County boasts hot job market

By MARIA OREM
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford and Seminole County, making it one of the fastest growing spots in the state, according to a 1996 Census Bureau report. Compared to 1991, the county in 1996 showed a 9.1 percent increase in jobs, going from 101,592 to 110,883. Government jobs and those who are self-employed are not included in the figures. The annual payroll jumped 8.9 percent for the same period, and the number of establishments increased from 9,015 to 9,108, a 1.1 percent increase, the Census Bureau report showed.

With the eighth lowest unemployment rate in the state, Seminole County is a job seekers market, said Kevin Bruckey, and economist with the Florida Department of Labor. Statewide, he added, most of the jobs are in the service, not a general retail and health services.

Bruckey said the labor market in the county is tight and competitive.

Other factors that are making jobs there competitive, he said.

Based on a preliminary report from the 1996, the unemployment rate for Seminole County dropped 1.1 point to 3.7 percent, from 4.8 percent in 1992, compared to the national 4.6 percent. Florida's unemployment rate was reported at 4.4 percent.

Through its economic incentives and growth, the Florida Department of Labor has attracted national and international industry and

For 20 years, Kay Thomson of Lake Mary has competed in the Golden Age Games. She has cycled, paddled, sprinted and bowled. She has a room full of medals.

This year, 74-year-old Thomson will cheer on the above and serve as honorary chairman of the 20th annual Golden Age Games, the oldest and perhaps grandest of all senior competitions in America.

The Games begin on Nov. 1 with the archery competition and run through Nov. 8 with the horseshoes and track trials. As many as 1,100 seniors from age 50 to 100 are expected to compete. Champion competitor, 106-year-old Peg Richards from Interpace, hasn't sent in her entry yet but it is expected.

Having Kay Thomson as our honorary chairman is a natural, said CMO Chairman Lisa Jones. "No one encompasses the spirit, joy and friendship of the games better than her."

The Golden Age Games offer a chance for just about everyone to compete. There's bowling, bocce, bridge, basketball, badminton, billiards and bench pressing. Tennis and golf, dancing and dominoes. Finish! See Games, Page 4A

City fund offers unique way to be a good neighbor

By MARIA OREM
Herald Staff Writer

Being a good neighbor in Sanford can help someone maintain one of life's most vital necessities—water.

The City of Sanford Utility Department has established a special fund to assist customers with water bills in case of need. Since the program's inception in 1994, more than $2,000 has been raised and 27 customers have benefited, according to Bill Marcous, project administrator.

"People can make a difference in the change in their pockets," Marcous said.

The program is used by other utility companies with great success. The concept is simple and convenient. People wishing to make a contribution to the Fund may use the drop box displayed at the customer service desk on the second floor at Sanford City Hall.

Marcous said 99.9 percent of the contributions are made in person when people pay their bills. One contributor donates $10 every time she pays her bill. But one customer contributes about 20 percent of the total fund, he said.

"Some customers may experience setbacks which can create an unusual situation and they aren't able to pay their bill," Marcous said. "We try to be a difference maker with this program."

Typical situations involve people who may be ill or have lost their jobs or maybe experienced major water breaks, Marcous said.

"There were a couple of cancer victims who were unable to make a payment and that was heart-wrenching," Marcous said. One case involved a man being sent to prison and leaving his wife holding the bag, he said. Some situations arise with older persons with very low incomes.

Structure: Good for the student, the community

By BOB GOFF
 Special to the Herald
 Change is tough on young children. Uprooted from family and friends, separated from the warm, fuzzy comfort of things to do and do to, kids in the Pine Crest School district are sometimes at a loss when they show up to school in school. With a high mobility rate, this happens often at Pine Crest Elementary School. What Pine Crest is doing about dealing with an ever-changing world for young students is impressive, and it is important that you know about it.

success shown by this increase is huge. The goal at Pine Crest is to have each child reading at grade level by the third grade. Each student has been given the QR Qualitative Reading Inventory already this year and teachers, Dividends and instructional assistants are working with any student with the IRA materials to bring reading skills up to par.

