company must offer one at the same pay that the reservist can do. However, this is not always possible and leads to difficulties.

"If a layoff occurs it has to be done on a seniority basis."

Brady bill faces uphill NRA battle

WASHINGTON — A camera crew set up shop one evening a few weeks ago near a bridge just two blocks from the U.S. Capitol, and they waited for actor Charlton Heston to arrive.

Heston's latest starring role is in commercials for the National Rifle Association, in which he shows the seamier side of Washington, D.C., and makes his point — that the nation's capital is also the murder capital. And if they have guns, why shouldn't you?

Except there isn't much within eyeshot of the Capitol that is seamy enough to make the NRA's point. So while the crew waited for Heston to arrive, they added some cosmetic touches. They chalked graffiti on the bridge support and added an eerie mist — the kind of thing that middle America expects to find in a ghetto.

Heston arrived and taped an ad similar to one that he did three years ago. He walked in front of the bridge support, which, thanks to Madison Avenue, looked like a moldy, vandalized wall of a tenement building. Washington is still the murder capital of the nation, and law-abiding people are taking the heat for it, Heston said. Criminals, not guns, are the problem. Citizens are being disarmed while criminals rule the streets. Then Heston walked past the end of the bridge support and the Capitol loomed in the background.

The ad makes the neighborhood around the Capitol look like murder central, but it was taped in a relatively safe neighborhood. When our associate Scott Sleek asked the NRA about the creative license, a spokesman said it was done to "enhance what was already there."

Why the media blitz now? Because the NRA is doing battle with a formidable opponent, James Brady. He was Ronald Reagan's press secretary on March 30, 1981, when Reagan and his entourage emerged from a Washington hotel and met a barrage of bullets from the gun of John Hinckley. One bullet pierced Brady's skull and, in that act, Hinckley crippled him and created a life-long advocate for gun control.

Ten years later, Brady and his wife, Sarah, are doggedly pressing Congress for a gun-control law called the "Brady Bill." It would require a seven-day waiting period for handgun purchases so police could check the buyer's background. The Bradys are joined by Handgun Control Inc., a public interest lobby, in their campaign to get the bill through Congress.

Congress has been gun-shy about passing the bill because of intense lobbying by the NRA. House Speaker Tom Foley, D-Wash., has said he will allow the Brady Bill its day on the House floor. Gun-control crusaders hope that day comes by March 30, the 10th anniversary of the shooting.

Even though the bill will see the light of day outside of a House committee, it faces an uphill fight. The NRA's political action committee has spread millions of dollars in campaign contributions across Congress.

The gun-control lobby doesn't have the resources that the NRA has, and can't match a media blitz. But the movement has mounted an ad campaign. One magazine ad features a picture of Brady in his wheelchair and the headline, "This handgun statistic just broke his silence."

The gun-control lobby claims the Brady Bill could save thousands of lives, and tens of thousands of head injuries, but that Congress is afraid of alienating the NRA and its money.

Conniff to run for sheriff

WINTER SPRINGS — Republican Larry Conniff announced Tuesday he will run for Seminole County sheriff in 1992. Conniff lost a September 1988 Republican primary bid to former Sheriff John Polk, garnering about 37 percent of the vote to Polk's 63 percent. Conniff said he will build on the support he developed in 1988 against the "unbeatable" Polk.

Conniff serves as a sergeant with the Lake County Sheriff's Department. He previously served under Polk as a deputy, but was required under state law to leave the post to run for sheriff. He has a total of 19 years of law enforcement experience.

If elected, Conniff said he will lead a community battle against drugs and create a citizen's advisory board to offer suggestions to the department. He pledges uniform traffic enforcement and to develop programs to assist battered and abused women and children. He also pledges to give sheriff's personnel who are in contact with the public community relations training and vows continued police training for deputies.

Former Gov. LeRoy Collins dies of cancer at age 82

By BRENT KALLESTAD
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A memorial service is scheduled Thursday for former Gov. LeRoy Collins, who helped lead the fight against racist traditions throughout the South and was credited with guiding Florida into the modern era.

Collins, Florida's governor from 1955 to 1961, died Tuesday from cancer, in his sleep and at home. It was two days after his 82nd birthday. His wife and two of his four children were at his side.

A memorial service is scheduled at 2 p.m. Thursday at St. John's Episcopal Church followed by a private burial service.

The House of Representatives, upon hearing of Collins' death, passed a unanimous resolution honoring him as "Floridian of the Century," then observed a moment of silence.

"Each time I see the fruits of Gov. Collins' work for equality, honesty and commitment to public service I will always quietly thank God for him," Gov. Lawton Chiles said. "The governor's death gives those of us in public service a stronger mission — to carry on what he started."

