Soccer contracts in the mail

SANFORD — Seminole County's still in the running, if not in the lead, for the selection of the site of the training facility for the U.S. World Cup soccer team.

County tourism director Jack Wert said this morning that World Cup USA 1994 vice president Steve Sampson said late Tuesday they will send him contracts within the next two weeks for their review. Wert said Sampson didn't indicate whether similar contracts are being sent to Mission Viejo, Calif. officials. The two ends of the country are vying for the publicity coup of being the home of the national soccer team.

Woman cited in accident

SANFORD — Vicki DeSormier has been cited with violation of right of way in the accident that sent her and the driver of another car to area hospitals Saturday, a Florida Highway Patrol trooper said this morning.

Trooper Joel Watkins said DeSormier, 29, a reporter for the Sanford Herald, drove her 1990 Dodge into the path of a 1991 Chevrolet driven by Paul Rexford, 25, of Heathrow at the intersection of Lake Mary Boulevard and International Parkway. Watkins said Rexford tried to stop, but could not, and struck the driver's side of DeSormier's car.

DeSormier was pinned in the car and was removed after Seminole County firefighters cut the roof from her car. She was taken to Florida Hospital-North where she was treated and released. Rexford was taken to Seminole Community Hospital where he was treated and released.

Correction

In a police briefs item Sunday, James Thomas Tadlock, arrested by Seminole County Sheriff's deputies last Friday on 11 outstanding warrants, was improperly listed as having a Dorchester Square address in Lake Mary.

Sheriff's spokesman George Proechel said this morning that the arrest report listed the wrong address. According to the booking information, Tadlock's address should have been listed as 2420 Chase Avenue, in Sanford.

Shocking

Lightning numbs local woman

By LAGY BOWEN
Herald People Editor

SANFORD — Kathy Krasnoff received the shock of her life Sunday afternoon.

A typical summer storm, complete with thunder and lightning began brewing as Krasnoff chatted on the phone with a friend.

"I remember thinking it's lightning outside. I know you're supposed to get off the phone when there's a storm, but I just didn't," Krasnoff said Monday from her Sanford home.

She doesn't remember the flash and crack of lightning that blew out her VCR, intercom system and answering machine, shattered a bulb in the lamp next to which she and her husband Elliott sat and sent the telephone careening out of her hands across the room.

"Elliott said he saw a bright flash where my wire rim glasses were. I just remember the phone being across the room," she said.

Krasnoff reported Monday afternoon that she had an earache and that the hand in which she had held the phone felt prickly.

"It feels like when your hand goes to sleep and then you start to get some feeling back into it," she said.

She said the phone never disconnected. The friend with whom she was speaking heard "a huge crash," according to Krasnoff.

Outside, Krasnoff spotted severed tree limbs, a squirrel she suspects was electrocuted and the electric meter box blown open.

"God has a reason for me to still be here. At least I learned the importance of getting off the phone when it storms," she said.

City cuts $4 million

Lake Mary's tax rate to remain unchanged

By NICK PFENFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The City Commission will hear the initial City budget presentation Thursday night. Finance Director Robert Lockridge expects the final operating budget will be almost $4 million less than the present year.

"We are proposing expenditures of $6.4 million this year in user money," Lockridge said. "Last year, we had $10.1 million, but that figure was high due to the many capital projects we had underway."

He explained, "During this past year, we obligated $780,000 for the sports complex and $2.7 million associated with the Lake Mary Boulevard project." He added, "For capital projects in the present year, we had allocated $4 million, where this fiscal 1992/93 year's budget is asking for only $370,000."

Specific details on the budget proposals were not yet available. "We hope to have everything completed by this Thursday morning," Lockridge said.

Robert Lockridge

As of this morning, City Commissioners had not seen any of the budget proposals. "All we'll be doing this week is setting the millage rate," said Mayor Randy Lockridge. See Budget, Page 5A

County to hike charge for services

Garbage rates to rise by $1.40

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners gave the nod for a 72 percent increase in the charge for garbage haulers to unload at the county dump on Oct. 1.

If formally adopted by commissioners Aug. 11, the "tipping fee" increase will serve to drive monthly garbage rates for unincorporated residents up by $1.40. Garbage rates for city residents will also be driven up to pay for the added expense.

Without the increase, the county

Solid Waste Division would be broke by April 30, 1993 according to a report reviewed by commissioners Tuesday.

County Manager Ron Rabun said 66 commissioners objected to the proposal Tuesday and authorized the Aug. 11 meeting to consider the increase.

Since the county last raised the fee to the present level of $18 per ton in 1984, it has sold $30 million in bonds and hired eight people to meet the demands of a growing population and state environmental requirements.

In 1988, the bonds were sold to build the new Central Transfer Station near Longwood, buy 4,000 acres near the dump and make improvements to the dump to meet

Water, sewer up 15 percent

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Customers of the Seminole County water and sewer system may face a 15 percent rate increase in October.

County staff presented a new rate proposal to commissioners Tuesday to raise the current residential monthly base charge from $4.50 to $5.20. The base rate for residential sewer customers would increase from $9.50 to $11 per month.

The impact of the increases would add $6.70 to the current $40-a-month water and sewer bill for average household users. The county has about 21,400 water customers and 17,900 sewer customers, said Rick Diaz, deputy director of the Public Works department.

Commissioners asked staff to present the rates to the county Utility Steering Committee and bring it back before in a formal hearing. If approved, the rates would take effect Oct. 1.

A staff report indicates even with the $1.6 million generated from the increase, the county will face a potential revenue shortfall of about $4.4 million in the proposed $21 million water and sewer budget. About $3.2 million of the expenses are improvements driven by population growth.

Referee OKs part of pit-excavation plan

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

GENEVA — Both sides are claiming victory over a decision by a state hearing officer last week that would allow some excavation of a controversial 55-acre borrow pit off Cochran Road.

