Man reports attack

MIDWAY — A Geneva man reported he was beaten by several men early Wednesday morning after his truck broke down in the intersection of Sipes and Midway Avenues. The man, 37, said his truck ran out of gas and coasted to a stop when he was approached by a group of men, offering to help. The men allegedly then told him to give them money or they would kill him. The man then reported the group started beating and kicking him and one swung an axe at him. The man reported he was able to break free and with a shotgun fired at him: ran to a nearby house. There, a resident called "911." A Seminole County deputy reported finding the man and his truck. The man's truck was damaged and one of the vehicle's tires was slashed. The man's wallet was on the seat of the truck. The man reported he could not identify his attackers.

Longwood's law to target 'adult fun'

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — Police raided a Longwood body scrub salon Thursday afternoon and arrested two women for racketeering alleging they had engaged in prostitution activities over an extended period of time.

Michelle Mondragon, 24, Orlando and Kelly Anne Vaughan, 24, Kissimmee were arrested for racketeering under the RICO (Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organization) Act. Mondragon was scheduled to make her initial court appearance at 1:30 p.m. today. She is being held on $30,000 bond. Vaughan left the John E. Polk Correctional Facility after posting $30,000 bond this morning.

Racketeering is a felony for which the maximum penalty is 25 years in prison. The women worked at Personal Services, Inc. 500 Savage Court, off State Road 434. The owner of the business, Holly Ayacuc, 27, Holly Hill was not there during the raid. There were no customers at the salon.

Residents rally to close 'drug store'

SANFORD — "We want the drug store closed," Julia Lewis said about drug sales activity in Sanford's public housing area.

Lewis, resident council with the Housing Authority, is heading up a drive to make residents more aware of the problems caused by drug sellers and abusers.

"We're going to have a community gathering this Saturday," she said. "We want everyone to turn out and join together in helping solve this problem."

Lewis said the neighborhoods are not safe, and the problem has been getting worse. "Drug people are shooting in our houses, threatening us, stealing from us, and beating us up," she said. "If we don't join together to fight this, it's just going to get worse."

Originally planned as a march, Lewis is now asking people to LAKE MARY — Lake Mary residents will vote in November on changes related to city elections after commissioners Thursday agreed to place those changes on the ballot.

Commissioner George Duryea was the only objector to Ordinance 700. It proposed having commission terms lengthened from two to three years. During previous discussions, he had suggested that the two year terms should be suitable. "I don't see this as starting with any ground swell from the people," he said. Focus: Teaching students with special needs

By VICKI BOGARDEN
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Teachers from across the country have echoed the calls of Seminole County teachers and school psychologists who said last year that teachers need special training and extra assistance if children with special needs are to be placed successfully in the regular classroom.

Delegates to the National Education Association conference in New Orleans adopted an "inclusion" policy that falls short of recommending a moratorium on placing such children in the regular classroom. Such a moratorium was recommended by the smaller American Federation of Teachers.

More than a year ago, school psychologists in Seminole County battled the school board for the right to have more control over the placement of special needs students in special programs or in the regular classroom.

The psychologists argued that too many students who should not have been mainstreamed were being placed into the "regular" classroom.

"The concept of inclusion can be a positive force if it is done right," said NEA Vice President Bob Chase. "Appropriate inclusion helps break down attitudinal barriers that prevent individuals from realizing their full potential."

I think inclusion is scary to most people."

Although Chase emphasized that the NEA was not calling for a moratorium, he added, "Where it is not being done appropriately, it should be stopped."

Those fighting the inappropriate placement in Seminole County have settled their differences and have said the inclusion process is being handled more appropriately in this county today.

Chase said decisions on placing a special-needs child in a regular classroom must be made on an individual basis.

In addition to the training and support for teachers, the NEA also called for class sizes that reflect student needs.

"I think inclusion is scary to most people," said Marian Mills, an elementary school teacher in Kokomo, Ind.

Among the students in her third-grade class next year is a boy with Down Syndrome. Mills said she is taking a week-long class at her own expense later this month to be better prepared to teach him.

"I just want to get an idea of what he's capable of and how I can adapt the basic curriculum," she said.

Julia Kerr, a Texas elementary school principal, draws a distinction between mainstreaming and inclusion.

"Mainstreaming is where we decide we expect that student to be successful in a regular classroom with minimum support," she said. "When we include a student we know that student requires extensive or a great deal of support."

Inclusion has worked, she said, where training and aides are provided.

The special-needs student gains tremendous self-esteem, while the other students get good lessons in diversity, she said.

The Education Department reported last year that 34 percent of the 4.7 million children with disabilities were taught in the regular classroom in 1990-91. About 35 percent used resource rooms, 25 percent were in separate classes and 5 percent were in separate schools. The remainder

Miami names police chief

MIAMI — Don Warsaw has been named chief of the Miami Police Department, succeeding Calvin Ross after his appointment to head the state Department of Juvenile Justice.

Warsaw, who had been promoted to assistant chief in January 1993, will earn approximately $103,000 a year in his new post. His appointment was announced Thursday.

"I know we're going to continue to work and move this department forward, progressively, as it's on the highest ground right now it's been on in many years," Warsaw said at a news conference.

Warsaw, 51, a native of New York and a 22-year veteran of the Miami department, said community policing would continue to be a priority.

"Having that community cohesiveness and togetherness with police officers is just on the cutting edge of where we're probably going to be in American policing as we move into the next century," Warsaw said.

Warsaw steps into the job held for three years by Ross, who also served as assistant chief before becoming chief.

Ross was named Thursday to the $91,670-a-year job of juvenile justice secretary. The new agency was formerly part of the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

Jury exonerates doctor

DELAND — A jury exonerated a doctor but decided that West Volusia Memorial Hospital was negligent in caring for a brain-damaged baby, awarding $10.3 million to the child's parents.

The six-member jury, deliberating over two days, agreed Wednesday with allegations that the hospital and its staff did not follow proper procedure and negligently cared for Michelle Jones after her blood-sugar level tested low following birth.

The parents, Kathy and Thomas Jones, also had sued DeLand gynecologist and obstetrician Robert G. Ouellette. But the jury found Ouellette wasn't negligent.

The couple's daughter was born at the DeLand hospital on Jan. 3, 1987. The child is blind, confined to a wheelchair and cannot walk, talk, feed or sit by herself.

Prosecutors won't seek fourth trial

JACKSONVILLE — After three mistrials in 18 months, prosecutors have decided not to seek a fourth trial for a man charged in the slaying of an Orange Park supermarket employee.

The third trial for Andre Clemons, who already is serving 40 years for a conviction in another murder, ended in a mistrial two weeks ago.

"We have given it everything we've got," State Attorney Harry Shorstein said Wednesday after deciding to drop the case.

Officials could not estimate what was spent on the three trials, but Orange Park police said the investigation of the murder of Kevin Baker, assistant manager of a Winn-Dixie store, consumed 4,000 hours.

"I've never had two mistrials, much less three, in my 29 years as a lawyer," Shorstein said.

Clemons is imprisoned for killing a Green Cove Springs man in May 1991. The store killing took place Feb. 3, 1991.

His first trial ended in a 10-2 deadlocked jury. Three months later, the jury was split 11-1.

Two weeks ago, Circuit Judge William Wilkes in Green Cove Springs declared a third mistrial after learning one of the jurors had discovered Clemons was currently in prison for the other murder.

Girl in shootout critical

PEMBROKE PINES — A 5-year-old girl was critically injured and her sister wounded in a shootout between their father and two men who police believe targeted them.

Joel Herrera and his daughters were ambushed as they arrived at their upscale ranch-style home north of Pembroke Pines.

Kathleen Herrera was in critical condition Thursday with a gunshot wound to the head, and Christine Herrera, 7, was in stable condition with a leg wound. The father also was wounded.

"As part of the investigation we'll be trying to find out what the motive is and why someone would do this," said Broward County sheriff's spokesman Jim LeJedea. "We're assuming he was targeted, and this was not random."

According to Herrera, he and his daughters were returning from a Florida Marlins game Monday night when two gunmen confronted them. Without warning, the men fired at him and he returned fire.

Herrera, who owns and operates several Subway shops in Hialeah, took cover behind his truck during the shootout. In the end, one gunman was dead and the other fled. The dead man has not been identified.

It was the second shootout in less than a year at Herrera's home.

Record flooding expected

Chiles seeks federal disaster designation

CARYVILLE — W.O. Sawyer watched the rising waters of the Choctawhatchee River fill his house Thursday as he and family friends rushed to move out furniture, clothing and other possessions.

In little more than 30 minutes, the river had risen more than a foot, pouring at least six inches into Sawyer's house near its banks. State officials believe the Choctawhatchee could have the worst flooding since 1990 and possibly 1929 when it crested at 27 feet, 15 feet above its flood stage.