Collins was elected governor in 1954 to complete the term of Gov. Dan McCarty, who died in office. In 1956, Collins was re-elected for a regular four-year term, becoming the first Florida governor to succeed himself.

"Roy will go down in history as one of the greatest governors any state has ever had," said Reubin Askew, Florida's governor from 1971-79.

Considered one of the "New South" politicians, Collins was chosen to chair the Democratic National Convention in 1960 when John F. Kennedy was nominated for the presidency.

At a time when other Southern governors were fighting court-ordered school integration, Collins preached peaceful compliance with the U.S. Supreme Court's 1954 decision in Brown vs. Board of Education.

The governor stunned segregationists in 1956 by invoking an obscure constitutional provision to adjourn the Legislature, preventing passage of segregationist legislation.

The next year, Collins vetoed a so-called "last resort" bill allowing schools to close to avoid integration, then rallied voters to stop an override effort.

"Any rational man who looks out at the horizon and sees the South of the future segregated is simply seeing a mirage," he said in a speech in South Carolina in 1963. "Above all else it is the moral duty of our generation to plow under racial injustice everywhere in the United States."

Although history has focused on Collins' bold personal initiatives in helping blacks, he also moved Florida into the modern era by persuading lawmakers to begin a junior college system and create a statewide public television network.

"I believe we ought to look for the stars," Collins said in a December 1989 interview. "We can find a lot of stars if we look for them."

One of six children born to a Tallahassee grocer and his wife, Collins spent nearly all of his life in the capital city, most of it on a 10-acre homestead called "The Grove," next to the Governor's Mansion.

He left Tallahassee for a few years in the 1960s, first as president of the National Association of Broadcasters, then as head of the Community Relations Service. Collins organized the national peacekeeping agency at the request of President Lyndon Johnson after the 1964 Civil Rights Act was passed.

In that capacity, he represented Johnson during the 1965 march from Selma to Montgomery, Ala., mediating between the Rev. Martin Luther King's nonviolent followers and Alabama's heavily armed police. That, combined with his promotion of civil rights as governor and his chairmanship of the 1960 convention led his opponents to dub him "Liberal LeRoy."

Collins was unable to shake that tag in 1968, winning the Democratic nomination to be U.S. Senator from Florida but losing the general election to Republican Ed Gurney.

committee boosted Florida's mental health care from last to first in the South, Stenstrom said.

Collins demonstrated a love for people through his hospitality, Cleveland said. Collins frequently hosted legislators at The Grove, his Tallahassee home, and personally thanked those who supported his causes, Cleveland said.

After a House committee debate where Cleveland defended a Collins proposal, Cleveland said, the Sanford representative received a personal note from the governor thanking him for his support.

"This first priority is to make sure the kid is safe and that he gets an education. 'It might not be a big deal at the school,' I told him. But he'd better make sure." # Bush begins diplomatic journey

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent

WASHINGTON — President Bush, embarking on his first postwar diplomatic journey, is opening talks with the leaders of Canada, France and Britain on prospects for a more peaceful and secure Middle East.

Bush was flying to Ottawa today to meet with Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney. Aside from discussing the aftermath of the Persian Gulf War, they also will sign an accord to curb acid rain and express a commitment to cooperate in reducing other air pollutants.

On Thursday, Bush will leave behind the freezing temperatures of Canada and jet to the balmy island of Martinique in the West Indies to see French President Francois Mitterrand. From there, he will go to Bermuda for talks Saturday with British Prime Minister John Major.

"I think these are very important meetings, as these leaders take a look at the postwar situation," White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Tuesday.

Canada, France and Britain were steadfast members of the U.S.-led coalition of nations in the war against Iraq.

Fitzwater said all of the talks will deal with arms proliferation, security in the Middle East, economic development and the Mideast peace process.

Canadian officials said Mulroney would push the idea of a permanent arms embargo to restrict the spread of weapons worldwide.

Fitzwater said Bush shares Mulroney's objective for a more stable Middle East but does not plan to halt all arms shipments to the region.

"We believe stability in the region requires a balance of weapons, and we don't anticipate a cutoff," he said. "We've been very clear on our policy in that area." The United States already plans to sell F-16 warplanes, "smart" bombs, cluster bombs and missiles to Egypt, and to provide new military aid to Israel, Saudi Arabia, Turkey and others in the region.

The president's diplomacy parallels the efforts of Secretary of State James A. Baker III, who has been touring the Middle East trying to sell Arabs and Israel on Bush's Mideast settlement formula.

Democrats dump civil rights bills

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — A week after President Bush urged Congress to turn swiftly to his domestic agenda, Democratic lawmakers are shoving aside administration proposals on crime and civil rights in favor of their own plans.