State hearing officer Robert Meale recommended the St. Johns River Water Management

District allow Excavated Products Inc. to excavate only about half of the sought-after 55 acres and only to dig about a 20-foot pit instead of a 37-foot pit. Meale then recommended Excavated Products conduct extensive soil and groundwater tests before the remainder of the pit can be dug.

A Geneva citizen's group, CROP, appealed a water district decision in December to allow Excavated Products Inc. to dig the pit east of State Road 46 near Cochran Road. The group said such a large, deep pit might allow contamination of the "Geneva bubble," Geneva's fragile drinking water supply.

CROP said the pit would allow a direct conduit to the bubble for treated wastewater from the nearby Sanford sprayfield.

State selects 176 for annual alligator hunt

Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH — The state has chosen 176 hunters to descend on marshes and swamps with snatch hooks and bang sticks for the fifth annual statewide alligator hunt in September.

Hunters selected from among more than 12,000 applicants could bag 2,640 gators out of an estimated 1 million, said Henry Cabbage, state spokesman for the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, which organizes the monthlong event.

Thirteen fewer hunters were selected this year because of breeding conditions in the wetlands, wildlife officials said. But surveys showed there still are plenty of targets.

Avid bass fisherman Richard L. Bulow, 65, of Atlantis said Monday that he is looking forward to throwing a harpoon at the reptiles on Lake Okechobee.

Angle Fales-Peacock, 33, of West Palm Beach also won the right to bag some future cowboy boots. The

Crocodile possession lands man in jail

PLANTATION KEY — A Key Largo man caught with a rare and endangered American crocodile three months ago has been sentenced to six months in jail.

Jose Andre Tomas, 20, was arrested April 16 after state wildlife officers received an anonymous call that a man was trying to sell a baby crocodile to neighborhood children. They found Tomas with the 10-month-old, 18-inch reptile in a blue tub behind his house. The crocodile had an infection that could have been fatal if not treated when wildlife officers found it.

Tomas didn't testify or put up any witnesses during the one-day trial Monday on Plantation Key. The jury found him guilty of illegal possession of a crocodile.

Nudists give shirts off backs

KISSIMMEE — You might say nudists are giving you the shirt right off their back. But it's more than that: They're holding a national clothing drive.

Nudist clubs and parks affiliated with the American Sunbathing Association are collecting used clothes and donating them to their local charities, homeless shelters and welfare groups.

The irony may be surprising, but so is the response.

"At last count, nudist clubs across the United States and Canada collected more than six tons of used clothing," said Arne Eriksen, executive director of ASA, which is based in Kissimmee.

More filming in Florida

TALLAHASSEE — More films and TV projects were produced in Florida in the first half of 1992 than in all of 1991, officials said.

From January through June, 53 projects were shot in Florida, compared with 42 during all of last year and 55 in 1990, according to John Reitzammer, state film commissioner.

"We are delighted at the increase in the film numbers," said April Herrie, spokeswoman for the state Department of Commerce. "The film industry is realizing that Florida is a major player."

The state didn't have a value for this year's projects. Production peaked in 1990 at $300 million, falling to $277 million last year.

Murder, child abuse charged

PENSACOLA — A 21-year-old Pensacola man has been charged with murder and child abuse in the death of his girlfriend's baby.

Michael Lyman Nims was arrested Monday for the death of 11-month-old Jacob Lee Brown on July 9. The day before, the toddler was taken to Sacred Heart Hospital with swelling and a blood clot in his brain and eye hemorrhages, said Escambia County sheriff's investigator Allen Cotton.

The child's injuries indicate his head was moving against something solid, hard and relatively flat, said Dr. Gary Cumberland, a medical examiner.

Nims was free after posting a $25,000 bond.

Judge: Rape law unconstitutional

By Associated Press

TAVARES — Florida's statutory rape law is unconstitutional as it applies to teen-agers who consent to sexual relations, a judge has ruled.

Circuit Judge Jerry Lockett's ruling on Tuesday could be a landmark decision that forces lawmakers and the courts to reexamine the law designed to prohibit sex between an unmarried person under 18 and an adult — a person over 18.

The courts in Florida have always held that consent is not a defense under the statutory rape law.

Prosecutors said they would appeal Lockett's decision.

In his ruling, the judge dismissed two cases he had heard last week in which the 15-year-old girls involved said they had wanted to have sex with their male friends — one 19 and the other 20 — and that they did not want to prosecute.

Lockett said the rape law conflicted with a 1990 Florida Supreme Court ruling that gives minors the same right of privacy as adults.

That Supreme Court decision, which came after Lockett ruled Florida's teen abortion law unconstitutional, said a Lake County teen-ager identified only as "T.W." had the right to an abortion without the consent of her parents or the courts unless the state could show "a compelling interest" to intervene.

"If this constitutional right to privacy extends to the decision of a minor to have an abortion, it must extend to the decision to engage in sexual intercourse," Lockett said in his ruling Tuesday.

The judge said the statute also conflicts in this instance with a 1980 amendment to the Florida Constitution that says each person "has the right to be left alone and free from governmental intrusion into his private life."

In his ruling, the judge urged the Florida Supreme Court "to re-examine the broad language of the T.W. decision ... so as to provide guidance to the trial judges of this state" as similar cases arise.

Lockett agreed with Assistant Public Defender Bill Stone, who had argued last week that the state could not prove "a compelling interest" to press the statutory rape cases and override the rights of privacy of the teen-agers.

Stone praised the judge's ruling Tuesday. "I think it's a logical extension of the T.W. decision and a logical application of the privacy amendment" of the constitution, the public defender said.

Fewer road deaths linked to alcohol

By Associated Press

Drunken-driving deaths are at their lowest level in a decade nationwide and have reached a five-year low in Florida, according to federal and state statistics.

