NEW STRATOSPHERE FLIGHT TO BE MADE SOON

5 New Players In City To Seek Jobs On Local Ball Club

Simultaneously with the arrival here today of five new baseball players, all of them young and aggressive looking men, came the announcement by officials of the Sanford Baseball Club that a campaign will be launched starting tomorrow morning to sell advance tickets to the Sanford-Cocoa game here next Thursday.

The new players—Joe Hackney, Leo Walker, Chick Burch, Hiram Caldwell, and Dick Mason—were at Municipal Park this morning working out with the Feds and from all indications, each is capable of delivering the goods.

Hackney, Burch and Mason are outfielders, Walker is a third baseman or shortstop, while Caldwell appears to be a natural fixture on first base.

However, only Hackney, Burch and Walker will be eligible for the Sanford-Leesburg game in Leesburg tomorrow afternoon, the remaining two becoming eligible in time for the Thursday game here.

Just which players will be cut from the list to make room for the new men was problematical late today. All players have been asked to take a salary cut, and three of the five new men are here on terms that are in line with the new salary schedule.

Officials of the club determined to make the Sanford club, the strongest in the league within the next two weeks, have announced that with the arrival of the new men, there will be an end to experiments for the next month.

All clubs have until next Tuesday afternoon to cut their rosters to the 15 or less men who can be used during the last month of the first half. No changes may be made during the last month of the season.

That means that usual fans will have but one opportunity to see the new men in action before the new men go on to conquer the world and that opportunity will be on Thursday night when the team plays Leesburg next Friday.

Speculation as to whether Alvin Kalis, now the country's best baseball player, might now be in town in the absence of his wife, is being kept quiet.

That makes the new men a

Action is partly completed on a number of measures, including amended laws which the state road department would operate, judicial recircuiting and others.

Governor Shultz's signature made law a bill to provide that in case of an evenly divided decision by the supreme court on the appeal of a person convicted of a capital offense, the state pardon board would immediately commute the sentence to life imprisonment.

City Attorney Fred R. Wilson went to Tallahassee yesterday for the purpose of making arrangements to protect the city against the scheduled sale on June 3 of 1575 pieces of property upon which Augustus T. Ashton has levied upon to satisfy an approximately $19,000 claim against the city.

With the issuance of two permits at the City Hall Saturday afternoon, the total building permits issued for May reached the $6750 mark. A $75 permit went to L. G. Cameron who plans to add a room to his home on Myrtle Avenue, while a $350 permit went to Sam Kialow who plans repairs to his home on Holly Avenue at First Street.

Arthur Branen, J. E. Rowland, Jr., L. H. Connell, and Ray Mann were in Orlando Saturday night, as was Mrs. Branen, attending the annual banquet of members of Central Florida Chapter of the American Institute of Banking. The affair was held at the Water Witch Club, and Willard Hamilton, president of the Florida Bankers' Association, presided.

The government, said Mr. Hughes, stressed the "grave national crisis" confronting the country.

"Extraordinary conditions may call for extraordinary remedies but the argument stops short of attempting to defend the action outside of constitutional authority," he said. "Extraordinary conditions do not create a constitutional power."

The court declared Congress had not provided sufficient restrictions and had not laid down proper rules to guide the President in applying the codes.

In the farm act decision, however, Associate Justice Brandeis ruled Section Three of the Industrial Recovery Act under TALLAHASSEE, May 28.—The usual hour evening of the Senate session was reversed yesterday morning, when the convened at ten and adjourned at eleven. It is for the Senate to an hour or so earlier in the House and work days Fred R. Wilson and Delegates, and Mr. and Mrs. and Mrs. of Sanford were in the Legislature yesterday.

Representative A. Kanner, of completing his fifth term as a member House this session. Mr. is a native of Sanford, giving his early education schools. He has served as Attorney of the 21st in which his county is. Mr. Kanner has always with distinction in the being one of the small independents, usually his own opinion. He is one of the best in the Legislature on procedure and law. He is a close friend of Judge Fred Davis of Orange County, a former of the House.

Chairman Sandler who made the motion to read the messages from the Senate, said he desired to have the Senate's gross receipts bill sent to the finance and taxation committee. It must first be brought before the House before it can be sent to committee.