Bush's version of the civil rights bill was alive for barely five hours after its introduction on Tuesday when the House Education and Labor Committee buried it and passed instead a more sweeping Democratic measure.

In both the House and Senate, Democrats signaled they were prepared to push their own gun-control bills, previously opposed by the president. They contended that Bush's anti-crime measures didn't do enough to limit firearms.

"It's not what the president has in his legislation that I oppose. It's what he doesn't propose," said Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee. He introduced his own crime bill that would ban 14 automatic weapons.

The moves were the first significant steps that legislators have taken on major domestic bills of this session. They followed by a week Bush's call for action within 100 days, which he delivered in his celebratory end-of-the-year speech to a joint session of Congress.

While they constituted a rebuff to the president, the actions had been planned before his speech. They were delayed by the nation's preoccupation with the Persian Gulf War and Congress' own normal slow start.

With passage in two House panels, Democrats signaled they intend to move quickly on an anti-discrimination bill similar to one that passed with 65 percent majorities in both chambers last year. Bush vetoed that bill, contending it would force employers to use quotas in hiring and promotion. Civil rights advocates dispute that argument.

McDonald's to start selling low-fat burger

Associated Press

NEW YORK — McDonald's Corp. plans to start national sales of a low-fat hamburger it has been selling in selected markets, according to a published report.

The New York Times reported in its Wednesday edition that some franchisees of the restaurant chain said Tuesday that national advertising of the hamburger would start April 19 and it would be made available April 26.

McDonald's scheduled a news conference at its Oak Brook, Ill., headquarters for Wednesday morning. The company said it had summoned reporters to announce national introduction of a new product, but would not be more specific. The company would not comment on the Times report.

McDonald's introduced the Lean Deluxe in Harrisburg, Pa., in November.

The Lean Deluxe is 310 calories with its condiments and 29 percent of its calories are fat. That compares to 410 calories for the Quarter Pounder, with 44 percent of its calories as fat.

Groups such as the American Heart Association, the National Cancer Institute and the American Dietetic Association recommend that less than 30 percent of the calories consumed in a serving should be from fat.

Bakers' Mideast trip involves campaigning for peace talks

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

DAMASCUS, Syria — Secretary of State James A. Baker III, on the final leg of his Middle East trip, is looking for the opening that would get Syria and the Palestinians talking to Israel.

Baker also is likely to look for word on American hostages held in Lebanon. According to some reports, they have been moved from Beirut to the Syrian-controlled Bekaa Valley.

Syrian President Hafez Assad has improved ties with the United States by supporting the war on Iraq to liberate Kuwait and volunteering to contribute 20,000 to 30,000 troops to a permanent security force for the Persian Gulf.

Baker would like the Syrian leader to show interest in negotiations with Israel. A starting point could be talks with Israel to demilitarize the Golan Heights.

Syria lost the territory to Israel in the 1967 six-day war and part of it was annexed. Assad would like to get the land back.

On Tuesday in Israel, Baker opened new talks with Palestinian Arabs and took up with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir demands from Arab nations that Shamir prove he is willing to make concessions in their direction. A senior U.S. official said Shamir took the request under consideration.

Baker is touring the Middle East trying to sell Arabs and Israel on President Bush's formula for a Mideast settlement — that Israel relinquish land in order to gain the acceptance of its Arab neighbors.

The senior official, who demanded anonymity, told reporters they "could assume" Baker raised the land-for-peace approach with Shamir.

They met for 75 minutes and, in an unusual flourish of secret diplomacy, excluded even note-takers from most of the one-on-one discussion in Shamir's office.

By contrast, Baker's meeting with 10 Palestinians was widely publicized by American and Palestinian participants.

While Baker said nothing about his session with the prime minister, he called the meeting with the Palestinians in the home of U.S. Consul General Philip Wilcox a "window of opportunity."

Faisal Husseini, a spokesman for the delegation, said "we told him we are here because Yasser Arafat (chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization) told us to be here." Husseini is widely regarded as the leading PLO supporter on the West Bank.

The group presented Baker with an 11-point memorandum reaffirming that "the PLO is our sole legitimate leadership and interlocutors, embodying the national identity and expressing the will of the Palestinian people everywhere."

The Bush administration a year ago suspended U.S. talks with the PLO on grounds it was still carrying out terrorist attacks against Israel.

According to the senior U.S. official, the Palestinians registered their complaints with Baker about such Israeli actions as curfews and deportations.

The official said the Palestinians wanted to continue the talks in the future and the United States would comply to any such request.

"They came, in part, to convey to us that they want to be involved," the official said.

Bush's media adviser plans troops' tribute

By RYA BEAMISH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Bush's longtime media guru Roger Ailes is laying plans for a television extravaganza to salute the U.S. troops who served in the Persian Gulf War.