In Rita Ramsey, who has now moved on to the county office, began the process in 1995. The decision was made to focus the primary goal of the school towards being a self-structured environment for both the children and the community. "What we decided was that we weren't going to be glazy or misfitting. Nothing was going to stand out above the job we needed to do: provide a solid, back-to-basics, life-skills driven approach to each child's education," she says. Barry Liebowitz, who is the new principal, has continued the philosophy. "We have a lot of parents who are behind their children 100 percent. They are very conscious of helping their children improve the quality of their life. But we have some parents who can't make ends meet—it's tough for them to provide shelter and food, let alone work daily with their children on school activities or become a Dividend," comments Liebowitz.

Editor's note: This is the third in a series of articles on the seven schools in the Sanford desegregation consent decree clusters. Readers will be given an opportunity to learn first hand about the schools from which they may choose to have their elementary aged children attend. We suggest that you clip each of these articles so that you will have them to review when it is time to choose your child's school next spring.

10 on the CBIS in 1995, students have begun an upward journey on the path to academic success. The lowest average score on the CBIS test last year in any of the five grades was 34—the highest was 65. Likewise, the Florida Writes Test has increased from 1.9 in 1994 to 2.7 in 1997. While the numeric increase may seem to be small—the

Probably the most intriguing thing that Pine Crest does is to encourage home visitation by the teachers. The teaching staff will meet with parents anytime, anywhere. If the family prefers not to have the teacher come to the house, teachers will meet at the local community center, or even at McDonald's. Lots of parents see Pine Crest, Page 5A

Device May Increase Gas Mileage by 22%

BOSTON National Fuelsaver Corp. of Boston has developed a low cost automotive accessory called the Platinum Gasaver which is guaranteed to increase gas mileage by 22% while meeting all federal and state emission standards.

With a simple connection to a vacuum line, the Gasaver adds microscopic quantities of platinum to the air fuel mixture entering the engine.

Platinum has the unique ability to make non burning fuel burn. With platinum in the flame zone, you increase the percentage of fuel burning in the engine from 68% to 90%.

Normally that additional 22% of the fuel would only burn when it came in contact with the platinum surfaces of the catalytic converter.

Unfortunately, the converter process takes place outside of the engine, where the energy produced cannot be harnessed to drive the vehicle.

But with platinum in the combustion chambers, 22% more of each gallon burns inside the engine so that 22% fewer gallons are required to drive the same distance.

After studying this process for five years, the government concluded "Independent testing shows greater fuel savings with the Gasaver than the 22% claimed by the developer."

In addition to government confirmation of its fuel saving claims, the Gasaver has received patents for raising gasoline octane, and has been approved for reducing emissions to acceptable levels.

Joel Robinson, the developer, commented "We have already sold over 300,000 Gasavers. To our surprise, as many people buy the Gasaver because it extends engine life (by cleaning out the abrasive carbon deposits) as buy it to increase gas mileage."

The light bulb analogy

BOSTON--Call it a moment of enlightenment. You can almost envision a cartoon light bulb going on over the White House.

Searching for a down-home example in the midst of the dire graphs and numbers being banded about by scientists, the president brought up the subject of the high-tech light bulb at 1800 Pennsylvania Avenue. It's a bulb that costs more in the beginning, but lasts longer in the end.

Sometimes, the man of the house told the assembled, he wonders why they haven't installed more. Or for that matter why the public hasn't bought more.

This electric analogy came recently at the White House conference on climate change. The weather cooperated beautifully for the event. Washington was in full air-conditioned mode at 90 while in New England we were hunting for the shorts we'd just packed away.

Up and down the East Coast, TV weathermen, with their usual joviality, reported it as Indian summer. But by now, that benign pre-industrial label is challenged in our own minds. What should we call it? Greenhouse summer? Carbon emissions summer?

The good news is that most Americans at last believe in the reality of global warming. For a long time, doubts were fueled, if you will excuse the expression, by a coal and oil industry campaign to undermine public belief.

But the American public has learned something from its encounters with the tobacco folks. It's a bit of postindustrial skepticism about industry-financed science and corporate disinformation. So most of us have now signed on to the belief honed in the title of Ross Gelbspan's important book -- "The Heat is On."

But the mixed news -- or at least the more complicated news -- from the conference is that the argument has shifted from science to economics. From computer models of climate disaster to models of political disaster.

This is the light bulb analogy that holds sway: How do you get Americans to buy a policy for tomorrow when it may cost more today?

