New Fire Truck Due By Oct. 1

The Sanford Fire Department's new $297,000 aerial fire truck is scheduled to arrive in the city sometime between Sept. 15 and Oct. 1.

In the intervening weeks, city firefighters will be at work modifying the central bay at the fire department headquarters at 1319 French Ave. so the new apparatus can be kept indoors.

"The unit is a little taller than we anticipated," said Fire Chief William C. Gailey. "But instead of building a new bay for it, we are going to modify the central bay and save a lot of money," he said.

The work is being done by the firefighters on a voluntary basis in their spare time. Gailey estimates it will take about two weeks to do the job. About $2,000 in labor costs will be saved, by the volunteers, he said.

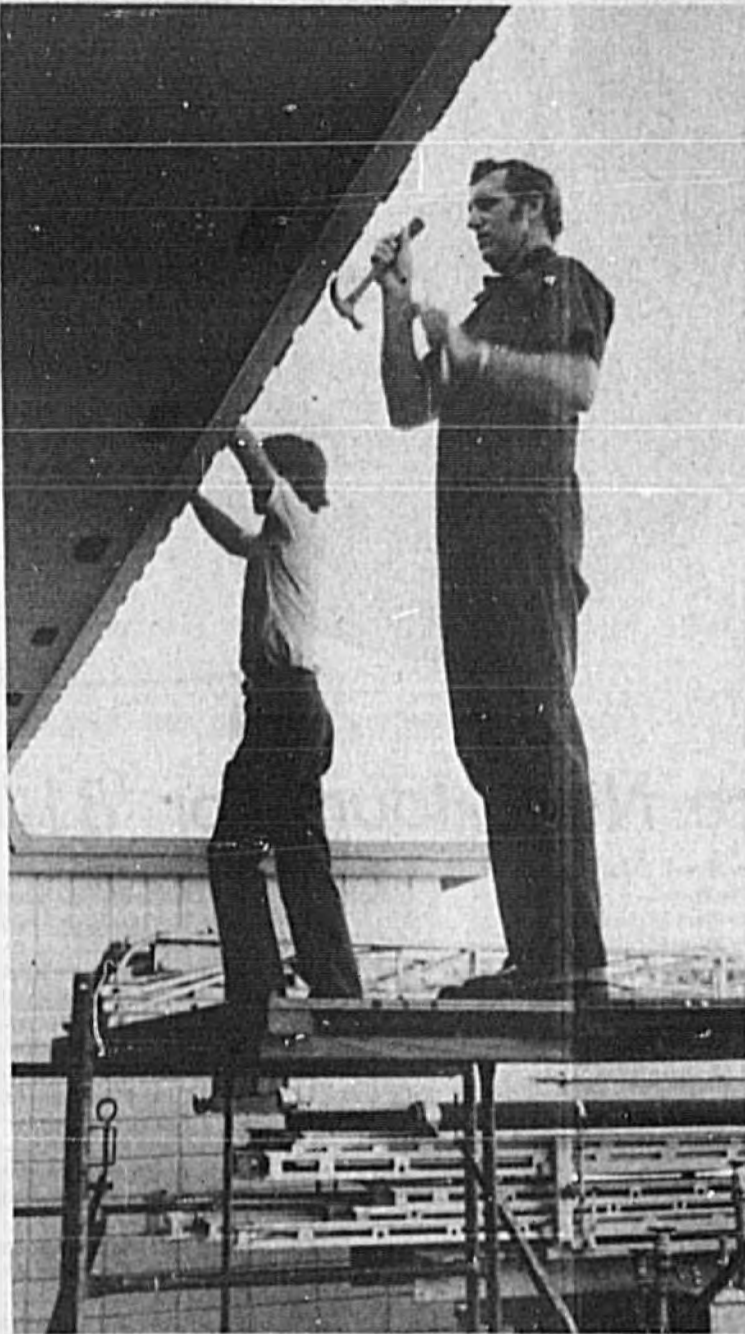

City Commissioners Monday night approved an expenditure of $745.73 for materials for the job.

Gailey said the entrance to the bay is about 12 inches shorter than it must be to accommodate the truck.

The firefighters began the modifications Tuesday. An 18-inch square is being cut out of the concrete floor. Anchors are going to be set in and concrete poured around the floor and steel columns to support the roof. A total of six steel columns will ultimately be set in concrete to support the beams overhead to permit expanding the entranceway.

The columns will support steel plates overhead which in turn support the trusses that extend along the interior of the roof, Gailey said.

The department is looking toward the arrival of the new aerial truck, Gailey said. The city commission agreed to purchase the truck more than two months ago. Its original price tag was $320,000. The city was able to get a better price, however, by accepting a vehicle which is to be displayed at the Inter-

Compromise Eases County Flood Worry

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

A method of providing flood protection at the county's Emergency Operations Center (EOC) at Five Points in south Sanford has been found — at a cost less than the $14,000 high capacity pump recommended earlier by county staff and building architect Keith Reeves.

County Commissioners, on a 3-1 vote Tuesday agreed to spend about $800 to provide an alternate method.

A pump will be transferred from the environmental services department to the center and will be installed by county personnel. The pump has a capacity of 120 gallons per minute and costs about $400. At the same time county workers will build a concrete ramp at the entranceway where flooding has occurred to direct water away from the building. Labor and concrete for the ramp will cost about $400.

The plan was worked out by Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff and county staff Monday.

Kirchhoff was instrumental in blocking the $14,000 "solution" for more than six weeks.

Earlier County Public Safety Director Gary Kaiser and Reeves recommended installation of a pump with the capacity of pumping 20 inches of rainfall per hour from the facility. Reeves reported to the board, however, that the heaviest rainfall ever recorded in the state was 9.67 inches in a one-hour period.

Kirchhoff said the most rainfall recorded in a 1-hour period at the emergency operations was 4.2 inches.

"With the new pump and the ramp to block water out of the entrance, we will have the capacity to handle about a 12-inch rainfall in an hour," Kirchhoff said.

He said the highest rainfall recorded in this area was between 9 and 11 inches in a 24 hour period.

To provide even more protection against the possibility of flooding, Kirchhoff said county staff is looking into the cost of constructing a roof over the entranceway to divert even more water from the building.

Voting in favor of the $800 solution were Kirchhoff, and Commissioners Sandra Glenn and Barbara Christensen. Voting against was Commission Chairman Bob Sturm. Sturm said he was going to make an on-site inspection to make sure the solution would work. Commissioner Robert Feather was absent.

County Public Works Director Jack Schuder, Environmental Services chief Kenneth Hooper and County Assistant Administrator James Easton assisted in developing the plan.

Kaiser told commissioners a week ago that water has come into the emergency operations center once in the year since it was built and was the result of a 4.5 inch rainfall in about 25 minutes.

The center, built with federal funding, houses $500,000 worth of electrical equipment. The center receives national early warnings on natural disasters; national weather forecasts; operates as a civil defense headquarters, provides communications for the county water and sewer systems; fire responses and rescue and telemetry for the Herndon Ambulance Service.

Winter Springs Nixes Mass Transit

The idea of mass transportation popped up at the Winter Springs City Council meeting Tuesday night and was promptly dismissed by councilmen who pointed out that there are no masses in their city to transport.

John Hedrick, president of the People's Transit Organization, made an unscheduled plea to councilmen for 2-3 buses to run intracity routes and connect with county bus service along U.S. Highway 17-92.

But when councilmen learned that the plan would have to be subsidized with city funds, they quickly put the skids on the idea. "We're probably all in favor of public transportation," said Mayor Troy Piland. "But we're not going to subsidize it. It has to pay its own way."

"Well, that is a difficult stand," Hedrick replied. "There is no mass transit system in the country that is self-sustaining."

Even if the money could be found to operate such a system, "we don't know that there is a need," said councilman Martin Trencher. "We need ridership studies to determine if there is a demand for this type of thing in Winter Springs before we do anything."

Major Air Route Between U.S. And Europe Reopens

By United Press International

A key air lane between the United States and Europe reopened today — welcome news for summer travelers who had been stalled on both sides of the Atlantic by a Canadian air traffic controllers' boycott of U.S. flights.

The controllers agreed to resume guiding flights at the crucial Gander, Newfoundland, air traffic center this morning in return for a Canadian government promise to investigate union complaints of dangers caused by the strike of 12,000 American controllers.

An eastbound military jet traced on radar screens at the boundary of the Gander control area at 7:18 a.m. EDT was the first to pass through. A westbound commercial flight followed.

"We think the North Atlantic is going to start moving again," Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis said this morning on NBC's "Today" show.

The Canadian Air Traffic Controllers Association's refusal to handle flights bound for or originating in the United States had stranded or delayed thousands of travelers Monday and Tuesday.

At New York's Kennedy International Airport — where travelers were delayed up to 12 hours and some people waited twice that long to greet relatives flying in from abroad — thousands camped out for the night in sleeping bags and chairs.

Resumption of Canadian air traffic service on U.S. flights also eliminated what had been a mounting fear on both sides of the Atlantic — termination of all flights across the North Atlantic.

Portuguese controllers, voicing fears about safety related to the 10-day-old U.S. strike, vow to stop clearing flights between the United States and Europe at midnight Saturday.

Federal Aviation Administration Administrator J. Lynn Helms said Tuesday that if controllers from both nations simultaneously refused to clear U.S. traffic the problems could have been devastating.

His fears were eased, however, by the Canadian controllers decision to resume clearance of trans-Atlantic flights over Canadian air space — the shortest route between the Northeast United States and Europe. According to Canadian officials, Gander normally handles about 400 flights a day between North America and Europe.

In another strike-related matter, Judge Thomas Platt of U.S. District Court in New York warned Tuesday he would order the arrest of Robert Poli, the American controllers' union president, unless Poli appeared in court today to give a deposition in a multimillion-dollar suit against the union by the nation's airlines.

"I'm reaching the end of my patience," Platt said after Poli failed to show up in court to give the deposition. "My alternative is to issue a bench warrant for his arrest."

A spokesman for the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization in New York said Poli would appear, and he left — by bus — for New York City early today.

In Alexandria, Va., Steven Wallert, president of a PATCO local, also was due in court today to ask that he be released from jail, where he is being held for ignoring a back-to-work order. Wallert is the only controller still in jail on charges stemming from the strike.

Flights between the United States and Europe Tuesday were running at a rate of up to five an hour or a maximum of 120, said Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Chuck Murchison said. There are normally between 225 and 300 transatlantic flights, he said.

Thousands of airline passengers were turned away Tuesday from U.S. and European airports and many others had to wait hours for limited passage overseas.

"I don't really know what the strike is all about but I do know I'm out of money and hungry," said student Betsy Rizzolo, 26, from Morris Plains, N.J., as she waited with 3,000 other passengers at London's Heathrow airport.

Soviets Mass Armada

Poles Swap Blame As Crisis Escalates

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Solidarity leaders meeting in closed session today accused the government of trying to shift responsibility for Poland's worsening economic problems.

The charge was leveled in resolutions approved just 10 hours after a special session of the Communist Party Central Committee adopted a hardhitting resolution of its own blaming Solidarity extremists for escalating the crisis.

The charges came as the Soviet Union massed an armada of at least 62 ships near the Polish coast for combined land-sea military exercises.

Officials in Washington, while saying they saw nothing to indicate the maneuvers "were directed against Poland," said the naval exercises were the biggest in five years and would be joined by Soviet "command and staff" land exercises, which do not involve troop movements.

"The central committee declares a very serious worsening of the situation in the country has taken place," the Communist party resolution said. "New tensions and particularly street demonstrations organized by the extremist links of Solidarity are (to blame)."

The resolution was the latest in a barrage of increasingly hard anti-union statements issued by government and party officials this week.

But Solidarity's 44-member national coordinating committee, meeting in the third day of emergency session near the union's birthplace in the Baltic coast city of Gdansk, refused to be drawn into a duel with the government.

"Solidarity regrets that the propaganda attacks on the union have taken this form and content," union members said in a resolution approved Wednesday.

"The union decides not to take a counterattack in the same tone and manner. The government wants to throw responsibility for present circumstances on Solidarity."

A second resolution approved during this morning's session outlined Solidarity's response to a nine-point government statement dealing with the union's recent activities.

He Must Have Done Something Right

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI)—A bungling bandit who tumbled through a bank robbery Tuesday has nevertheless so far outwitted police.

Police thought they had the man who robbed an Old Kent Bank and Trust Co. branch Monday, but the suspect was set free after bank employees failed to identify him in a lineup.

Witnesses were divided on their description of the man but all agreed it was a case for the Keystone Kops.

One witness said the thief "had trouble getting into the bank because he kept trying to push the doors in and they only open outwards."

A teller didn't understand his request for her to put money in his grocery bag — probably because he had a sweatshirt pulled over his head.

Upon departure, the bungling bandit went flying headfirst onto the sidewalk. Five-dollar bills, a packet of $20s and other cash flew from his bag as he scrambled to flee the scene.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Daring Sea Drama Off Bay Of Bengal's 'Devil's Island'

NEW DELHI, India (UPI)—An Indian navy rescue vessel called off efforts today to remove 31 sailors from a grounded freighter that was threatened by spear-carrying natives from the former "Devil's Island" of the storm-tossed Bay of Bengal.

High seas and strong winds forced the Indian ship to abandon the rescue, but a spokesman for India's armed services said the crew of the 18,000-ton Primrose "is absolutely safe," and would be lifted by helicopter when the weather cleared.

"We are in constant contact with the crew," the spokesman, Col. Prithvi Nath, said. "They are OK and have plenty of food and water."

The rescue vessel sped more than 600 miles from Calcutta into the monsoon-swept Bay of Bengal in answer to an SOS from the captain of the Primrose, which struck a coral reef 10 days ago and went aground off the Indian-ruled Andaman Islands.

"Our ship is alongside it and has attempted to transfer its crew to our vessel, but was unable to because of bad weather," Nath said earlier today.

The Primrose was traveling from Bangladesh to Australia when it grounded on the coral reef off North Sentinel Island in the Andaman chain, which is made up of five large islands and the smaller islets.

French President Called Liar

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—A clergyman who was a candidate for Iran's parliament was assassinated before his two children and father on the eve of the evacuation of the second group of French citizens, Tehran Radio said today. The clergyman's bodyguard also died of wounds.

Because of Iran's souring relations with France over its decision to grant asylum to ousted President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr, Iran's new President Mohammed Ali Rajai labeled France a "center of hell."

Rajai Tuesday called French President Francois Mitterrand a liar because of Mitterrand's message of congratulations on Rajai's becoming president.

France "has become a refuge for criminals, murderers and terrorists" and "this historical disgrace has been imposed upon them (the French) by their statesmen," the Iranian news agency PARS quoted Rajai as saying in response to Mitterrand's congratulatory cable Tuesday.

"You know very well, Mr. Mitterrand, that (Iran) has become a victim of flagrant aggression by the subversive regime of Iraq but you are giving armaments and Mirage aircraft to Iraq and at the same time you wish me success."

Haitians To Be Transferred

By United Press International

The first planeload of Haitian refugees to be transferred from the overcrowded Krome North camp in South Florida to an abandoned military base in Puerto Rico takes off today.

Attorney General William French Smith said Tuesday the first group will consist of 125 Haitian men. Additional transfers that could bring the total to 800 will be scheduled later, he said.

The illegal aliens, who arrived on the Florida shores from Haiti by boat, are subject to hearings to determine whether they should be deported or given political asylum.

Under an agreement between the Immigration and Naturalization Service and Puerto Rico, the refugees will stay at Fort Allen, an abandoned U.S. Navy base, for no longer than one year.

Last Friday, Supreme Court Justice William Brennan rejected a last-minute appeal by the town of Juana Diaz, near the Puerto Rico base, to block the move.

Forest City Woman Told To Get Rid Of 13 Goats

It appears as if Ingeborg Morris and her goats are running out of time.

Seminole Circuit Judge Vernon Mize Jr. Tuesday refused to quash his previous order requiring Morris to get rid of the 13 goats she keeps at her Lake Brantley Shores home in Forest City.

That means that Morris has to dispose of the animals immediately. However, Assistant County Attorney Robert McMillan said a deal in the works which could allow Morris to keep her goats, though not at her home.

The plan — if agreed to by Morris and county officials — calls for the goats to be housed at the home of Floyd Freer, a retired Western Union employee who now farms a small plot west of Sanford, who has offered to keep Morris' goats rent-free.

McMillan said it will take a day or two to get the plan approved and the details worked out. If the deal falls through, "we'll start building a pen to house the goats on Thursday and then go out and pick them up Friday," McMillan said.

Morris' attorney, Richard Manzo, had asked that any seizure be delayed until Aug. 20 when a hearing has been set before Circuit Judge Kenneth Laffer in a lawsuit filed Friday by Morris challenging the constitutionality of the county ordinance which prohibits the keeping of livestock in residential areas.

But after relaying that request to county commissioners Tuesday, McMillan said, "we're going with the judge's order. We won't wait until the 20th. It was kind of hard to accept the premise — considering that this thing has been dragging on for over a year — that if we waited until the 20th, Mrs. Morris will calmly, and without further delay, get rid of the goats," he said. "We'll just have to wait and see."

In her suit, Morris claims the county ordinance which started her troubles is unconstitutional in that it "fails to provide a definition of the term 'livestock' and as such renders the statute vague and ambiguous." She has claimed her goats are pets, not livestock.

The suit asks the court to declare unconstitutional the section of the county code in question, prevent it from being enforced against Morris, and void all previous orders stemming from the goat controversy.

On June 1, Judge Mize granted the county an injunction forbidding Morris from keeping the goats at her Oak Drive home, and gave her 30 days to get rid of the animals.

On July 23, Circuit Judge Joseph Davis Jr., sitting in for a vacationing Mize, again ordered the goats moved, and gave Morris until Aug. 3 to find the animals a new home or risk having county animal control workers seize them.

Morris sought a rehearing on Davis' order, a tactic which delayed seizure. Last Friday, Mize rejected the request, but agreed to hear a motion asking he dissolve his June 1 order. Mize Tuesday turned down that appeal.

"Now we wait and see if we can get the goats out to Freer's farm," McMillan said. "If not, and her lawsuit fails, I guess the county will have 13 goats on its hands."

LOT OF BREAD

Thieves stole a lot of bread from the Longwood Public supermarket earlier this week, but it wasn't the spending variety, it was the kind you eat.

According to a sheriff's report, someone stole 32 trays of bread—$118.22 worth— from in front of the supermarket in Longwood Village on State Road 64 sometime late Sunday or early Monday.

The bread had been left outside the store by a delivery man, the report said.

ALLEGED CHILD MOLESTER JAILED

A 25-year-old Sanford man was being held without bond in the Seminole County Jail this morning on a charge of attempted sexual battery of an eight-year-old girl.

Melvin Douglas of 2204 W. 18th St. is accused of molesting the daughter of his girlfriend by fondling her in a lewd and lascivious manner.

GOLDLOCKS THEY AIN'T

Doug Bassett returned home from work Tuesday to find that someone had been sleeping in his bed. And while the latter-day Goldlocks didn't eat his porridge like in the fairy tale, he did steal a six-pack of beer, a pound of ground beef, and Bassett's pet turtle.

Bassett, 19, of Plantation Apts. in Casselberry, said the break-in apparently occurred between 7:30 a.m. and 8:30 p.m. However, there were no signs of forced entry found by sheriff's deputies.

Bassett said he has an alarm system, but the burglar apparently turned it off after entering the apartment.

Idyllwilde Assistant Principal Named

Michael J. Mizwicki has been named assistant principal of Idyllwilde Elementary School. He replaces Mrs. Margaret Cox who was appointed Principal of Bear Lake School in south Seminole County.

Idyllwilde is located at 430 Vihlen Rd., Sanford. Norma T. Ragdale is principal.

Mizwicki comes to Seminole County with a wide array of administrative and teaching experience. Mrs. Ragdale said. He has been an upper level administrator for the past five years, as Assistant Principals for five years and a classroom teacher for three years. He graduated from Lewis University in Lockport, Illinois and St. Xavier College in Chicago, Illinois. Currently, he is a doctoral degree candidate at Loyola University in Chicago.

Mizwicki and his wife, Alana, together with their two daughters, Asha, 10 and Tia, 2, have resided in Seminole County for two years.

Mrs. Ragdale said all parents and students are invited to visit with Mizwicki throughout the coming weeks.

Expert Tells How Airline Travelers Can 'Survive' Strike

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI)—If you must travel, time management specialist John Lee says keeping your sense of humor and wearing dark clothing may help you survive the air traffic controllers strike.

Lee, who is on the road more than 250 days of the year giving seminars and workshops on time management, said Tuesday that careful planning will help consumers avoid costly travel mistakes during the controllers strike.

Lee's tips for traveling during the strike:

- Plan for the unexpected — More detailed planning is necessary since flights may be delayed or canceled, Lee says. Carry several airlines' flight schedules to easily determine when the next plane for your destination leaves.
- Carry travel planning tools — Take along the Official Airline Guide, a booklet listing the hotels and motels in the area you are flying to and maps of the area in case you get stranded.
- Start early and build in flexibility — If you have a meeting on Monday, leave on Sunday. "Bad weather and inexperienced controllers mean further delays," Lee says, "so don't fly on the same day as your appointments."
- Keep in touch while en route — Set up a communications plan with those you are visiting by obtaining home phone numbers of clients, family and friends, to inform them of any delays or flight cancellations.
- Compact your belongings in a carry-on bag — If a flight is delayed or canceled, it will be easier to step on to another flight if you don't have to hassle with luggage.

Lake Mary High Boosters To Host Barbecue, Open House

Lake Mary High School, Longwood-Lake Mary Road, will host a barbecue on Thursday, August 20, from 5:00-7:00 p.m. and an open house from 7:30-8:00 p.m. Proceeds from the event will add the school's Booster Club.