The show would feature entertainment celebrities in performance before an audience of troops and their families, Ailes said Tuesday. He said the plans are still in formative stages, with a final deal yet to be signed for the show to go forward.

Still to be decided is where the show would be held, and whether President Bush and other administration officials would join the audience.

Ailes said he envisioned the show as "a bipartisan kind of tribute to the troops.... It would be really to entertain the troops and their families."

The idea originated with Ailes and other TV producers.

NBC takes top place in ratings

By DEBORAH HASTINGS
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES — Now that the war is over, NBC is back on top in the ratings.

The network regained its No. 1 position with a 12.2 rating last week, the A.C. Nielsen Co. reported Tuesday. It was the first weekly win for NBC since Jan. 13.

ABC followed closely with a 12.1 and CBS had an 11.4. Each ratings point represents 931,000 homes.

NBC had lost viewers to war coverage on CNN and ABC and lost to CBS in the February "sweeps," during which ratings are used to set advertising rates.

A rerun of NBC's "Cheers" was the most-watched show on television last week. CBS' "60 Minutes" and a repeat episode of ABC's "Roseanne" tied for second.

Secretary general to be named soon

By PETER JAMES SPIELMANN
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS — The United Nations is searching for a new secretary-general to replace retiring Javier Perez de Cuellar, and already a list of 17 candidates has emerged.

Perez de Cuellar, 71, said in January that 1991 would be "the 10th and final year of my tenure as secretary-general."

The 15-member Security Council is expected to recommend a successor by summer, and then the 159 General Assembly nations will vote on the nominee.

According to sources, two ad hoc search committees are now reviewing candidates. One group is a team of Soviet, U.S. and British diplomats, and the other is a group of General Assembly members and non-aligned Security Council nations.

Former British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and former Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze have been mentioned as candidates, but are considered unlikely because the Security Council has traditionally shunned candidates from among its permanent five members.

The other permanent members are the United States, France and China. Perez de Cuellar is Peruvian.

There is strong sentiment for an African or other Third World candidate for the post, which is in charge of running the 14,000-member U.N. staff and administering its $1 billion annual budget. China especially wants an African candidate to be picked for the first time.

India's president clears way for May elections

By ARTHUR MAX
Associated Press Writer

NEW DELHI, India — India's president dissolved Parliament today to clear the way for May elections, just 18 months and two short-lived governments after the country's last nationwide vote.

The action ended a week of uncertainty following the resignation of Prime Minister Chandra Shekhar's minority government.

President Ramaswamy Venkataraman, in an announcement published today, said a new parliament should be constituted by June 5. Indicating elections would be held in late May, three years ahead of schedule.

A veteran politician but a novice in the top circles of government, Chandra Shekhar lasted three months as head of a minority government in the world's largest democracy.

Trustees reject settlement

SCC contends school's responsibility is to educate

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Without much flourish the Seminole Community College board of trustees decided to reject an out of court settlement with the American Civil Liberties Union regarding the school's showing of the "Last Temptation of Christ" in February of 1990.

In a 2-1 vote that took less than five minutes, the board of directors decided not to accept the agreement which called for the school to show the film to an unrestricted audience and to pay half of the $16,000 in attorney's fees incurred by the ACLU.

Clarence Forbes, who was appointed to the board after the original controversy over the showing of the film began last year, registered the sole dissenting vote. Mary Bell Streetman, acting as chairman at last night's meeting, declined to vote on the issue. Lee Russell was not present at the meeting.

Dr. Jim Sawyer, spokesman for the college declined to comment on the decision saying that the case was in litigation and he was not at liberty to discuss the details.

Asked if it wouldn't have been more cost effective for the college to settle amicably with the ACLU rather than pursue the case further, he refused to "second guess" the trustees' decision. "They are the governing body of the college," Sawyer said. "I can not speak for their decision."

Trustees have been advised by counsel to not discuss any aspect of the case, including their decision last night, while the case is in litigation.

"We can't discuss anything at all about it," Streetman said. "That's it."

Emergency shelters formalized

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The School Board of Seminole County entered into an agreement with the Red Cross of Central Florida to continue to use nine Seminole County schools, including three in Sanford and Lake Mary, as primary emergency shelters.

As many as 31,206 people could be accommodated in the shelters if the need arose.

The shelters would be used as evacuation sites in case of hurricanes, floods or other natural disasters.

None of the structures are to be used as bomb shelters.

"We have used the schools as evacuation shelters in the past for hurricanes and such," Walter Meriwether, coordinator of risk management for the district, said.

Meriwether said that past agreements with the Red Cross have been "gentlemen's agreements," a situation that has "worked fine" in the past, but which all parties involved felt needed to be formalized.

"We all just wanted to get everything in writing," Meriwether said.