"It's a mess," said the 92-year-old Sawyer, who lives with his disabled 65-year-old son, Roy. "When you get as old as I am, it's a hard life to live."

State officials issued flood warnings for the Escambia, Shoal, Blackwater, Big Coddwater, Chipola, Pea, Apalachicola, Ochlocknee and Choctawhatchee rivers as well as Holmes Creek.

They predicted that the Chipola River, with a flood stage of 19 feet at Marianna, could crest near 30 feet on Friday. Similar conditions were forecast for the Choctawhatchee, Apalachicola and Ochlocknee rivers.

The Choctawhatchee is expected to crest at 26 feet by Saturday, said Mike Rucker, the state's meteorologist.

As of 2:30 p.m. Thursday, the river was at more than 17 feet as rain continued to fall, worsening the swollen rivers coming from southwest Georgia and southeast Alabama.

Forecasters predicted up to 6 inches of rain in Florida's Panhandle on Thursday, following 3 to 10 inches dumped on the region the day before.

Sections of State Roads 2, 81 and 83 were closed in the western Panhandle. State officials reopened a 70-mile stretch of Interstate 10 from Cottontale to Crestview on Thursday; CSX's main rail line through the Panhandle was closed, slowing both freight and passenger traffic.

Thurman French said he didn't plan to leave his home in Washington County unless the water forced him to. He's afraid of the looters.

As water crept up in the 71-year-old's yard, family members loaded a flatbed truck with appliances and other possessions to haul them to dry ground.

"I'll be sitting here with my shotgun," said French, who lives in Caryville.

Founders' festival fuss

EATONVILLE — The oldest municipality in the nation incorporated and governed by blacks will be 107 years old Aug. 18.

But Mayor Anthony Grant is getting married and honeymooning around that time, and he informed city council members last month he was postponing the Founders' Day celebration until Aug. 25-27.

Trouble. Council member Louise Johnson-Wright and others questioned whether the mayor could change the date of such an important event without council approval — for his own benefit.

The Orlando suburb of about 3,000 was officially incorporated Aug. 18, 1887, by 27 registered voters. It is generally recognized as the first black community to do so, and it remains governed by black people.

"The town deserves more honor, respect and recognition," said Ms. Johnson-Wright. "We don't take our history and our existence seriously if we would take this kind of action."

Grant said the action was administrative, so he didn't consult council members. He said there was nothing in writing requiring Founders' Day to be celebrated Aug. 18, and he likened the change to "rescheduling an appointment."

Council member Marilyn Davis, who is organizing the event, said the mayor should have looked more closely at his calendar.

"I'm not changing Founder's Day," she vowed last week when the date change was disclosed.

She noted vendors, caterers, speakers and out-of-town guests already had been scheduled.

After several days of grumbling, the council brought the issue up for a vote Wednesday night, and the mayor lost.

The audience boomed when Grant and council member Roy Sanderson cast the only votes against the motion to keep the celebrations Aug. 18-20.

Death row inmate files for divorce from bride

By Associated Press

STARKE — Wanda Eads Valdes, who fought for years to marry death row inmate Frank Valdes, said Thursday she will fight his attempt to divorce her.

Valdes, 33, filed the three-page, handwritten divorce petition in Bradford County Circuit Court in late May, claiming the Jan. 21 marriage was "irretrievably broken."

But Mrs. Valdes, who fought prison officials for four years to marry Valdes after meeting him more than 15 years ago, said she still loves Valdes and does not want to divorce him.

"This is insane," she said. "Why does a death row inmate need a divorce?"

Although she hasn't been served the divorce papers, Mrs. Valdes, 51, said she is not surprised by her husband's actions.

Valdes took his wife off his visiting list in April and she last saw him on April 14.

"He was very abusive and refused a contact visit," she said. He accused her of talking to the FBI about a string of unsolved armored truck robberies. "I never told them anything," she said.

If the divorce is granted, Mrs. Valdes said she will lose her right to keep secret letters and conversations she had with her husband. She has been told she will be called at a later hearing.

"The state is not stupid. They want to execute him," she said.

She said she objects to the divorce on several grounds and said both she and Valdes knew what they were getting into when they married.

"My religious belief is that you only divorce for adultery," she said. "I always knew there was never really going to be a life together. No house. No sex or anything like that, but we had each other spiritually."

Valdes and Ms. Eads were married behind the pale green walls of Florida State Prison with a plastic window separating them.

The bride wore a white suit and Valdes, 33, wore a standard yellow T-shirt issued to death row inmates.

They exchanged rings through a hole in the plastic partition.

The BMW followed them to The Crossings, where her passengers and the BMW driver got out and confronted each other. One of her passengers, a 19-year-old Lake Mary man, reported the BMW driver struck him several times with a drapery rod. The man reported he struck the man and kicked him. With a tag number obtained by the complainants, a deputy reported finding the BMW driver at Florida Hospital, Altamonte being treated for a broken nose. The man reported he used the rod to defend himself.

A 34-year-old Midway Avenue woman reported she was disturbed by a group of men on her porch at 9:20 p.m. Wednesday when she heard her seven-year-old son scream. When she investigated, she found the boy's head cut and a rock on the floor nearby. The woman told deputies one of the men threatened to kill her and burn her house down in she called the Sheriff's Office. A deputy reported the woman fled the home with three children in fear.

Prison sentence amendment stopped

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A proposal to require state prisoners to serve more of their sentences would not accomplish what it promised and cannot appear on the November ballot, the state Supreme Court ruled.

"The proposed amendment will not deliver to the voters of Florida what it says it will: It includes legal loopholes so large that the governor and Cabinet can, if they so choose, render the entire amendment illusory," the court said Thursday.

Members of the Stop Turning Out Prisoners petition drive, who didn't submit briefs or appear when the court scheduled oral arguments on the amendment in June, called the ruling a setback but not an end to their efforts.

"It obviously will not make the ballot in November, but we will simply rewrite the amendment and continue our cause to make Florida safe again," said spokeswoman Kathleen Finnegan at STOP's Punta Gorda headquarters.

That was seconded by state Sen. Charlie Crist, R-St. Petersburg, who had tried to get lawmakers to pass such a bill, and state Republican Chairman Tom Slade, who said the ruling was couched in political rather than legal language. Republican U.S. Sen. Connie Mack added, "Floridians everywhere know the early release of prisoners must stop."

Gov. Lawton Chiles' administration has said it is achieving that without rewriting the Constitution.

Lt. Gov. Buddy Mackay said the ruling showed the advantage of "dealing with the same issue through the system instead of around the system."

Florida inmates now are released after serving an average of 44 percent of their terms, but corrections officials say that will increase to 75 percent by the end of the year.

Contributing to the increase will be some of the 10,000 new prison beds planned by July 1996, clemency for about 800 illegal aliens to allow them to be deported, and changes in sentencing guidelines that reduced the number of drug-related and nonviolent offenders entering prisons.

The STOP proposal was the third major proposed amendment struck down by the court this year. Others would have banned anti-discrimination laws that covered gays, and taxed sugar to pay for an Everglades cleanup.

More than 20 groups still seek to put amendments on the ballot, including proposals to ban commercial fish nets, legalize casino gambling, impose a penny sales tax to build prisons, and limit the rise in tax assessments. The Supreme Court reviews the proposals after supporters collect 10 percent of the 428,428 signatures they must gather by Aug. 9, to rule on whether the measures meet certain requirements. They must, for example, deal with just one subject, and the language voters see must clearly summarize what will be added to the constitution. Through the end of June, the STOP amendment had 132,287 signatures certified. The court faulted its ballot summary, which said it would "ensure that state prisoners serve at least eighty-five percent of their sentence. "At worst, it misleads voters into believing that the amendment is ironclad, when in fact it expressly leaves the governor and Cabinet an easy, cheap and relatively painless method of defeating the entire purpose stated in the summary," the court said.

of enforcing it when he took office last year. The red meat industry has claimed the department gave favorable treatment to poultry by not making a similar requirement for fowl.

A Justice Department investigation into Epy's contacts with Arkansas-based Tyson Foods Inc., the leading poultry producer, continues. The department could refer the case to an independent counsel within several weeks.

About 25 percent of poultry carcasses carry salmonella bacteria, the major cause of food poisoning in this country. Poultry also accounts for 40 percent of the illness from campylobacter, another major cause of food poisoning.

The proposed regulations should mean no net change in the number of poultry inspectors because the industry is expanding, some would have in-plant responsibilities such as hygiene and sanitation, and some would be reassigned under a new food safety program being developed, the department said.

The program emphasizes monitoring of potential danger spots in a food plant and the use of microbial tests to keep a watch on bacteria.

That system recognizes that physical examination of each carcass cannot detect all bacteria, especially when poultry lines can move as fast as 90 birds a minute.