The difficulty of dealing with global warming rears uneasily on one of the toughest questions in American life. Can a country with a short attention span focus on the long run? What do you do when all politics are local and warming is global?

In less than two months, our country is due to ante up to the international table in Kyoto where the world's communities will try to wrestle down an international agreement to reduce the amount of greenhouse gas emissions we all pump into the air. The United States, which contributes 20 percent of the world's emissions with 4 percent of the world's population, has yet to decide its policy. At issue is how quickly we'll reduce our emissions below 1990 levels. If this is an environmentalist's baby step, it's beginning to look like a politician's paralysis. In Washington, where the most important weather pattern is the prevailing wind of public opinion, the uncertainties have delayed decisions.

Some of the uncertainties are economic, a venture into unknown territory. While most experts figure we can conserve energy and even improve the economy, there is no certainty about the costs and benefits in making larger technological changes.

But some of the uncertainties are political, a venture into a much too familiar terrain. In what is the most important issue of our time, politicians are being asked to make policy just the way they don't like to. If the policy helps the environment, they won't get credit for weather disasters that didn't happen. If it harms the economy, they'll be duly blamed.

Meanwhile, in a two-page ad in The Washington Post on the day of the conference, hundreds of energy companies--listed state by state--warned the government not to "rush in" to a United Nations agreement. And the same industry that told us that climate change was bunk is now shelling out $13 million in ads to convince the public that, even if it isn't bunk, it'll cost us too much. It's Harry and Louise again, this time in the greenhouse.

So this is where we stand. The heat is on Washington. The public believes we're changing the climate, but people are not yet sweating it. The president believes, "it would be a grave mistake to bury our heads in the sand," but isn't willing to take the heat of leadership.

On a day when news about the presidential coffees all-but blotted out a conference on climate, our attention is more fickle than the weather. Here is the puzzle: How many weather disasters will it take to finally change a light bulb?

ent/teacher conferences are held in the evenings and on week-ends. In this month's Education Week, the feature story is about house calls. The story mentions schools in Houston, Missouri, Maryland and Kansas City who have started programs in which the school extends into the community through teachers and resource personnel making home visits. At Pine Crest--it's old hat. They have been doing it for some time. This speaks volumes about the caring, quality staff that Dr. Rainey and Mr. Liebovitz have put together that they will go to such efforts for the children entrusted in their care. Most teachers do many more visits than just one visit a semester--it's a Pine Crest commitment for them to become involved.

That commitment is not just a publicity stunt. It is a written document that every teacher, every student and every parent signs. Even the Principal signs and makes a commitment to parents and students. There are responsi-

- bilites for each. For example, the student commitment is:
1. Come to school on time
  2. Attend regularly
  3. Be prepared
  4. Do assignments
  5. Respect my own and other's life space
  6. Use the Lifelong Guidelines and Lifeskills
  7. Read every day

Parents are asked to commit to having their child at school every day. They are asked to sign their children's homework and to visit the classroom. They are asked to insure proper rest at night for their child and to read to them or listen to them read at least three times a week. Most importantly, they are asked to instill in each child the importance of attending school to learn.

The partnership is working. "Any positive growth shows that the right types of issues are being addressed," says Liebovitz. "Test scores are on the rise."

The curriculum at Pine Crest stresses life skills--the ability of individuals to get along, to work together cooperatively. There is the constant recognition of student's use of life skills in each lesson. "We believe that if you want to see it--you have to teach it," says Liebovitz. "We begin the preparation of students for all kinds of work in life." This is not to say that Pine Crest is dedicated to turning out laborers and entry level service industry employees. Lifeskills such as initiative, organization, problem solving and communication keystones in any academic program. These are skills which everyone from the mailroom clerk to the CEO needs to be successful in tomorrow's business world.

Pine Crest is not your usual school. Yes, it teaches the ABC's and 1-2-3's of education. So does every school in Seminole County. What Pine Crest does better is to provide a safe, structured, comfortable "old shoe" atmosphere that provides children with a familiar setting, yet challenges them to set goals to help them adjust to a future world which will be very different from the one their parents are familiar with.

Black" day. All 'Noles wore anything black that they could think of. The lunch room was a little up-beat thanks to the performance by the Jazz Band.