The contract, approved yesterday by unanimous vote, spells out in detail the roles that both the district and the Red Cross would play in operating a shelter in an emergency.

It will be the decision of the superintendent of schools to release students from classes and open a school for use as a shelter. Once the facility's function has changed, however, the shelter manager would be in charge at the school.

The shelter manager will be either the principal or one of his designees. The manager will have final authority on matters regarding utilization of the facility as a shelter.

A Red Cross manager will be in charge of the evacuees and operational matters.

Any school employee who works at the shelter during a disaster will be given compensatory time after the disaster is over equivalent to the time worked.

Controlled burn rages out of control

OSTEEN — What started as a controlled burn of rural land yesterday, ended up as a major brush fire that could be seen from the Sanford area, and brought out fire fighting equipment from six departments.

According to Volusia County Fire Inspector Bob Stevens, a controlled burn was started on property near Lemon Bluff Road, southeast of Osteen, but it got out of control and resulted in the burning of an additional 260 acres. Stevens said the property was owned by Charlie Heck, Jr.

Stevens said he received the fire alarm at 1:15 Tuesday afternoon, and had fire fighters on the scene within five minutes.

Eltonhead puts gaff to Barracudas for Seminoles

By BILL KERNS
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Jon Eltonhead hurled a three-hitter as Seminole beat New Smyrna Beach 4-1 in a high school baseball game played Tuesday afternoon at Seminole High School.

Eltonhead, 4-2, struggled in the first two innings, yielding hits to Shaun Jones and Trey Peterson while walking two and hitting a batter. But he worked his way out of both jams as the Barracudas, who scored only a run in the second inning, left the bases loaded in both innings.

Recovering from the rocky start, Eltonhead retired the next 15 batters before Chris Peterson of New Smyrna Beach singled in the seventh.

"He wasn't sharp in the first two innings," said

Owens and West, Eltonhead and Freeman, WP — Eltonhead (4-2).
LP — Owens, 2B — None, 3B — None, HR — None, Records — New Smyrna Beach, 4-5, Seminole, 5-9.

Seminole Coach Mike Powers. "But once he started throwing the fastball and getting ahead of the hitters, he pitched like a pitcher's supposed to pitch. You can't fall behind a team like New Smyrna Beach."

Seminole, 5-9, scored two runs in the bottom of first for the early lead. David Eckstein and W.L. Gracey singled while New Smyrna Beach committed two throwing errors.

Eckstein and Gracey both singled again in the fifth as Seminole, aided by a crucial New Smyrna

Beach throwing error, added two runs for the final margin.

"He kept us off guard with a curve ball, and we played real sloppy," said Powers.

New Smyrna Beach played flat at start of the game, committing four errors, leaving eight runners on base and failing to execute in key situations.

"I should of shook them up," said New Smyrna Beach assistant coach Steve Foglio, filling in for head coach David Moschowwitz, whose wife was having a baby. "We got here late, then we rushed through warm ups. I thought we had a veteran ball club, but it was my fault. It's the coach's job to shake up a ball club."

Seminole will be back in action this afternoon, hosting Lake Mary in a Seminole Athletic Conference game at 3:30 p.m.

Lake Mary rocks Tribe

Rams collect 17 hits in rout

By PHIL SMITH
Herald Correspondent

LAKE MARY — Dena Morasch, Maria Montalvo, Renee Sanville and Pam Davis each had two hits as Lake Mary pounded Seminole 14-1 in a Seminole Athletic Conference softball game Tuesday afternoon.

"We've been really working hard on our hitting in practice and today we came out and hit very well," said Lake Mary Coach Jeanne Fisher. "Everyone played today and played well."

The Tribe, now 1-5 overall and 1-4 in the SAC, took a 1-0 lead in the top of the first. With one out, Argie Walker reached on an error, advanced to third on Valerie Willis' single and scored on Rita Frison's ground out.

But the Rams, 8-3 overall and 2-2 in the conference, came back with two runs in the bottom of the first inning. Morasch and Montalvo singled with one out, Montalvo taking second on the throw to third. Sanville then followed with a single to score both Morasch and Montalvo.

Lake Mary exploded for five runs in the second inning. After Lisa Maslunuk, Jennie Longstaff and Davis hit consecutive singles to load the bases, Laurel Meoli singled in Maslunuk. Tara Calvin cleared the bases with a double down the left field line, took third on the throw home and scored on Morasch's single.

Lake Mary put the game away with two runs in the third inning and four more in the fourth.

"We made a few mistakes and gave them some runs today," said Seminole Coach Greg Registrar. "But the girls are working hard and improving with every game. We will be competitive in our district this season."

Seminole will host Eustis this afternoon and Lake Highland Prep on Thursday afternoon. Lake Mary travels to Lake Brantley on Thursday evening.