The new poultry rules give inspectors added power to slow or stop lines temporarily.

The rules are expected to be published in the Federal Register next week. After that, the public will have 120 days to comment. Final rules will come out after the department reviews those comments.

USDA set to introduce new poultry regulations

By ROBERT GREENE
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON — Chickens and turkeys won't leave the slaughterhouse with even the slightest visible trace of fecal contamination under rules proposed by the Agriculture Department.

The rules, once final, would add a critical step in the inspection process to guard against bacterial contamination of birds from their own feces. Inspectors would stop or slow down processing lines temporarily if they see trouble.

And any bird that got through the newly required germ-killing rinses and still showed signs of fecal contamination would have to be washed and inspected all over again.

But the department wants to do with fewer inspectors on the lines that move birds from slaughter, to plucking, to evisceration, rinsing and chilling. That isn't sitting well with advocates for the 2,100 poultry inspectors who work those lines.

And it still won't require microbial testing to see if all the extra watching and washing means fewer germs, according to a draft of the rules obtained by The Associated Press.

"If there's going to be any legitimacy for improving consumer confidence in poultry, there has to be some kind of microbial testing," said Elaine Dodge, attorney for the Government Accountability Project, which represents inspectors.

The Agriculture Department says it lacks the data and a standardized test to make such a requirement, although a variety of tests are already used in much of the industry.

The proposed rules, being announced next week, would add an inspector to make a visual check of the birds at a critical point in the slaughterhouse where fecal contamination is most likely to occur.

They would require use of germ-killing sprays or rinses that many of the nation's 300 poultry plants already use voluntarily.

Agriculture Secretary Mike Epy announced last March he would require the new standards, which would allow no visible contamination from feces on poultry carcasses.

The same "zero tolerance" standard has been on the books for red meat, and Epy made a point

Safe disposal of needles

We applaud Seminole County for its new "sharps" collection program as an inexpensive service offering a real benefit both to those who need it and the rest of us. While this may not seem like an immediate problem, consider this: county solid waste workers have found coffee cans full of used needles and just in the past month, two garbage collection workers were pricked by needles in garbage bags.

We've all heard about batches of needles cropping up in neighborhoods and ponds, offering an shiny invitation for children to come play. It's a matter of time before someone catches a serious disease from them.

Under the program, people who regularly use lancets and syringes may dispose of them in special containers provided free of charge by the county. When the bins are full, they can be returned to several county collection sites and exchanged with sanitary empty bins. The program, expected to cost $15,000 to $20,000 each year, is targeted to serve the estimated 2,000 insulin-dependent residents of the county.

Also admirable about this program is it's a no-questions-asked deal. While we don't condone illegal activities of any kind, nor do we want to see a tragedy caused by a lack of opportunity. We would hate to see a child infected with the HIV virus because someone tossed a syringe on the ground after an illegal activity. With the county's new program, maybe, just maybe, that needle will find its way to safe disposal.

Booker prays for Clinton and foes

My friend in Harlem, USA, Booker Malcolm Du Bois, is a man of very little education, but infinite wisdom. He prays a lot. But after he read Alice Walker's "The Color Purple," he was inspired to record his prayers. He won't let anybody read them. Whenever I visit him, however, I sneak a look and surreptitiously jot them down....

Yo, Lord!
It's me, Booker, your main man. Booker for Booker T. Washington, Malcolm for Malcolm X, and Du Bois for W.E.B. Du Bois. I know you got lotsa main men and wimmin. But it be like that hip haim we sing in church, "When others you are callin', please don't pass me by."

I be thinkin' 'bout you, Lord, 'cuz things be gettin' serious down here. Everybody be sayin' they pray to you. Everybody be sayin' that you be on they side. I wonder how you can be on everybody's side at the same time. Somebody be lyin'.

I know you big enough to love us all, but it seem like you be lovin' them the most what dig you and your son. I guess only you, Lord, be knowin' if that be President Clinton, his frins, them conservatives who talk 'bout him in the most terrible way or they frins who go to church every Sunday and say they love you, but hate anybody else who be disagreein' with them.

I ain't much into politics, so I don't be knowin' what they mean by folks on the religious right. Oh, they be nasty, Lord. Ooh-wee, they nasty. They don't like people who don't vote like they do. They don't like colored people 'cuz they churches be all white. They don't like poor people. They don't like them folks who be actin' funny with each other, and they don't like wimmin who git one a them operations so they won't be havin' no babies they can't support.

As fro Mr. Clinton, Lord, they be like one a David's psalms. They be hating him with a perfect hatred. And I don't be understandin' that Lord. Your son told us to love our enemies. "Bless them that curse, do good to them that hate you and pray for them what spitefully use you and persecute you."

Them conservative folks, speshally Mr. Rush Limbaugh, ain't about lovin' no enemies. He ain't even prayin' for himself, and he be hatin' more people than can fill up all the baseball stadiums in Amerika.

Mr. Limbaugh say on his radio show that he be bigger than Jesus 'cuz he say he be the truth. Jesus said he be the truth -- and the life and the way, I believe Jesus.

I like President Clinton, Lord. But he make it so hard. He be as mean to them as they be to him and be jes' like the devil -- always quotin' scriptures for his purpose.

He compare his enemies to the moneychangers in the temple and President Clinton be wrong, Lord. Jes' bocus folks talk 'bout you and mistreat you don't mean they be evil people. Now, I think they evil people, Lord, but that make me wrong, too.

And, Lord, I'm still goin' be prayin' for them -- and my president, too, 'cuz I dig him.

Fireworks over editorial cartoon and fireworks

When I saw the political cartoon Wednesday, June 29 concerning the fireworks, I was, in turn, surprised, horrified and saddened.

Surprised and horrified that such an undignified and unjust cartoon of our mayor would be placed in the Sanford Herald. Sad because this is not the Herald I have known all these years. It was unprofessional and was executed in such an elementary manner.

Although I am closely associated with both the First Street Gallery and St. Lucia Festival, I am writing this as a long personal and loyal supporter of the Sanford Herald. Yet it is from the formation of both of these organizations that I can speak in support of our mayor.

When I went to Bettye Smith with the festival idea, as I did with several leaders in our community, she was the only one who took immediate action. She called a group together, the Sanford Advisory Committee, and presented the idea which was endorsed. When I mentioned it would be nice to form a sister city with one in Sweden, she wrote out a personal check for the amount needed to apply.

When we started the First Street Gallery, she and Shirley Schille provided personal funds to open. Bettye Smith has unfailingly supported Sanford's progress and given of her personal time as well.

From my experience as a professional public relations practitioner and former newspaper reporter and editor, I feel the cartoon projected a fair brand of journalism. I can appreciate the difficult role a newspaper plays within the community. At times they have to take an unpopular stance or point out mistakes or wrong, but to portray an individual in an undeserving manner is a different situation.

Rather, let us all work together to build our town into its potential, where we all can live in harmony for the good of all.

Kay Bartholomew
Sanford

I'm relative newcomer to Sanford, so I've been reading your paper to see what's going on. I would like to compliment you on your coverage of the fireworks issue, including the cartoon last Wednesday. I don't recall seeing a cartoon about a local issue in the Herald before.

I think it's a shame there weren't any fireworks this year. It appears businesses and individuals in the past have been generous with donations, but nobody took the initiative to lead the effort. I think the mayor and the city should have done that. We have this beautiful lakefront and a patriotic tradition which are natural for each other.

Maybe the mayor and commissioners can hop in the car and drive on down to Disney, pay the admission and watch the fireworks. But a lot of people in Sanford don't have that kind of money and were counting on it being at home.

The way I look at it, the elected city officials missed a chance to do something that would have meant a lot to the people who voted for them. I hope everyone remembers that at election time.

Robert Tierney
Sanford

It was with consternation we noted the crude cartoon on the editorial page of the Sanford Herald Wednesday, June 29.

Not only was it unprofessionally executed, but more unfortunate, it was extremely uncalled for.

Mayor Bettye Smith is a stalwart supporter of this town, both personally and in her capacity as mayor. Why single out the mayor? Pursue the real reason.

Yes, it is sad that a tradition has faltered, however, it is not up to one person. It is up to the community to stage the fireworks, coming together in a common cause.

Steve Alford is to be commended for his dedication but it should be noted that he cited lack of support as a major element in his decision to not attempt the project this year.

Instead of presenting the problem in a most unprofessional and destructive manner, we would hope that you keep the positive stance you have been following. We sincerely appreciate your support of Main Street. Frankly, we could not have gotten off to such a great start without your backing. We have also had the full support of the mayor from the very beginning, thus she has made a tremendous difference just as the Herald has.

The Board of Directors of Main Street joins me in lamenting this unkind and unjust portrayal of our mayor who is generous with her time, her wisdom, her personal checkbook, as well as being a gracious and unswerving leader for the betterment of this community.