Gates said he objected to the House could continue its consideration of the appropriations bill without the Senate's gross receipts bill. Governor Davis Shultz signature made a law of a Legislative Act revamping the state into five in districts, with a new Fifth District set up in the citrus belt of Central Florida.

Speaker Bishop informed the House he could not withhold his signature from a Legislative Act reviving the seventh cent of the gasoline tax and giving $2,500,000 annual revenue to the state's general fund.

Legislature Still Upset Over Revenues

House Works On Biennial Appropriations Bill While Senate Talks Relief

TALLAHASSEE, May 28.—(AP)—Florida representatives today continued to work on the biennial general appropriations bill while Senators amended and passed a House-approved measure setting up an agency to administer social welfare and direct unemployment relief.

There was no change in the badly muddled finance situation and some legislators expressed fear that the last three days of the session, sine die adjournment is set for Friday, would be filled with a turmoil over taxes to provide funds for schools, government financing and old age pensions.

An effort in the House to get the Senate approved gross receipts tax of one fourth of the percent sent to the finance and taxation committee failed as Senator of Sumter objected when unanimous consent was required to read the Senate message.

Chairman Sandler who made the motion to read the messages from the Senate, said he desired to have the Senate's gross receipts bill sent to the finance and taxation committee. It must first be brought before the House before it can be sent to committee.

May Weather Has Staged Back-Flip Compared To 1934

WASHINGTON, May 28.—(AP)—One year ago today Mrs. Oliva Donne turned her frightened face to indicate she was about to be buried and asked weekly "Save the triplets?" Yes, there was two more. Such was the drama of the triplets' birthhouse on May 28, 1934; that was remembered today with glowing gifts and wishes on the 10th birthday anniversary of the young quintuplets. In their parents' farmhouses, however, there was bitterness and resentment, for the quintuplets, Yvonne, Annette, Leslie, Eddie and Marie have a new spark and spirit to light across the road with the flag of England flying before it.

They are wards of His Majesty the King.

St. James, high mass at Sacred Heart Church at Cortell, the church where Oliva Donne and Eddie Legros attended mass as youngsters, was the opening ceremony of the formal birthday observance.

The parents had been asked to attend, but late yesterday Donne requested that high mass be sung at Calender instead.

He was told the mass would be at Calender as planned, and an invitation to attend was urged upon him again.

Wall Street Rowe Holds Scans Future New Florida Without NRA Law Invalid

Immediate Unsettlement Of Market In Prospect But Long-Range View Okey

NEW YORK, May 28.—Wall Street's first impressions of the Supreme Court's NRA decision were for immediate unsettling of the market and of business, with the long range view favorable.

Those businesses which had been aided under NRA operation would hard hit by the codes would benefit, experts said. Examples of the first group are lumber, steel, oil, textile and coal industries. A classic example of the second is R. H. Macy & Co., which has been hard pressed by the codes since fixing powers.

Without price fixing as a deterrent, the R. H. Macy company would assume its place as leader in cut prices in the department store field and make money. Such a move was mounted out, would result in price reductions by competitors and that be beneficial to the public.

However, the result for the consumers might be unpredictable, as they cannot operate as cheaply as the Macy company. The latter's stock jumped over two points on the late stock market due to its success.

Elimination of codes was seen by some experts as relatively safe test.

Supertitious tales abound in manufacturing and retailing circles that competition might be increased.

Another immediate effect would be to restore competition and those power prices.

On the favorable side, as the observers saw it, lower prices progression was seen in the building industry where almost nothing would be offset by lower costs and increased demand. The competition that would develop would give the consumer an advantage in price and quality of goods that were not available under the code operation in many industries, as predicted.

A striking example of competition was generated in furniture, under the code. Three vertical monopolies raised the cost of building and retarded the growth of the young quintuplets. In their parents' farmhouses, however, there was bitterness and resentment, for the quintuplets, Yvonne, Annette, Leslie, Eddie and Marie have a new spark and spirit to light across the road with the flag of England flying before it.

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

SHALL WANT NO GOOD THING: For the Lord God is a sun and a shield, the Lord will give grace and glory no good thing will be withheld from them that walk uprightly.—Isaiah 56:11.