Today is Dress-Up Day, a day when Seminole will certainly be the best dressed school in the community. Students will hardly recognize each other in ties and dresses. During their lunch breaks, students will be able to check out the latest styles as presented in a Fashion Show.

Today is also the day for Homecoming Court pictures. Twenty students, 10 boys and 10 girls, were chosen by their peers to be members of the court in the hopes of being named Homecoming King and Queen.

Everyone will be seeing double on Thursday when Twins Day has people dressing exactly alike.

The entire community will have the chance to participate in Seminole's special week when the Homecoming Parade travels down First Street beginning at 5 p.m. on Thursday evening.

The parade is one of the biggest events in Homecoming Week," Cullum said. "The whole community comes out to watch and local organization such as the Boys & Girls Clubs and Pop Warner football players and cheerleaders are part of the parade."

The parade route begins at the Tribes Mission, goes up First Street to Park Drive, follows Park Drive to Second Street and then commences at Magnolia Square with a mini pep rally for the community. Friday is, of course, the big day.

Students will be dressed in their best Seminole colors and will gear up for the big game with a pep rally that will probably be heard in Luke Monroe. The entire school will come alive with spirit as doors, sidewalks and poles are all swathed in orange and black.

Seminole's varsity football team will square off against Deltona at 7:30 p.m. and the Homecoming royalty will be crowned at half-time.

Ending the week's festivities will be a Homecoming dance held at the Sanford Civic Center.

Assistance ranges from $50 to $100 for each individual case. The money raised goes directly into the system as a credit to the account of the person in need, Marcus explained.

In addition to the assistance, the program serves as a fail safe method to get the customer on a payment plan showing a willingness to work out the bill.

The Good Neighbor Utility Fund breathes life into something that is just an account number to many, Marcus said.

"By virtue of its name it helps people and serves as a small safety net," he said. "It's really a life issue. It helps people maintain one of the most basic services in life."

"The issue is necessity and with a small contribution people can make a difference."

Those wishing to contribute may also write to the City of Sanford Utility Department at P.O. Box 2847, Sanford, FL 32758. For information, call 830-5849.

three-minute limit. One suggested a second public input meeting - one that began at 7 p.m., when more citizens could participate. The committee members agreed. There will be another public work session, probably in November.

"This town needs some healing," said Martha Yancey, who pleaded that everyone leave the meeting with a positive attitude. "Instead of hurting Sanford, lets uplift it and be happy."

No one who attended the meeting wanted the city to replace the Sanford Police Department. Far from it. Get the department more funding, quit bad-mouthing the SPD, change the city charter so the police chief reports to the city manager.

Nancy Kennedy, the first citizen to speak, suggested the city hire a director of Public Safety. The police and fire chiefs would both report to this director." Leoma Brundage Howell said, "I'll keep this short and sweet. We need our police department."

"The message we're hearing is loud and clear," said former city commissioner A.A. "Mac" McClanahan. "Everyone here wants our own police department."

Henry Sweet, Jr., said it was a "political nightmare" having the city's police chief answer to five bosses (the city commissioners). He strongly encouraged a referendum to change the charter.

A similar referendum failed to fly several years ago mainly because not all the residents were aware of the benefits to a change. "We ought to get this on another referendum as soon as possible," McClanahan. "This charter change ought to be in place before we go on with anything else."

Charles Smith encouraged the SPD to use any of the resources that are available from the Seminole County Sheriff's Office. The city led Seminole County in crime and that one of the reasons for this was that the SPD was not funded properly.

Smith was displeased at what he called "negative" feedback from Mayor Larry Dale, who has led the charge to reconstruct the SPD which was found to be subpar - dysfunctional - in a recent $53,000 study by an independent police consulting firm.

The $53,000 could have been better spent on equipment for police, Yancey suggested. Not so said those on the options committee. The study had given the SPD a wakeup call to which it was responding: So were the residents of the city. "Participatory democracy," committee member Bill Clayton said.

Neither Dale nor options committee chairman Greg Manning attended the meeting. Both are out of town for the week. Vice chairman Timothy Hudson, executive director of the Sanford Housing Authority, conducted the session.

tions. In addition, the quality of life, education system, environment, and business friendly government are key reasons businesses come into Seminole, according to John Jones, an economic development planner for the county. Jones said the county is seeing more high tech jobs and manufacturing jobs. The work force is ample and very well educated thanks to training programs at Seminole Community College and the public school system, he said.