Authorities attribute the success to more awareness of the problem, increased law enforcement and stiff penalties.

"It's one of the major success stories," said Mike Brownlee, assistant administrator for the U.S. Department of Transportation's traffic safety program.

Nationwide, alcohol-related traffic deaths dropped 10 percent in a year, from 22,083 in 1990 to 19,900 last year.

The number of drunken-driving deaths in the state dropped from 1,588 in 1988 to 1,064 in 1991, said Frank Harrison, statistician for the Florida Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles.

The percentage of traffic deaths attributed to alcohol also showed signs of decreasing.

Federal figures indicate alcohol spawned 48 percent of the traffic deaths on U.S. roads in 1991, compared with 50 percent in 1990 and 57 percent in 1982.

In Florida, drinking and driving contributed to 42 percent of the state's 2,523 traffic deaths, compared with 46 percent in 1990 and 49 percent in 1989.

The statistics were encouraging to state chapters of Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

"As a whole, society is becoming more cognizant of alcohol's effects," said Cass Scaglione, director of the Tampa-area chapter.

MADD's presence continues to be felt in changes in how police enforce drunken driving laws.

Since 1990, officers in Florida have gained the right to suspend licenses on the spot when drivers refuse to submit to a breath test or when they have a blood-alcohol level of 0.10 or greater.

Big spender Study: Money hasn't made government better

By GURT ANDERSON Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A huge increase in state spending over the past 10 years hasn't resulted in a better government, a study commission found.

"If this were going on in your personal life, you would be on the verge of bankruptcy," said utility executive James L. Broadhead, chairman of the 46-member Partners in Productivity task force.

"If it continues like this, there won't be any money left for anybody to spend," he said.

Following a six-month study of state government, the group of business and civic leaders found that spending ballooned by 55 percent over the 1980s after adjustment for inflation. The state population grew 31 percent over the same period.

But the money didn't buy better government. The task force found agencies often operate without a clear vision of what they want to achieve, have few effective ways of measuring the work they do and have little financial incentive to operate on the cheap.

"We fund programs that have high political profiles, but are not necessarily the most effective or efficient," said Dominic Calabro, president of Florida TaxWatch Inc., a non-profit government watchdog group that took part in the study.

The task force presented several recommendations to the Cabinet and key members of the Legislature. They include:

- Enactment of some kind of spending cap, perhaps tied to growth in personal income or some other economic measure.
- Overhaul of each agency's goals and mission, with development of accurate ways to measure how the job gets done.
- Further changes in the career service system for employees to give managers ways to reward the best performers, end unnecessary government functions and "terminate in a humane way those who do not perform well."
- Creation of a permanent state commission to oversee all these government reforms, although Calabro said it shouldn't become a part of the problem. "The partners don't want to create a bureaucracy on bureaucracies," he said.
- Rewriting the state's comprehensive plan to control development to "focus on a limited number of key goals." The business-dominated panel found there are too many laws where the economic cost may outweigh the environmental benefit.

FAMU may join UCF in secret military research

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Florida A&M University might do classified research for the U.S. Navy, joining two other state schools that conduct classified government research.

The University of Central Florida in Orlando and the University of Florida in Gainesville have been involved in a limited amount of classified research for several years, school officials said.

Neighboring Florida State University has banned classified research and Tampa's University of South Florida informally refuses such contracts.

"The idea is that this is an open community and we believe in disseminating results of research," said Fred Leysieffer, president of the Faculty Senate at Florida State University, which has a 20-year ban against

The other four state university campuses either don't have advanced research programs attractive to the military or have no set policy.

The question of secret military research is controversial in higher education circles because it strikes at the heart of the issue of academic freedom. In a classified project, the government controls the dissemination and discussion of research.

Charles Reed, chancellor of the state's university system, said there is no statewide policy on classified research the nine schools must follow.

"It's up to the institutions to make those decisions," Reed said, adding that only a small amount of classified research is done.

"In proportion to the $650 million of research we do, it's a minuscule amount," he said.

Man hospitalized with knife wounds in stable condition

SANFORD — The victim of a knifing on Lake Monroe Tuesday remains in stable condition today after being transported to Orlando Regional Medical Center.

John Hoover, whose address is listed in police reports as Rod's Fish Camp in Volusia County, received multiple wounds. A second man, David Earl Vorhies, 49, 2301 N. Cameron Avenue in Sanford, received a cut finger during the incident.

Sanford police arrested Richard Carl Duncan, 32, 1316 Elliot, in Sanford, on two charges of aggravated battery.

According to Police Chief Steve Harriett, "The three men were out in a boat on Lake Monroe yesterday at about 6:15 in the afternoon, when Duncan reportedly went for a swim." Harriett continued, "During the swim, he apparently had some difficulty, possibly fearing for his safety, and when he got back into the boat, he is said to have threatened Vorhies with a knife."

"When Hoover attempted to stop Duncan," Harriett said, "Duncan was stabbed a number of times."

Harriett said after the boat returned to shore, "Duncan left and went to his home where police located him after being informed of the incident."

Airport's runway to reopen

By NOE PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The 8,000 foot major east-west runway at the Sanford airport is expected to reopen by Aug. 1. The runway has been out of commission for six months.

"The construction will finally be over," said Airport Director Steve Cooke. "While I don't believe it has caused any difficulties having it closed for this length of time, I feel certain the pilots will appreciate having this newly resurfaced strip back in operation."

The runway is the original strip used as the major landing area when the Central Florida Regional Airport was a U.S. Navy base, in the 1950s. "It was resurfaced 20 years ago," Cooke said, "and now it will be another 20 years before anyone has to do it again."

Most of the $2 million resurfacing project was paid for by the Federal Aviation Authority. "The FAA paid 90 percent, the State paid 5 percent, and the Airport Authority had to pay the other 5 percent," Cooke said, "which amounted to $100,000."