The price of the ticket includes ribs and chicken, cole slaw, beans, rolls and drink. Tickets are $5 for adults and $2.00 for students. Pre-schoolers are free. The Pat McLaughlin Blue Grass Band will entertain as well as Lake Mary High's own band. The school may be contacted for tickets and information.

The Booster Club recently elected officers for the upcoming school year. Elected were Mike Averill, president; John Meyers, vice president; Kathy Bragg, secretary and Cherry Metz, treasurer.

Persons wishing to join the Booster's Club may contact Lake Mary High School.

Three Dead, 23 Injured In Head-On Train Crash

BEVERLY, Mass. (UPI) — Weary rescuers using giant cranes today worked gingerly to separate two trains that collided head-on, killing three and injuring 23. Wedged inside one mangled engine compartment were the bodies of two rail workers.

The three victims, all train employees, died Tuesday afternoon in the collision between a four-car freight train and a four-car passenger line carrying about 50 beachgoers and workers from the suburban North Shore to Boston.

One victim, passenger train engineer Paul Sullivan, 60, of Rockport, Mass., was due to retire from his job next month. He was thrown clear from the wreckage, but two other trainmen were trapped. Their names were not immediately released.

"We were hoping that someone might be still breathing underneath all that," said Dr. Sharad Chitre of Beverly Hospital, who peered into the compartment and saw the mangled bodies. "There was no life. No moans, no screams."

Nerve Gas Airlift Slated

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The Army says the controversial airlift of 888 Weleye nerve gas bombs from Colorado to Utah will take place this week, but it refuses to release the exact date for security reasons.

Army spokesman Col. Richard Horvath informed news reporters Monday of the date when the first two C-141 cargo jets will fly some of the weapons from the Rocky Mountain Arsenal near Denver to Dugway Proving Ground, about 45 miles southwest of Salt Lake City.

But as part of the tight security surrounding the operation, Horvath slapped an embargo on releasing the date and warned the Army would cut off all cooperation with any news agency releasing the information before the C-141s land at Dugway's Michael Army Air Field.

The colonel said 15 flights would be required to shuttle the 888 bombs plus three 1-ton containers filled with GB, the potentially deadly nerve agent used in the Weleyes, from the arsenal to Dugway.

Freeman Gosden Honored

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Freeman Gosden, the Amos 'n' Andy radio show that was criticized by civil rights groups, will have four of Richmond's five black city council members to thank for being honored in his hometown.

The council voted 8-0 to declare Freeman Fisher Gosden Day Aug. 18, honoring the Richmond native who joined with Charles Correll in the radio show, later a television series.

The other black council member, Claudette Black McDaniel, did not vote on the proposal, but could not be reached for comment on why.

"Amos 'n' Andy" first aired in 1928 and soon made such stars as Alvin Karpis, Lightning and Algonquin J. Calhoun familiar across America.

Gosden, like the other actors in the radio version, is white, although he portrayed a black. Blacks assumed the roles when the show made the transition to television.

Many civil rights leaders argued the show unfairly stereotyped blacks as shiftless.

Father Mourns Death Of Six-Year-Old Boy

'Oh, God, I've Got So Much Grief'

VERO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — John and Reve Walsh had just appeared on network television to plead for the safe return of their 6-year-old son when they learned the boy's head had been found in a canal beside the Florida Turnpike.

"Oh, God, I've got so much grief," said Walsh, marketing vice president of a Nassau, Bahamas hotel firm. Identification of the head, found Monday night, was completed as the Walshes were appearing on ABC's "Good Morning, America" Tuesday to plead for the life of their son Adam.

The child dropped out of sight in a Sears Roebuck store in Hollywood, Fla., July 27. No ransom demand was ever received.

"I hope to God they catch him (the abductor), because they told me that once someone does this kind of thing, it gets easier to do again," Walsh said.

"I'll never be the same the rest of my life," Walsh said. "How could Adam have met the one person who would do this out of the thousands of people in Sears who would have helped him?"

"I just can't believe the plans we had for that little boy — our happy little boy. To kill him and destroy the lives of four or five people?," the grieving father asked.

Police have extended their search for the remainder of Adam's body to the entire length of the Turnpike, from Miami to Wildwood, Fla.

"We're going from one end of the turnpike to the other," said Hollywood police spokesman Fred Barbetta.

Indian River County Sheriff's Lt. Sid Dubose said, "We're theorizing whoever threw the head out may have just tossed (parts of the body) out along the turnpike."

"They could be scattered from here (Hollywood) to Vero Beach," Barbetta said.

Police gathered in the sheriff's office were dismayed by the news that the head had been identified as that of Adam. "It went real quiet in here when we found out," Dubose said. "It just let all the wind out of us. It's a real emotional letdown."

Blond, hazel-eyed Adam was last seen playing with electronic games in the toy department of a Sears store in Hollywood at lunchtime July 27 while his mother shopped for lamps just four aisles away.

Monday evening, two fishermen climbed down the embankment from the Florida Turnpike at Mile Post 130 in Indian River County and found the head of a young boy, police said.

Tuesday morning, John Monahan, a friend of the Walsh, family identified the head. The identification was confirmed a short time later by dental records and another friend phoned the Walshes in New York.

Barbetta said police had no clues in their search for Adam's abductor, saying it was "just someone sick, very, very sick."

Indian River medical examiner Franklin Cox examined the child's head Tuesday but was unable to determine the cause of death or the length of time the boy had been dead.

Indian River Sheriff's divers searched the canal, and state and local police combed marshlands along the turnpike for the remainder of the boy's body.

Rejected Lover Goes On Shooting Rampage

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — A rejected lover went on a shooting rampage early today, killing his ex-girlfriend and a neighbor she was talking to, wounding the girlfriend's sister, then turning the gun on himself, police said.

Dead were Ann Washington, 24; her neighbor, Albert Green, 29, and the gunman, Maurice Gibson, 20, all of Fort Lauderdale. Injured in the leg was Geraldine Washington, whose age was not available.

Police said Ann Washington had been living with Gibson but moved out Monday night. Early this morning, as she chatted with Green in her front yard, Gibson approached and fired a .38 caliber revolver at the two, police Sgt. Gene Sedberry said.

"The shot probably hit Green in the arm and they both started running in different directions," Sedberry said.

Gibson then fired a second shot, hitting Green in the head. Green died later at Broward General Medical Center.

Gibson then chased Ms. Washington, Sedberry said, and "cut her off in the backyard, where he shot her."

Police said that Gibson then ran back around the house and spotted Washington's sister, Geraldine Washington, inside the house.

"There was a window fan and he pushed that in and fired another shot at her," Sedberry said. The bullet hit her in the leg and she stumbled into the hall and hid out of sight. She heard another shot.

When police arrived, they found Gibson's body outside of the window with a bullet wound in the head.

Two other women were in the house but were not injured.

... Winter Springs

for city buses would run anywhere from $6,500 to $17,000 depending on size, and would cost an estimated $21,500 per year each to operate. Nearly all — 90 percent — of the purchase price could be financed through federal and state sources, according to Hedrick, with the remaining 10 percent having to come from city coffers. Operational costs would also be heavily underwritten by state and federal governments, "but the city would also have to contribute several thousand dollars," Hedrick said.

"We can't afford that," Piland said. "We have to look at cold, hard facts. The city doesn't have the money. Winter Springs is not ready for mass transportation," he said, "not yet."

In other action, the council gave tentative approval to an ordinance regulating construction in flood-prone areas of the city, but postponed final action on the measure until its next meeting on Aug. 25 so councilman Jim Hartman, who was absent, could join in the discussion.

The proposed ordinance would place tougher building requirements on flood-prone land as required by the Federal Emergency Management Agency so federal flood insurance could be made available to local residents.

Some of those requirements include restricting or forbidding projects which could result in land erosion, requiring buildings be elevated above a certain flood level and constructed with flood resistant materials, controlling filling, grading, dredging and the alteration of natural flood plains and stream channels, and regulating the construction of flood barriers.

Violators of the ordinance could face up to 90 days in jail, a fine of $500, or both. Also Tuesday, the council rejected for the second time in five months a proposal that limits be placed on the number of convenience stores in the city. Al Landgraf, representing the Sugar Creek Homeowners Association, asked councilmen to impose such restrictions, citing that convenience stores are eyesores and hangouts for unruly kids.

But as they had before, council members rebuffed such a suggestion. "I don't like 197-11 stores in the city either," Piland said, "but if we do what you ask Mr. Landgraf, let's go ahead and restrict dentists, and restaurants, and other businesses. I'd like to be the only insurance agent in town, but that goes totally against the American way," the mayor said.

"This country has enough economic problems as it is. When you start tampering with the free enterprise system, then you really have serious problems."

Trash Clean-Up Plan Approved

City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles presented his case on "Spring Clean-up" to the Sanford City Commission Monday night, gaining their approval for a change.

The new way, as soon as the current extended Spring Clean-up is complete, will spread the service over the next year.

Knowles listed the trials and tribulations city crews have suffered with since April 1.

The city for many years has designated the six-week period from April 1 to May 15 as days when residents can set out large amounts of trash accumulated from spring cleaning. City crews would then pick up the extra trash at no charge.

The spring cleanup trash collection this year turned into something spectacular, however, Knowles told commissioners. Exceptionally large amounts of trash have been collected citywide and the job still isn't done.

He said it will take another full week, using five crews to complete the job. And he pointed out that at one household, the city picked up three tandem wheeled dump trucks loads of trash and also had to use a front-end loader in the process.

"It took a crew half a day to do that work," he said. Knowles estimated it has cost the city $10,000 to provide free trash pickup service during spring cleanup.

Under his compromise proposal, approved by the commission, each household will be sent a card providing for one free removal of up to a truckload of trash at any time during the year the householder chooses.

At the same time the regular twice weekly trash pickups will continue as part of the city's refuse collection. All containerized materials that a single man can lift into the truck will be picked up. "Our problem has been entirely with the separate, special trash pick-ups of non-containerized material and over-sized objects," Knowles said. — DONNA ESTES

5-Cent Bus Rides Good Two-Days

The Orange-Seminole-Osceola Transportation Authority said today it will offer 5-cent rides on two of its lines Friday and Saturday during Sanford's Nickel Days, but not Thursday.

The Nickel Days promotion, a city-wide event that will run Thursday through Saturday, involves merchants in the downtown business district, other areas of Sanford as well as the shopping plazas, who will offer merchandise to shoppers at special prices.

In line with the event, the transportation authority will charge five cents for a bus ride on two of its lines Friday and Saturday—the Green Line, the buses from Casselberry to Sanford; and the Blue Line, the bus Rt. 30 within the city of Sanford.

The transportation authority thought it was to be a two-day event and asked the county commission for permission to charge the special rates—it needs that authority because it receives public funds, according to Darrel Feasel, director of planning and development.

Feasel said the county authorized the reduced bus fares for the two-day event, but "it's too late to go to them now for the Thursday schedule."

IN THE SERVICE

KARL MICHAEL STEPEN Private Karl Michael Stepen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael William Stepen of 28 Winding Ridge Road, Casselberry, recently returned home on seven days leave from Parris Island, S.C. after completing 11 weeks of recruit training. During Stepen's training he received formal instruction in first aid, physical training, marksmanship, close combat training, Marine Corps history, customs and courtesy, and drill and nuclear, biological and chemical warfare. Following Stepen's leave he will report to Camp Lejeune, N.C. for formal instruction at the Motor Transport

School. There he will be instructed in the operation of wheeled passenger and cargo carrying motor vehicles up to and including

3 to 16 ton capacity. Upon completion of his formal school training, Stepen will report to the Truck Company, 4th Motor Transport Battalion, 4th North Primrose Avenue, Orlando for duty as a member of the Marine Corps Reserve unit there.

Dialogue Is Necessary

Although President Reagan and Secretary of State Haig were reported to have reservations about attending a global economic summit at Cancun, Mexico, on October 22-23 — a North-South dialogue on aiding poorer nations — they decided to go along with the urging of their French and Canadian colleagues at the recent Ottawa summit. Also, the President wished to please Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo, who is co-president of the conference group with Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky.

Accordingly, Secretary Haig joined foreign ministers from 21 other participating nations Aug. 1-2 in the Yucatan resort to plan the agenda for what is developing as the greatest gathering of world leaders ever assembled, even despite the absence of Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev and his camp.

Things went well there for the United States. There was minimal support for an Algerian agenda proposal that would have shifted economic authority from the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund, where the leading industrialized nations have some say-so, to the United Nations General Assembly, where the borrowing poorer nations predominate. And nothing came of a lobbying effort among developing nations at the U.N. earlier by Mexican Foreign Minister, Jorge Castaneda, to invite Cuban representation at the conference against President Reagan's known objections.

The absence of confrontation by the developing nations reflects their diversities, differences and increasing maturity. The generally convivial atmosphere prevailing suggests that Cancun can be a significant, forward move toward much broader international economic cooperation. This is a far cry from the bitter rhetoric of five years ago when Third World leaders called for a New World Economic Order in which developing countries would leverage their raw materials to achieve a redistribution of the world's wealth.

The Cancun indicators are reassuring because the Reagan administration, having imposed difficult fiscal restraints at home, is not inclined to finance trade and welfare abroad with renewed inflation. Mr. Reagan, indeed, is already on record as favoring assistance that helps developing nations to help themselves. He is known to believe additional loans to poor nations already mired in debt can only postpone their day of reckoning unless outside aid is accompanied by strict conditions requiring corrective reforms to solve their problems.

In the end, the administration's firm, friendly approach so much in evidence at Ottawa seemed to pay off. The conference acceded to U.S. wishes that the agenda be free, open and non-specific, and that the October session should avoid a formal communique that might commit participating nations to specific objectives. Instead, the ministers agreed the summit would simply discuss informally four issues: food, energy, other commodities and credit arrangements.

The positive outlook, then, is that the United States will extend its political and economic leadership that President Reagan reasserted so skillfully with our allies at Ottawa. Accompanying that leadership will be a continuing responsibility that this country has never relinquished since World War II, which is to share its know-how and resources in uplifting other peoples overseas.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Of course, it needs a little work..."

By DONNA ESTES

What's going to happen to my Social Security benefits?

That question has been asked by hundreds of Floridians in recent weeks in the wake of proposals by the Reagan Administration to shore up the solvency of the system.

U.S. Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Winter Park, has received loads of mail from her constituents who are concerned about the issue.

"I think one point needs to be made clear regarding the Administration's position, namely that it is only a proposal. Congress has raised its own questions regarding this proposal, and already the Administration has indicated some compromise might be in order," Mrs. Hawkins said.

"It should be remembered that no changes can be made in the Social Security system unless Congress approves them. You can be assured that any proposed changes will be reviewed and deliberated in painstaking detail before Congress takes any action," she said.

"You should also know that I am well aware of your concerns, and that I recently joined Sen. Robert Dole in sponsoring a resolution to assure older Americans that Congress will not act precipitously or unfairly to reduce their Social Security benefits.

"This measure was passed overwhelmingly by the full Senate in a response that I hope will help soothe the fears of those frightened by the recent spate of news reports that portray Congress as ready to slash Social Security benefits," Sen. Hawkins said.

"In fact, the Senate, by a 96 to 0 vote, directed Congress to study carefully all options to find the most equitable solution to ensuring the fiscal integrity of the Social Security system.

"Naturally, I am concerned over the solvency of the Social Security trust fund. But I think it's important to remember that many of the financial difficulties facing the system arise from outside economic conditions over which the Social Security fund has no control.

"These conditions include a rate of inflation that has doubled the cost of living over the past eight years, a constantly rising rate of unemployment, and a rate of growth in productivity well below that of other industrial nations.

"Alleviating these conditions through a revitalized national economy is, in my opinion, the key to protecting the Social Security system," she said.

"I do not believe that unfairly penalizing Social Security recipients by reducing annual cost of living adjustments or by forcing them to forfeit full benefits upon retirement are the answers to solving the many problems facing the system.

"In fact, I have consistently voted to retain the current cost of living formula for Social Security payments because I think these increases are a necessary tool to assist our 45 million retirees to keep pace with inflation.

"Any restructuring of the Social Security system is not a matter to be undertaken without full consideration of the impact of such changes," Sen. Hawkins said.

"A variety of solutions has been suggested to address both the long-term and short-term financial problems of the Social Security system. These proposals must be carefully considered by Congress to develop a program that will provide meaningful savings and insure the solvency of the program without unfairly reducing the level of benefits due to our deserving senior citizens.

"Curbing inflation and revitalizing our economy are two positive solutions which Congress and the American people can work toward together. These actions alone will go a long way toward protecting the Social Security system and restoring true value to retirement income," she said.

Stranger In A Strange Land

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Me and ol' Jimmy both grew up in small southern towns, so I had no trouble figuring out what he was trying to get at while he was president.

But Ronald and I have such disparate backgrounds I can't always be sure I am tuned in on his wave length.

It was for orientation as much as anything that I recently spent a couple of weeks in Reagan country, observing the famed California life style. Here are a few of the things that caught my eye:

Temporal mores — Teenyboppers, if that is what they are called nowadays, everywhere. Mini-micro-bikinis plastered to residues of baby fat. And that was in the drug stores. No telling what the beaches were like.

I asked one of my hosts why so few older people were about.

"They mean up the image we are trying to project," he replied. "For that reason, we have a law preventing them from being seen in public.

"Occasionally, some of them may wander out on the street but every so often the Golden Age patrol comes by and herds them back into the geriatric ghettos where they are confined."

"I sure hope they don't get you," he added, mischievously rolling his eyes.

I think he was putting me on, but it was the kind of legpuling a glib easterner could easily believe.

Architecture — In one area I visited I saw a genuine architectural innovation — a house that was neither neo-Spanish, quasi-Spanish nor pseudo-Spanish.

It had a small porch with a single Ionic column. Or maybe it was a Doric column. Dilapidated rather than rustic. I used to pass it as I was walking to a neighborhood shopping center to pick up a morning paper.

Another thing I noticed was that I was the only person in the area who used feet for anything except getting to and from automobiles.

One morning as I was walking past the non-Spanish house, I saw a small boy on the porch.

"Look, Momma!" he cried. "There's a man walking." His mother's face reached out the door and yanked the kid inside. Then she pulled down the blinds.

I'm pretty sure it was the same kid I encountered in a health food store a couple of days later.

"Look, Momma," he bellowed. "There's a man wearing long pants."

Water rights — Apparently, there is some sort of dispute between Southern California and Northern California over water diversion.

When I asked a Southern Californian about the issues, he blamed the whole thing on Northern California petulance.

"They resent sending us water for our swimming pools, hot tubs and Jacuzzis," he said.

I think he was putting me on, but I feel closer to ol' Ronnie already.

Carter Role In Vesco Deal Suspicious

WASHINGTON — Ex-President Jimmy Carter may personally have sent the "signals" that induced fugitive financier Robert Vesco in 1977 to transfer $10 million worth of his stolen securities to a cabal of Georgians with White House connections.

This startling possibility has been raised by sources close to the aborted investigation. They carefully point out that Carter's role was suspicious but circumstantial.

In return for the loot, the Georgians promised to get the federal government off Vesco's back. But before the wary fugitive would part with $10 million of his prize stock, he wanted some indication that the Georgians had the clout to keep their end of the bargain. He demanded two "signals."

First, he wanted President Carter to telephone the Costa Rican president, Daniel Oduber, and mention Vesco's name. The international swindler was then hiding out in Costa Rica. He explained that Oduber was in his "hip pocket" and would pass on the

Happy Days Are Here

Very early in his presidency, Ronald Reagan paid a courtesy call on Speaker Tip O'Neill. The man got along well and it was a genial occasion, but O'Neill got off a line that in retrospect was unintentionally hilarious:

"Remember," the old Democratic pro said to the new president, "that you're in the big leagues now."

O'Neill was telling Reagan that now he was in Washington, the big time; he wasn't playing hopscotch or something out in Sacramento.

Today, O'Neill hardly knows what hit him. He was first rolled by the Reagan forces on June 15, on the key vote cutting the federal budget.

And now, playing political hardball, combining one-on-one hard bargaining with a powerful media appeal over O'Neill's head to the voters, Reagan has swept to a shattering 238-195 tax cutting vote in the House, which the Democrats thought they controlled.

But the damage is even more extensive than those lop-sided figures indicate.

Reagan has stripped the Democrats of their ideology. In a desperate effort to win some kind of face-saving victory, the Democrats under O'Neill and Dan Rostenkowski came up with an alternative tax cutting bill that was essentially a paler version of Reagan's.

The Democrats, too, were thus willing to throw overboard much of the Great Society, and there was no more rhetoric from the Democratic side about the black, the poor, the young, the old, the halt and the blind.

Traditional Democratic liberalism and victimology went overboard, and in the Senate, where Reagan won by a crushing 80-11 margin, liberals like Ted Kennedy and Paul Tsongas played almost no role at all. So large a portion of the Democrats were voting with Reagan that the liberals had no useful role to play. Even if the Democrats had somehow managed to win with their plan in the House, it is likely that Reagan would have achieved most or all of his goals in the Senate-House conference.

The tax cuts are important to the Reagan recovery plan, but the indexing provision represents a long-term philosophical shift of great importance.

Bob Michel, the House Republican leader, explained why:

"Part of the Great Society program has been repealed and because we have indexed the tax cuts to inflation and thus made them permanent, these social programs can't be reinstated except deliberately. We can't back our way into them any more on the back of bracket-creep."

Reagan's attack on "bracket-creep" has dealt a long-overdue blow to the hidden taxation built into inflation. If Congress wants an expensive new program, it will just have to vote the additional taxes to pay for it — and don't hold your breath waiting for that to happen.

Reagan, the old New Dealer, is turning out to be the most revolutionary president since Franklin Roosevelt himself.

The difference is that the Reagan revolution is moving in the opposite direction, away from big government and toward the private, producing sector.

The Reagan lobbying effort proved to be the most thorough since the days of LBJ's famous arm-twisting efforts.

For example, Rep. David McCurdy, an Oklahoma Democrat, was thought to be in the doubtful column.