Let's all get together and plan for the biggest and best fireworks display ever for July 1994!

Officer and Board of Directors
Sanford Main Street, Inc.

The best assets we have in Sanford are the volunteers. The volunteers are the leaders in Sanford. The Sanford Chamber of Commerce was the headquarters for donations for the fireworks. When Jack Horner was executive director of the chamber, every year, letters were sent to clubs, organizations and businesses asking for donations for the fireworks and the money came in. There was all kinds of fun things going on in Fort Mellonville Park up until 9 p.m. when the fireworks went off. When Jack retired the chamber stopped sharing the fireworks. Then is where individuals started asking for donations and displaying the fireworks -- that is a lot of hard work and you soon get burned out.

Look around the city and see what volunteers have done: the first beautification on the lakefront -- the Centennial Park with the gazebo, Park on Park with 1,700 volunteers, the beautiful oak trees on First Street, Make Sanford Shine (clean up Sanford), Tree City USA, The First Street Gallery, The Historic Trust, the Christmas parades and on and on. Most all were paid for by donations from the community.

The population of Sanford is about 36,000 people. Was that your picture in the Sanford Herald cartoon on Wednesday, June 29, stating there would be a silent night on the Fourth of July in Sanford? Think about it! Are you doing your part as a leader in Sanford?

My hat is off to the editor of the Sanford Herald for pushing the issue of the Fourth of July fireworks to celebrate our independence. Where is our community spirit? If anything gets done in Sanford it is left up to the volunteers to do it or it doesn't get done.

The citizens in Sanford need to look around and see that we need to make a change not only in city government but also within ourselves. A community is no better than the people who live in it.

Ned and Martha Yancey
Sanford

First, I would like to apologize to city officials if I caused them any concern for public safety by suggesting a BYOF (Bring Your Own Fireworks) celebration for the Fourth of July. It was not my intention to gather multitudes of people at the lakefront to ignite an assortment of illegal and potentially dangerous fireworks. I simply wanted to celebrate the holiday as we always have in Sanford by gathering with friends and neighbors and watching the traditional display at the water's edge. I did not want to disrupt the celebration simply because there would be no major display of fireworks going off, so I suggested people still gather and bring their own. As I expected, people did gather and children did light sparklers and a little bit of our traditional Fourth of July survived.

I also noticed the many cars and families lining the waterfront waiting in vain for the fireworks display to begin. This was a wonderful opportunity being missed by all those who wish to revitalize our downtown and waterfront, and (to) let people see what a great place this is to shop and stroll.

I only hope next year lessons will be learned and our city leaders who have not been involved in the Fourth of July celebration will realize its importance to our citizens, and its potential to draw people to our community to celebrate the Fourth of July as only a small town can.

Sharon Gonyeau
Sanford

Your editorial cartoons on the fireworks last week were the best the Herald has ever run.

It seems our commissioners and the mayor are never held accountable for anything and it's time they were.

Now that the fireworks issue is resolved, maybe the mayor can work on some of the things she promised us in the past. She vowed to fight crime and work to draw more movie crews to Sanford. There hasn't been a movie shot here since and Sanford still has the highest crime rate in the county. There's no first class waterfront entertainment, no western transportation hub linking the airport, interstate, bus lines and railroad, no Duany codes and not enough code enforcement, all promises Mayor Smith made at one time. She even voted to support landlords who rent by the week, something our former police chief said contributed to a lot of problems in the historic district.

It seems all the city does is study things. They never DO anything.

I had to laugh when I read that officials said the city couldn't afford to pay for the fireworks this year. So how come they can spend a half million dollars on a piece of property across from Sanford Middle School that they even admitted they had no use for? The interest alone on the money would have paid for the fireworks with enough left over for more fireworks on New Year's Eve. It's this mismanagement of money that's hurting the taxpayers. And if the Herald's editorials and cartoons help change this, I say 'keep it up.'

UPS-backed bill hits turbulence

WASHINGTON -- Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., has given new meaning to the phrase "overnight delivery."

United Parcel Service recently told Ford that it absolutely, positively needed a legislative favor to keep pace with rival Federal Express. Ford -- the wily, old deal-maker -- delivered.

Just before midnight on June 16, Ford tacked a trucking provision onto an airport bill. Critics say Ford's efforts will lead to a windfall for large companies, like UPS and FedEx, at the expense of small firms.

The late-night voice vote on the provision was the last in a series of maneuvers Ford undertook for UPS, whose PAC has contributed over $1 million to various members of Congress this year -- more than any other corporate PAC in America. Amid the recent clamor about congressional reform, one source familiar with this case calls it "a perfect example of how the inside game is still being played."

Back in 1991, the Ninth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals gave FedEx exclusive right in eight states to transport goods between any two points in a single state without being subject to its trucking regulations. The Court ruled that FedEx is an air cargo carrier whose intrastate ground transportation is incidental to its main business and should be protected from state economic regulation. UPS sought redress of what it claimed was favoritism toward FedEx.

UPS, a Kentucky-based firm, found a friend in Ford. Since becoming chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Aviation in 1987, Ford has opposed increases in aviation taxes and pushed for awarding federal grants to small airports based on cargo instead of just passenger traffic. When Ford ran for reelection in 1992, FedEx pitched in $10,000, while UPS contributed $9,000.

UPS recently asked Ford to author legislation extending the special status FedEx enjoys in a few states to several companies -- including FedEx and UPS -- in all 50 states. Ford quietly inserted "Section 211" into the Federal Aviation Administration Act of 1994. It will eliminate a state's right to regulate the rates, routes and services of trucks traveling between two points in the same state. In order to qualify, the truck must belong to a shipping company which is affiliated with or utilizes an air carrier "at least 15,000 times annually."

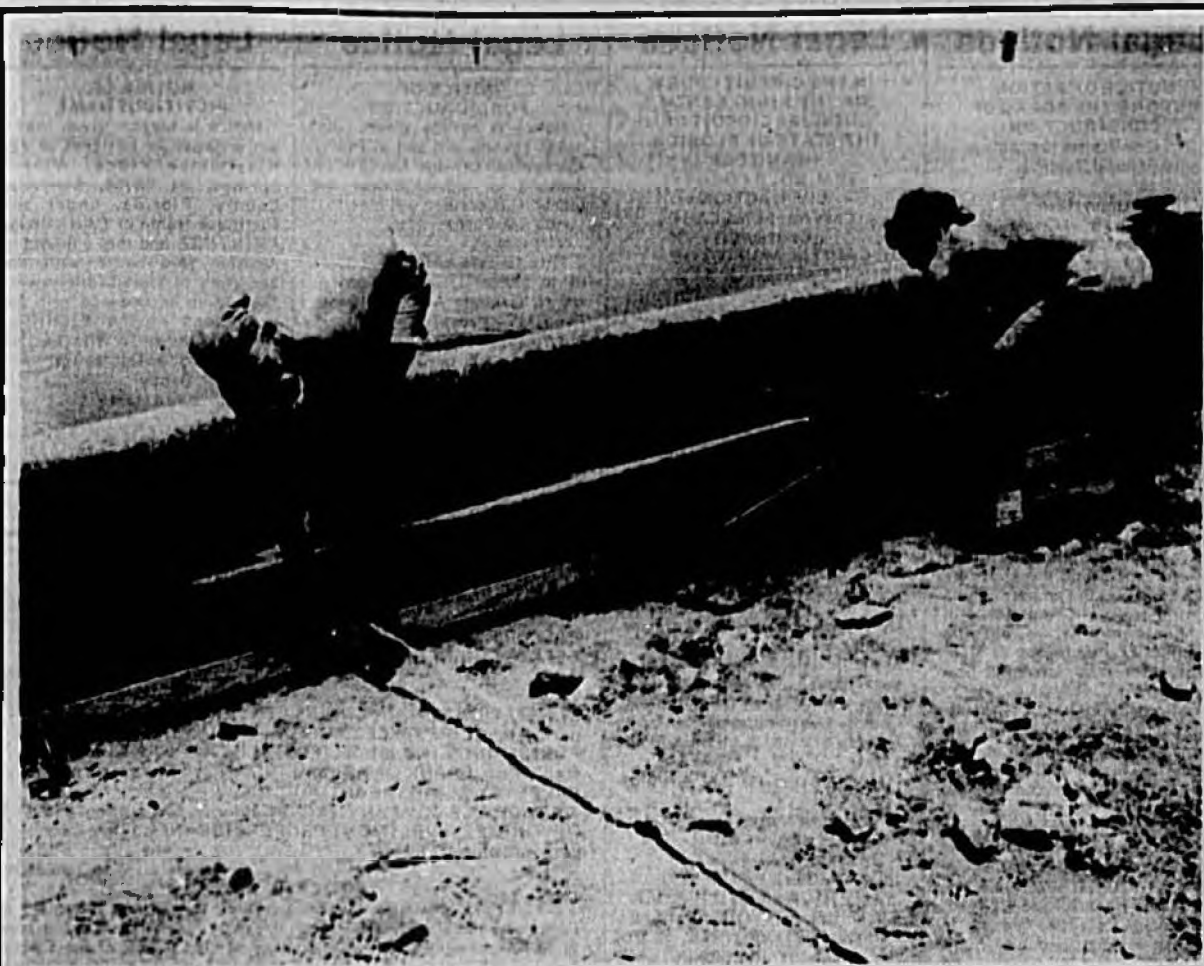

"It has the ability to totally change the motor carrier industry," one congressional source told our reporter Aaron Karp. "Smaller companies are concerned that if you pre-empt state regulation, big companies will swoop in and put them out of business."