"It's a great place to live and that can't be stressed enough," Jones said.

Games

and photography. Swimming and softball. Checkers, cribbage and canoeing. A knitting contest, talent show and Name that Tune competition.

The Name that Tune competition was a fun thing last year but a medal event this year according to Jones. The Talent Show includes comedy acts, dancing, singing, recitation, musical instrument and "other." Acts will have a time limit of three minutes.

There's some more strenuous activities in the track & field portion of the games - javelin, shot put, high jump, discus, dashes and 1,500 meter run.

The swimming events range from 50-meter freestyle, butterfly, breaststroke and backstroke to a 1/2-mile swim.

Participants can enter any number of events. The cost is $6 for the initial event, $2 for each additional event. Each competitor receives a Golden Age Games T-shirt and a goodies bag that might contain everything from coupons to Geritol. In addition to the contests, there is a twilight river cruise, banquet and breakfast schedule.

Headquarters for the games open at 9 a.m. at the Sanford Civic Center, Jones said.

Don't forget the Ben Gay.

Operation Dear Abby inspires kids

DEAR ABBY: We are writing to let you know of the far-reaching effects of your Operation Dear Abby campaign. Our sixth-graders at Randolph Middle School in Randolph, N.J., wrote holiday cards as a class project. We sent hundreds of cards to the addresses listed in your column.

As responses to their letters began to arrive, the daily question became, "Is there any mail from the military?" Servicemen and women from all over the globe wrote wonderful notes and letters to the students. Some included pictures, patches and money from foreign countries where they were stationed. The activity also turned into geography lessons as students located on maps various home bases, current stations and stops in between. Connections with weekly current events lessons made news come alive.

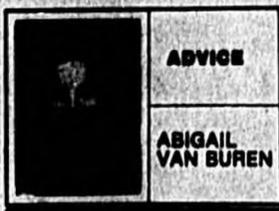

The cards were greatly appreciated by the military people who received them, which is the obvious intent of Operation Dear Abby. In addition, students had the experience of expressing their concern for others as well as patriotic pride. Combining those benefits with the extra bonus of various classroom activities made this an invaluable activity we plan to repeat in the future. We are looking forward to the next Operation Dear Abby. Thank you for making it possible.

EDIE KLINK, CAROLE HUNTINGTON AND ELENA MASTROIANNI, SIXTH-GRADE SOCIAL STUDIES TEACHERS, RANDOLPH MIDDLE SCHOOL

DEAR MRS. KLINK, HUNTINGTON AND MASTROIANNI: I'm delighted that Operation Dear Abby provided a bonus for your students. Each year I receive letters from readers expressing their enjoyment of Operation Dear Abby, and describing friendships (and even marriages) that grow out of it.

I'm pleased to publicize the following addresses for this year's Operation Dear Abby. They will be in effect only from Nov. 15, 1987, to Jan. 15, 1988 (after that, the APO/FPOs will close). If you have difficulty at your local post office, ask the clerk to check the recent postal bulletin — the Operation Dear Abby addresses are not always carried into the postal computer, and clerks may assume the addresses are invalid. Priority mail only, please.

1. For Europe and Southwest Asia: AMERICA REMEMBERS OPERATION DEAR ABBY APO AE 09126
2. For the Mediterranean Basin: AMERICA REMEMBERS OPERATION DEAR ABBY FPO AE 09048
3. For South America, Central America and the Caribbean: AMERICA REMEMBERS OPERATION DEAR ABBY APO AA 04998
4. For the Far East: AMERICA REMEMBERS OPERATION DEAR ABBY APO AP 08888
5. For the Pacific Basin: AMERICA REMEMBERS OPERATION DEAR ABBY

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

FPO AP 08888 For those who wish to send mail to the military in Bosnia, the year-round addresses are:

1. For Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps land forces: ANY SERVICE MEMBER OPERATION JOINT GUARD APO AE 08877
2. For Navy and Marine Corps personnel aboard ships: ANY SERVICE MEMBER OPERATION JOINT GUARD FPO AE 08888

P.S. Cookies (sugar, oatmeal, molasses), gum, hard candy and boxed containers of Jell-O are always welcome (chocolate is not recommended because it can melt in transit). But the No. 1 treat is "food for the soul" and that's mail, mail and more mail!