The only work remaining at the present time is the stripping of the runway area, and final checking by the contractor, the FAA, and Airport Authority officials.

Since the runway has been closed, the traffic has been diverted to the other two runways.

Strickler candidate for seat on Seminole's school board

By VICKI DeBORNER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Larry Strickler, a candidate for the District 3 school board seat, feels the school district needs to use some common sense.

Strickler has been volunteering his services to the school district for 12 years, serving on committees at both the school and county levels.

"Several people called me and asked me if I would run," he said. "I thought about it and I talked with my family and with Southern Bell (his employer) and they all thought that it would be fine since I'm already putting the hours in as a volunteer."

Strickler said the school system hasn't been run with a whole lot of common sense the last few years.

"For example," Strickler said, "We've got to be a better job of making short and long term planning."

He said that rezoning should have taken place at Seminole High School long ago. The school district should have seen the enrollment problems years ago, he said.

Strickler and his wife JoAnn have served on PTA committees since they moved to the district more than a decade ago.

Their son Kevin just graduated from Lyman High School in Longwood and will be attending classes at the University of Central Florida in the fall. Their daughter Kelli, will begin the ninth grade at Lyman in the fall.

Strickler served as the only member of the public sector to serve on the committee charged with studying the concept of school-based management. Strickler believes strongly in the concept. The principals of each school should be managers as well as educators, he said.

As a result of the unsuccessful 1990 $500,000 bond issue, Strickler suggested the board help form the Business Advisory Committee. The BAC offers suggestions based on a business perspective on a variety of school district issues.

Strickler also believes in a market-driven educational system in which all students are ready for employment by the time they graduate from high school.

"We are putting too much emphasis on the college bound student," Strickler said. "Not enough emphasis is put on the other 60 percent of the students."

Strickler earned his bachelor's degree in math, science and chemistry at Carson-Newman College.

He believes that Seminole County has one of the best school systems in the state. He wants the opportunity to improve it.

Strickler hopes to accomplish all he wants in one term.

"I don't want to have to serve more than four years," he said.

Norton, 56, is leaving at a time of retrenching following a period of strong growth for the electronics and missile plants in Orlando.

Besides the two Orlando plants, the company has a smaller facility in Ocala.

Crocodile possession lands man in jail

PLANTATION KEY — A Key Largo man caught with a rare and endangered American crocodile three months ago has been sentenced to six months in jail.

Jose Andre Tomas, 20, was arrested April 16 after state wildlife officers received an anonymous call that a man was trying to sell a baby crocodile to neighborhood children. They found Tomas with the 10-month-old, 18-inch reptile in a blue tub behind his house. The crocodile had an infection that could have been fatal if not treated when wildlife officers found it.

Tomas didn't testify or put up any witnesses during the one-day trial Monday on Plantation Key. The jury found him guilty of illegal possession of a crocodile.

Nudists give shirts off backs

KISSIMMEE — You might say nudists are giving you the shirt right off their back. But it's more than that: They're holding a national clothing drive.

Nudist clubs and parks affiliated with the American Sunbathing Association are collecting used clothes and donating them to their local charities, homeless shelters and welfare groups.

The irony may be surprising, but so is the response.

"At last count, nudist clubs across the United States and Canada collected more than six tons of used clothing," said Arne Eriksen, executive director of ASA, which is based in Kissimmee.

More filming in Florida

TALLAHASSEE — More films and TV projects were produced in Florida in the first half of 1992 than in all of 1991, officials said.

From January through June, 53 projects were shot in Florida, compared with 42 during all of last year and 55 in 1990, according to John Reitzammer, state film commissioner.

"We are delighted at the increase in the film numbers," said April Herrie, spokeswoman for the state Department of Commerce. "The film industry is realizing that Florida is a major player."

The state didn't have a value for this year's projects. Production peaked in 1990 at $300 million, falling to $277 million last year.

Murder, child abuse charged

PENSACOLA — A 21-year-old Pensacola man has been charged with murder and child abuse in the death of his girlfriend's baby.

Michael Lyman Nims was arrested Monday for the death of 11-month-old Jacob Lee Brown on July 9. The day before, the toddler was taken to Sacred Heart Hospital with swelling and a blood clot in his brain and eye hemorrhages, said Escambia County sheriff's investigator Allen Cotton.

The child's injuries indicate his head was moving against something solid, hard and relatively flat, said Dr. Gary Cumberland, a medical examiner.

Nims was free after posting a $25,000 bond.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Judge: Rape law unconstitutional

By Associated Press

TAVARES — Florida's statutory rape law is unconstitutional as it applies to teenagers who consent to sexual relations, a judge has ruled.

Circuit Judge Jerry Lockett's ruling on Tuesday could be a landmark decision that forces lawmakers and the courts to reexamine the law designed to prohibit sex between an unmarried person under 18 and an adult — a person over 18.

The courts in Florida have always held that consent is not a defense under the statutory rape law.

Prosecutors said they would appeal Lockett's decision.

In his ruling, the judge dismissed two cases he had heard last week in which the 15-year-old girls involved said they had wanted to have sex with their male friends — one 19 and the other 20 — and that they did not want to prosecute.

Lockett said the rape law conflicted with a 1990 Florida Supreme Court ruling that if this constitutional right to privacy extends to the decision of a minor to have an abortion, it must extend to the decision to engage in sexual intercourse.

—Judge Jerry Lockett

gives minors the same right of privacy as adults.

That Supreme Court decision, which came after Lockett ruled Florida's teen abortion law unconstitutional, said a Lake County teen-ager identified only as "T.W." had the right to an abortion without the consent of her parents or the courts unless the state could show "a compelling interest" to intervene.