While Lake Mary did out-hit Seminole 17-5 on Tuesday, it was defensive plays like this one made by second baseman Robyn Dazey that helped the Rams keep the Seminoles from getting anything started offensively.

Sturdivant, Lake Brantley top Oviedo

From staff reports

OVIEDO — Shelley Sturdivant went 3-for-4 with an inside-the-park grand slam and five RBI to lead the Lake Brantley Patriots to an 8-1 victory over the Oviedo Lions in a Seminole Athletic Conference softball game Tuesday afternoon at Red Bug Lake Park.

The Patriots, now 7-1 and 4-0 in the SAC, took the lead in the top of the third inning when Jennifer Soost and Kelly Hartman led off with a pair of singles. One out later, Michelle Davis walked loading the bases.

Sturdivant then blasted a long drive to straight away center that rolled all the way to the fence, giving the Patriots a 4-0 lead.

Lake Brantley increased their lead in the fourth inning. Nicole Rathbun and Jennifer Masciarelli led off with singles. Hartman followed with another single scoring Rathbun.

Davis then reached on an error scoring Masciarelli and Hartman scored on a subsequent throwing error making it a 7-0 contest, and the Patriots never looked back.

"The girls played much better today," said Lake Brantley Coach Debbie Frank. "We've been leaving too many runners on base, but today we got some key hits to push some runs across."

This afternoon, the Patriots will travel to Spruce Creek to tangle with the Hawks before returning home. See Softball, Page 2B

Kart veteran Russ needs just eight races to claim first Late Model victory

Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — Shane Russ, a 20-year-old driver who successfully competed on the national kart racing circuit, scored his first ever Late Model feature win in FASCAR-sanctioned stock car racing action on Friday night at Orlando SpeedWorld.

Saturday night's card at New Smyrna Speedway was rained out.

Sponsored by Russ Citrus Graves, Russ — a protégé of 1991 World Series titlist Dick Anderson — drives a car purchased from Anderson, who also does the chassis set-up and fine tunes the engine.

With such a combination, Russ definitely expected to win sooner or later. But the victory came sooner than expected, in just his eighth start at the wheel of this topnotch car.

"My future plans include competing on the NASCAR Winston All Pro circuit," said Russ, who started the feature race in third place. At the green, the two front row dwellers were eliminated in a crash and Russ found himself on the pole at the restart.

From there, he managed to lead all the way as he bested FASCAR king David Russell for the win.

With four laps to go, second and third-place runners Bob Ackerbloom and Ronnie Roach tangled. While Ackerbloom's mount was too heavily damaged to continue, Roach made it back up to fifth at the finish behind young Steve Latham and Jimmy Wilkins.

In the special 20-lap event for the four-cylinder Mini Stocks, Bobby Sears made a successful late-race move on Gene Van Alstine, who had held the point for the first 14 laps. At that point, Sears trapped the leader in between lapped car traffic and went by for the lead and the win.

Wally Patterson led all the way to win the Florida Modified final. Barbara Pierce accomplished the same feat in the Bomber feature, going to wire-to-wire for the victory.

Scott Bramlett also led the whole way in winning the Limited Late Model final. The Sportsman feature went to Ricky Marshall. Spectators race winners were Shane Crowe and Robin Wolfe.

IN BRIEF

Kids can sample military life

Adventure on the high seas has fired the imagination of youngsters since the dawn of time. Standing on a pier in a seacoast community or nestled before a crackling fire in a prairie hut with "Moby Dick," children have been fascinated with life beyond the shoreline.

Since 1962, boys and girls 14 — 17 have enjoyed nautical life through the Navy Sea Cadet Corps Program.

The NSCC program allows young people to sample military life while in school with no obligation to join any branch of the Armed Forces. Should a cadet decide to enlist in the Navy or Coast Guard, prior training in the Sea cadets may permit entry at an advanced paygrade.

Basic training is performed during the cadet's first year in the program at the Orlando Naval Training Center for two weeks. After successful completion, cadets are eligible for further training aboard Navy or Coast Guard ships. Senior cadets are afforded the opportunity for advanced seminars in submarine warfare aviation operations, construction, medicine and other specialized fields.

Like all youth-oriented organizations, the Sea Cadets are in dire need of adult volunteers. Active, retired and Reserve personnel are urged to volunteer. Non-military personnel with an interest in helping Cape Canaveral's youth are also encouraged to volunteer.

For more information, contact the Courageous Division, Lieutenant Richard Trevathan at 1-407-727-1583; or Chason Trevathan at 1-407-724-4087.

NSCC is a federally incorporated non-profit organization sponsored by the Navy League.