Such concerns are normally addressed during congressional hearings, but Ford refused to hold them. Frustrated by Ford's heavy-handed tactics, several Democratic senators privately tried to throw up a road-block. During a policy luncheon among Senate Democrats on the eve of the Section 211 showdown, several senators mounted a rare challenge to one of Capitol Hill's power barons.

Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Nebr., complained about the lack of hearings and committee review. Then Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., and a chorus of other senators grilled Ford about how trucking legislation wound up in an aviation bill. Boxer demanded to know exactly how the legislation would change current law.

Critics say Ford's efforts will lead to a windfall for large companies at the expense of small firms.

the business. The business had been under investigation for five months, said Longwood Police Chief Greg Manning. About 10 people from Longwood Police, Seminole County Sheriff's Office, City County Investigative Bureau and the State Attorney's office raided the business, according to sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough. The police served a search warrant on the business and arrest warrants have been issued for two other employees of the salon.

McDonough said. The raid came just two days after the scheduled first reading of an adult entertainment/business ordinance meant to give the city control over the location and operation of adult-type businesses. The commissioners did not finish their review of the 55-page ordinance at a work session earlier this week, so the city commissioners tabled the first reading of the ordinance until July 18. Longwood Mayor Steve Miller said this morning he will not try to speed up passage of the ordinance which is slated for public hearing August 1. He said all existing adult businesses will be governed by the ordinance once it is approved and he does not anticipate a flood of license applications in the mean time. "No business will be 'grandfathered' in under the ordinance." The inspections necessary to obtain occupational licenses would delay the opening of any additional adult businesses until the ordinance is in place, Miller said. Using special meetings to speed up passage of the ordinance would also require spending extra money on advertising.

He is one of thousands of residents who were preparing for the worst. Morgan Marcus, a 67-year-old Caryville resident, directed his possessions into pickup trucks as the rising waters threatened his house. He said he knows the risks of living near the river but doesn't plan to move. "After you live in a place so long, you just don't want to leave," said Marcus, who has lived in Caryville all his life. Gov. Lawton Chiles sought a federal disaster designation for counties in the Panhandle region. In a letter to President Clinton sent Wednesday night, Chiles asked that various kinds of assistance be made available through the Federal Emergency Management Agency, from generators to sandbags to potable water. The governor was still awaiting word Thursday afternoon. The 13 counties are Santa Rosa, Holmes, Washington, Jackson, Calhoun, Gulf, Liberty, Walton, Okaloosa, Bay, Franklin, Escambia and Gadsden. The Salvation Army said it dispatched six mobile canteens from around the state to Walton, Washington, Holmes and Jackson counties. The state established staging areas for relief operations at airports in Crestview and Marianna; they are not set up to take donations from the public. Chiles activated the Florida

National Guard; 400 troops were on standby at the Marianna staging area, state officials said. In Holmes County, a mandatory evacuation order was issued for homes in low areas along the Choctawhatchee and officials asked people who live within two miles of the river to leave. Residents living on higher ground were advised to stay home. Though the evacuation was mandatory, people weren't being forced from their homes and officials were having difficulty convincing some to go. "They've just been here so long," said Earl Stafford, chairman of the Holmes County Commission. "Some of them stayed on top of their homes in 1990. You're talking about a group of people who hate to leave home." Washington and Jackson counties also ordered mandatory evacuations, while those in Okaloosa, Walton and Calhoun counties were voluntary or recommended. In 1990 President Bush declared nine Panhandle counties federal disaster areas after severe flooding. Flooding along the Choctawhatchee and Apalachicola rivers in March 1990 forced evacuation of 2,500 people, damaged 1,100 homes and caused an estimated $1.5 million in damage to public facilities in Bay, Calhoun, Escambia, Gulf, Holmes, Okaloosa, Santa Rosa, Walton and Washington counties.

are sufficient. If a person does a good job during that time, he or she can get reelected again." The other commissioners however, voted in favor of the matter with no further discussion. If approved by the voters, it would take effect with the election in 1995. At that time, seats presently held by commissioners Duryea and Sheila Sawyer would begin the three-year lengths. In 1996 the terms of seats presently held by commissioners Gary Brender and David Meador, as well as the mayor's position would begin three-year terms. Under the proposal, in 1997, and subsequent three year periods, there would be no city election unless otherwise needed because of unexpected vacancies. Ordinance 701 dealt with when the newly elected officials take office. Currently the city charter provides that they take office within seven days of certification of the election. The proposed amendment would have them assuming office at the beginning of the next regular or special commission meeting. It received no objections, and passed with a unanimous vote. Both election related matters were approved on second and final reading.

A third Ordinance, 702, was unrelated, but will apparently be on the November ballot as well. It was presented on first reading, with the second reading scheduled for July 21. It would call for the city to enact an ordinance whenever it wished to purchase real property in excess of $5,000. The matter had been brought up in the past, but had been tabled because of conflicts over some of the wording to be placed on the ballot. As the question is expected to appear on the ballot for a yes or no vote, it will now read, "Shall Section 12.01(9) of the Charter of the City of Lake Mary be amended to only require the City of Lake Mary to adopt an ordinance for purchases of real property in excess of $5,000." There was no public input or commission discussion on the matter, and it was approved by a unanimous vote. In addition to the three local referendum items, two commission seats will also appear on this November's Lake Mary city ballot. Commissioner seats presently occupied by commissioners Meador and Brender will be on the ballot. If the election referendums are approved on the ballot, they will be the last two elections for two-year commission terms.

12-year-old boy at the school, reported in May but alleged to have occurred in January, never occurred, said Ornstein. "These incidents didn't occur," said Ornstein. According to Sanford police reports, a parent alleged that on June 30, a child was held down by two Pineview Academy employees while a third gave the youth a "shot" with a "needle." The alleged injection was not authorized by a parent or physician, according to the report.

Ornstein said no physical confrontation occurred between the staffer and youth, noting the complaint was filed after Pineview sought an injunction against the man for making damaging statements about the private school. The father said Thursday afternoon he did not learn of the incident from his son until May. Both complaints are under investigation by Sanford police.

were in residential facilities, homebound or hospitalized. Chase said that too often decisions on inclusion are made on the basis of money. Federal law calls for the government to pay 40 percent of the added costs of educating special-needs students. But the NEA said that between 1980 and 1991, federal assistance fell from 12 percent to 7 percent of the cost of above average per-pupil expenditures. That has left state and local school districts to foot the bill, estimated at $53.5 billion a year, the union said.

June unemployment rate unchanged at 6 percent

By ROBERT NAYLOR JR. AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON — The nation's unemployment rate was unchanged at 6 percent in June, the government said today in a report signaling that the nation's economy is still robust and expanding at a healthy clip. The report represented good economic news for Main Street America, but was almost certain to roll Wall Street investors, concerned that growing employment will fuel inflation and lower the value of their holdings. The unemployment rate has fallen seven tenths of a percent since January. The Labor Department said the nation's nonfarm payroll swelled by 379,000 in June, far more than most economists had expected. Most analysts were expecting gains of about a quarter million, although a few did suggest the report would show an increase of as much as 325,000. "What we really have now is a situation that is ideal. Employment gains are good, the unemployment rate is down to the lowest level in a long time and inflation is in check," said Robert G. Dederick, chief economist for the Northern Trust Co. in Chicago. "But it's an uneasy balance," he said, because employment gains could help fuel inflation, although "inflation is not today's problem. It's tomorrow's problem." Most economists were expecting an increase in the unemployment rate to about 6.2

percent from the 6 percent recorded in May. Analysts were uniformly calling the May numbers a statistical fluke. Labor Department officials were noting statistical aberrations in the June figures as well. The survey was taken late in the month and Katharine G. Abraham, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, said some new workers who might have been counted in July were included in the June survey. Because of the timing, the survey period included five weeks, rather than the normal four. Most of the payroll gains came in lower-paying service sector jobs, primarily temporary positions and restaurant jobs. More than 85 percent of the new hires were in services. But factories hired an additional 34,000 workers. Construction payrolls were up a modest 16,000. Construction hiring has slowed over the last two months, with most economists blaming higher interest rates. The report was expected to attract close attention from investors worried that an economy growing too rapidly drives up prices and pushes down the value of their holdings. The one bit of news likely to calm Wall Street was a decrease in average hourly earnings from $11.09 in May to $11.06 in June. The decline, though slight, was an indication that wage inflation remains in check. The average work week was down from 42.1 hours to 42 hours, while overtime remained unchanged at 4.6 hours. Worries about inflation prompted the Federal Reserve to raise interest rates four times this year a total of 1.25 percentage points. Drug Nashville broke a scoreless tie in the fifth with two-run singles by Paul Russo and Ed Gerald.