"The White House," said a colleague, "found every major contributor McCurdy had, and had them call him. The pressure was excruciating."

And even before the House vote, Tip O'Neill said that Reagan's Monday television speech had touched off "a telephone blitz like this nation has never seen."

Today, O'Neill should be whistling the tune the British band played after Yorktown, "The World Turned Upside Down."

And Reagan has a right to FDR's old theme song, "Happy Days Are Here Again."

Rights, Wrongs, Hostages

Sorting out the rights and wrongs of the air traffic controllers' strike is neither an easy nor a particularly enlightening task.

The few thousand controllers who staff the towers of the nation's airports hold among the most demanding jobs in the entire national work force. They are right in demanding adequate compensation for their crucial services and a lessening of the pressure under which they work in their own interests and for the safety of the traveling public.

The Reagan administration agrees, but not to the extent of the estimated half-billion-dollar salary and benefits package demanded by the strikers. The administration may have been wrong in not offering the controllers more initially than the $40-million settlement the union leadership accepted but the membership rejected.

The controllers, however, were definitely wrong in choosing to go the strike route if their real interest was in negotiating a compromise. They put the president, fresh from congressional budget and tax-cutting victories, in a position where he had no recourse but to take a firm public stand against a big budget increase. The resultant barrage of court orders and multi-million-dollar fines could devastate the union.

The controllers were legally wrong in striking in defiance of the law barring walkouts by government employees. But that raises again the old question of whether it is right to deny to those Americans who work for the government a right enjoyed by those who work in private enterprise.

The justification for that denial is that strikes against the government differ fundamentally from those against a private employer. They are against society itself, and they do not result in the temporary removal from the market of a discretionary consumer product but the interruption of a public service, often a vital one.

But if that is adequate justification for denial, then, in fairness to those denied, processes must be found for accommodating and compromising differences between governmental bodies and their employees more effective than those embodied in present law — national and on the books of most states and major municipalities.

What this strike demonstrates most clearly is that in the absence of such processes when police or firefighters or air traffic controllers strike, the effect is essentially to take the public hostage.

And that is definitely wrong.

You've probably heard, if you weren't already aware from personal experience, that wine is increasingly popular among Americans.

Now comes word of a marketing innovation that could open up an even vaster new market. The Wall Street Journal, which makes it its business to keep track of such business breakthroughs, reports that a California winery is introducing a canned wine.

Not only that, the cans are available in six-packs.

to stop extradition proceedings against Vesco. Apparently, Les never called upon the attorney general. It wasn't necessary; the White House apparently ordered that the extradition effort be dropped.

Last September, a former New York Times investigative reporter, Charles Kaiser, was told that the decision to halt the extradition proceedings was made by Carter himself. Kaiser, lacking the backup documents now available to me from Justice Department files, never wrote the story. But he has agreed to provide me with a sworn affidavit.

His information came from Robert Fiske, the former U.S. attorney in New York City, who was pursuing a five-count indictment against Vesco. According to Fiske, there was a dispute between the State and Justice departments over dropping the extradition effort.

In an interview with my associate Indy Badhwar, Fiske hedged on the question of Carter's personal involvement. All Fiske would confirm was that the ultimate decision to stop the extradition proceedings was made in the White House.

Griffin Bell recalled the dispute over the extradition and acknowledged meeting with Fiske on the subject. But Bell said he "could not remember the White House being in on the decision."

Former Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, apprised of Fiske's statement about the White House intervention, responded cryptically: "I can't say that's not the way it happened."

The Carter version of these events is that the extradition effort was abandoned for tactical reasons. Instead of continuing to seek Vesco's extradition, the Justice Department supposedly decided to bring pressure on Costa Rica to expel him.

The extradition proceedings were dropped in June 1977. Vesco left Costa Rica a year later for the Bahamas for his own reasons, not because of any U.S. pressure.

Arson Arrest Made

MIAMI (UPI) — A Dade County police informant who is a suspect in at least five Miami hotel fires has been arrested and charged with the arson fire of a Holiday Inn last week.

The blaze caused $35,000 in damage and resulted in 25 people being treated for smoke inhalation.

The informant, Marty Rosenfeld, 30, is also the prime suspect in four other motel fires, the Miami Herald reported today. He is being held in the Dade County Jail without bond.

Rosenfeld was staying at the Holiday Inn at county expense because he had reported a threat against his life, investigators said. The final three days of his bill came to $227.

"Imagine how we feel," said Dade County Detective John Lengle.

Rosenfeld became a suspect when Detective William Shinego cross-checked the names of witnesses at recent fires.

Conspicuous at the blaze, Rosenfeld rushed to the rescue, often reporting the fires, leading guests to safety and assisting fire fighters.

He wanted to be a hero, investigators told the Herald.

"He doesn't want anybody hurt," Shinego said. "There is no profit, no revenge. He is a pyromaniac. He couldn't help himself."

Rosenfeld had provided information to police for months. His tips were "110 percent every time, right on the money," said Dade County Police spokesman Pete Cuccaro.

"It's certainly embarrassing," Cuccaro said.

Rosenfeld began his informing activities for the police after Lengle arrested him for the daytime burglaries of two bayfront homes in November 1980. Rosenfeld turned in his co-conspirator and agreed to aid police.

Lengle took Rosenfeld to the Holiday Inn and registered him under an assumed name after Rosenfeld reported threats against his life.

After a guest reported the Holiday Inn fire, fire fighters found families gathered on the 10th floor balconies. "It's a wonder somebody didn't fall off the balconies in panic," Shinego said.

Rosenfeld accompanied a security guard to search for the fire.

Shinego was later told by police about "a small guy who was leading people down stairwells, helping firemen and running all over the place." The man even carried a child out on his shoulders. Officers thought the man was a hotel employee.

It was Rosenfeld, however, who said he also worked for the county. He mentioned Lengle's name.

Shinego remembered Rosenfeld's name as a witness to an unsolved fire he was studying at Miami Beach's Desert Inn. Shinego also checked fire department files.

The detective discovered that Rosenfeld had reported a blaze at the Ocean Palm Motel, on Miami Beach in April 1980.

And Rosenfeld was at three fires at the Desert Inn in April, May and July of this year, police said.

Silent Tarzan Speaks Up

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "Tarzan, The Ape Man" has held his tongue since starring in the title role of the most recent lord of the jungle epic, just as he did on screen throughout the film.

Now Miles O'Keefe, a native of rural Tennessee and former college football player, has loosened up and speaks freely of his role as Tarzan and the making of the film, roundly panned by critics but a box-office hit.

O'Keefe, like most of the 15 Tarzans of the past, is tall — about 6-foot-3 — muscular, long-haired and possessed of the phlegmatic bonhomie common in many a self-proclaimed athlete.

It would appear that O'Keefe is the forgotten man of "Tarzan, The Ape Man" inasmuch as Bo Derek frolics through many scenes with bared breasts.

The fact that Bo's husband, John Derek, was the director and Bo the producer would seem to indicate further that O'Keefe was slighted in the film, a rumor that has flourished since "Tarzan" was released.

O'Keefe is the first to scotch the rumor.

"The movie is really Jane's story," the big man said easily. "The script was written from Jane's point of view. The first thing I discussed with John Derek was the fact that Tarzan wouldn't speak a word in the picture. "Look, Tarzan grew up in the jungle without human contact. He meets and gets to know Jane in two days. There's no way he could be taught to speak English.

"We wouldn't have had the beautiful picture we have if Tarzan had grunted around trying to speak words. It would have been ridiculous.

"John didn't want an Elmo Lincoln or a Johnny Weissmuller performance.

"And I want to put to rest any rumors that there was trouble between myself and the Dereks. There was some tension on the set the first few days, but we got straightened out and everything went smoothly."

The tension began six months before production started on "Tarzan." Derek kept O'Keefe on tenterhooks as a back-up ape man while he continued to search for the perfect physical specimen for the role.

Eventually, the Dereks signed Lee Canallito (of "Paradise Alley") to play the lord of the jungle. But after a few days of shooting on rough location in Sri Lanka, director Derek decided Canallito was wrong for the role.

Derek put in a hurry up call to Hollywood and 24 hours later a weary and confused O'Keefe reported for work, loin cloth at the ready.

He was accompanied by a comely blonde, Chris Trainor, his personal manager, who helped smooth over the initial differences between O'Keefe and the volatile John Derek.

Truth is, O'Keefe had more problems staying healthy than he did with co-star Bo or director John.

"The food in Sri Lanka disagreed with almost everybody," he said. "It wasn't safe to drink the water either. A lot of people from Hollywood got sick. I grew tired of boiled eggs, bananas and pineapple but I didn't get sick."

A natural athlete who played football as a wide receiver at Mississippi State, O'Keefe wasn't bothered by the physical demands of his role.

"It's not difficult working with elephants," he said, grinning. "You just hang on for dear life. I'll admit, I had to get up some gumption to wrestle with that 17-foot python.

"Swinging on vines was relatively easy. The first time we did it on film John got what he wanted in the first take.

"The hardest part of the performance wasn't the physical things. It was trying to act convincingly without lines. Just try communicating with people all day long without saying a word and you'll understand what I mean.

"I couldn't even do any pantomime. John and I had long discussions about the animal sensuality and innocence of Tarzan but also taking into account that he is king of the jungle and master of his environment.

"When he meets Jane, Tarzan is attracted to her but he has to let her know that he is in charge. It's no easy thing to do without words.

"And I had to keep in mind that Tarzan is a comic strip character. I had to exaggerate him. It was fun playing the fantasy aspects of Tarzan."

O'Keefe is unconcerned about "Tarzan's" negative critical reviews. He is aware that he must prove himself as an actor in his next movie — if there is one — when he will have to deal with dialogue.

"Yeah, I'll have to prove to people I can walk and talk at the same time," he said. "So my next movie is going to be very important to my career.

"Tarzan" has been the biggest break of all. I never worked in front of a movie camera before I did this picture. If it weren't for the Dereks, I might still be waiting for my first big break.

"I was a little self-conscious working with Bo in the nude for the first few scenes. But John told me in advance I couldn't afford to be self-conscious doing love scenes with his wife or being distracted by the nudity.

"I managed to concentrate on my role and forget everything else. It wasn't easy, but I managed to do it."

There's more to the term "flying off the handle" than you might think. The phrase implies the kind of trouble that would result if an axe-head flew off its handle.

Boy, Do Moe And Joe Have A Song For You

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — If you'd put a quarter in a juke box to hear a Moe Bandy-Joe Stampley song, boy, have they got a new one for you.

"Honky Tonk Queen" is a new chapter in the continuing saga of Moe and Joe living the good life, the latest adventure in what Stampley affectionately calls their "belly rubbin' music."

It's the story of the not-so-dynamic duo chasing into a bar after a beautiful woman. Joe pilots her with his country charms as they dance cheek-to-cheek.

But the "Honky Tonk Queen" somehow doesn't look right to Moe.

Meanwhile, Joe, who's just dancing his heart out, spins her around on the dance floor and "her" wig falls off.

The "Honky Tonk Queen", it turns out, is uh, well, a man named Bill.

"We're not trying to put anybody's lifestyles down," Stampley said recently as he relaxed in the study of his spacious suburban Nashville home. "Each to his own. We just think this is a funny premise for a song."

The 38-year-old Big Springs, Texas, native said the song was originally sent to him as a "release the hostages"-type song but it wasn't the brand of lyrics Moe and Joe like — "it didn't paint a picture."

"I liked the music line so I told Robby Hicks, who wrote it, to think of something else. About two weeks later, here come Honky Tonk Queen. You know what I think of it now," Stampley said.

Bandy and Stampley call their music "acid, red-neck, truckin' country."

They decided to cut an album together after a hamburger together in 1979 at the Wembley, England, country music festival.

"We got back to the states and cut 'Good Ol' Boys', then 'Holdin' The Bag', 'Tell Ol' I Ain't Here' and 'Hey Moe, Hey Joe', he said.

The duo is successful enough to have opened a nightclub in Houston, complete with a "bucking armadillo." And another "Moe & Joe's Honky Tonk" will open soon in Bossier City, La., across the river from Shreveport.

But Stampley is quick to dispel the impression he and Bandy only perform together.

"We're separate acts with individual careers that happen to be going upward. I see Moe once in a while when we're playing a 'Moe & Joe' type show, but that's about it," he said.

Stampley is in the process of re-releasing "All These Things," a song he's already made a hit of — twice.

"I first recorded it in 1966 with 'The Uniques' and it did very well. That was kind of a slow belly-rubbin' version. Then 10 years later I did a more upbeat version and it went to number one.

"This new version is more like the early one, with a few changes here and there. It's my favorite song because it says so much," Stampley said.

"Moe's music is acid country, even more than I am. He's way on down the line," Stampley said, "but mine is jukebox country."

Tourist-Clogged Jets Shrink To A Trickle

LONDON (UPI) — The summer swarm of tourist-clogged jets flying from Europe to the United States shrank to a trickle of four flights per hour Tuesday because of a boycott of U.S. flights by some Canadian air controllers who warn of "severely jeopardized safety."

Normal trans-Atlantic traffic averages a total of 450 flights every 24 hours.

Instead, airlines across Europe were given about five hours notice of when each would be able to claim one of the four-per-hour take-off slots, a spokesman for Britain's Civil Aviation Authority said.

A spokesman for controllers at Frankfurt airport said a "gentleman's agreement" would operate among Britain, France and West Germany on which airlines would take up the flight allocations.

"The situation is changing hourly," he said.

William Robertson, Canadian Air Traffic Controllers Association president, told NBC's Today show today he got a telegram from Transport Canada early this morning confirming that 26 of the first 28 alleged in-flight incidents reported by the union had occurred.

"In the last six days that preceded Monday, our members had experienced or reported 43 of what we call in-flight incidents in or at the air space surrounding the Canadian border," he said.

"Nine of those, at least nine of those, were of a critical nature requiring evasive action by one or more aircraft to avoid collision.

Planes were routed south over the Atlantic to avoid the pivotal control point at Gander, Newfoundland, which was hit by a sympathy boycott by Canadian controllers.

The result was airport chaos and disappointment for travelers. Most frustrated passengers, however, endured the delays calmly.

At London's Heathrow Airport, British Airways — the biggest user of Europe's busiest airport — stopped check-ins for the U.S. and Canada and canceled all five of its morning trans-Atlantic flights.

In all, nine U.S.-bound flights from Heathrow were canceled and a spokesman said the situation was "chaotic."

At Rome's Fiumicino airport, Alitalia canceled its three U.S.-bound flights, rescheduling two flights after delays of 24 and 36 hours. Even so, officials said they could not be sure the planes would get off the ground.

The airport was jammed with passengers stranded by cancellations Monday and those arriving for flights Tuesday.

In Spain, TWA's only flight of the day to the United States was grounded. Incoming aircraft were reported landing without problems, despite confirmation of a ban by Spanish controllers on west-and eastbound trans-Atlantic traffic.

Indefinite delays on flights from Paris to the United States were reported, although a U.S.-bound Air France Concorde departed after only a 2-hour delay.

Aeroflot's weekly Moscow-Washington flight was postponed from Tuesday to Wednesday. Flights to America from Vienna were delayed up to seven hours and a spokesman for Scandinavian Airlines System said the airline had been allocated one slot for a New York-bound flight from Copenhagen. All other flights were canceled. Nearly 1,000 people were stranded at Oslo airport.

In Zurich, Swissair's daily flight to Boston and Chicago took off with only a 30-minute delay and flew the southern route to the U.S. The Montreal-Toronto flight also left on schedule but along the northern route.

In Amsterdam, Dutch air traffic controllers continued to handle flights to the United States today, but a union official said they would decide late today or Wednesday whether to stop clearing flights into U.S. air space.

Soviet Buildup Seen

Polish Party Chief Asks For Reforms

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Communist Party leader Stanislaw Kania opened an emergency meeting of the party's Central Committee Tuesday with an appeal for reforms to "make the streets of Poland peaceful" again.

As the committee met, the West German naval command reported that the Soviet Union is building up the largest amphibious fleet it ever has assembled in the Baltic Sea. The naval buildup came as official East German and Polish media reported Czech, East German and Polish land forces were on maneuvers in southern Poland at the German border.

"The situation is that Polish streets have stopped being peaceful for some time now," Kania told the 200 members of the Central Committee, meeting for only the second time since they were elected last month.

"A way must be found to make the streets peaceful because the logical sequence of events might lead to tragedy."

The emergency Central Committee meeting had been scheduled last Saturday, but party officials said it was delayed because Kania was confined to his home with an undisclosed illness. There had been speculation Kania was suffering a "political sickness" and possibly even had left the country for secret meetings with Soviet leaders in Moscow.

At the opening session, Kania's voice was uncharacteristically weak and hoarse.

Kania's comments came one day after a new wave of protests swept across Poland in defiance of Solidarity leaders, who appealed for calm while they met in an emergency session of their own at Gdansk.

The Solidarity meeting resumed behind closed doors in Gdansk Tuesday and almost immediately was disrupted by three bomb threats.

Local solidarity headquarters in Gdansk said a male caller twice warned a bomb was set to explode at 1 p.m. The local newspaper said it received the same threat.

The threat was relayed to the union delegates, who briefly discussed the matter, then refused to break up their session, working beyond the threatened deadline.

In a 40-minute speech to Solidarity delegates Monday night, Trade Union Minister Stanislaw Ciosek appealed for the union to join the Communist Party and the government in an attack against the nation's problems.

Ed Mason Indicted For Second Time

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — For the second time, an Orange County grand jury has indicted suspended County Commission Chairman Ed Mason on a first-degree murder charge.

Mason is accused of shooting his estranged wife Dianne five times last May during an argument.

He was charged by a 23-member panel two months ago but his lawyer protested the size of the grand jury.

Orange County State Attorney Robert Eagan called in a new 18-member panel to hear the case because, he said, he did not want the size of the grand jury to become an issue for appeal following Mason's trial, scheduled to begin in September.

International Terrorism Expected To Worsen In 1980's

By BARRY JAMES
UPI Senior Editor

LONDON (UPI) — The specter of terrorism which haunted the world throughout the 1970s probably will bring even greater horrors in the 1980s, according to several experts on international violence.

"Democracy is in great danger," Dutch criminal psychologist Dick Mulder said in a recent interview. "There are too many aggressions."

In 1980, the Central Intelligence Agency says, international terrorism (not counting violence within national borders) took its greatest toll—642 killed and 1,078 injured. Mulder said he did not think terrorists would prevail in the long run. "I speak as a psychologist and I think they know they will not succeed. They have a martyr complex."

But for the 1980s at least, experts fear worse and bigger things.

Many hours of work, travel, study, interviews and conversations produced these probable developments:

—As violent incidents become commonplace, terrorists may resort to more savage acts to grab the headlines on which they depend.

—They probably will be better armed and trained. The idea of terrorists armed with nuclear, biological or chemical weapons haunts the imagination of defense planners.

—Although the United States and the other liberal democracies will continue as the prime targets for subversion, terrorists are likely to operate more in the Third World, where they will be more difficult to combat. The Iranian hostage crisis could be a sample of things to come.

—Nationalistic conflicts such as the Basque and Ulster crises threaten to become yet more intractable and violent.

—Following the example of Libya and Cuba, more states may be tempted to resort to terrorism as a means of warfare by proxy.

—And the signs point to a rise of terrorism inspired by resurgent fascism, with more cases of indiscriminate slaughter like the Bologna railway station bombing last August in which 85 people died.

In Washington, the Reagan Administration, calling terrorism "an assault on civilization itself," has made the problem one of its prime foreign policy concerns — blaming the Soviet Union, in Secretary of State Alexander Haig's words, for "training, funding and equipping" a subversive army directed against the West.

Moscow rejected the allegation as "a gross and malicious deception" and accused the CIA of controlling international terrorism.

Former British Defense Secretary Lord Chalfont agrees with Haig. "There is, in the Soviet Union, a fully developed terrorist infrastructure integrated into their foreign policy machine," he told the European-Atlantic group at the House of Commons in July.

Italian President Sandro Pertini also sees Moscow's hand in the terrorist blight afflicting his country.

Washington's view that Moscow guides a kind of terrorist international was reinforced by American author Claire Sterling, whose recent book, "The Terror Network," examines the links between various subversive groups and the support they receive from the Soviet Union and its East European, Cuban, North Vietnamese and Palestinian proxies.

"There is massive proof," she has written, "that Moscow and its surrogates, during the last decade, have provided the weapons, training and sanctuary for a network aimed at destabilizing Western Democratic Society."

But even if this allegation is true, terrorism may be a weapon that Moscow cannot ultimately control, a point Miss Sterling appears to concede when she writes, "In effect, the Soviet Union had simply laid a loaded gun on the table, leaving others to get on with it."

Mulder said terrorism could not succeed alone, without the help of an outside agency, and added, "I do not think the Russians will support terrorism to that extent."

Professor Paul Wilkinson of Aberdeen University, who has studied terrorism for 15 years, said in a telephone interview, "The Soviet Union does supply terrorists. But it cannot control movements that believe they express the will of their people. Moscow also is deeply worried about hijacking and attacks on its own diplomatic personnel. The Soviet Union believes in the pragmatic use of terrorism as a weapon in a broader armory, but it is itself in the line of fire."

A recently published CIA study shows that, after Americans, Soviet citizens are the most likely to fall victim to terrorist attacks.

The agency goes on to allege, however, "The Soviets are deeply engaged in support of revolutionary violence, which is a fundamental element of Leninist ideology. Such violence frequently entails acts of international terrorism."

Yet there is a case for saying that to place terrorism in a strictly East-West context misrepresents and oversimplifies the nature of the problem.

For it has become truly a global phenomenon, thanks to modern means of transport and the ability to flash news around the world in seconds. Defining it is difficult. One man's "terrorist" is another's "freedom fighter." The West's "campaign of subversion" is Moscow's "war of national liberation." Old terrorists sometimes go on to become respected national leaders, such as Menachem Begin or Robert Mugabe.