If he didn't cook, nobody ate

Cook says men shouldn't be shy in kitchen

By JOAN KING
Herald correspondent

DELTONA — James Garland has lived in Florida for four years. He and his wife Diana have been married less than one year and live in Deltona.

Garland is originally from Paducah, Kentucky which is how he got his nickname. His friends call him "Paducah."

Recently, Garland cooked for the Eagles' Sanford Aerie and fed about 100 people deep fried turkey and barbecued ham.

Our Cook of the Week is the father of three daughters by a previous marriage and has hopes that they will be fine cooks.

"I'm a self-taught cook. When my parents divorced, mom took my three sisters to live with her and dad took us four boys. My older brothers worked in the fields and dad worked too. It was up to me to fix meals or we didn't eat, so I did," he said.

Garland tempts the imagination with a story of his home-grown specialty of Italian beef. Pressed for details, he reveals the concoction was taught to him by "Greasy John, the Greek." Pressed further he said, "It's roast beef, Italian style made into sandwiches."

When asked for the recipe he refused. Garland and his friends gathered around the outdoor cooker and chuckled over the Italian beef story. It appears to be a tall tale.

Our cook is a good-natured man with an easy smile and a pleasant way of speaking.

Garland offers some advice to men who want to cook but don't.

He said, "Don't be afraid to try. I'm proud to cook. I enjoy it. Every man should try. Also, don't be afraid to use alcohol in cooking. It's a great meat tenderizer and tastes good in food — while the alcohol cooks out, the flavor stays."

DEEP FRIED TURKEY

21 pound whole turkey
2 1/2 to 5 gallons peanut oil
Thaw turkey, rinse in cold water. Dry cavity and outside with paper towels. Use enough oil to cover the turkey in the deep fryer in a heavy duty fryer basket. Bring oil up to 250°. Slowly lower turkey in the basket and sink it in the oil. Cook for 1 hour and 5 minutes. Cool for 35 minutes before slicing.

BARBECUED HAM

One 10 pound ham will feed about 15 to 17 people.

Trim rind and excess fat from ham. Rinse in cold water. Place wet ham on BBQ grill. Gas grill is best for even temp. Close lid and allow to smoke on low heat for 20 minutes per pound for pre-smoked ham. Fresh pork will take 35 minutes per pound until juices run clear. Allow to cool for 30 minutes before slicing. Serve with your favorite BBQ sauce.

Go bananas when you make dessert

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Bananas are our third most popular fruit, and they appeal to young and old. They are easily digested and nutritious, and their special sweetness satisfies a craving for dessert.

Bananas, like pears, are picked green and can be ripened on the counter at room temperature. As a banana becomes dotted with brown spots, it becomes sweeter and softer. And, despite the old warning, bananas can be kept in the refrigerator once ripened. The skin will turn black but further ripening is stopped.

Although some young entrepreneurs are growing exotic varieties of bananas in California, the familiar yellow Cavendish, or yellow banana, is at its best when grown in the tropics.

It is no wonder that those on the island of Jamaica include this fruit in their daily diet. Often they highlight it with the island's own allspice, a product of a stubborn evergreen tree of the myrtle family that to this day refuses to bear when moved away from its Caribbean homeland. Jamaica is the prime source for allspice berries that are sold whole or ground. Allspice got its name because its aroma suggests a blend of spices, with that of clove being predominant, although it is not a clove.

Some recipes call for allspice

berries, and the whole berries are used in meat broths, gravies and pickling liquids. Use ground allspice in cakes, fruit pies, relishes, preserves, sweet yellow vegetables and tomatoes.

JAMAICAN BAKED BANANAS

4 large firm, ripe bananas
1/3 cup dark rum
1/4 cup butter or margarine, melted
1/4 cup firmly-packed light brown sugar
1/4 teaspoon ground allspice
3 tablespoons lemon juice

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Peel bananas; slice in half crosswise. Place in a greased 1 1/2 to 2-quart casserole. Combine rum, butter, brown sugar, allspice and lemon juice. Pour over bananas, turning bananas to coat. Cover and bake until bananas are easily pierced with a paring knife, about 20 minutes. Serve warm. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 servings.

STUFFED BAKED PEARS

2 cups water

1 cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar, divided
3 tablespoons lemon juice, divided
1 1/2 teaspoons ground allspice, divided
4 firm, ripe pears (about 2 pounds)
1/4 cup dark raisins
2 tablespoons chopped walnuts

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. In a metal 8-by-8-by-2 inch baking pan, combine water, 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 1 teaspoon allspice. Place over high heat; bring to a boil, stirring until sugar dissolves; set aside. Peel pears, leaving stems intact. With an apple corer or melon baller, core each pear from the "stem" end, forming a 1/2-inch diameter opening; cut a thin slice from the bottom of each pear so it stands straight.