Orlando's two runs came in the eighth inning.

Nied (8-4) retired the last nine in his third straight win and second complete game.

Kurt Abbott dropped Eric Young's high-hopper for an error to start Colorado's rally in the eighth. Walt Weiss walked, and after a flyout, Galarraga singled in the unearned run.

The only run off Nied scored before he retired a batter. Jerry Browne led off the first with a single and scored on Dave Magadan's double.

Colorado tied it in the second. Galarraga doubled, took third on a wild pitch and scored on Joe Girardi's infield single.

Patriots' Tibbetts fans 11 in shutout of Mudcats

From Staff Reports

LAKE MARY — Chris Tibbetts showed again Thursday night why he is one of the top pitchers in Seminole County.

The Lake Brantley lefthander, a rising senior, tossed a one-hitter while striking out 11 and walking only three as the Patriots whitewashed the Lake Mary Mudcats 3-0 to complete a sweep of a NABF (National Amateur Baseball Federation) doubleheader at Lake Mary High School.

In the opening game, Lake Brantley scored five runs in the sixth inning to break up a scoreless game and held off the Mudcats 6-5.

In the nightcap, Rene Perez had the only hit for Lake Mary. The Patriots came up with a pair of runs in the second inning and a single run in the sixth inning as Tibbetts improved to 2-1 on the summer by outdueling the Mudcats' Nick Alexander.

First game		Patriots 6, Mudcats 5
Lake Brantley	000 000 1-6 0 2
Lake Mary	000 000 2-5 9 1
Viersen, Blake (5) and Stawson, Gaffert, Guemple (7) and Perez.	WP — Blake (3-2). LP — Gaffert. Save — none. 2B — Lake Brantley, J. Rojas, M. Rojas. 3B — none. HR — none.
Second game		Patriots 3, Mudcats 0
Lake Brantley	000 001 0-3 4 0
Lake Mary	000 000 0-0 1 0
Tibbetts and Grassing, Alexander, Mau (7) and Varro. WP — Tibbetts (2-1). LP — Alexander. Save — none. 2B — Lake Brantley, J. Rojas, M. Rojas, Tibbetts. 3B — none. HR — none. Records — Lake Brantley 9-12, 44 NABF; Lake Mary 10-7, 73 NABF.

Alexander had a pretty good game himself, allowing just three runs on six hits, but in this game it was just too much Tibbetts.

Providing the offense for Lake Brantley in the second game were Keith Walsh (2-for-3, one run scored), Manuel Rojas (double, RBI), Juan Rojas (double, walk, one run), Tibbetts (double), Bryan Grassing (single, run) and Jeff Hall (one RBI).

In the first game, the Patriots' Taylor Viersen and Lake Mary's Rob Gaffert were hooked up in another pitching duel, both allowing no runs over the first four innings. Nate Blake relieved Viersen in the fifth and kept up the shutout as the score remained 0-0 entering the sixth inning.

Lake Brantley finally broke the scoreless string by putting five runs on the board in the top of the sixth inning. But the Mudcats came right back with three runs in the bottom of the frame.

The Patriots got one run back in the top of the seventh and Lake Mary answered with two more runs in the bottom of the seventh inning, but Blake held on to push his record to 3-2 on the summer.

Doing the damage for Lake Brantley were Moises Navarro (2-for-4, one RBI), Juan Rojas

Lemon's Juice seek backing for AAU trip

Special to the Herald

LAKE MARY — Part of the problem with winning a spot in a national tournament is that it costs a lot of money to go to the event. That problem now faces Chet Lemon's Juice.

The Juice, a baseball team made up of players from Orange and Seminole counties, won the gold medal at the Florida AAU (Amateur Athletic Union) state qualifier and became one of two 14-and-under teams that will represent Florida at the AAU National Tournament in Minnesota this August.

The Juice — Matt Allegra, Danny Amat, Lee Bagley, Josh Bernard, Tyler Carr, Bryan Chancellor, Brian Coates, Tommy Dixon, Guy Erwin, Jeremy Frost, Kevin Hoey, Ben Knapp, Kevin Naas, Todd Radcliff, Brian Sheekey, Jose Tormos and Nick Zachman — have been conducting fund raisers to earn the money needed for the trip.

They still need the public's help. Since the Florida AAU is a non-profit organization, all contributions in support of the Juice are tax deductible to the donor.

Corporate sponsors are welcome, and packages have been designed to recognize corporate sponsors: Bronze ($250) — Company logo on the team banner at the tournament, Juice team autographed letter and plaque, business card ad and recognition in the 1995 edition of Chet Lemon's Dugout News.

Silver ($500) — Company logo on Juice banner, letter and plaque as above, quarter-page ad in Dugout News, plus one gift certificate for any 1995 4-day summer camp at Chet Lemon's Baseball School ($175 value) for the young player of your choice.

Gold ($1,000) — Company logo on Juice banner, letter and plaque as above, half-page ad in Dugout News, plus two gift certificates for any 1995 4-day summer camp at Chet Lemon's Baseball School ($350 value) for two players.

Anyone can become part of the Juice team by making your contribution payable to Florida AAU Baseball and noted: Juice, so that it can be allocated to the team.

Send donations to Florida AAU Baseball, c/o Chet Lemon's Youth Baseball Club, P.O. Box 951436, Lake Mary, Florida 32795.

Dist. 14 resumes All-Star play

By TONY DESORMIER
 Herald Sports Editor

After blowouts and rainouts the first two nights, the Little League Baseball Florida District 14 All-Star tournaments featured clear skies, protests, and a tie Thursday night.

JUNIORS (13)

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Josh O'Brien was in the middle of things all night long for the Altamonte Springs Americans.

Playing in the Area 1 bracket at Eastmonte Park, the Altamonte Springs Americans had taken a 3-1 lead over Caseberry before rain interrupted play in the top of the fourth inning Wednesday night.

On Thursday, O'Brien hit a solo home run and struck out the two batters with the bases loaded in the bottom of the seventh inning to close out Altamonte Springs' 5-2 win over Caseberry.

O'Brien also was the subject of one of two protests in the game. Because he had pitched in Tuesday's game, there was a question whether he was able to pitch in the continuation of Wednesday's game. But it was quickly ruled that since he had not pitched Wednesday, he was eligible to come back.

The other protest came in the fourth inning, when Altamonte Springs' James Mitchell tried to score from second on an overthrow. He did score, but was called out because the umpire ruled the Altamonte Springs third base coach had left the coach's box and potentially interfered with the play.

Italy scrambles into Cup quarterfinals against Spain

By PHIL LIMP
 AP Sports Writer

They have gone about this World Cup as if they were dancing on the ledge of a skyscraper.

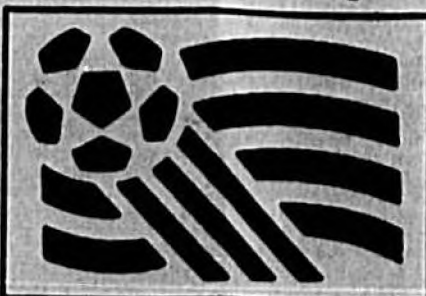

They have played four agonizingly close games. They have withstood the suspension of their goalkeeper and the loss of their captain. Their star attacker went on sabbatical for three games.

They barely made it out of the first round and were nearly bounced out in the next by Nigeria, a prospect that would have been tantamount to heresy back home.

Apparently, this is how it must be. They are Italians, and this is soccer Italian style.

"Our strength is our heart," defender Paolo Maldini says.

The heart gets another test of strength Saturday. Italy, a three-time champion, faces Spain in the quarterfinals at Foxboro, Mass. In the other quarterfinal that day, Brazil, the only non-European team in the final eight, plays the Netherlands in Dallas.

On Sunday, defending champion Germany plays Bulgaria at East Rutherford, N.J., and Romania takes on Sweden in Stanford, Calif.