Terrorists are not only Moscow-backed "urban guerrillas." The definition can include Ku Klux Klansmen, Quebec separatists, Croat exiles, Armenians, Moluccans in Holland, Canary Islanders and Corsican rebels as well as Palestinians, Irishmen and Basques. Wherever Marxist revolt, nationalism, religion, class, regionalism or language collide with a stronger power, the grounds for terrorism are laid.

Because of the growing hispanic influence in the United States, "You can predict all kinds of fighting and struggles in the United States," Mulder said. "There is a danger that the language situation could feed and guide terrorism there."

A conference on terrorism in Jerusalem last year agonized over the semantic difficulties, and finally defined the phenomenon thus: "Terrorism is the deliberate, systematic murder, maiming or menacing of the innocent to inspire fear in order to gain political ends."

Putting it more briefly, terrorism is, in the words of Brian Jenkins, an American expert, "the political pornography of our times." Lenin's dictum was that "the purpose of terrorism is to terrorize."

Mulder described terrorists as "people who use victims or other human beings as instruments in order to reach a goal, in fact the goal of proving they have power." He said leftwing terrorists tend to be neurotics who pick specific victims, while the rightwing variety are likely to be psychopaths who attack indiscriminately out of general hatred of mankind.

Because terrorism often has a declared political aim, Chalfont said, "We tend to think of it as part of a political process. But it is not. It is a substitute...it subscribes to the totalitarian belief that the most effective way of destroying an idea is to destroy the man who holds it."

Fed Judge Raises Bond For Accused Drug Dealers

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — A federal judge has raised bonds for two accused drug dealers from Florida and California after hearing evidence that prompted their indictments in an FBI investigation of the laundering of millions of dollars in drug money in Miami.

Donald Raulerson of Ft. Pierce, Fla., and Bill Maddox of California are accused along with 20 other people of conspiring to smuggle more than five tons of Colombian marijuana into Tennessee.

Bond for Raulerson was increased from $300,000 to $1 million while bond for Maddox went from $50,000 to $250,000. Raulerson and Maddox are also accused of participating in the money laundering scheme and because of that indictment prosecutors feared they might be planning to leave the country.

Both men allegedly funneled drug profits into CRV Bank-O-Shares Associates, an undercover operation set up by the FBI.

At a bond revocation hearing Monday, U.S. District Judge Harry Wellford saw videotapes and heard taped telephone conversations in which Raulerson told undercover agents he was able to buy off Florida officials to drop some of the charges against him.

Raulerson also bragged he had a huge drug empire that stretched to South America.

Although Raulerson claimed to have paid off several police and law enforcement officials in his home state, none of them were named on the tapes.

The tapes are part of the government's case against 55 suspects, including Raulerson and Maddox, in the Miami drug money laundering scheme. The FBI spent more than two years setting up the undercover CRV operation.

"Law enforcement or other agencies may be involved in standing aside while large drug activity is proceeding right under their noses," Wellford said before increasing bond for both men. "We do believe the defendants are a continuing danger to their community and to any community."

Raulerson was not in Memphis for the hearing. He was freed on the original bond and has been undergoing medical treatment at a Fort Pierce hospital.

During its investigation the government has seized a $4 million ranch owned by Raulerson, a home in Ft. Pierce, several vehicles and numerous bank account holdings.

A $2.2 million deposit by Raulerson in a Panama bank was also seized by the Panamanian government shortly before Raulerson's arrest. But, Assistant U.S. Attorney Tim DiScenza said at Monday's hearing that the money has disappeared.

"We don't know where the money is now," DiScenza said. Raulerson, Maddox and 20 other suspects were named in a 30-count federal grand jury indictment in February on charges of conspiring to distribute vast amounts of Colombian marijuana in Tennessee.

Trial is set to begin Sept. 28.

Less than a month before the indictment, Raulerson's brother, James Raulerson, was shot and killed in a police raid on a Memphis apartment.

Why is FPL's fuel adjustment so high?

Michael C. Cook, Vice President, Fuel Resources and Corporate Development at Fort Everglades Oil Storage Facilities.

Prices have risen so much in the past few years that we now spend $4 million a day on oil.

I've heard that oil prices were dropping. Will the fuel adjustment go down as a result? Oil prices have dropped somewhat recently, but this summer we'll be using even more oil than usual because one of our nuclear plants that generates lower-cost electricity is being repaired. During months of moderate temperatures, overall use of electricity decreases, and we burn less oil. This could mean a lower fuel adjustment. A lot will depend on the weather, the price of oil and how much generation we can get from other fuel sources.

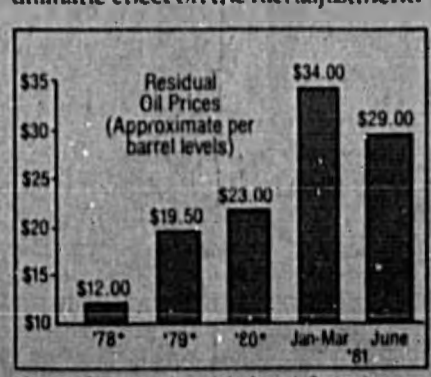

What is FPL doing to fight high oil prices? Everything we can. We shop for bargains in the oil market, both in contract fuel supplies and in open market purchases. We're not building any more oil-powered generating facilities. And before we use the ones we have, we use all our other less-costly generating sources — nuclear, natural gas, and coal-generated power from other utilities brought into the state by transmission lines. We've also been mixing coal and oil at one plant, and we're pursuing opportunities for converting our oil plants to coal use.

Doesn't the fuel adjustment destroy the incentive to buy fuel economically? No. First of all, our own performance standards are extremely high. In addition, there are efficiency incentives built into the fuel adjustment regulatory proceedings, and FPL must prove that all fuel was bought and used wisely when its case on the fuel adjustment is presented.

Does FPL make a profit on the fuel adjustment? No. Not a cent of the fuel adjustment goes to profit. All of it goes directly to pay for the cost of fuel.

Why is there a fuel adjustment in the first place? Customers are understandably annoyed by high summer bills, and particularly the size of the fuel adjustment. But fuel represents about 45% of the total cost of generating electricity, so the cost of fuel does have a big impact on the bill. Since fuel costs change frequently, it's important to have a timely and fair way to cope with these enormous, fluctuating costs. The fuel adjustment allows us to pay our fuel bills so that we can continue generating electricity, and to pass on any savings directly to our customers.

Why does it always seem to keep going up? Because the cost of fuel has gone up, especially residual oil, the kind we use most. About half of our electricity is generated by oil; even more in the summer. So oil prices have a dramatic effect on the fuel adjustment.

24-Hour News Service Planned

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 24-hour all-news cable television network — the nation's second — is being planned by Westinghouse and ABC, two of the largest broadcast companies in the country.

Officials of Westinghouse's Group W Satellite Communications division were expected to announce the formation of the network today. It is expected to begin operations in the spring of 1982.

The new organization is to be the second all-news cable network, joining the Atlanta based Cable News Network owned by Ted Turner.

Reports indicate that the new network will cost between $35 and $40 million during its first year of operation, and will include around-the-clock news summaries and updated versions of breaking news stories.

Unlike Turner's 1 1/2-year-old CNN system, the Westinghouse ABC project also intends to provide regional news spots prepared by 24 local stations, including four stations owned by Westinghouse.

The new network will also be able to rely on pictorial footage from ABC News, but it will have its own news staff.

CNN sells advertising time and charges cable systems about 15 cents a subscriber.

The Federal Communications Commission cleared the way last week for the broadcast companies to enter the cable field by lifting its 10-year-old ban on the ownership of cable systems by broadcast companies.

Sanford Soccer Continues Registration At Pinecrest

Registration for the Sanford Soccer Club continues this Saturday at Pinecrest Elementary School from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The soccer club will be registering new players and re-registering last year's players from age six to 18. New players should bring a birth certificate, two recent photos and a parent or guardian to sign the registration form.

A fee of $30 will cover the expense for both seasons along with the uniform, shirt, shorts and socks.

In last Tuesday's Evening Herald the Sanford Soccer Club was incorrectly identified as the Seminole Soccer Club. The Evening Herald regrets the error.

Cats Murder Pinellas Park

The Casselberry "Cats," a 13-15 year old boys softball team traveled to Pinellas Park this week for a four-game series. The locals won the first three games before running out of gas, thus evening their season's record at 6-4.

The first day's double-header was played on a field with a 220' fence and the "Cats" resembled "Murderers' Row." They smashed eight fence-clearing home runs in the first game — a 13-11 win — then came back with another eight in the second game 2-3 runaway.

Eddie Norton led the attack with 4-for-4 and three home runs in the opener plus 3 for 4 and another pair of circuit-clouts in the second game. Tony Cardenas added two home runs and three hits in the opener. Pat LaCore, Bob Bliss and Steve Cobert all had two hits each with Cobert, Barry Johnson and Bob Iannone hitting homers.

Outstanding defense was turned in by Norton, Cardenas, Iannone, Bliss and Tommy Tempesta. Kevin Roth got the win.

Joining Norton in the second game HR outburst were LaCore and Cobert with two each, Iannone and Greg Hill. LaCore and Norton drove in six runs each. Cobert, Cardenas, Johnson and Iannone all had three hits apiece. LaCore, Hill and winning pitcher Lee Piefer smacked two apiece. Piefer hurled a seven-hitter for the victory.

Switching to a 300' fenced field the second day, the Cats set their long ball knack, but won the opener, 7-3. Barry Johnson was the winning pitcher. Iannone led the hitters with three safeties while Norton and Cardenas added two each.

Rebels Bombard Baird-Ray

The Rebels used two home runs Tuesday night to upset Baird-Ray, 14-5 in Men's Softball League action at Casselberry's Summerfest.

W. Roberts and W. Royal had the round-trippers for the Rebels while Robinson smacked one for Baird-Ray. In other games, Lu Rae smothered Mitches, 20-5 and Power Drill nipped AmeriFirst, 6-5 as S. Westerman knocked a homer.

Parker, Riazzi Renew Reunion In Raiderland

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

A few years ago when Sam Parker's Senioran baseball teams were terrorizing the diamond circuits with four championships in five years, the veteran manager grew pretty dependent on two youngsters.

One was a spunky redhead that could throw a baseball through the rain and catch only a few drops. The left-handed swinger also rapped the horsehide with authority.

The other was a strapping, Italian-catcher with good hands, a great arm and a solid stick. His name was Mike Riazzi. The redhead was understandable. After all, he was the manager's son, Bob, who is still throwing baseballs through overmatched spring showers and hitting up a storm for Seminole Community College. Last year he led the Raiders with a .376 average as a freshman second baseman.

During the span of years from 1973-77, Parker's dynamic duo did pretty much as it pleased in the league. "Bobby would get on the mound and I would catch," Riazzi remembers. "And he would also end up scoring the winning run."

There wasn't too much one could do to break up the terrible twosome either. "Bob and Mike would always get together somehow or other," said Manager Parker.

"I don't know how ethical it was, but it was always legal," laughs Sam about his fling.

The two budding stars parted, however, just after their freshman years at Lake Howell High School. Riazzi, still the solid catcher added more athletic laurels by turning into a bruising fullback for the Silver Hawks junior varsity football team.

After the frosh year, though, the Riazzi family moved to Bristol (Tenn.). And Parker, disaffected with the Lake Howell baseball program, transferred to Lyman, following his sophomore season.

Both, nevertheless, continued their standout play miles apart. Parker became a two-time all-conference performer and led the Five Star Conference in hitting his senior year. He also stole a bushel load of bases.

Riazzi, meanwhile, was in Bristol, ripping up the pitching as a steady third baseman. He batted a torrid .436 as a junior and was named most valuable player in the district tournament as the Vikings went on to finish third in the state with a 24-4 record.

Riazzi, too, was a two-time all-conference selection. Add to that all-district, all-regional, all-East Tennessee and Bristol Herald Courier Player of the Year.

While his average tailed off to .333 his senior year, Riazzi's glove work picked up to just two errors in 25 games.

Riazzi was recruited by the University of Tennessee and Vanderbilt University. Both four-year schools, though, felt the dark-haired third sacker needed some brushing up on the finer points.

So, Sam Parker said to himself, what better place than Seminole Community College? And that is where Riazzi is headed, to a reunion with his Little League buddy Parker, where they both hope they can work some more championship magic for Jack Pantelias' Raiders.

"I like his power," said Pantelias, who gives Parker credit for coming up with the find. "He should fit right into our program."

And how does Riazzi feel about the homecoming? "I can't wait," exclaimed Mike. "I think SCC has the best system in the state and I'm glad I'm going to be part of it."

Antonini, Miami Blank Harlingen

Broncos Bewilder San Antonio

Herald Sports Editor

Seminole Bronco shortstop Kirk Rozek is just a little guy by Little League standards. And like a lot of little guys, Rozek uses the bunt to cut down many of his bigger opponents.

Tuesday night at the Seminole Pony Baseball Complex, Rozek dropped a beauty down the first base line on a suicide squeeze that not only scored teammate Eddie Evans from third base, but Kelly Hysell who was going with the pitch from second base.

Seminole went on to rip West Region representative San Antonio, 11-1 behind the solid four-hit pitching of Sanford's Terry Miller in a game stopped in the fifth inning by the 10-run slaughter rule.

In the evening's first game, Argentinian left-hander Kiki Antonini fired a three-hit shutout and whiffed 13 hitters as Southwest Miami Avanti coasted past coast representative Harlingen (Tex.), 5-0 in first round games of the double-elimination Southern Zone Bronco Tournament at Five Points.

Tonight, the two Texas teams — San Antonio and Harlingen — collide at 6:30 with the loser packing its bags for the lonestar state.

Miami, Florida state champion, plays Newman (Ga.) in the 8:30 p.m. second game. The winner of the Newman-Miami game will play Seminole at 8:30 p.m. Thursday.

Sanford's Miller — whose brother Fred played for the Junior League all-stars — was in complete control after escaping a bases-loaded, one-out jam in the first inning by fanning Andy Ortega and getting Wayne Devora to pop out to Rozek.

Miller struck out seven hitters and walked two. San Antonio scored its only run in the final inning when Miller picked Edwin Ross off third base but Dale Stevens' throw to the plate hit Ross in the helmet, allowing him to score.

While Miller was throwing goose eggs at the Texans, Seminole used some aggressive base running to pile up a big lead. "That was our plan," pointed out Bronco Manager Rich Coffey. "If we got any kind of lead anytime, we were going."

The going started early. Rozek reached on an error by the catcher and stole second base. After J.W. Waring fled to left, however, Rozek was thrown out at third base on a theft attempt.

First baseman Mark Coffey drew another pass, though, and stole second. Catcher Eddie Taubensee was then hit by a pitch. San Antonio starter David Ramirez attempted to pick off Taubensee, but threw the ball away as the runners moved to second and third.

Right fielder Sean Flaherty promptly whistled a shot just fair over the third base bag to score Coffey and Taubensee easily for the only two runs Miller needed. Flaherty wound up on second with a double.

Rozek's piece of art came in the second inning. Second baseman Evans drilled a single to left, stole second and after a walk to Hysell, both moved up a base on a wild pitch.

Rozek, who played for John Bowers' Winter Springs team, worked the count to 3-1. With both runners cutting loose with the delivery, Rozek dropped the ball 10 feet down the first base line, two feet in fair territory.

While Ramirez scrambled to throw out Rozek, Hysell never hesitated and scored easily. Later, in the third inning, the Rozek-Hysell combination worked again as Hysell stole home.

For the night, the rambunctious Broncos swiped eight bases. Rozek and Hysell had two apiece. Along with Hysell's theft of home in the fifth inning, Seminole added four more runs.

The big blows were a two-run

Umpire Joe Trajick gets set to call out Miami's Raul Cendoya at the plate as Harlingen's Joe Montemayor adeptly blocks the plate and applies the tag. Avanti's Carlos Bringas (left) watches the action. Bringas rapped two doubles and drove in three runs as Miami won, 5-0. Seminole ripped San Antonio, 11-1 behind the four-hit pitching of Terry Miller. Action continues tonight with two games in the Southern Zone Bronco Tournament hosted by the Seminole Pony Baseball Association at the Five Points Field on State Road 419.

"He was the best hitter in our league," said Avanti Manager Joe Arriola about his plus .600 hitter. "But he's been in a slump with just four hits in the tournament."

Bringas came through early Tuesday. After Raul Lorie and Eddie Cruz drew lead off walks, Raul Cendoya popped to first base. Clean up hitter Gerry Suarez coaxed another pass from Harlingen starter Freddy Martinez to load the bases.

Martinez, though, bore down and induced Bob De Paz to pop out to first baseman Felix Gonzalez. Bringas then roped a screamer into the left-field corner to chase home Lorie and Cruz for a 2-0 advantage. In the fifth inning, Suarez singled, but was forced at second by De Paz. Bringas then ripped another shot into left field to score De Paz for a 3-0 lead. Second baseman Heriberto Rodriguez followed with a base hit over shortstop to score Bringas. Avanti added its final run when Antonini, who had walked, scored on an error by the catcher.

Tonight, Arriola will pitch injury-plagued right-hander Ricky Bello. "He's fast, fast, and he has a mean curve," said the personable Arriola. "We were counting on him as one of our top two pitchers, but he's had troubles."

Bello cut his hand and needed 14 stitches to close it. "He'll be 100 percent Wednesday," said Arriola. Then, Bello will try to hand Newman a few troubles of his own.

Grogan Gets Patriots Quarterback Nod

NEW ENGLAND PATS OFFENSE

PASSING Assuming both Grogan and Cavanaugh are healthy, whom do you play? Probably Grogan because of seniority. But it's nice problem to have since both are fine leaders. And receiving corps of Stanley Morgan, and Harold Jackson rates in same class as San Diego's fabulous twosome, with competent reserves available in such as Don Hasselback. VERY GOOD

RUNNING They still could use fullback type such as departed Sam Cunningham for blocking, tough yardage, though there's nothing wrong with Vegas Ferguson and Don Calhoun as starting combo. Rookie Tony Collins will be able to spell hard-working Vegas. Andy Johnson is handyman. FAIR TO GOOD

BLOCKING Two big changes in store. Pete Brock moves ahead of dentist Bill Lenkatis as starting center. Bob Cryder fills guard vacancy left by traded Sam Adams. Could be third change if rookie Brian Holloway develops fast at tackle, threatening Shelby Jordan or Dwight Wheeler. Meanwhile, John Hannah remains most imposing blocker in game. VERY GOOD

DEFENSE LINE The people are all familiar:

Sugar Bear Hamilton at nose tackle, Julius Adams and Tony McGee at ends, Richard Bishop wherever needed. They should be — all are over 30, which is the rub. They've got to start working in younger guys and developing greater pass rush. FAIR

LINEBACKING Solid corps, led by Steve Nelson, finally getting some All-Pro recognition. He plays strong inside post, with Bob Golic likely to be his inside mate. Rod Shoats has developed into outside terror, but Mike Hawkins might be ousted by second-year man Larry McGrew. John Zamberlin and

SECONDARY Talentwise, this is an incomparable crew. No fewer than five No. 1 draft picks to man the four spots, plus extra back on pass downs. They're Mike Haynes, Raymond Clayborn, Rick Sanford, Tim Fox and Roland James. And all potentially are All-Pro, too. Haynes and Fox have already made it. All they have to do is play up to capability. EXCELLENT

SPECIAL TEAMS

KICKING Although his miss against Miami knocked Pats out of playoffs, John Smith led NFL in scoring and stays as placekicker. But Ken Nabor could out Mike Hubach as punter. FAIR

RETURNS There are no better return men than Haynes and James on punts, Horace Ivory and rookie Collins on kickoffs. And that's not even counting Clayborn. Special teams a Pat forte. VERY GOOD

PROSPECTUS

This is a team of undeniable talent that somehow manages to lose the big game — it hasn't won a playoff since 1969. I'm not sure it can get its act together one more time, especially with the QB physical questions.

PREDICTION Third in AFC East, missing by whisker.

Driessen Slugs Reds Past Dodgers, 7-6

By United Press International

In Chapter I of the extraordinary 1981 baseball season, the Los Angeles Dodgers were left with a triumphant half-game lead over the Cincinnati Reds and an engraved invitation to the post-season playoffs.

In Chapter II, the baseball story continues but it's time for Cincinnati to strike back.

Dan Driessen hit a three-run homer and Dave Concepcion lofted his 1,500th career hit to start the Reds on the comeback trail Tuesday night with a 7-6 victory over the Dodgers in Los Angeles.

Mets 4, Cubs 2

At Chicago, Doug Flynn's two-out RBI single capped a two-run eighth-inning rally to lift New York to their second straight.

Pirates 8, Expos 3

At Montreal, Mike Easler singled home Dave Parker with the tie-breaking run to highlight a five-run ninth inning rally and lead Pittsburgh from behind.

Braves 5, Padres 1

At San Diego, Gaylord Perry made his record 6-4 and moved within five victories of his 300th career win to back Atlanta with the aid of a second-inning, two-run triple by Rufino Linares. Loser was Steve Mura, 4-8. San Diego scored their only run on a single by Broderick Perkins.

Phillies 6, Cardinals 5

At Philadelphia, Keith Moreland's bases-loaded, 10th-inning single scored Gary Maddox to spark the Phillies. Winner Ron Reed came on in the 10th inning to even his record at 2-2, while Jim Kaat, 3-2, took the loss. Mike Schmidt recorded his 15th home run of the season.

Giants 3, Astros 2

At San Francisco, Tom Griffin scattered six hits in 8 1-3 innings to lead the Giants and even his record at 5-5. Joe Morgan, Jack Clark, Darrell Evans and Larry Herndon each had two hits to power San Francisco, who snapped a six-game losing streak. Greg Minton got his 10th save and Joe Niekro, 6-6, the loss.