In a small bowl, combine raisins, walnuts, remaining 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice and 1/2 teaspoon allspice. Stuff raisin mixture into pear cavities, dividing evenly. Stand pears in reserved baking pan with syrup. Cover with foil; bake until pears are tender, 20 to 25 minutes. Transfer pears with syrup to a bowl; cover and refrigerate until cold, about 2 hours. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 servings.

Pain calls for a complete physical

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm losing faith in my doctor. I have severe aches and pains in my legs, especially at night. I had active ulcers a few years ago and also experience stomach pain. All my doctor does is write out prescriptions, and he hasn't even given me a real physical. What would you suggest?

DEAR READER: A real physical.

After taking a detailed medical history, a doctor should perform a complete physical examination on any patient with symptoms, such as pain. Then, appropriate testing can be considered.

Your stomach pains could be due to recurrent peptic ulcers. These are diagnosed by an upper GI series (X-rays of your upper gastrointestinal tract). Such X-rays would also indicate hiatal hernia and gastritis, two common conditions that cause symptoms similar to those from ulcers.

The medical history may enable the doctor to differentiate the many causes of abdominal pain. An examination will further narrow the possibilities. For example, heart disease is sometimes associated with abdominal pain, as is aortic aneurysm (swelling of the aorta) and "intestinal angina" (lack of blood supply to the bowel). These conditions can often be discovered during examination, without the need for expensive testing.

Similarly, the cause of your leg aches could be diagnosed by a meticulous examination, during which the doctor checks the pulses in your lower extremities and assesses circulation to the muscles. Perhaps you have arteriosclerotic obstruction of the arteries to your intestine AND to your legs, with resulting symptoms.

Unfortunately, in the medical profession, familiarity may lead to carelessness. If your doctor has known you for many years, he or she may engage in time-saving shortcuts: less listening to your complaints and less examining. Even if your doctor is familiar with you, you still deserve a suitable examination. Ask for one, or request a referral to another physician.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Help I — Physical Illness." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their names and

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

It is often said — correctly — that many contracts are lost by playing too quickly at the first trick. When the dummy appears, always stop and consider all of your choices.

Once North opened the bidding and showed spade support, there was no holding South. He didn't use Blackwood immediately, because if North showed only one ace, he couldn't be sure whether it was the heart or the club ace. Instead he cue-bid the ace of diamonds and then asked for aces when his partner revealed the ace of hearts.

West led the king of clubs and South played too quickly. He could see a diamond loser in both hands, so he called for dummy's ace of clubs and threw his two of diamonds onto the table. Not foreseeing the forthcoming catastrophe, declarer confidently drew trumps and turned to the hearts. West's discard caused South's jaw to sag several inches. Then he complained about bad luck.

However, his partner had spotted the correct play. At trick one declarer should discard a heart on the ace of clubs. He draws trumps and turns to the hearts. When the 4-0 break is disclosed, he ruffs the fourth round in hand, returns to dummy with a trump (I hope you saw the need to retain the jack as an entry) and discards the two of diamonds on the established five of hearts.

Here declarer had three choices at trick one: to ruff the club lead (which is also a successful play) or to win with dummy's ace and discard a diamond or a heart. He should have analyzed all of them.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
March 14, 1991

Two expectations that you were unable to fulfill last year might become realities in the year ahead. Don't give up on your dreams; they haven't been denied, just delayed.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The more independently you are able to operate today, the more effective you are likely to be.

Don't let anyone put you in a position that could inhibit your flexibility. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're likely to be responsive to a person who is truly in need of your assistance today. In fact, there is a possibility you might even make some sacrifices if necessary.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Much to your credit, you'll project a very friendly ambience that will be readily perceived by those with whom you'll be involved today. In fact, the whole world will see you as a friend.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) What appeared to be difficult earlier in the week could turn out to be a breeze today. Things you previously perceived as obstacles might now be used as stepping stones.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You should be able to handle most developments rather well today, but your greatest strength is likely to be in situations which permit you to use the full scope of your imagination.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Follow your intuition in commercial dealings today, even if your logic dictates otherwise. Your instincts will be difficult to match.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You might have to deal with someone who is hard to figure out today, and the only way you'll be able to make headway is through this individual's emotions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you have to perform an arduous task today, try to do it far from the range of kibblers and advisors. Left to your own devices, you'll do a good job.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You may be in love with love today, and there is nothing wrong with that. In fact, there is ample room in this world for an optimistic romantic.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Unless you discipline yourself today, there is a possibility you may not do your best on critical assignments, especially those where deadlines are involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There is a strong probability that your phone may be a rather busy instrument today, either with you trying to reach others or others trying to reach you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you have the time, money and inclination, today could be a good day to go shopping. Your instincts for spotting bargains are especially sharp.