Italy's most breathtaking escape came Tuesday against Nigeria. Down 1-0 and the possibility of a dreaded flight to Rome looking all too clear, Roberto Baggio suddenly stirred from his slumber.

He scored in the 89th minute — his first goal of the tournament — then made a penalty kick in overtime, and Italy danced away from danger. Not everyone is dazzled by such theater.

Olympic ski champion Alberto Tomba told Italian radio Thursday that Arrigo Sacchi is a "very lucky coach" who relies on "a saint who makes wonders, St. Roberto."

The Spaniards are certain to make Saturday's game another test of defensive wills. They likely will go with only one attacker up front, ready to pounce on the slightest mistake.

The Italians face a critical decision. Their top goalkeeper, Gianluca Pagliuca, is eligible to return following his two-game suspension for handling a ball outside the penalty area. His replacement, Luca Marchegiani, has played well. So does Sacchi stick with his regular goalie or go with the hot man?

"Luca does not deserve to be kicked out," Pagliuca said. "Certainly, Sacchi is going to have a difficult decision because I think I deserve to have my place back."

Then there is the front line, and talk that forward Giuseppe Signori, the leading scorer in the Italian League for two straight seasons, may be dropped from the starting lineup. He was replaced in the second half against Nigeria.

"I would be surprised, if I'm left out," he said. "I'm fit, rested, ready to play."

And dance on the ledge again.

In other World Cup news: Ireland's World Cup team was welcomed in Dublin by some 50,000 fans and hailed by the country's president and prime minister. The homecoming was initially called off when coach Jack Charlton and most of the players said they would not attend. They changed their minds after a big outcry in Ireland.

The Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif., had the biggest average attendance (90,669) among the nine venues for the first two rounds.

Next was Stanford (80,841), followed by East Rutherford (73,841), Pontiac, Mich. (70,900), Chicago (62,545), Orlando (61,266), Dallas (57,730), Foxboro (53,953), and Washington (52,830).

Predicting fabric performance Give fiber content careful consideration

It is often difficult to determine how a fabric will perform simply by looking or feeling the actual cloth. It will be easier to tell if the garment is a good buy or a bad buy (in terms of how long it will last) when you read the label to determine which fiber content has been used.

Durability may not be your only concern, but with clothing costs increasing, you may be watching your clothing dollars to see how good a buy they can make. To avoid disappointment later on, learn to predict fabric performance before you buy.

Fiber content should be considered carefully, today there is no one best fiber. Each fiber makes a contribution to the world of textiles. Each has its own use. Basically, fibers are either natural or man-made. Natural fibers (cottons, linen, silk, wool) are very absorbent. They tend to soil easily but are also easily cleaned.

Polyester, nylon, rayon, acrylic and spandex are the most frequently used of the man-made fibers in clothing. They are usually strong, dry quickly, and are heat sensitive. They do not readily absorb moisture and are also susceptible to static electricity and static cling.

Since there is no one perfect fiber, textile manufacturers use two or more fibers to obtain the most desirable qualities and eliminate the undesirable. Fabric blends are used for a more economical production, greater variety, more warmth, more strength, less shrinkage, greater absorbency, resistance to abrasion, and to prevent wrinkling.

CONSUMER FOCUS

What to look for in activewear fabrics: Many activities now have special garments and fabrics in order to make the physical activity more comfortable and enjoyable. For instance:

- Bicycling fabric should be moisture absorbent to prevent chafing. Fabrics frequently used are wool and wool blends and polyester and polyester blends. Both of these will have elastomeric yarns in a warp knit or interlock construction.

- Gymnastics fabric must be quick drying fabrics for comfort. Fabrics are usually filament polyesters with elastomeric yarns in a warp knit construction.

- Swimming fabric must have the ability to "shed" water in order to reduce drag. Fabrics are frequently filament polyester with elastomeric yarns in a warp knit or interlock construction.

- Skiing fabric must provide warmth without bulk. Fabrics are usually filament polyester in a tightly woven construction.

During the last few years several fabrics have been engineered to meet the specialized needs of athletes. Some of them are:

- ThermaZone (trademark) fleeced knits of 100 percent comfort fiber polyester that is high loft and can be single or double faced. It is used for rugged outerwear and is lightweight and soft. It keeps warmth in, yet allows perspiration to evaporate.

- Coolmax (TM) is engineered to keep the body cool, dry, and comfortable and is used in tennis and golf shirts.

- Cordura (TM), a high tenacity nylon was first used in luggage, but is now available in a fine denier for apparel. It is being used to make hunting wear, skiwear, and rugged surfwear. For the first time it is available in a knit fabric geared for team sports and for protective apparel such as roller blade pads.

- Spandura II (TM) combines Cordura nylon and Lycra (TM) spandex in a two-way stretch knit to serve as a protective outer layer in clothing worn for activities ranging from hunting to team sports.

Widow's lonely heart aches for love

DEAR ABBY: I am a 79-year-old widow. I have been alone for 17 years, with no love or help from anyone. I was doing all right and was fairly content until I fell ill and was hospitalized. This led to my retirement at age 75. Now I feel like a discarded puppy left out on a road all by myself. I am under a doctor's care, but pills can't cure my loneliness and yearning for love.

I could move to the state where my daughter and her family live, but I'm sure they're too busy to spend much time with me, so I would have to live alone. Besides, I was born and raised here, and have some good friends and neighbors. Here, at least, I have someone to talk with. If I moved, I would be with strangers. (I don't need a nursing home yet.)

Abby, I have called around trying to be put in touch with a homeless person who would appreciate a home — but no luck. I am not a complainer and try to put on a happy face for my friends. Where can I find a good Christian person who needs a home and a good friend?

Please don't use my name. I don't want sympathy — just someone to help and love. I can't stand this loneliness much longer.

LONELY IN BLOOMINGTON, ILL.
DEAR LONELY: You appear to be a loving and generous person, but taking a stranger into your home out of need for companionship and love is extremely risky.

Since you have good friends and neighbors and have enjoyed your independence for 17 years, please consider discussing your feelings of depression and loneliness with your doctor. Also, a call to your clergyman or local senior citizen's center might help resolve your problem.

A housemate might provide companionship, but "love" requires time to cultivate and grow. You may not need a nursing home yet, but a retirement facility would relieve you of housekeeping and cooking responsibilities — and at the same time provide you with as much company as you desire.

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to "Concerned Aunt," whose niece sleeps with her 4-year-old son, was dead wrong. Sleeping with a parent, especially since birth, is completely natural. Every mother I know has dealt with the issue of her child's wanting to share her bed.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Most parents, rather than allowing it, expend a lot of energy trying to prevent it. Many so-called experts in our culture have attitudes about parenting that absolutely defy nature, wrongfully encouraging parents to sleep separately from their children. Abby, given the opportunity to mature naturally, the child will eventually choose to have his own bed.

I don't know all the facts in the case, but my feeling is that the son's security needs are being met — not the mother's emotional needs. Besides, unless there is some inappropriate behavior going on, which I doubt, why should the aunt be bothered? Two people are sleeping peacefully in her home. What more could a hostess want?

KAREN DUNCAN, ATLANTA
P.S. Abby, to put it bluntly: The problem is that our perverse culture cannot think about "sleeping with" someone without associating it with sex.

DEAR KAREN: I stand by my original answer. There was not a hint that anything sexual was going on, but most experts in the field of child psychology believe that children develop independence far better when they sleep alone.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

Pay attention to talk of suicide

DEAR MARY: My best friend told me last night that she's thinking about killing herself. She's really had a bad year. Her mom and dad are getting a divorce and both of them are acting stupid. She just got her grades for this school year and she failed two classes. Last year she was on the honor roll.

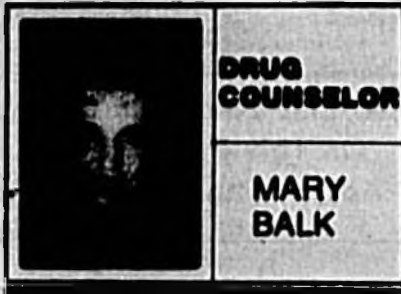

Then, if that wasn't bad enough, her boyfriend told her yesterday that he just wants to be friends. She feels like she doesn't have anyone or anything left to live for. I can understand why she feels that way and I don't know what to say to her. What can I do to help?

HELPLESS FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: You aren't helpless because she obviously trusts you enough to talk openly with you. But I share your concern.

When talking to her, be calm and reassuring. Avoid giving any advice that sounds like you're preaching, such as, "You shouldn't feel that way," or "Think about how much better off you are than some other people." These kinds of comments only make people contemplating suicide feel more guilty and worthless.

Instead, encourage her to call "We Care" at 425-2824 or 628-1227, or other similar agency. Also, you can suggest that she talk to an adult she trusts, whether it's a relative, clergyman, or counselor. If she refuses to follow your suggestion, you must take it upon yourself to talk to one of these people and get help in handling the situation. One of the most dangerous misconceptions is that people who talk about suicide won't really do it.