"If this constitutional right to privacy extends to the decision of a minor to have an abortion, it must extend to the decision to engage in sexual intercourse," Lockett said in his ruling Tuesday.

The judge said the statute also conflicts in this instance with a 1980 amendment to the Florida Constitution that says each person "has the right to be left alone and free from governmental intrusion into his private life."

In his ruling, the judge urged the Florida Supreme Court "to re-examine the broad language of the T.W. decision ... so as to provide guidance to the trial judges of this state" as similar cases arise.

Lockett agreed with Assistant Public Defender Bill Stone, who had argued last week that the state could not prove "a compelling interest" to press the statutory rape cases and override the rights of privacy of the teen-agers.

Stone praised the judge's ruling Tuesday. "I think it's a logical extension of the T.W. decision and a logical application of the privacy amendment" of the constitution, the public defender said.

Study: Money hasn't made government better

By CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A huge increase in state spending over the past 10 years hasn't resulted in a better government, a study commission found.

"If this were going on in your personal life, you would be on the verge of bankruptcy," said utility executive James L. Broadhead, chairman of the 48-member Partners in Productivity task force.

"If it continues like this, there won't be any money left for anybody to spend," he said.

Following a six-month study of state government, the group of business and civic leaders found that spending ballooned by 55 percent over the 1980s after adjustment for inflation. The state population grew 31 percent over the same period.

But the money didn't buy better government. The task force found agencies often operate without a clear vision of what they want to achieve, have few effective ways of measuring the work they do and have little financial incentive to operate on the cheap.

"We fund programs that have high political profiles, but are not necessarily the most effective or efficient," said Dominic Calabro, president of Florida TaxWatch Inc., a non-profit government watchdog group that took part in the study.

The task force presented several recommendations to the Cabinet and key members of the Legislature. They include:

• Enactment of some kind of spending cap, perhaps tied to growth in personal income or some other economic measure.

• Overhaul of each agency's goals and mission, with development of accurate ways to measure how the job gets done.

• Further changes in the career service system for employees to give managers ways to reward the best performers, end unnecessary government functions and "terminate in a humane way those who do not perform well."

• Creation of a permanent state commission to oversee all these government reforms, although Calabro said it shouldn't become a part of the problem. "The partners don't want to create a bureaucracy on bureaucracies," he said.

• Rewriting the state's comprehensive plan to control development to "focus on a limited number of key goals." The business-dominated panel found there are too many laws where the economic cost may outweigh the environmental benefit.

FAMU may join UCF in secret military research

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Florida A&M University might do classified research for the U.S. Navy, joining two other state schools that conduct classified government research.

The University of Central Florida in Orlando and the University of Florida in Gainesville have been involved in a limited amount of classified research for several years, school officials said.

Neighboring Florida State University has banned classified research and Tampa's University of South Florida informally refuses such contracts.

"The idea is that this is an open community and we believe in disseminating results of research," said Fred Lyeisler, president of the Faculty Senate at Florida State University, which has a 20-year ban against

The other four state university campuses either don't have advanced research programs attractive to the military or have no set policy.

The question of secret military research is controversial in higher education circles because it strikes at the heart of the issue of academic freedom. In a classified project, the government controls the dissemination and discussion of research.

Charles Reed, chancellor of the state's university system, said there is no statewide policy on classified research the nine schools must follow.

"It's up to the institutions to make those decisions," Reed said, adding that only a small amount of classified research is done.

"In proportion to the $650 million of research we do, it's a minuscule amount," he said.

SANFORD — The victim of a knifing on Lake Monroe Tuesday remains in stable condition today after being transported to Orlando Regional Medical Center.

John Hoover, whose address is listed in police reports as Rod's Fish Camp in Volusia County, received multiple wounds. A second man, David Earl Vorhies, 49, 2301 N. Cameron Avenue in Sanford, received a cut finger during the incident.

Sanford police arrested Richard Carl Duncan, 32, 1316 Elliot, in Sanford, on two charges of aggravated battery.

According to Police Chief Steve Harriett, "The three men were out in a boat on Lake Monroe yesterday at about 6:15 in the afternoon, when Duncan reportedly went for a swim." Harriett continued, "During the swim, he apparently had some difficulty, possibly fearing for his safety, and when he got back into the boat, he is said to have threatened Vorhies with a knife."

Airport's runway to reopen

SANFORD — The 8,000 foot major east-west runway at the Sanford airport is expected to reopen by Aug. 1. The runway has been out of commission for six months.

"The construction will finally be over," said Airport Director Steve Cooke. "While I don't believe it has caused any difficulties having it closed for this length of time, I feel certain the pilots will appreciate having this newly resurfaced strip back in operation."

The runway is the original strip used as the major landing area when the Central Florida Regional Airport was a U.S. Navy base in the 1950s. "It was resurfaced 20 years ago," Cooke said, "and now it will be another 20 years before anyone has to do it again."

Most of the $2 million resurfacing project was paid for by the Federal Aviation Authority. "The FAA paid 90 percent, the State paid 5 percent, and the Airport Authority had to pay the other 5 percent," Cooke said, "which amounted to $100,000."

The only work remaining at the present time is the striping of the runway area, and final checking by the contractor, the FAA, and Airport Authority officials.

Since the runway has been closed, the traffic has been diverted to the other two runways.

Martin Marietta defense plants get a new leader

By Associated Press

ORLANDO — The new top executive at the Martin Marietta defense plants in Central Florida will oversee a consolidation of operations and a tightening of the work force, officials say.

Good sense

It's not possible to pinpoint the exact moment when American students' grasp of geography began to decline, but a good guess is 1969, when, perhaps not coincidentally, the National League split itself into two divisions, with Atlanta and Cincinnati in the "West," and Chicago and St. Louis in the "East."

Geography teachers everywhere now owe Baseball Commissioner Fay Vincent a debt of gratitude for putting baseball right with the geography books.