73 Days Later... Blue Jays Acquire Winning Feeling

By United Press International

The Toronto Blue Jays needed exactly 73 days to get that winning feeling again.

The Blue Jays, who had lost 12 straight games dating back to May, snapped their losing streak Tuesday night when Otto Velez and Buck Martinez each hit three-run homers in the first inning to trigger a 6-4 triumph over the Detroit Tigers. Toronto, which last won on May 30, was 0-10 in June and had lost their first post-strike game to the Tigers at Detroit Monday night.

At Cleveland, the Brewers pounded out 14 hits in the opener and 16 in the nightcap to sweep the Indians. Robin Yount and Cecil Cooper homered for the Brewers in the opener and Cecil Cooper went 3-for-5, including a pair of homers, to spark the second game triumph. Cooper went 7-for-8 in the twinbill and amassed 16 total bases.

"This is a day I won't forget for a while," said Cooper. "I never went 3-for-3 before. I know I'm better than a .268 hitter. Good hitters get there sooner or later. I hit regularly for about five weeks (during the strike). Rangers 1, Yankees 0

At New York, Buddy Bell singled home a run in the first inning and four pitchers combined on a four-hitter to boost the Rangers to victory. Rick Honeycutt, Jim Kern, John Johnson and Dave Schmidt made the run stand by limiting the Yankees to four singles.

White Sox 4, Red Sox 2

At Boston, Greg Luzinski delivered a tie-breaking double in the seventh inning and Bill Almon added an insurance run with a ninth-inning homer to give the White Sox their sixth straight victory. A's 9, Twins 5

At Bloomington, Minn., Rickey Henderson and Dwayne Murphy each scored two runs and the A's scored four runs in the second inning to defeat the Twins. Mike Norris went five innings to post his ninth victory in 12 decisions.

Mariners 4, Angels 1

At Seattle, Jim Beattie allowed five hits in eight innings for his first victory of 1981 and Tom Paciorek doubled in two runs

Roger Brill of Maitland practices a forward dive with a half twist under the scrutiny of Coach Hank Mast of "Hank's Divers".

Dive Is Great Thrill For Trinity Prep's Brill

Roger Brill, who will be a junior at Trinity Preparatory School this fall, recently participated in the Florida Sunshine State Games held in the O'Connell Center at the University of Florida in Gainesville.

Brill, who is Trinity's top diver, competed in the 13-14-year-old age group. With the completion of 10 dives, he compiled a score of 318 on the three meter board and a score of 326 on the one meter board, winning second place medals for both events.

"Brill's accomplishments are a result of hard work, talent and dedication," said Coach Hank Mast. Mast, an accomplished diver (recently placing second in the Senior Nationals at Monmouth College in New Jersey in April, 1981), is coaching Brill throughout the summer at Trinity's pool and at the Langford Hotel pool. The Langford is the home of "Hank's Diving Dragons" or more commonly known as "Hank's Divers." Mast has been coaching for 25 years and is currently training 18 of central Florida's top potential divers.

Brill, the son of Mr. Theodore L. Brill of Maitland, has an impressive record thus far in his diving career. So far in 1981 alone, he has placed second on the one and three meter boards at the Florida A.A.U. Junior Olympics in St. Petersburg, second in the 3A high school state meet this spring and second in the 3A high school district level competition.

"Roger has the potential to be the number one 3A high school state diver next year," Coach Mast said recently. Mast admits that the Olympics is a realistic goal as well.

Fresh-Start Zimmer Favors Rangers In Split

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some baseball people will tell you this new split season is for the birds. They're not too happy about having to start all over again because they were doing fine before the strike. So was Don Zimmer with his Texas Rangers, only you'll never hear a peep out of him for a perfectly good reason.

The Rangers' gritty little manager leads the league, probably both of them, in fresh starts. He never had much choice about making them. Back in 1963, when he was a struggling young infielder in the Brooklyn Dodgers' system, his skull was fractured by a pitch and the doctors told him to forget about baseball. He didn't listen to them, and after they put a metal plate in his skull, he came back to play and made his way up to the big leagues.

Again in 1965, after his cheekbone was fractured by a pitch, it looked as if he was finished again. It wasn't, though. He came back to play some more.

He worked his heart out trying to bring Boston a winner as manager of the Red Sox and he was fired last season. That meant he had to start all over again with the Rangers this year. He had them right up there in the Western Division when the players went out on strike last June 12. But do you hear him complaining? Never.

Zimmer was on hand at Yankee Stadium Monday night, as optimistic as ever over his Rangers' chances for the second half of the season. "This is twice now we've opened with the Yankees," he said, laughing over the coincidence. "What luck, isn't it? Beautiful."

Milton Richman

slump before the strike." Oliver, who was hitting .322 at the time of the strike and tied for the league lead with 73 hits, feels the same way as Zimmer about the Rangers' chances for the second half.

"We think we can win," said the Rangers' slugging outfielder. "All the players on the club are in the right frame of mind. We were gaining on Oakland just before the strike. Maybe we're a little unhappy about this split season but I know a club like Kansas City is happy. The Royals gained 12 games overnight."

Oliver was referring to the fact that the Royals, who won the Western Division title last year, then beat the Yankees in the playoffs to participate in their first World Series ever, trailed by 12 games when the strike began two months ago.

"I think Zimmer is right about Mickey Rivers," Oliver said. "If he gets hot, we're in business."

Regardless of where their teams were before the strike, most of the players in both leagues felt good about the opportunity for a new start. George Brett, the Royals' third baseman who hit .390 last year and lifted his batting average to .323 before the players went out, saw the new start as an opportunity for him to approach his performance of last year.

"I'd like to start the second half the same way as I did last season right around this time," he said. "I remember Aug. 23 was the day I went over .400 in Kansas City."

During the strike, Brett worked on a cattle ranch in Panhandle, Texas. The ranch belonged to Mike Battle, the former free safety for the New York

Jets, and Brett became a part-time cowboy, helping to brand the cattle, ear-tagging them and giving them vitamin shots.

"I tried to rope some calves and kept on missing," he said. "Mike said, 'Forget about it. If I can't do it, you can't do it.'"

Brett, who also played in Sunday's 5-4 loss to the National League, said Willie Aikens and Willie Wilson could be the key to the Royals' chances in the second half.

"Aikens has been the most consistent player we have this season," Brett said, "and Wilson is too good to be slumping the way he is. I think he was just trying too hard to make people forget that World Series he had last October. I think he's got it out of his system now and he's ready to go."

IN BRIEF

Another Helicopter Added To Fight Against Medfly

TAMPA (UPI) — Agriculture officials praised yet another helicopter, this time a converted mosquito sprayer, into service today in their battle with the Mediterranean fruit fly.

A Huey helicopter from the Lee County mosquito control operation in Fort Myers was flown to Tampa late Tuesday and converted to handle the malathion-bait mixture used against the Medfly threatening the state's $4 billion produce industry.

Efforts to fight the pest have been stymied for two consecutive days by helicopter failures.

"It is important to hit it hard before it has a chance to spread," Commissioner of Agriculture Doyle Conner said of the Medfly outbreak.

But plans to spray pesticide never got off the ground Monday because a helicopter blew a valve. On Tuesday, a second helicopter made only one flight — spraying 150 gallons over a 17-square-mile area — before it was grounded with engine manifold problems.

The state imposed a quarantine on all movement within a 46-square-mile area of Hillsborough County of host fruits and vegetables not certified free of Medflies and their larvae.

Host fruits and vegetables include all soft tropical fruits and citrus and meaty vegetables such as bell peppers, egg plants, tomatoes and certain types of melons.

"We do not have any commercial operations under way at this time in that area, but the quarantine will affect all host material being transhipped through the area," said agriculture department spokesman Ernest Collins.

Car Repossessor Shot

TAMPA (UPI) — A man attempting to repossess a car was wounded Tuesday when he was struck in the left arm by a shotgun blast allegedly fired by the man who had the car.

James Patrick McGahee, 19, was treated and released at Tampa General Hospital. He was struck by five pellets, three in the left hand and two in the left arm.

Police arrested Jim Henry Hatten, 36, and charged him with aggravated battery, firing into an occupied vehicle and violation of probation.

Motorcycle Rider Killed

CLEARWATER, Fla. (UPI) — Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Allen Keith Meyer, 20, was killed early Tuesday when his motorcycle slammed into a car as it turned into his path on Gulf-To-Bay Boulevard.

Police said Meyer, who was on leave from Jacksonville Naval Air Base, was riding with two friends at the time of the accident.

They said the motorcyclists were approaching an oncoming car that was preparing to make a left turn.

The driver of the car apparently saw the first two motorcycles but did not see Meyer, who was following them, and turned into his path.

Boat Pilot Faces Charges

TALLAHASSEE (UPI)—Tampa Bay deputy pilot Warwick Cahill has been accused of negligence and incompetence for his part in the February ramming of a bridge by a tugboat and barge.

The Department of Professional Regulation lodged the administrative charges against Cahill, of Apollo Beach, saying he failed to make allowances for the wind and tide, used excessive speed, failed to turn the vessel in time and failed to wait for slack water.

Cahill was piloting the tug "Tusker" behind the barge "Liquillama" on Feb. 6 when it collided with Gandy Bridge in lower Tampa Bay, causing major damage to the bridge's supports.

Cahill has 20 days in which to accept or contest the charges. If he challenges them, the case will go before an administrative hearing officer.

If the charges are upheld, Cahill's state pilot's license could be suspended or revoked.

Cuban Exiles Set Sail

MIAMI (UPI)—A force of about 80 Cuban exiles set off for their homeland in two fishing boats early Wednesday in the hope of establishing a peaceful beachhead at the U.S. Naval Base at Guantanamo.

Observers said about half of the exiles were clad in camouflage "bush fatigues," wore berets and pistol belts, but were unarmed.

The voyage, which will take three days, is sponsored by Cubans United. Watergate burglar Frank Sturgis is military adviser to the group.

The exiles sailed down the Miami River aboard the 50-foot La Esperanza and the 45-foot Gold Star and cleared the mouth of the river shortly before 2 a.m. EDT Wednesday. More boats were scheduled to leave later Wednesday.

The trip was not sanctioned by the U.S. Navy, and there has been no contact with the U.S. government so far, said Wilfredo Navarro, secretary general of Cubans United.

Coast Guard Suspends Search For Shark Victim

ORMOND BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — They survived the night, the two men and their girlfriends, clinging to the one pontoon of their catamaran that still bobbed on the surface of the Atlantic.

But at dawn they decided to leave the hulk and try to swim the three miles back to the beach. They hadn't gone far when the shark struck.

Christi Wapnarski, 19, was swimming strongly when she screamed and disappeared under the surface chop. She came up screaming and was yanked down again. Her horrified companions saw a large shadow pass silently below them.

She was unconscious when she came up the second time, and her companions could do nothing. In a few moments they could find no pulse, and they left her there, face down in the water.

A spokesman at the Coast Guard's Ponce Inlet station said Tuesday night the search for Christi had been suspended "pending further developments."

Two Coast Guard cutters and a helicopter had searched since Monday night for the Ormond Beach girl, who went out for a short sail Sunday evening with her boyfriend, Randal Cohen, and Daniel Perrin and Tamara Ennis.

Chief Warrant Officer Robert Sullivan, commander of the Ponce Inlet station, said the other three made it safely to the beach.

The foursome had left Ormond Beach without life jackets, Sullivan said, and about three miles out the 16-foot catamaran sprang a leak in one of its pontoons. The youngsters clung to the other pontoon until dawn came on Monday, when they decided to swim to shore.

"They should never have left the boat, even if it was leaking," said Coast Guardsman James Williamson. "We found the boat immediately."

Cohen, hospitalized for shock and hypothermia, said he was swimming with the missing woman when she was attacked.

"Mr. Cohen told us she was attacked twice by a shark," said Williamson. "Apparently she started screaming and went under the water. He pulled her up and then she screamed again and went back under."

They did not actually see the shark, Williamson said — only a "large shadow in the water."

Cohen and Perrin attempted to save her.

"The girl was unconscious," Williamson said. "Cohen said he was keeping her head above the water. Perrin checked her and found a slight pulse, but Cohen checked and he didn't feel one. Perrin checked again and then he didn't find a pulse."

"Her face then started to turn blue. They said they could either try to stay with her or go on and swim to the beach. Perrin told me that since she was already dead, they were going to abandon her and go on swimming to shore."

"The last time they saw her she was floating face down in the water."

The Coast Guard said there was no indication from the initial interrogation that anyone checked Christi's body for wounds.

Williamson said the survivors were separated by strong currents.

'Airman Fat Albert' Shot Down

MIAMI (UPI) — AWOL Airman Fat Albert has been shot down over the Gulf of Mexico.

The Air Force's 180-foot-long helium radar balloon, dubbed Airman Fat Albert, broke its moorings Monday and trundled out over the gulf, capsizing a pleasure boat that tried to retrieve it and disappearing.

The Air Force finally located Fat Albert late Tuesday, said Lt. Susan Hankey, information officer at Fort Lee Air Force Station in Virginia: It was cruising at 2,500 feet 185 miles west of Key West, she said, and a danger to aircraft.

So an F4 interceptor jet was scrambled and Fat Albert was brought down with air-to-air missiles.

Personnel at the tiny Cudjoe Key Air Force Station, 25 miles north of Key West, planned to retrieve the balloon.

"I don't know if it was damaged but it certainly was shot," said Lt. Hankey. "Anything shot like that has got to be damaged."

The lost balloon and a mate — both known as Airmen Fat Albert — were part of project "Seek Skyhood," designed to beam radar to wavetop level from 12,000 feet, which Hankey said is more effective than scanning by ground-based stations.

Fat Albert was tied to a launching pad at Cudjoe Key. When duty called, it was sent straight up by radio control from a 12,000-foot-long tether, which never left the ground until Monday.

The second blimp was undergoing maintenance work and was to replace the lost balloon in about a month.

Fat Albert broke loose Monday evening while it was being brought down due to impending thunderstorms.

Through remote control, Air Force officials released some of the balloon's helium so that the balloon would descend and the remainder of the tether would drag along the water.

Four men in a small pleasure boat tried to grab the tether, but the boat capsized.

Cook Of The Week: Rita Crews

She Delights In Concocting New Recipes From Old

Herald Correspondent

Rita Crews may be a frustrated scientist at heart for the delights in experimental cooking and concocting new recipes from old.

"I do most of my cooking in shakes and dabs," says Rita, "a shake of this and a dab of that."

Rita lives with her daughter, Chris, on Oak Avenue. She has two married sons, Steve and Rob, and four grandchildren. She has been a resident of Sanford for 21 years.

Mrs. Crews is an administrative secretary in the Fiscal Services Department at Seminole Memorial Hospital. "Fiscal services deals with the financial end of the hospital," Rita said. "We take care of the budget, the billing and, if there are any, customer complaints."

"When I was a child, my mother ran a one-woman kitchen. She preferred to do all the cooking herself. So naturally, when I married all the cooking I did was experimental," she said.

"I decided it would be different with my children," Rita explained. "By the time they were 2 years old, I started teaching them to cook. I would stand them on a chair beside me and we would make simple things like hot dogs, scrambled eggs and peanut butter toast. I believe men and women should be self-sufficient, especially today. So I taught the boys, along with my daughter, how to clean house, wash clothes and iron."

In addition to cooking, Rita says, she enjoys people and her job. "I work with some very nice folks and I have a terrific boss," she added. She collects lions, bells and music boxes. "When I have time," she said, "I enjoy painting, sewing, reading and crossword puzzles."

DELICIOUS POTATOES

Brown in 2 tablespoons butter:
3 tablespoons bell pepper, chopped
1/2 medium onion, chopped
1 cup fresh mushrooms or small can, drained
Add:
4 potatoes — boiled, cooled, peeled and chopped
2 cups half and half
1 pimento, chopped
1/2 teaspoon salt
pepper (a shake)
Accent (a shake)
Simmer slowly, stirring frequently, until mixture thickens. Add 1/2 pound American cheese, shredded. Stir until cheese is melted into the mixture. Add crumbled crisp bacon or diced ham and buttered bread crumbs over the top.

SPICY BREAD

2 packages hot roll mix
4 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
1 cup Parmesan cheese
1 tablespoon instant mixed onion
1 teaspoon garlic salt
1 teaspoon Italian seasoning
Make hot roll mix according to directions and let rise. Divide the double recipe in half. Roll each half into a rectangle about 18 x 18 inches. Spread each with 2 tablespoons butter. Combine the next 4 ingredients and sprinkle one half of mixture on each rectangle. Roll dough lightly and place in greased swirl pan (or tube pan) one on top of the other. Let rise another 40 minutes until pan is 3/4 full. Bake at 350 degrees until bread is nicely brown (about 35 minutes). Turn out on wire rack to cool.

1 pound ground chuck
1 medium onion, chopped

Rita Crews says she started teaching her children to cook when they were 2 years old. "I believe men and women should be self-sufficient, especially today. So I taught the boys, along with my daughter, how to clean house, wash clothes and iron," she said.

1/2 cup milk

one-third cup canned chocolate syrup
Heat oven to 350 degrees. Grease 9 inch tube pan lightly. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Beat butter and sugar in large bowl until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Mix in vanilla. Add flour mixture alternately with milk, beginning and ending with flour. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into batter. Pour half the batter into pan. Add chocolate syrup to remaining batter and blend thoroughly. Pour chocolate batter into pan. Cut through batter with spatula. Bake 1 hour and 10 minutes or until cake springs back when lightly touched with fingertips. Cool in pan before removing.

MEATBALLS

1 pound ground chuck
1 cup bread crumbs
2 eggs, beaten
2 tablespoons parsley
salt and pepper to taste
Mix all ingredients together and form into balls. Brown on all sides in 4 tablespoons oil. Place in greased casserole. Pour gravy over all and bake in 350 degree oven for 30 minutes.

MEATBALL GRAVY

1/2 small or medium onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
1/2 stick oleo or butter
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
1 can cream of chicken soup or cream of mushroom soup
1/2 teaspoon celery seed
Sauté onion and garlic in butter until onion is transparent. Add flour and stir well. Add remaining ingredients and continue to stir until mixture begins to thicken. Pour over meatballs. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes.

2 tablespoons oil
1 1/2 oz. can tomato sauce
1/2 can hot water
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons sugar
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 can chili powder (less if desired)
1 large can kidney beans, drained
Brown beef and onion in oil. Drain and put back into pan. Add tomato sauce and water and stir. Mix salt, sugar, garlic and chili powder with enough water to make a paste. Add to meat mixture, stir well. Cover and simmer on low for 1 hour. Add kidney beans and heat through.

GROUND BEEF CASSEOLE

1/2 pound box elbow macaroni
1 pound ground chuck
1 small onion, chopped
1 can tomato soup
1 soup can milk
1 to 2 cups grated Velveeta or mild Cheddar cheese
Cook macaroni as directed on package. Drain, put back into pan. Brown beef and onion in a little oil, drain. Add to macaroni. Stir in soup, milk and cheese until well mixed. Put into greased casserole (2 1/2-3 quart) and top with buttered bread crumbs. Bake in 350 degree oven for 20 to 25 minutes.

APPLESAUCE CAKE

1 and one-third cups sifted all purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ground cloves
1/2 teaspoon ground allspice
1/2 cup soft shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg

1 cup canned applesauce
1/2 cup chopped pecans
1/2 cup chopped raisins
2 teaspoons flour
1/2 cup chopped raisins
2 teaspoons flour

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Grease and flour 9 x 9 x 1 1/2 inch pan. Sift flour, baking soda, salt, cinnamon, cloves, and allspice together. Beat shortening, sugar and egg in medium size mixing bowl until light and fluffy. Add flour mixture alternately with applesauce beginning and ending with flour. Scrape bowl frequently. Mix nuts, raisins and 2 teaspoons flour together; fold into batter. Pour into prepared pan and bake 40 to 45 minutes or until cake springs back when lightly touched with fingertip. Cool 10 minutes. Loosen edges with spatula and remove from pan. If desired, frost with Orange Butter Cream Frosting.

ORANGE BUTTER CREAM FROSTING

Blend thoroughly:
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
Beat in:
1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
2 tablespoons orange juice

MARBLE CAKE

2 cups sifted all purpose flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup butter or margarine
1 1/2 cups sugar
4 egg yolks

By MEDCO
Antacids are one commodity which live up to their television advertising claims — at least in one respect. Different brands do differ from each other. They may look the same and contain much the same ingredients, and their taste usually runs between mint and chalk, but their relative effects are quite varied. For example, liquid antacids are usually more effective than those in tablet form, even though less convenient to use. Calcium-carbonate-based antacids are quite effective in producing quick relief, but are known to produce what is known as "rebound" acid secretion in the stomach, which rules them out for ulcer sufferers. The most preferred antacids are those made with magnesium hydroxide and aluminum hydroxide. Finally, persons on low sodium diets should check with their doctors before using any antacid because of the widely differing content of sodium in each.

A 12-hour Bluegrass Festival will be held Saturday at the Lake County Fairgrounds in Eustis to raise money for youth programs being sponsored by the Golden Triangle YMCA.

Eight Bluegrass bands from throughout Florida will be on hand to provide continuous music from noon until midnight.

Included on the program will be the American Bluegrass Express from Sanford; The Cross Creek Travelers, Bluegrass Partners, and Four Of A Kind, from Orlando; The Half-Shell Band from Gainesville; Bluejeans and Lace from Tampa; the McLaughlin Family Band of Eustis; and the crowd-pleasers from last year, an all children's band, the Bluegrass Little Bits from Lakeland.

The Does Mountain Cloggers, a local group that specializes in mountain country dancing and clogging will entertain throughout the day. Free clogging lessons will be available to anyone interested.

A concession stand featuring good food and home-baked goods will be available. There will be plenty of free parking adjacent to the festival's outdoor-covered pavilion.

Advanced tickets are $5 and may be reserved by phoning the YMCA office at (904)383-8183. Tickets at the gate are $6. Children 12 and under will be admitted free. The festival always proves to be a fun family entertainment event.