A trip to the beach will convince almost anyone that the man race is in its best age.

It has about passed the point where you can almost tell the state of a man's personal life by his political affiliation.

One thing about the cross state canal. It will give the Central Florida boys some real work soon in.

It only remains for someone to run for president or senator to make the damn thing obligatory.

At the present time, the Herald is a wonder. It goes sell its silver mines in Missouri than Richmond. That's being done.

Sanford is now the middle of the road, but it is the point where a man not attract enough people.

An old-timer in town remember when he used to let the other fellas have Brooklyn Daily News.

The Germans

in this country try to collect what we know about them.

How fucking up America.
Twenty years ago we war in order to expand our royal line of business.
The Germanic governments want to make every one a king.

"Anybody can be a bank president!", one of our ten-ton best egg about. But, evidently there are about ten million unemployment who have the much self respect.

A lot of people have been calling the Legislature a mad house but it took the bond attorneys to get it on the record. Fort Myers mad.

We see where Alfred J. duPont was down to his last $32,750.00 when he died. We dare say there were times when he wondered where his next meal was coming from. But even so, charity, what gives the bulk of his estate, will be glad to get it.

The Orlando Sentinel complains that since they have run into some trouble getting money out of the government to finance their "Florida on Parade" exposition, certain prominent Orlandians are losing interest in it. "Just because we have hit some hard sledding, are we to quit now?", the Sentinel exclaims. "If we are that-type of people, we may as well fold up and move on over to Sanford.
That's right. Come on over, boys, and we will show you how to do big things without waiting for a handout from the government."

A popular American fallacy is the belief that "big business" always sees eye to eye with "big business". Last week the Standard Oil Company of Indiana brought suit against the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey to prevent the latter from using the trade name of "Kleen" which it is contended belongs to the former.
To the general public it had probably never occurred that there was any difference between Standard of Indiana and Standard of New Jersey.

The Blue Eagle's Interment

The Blue Eagle, born scarcely two years ago in a fanfare of publicity and ballyhoo, sugar coated with promises of wiping out unemployment, ending the depression, and raising everybody's income, decorated with window cards, automobile stickers and baby bunting, ruling the roost through threats of boycotts, strikes, and other means of intimidation, has finally been laid away to rest. What the natural antipathy of Americans for un-American methods had not already done to it, the Supreme Court did. By unanimous decision, Democrats and Republicans concurring, liberals and conservatives united, the Supreme Court held the NRA unconstitutional, a violation by Congress, and the President of the fundamental law of the land.

The country was quickly sold on the NRA in the early days of the New Deal because General Johnson's statements that it would "put six million men back to work by September 1st," that it would abolish sweat shops and child labor, that it would establish minimum rates of pay guaranteeing a decent standard of living, that it would eliminate cutthroat methods of competition and prevent the anihilation of the little fellow by big business, and that it would put an end to labor strikes and discord, were widely accepted at their face value. But, however worthy may have been the aims of the NRA, its performance has been nothing short of deplorable.

For every man put back to work through shortening of hours another man lost his job through limitations placed on production. For every person who has had his income raised to meet the minimum wage requirement, another man has found his salary cut by a proportionate amount. The unfulfilled hopes and aspirations engendered in labor by the NEA brought disillusionment and resentment with the result that strikes and rioting exceeded any other period in our history. Instead of eliminating unfair trade practices the NRA placed every honest businessman at the absolute mercy of any competitor who has no respect for the law.

The Supreme Court held the NRA unconstitutional not because it is a vice in law but because there is no provision in the Constitution for such delegation of authority by the Congress to the President and because the federal government has no power to regulate purely intra-state business.

The one constitutional aspect of the NRA which is known to every citizen of this country who has only the vaguest knowledge of the Constitution. Its only question is anyone's mind was whether the Supreme Court would dare to spend out right a constitutional and so popular a power as the New Deal.

That has shown us all that one who believes in the traditions of this country and the Democratic form of government must be a fool. He ought to be. The President has the right to do what he wants, so long as it does not interfere with the Constitution. The only question is, can he delegate that right to another? In the case of the NRA he can do nothing but destroy it. If he does not, he will be held responsible for it.

It only remains for someone to run for president or senator to make the damn thing compulsory.