DRUG COUNSELOR

Finally, regardless of the outcome, remember that you cannot control your friend's behavior or be responsible for it. Get help in dealing with this burden, it's too heavy to carry alone.

"I WILL LIFT UP MINE EYES..."

This morning, did you open your window to the sunrise...smell the fresh scent of morning dew? Perhaps a soft breeze caressed your cheek and you smiled as a choir of birds sang their prelude to the day. While you slumbered, your Heavenly Father prepared for your awakening. "He who keeps you will not slumber" (Psalm 121:3). As you traveled through your busy day, God was with you, guiding your steps, giving serenity to your soul. "The Lord is your shade upon your right hand..." (Psalm 121:5). When you returned safely home to dine upon the repast from the Creator's soil, He cared for you still. "He will keep your going out and your coming in..." (Psalm 121:8). Finally, as our Father wrapped you in the soft darkness of night, you could slumber peacefully. "The sun shall not smite thee by day, nor the moon by night" (Psalm 121:6). God is with us each day. Will you worship Him this Sabbath? "I will lift up mine eyes" (Psalm 121:1).

Baptist men attend conference

Special to the Herald

SANFORD — On July 30, eight men from First Baptist Church, Sanford will have the opportunity to go to Boulder, Col., along with 85,000 other men from around the world, to attend the Fourth Annual Promise Keepers National Conference.

Jordan Beckner, Michael Bennett, Brian Smith, Floyd Blake, Steve Laurence, Jack Hays, Tim Miesel and Mike Henley will represent Sanford.

Speakers for the conference include Chuck Swindoll, Dr. James Dobson, Gary Smalley and more.

"I attended this conference last year and returned with a burden to share what I learned and experienced, not only with my church, but with other Christian men of Sanford. Promise Keepers is a Christ-centered national men's ministry dedicated to uniting men who influence their world," said Jordan Beckner. "There is now a state wide movement to bring Promise Keepers National Conference to the state of Florida by 1997. By July of 1996 our goal is to have 1 million men walk on Washington and take back our country."

Promise Keepers is an organization that claims no denomination and crosses all racial barriers in the attempt to help men better honor Jesus Christ through prayer, worship, and obedience to God's word. "Going to Boulder we hope to make a commitment to be better men of God and better husbands. It's like a rededication ceremony," said Beckner. "The Lord has put a burden on my heart for the men of Sanford. The racial barriers that exist in this city must be torn down. We must take our city back from crime and other evils. Our families must feel safe. To accomplish this, the Christian men of this city must unite and pray as one. We must become godly men and men of integrity back to back, shoulder to shoulder. It is my hope that all Sanford churches will become part of this movement and they will receive that same burden."

Beckner continued by saying, "I believe this Christian mens movement is news worthy. By the end of July, over 300,000 men will have met through out the United States for the sole purpose of worshipping the Lord. 20,000 gay and lesbians meet to play games and march and that receives national attention, 300,000 men meet and you hear nothing about it. What does that tell you about our society today? Where are our values?"

Further questions or comments, should be directed to Jordan Beckner at 330-8621 or contact Pastor Blake at First Baptist Church, Sanford.

Christians against gambling

Special to the Herald

The Christian Coalition of Florida has learned from churches and individuals in Jacksonville, Tampa, Palm Coast and Orlando saying that they were asked to circulate petitions in their congregation so that the people could "vote against legalized gambling."

"The people behind this effort to legalize casino and riverboat gambling are dishonest, deceitful and disrespectful. They have purposely set out to gather as many signatures as possible, and at $1.25 a signature, they don't seem to care who they fool," said John Dowless, state field director for the Christian Coalition of Florida.

The petitions to legalize riverboat gambling were distributed at Pine Castle Methodist Church in Orange County, while the petition for "county choice" was dropped off at First Baptist of Palm Coast in Flagler County. In both cases, the petition circulators misled the churches by telling the secretary and pastor that the church could vote down gambling by signing the petitions. One church even printed their own petitions for their church members at the advice of the paid petition circulator.

While paying $15 to $30 an hour for petition circulators, even Tracy Taylor, who is in charge of hiring and training for The Safe Bet for Florida Committee, Inc. in Orlando, claims to oppose legalized gambling.

"The fact of the matter is that they're not opposed to gambling, and they don't care about our community or who they fool," said Dowless.

The Christian Coalition of Florida is asking petition organizers to issue an official statement to their petition circulators instructing them to be honest about the petitions and its intentions to legalize gambling.

Does alcohol-free beer contain estrogen?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been on Premarin and Provera for the past eight years for post-menopausal symptoms. I recently read that alcohol-free beer is a natural estrogen replacement therapy for post-menopausal women. An herb catalog states that natural estrogen can be taken by using blue cohosh. Is there any truth to either of these statements? Since Provera gives me headaches, I'm willing to try natural replacement therapy if it will work.

DEAR READER: Fortunately, for the millions of red-blooded men who prefer alcohol-free beer to the real thing, there is not a grain of truth to the claim that this product contains the female hormone estrogen.

Moreover, I doubt that any disgruntled brewery worker with a bizarre sense of humor is spiking the beverage. Alcohol-free beer is a safe product and, in fact, is an enjoyable alternative for people who cannot or should not consume alcohol.

Also, no herbs or other natural plant products have been shown to contain estrogen (or any other hormone), which is produced by animal species.

If the Provera (the female hormone progesterin that is often given with estrogen) causes you to have headaches, you should address this issue with your gynecologist. Perhaps he can reduce your dose or, if necessary, change to another brand.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Menopause." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is it ever necessary in a health care situation for a patient to disrobe completely? I mean without a sheet, gown or anything else? I don't think nudity is ever necessary during health care.

DEAR READER: I cannot conceive of a situation in which total nudity is appropriate. Common decency demands that adult patients always be provided with some garment, how-

Answer to Previous Puzzle

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Abraham Lincoln, in a letter written a year before his assassination, admitted, "I claim not to have controlled events, but confess plainly that events have controlled me."

When playing in any contract, you must fight hard to retain control. In a suit contract, at the least you must keep trump control. In a no-trump contract, you must struggle to keep all the suits under control. The declarer failed miserably to do this in today's deal.

Against three no-trump, West led a low heart to dummy's singleton ace. How should South have continued?

The declarer started with dummy's top clubs, but East discarded a heart on the second round. Then South cashed his three top diamonds, but West discarded a heart on the third round. Now declarer couldn't recover.

"How unlucky," grumbled South. "You'd think one suit would divide evenly."

However, North had seen that South could have overcome even these breaks. With seven top tricks, it is right to start with the club ace, because a 3-2 club break is enough. But when East contributes the queen, South should unblock his eight. Now comes a low club from the dummy to South's nine.

If West wins this trick, in a moment South will finesse dummy's club seven and win nine tricks by way of two hearts, three diamonds and four clubs. So West ducks. But now South makes use of his excellent diamond suit. Carefully, he ducks a diamond, keeping communication between his hand and the dummy. South's nine tricks are two hearts, four diamonds and three clubs. Copyright 1994, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Cool
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Saturday, July 9, 1994

A busier-than-usual social calendar is indicated for the year ahead. New friendships might be established with influential individuals, but it may not prove wise to involve these people in your personal ambitions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) When it comes to organizing or assuming management of a sticky development today, you're well qualified to handle the situation. Yet you might not get the vote of everyone involved. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This could be a very productive day for you, provided you dedicate yourself to completing what you start. Just be sure your assignment is meaningful.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Friends are prepared to listen to and believe what you have to say today, so state your views and position with confidence. If you appear doubtful, you may lose your audience.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your opportunities for personal gain look reasonably good again today, yet what you might get could have strings attached. Keep an eye focused on the small print.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your judgment regarding matters affecting your future could be keen and precise today, but because your thoughts might not be aligned with those of an associate, you may doubt their worth.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Benefits might come today through a situation previously established by a friend. If you're let in on something worthwhile, be sure to contribute what's expected of you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today, if you're reluctant to make certain decisions, companions might do your thinking for you. The answers they derive may not serve your best interests.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

Tasks that can be accomplished with little time and effort are likely to be very well done today. Projects that require sustained tenacity, however, might not be too impressive.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) With your older and well established friends popularity and status are indicated today. However, these same affections might not be lavished on you with your newer acquaintances.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Before making any type of critical change today, weigh its pros and cons very carefully. Be absolutely certain the advantages exceed its shortcomings.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Be sure you thoroughly understand the full effects of any agreements you might enter into today. Hasty, unstudied commitments could give you cause for later regrets.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Owing to the help of another, you might reap material benefits today. When it comes time to divvy up, be sure this individual is adequately rewarded.