DEAR ABBY: I am a former bishop (local pastor) of the Diamond Bar Ward of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints. My heart broke when I read the letter from the 21-year-old LDS rape victim. Although I am responding to a letter involving a Mormon girl, I would give the same advice to anyone. She must do four things immediately:

First, she must notify the police and press charges, regardless of who the person is. She is the innocent victim of a heinous crime. The community needs to know there is a predator in their midst, and the criminal needs to be brought to justice.

Second, she must see a doctor. Pregnancy is the least of potential problems to which she was forcefully exposed.

Third, she should confide in her parents. She needs support from those who love her most. She has nothing to be ashamed of. She is a victim and needs love and understanding to heal the wounds inflicted on her. She may need counseling from a professional as well.

Fourth, she needs to confide in her bishop. He will assure her that she has committed no sin, and has done nothing requiring forgiveness. No one can take a person's chastity by force. He will tell her she is still a virgin and will remain so until she gives herself to her husband. The presence or absence of a hymen does not determine virginity or chastity. Chastity is a condition of the soul and the mind. It is not physical; it is spiritual.

To all young people who have been raped or molested, I say: "Do not feel worthless. Satan will lie to you and tell you that you are degraded, of no value, a thing of scorn; our Father in Heaven never has, and never will. Believe God; you can trust Him."

EDWARD D. BOTTOM, DIAMOND BAR, CALIF.

DEAR MR. BOTTOM: Thank you for your compassionate and encouraging letter. I have heard from thousands of concerned people offering words of support and encouragement to the young Mormon woman. Read on.

DEAR ABBY: "Raped Virgin" asked if she is still a virgin. I have spoken to several hundred women in her situation. Her feelings are very normal after having survived a traumatic sexual assault. I hope she reads this, because I want her to understand: She is still a virgin. She did not give herself to anyone; she was assaulted. What happened to her was beyond her control. The choice was not hers; she is not to blame.

You gave her great advice by encouraging her to call her local rape crisis hotline. I would further encourage her to seek counseling through agencies her local police department can provide. There are counselors available who deal primarily with sexual assault victims. Counseling is an important part of the healing process. It will lead her on the road to recovery.

She is a survivor. With the support of professionals, family and friends, she can heal and put this horrible experience behind her.

Cheerleading has evolved into a sport

SANFORD - It's funny how a few poorly written words can erase years of hard work. Cheerleaders have been trying for a very long time to dispel the image people have of them as pretty girls with no brains who jump around on the sidelines at football games.

They have quietly worked hard, upgrading their routines so they are not just mindless chants and have increased their jumping, pyramid building and tumbling in an effort to gain a little respect in the athletic community.

Competitions are attended regularly which give the girls and guys an opportunity to gain national recognition and display their athletic abilities.

With a few short paragraphs in an article written in a Seminole County newspaper last week, all of that hard work was tarnished.

I, myself, have seen what the cheerleaders of today are doing. I have been to the local cheerleading academics and witnessed first hand the level of difficulty that the routines have taken. I have also watched the national competitions that have aired on television and marveled at the strength, physical ability and hard work displayed by the various squads.

To say that cheerleading isn't a sport is ludicrous.

Just because cheerleaders do not wear pads and pound each other into the pavement doesn't mean cheering isn't a sport. Just because they do not use an object such as a bat or a racket to hit a ball doesn't mean that either.

And just because they are pretty doesn't mean that they are not athletically fit and that they don't lend dedication and sweat to their endeavor. As for their outfits, anyone who has seen a girls' tennis match has seen a "true" athlete in a pleated skirt and tight top.

Cheerleading is as much gymnastics these days as it is cheerleading.

Upset gives Vivona's sole possession of first place

From Staff Reports

SANFORD - Vivona's survived a scare to hang onto first place, but co-leading Today Homes was not as lucky in Sanford Recreation Department Women's Fall Slowpitch Softball League action Tuesday night.

Playing at Chase Park, the Night Mares scored six runs in the top of the fifth inning to tie the game at 8-8, but Vivona's rallied with four runs in each of the fifth and sixth innings to pull out a 16-9 triumph. In the other game at Chase, Vaughan Incorporated crushed the Night Mares 22-7.