Lou Childers

Geneva Correspondent
349-5790

Lou Childers, a 7-year resident of Geneva, has taken the assignment of writing "In And Around Geneva."

Mrs. Childers and her husband, Dallas, moved to Geneva from Orlando with their children, Barb, 16; David, 15; James, 14; and Susi, 12. Their other son, Mike Childers, 14, is also a Geneva resident.

Lou hails from Xenia, Ohio, and received an associate's degree from Webber College, Babson Park, in 1963. She is a two-term past president of the Geneva Elementary School Parent Teacher Organization.

Lou is presently serving as president of the International Bible Institute and Seminary Alumni Association, an alma mater for both Mr. and Mrs. Childers, who graduated together in May of 1968, after successfully completing the 14 Lesson Training Program for Teachers and Ministers, and receiving ordination into the Gospel ministry.

If you live in Geneva, you are encouraged to call Lou at 349-5790 with items of community interest, or better yet, she says, "Stop in for coffee!"

Achievement No Stranger To SCC Grad

It's time to add another star to Larry Herman's crown. On Aug. 13, he will be graduating from Seminole Community College Respiratory Therapy Program with a straight A average.

Larry and his lovely wife Jackie live on Lake Geneva Drive with their two children, Rhonda and David.

Academic achievement is no stranger to Larry. While attending Southeastern Bible College in Lakeland, he was on the Dean's List for 2-and-one-half years, and was selected by the faculty as one of two students from a student body of over 1,000 to receive a one-semester academic scholarship.

Larry has been class representative while at SCC, an honor bestowed upon him by his peers. As class representative, he was actively involved on the Advisory Committee, acting as liaison between other students and the faculty.

Larry is now looking forward to joining the staff of the Jess Parrish Hospital in Titusville in the Respiratory Therapy Department.

Those who attend the monthly gospel singing at the Oviedo High School auditorium (held the third Saturday each month at 7:30 p.m.) will recognize Larry Herman as the bass singer for the Sons of Song Gospel Quartet.

Maggie LeClair, co-leader with Linda Stokes of the Geneva Sandy Groves 4-H Equestrian Group, said that three Geneva girls participated in the State 4-H Horse Show held in Tampa at the fairgrounds on July 9, 10 and 11. They are: Claire LeClair, 10, All Thompson, 10, and Jennifer Thompson, 12.

In order to qualify for this 300-rider competition, the girls first rode in area 4-H horse shows and placed in the District 4-H Horse Show held at Clarcona Horseman's Park.

Claire placed seventh in the Halter Mares 14.2 and under with her pony, "Siri's Silver Illusion" at the state show, receiving a purple ribbon.

All, riding "Sweet Honesty", placed third in the Halter Mares 14.2 and under, receiving a yellow ribbon, fourth in Pleasure Pony 14.2 and under, receiving a white ribbon, and a call back (honorable mention) in Open Pony Working Hunter.

Jennifer received two eighth place lilac ribbons in Halter Mares 14.2 and under and Pleasure Pony, and one ninth place lavender ribbon in the Hunt Seat Equitation class on her pony, "Never On Sunday".

The girls were accompanied by their mothers, and although 15-year-old Amy Davis of Bass Road, Geneva, did not compete, she attended the horse show, assisting and encouraging the younger 4-H'ers.

Speaking of equestrians, my former neighbor, Cathy Chambers, said her husband, Dr. Carl Chambers, accepted a position at the state university in Athens, Ohio, over a year ago, and Cathy, along with their daughter, Christy, joined him there just last month.

The Chambers' new address is 14 Ball Drive, Athens, Ohio, 45701. Cathy thought she was going to steal away into the night without a lot of fanfare from friends (goodbyes are always painful), and that she did.

However, Christy was given a surprise going away party by Mrs. Anthony Buccino and her 12-year-old daughter, Barbara Ann, at their Longwood home.

The following friends enjoyed the pool party with Christy and Barbara Ann: Claire LeClair, Jena Patton, Tina McCoy, Caroline Bendell, Sharon Galloway, Vanessa McClung, Monica Stokes and Susi Childers.

As a loving memento, all of the girls brought Christy their school pictures to be placed in a special photo album that was her going-away gift.

The girls, famished from their swim, were treated to party snacks of turkey and ham sandwiches with all the trimmings.

Have you noticed that our little community has become a lot quieter in the past few days? That's because 15-year-old David Whitacre is in San Antonio on a month-long visit with his father, Franklin.

David's mom, Norma Young, said David will be coming home Aug. 18 — just in time to get ready for his sophomore year at Oviedo High School.

David's stepfather, Bob Young, can be seen covering our area in his Seminole County Animal Control truck during his duties of rescuing animals in trouble.

I know a lot of people will be relieved to know that Amanda Endor, owner of the Geneva Grocery Store, is not going out of business. She is simply closing out her line of grocery items due to the high power bills recently received.

Thanks to the fuel adjustment demon, she reports that an additional $300 was added to her "normal" $700 monthly charge! No doubt, the cold drink-beer coolers and ice cream freezers were the culprits.

Amanda will continue servicing our community with a complete line of animal feeds, hay, etc., as well as keeping the gas pumps open.

Mrs. Raymond Rucker's friends were glad to see her in church this past Sunday. It was her first visit to the Geneva United Methodist Church where she is organist since she fell July 4 crossing First Street en route to the Yarbroughs' yard to the Community Center. Her right and left wrists were both broken as well as a bone in her left foot.

Needless to say, she won't be playing the organ again until both her left arm splint and right arm cast are removed later this month, and the strength restored.

I get the idea that you can't keep a good woman down since she seems anxious to once again pick up her crocheting so she could finish a baby afghan she had started before her fateful fall.

PEOPLE'S HOUSE BENEFIT

Mickey Mouse joins Gov. and Mrs. Bob Graham at the Executive Mansion for last minute planning of a foot stompin' hand clappin' down home bash to "raise the roof" on the Florida Governor's Mansion scheduled for Walt Disney World, Sept. 26. Sponsored by the Governor's Mansion Foundation, Inc., the benefit has been planned to raise funds for the beautification of the Executive Mansion. Adele Graham, Florida's first lady, organized the Florida Governor's Mansion Foundation a year ago to help fulfill her pledge to make the executive mansion a "people's house." Mrs. Graham hopes that as many as a thousand Floridians will join her and the Governor for the fund raising benefit. Tickets and information are available from: Florida Governor's Mansion Foundation, P.O. Box 1060, Winter Park, 32790.

About 100 One Syllable Names Enough In China

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for years, but I never thought I'd be writing. However, before I do, I need some answers:

1. If I don't want to sign my name and address, is there any chance that my letter will be answered in your column, or do you use only signed letters?
2. If I want a personal reply, what is your address?
3. If you use a letter in your column from someone who doesn't want to be identified, do you ever change names? How about the cities?
4. When you answer a letter personally, do you ever put your name on the envelope?
5. When you answer with a personal letter, how long does it take to get an answer? Thank you.

Dear Abby

NEEDS HELP IN WYOMING
DEAR NEEDS: 1. A letter need not be signed in order to appear in my column.

2. For a personal, unpublished reply, write to: DEAR ABBY, 12000 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 3008, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250. And please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. (I am not obligated to answer letters that do not.)

3. The names and locations are sometimes changed in order to protect the privacy of those who request it.
4. I never put my name on the envelope.
5. Unless there is an unusually heavy load of mail, every letter is answered the same week it is received.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning the possibilities of outrageously long, hyphenated, compound-complex family names, may I submit the following?

China has a population of over a billion people. However, there are only 100 Chinese family names, and almost all of them have only one syllable, such as Chang, Wang, Yen, Lee, Woo, Chou, Chu, Deng, Ma, Liu.

Would you believe that you have just finished reading 10 percent of all the Chinese family names of the one billion Chinese people? Believe it or not. Amen.

WALTER H. YEH, COLUMBIA, S.C.

DEAR WALTER: Fascinating? Yeh!

DEAR ABBY: The letter from STILL IN SHOCK IN N.C. concerned inappropriate questions asked a widow at the funeral of her husband. ("Did he leave you fairly well fixed?" And, "Do you think you'll ever marry again?")

I think this tops them all: After 23 years of marriage, my husband died. Four months before he passed away, he sold a secondhand truck to a man who had the nerve to come up to me at the funeral and ask, "Did your husband happen to leave any

"touch-up" paint for the truck?" My blood pressure still goes up every time I think of it. If they gave a bad-taste award, this person would win it.

Dancers Needed For Igunnuko Festival

The Council of Arts & Sciences will co-sponsor IGUNNUKO, an arts festival in Hanking Park, southwest Orlando, on Sept. 5, from 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. The festival will celebrate black heritage and talent in the community.

A variety of activities are planned for the festival. Talented performing artists will provide jazz, gospel, and steel drum band music. Dancers will perform the colorful Igunnuko ceremony.

Artists, whose works will be on display, will be competing for cash awards. The Nigerian art collection of Dr. Donald Wyatt will also be on display. Children will be able to participate in the arts festival by making an Ashanti carpet.

A parade of dancing Igunnukos is planned for the Hanking Park festival. Those interested in being an Igunnuko dancer should contact the Arts Council for audition information. Visual artists who would like to exhibit their work at the Igunnuko Festival are encouraged to call the Arts Council for registration forms.

There is an entrance fee of $15 for visual artists. Award monies for the visual art segment of the festival total $1200.

Chairman of the festival is Katie Wright, a well-known artist in the Central Florida area and an art teacher with the Orange County Public Schools.

For information call the Arts Council at THE-ARTS (843-2787).

Jail Before Trial Proposed

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Attorney General William French Smith says the White House is considering escalating the war on crime by developing more lenient evidence rules and by permitting the jailing of some suspects before trial.

Both measures, unveiled by Smith Monday in addressing the annual convention of the American Bar Association, would surely draw cries of protest from civil libertarians.

Smith said a presidential Task Force on Violent Crime may recommend a nationwide preventive detention law that would permit the jailing of some suspects while they await trial.

He said the administration is considering "reforming our bail laws so that criminals who pose a danger to the community, and especially those most likely to jump bail, will remain in jail pending trial."

Smith said the task force also may propose "an effort in the courts and Congress to modify the exclusionary rule" — a longstanding legal principle laid down by the Supreme Court that prevents prosecutors from using evidence against a suspect that was seized illegally.

The exclusionary rule allows defense attorneys to object to the introduction at trial of potentially incriminating evidence when there is reason to believe it was obtained improperly.

The task force, headed by former Attorney General Griffin Bell and Illinois Gov. James Thompson, will issue several major recommendations next Monday aimed at stepping up the government's war on violent crime.

Vice President George Bush addressed a separate ABA convention audience just two hours before Smith and also had criticism for the exclusionary rule. He argued criminals too often hide behind constitutional protections that they "would not themselves extend to the wronged."

As examples, Bush cited "the ruthless killer who cleverly avails himself of the exclusionary rule and the turncoat who breaks the Secrecy Agreement he signed and reveals the names of intelligence officers."

Bush's mention of "turncoat" intelligence officers was a thinly veiled reference to controversial former CIA agent Philip Agee, who now lives in Europe.

'Get The Ball To The Mayor'

PRINGLE, Pa. (UPI) — The history books are filled with retired athletes who have succeeded in politics — Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., and Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., to name a few. But Tony Madden is different. He decided he wanted to enter the political arena while he was still an athlete — a college athlete starring in two sports at that.

So, as he enters his senior year at Wilkes College in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., the 22-year-old football tight end and basketball forward will run unopposed in November for mayor of Pringle, a town of 1,400 people across the Susquehanna River from Wilkes-Barre.

Madden knocked off incumbent Charles Wroblewski in the May primary for the Democratic nomination, and received enough write-in votes to gain the Republican nod, too.

"It's going to be strange next year when I tell the guards 'Get the ball to the mayor,'" joked Wilkes' basketball coach Jim Atherton.

Between athletics — he will be a co-captain of both the football and basketball teams — and politics, it figures to be a busy year for Madden.

"I'm not giving anything up," the accounting major said. "I'll go as far as I can. This summer I'm relaxing and really enjoying myself."

"It's going to be hard this fall, though. I'm going to have to give a lot of time both ways. My girlfriend is going to kill me."

Madden, whose father was a councilman, said he was approached by Democratic council candidates about running for mayor. At first, he turned them down.

"I figured it would be too much," he said. "But then I thought I'd give it a shot. I had been interested in politics, but I hadn't worked in any campaigns. They convinced me."

After filing as a candidate in late February, Madden spent nearly three months campaigning door-to-door, discussing issues such as garbage pickup, sewer projects and the problems of after-dark adolescent mischief with the voters.

The last week of campaigning posed a problem not usually faced by mayoral candidates — final exams — but Madden pushed on.

Although people knew of him from his days as a two-sport high school star and because of his Wilkes athletic activity, some thought he was too young for politics.

"A lot of older people were for me and my dad helped a lot," he said. "But there were some who said I was too young or not ready. When I talked to people, some told me they weren't going to vote for me because I was too young, and I could appreciate that."

Although he has no political experience, Madden feels his athletic endeavors, plus the two years he spent at Temple University in Philadelphia before transferring, will help him greatly.

Water Cuts Remain

PALATKA, Fla. (UPI) — The St. Johns Water Management District says the Mandatory 15 per cent water use cutbacks probably will be extended another month for 18 Central Florida counties.

The governing board meets today to consider extending conservation efforts until mid-September, including the voluntary reduction efforts by nine other counties in the district.

Spokesman Connie Phillips said the continuing drought necessitates the extension.

"We are extremely concerned because 80 percent of the rainy season is over and water levels in the district are five or six feet below what they should be."

Rice Desserts

Satisfy Sweet Tooth Deliciously

What better way is there to satisfy your family's "sweet tooth" and still balance your meals nutritionally than with rice desserts?

Ranging from the simple to the elaborate, desserts made with rice and milk (and often eggs and/or fruit) usually contain less sugar than many other sweets. And few, if any, desserts are as easy and "fool-proof" to prepare.

When a recipe calls for cooked rice, any type or form of rice may be used successfully (regular milled, parboiled, brown, or precooked). Just follow package directions to obtain the quantity needed for the recipe. In recipes which specify uncooked rice, adjustment of the amount of liquid and cooking time may be necessary if you prefer a form of rice other than the one indicated.

Most rice packages have easy to follow directions for preparing perfect rice. In the absence of package directions, the same high quality product can be obtained by using the following method(s):

- 1 cup uncooked rice
- 2 cups liquid for regular milled white rice (for drier rice use 2 1/2 cups liquid for parboiled and brown rice; for drier rice use 1/4 cup less liquid)
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1 teaspoon salt

Combine ingredients in a 3-quart saucepan. Bring to a boil. Stir once or twice. Lower heat to simmer. Cover with a tight-fitting lid or heavy-duty foil. Cook, without removing lid, 15 minutes (20 to 25 minutes for parboiled rice; 45 minutes for brown rice) If rice is not quite tender or liquid is not absorbed, replace lid and cook 2 to 4 minutes longer.

Oven Method: Use boiling liquid. Place ingredients in a baking pan or dish; stir. Cover tightly and cook at 350 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes (30 to 40 minutes for parboiled rice; 1 hour for brown rice).

For Drier Rice: Fluff lightly with a fork and let stand, covered, 5 to 10 minutes.

Reheating Rice: For each cup of cooked rice, add 2 tablespoons of liquid. Cover and heat 4 to 5 minutes on top of range or in oven. In microwave oven, cook about 1 1/2 minutes per cup, using high heat.

RICE HEAVENLY HASH

- 2 cup cooked rice
- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1 cup drained canned pineapple tidbits
- 1 large orange, peeled, seeded, and diced
- 1/4 cup chopped maraschino cherries
- 1 cup miniature marshmallows
- 1/2 cup flaked coconut
- 1/4 cup nut meats, chopped
- 1 envelope whipped topping mix, prepared

Combine rice, milk and sugar. Cook until thick and creamy, about 10 to 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool. Fold in remaining ingredients. Spoon into serving dishes and chill. Garnish with additional maraschino cherries, if desired. Makes 12 servings (1/2 cup each).

RICE 'N' CHERRIES IN THE SNOW

- 3 cups cooked rice
- 3 and one-third cups milk
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1 envelope (1 tablespoon) unflavored gelatin
- 1/4 teaspoon each vanilla and almond extracts
- 1/2 pint heavy cream, whipped

Cherry Sauce

- 1 can (16 ounces) tart pitted cherries
  - two-thirds cup sugar
  - 2 tablespoons cornstarch
  - 4 or 5 drops red food coloring
- Combine rice, 3 cups milk, sugar, salt, and butter. Cook over medium heat until thickened, about 25 minutes, stirring occasionally. Soften gelatin in remaining milk. Stir into rice mixture. Add extracts. Cool. Fold whipped cream into rice mixture. Turn into a 1-quart mold or 8 individual molds. Chill. Meanwhile, drain juice from cherries into a saucepan. Set cherries aside. Stir sugar and cornstarch into juice. Cook over low heat, stirring, until thickened. Add cherries and food coloring. Cool. To serve, unmold desserts and top with Cherry Sauce. For a more glamorous dessert, pour a little warmed cherry brandy over dessert and flame. Makes 8 servings.

CHOCOLATE SUNDAE RICE PUDDING

- 2 cups cooked rice
  - 2 cups milk
  - 1/4 teaspoon salt
  - 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
  - 1 cup marshmallow cream
  - 1/2 cup chocolate syrup
- Combine rice, milk, and salt in a saucepan and simmer 20 to 25 minutes or until thick and creamy, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. Add vanilla; cool. Fold in 1/4 cup marshmallow cream. Spoon into dessert dishes and top with remaining marshmallow cream and chocolate syrup. Makes 6 servings.

PRESIDENT GRANT'S RICE PUDDING

- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
  - 3 cups hot cooked rice
  - 4 eggs, separated
  - 2 cups half-and-half (cream and milk)
  - 2 cups milk
  - 1/2 cup sugar
  - 1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
  - 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
  - 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Lemon Sauce
Stir butter into rice. Beat yolks and add half-and-half, milk, sugar, lemon peel, vanilla, and salt. Fold in egg whites which have been beaten until stiff but not dry. Turn into a buttered shallow 2-quart baking dish. Set in pan of hot water. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour or until knife inserted near center comes out clean. Serve warm with Lemon Sauce. Makes 8 servings.

LEMON SAUCE

- 1/4 cup sugar
  - 1 tablespoon cornstarch
  - 1/4 teaspoon salt
  - 1 cup boiling water
  - 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
  - 1 tablespoon grated lemon
  - 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- Combine sugar, cornstarch, and salt. Stir in water gradually. Cook, stirring constantly, about 5 minutes. Blend in remaining ingredients.

QUICK AND EASY RICE PUDDING

- 3 cups cooked rice
  - 3 cups milk
  - 1/4 cup sugar
  - 1/4 teaspoon salt
  - 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
  - 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- Combine all ingredients except vanilla in a saucepan. Cook over medium heat until thickened, 25 to 30 minutes, stirring often. Add vanilla. Pour into serving dish. Serve hot or cold. Makes 6 servings.

MONTHMORENCY RICE PUDDING

- 3 cups cooked rice

- 2 1/2 cups milk
- two-thirds sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1 envelope (1 tablespoon) unflavored gelatin
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 envelope whipped topping mix, prepared
- 1 can (21 ounces) cherry pie filling
- 1/4 cup port wine
- 1/4 teaspoon almond extract

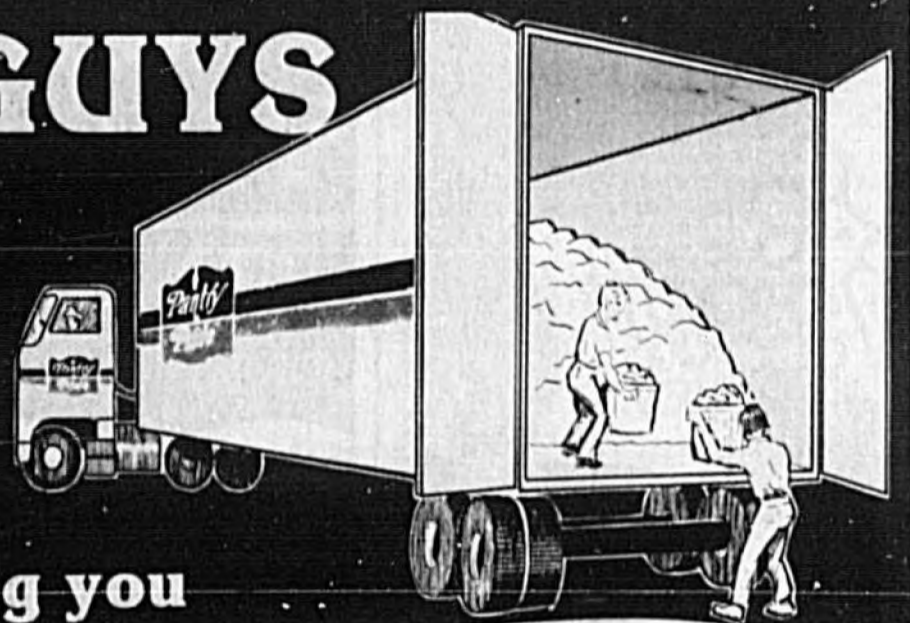

Combine rice, milk, one-third cup sugar, 1/4 teaspoon salt, and butter. Cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, until thickened, about 20 minutes. Soften gelatin in 1/4 cup water; stir into hot rice mixture. Add vanilla; cool. Fold in whipped topping. Turn into a shallow 7 1/2 x 12 x 2-inch dish or 12 individual molds. Cover. Chill. Heat pie filling, wine, almond extract, and remaining sugar and salt. Cut pudding into squares. Top with hot sauce. Makes 12 servings.