He recently used his power as commissioner to order the realignment of National League divisions when the league adds new franchisees in Denver and Miami next year. Under Vincent's order, the Chicago Cubs and St. Louis Cardinals will join the NL West Division, while the Atlanta Braves and Cincinnati Reds move to the East.

That makes geography sense, and baseball sense, too. It will cut down on the number of transcontinental flights for teams and encourage natural geographic rivalries, such as between the Braves and the new Florida Marlins, and the Cardinals and the Colorado Rockies.

Only the Cubs fail to see the merits of realignment. The club has sued to stop the change, in large part because the club's owner, the Tribune Co., also owns a cable superstation, WGN-TV, that televises most Cubs games nationwide. Depending on what schedule the league adopts, putting the Cubs in the West could reduce the number of Cubs road games broadcast in prime time in Chicago and the East. But Vincent correctly judged that the good of the game comes before WGN-TV revenues.

Indeed, nobody should be happier than fans of the Cubs, the National League's leader in futility. Two generations of fans have been born since the last time the Cubs made the World Series.

Now, with realignment, the Cubs have suddenly been placed in a West Division that has been shorn of two of its strongest teams, the Braves and the Reds, winners of the last two division titles. Had realignment already taken place, the Cubs would be but a couple of games out of first place, with half a season to play.

With the Cubs, there is always hope, but with realignment, there just might be possibility.

A true journalist

Eric Sevareid, who died recently at age 79, was one of the nation's best journalists.

"Journalist" is the operative word because Sevareid was first and foremost a writer. He developed and honed his reporting and editing skills at the Minneapolis Journal, the Paris Herald and United Press before going on to win international acclaim as a broadcaster.

He joined CBS Radio just before the outbreak of World War II and his was a familiar voice from the European and Pacific campaigns. He was the first newsmen to report the fall of France to the Nazis in June 1940. His many assignments included the London Blitz, and he spent a month living among jungle headhunters after his plane was shot down.

He returned to San Francisco in 1948 to cover the creation of the United Nations. Two years hence he became a television commentator for CBS. But he never felt comfortable under the lights or in front of the camera, believing himself ill-suited to the medium. For many Americans, however, the craggy-faced Sevareid would come to be regarded as no less a towering presence on CBS Television than was the venerable Walter Cronkite.

The intellectual yet unpretentious way in which Sevareid expressed himself was consistently reassuring. His love of the language shone forth in each of his carefully crafted commentaries. Unlike so many of today's blow-dried "TV personalities," who rip and read the news, Sevareid wrote all of his own material. In fact, he seldom spoke extemporaneously for fear that he might not get it quite right.

His straightforward manner of speaking reflected a modest Midwestern background that put people at ease. You instinctively knew that he was telling the truth. Despite his occasional gruff response to something particularly stupid or mean-spirited, he never took himself too seriously. Nor did he condescend to his audience. He was a consummate professional who, despite many accolades, remained true to his North Dakota heritage.

The nation and the journalistic profession are much the poorer for his passing.

Can Bill Clinton stifle liberals?

NEW YORK — We are governed by those we elect, but also, subtly, by the political parties they represent. That is fine. Candidates without parties, like that nutty, foolish liar Ross Perot, can leave us too vulnerable to personal caprice.

To vote wisely, each by our own lights, we ought to examine not just candidates, but the essence of their parties. In politics, as in life, culture creates policy. Leaving the Democratic convention, we should ask: Who are these putatively new Democrats?

Let me rant, and rant, by my own lights: There were stirring aspects to the Democratic Convention. Recall the magisterial Barbara Jordan denouncing both white racism and black racism, decrying separatism, censuring "political correctness"; recall Sen. Bill Bradley's eloquent plea for pluralism; recall Gov. Zell Miller's invocation about why only Democrats can claim the rage-to-riches American idea.

There was, too, the heartening emergence of a corps of first-line black leaders. Freed at last from the political yoke of Jesse Jackson, we saw the likes of Reps. John Lewis and Mike Espy, Andrew Young, Mayors Maynard Jackson, David Dinkins and Sharon Pratt Kelly, coming into their own.

Much of the platform made sense. Much of what Clinton said in his acceptance speech made sense. Together they sketch out Clinton's vision: to "re-invent" government.

All that is to the good, and will influence policy.

The strategy was basic: the incantation of the word "moderate," so that sympathetic journalists would buy it. They did. Of course, incantation is not reality, but, then again, political reality cannot be changed without incantation first. We saw that Democrats can talk the talk. But will they walk the walk? Let's look at other elements of the party.

There is still a mean, sanctimonious, and very liberal aspect to this party. Did you like the lecture on family values from Ted Kennedy and Rep. Joseph P. Kennedy Jr.? Do you believe, as Jesse Jackson does, that Dan Quayle is like the baby-killing King Herod? Do you believe, as some AIDS activists indicated, that Ronald Reagan killed people with AIDS?

In politics, as in life, culture creates policy.

Do you believe that the Democrats are "the party of women" or are they the party of feminists or man-bashers? How would you like it if the Republicans said they are "the party of men"?

Do you believe, along with Mario Cuomo, that America is headed for "shipwreck"? Because free markets don't work, what we need is a bigger dose of government?

Are you concerned about a party that barely mentions victory in the Cold War and the Gulf War, Congress and quotas?

Do you like psychobabble, and that icky liberal let-it-all-hang-out stuff? Did you like that video presentation about how the candidate's drunken stepfather, lacking self-esteem, beat his mother? Do we need the candidate intimately whispering "I love you" to his wife, and to a hundred million others, via television?

On balance: Clinton is a good candidate, perhaps prodigious, with some powerful ideas.