At the present time, the Herald is a wonder. It goes sell its silver mines in Missouri than Richmond. That's being done.

Sanford is now the middle of the road, but it is the point where a man not attract enough people.

An old-timer in town remembers when he used to let the other fellas have at golf to class with the Brooklyn Daily News.

JUST BETWEEN FRIENDS
BY GEORGE GARNER

Delightful as summer life is in Central Florida really is, springtime thought turns naturally to other places and the wise man and woman plan for a little outside travel. In winter, outside information and new thoughts are brought here by visitors; in summer, the Central Florida resident should go out and observe things for himself, and also carry into other sections information and thoughts from his home area.

Travel, of course, is a great educational factor. If I were editor of a great newspaper, I would make my Washington correspondent take ten days in each two months, for travel, paying his expenses, to go where he might prefer, as long as he went somewhere. Even rubbing elbows and exchanging views with Tom and Dick and Mary Ellen on trains clear, the Washington cobs from his brain and broaden his knowledge and views.

Equally advisable is the principle, "See America first," though foreign travel, too, is of tremendous value as well as interest. Niagara Falls, now collapsing, is a national showplace and also gives opportunity to see the glorious St. Lawrence River and old Quebec. The Grand Canyon is of even greater interest probably, the most wonderful sight in the world. Yellowstone Park presents nearly a week of tremendous pleasure and educational value. And, if you can swing a heavy "pull," watch 'em make a talkie at a great Hollywood studio. Throughout any trip one has opportunity to talk with intelligent American folks, lawyers and doctors, etc. I hope you'll have a pleasant summer vacation.

For those who like the so-called "romantic" features of wobblers at Washington. The present routine of events originated by President Wilson's press conference that the festival of "fairs" were to be held in the world wide for democracy. In truth, they were concocted gathered to protest the United States' entry into the war by Germany and a couple of other countries after Germany should break away from England. That fact was recognized by Wilson, who was prepared to do so. Wilson, however, was not so much concerned with the progress of the peace conference as with the progress of the League of Nations. He was not so much concerned with the progress of the League of Nations as with the progress of the League of Nations.

Woods, two of the most celebrated confidence men or swindlers of their day. As a newspaper man, I knew them well and may say that outside their profession they were fine fellows of polished man. Woods, being the really best dressed in town, was sold a diamond ring by Miss Yule, and thoroughly enjoyed it. And believe were they that the police who sold it arrested them because it always proved impossible to make a case against them.

It is a great pity when the inter- office in the Herald building is closed between this and the stereograph. Any one who has been there recently to be told that Miss Rowland at the Herald office or at her home, Kinnaird, was in the buff last night, Saturday evening, by the Baptist girls.

Judge Landis and Judge Per-kins of Deland are guests of Confort Cottages.

Miss Martha King has returned to Oviedo.

Miss Salome Hampton left on Tuesday for Atlanta.

Effect Of Court Decision On NRA Related In Detail

Business Men Can Ignore Codes Until New Law Is Enacted

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The effect of the Supreme Court's decision on the NRA yesterday is shown by the following questions and answers:

Q. What did the court decide?
A. That NRA has no authority to impose codes on business men.

Q. Why?
A. Because Congress exceeded its powers under the constitution when it gave President Roosevelt the right to sign and promulgate codes.

Q. What is the effect of the court's decision on NRA?

A. Some lawyers say it means the death of the Blue Eagle. Others say NRA can be amended to meet the Supreme Court's objections.

Q. What did the court say about the NRA's powers to regulate wages and hours?

A. It said NRA had no authority to regulate wages and hours in a business that only indirectly affected interstate commerce.

Q. What will be the effect on pending legislation to extend NRA?

A. No one is certain. The House Ways and Means Committee was ready to report a bill extending NRA two years when the Supreme Court's decision was announced. It stopped work immediately.

Q. Can business men now ignore codes?

A. Yes, until and if Congress enacts new legislation.

Q. Does the decision stop the salaries of NRA employees and destroy the organization?

A. NRA officials believe it does not. The organization itself, it was said, continues under the law until NRA's charter from June 1, 1935, expires.

Notice is hereby given that after June 1, 1935, the County taxes remaining unpaid will become void and will be advertised and sold for tax collection.