Chocolate Sundae Rice Pudding looks like that perennial favorite, Hot Fudge Sundae, but it much lower calorically. The same kind of rich topping is used, as in a chocolate sundae, and it is further embellished with marshmallow cream.

Incredible! Impossible Chicken Pie Wins $10,000

OCEAN CITY, Md. — A farm wife from South Dakota who has won numerous blue ribbons for her cooking at county and state fairs captured the $10,000 first prize in the 1981 National Chicken Cooking Contest on July 29.

June Herke, 47, of Howard, S.D., called her dish that became this year's best chicken recipe "Impossible Chicken Pie." It is a deep dish pie made with chopped chicken seasoned with Mozzarella cheese, tomato paste, basil and oregano.

Placing second and winning $4,000 was Hilda C. Parsons of New Hampshire. She cooked "Chicken Breast Piquante."

Other winners were: Marilyn Beech of California, "Chicken Ole," $3,000, third; Ritsuko Mihida of Hawaii, "Island Chicken With Vegetables," $2,000, fourth; and Winifred Logue of Arkansas, "Breast of Chicken in Cheese," $1,000, fifth.

The 33rd annual chicken cooking competition, sponsored by the National Broiler Council, was held in the Ocean City Convention Hall. Fifty-one finalists, one from each state and the District of Columbia, prepared their favorite chicken recipes in individual mini-kitchens set up around the arena.

Mrs. Herke says she always serves on the food committee for her local community projects. She and her husband, August, have two sons and two daughters, all grown. She was raised in a family of 16 children and started competing in farm and home shows at an early age.

All of this year's contest winners are middle-age homemakers with adult children.

Mrs. Parsons represented her state in the 1975 national chicken cook-off. She and her husband, Harold, live in a small town of less than a thousand and she says she has always loved to cook. Her recipe uses boned chicken breasts cooked with pineapple and almonds and seasoned with limeade and rum.

Married to Louis Beach, the California contestant began cooking as a child. Her winning recipe has a Mexican flavor with taco seasoning, chilies and crushed corn chips.

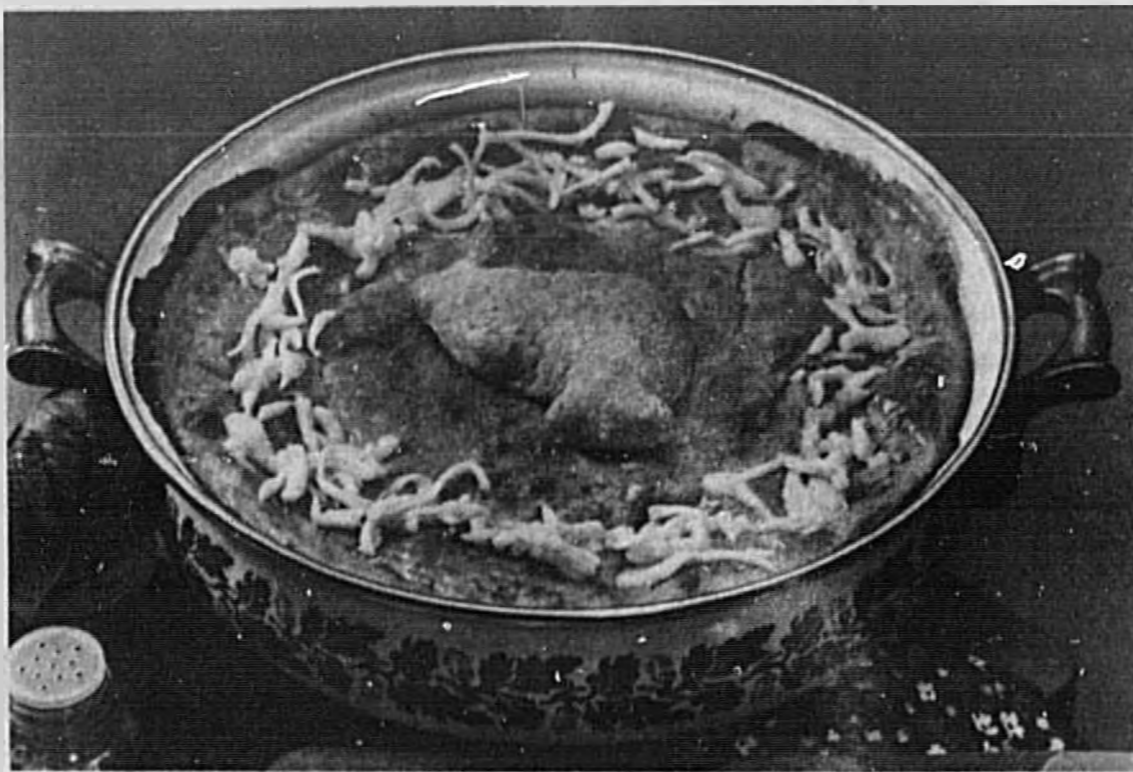

A tax clerk in Honolulu, Mrs. Nishida and her husband, Tadao, have three sons, two of whom are West Point graduates. Several years ago she won the grand prize in a soup stock contest. Her winning chicken recipe combines boned thighs with sliced cabbage, seasoned with ginger and soy sauce.

IMPOSSIBLE CHICKEN PIE

(1981 Winner)

- 1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in parts
- 2 cups water
- 2 tablespoons salt, divided
- 1 cup shredded Mozzarella cheese, divided
- 1 can (8 oz) tomato paste
- 1 teaspoon oregano leaves
- 1/4 teaspoon basil leaves
- 1/2 cup small curd cottage cheese
- 2-3 cup prepared biscuit mix
- 1 cup milk
- 2 eggs
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper

In deep saucepan, place chicken. Add water and 1 teaspoon of the salt. Cover and simmer about 45 minutes or until fork can be inserted in chicken with ease. Cool. Separate meat from bones. Discard bones and skin. Cut chicken in bite-size pieces and place in large bowl; add 1/2 cup of the Mozzarella cheese, tomato paste, oregano and basil; stir to mix and set aside. In a lightly greased large quiche dish or deep-dish pie pan, place cottage cheese and spread evenly. Place chicken mixture evenly over cottage cheese. In bowl, place biscuit mix, milk, eggs, pepper and remaining 1/2 teaspoon salt; beat 1 minute with hand mixer. Pour over chicken mixture. Bake in 350 degree F. oven about 30 minutes or until brown and a knife inserted in middle comes out clean. Remove from oven and sprinkle with the remaining 1/2 cup of Mozzarella cheese. Let set 5 minutes before serving. Makes 4 servings.

Take the heat off entertaining with extraordinary desserts that you can make in advance. As more and more women work outside the home, this strategy is becoming an integral part of menu planning.

The desserts featured here are luscious and do not sacrifice quality for their do-ahead advantage. Even your most discriminating guests will enjoy the hint of imported liqueurs which inspire these desserts. The Frozen Tia Maria Mousse Cake is satiny smooth and chocolaty rich, and freezes well for several months when tightly wrapped.

FROZEN TIA MARIA MOUSSE CAKE

- 3 cups (12 ounces) chocolate wafer crumbs
- 1 stick (1/2 cup) plus 2 tablespoons butter, melted
- 8 ounces semisweet chocolate broken into pieces
- 1/2 cup boiling water
- 1/2 cup sugar, divided
- 4 egg yolks, extra large
- 1/2 cup Tia Maria
- 4 egg whites, extra large
- 1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar
- 2 cups heavy cream
- Additional Tia Maria for sauce

Crust: Preheat the oven to 375 degrees F. Lightly butter the sides of a 9x3-inch spring-form pan. Mix the wafer crumbs and melted butter. Press the mixture firmly against the bottom and sides of the pan. Bake for 8 minutes. Let cool.

Mousse: Melt chocolate pieces with 1/2 cup sugar and the boiling water in the top of a double boiler. Remove from heat, beat in egg yolks. Return and cook over hot water for 1 minute. Add Tia Maria, blend thoroughly and set aside to cool completely.

Beat egg whites with cream to tartar until stiff; add remaining 1/2 cup sugar gradually and beat until stiff peaks form. Fold into chocolate gradually. Whip cream and fold into the mixture; blend well.

Assembly: Set a small shot glass in the center of the baked springform pan. Spoon in the mousse mixture around the glass and fill the shell. Smooth out the top, cover with plastic wrap and freeze several hours or overnight.

Decorate the cake with chocolate shavings, if desired. Or if time permits, make attractive chocolate leaves by painting the underside of fresh leaves (ivy or rose are good choices) with melted semisweet chocolate. Place leaves on saucer and freeze.

When ready to serve, remove the springform sides from the cake. Slide onto a serving plate. Peel away the green leaves from the chocolate and arrange on top of cake. Fill the center shot glass with Tia Maria and serve as a sauce for each piece of cake. Serves 10 to 12.

If desired, a chocolate cup can be made or purchased to replace shot glass.

ROYAL COURVOISIER POUNDCAKE

- 2 1/2 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 sticks (1 cup) butter
- 1 cup sugar
- 6 egg yolks, lightly beaten
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1-3 cup water
- 6 egg whites

Butter and line bottom of a 9-inch loaf pan with waxed paper. Sift flour, baking powder and salt twice. Cream the butter and add sugar gradually; beat until light and fluffy. Add the egg yolks and continue beating until mixture is very light. Gradually sift in flour, a little at a time beating well. Stir in Vanilla and water. Beat egg whites until stiff. Fold into flour mixture. Pour the batter in the prepared pan. Bake in a preheated 300 degree F. oven for 1-1/2 hours. Meanwhile, make the Orange Courvoisier Sauce.

ORANGE COURVOISIER SAUCE

- 1-3 cup sugar
- 1 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 cup orange juice
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 1 tablespoon grated orange rind
- 1/2 cup Courvoisier
- 1/2 cup sliced almonds

Mix sugar and cornstarch in a small saucepan; add juice. Cook for five minutes over medium heat, stirring constantly. Add butter and stir until melted. Add orange rind and Courvoisier. Pour half the sauce over cake while sauce is still warm. Sprinkle with almonds. Pass the remaining sauce as the cake is served. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

ORANGE DRAMBULE PIE

- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 cup orange juice
- 5 egg yolks
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1-3 cup Drambule
- 1/2 cup heavy cream
- 9-inch prebaked pie shell
- 2 very small navel oranges
- 1/2 cup orange marmalade or apricot jelly

Mix cornstarch with 1/2 cup orange juice in a medium size bowl. Add the egg yolks and sugar; beat well. Pour remaining 1/2 cup juice in a medium saucepan. Sprinkle on gelatin, and bring to a boil, stirring until gelatin is dissolved. Remove from heat. Gradually stir a few spoons of hot juice into the egg yolk mixture. Then combine both mixtures in the saucepan. Return to heat and cook 3 minutes more stirring constantly. Remove from the heat and stir in the butter until melted; add Drambule.

Cool rapidly over ice, then place in refrigerator until completely cool. Whip cream until thick; fold the cream into the cooled mixture and pour into pie shell. Melt the marmalade over low heat. Slice the oranges, unpeeled, into very thin rounds. Dip each slice in melted jelly. Starting at the outside arrange the slices on top of the pie, overlapping each slice, and cover the entire top. Refrigerate until ready to serve. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Bananas are valued around the world for their versatility: cooked as a vegetable, as well as enjoyed as a fruit. Sliced bananas add a mellow flavor and pretty garnish to this easy-to-prepare Curried Fish Rolls Carib recipe.

Bananas Give Caribbean Flair To Dinner At Home

For an elegant dinner here at home with a Caribbean flair, try Curried Fish Rolls Carib. The rolled flounder is quickly steamed, then covered with the colorful sauce of curried cherry tomatoes, bananas and coconut with a piquant touch of green chili pepper. The unexpected zest of sliced bananas adds a mellow flavor to the spicy combination of textures and tastes. Serve rice as a perfect accompaniment to this nutritious and satisfying meal.

You'll find bananas are the perfect food for today's working lifestyles. They are economical, convenient, nutritious and versatile — they taste one way when cooked, quite another when eaten out of hand.

When you are really rushed at the office try a quick energy boost. Grab a ripe, golden banana for lunch or a mid-morning break. The natural fruit sugar in bananas will give you a nutritious pick-up that comes with a good supply of vitamins and minerals. And its unique natural texture stays with you so you aren't hungry too soon.

You'll find that green-tipped bananas are not as sweet as golden yellow and they have a very firm consistency. Broiling, baking or sauteing brings out their unique flavor and makes them a perfect vegetable alternative.

Right now bananas of excellent quality and moderate price are in good supply at your supermarket. Whether at work or at home bananas are a dependable part of your daily diet.

CURRIED FISH ROLLS CARIB

- 4 lettuce leaves
- 1/2 cup water
- 2 flounder fillets (about 1/2 pound), cut in half lengthwise
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1 small onion, thinly sliced
- 1 fresh or canned green chili pepper, seeded and thinly sliced
- 1/2 cup half and half or light cream
- 1/2 teaspoon curry powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 10 medium-size banana, sliced 1/4-inch thick
- 1/2 cup cherry tomatoes, quartered
- 1/2 cup flaked coconut
- Cooked rice

Arrange lettuce leaves to cover bottom of small skillet. Add water. Roll up fish fillets; arrange on top of lettuce. Cover. Simmer 7 to 10 minutes or until fish flakes with a fork. Meanwhile, melt butter in small saucepan; saute onion and chili pepper until tender. Add half and half, curry powder and salt. Heat to boiling. Reduce heat. Simmer 1 minute. Stir in banana, tomatoes and coconut. Cook just until heated through. Transfer fish to serving dish. Spoon sauce over fish. Serve with cooked rice, if desired. YIELD: 2 servings.

CHICKEN BREASTS EL DORADO

- 1 whole chicken breast, skinned, boned, split
- 1 medium-size banana
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1/2 cup packaged, dry bread crumbs
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, divided
- 1/2 cup thinly sliced red pepper
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/2 cup Gruyere cheese
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon hot pepper sauce

Using a meat mallet, pound each chicken piece 1/4-inch thick. Cut banana in half crosswise. Slice one half of the banana lengthwise. Slice remaining half in 1/4-inch slices; reserve. Wrap each lengthwise piece of banana with a piece of chicken. Serve with food picks. Dip chicken in egg then in bread crumbs. In small skillet melt 1 tablespoon butter; brown chicken over medium heat, about 10 minutes. In small saucepan, melt remaining 1 tablespoon butter; saute red pepper; blend in flour. Gradually add milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring frequently, until sauce boils and thickens. Add cheese, salt and hot pepper sauce. Stir until cheese melts and mixture is smooth. Stir in banana slices; heat, do not overcook. To serve spoon sauce over chicken. Yield: 2 servings.

TIP-TOP SUPERMARKET

A Tale Of Two Thinnies

By LUCEY CARROLL
Special To The Herald

For Carole it was a love crisis; for Craig, a threat to his health. Who are they? They are a couple of ex-heavyweights who cherish the good things of life, like food and indulgence. They go right on eating with passion and gusto. But now they stay thin.

And they are missionaries of their new habits. Carole Livingston proclaims "I'll Never Be Fat Again" and Craig Claiborne gives us his low-sodium, modified fat, modified cholesterol "Gourmet Diet" in two new Ballantine Books.

Claiborne, of course, is the very famous gastronome, cookbook author and columnist for the New York Times, dean of the cooking establishment that is devoted to luscious writing about voluptuous eating.

His lucid, spare style sets you up neatly for his magnificent ways with ingredients. Up to now, his cuisine, though eclectic, has tended toward high French. But when good Dr. Rechtschaffen told this pleasingly plump patient to cut out salt, cholesterol and other fats or else face a very early decline from heart disease, Claiborne found a magical alternative for his ingredients.

And obviously it does the trick. Craig is now the merest shadow of his former self — much more attractive and youthful. He tells us he eats and lives better than ever.

Carole's approach to being too large for her love-life and self-esteem is typical of this spunky, perky, very independent young career woman. On her own, she researched, explored, set up strategies, and attacked — looking into her mind and body as well as what was happening in dietland. Her findings are personal, psychologically attuned.

She gives a day-by-day set of do's and don't's and insights that are practical and convincing — topped off by a secret weapon so obvious you'll wonder why no one ever thought of it before. She too has never given in to the boredom and misery of tastelessness, and she eats very high on the hog indeed.

Claiborne's gourmet quest has drawn him across cultures and cuisines. He has learned to rely on the likes of the unsaturated oils and saltless steamings of the Orient, the zesty seasonings of Greece and India and Morocco — Sesame, Cumin, Coriander, Mustard, Ginger, along with heavily applied garlic, lemon and vinegar.

Here, for example, is his "steaming" technique for broccoli. I've tried it, not only for broccoli but for brussels sprouts, green beans, zucchini and asparagus too. It's easy, fast, delicious, lovely to look at, and absolute heaven to eat.

BROCCOLI ITALIAN-STYLE

- 1 bunch broccoli, about 1 1/2 pounds
  - 2 tablespoons olive oil
  - 1 to 2 teaspoons finely minced garlic
  - 1/4 teaspoon crushed hot red pepper flakes
  - one-third cup water
- Cut the broccoli into bite-size flowerets. The pieces should not be too small or they will disintegrate. You may cut the broccoli stalks into 1 1/2-inch lengths. Trim the sides and split the pieces in half lengthwise. Heat the oil in a skillet and add the garlic and hot red pepper. Cook briefly without browning the garlic. Add the broccoli and water and cover closely. Cook over low heat for about 10 minutes, or until the broccoli is tender. Stir the pieces occasionally so that they cook evenly. If necessary, add a couple of more tablespoons of water. When ready, the broccoli should be green and tender and all the water evaporated. Serve, if desired, with lemon or vinegar. Yield: 4 servings. Calories: 119. Sodium: 26 mgs. Fat: 7.3 g. Cholesterol: 0 mgs.

Another notable Claiborne method, given for red cabbage, I find works just as well for green, and not only cabbage but all the veggies not suitable to the broccoli technique above.

RED CABBAGE ALSATIAN-STYLE

- 1 or 2 red cabbages, about 3 1/2 pounds total weight
  - 2 tablespoons unsalted margarine or butter
  - 2 cups coarsely chopped onion
  - 1/2 teaspoon finely minced garlic
  - 1 tart, firm green apple, peeled and cored
  - 1/2 cup red wine vinegar
  - 1/2 cup water
  - 1 tablespoon caraway seeds
  - 6 tablespoons brown sugar
- Cut away and discard the core of the cabbage. Cut the cabbage into 1/4-inch slices. Cut the slices into bite-sized pieces. Heat the butter or margarine in a casserole large enough to hold the cabbage. Add the onion and garlic and cook until the onion is wilted. Add the cabbage and cook for about 5 minutes. Meanwhile, cut the apple into quarters. Cut the quarters crosswise into very thin slices. There should be about 2 cups. Add the apple slices, vinegar, water, caraway and brown sugar to the cabbage. Stir. Cover and cook for 1 1/2 hours, or until the cabbage is quite tender. Yield: 8 servings.

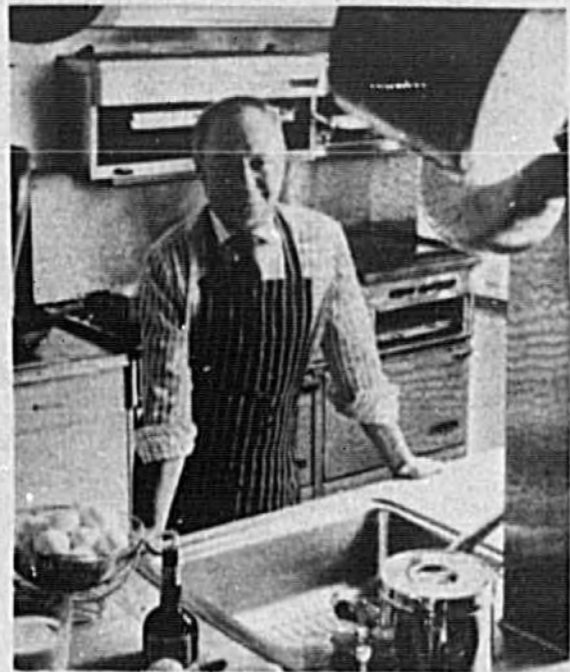

Finally, I offer 2 wondrous chicken methods, with two quite different ethnic origins as examples of Claiborne's eclectic way with low-cal creations. They are suitable not just for the parts specified, but any parts at all and inspiring to your own creative variations.

CHICKEN WINGS WITH CUMIN

- 16 chicken wings, about 3 pounds
  - 2 tablespoons peanut, vegetable or corn oil
  - 2 teaspoons cumin
  - 1 teaspoon paprika
  - 3 tablespoons parsley, finely chopped
  - 2 teaspoons finely minced garlic
  - 1/2 cup fresh bread crumbs made from unsalted bread
  - 2 tablespoons unsalted butter or margarine
  - Freshly ground black pepper to taste
- Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Put the chicken wings in a baking dish and sprinkle with oil. Turn in the oil to coat all over. Sprinkle with cumin and paprika and rub the spices all over. Place in the oven and bake for 40 minutes. Turn the wings over and continue baking for about 20 minutes. Pour off the fat from the pan. Combine the parsley, garlic and bread crumbs. Blend with the fingers. Sprinkle this over the chicken wings. Dot with butter or margarine. Place the dish in the oven and increase the temperature to 450 degrees. Bake for 5 minutes. Sprinkle the chicken wings with a generous grinding of pepper and serve hot or cold. Yield: 4 servings.

LEMON CHICKEN, TEXAS-STYLE

- 1 2 1/2-pound chicken, cut into serving
  - 2 teaspoons finely minced garlic
  - 1 tablespoon peanut, vegetable or corn oil
  - 1 tablespoon finely grated lemon rind
  - 3 tablespoons lemon juice
  - 3 tablespoons unsalted chicken broth, or water
  - 1 teaspoon crumbled oregano
  - 1/2 teaspoon dried thyme
  - Freshly chopped parsley for garnish
- Preheat the oven to 400 degrees. Rub the chicken pieces with garlic. Rub the oil over the inside of a baking dish large enough to hold the chicken pieces in one layer. Add the chicken skin side down. Sprinkle with lemon rind. Pour the lemon juice and broth over all. Sprinkle with oregano and thyme. Place in oven and bake for 30 minutes. Turn the pieces and continue baking for 30 minutes. Sprinkle with parsley and thyme. Yield: 4 servings.