At Pinhurst Park, Paul's Auto and Truck Repair scored seven runs in the fifth inning to erase a 9-6 deficit and went on to beat Insurance World 18-13 and the Sharks scored all seven of their runs in the second inning and Today Homes could never recover in suffering a 7-5 setback.

Vivona's now stands alone atop the standings with a 7-1 record, while Paul's Auto and Truck

Bennett's running, defense lead SHS freshmen

By COURTNEY LEFFEW
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD - Two freshman football teams, both with only one loss under their belts.

Which team would come out on top?

Last night, the Fighting Seminoles took on the Oviedo Lions at Thomas E. Whigham Stadium. For the Lions it was a night of lasting memories because it was their final game of the season. For Seminole, however, it was just the motivation they needed to win, 20-6.

The difference in the whole game was Jonathan Brooks. He is a born leader. He was a leader on offense and on defense. He knows how to win," said Seminole coach Scott Caska.

Seminole got off to a quick start as Willie Bennett ran in a 37-yard touchdown on the first drive. The two point conversion failed.

Oviedo, however, was unable to produce anything on its first possession.

"In almost every game, we allow the opponents to score a touchdown on the first possession of the night," said Oviedo coach Ed Norton. "We had a bunch of little things go wrong. The third touchdown was the back breaker, though."

Bennett scored another touchdown for the 'Noles on their third set of downs. With a 12-0 lead Seminole seemed to be on the right track.

By the second quarter, Oviedo was still having trouble picking up any yards.

Seminole was not going to let any time go to waste. Bennett made sure that didn't happen with a 55-yard touchdown run. This time the two-point conversion was good and the 'Noles were up 20-0 at the end of the first half.

"I told the guys not to give up. We have always been a second half team. We have to go out there and get back into this game. They never gave up," said Norton.

The third quarter gave Oviedo a hope of relief. Seminole had possession when a fumble was recovered by Oviedo's Chris Yepes. Nick Penekides gave the Lions a first down which set up a Jose Espinoza 33-yard touchdown run. It was Oviedo's first and only touchdown of the night.

By the fourth quarter it looked as if Oviedo was going to make a comeback but fell short. Oviedo had a short kickoff return which let them regain possession of the ball. The Lions were quickly stopped.

"We had a good year. We left with our heads high and lots of pride," Norton said.

Willie Bennett ended the night with 16 carries for 236 yards.

"We played wonderful. Everybody had a good night. I found the holes in the offensive line and just ran," Bennett said.

Seminole travels to Lake Brantley for its last game of the season on Tuesday with kick-off at 7 p.m.

A year ago, the Lake Brantley girls' cross country team romped to the Seminole Athletic Conference title at Thomas E. Whigham Stadium. This afternoon, starting at 4:30 p.m., the Patriots, which are ranked No. 1 in the FACA Class 6A State Honor Roll this week, and at least 20 other teams, boys and girls varsity and junior varsity squads, will hit the course at Seminole High School for the Just For Feet-Seminole Invitational Cross Country Meet, the final major meet before next week's SAC Meet at Central Winds Park and the post-season meet in November (SHS will host the Class 5A-District 3 Meet). Today's schedule has the girls' varsity race at 4:30 p.m.; the boys' varsity race at 5:05 p.m.; the combined junior varsity race at 5:35 p.m.; and the Awards Ceremony set for 8:15 p.m. Just For Feet will also have sales representatives on site to display and sell discounted top name brand merchandise.

days as any sport and requires perfect balance, timing and agility. I would love to see a football player tumble down the sideline. How many basketball teams can build a pyramid of bodies on the middle of the court? I challenge any baseball player to do a full split while jumping in the air.

If anyone would take the time to talk with a cheerleader they would realize that they are not dingy airheads whose sole purpose in life is to get a date with the quarterback. These girls and guys work hard at their sport and deserve as much credit as any other athlete. If ESPN believes that cheerleading is a sport (as reflected in their airing of cheerleading competitions) than that's good enough for me.

I, for one, choose not to prejudice anyone. I certainly could not get out in front of all those people and do what cheerleaders do. Who I am to say whether or not they are athletes or cast doubts on their character?

Bottom line is...cheerleaders do work hard and administrators and coaches are taking notice.

Perhaps members of the sports media should, as well.