A real matter of family reality

NEW YORK — They ended with Family Night in Madison Square Garden. Bill Clinton and Al Gore presented themselves to the American public Thursday as a governor and senator, would-be president and vice president. But they also offered themselves as sons, as husbands and more than anything else, as fathers.

On the day that Ross Perot became a government school dropout, the Democrats from the baby boom generation made their case to the American public with family biography as well as policy.

Al Gore described himself first as the son of a woman born before suffrage who graduated from law school when it simply wasn't done. He was the son of a man who was a teacher before he became a senator, and the husband of a woman who, in Gore's words, helped do more for children in the last dozen years than the entire Reagan and Bush administrations.

But he was also the father of a boy he'd seen hit by a car and thrown nearly lifeless to the pavement. It was a tale that brought this rambunctious hall of Democrats as close to silence as it ever gets.

Bill Clinton reintroduced himself earlier this week to an audience of women as the grandson of a working woman, the son of a single mother, the husband of a woman who'd earned more money than he did and the father of a daughter who wanted to build colonies in space. On the final night of the convention he rounded out that family picture.

He was the child born after his father's death. The boy whose mother went off to nursing school so she could support him. The big brother who watched over the younger. The stepson who stood up to and for an alcoholic stepfather. And in the film that preceded his speech, the father who sat and watched the famous "60 Minutes" interview on television with his daughter by his side.

If there were stories that people repeated over coffee the next morning, one was the tale of young Al Gore's brush with death. Another was the image of Clinton seeing what his own father had never lived to see, the birth of his child. A third was the tough moment when Chelsea Clinton, after watching her parents reveal the troubles in their marriage to a nation, reassured them that she still thought they were okay.

Call this hearts and flowers, soap opera, Oprah Winfrey, New News part of the Democratic show and tell. Maybe we try to know too much of anyone asking to lead the country. We strip-search our candidates, looking for the moments when life reaches out, touches and toughens people.

But these biographies were important as well because the Democrats are trying to tell a family story of their own. A debate about "family values" is expected to track this campaign all the way to November. The Republicans are going to talk about Jennifer Flowers and Murphy Brown. They'll be selling Hillary Clinton as the Liberal Co-President with an Attitude.

We know where the Republicans stand. Traditional Families R Us. Any family that doesn't fit the mold is dysfunctional or pitiable or immoral. They divide families by moral fiber.

The Democrats are trying to create a politics of inclusion and a family portrait as diverse and complex and sometimes as hard as real family life in America. For the Democrats, families include not only as Clinton said, "every traditional family and every extended family. Every two-parent family and every single parent family and every foster family."

They also include imperfect homes in which there may be trouble and love; too much alcohol and forgiveness; infidelity and renewal. Where life can change as quickly as a kid can run in front of a car.

The family portrait painted by this Democratic Party is not permissive. "Governments don't raise children; parents do," said Clinton. "Hear me now, I am not pro-abortion. I am pro-choice." To any father who abandons his children and his child support, he warned, "Take responsibility for your children or we will force you to do it." To any mother on welfare he said, "Welfare must be a second chance, not a way of life."

But to the children who don't have an easy life, he said, "I know how you feel. ... If the politicians who are lecturing you don't want you to be a part of their families, you can be a part of ours."

Republicans, like Ronald Reagan himself, also include the sons of alcoholics who've been over the coals of marriage and divorce. But Bill Clinton Democrats deal with it by talking about it.

For twelve years, we've been asked to see families through the wash to nostalgia and the harsh glare of moral judgment. What they offered at Family Night in Madison Square Garden looked a lot more like real life.

Maybe we try to know too much of anyone asking to lead the country.

Serbians seeking a permanent solution

WASHINGTON — Serbia's claim that a spontaneous Serbian militia and not the Yugoslav army is committing mayhem on Sarajevo can be disputed by the most casual study of that war-torn country.

Our reporter Michael Viner, just outside the city, engaged a Yugoslav army officer in conversation. After giving the gift of a bottle of whiskey, Viner got the kindly warning from the uniformed officer to be off the streets at 4 p.m. that day.

With eerie clockwork, the afternoon shelling of Sarajevo began, another illustration of the coziness and cooperation between the Yugoslav army and the supposedly non-governmental militia.

An even higher officer, a major, confided to Viner that the Belgrade government was guiding the whole war effort. He told of Serbia's plan for a "permanent solution" of the Croatia and Bosnia-Herzegovina "problem." His words were reminiscent of Nazi Germany's "final solution" for Jews.

The major said it was Serbia's aim to destroy not just the dwellings and offices of Croats and Muslims, but their memorials, shrines, churches and mosques — everything with religious and cultural importance.

"We are doing what the Israelis are not doing to the Arabs. We don't want them to have anything to go back to," said the major. "We are thinking of what we call a 'Greater Land' for Serbia."

The irony is ghastly: It was Croatia that sided with the Nazis in World War II, and Serbia, whose leaders now use this Hitlerian phraseology, that fought the German invaders.

The Bush administration recently condemned the escalation of Serbian attacks on Sarajevo, but is still denying that any military efforts by the United States are in the offing. The most promising developments — peace talks scheduled to take place in London among Serbian, Bosnian and Croatian representatives — have yielded disappointing results. At some point, U.S. and European humanitarian efforts could develop into a military operation, but not one likely to involve a ground fight.

Saber-rattling by the seven major industrial democracies, who have been demanding an end to the Serbian military offenses in Bosnia and Herzegovina, have done little to reverse the reign of terror. As if to underscore the point, Serbian nationalist forces recently marked the 100th day of the Sarajevo siege by exploding four power-transmission lines that served the city.

Yugoslavia was a federation of six republics until about a year ago, with Serbia the biggest and most powerful. As that federation has dissolved, a new Yugoslavia has been formed, consisting of only Serbia and Montenegro — equalizing the governments of Yugoslavia and Serbia.