Craig Claiborne, author of "Craig Claiborne's Gourmet Diet," is but a mere shadow of his former pleasingly plump self.

Bread Wins In Fat War

If you're one of millions of Americans who are cutting back on their calories, one of the best tools you have in your war against fat is something you probably thought you'd have to do without — bread.

Since bread is one of America's favorite foods, most dieters seem to think that it can't be anything but fattening. In fact, a slice of bread contains only about 70 calories, and is a filling and satisfying food. Even more important, bread supplies important vitamins and minerals that can often be left out of a strict diet.

Weight Watchers, the internationally known weight-reducing program, requires its members to eat a minimum of three one-slice servings of bread and bread substitutes each day, up to five servings for men and young people. That's twice as much bread as most people now eat. More and more, nutritionists are encouraging people — even those on weight-loss diets — to eat more bread.

One of the best ways to include bread in your weight reduction program is also one of the most popular and satisfying. Sandwiches can be a complete meal, low in calories and high in taking care of your appetite. Starting with bread, you can build the basis of a nutritious meal for under 300 calories. Add low-fat milk and fruit, and you have a well-balanced meal that will help in your fight to take off pounds. The number of calories vary according to which of any number of different sandwich fillings you use. But all of them are nutritious, convenient and low in calories.

For example, a peanut butter and jelly sandwich, America's favorite, starts with two slices of bread at 140 calories, two tablespoons jelly at 98 calories, and two tablespoons of peanut butter at 188 calories, for a total of 424 calories. Add a cup of skim milk at 88 calories and a small apple at 59, and you have a full, well-balanced diet with only 571 calories.

A cheese sandwich can cut even more from your daily calories. A cheese sandwich on whole wheat bread with lettuce and one teaspoon of mayonnaise contains only 278 calories. Add skim milk and fruit, and the complete meal is just over 400 calories, although your stomach would never believe it.

The combinations for low calorie sandwich meals are limitless.

Herbs And Spices Bring Unique Quality To Foods

Just as variety is the spice of life, spice adds variety to our food. Notwithstanding famous American author Christopher Morley's definition of spice as the plural of spouse, spices are plants that add the flavor and aroma that change an ordinary dish into gourmet cuisine.

One company's worldwide empire is based on a unique combination of herbs and spices. Colonel Harland Sanders built his Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurants—one of the largest food-service operations in the world—on a secret blend of 11 herbs and spices.

"Herbs and spices bring a unique quality to food," says Dr. John Mann, vice president of quality—worldwide for Kentucky Fried Chicken, and an expert on spices. "Even a small quantity can enhance or alter the taste of any dish, and they should be used sparingly."

"The real importance of herbs and spices is the variety and pleasure they bring to our palates," Dr. Mann says. They can be used fresh, dried or frozen; whole, ground or powdered.

According to Dr. Mann, some cooks have difficulty when adding spices to a recipe because these seasonings may have lost their potency and flavor due to improper storage. "The most popular spot is above the stove—and it's the worst place to store herbs and spices," Dr. Mann says. "The moisture from cooking destroys their flavor and aroma." He suggests they be stored in sealed plastic bags or glass jars in the freezer or refrigerator.

Shelf life is another important consideration, says the spice expert. "Most seasonings can be stored for up to two years," Dr. Mann explains, "but at Kentucky Fried Chicken we never hold our spice mix longer than six months."

Herbs and spices come from the stem, leaves, flowers, seeds, root and bark of various plants. One of the most popular seasonings—salt—is not an herb or spice, but a mineral. "It's an important ingredient in any recipe, though," Dr. Mann says, "because it enhances the flavor of the other spices as well as the food."

Herbs and spices grow all over the world, from exotic India to sultry Latin America. Their flavor and aroma are determined by the climate and soil so that pepper from India will taste different from pepper grown in Jamaica.

"One of the hardest jobs we had," recalls Dr. Mann, "was continuing the import of a rare type of pepper. It would have been easier to substitute a different kind but the Colonel would have none of that—and, of course, he was right."

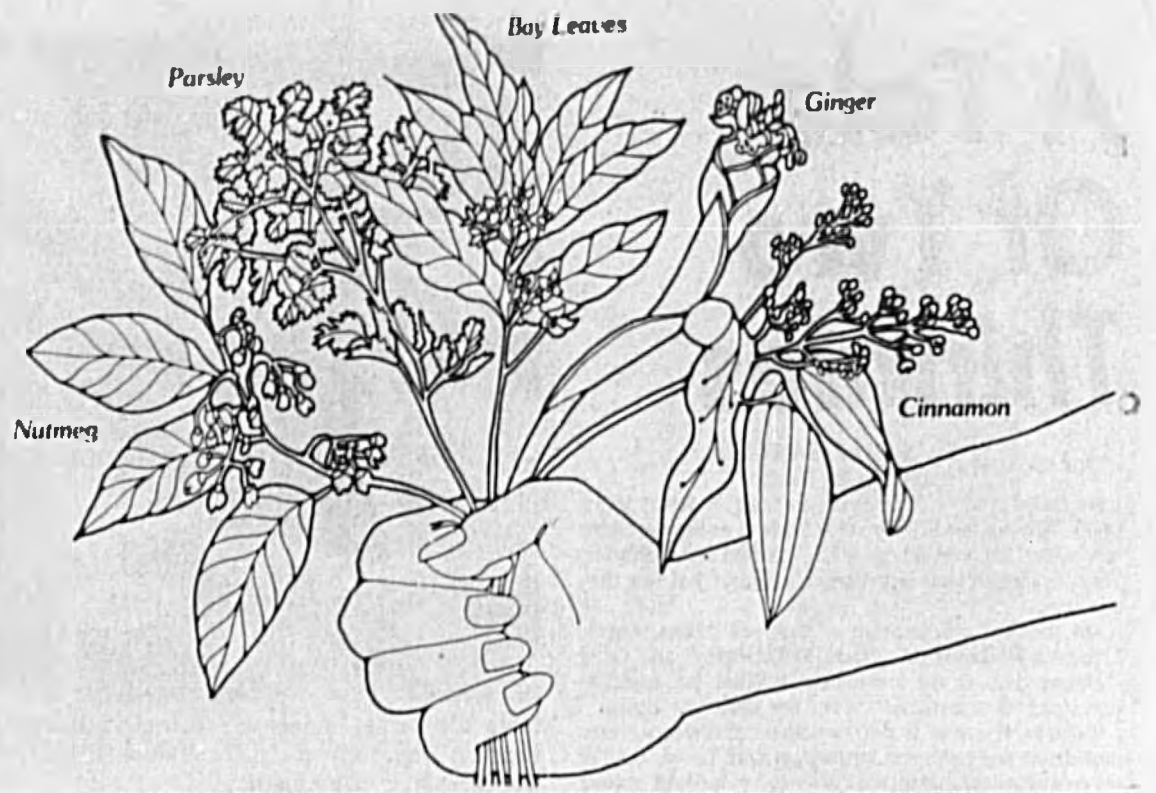

Many companies have trade secrets hidden away, but someone wanting to learn the Colonel's secret formula would have to go through several locks to a vault in Louisville. And anyone thinking about scientifically analyzing the recipe should drop into a lab near Dr. Mann's office. For the past two years, a chemist working for Kentucky Fried Chicken has been trying to crack the secret recipe, just to see if it can be done. He hasn't succeeded.

But while Dr. Mann isn't about to reveal the Colonel's secret formula, he is happy to share some of his expertise about cooking with spices:

- Use herbs and spices sparingly in cooking. They are potent and their flavor increases during the cooking process.
- Fresh herbs should be minced or chopped as needed.
- Add herbs and spices to dishes at the last minute, unless they're being used in a simmering stock.
- When browning both meat and herbs in a pan, brown the meat first, then the herbs, to prevent the herbs from frying to a crisp.
- Crumble dried herbs before using to release their flavor.
- Since oils that carry flavor become concentrated in the drying process, use much less of the dried herb than you would its fresh equivalent.

The proper use of herbs and spices adds a richness and variety to all kinds of foods. They play an important role in simple dishes or gourmet cuisine, and should have a place in the kitchens of creative cooks everywhere.

Summer Cookout Specials

Citrus and liquid pepper sauce combine to make a sauce with a special taste. Try it on spareribs at your next barbecue.

To speed cooking, parboil the ribs first before grilling them over charcoal. Brush lavishly with the orange sauce and serve remaining sauce hot to dip spareribs in.

The Florida Fried pies that are featured below are just the dessert to top off any outdoor cookout.

ORANGE SPARERIBS SARABOTA

4 to 5 pounds spareribs, cut in serving pieces
1 can (8 ounces) frozen concentrated orange juice thawed, undiluted

- 1/4 cup ketchup
- 2 tablespoons molasses
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1/2 teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 4 teaspoons grated onion

Place spareribs in large kettle; cover with water and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, for 30 minutes. Drain and refrigerate until ready to grill. Mix undiluted orange concentrate with remaining ingredients. Place spareribs on grill set 6 to 8 inches from heat. Cook 15 minutes; turn and brush with orange sauce. Cook 15 to 30 minutes longer, turning and brushing frequently with sauce. If desired, garnish with halved orange slices. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 to 6 servings.

FLORIDA FRIED PIES

Apple-Orange Filling:

- 1 can (1 pound 4 ounces) pie sliced apples, drained
- 1 orange, coarsely chopped (rind included)
- 1/4 cup sugar, divided
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine

In medium saucepan, combine apples, chopped orange and 1/4 cup sugar. Bring to boiling; reduce heat, simmer 10 to 15 minutes, stirring occasionally, until orange is tender. Remove from heat; drain. Add remaining 1/4 cup sugar and butter. Stir until sugar is dissolved and butter is melted. Cool. Use to fill Fried Pies.

PIE DOUGH

- 4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 2 teaspoons grated orange rind
- 1/2 cup shortening
- 3/4 to 1 cup Florida orange juice

Vegetable oil
Sift together flour, sugar, salt and baking powder; stir in orange rind. Cut in shortening with a pastry blender until mixture resembles coarse corn meal. Stir in enough orange juice to form a soft dough.

Divide dough into quarters. Roll out each quarter on lightly floured board to a 10-inch rectangle, 1/4 inch thick. Cut each rectangle into four 5-inch circles. Place one heaping tablespoonful Apple-Orange Filling in center of circle. Moisten edges of dough with orange juice. Fold dough over to form a semicircle. Press edges together with fork; turn pie over, press again with fork. Pie must be tightly sealed.

Pour oil into skillet to depth of 2 inches. Heat to 375 degrees on deep fat thermometer. If thermometer is not available, drop a small piece of dough into hot oil. Oil is hot enough when dough pops up. Fry pies until golden brown on one side, about 3 minutes. Turn and fry 2 minutes longer or until golden. Drain on paper towels. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar, if desired. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 16 fried pies.

Entertaining: This Fall, Score With Tasty Menus

Entertaining before the game is a popular way to visit with friends. If the day dawns bright and clear, gather fellow rooters near the stadium for the fun and informality of a tailgate picnic.

OVERNIGHT SALMON STRATA

- 1 can (7 1/2 oz.) salmon
- 8 slices white bread
- 1 cup frozen peas, thawed and drained
- 1/2 cup each chopped green pepper and onion
- 1 tablespoon diced pimiento, rinsed and thoroughly drained
- 1 1/4 cups shredded sharp Cheddar cheese, divided
- Milk
- 4 eggs, slightly beaten
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon each bottled hot pepper sauce and crushed dill weed

Drain and chunk salmon; reserve liquid. Trim crusts from 5 slices bread; cut in half diagonally. Use remaining bread and trimmings to line bottom of 11x7x2-inch baking dish. Combine peas, green pepper, onion and pimiento; sprinkle over bread in casserole. Top with 1/2 cup cheese, salmon, then another 1/2 cup cheese. Arrange bread triangles over all. Add milk to reserved salmon liquid to equal 2 cups; combine with eggs and seasonings. Pour milk mixture over bread. Cover and refrigerate at least 1 hour or overnight. Uncover and bake at 325 degrees F. 1 hour or until knife inserted near center comes out clean. Sprinkle with remaining 1/4 cup cheese; bake 5 minutes longer. Let stand 5 to 10 minutes before serving. Makes about 8 servings.

SPARKLING PEAR CUP

- 1 can (29 oz.) Bartlett pear halves
  - 1 pink grapefruit, peeled and sliced (optional)
  - 1 large orange, peeled and sliced
  - 1/2 cup green grapes, seeded if necessary
  - 1 cup pink champagne or rose wine
  - Mint sprigs
- Drain pears; if desired, cut halves in two. Cut grapefruit slices in quarters and orange slices in half-rounds. Combine all fruits; chill thoroughly. Pour champagne or rose wine over fruit just before serving. Garnish with mint sprigs. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

CHOCOLATE FOOTBALL CAKE

- 3/4 cup butter or margarine
  - 2 cups sugar
  - 2 eggs
  - 1 teaspoon vanilla
  - 2 1/2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
  - 1/2 cup unsweetened cocoa
  - 1 1/2 teaspoons baking soda
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 1 1/4 cups buttermilk or sour milk
- Chocolate Frosting
Cream butter or margarine and sugar until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well; add vanilla. Combine flour, cocoa, baking soda and salt; add alternately with buttermilk or sour milk beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Pour into well greased and floured egg-shaped pans. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 60 to 70 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool. Assemble cake layers with frosting. Trim broad end of egg to resemble narrow end of each cake layer. Trim sides slightly to match shape of football. Trim base so cake sits level. Frost with frosting; trim with white frosting to resemble laces of football. NOTE: To sour milk place 1 1/2 teaspoons vinegar in 2-cup measuring cup; fill with milk to 1 1/4 cups.

- Use 3-by-6-inch (e.g. Wilton) pans
- CHOCOLATE FROSTING
2-3 cups confectioners' sugar
6 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened
3 or 4 tablespoons milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup unsweetened cocoa

Combine confectioners' sugar, butter, milk and vanilla in small mixer bowl. Remove small amount for decoration; set aside. Add cocoa to remaining frosting blending well.

- ALL-AMERICAN SALMON SANDWICH
- 1 cup (7 1/2 oz.) salmon
  - 1/4 cup each chopped celery and dill pickle
  - 1 tablespoon minced onion
  - 1 teaspoon lemon juice
  - 1/2 teaspoon pepper
  - Dash salt
  - 2 to 3 tablespoons mayonnaise
  - Butter
  - 4 hamburger buns or Kaiser rolls
  - Curly leaf lettuce
- Drain and chunk salmon; combine with celery, pickle, onion, lemon juice, pepper, salt and mayonnaise. Butter rolls. Top bottom half of each bun with leaf lettuce; portion salmon mixture evenly among sandwiches. Place top half of bun on salmon mixture. Makes 4 servings.

INDIVIDUAL PEAR CHEESE SALADS

- 1 can (16 oz.) Bartlett pear halves
  - Curly leaf lettuce
  - 1 cup small curd cottage cheese
  - 1/2 cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
  - 1/4 cup chopped rucchini
  - 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
  - 1/2 teaspoon each seasoning salt and basil leaves, crushed
  - 1/2 teaspoon pepper
  - 4 zucchini spears
  - 4 small wedges Cheddar cheese
- Drain pears; arrange on 4 lettuce-lined salad plates. Combine cottage cheese, Cheddar cheese, rucchini, parsley and seasonings. Spoon into centers of pear halves. Garnish each salad with a spear of zucchini and a wedge of cheese. Makes 4 servings.

COCOA CRUNCH BARS

- 2-3 cup butter or margarine
  - 1/2 cup unsweetened cocoa
  - 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
  - 1-3 cup light corn syrup or honey
  - 1 teaspoon vanilla
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 4 cups quick-cooking oats
  - 1 1/2 cups coarsely chopped nuts
- Melt butter in medium saucepan; remove from heat and blend in cocoa. Add brown sugar, corn syrup or honey, vanilla and salt; blend well. Combine oats and nuts in large mixing bowl. Pour chocolate mixture over dry ingredients; stir to blend well. Line a 15 1/2 by 10 1/2-inch jelly roll pan with aluminum foil; generously grease foil. Press mixture into pan; bake at 350 degrees F. for 20 to 25 minutes. Cool; peel off foil. Cut into bars. Store in tightly covered container. About 3 dozen bars.

Pass the football, and eat it too!
Expect raves when Chocolate Football

Cake graces a spread during the exciting football season.

Prepared the evening before, the Overnight Salmon Strata features layers of colorful canned salmon, bread triangles, vegetables and shredded cheese topped with a seasoned egg mixture.

Minor Skin Cancer Spawned By Abuse

DEAR DR. LAMB—I have a problem with a skin cancer on my nose. It started as a little bump about half way between the middle and end of my nose about two years ago. I went to the doctor and he burned it off. About a month later it came back. He burned it again. In the last two years he has burned it five or six times. Each time the cancer goes a little lower on my nose until now it is almost on the end.

It heals each time and after the scab comes off it looks just fine with a clean scar, then it pops out again.

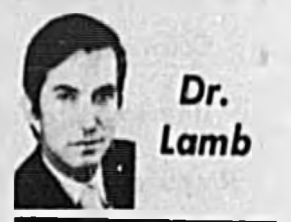

My doctor told me that other people had this problem, too, but not as persistent as mine. I have begun to get worried about it but he said it wasn't the dangerous type. But I am getting tired of going around with a scab on the end of my nose all the time. Is there anything else that can be done about it? Can you send me any information on this problem?

DEAR READER—Such skin cancers are the most common form of all cancers. The mild type are so common and so seldom a serious problem if not neglected that they are not usually included in cancer statistics. The exception is the malignant melanoma skin cancer which is serious.

The type you have are usually the end result of excess exposure to the sun—often over years. The young person bent on getting that deep tan may look good today but in years to come that abused skin will be old, wrinkled and prone to skin cancers. That is why dermatologists try to get people to use sun screens and avoid sunburns or excessive tans.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-10, Your Skin: Sun, Aging, Spots and Cancer, which will give you more information on such cancers.

If such slow-growing cancers are neglected they can cause enough damage to present cosmetic problems.

But you can have the area surgically excised and repaired. The problem is that a damaged skin that may spawn one such skin cancer may, and usually does, spawn new skin cancers from other damaged areas. So it is often a job to keep getting rid of them as they occur.

DEAR DR. LAMB—Is there any known drug for tic doloureux besides Dilantin and Tegretol? I have become immune to both. Do you know how successful the shot or needle into the jaw is for tic? I know of a lady who had this done and it lasted about five years. She says the side of her face was left numb but it was better than having pain.

DEAR READER—Tic doloureux is a very severe pain in the face and jaw region. Many who have it would do almost anything to be rid of it, so I understand how important this is to you.

Besides the medicines you have taken, there are some newer surgical techniques that can relieve the pain. The pain is transmitted by the trigeminal nerve which is why it is also called trigeminal neuralgia. The neurosurgical techniques involve either selective destruction of the individual pain fibers without destroying other fibers for sensation, or another procedure that exposes the root of the nerve and removes local pressure. The pressure often is a loop of artery pressing on the nerve. Ask your doctor to refer you to a neurosurgeon familiar with these techniques to see if you can be helped with one of these procedures.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE 060L
For Thursday, August 13, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY August 13, 1981
In the year following your birthday you will be given several opportunities to further your lot in life. You'll now be able to acquire little things which you may not have been able to afford before.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The pressures of the workaday world will be off your back today. You'll find yourself able to indulge in a labor of love instead. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 488, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today should turn out to be far more interesting and fun than usual. Someone unique and exciting could cross your path to make it all happen.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Something you've been wanting, possibly for a long time, will be made available to you today from out of the blue. Treat yourself to this golden moment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Someone with whom you share much in common may get in touch with you today. Just another ordinary day will suddenly become special.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A condition is developing today behind the scenes that will have a direct effect in brightening the picture for you materially. It may be small, but you'll like it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You could receive an invitation today for a "fun" event coming up soon. Being included in this gala is something you may not have expected.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You could be the instrument for bringing great joy into another's life today. The big surprise, however, is that you'll share equally in the benefits.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A flexible schedule is necessary today. Your plans are likely to change quite suddenly. Don't fret. Your impromptu involvements will turn out to be fun.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be on your toes today. Something unusual may pop up, particularly in your career area, which could be quite beneficial if you'll take advantage of it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Look for a surprise encounter in the romance department today. It may not be an enormous spectacular, but it will be something quite pleasant.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There could be some extra benefits coming your way today which you'll be able to share with your mate or loved one. It's a bonus you didn't expect.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Although nothing was planned, a get-together will turn out more fun than anything you could have organized. It's your day to socialize.

WIN AT BRIDGE

but his many triumphs included the 1937 and 1939 Vanderbilt cups. His forte was quick but exceptionally good dummy play.

The play at four spades was really fast.

Mike opened the king of hearts and continued with the ace and queen after East played the deuce and then the trey.

Charley ruffed with dummy's 10 and led the queen without a moment's hesitation. East followed small and Charley went up with his ace and dropped Mike's king. He conceded a trick to the ace of clubs and scored his game.

"Well-played, as always," said Mike. "You're too tough for me."

"A cinch," said Charley. "You found the only way to get me to dummy. Obviously, you wanted me there."

The whole play is not too unusual. It pays declarer to beware when an expert gives him a present. The interesting feature is that these two made all their plays instantaneously. We don't know why Mike didn't lead ace and another club and hope to get a trick in diamonds, but the real credit goes to Charley who knew instantaneously what Mike was doing.