"CONFIDENTIAL FUNDS" — The Secret Service is in charge of protecting presidents, vice presidents, their families, visiting heads of states and major presidential candidates. And sometimes performing the vital protection involves an element of espionage. Informants aren't cheap.

That's why the "confidential funds" were created for the Secret Service's use — to provide the funds to pay rewards for "services or information leading to the apprehension of criminals" or to pay for expenses "of a confidential nature."

But a recent investigation by the Treasury Department's inspector general found that in too many cases these funds were going to buy steak dinners, or coffee and doughnuts.

Saber-rattling by the seven major industrial democracies.

Hard work pays off

Hannahs help bring Milwee up to par

By VICKI BOGNER
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — Myra and Bob Hannah have worked long and hard to make Milwee Middle School a better school for students.

By the time the work is finished however, neither of their children will be at the school to reap the benefits of their efforts, though.

"That wasn't the point," Myra said. "We did it because we wanted what was best for the school, best for the students."

Seven years ago, when Milwee was placed at the bottom of the list of schools that would be renovated with money from the 1985 $105 million bond issue.

"The school was academically very good," she said, "but it wasn't even safe for the children."

The inequity of the way the schools were treated, she felt, was not fair to the students. While some Seminole County middle schools were being honored nationally for their overall performance and parental involvement, Milwee was losing out because the physical plant was less than adequate to meet the academic needs of the students.

Willie Holt, district director of middle school education, was principal at Milwee when the Hannahs began working at the school.

"They did a lot to get the school the recognition it needed from the school board to get the work done," he said.

Myra said the school board "seemed to be dragging its feet" when it came to getting work done at Milwee.

The school has now undergone a complete facelift with most of the older buildings, some as much as 85 years old, being torn down to make room for a more modern facility.

"Now it is a great school," she said. "I'm sure we'll be getting some national recognition soon, too."

Myra said that it has been a team effort and she could not have spearheaded the program to motivate the school board, if it had not been for the support of the PTA at the school.

"These are some very motivated people," she said.

Though both the Hannahs' children have moved on to Lyman High School, the couple have decided to stay involved.

"I've had other people whose kids have moved on to Lyman ask if they should stay involved at Milwee," she said. "I said yes. I'm here at least once or twice a month. It's fun to go back."

Scientists launch regional ozone study in Atlanta

By LAURAN NEERBAARD
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA — Scientists from around the country are in Atlanta to try to figure out what unique combinations of heat, humidity, pollutants and even trees give the Southeast dangerous levels of ozone.

The scientists on Tuesday launched their first weather balloons to gather data for what they called the most intensive ozone study ever done in a U.S. city.

"Because of the unique conditions of the South, we may always live with slightly high levels of ozone," said Greer Tidwell, the Southeast director for the Environmental Protection Agency. "But if we can limit the exposure of our citizens and educate the public, we can lower the health risks from ozone."

Ozone, a colorless gas, is the chief ingredient of smog. It contributes to lung disease, destroys trees and contributes to crop losses totaling about $3 billion a year.

Ozone studies to date have been confined mainly to the Northeast and California. Last year, scientists launched a five-year, $50 million study of ozone in the South.

The six-week Atlanta portion, begun Tuesday, is the most intensive part of the study, the scientists said.

Scientists at 40 different sites covering about 100 miles around metro Atlanta will measure ozone levels and wind, barometric pressure, pollutants and other factors that cause the city to routinely exceed federal safe ozone limits of .12 parts per million.

They'll use ground-level measurements as well as balloons, helicopters, laser radar and a 200-foot tower built at Georgia Tech to collect the data.

The scientists also want to see what role vegetation plays in ozone buildups.

Scientists discovered last year that trees emit hydrocarbons which mix with air and sunlight to form ozone. Hydrocarbons are mostly found in auto emissions, but scientists don't know just how harmful they are when emitted from trees.

Toxic states

Top 10 states by toxic releases into air, land and water in millions of pounds

Texas	782.8
Louisiana	473.4
Ohio	358.7
Tennessee	264.3
Indiana	255.0
Illinois	248.0
Michigan	220.1
Pennsylvania	194.2
Florida	192.0
Kansas	185.1

In the realm of dubious distinctions, Texas is far and away the largest overall producer of toxic releases into the air, land and water, producing nearly 320 million more pounds of such waste than the No. 2 state, Louisiana.

About 60 percent of the South is forest, and Atlanta is one of the most tree-rich cities in the country.

U.S. Sen. Wyche Fowler, who helped get federal funds for the study, launched the first two balloons Tuesday from the Tech campus.

"Without this research, the South would be forced to respond (to ozone buildups) using methodologies developed in and based on different parts of the country without significant results," he said.

Cities throughout the region are watching the Atlanta study, hoping it will suggest ways to help them meet EPA ozone standards by 1999. If they don't, they risk losing federal funds for various programs.

The states covered by the study are Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, Tennessee, Georgia, Kentucky, North Carolina and South Carolina.

The research may even help weather forecasters one day, said study director C.S. Kiang.

"This research may show up 20 years later, when weather forecasts don't just say, 'Bring an umbrella, it's going to rain.' There might be ozone forecasts: 'You may need a mask on your face today,'" Kiang said.

Hunt

Florida native has never hunted. Twelve-year-old daughter Katie — "no aisy," says her mom — will tag along.

But several animal rights groups have a problem with the state-sponsored hunt. Nanci Alexander of Boca Raton, president of the Animal Rights Foundation of Florida, said Monday that her 3,000-member group will stage a protest on the opening night of the hunt again this year.

Laura Bevan, director of the Tallahassee office of the U.S. Humane Society, said her organization opposes the hunt but can't seem to motivate people to fight for alligators like they will for baby seals.

"Most people are afraid of alligators; they aren't cute and cuddly. It's hard for people to cry crocodile tears for alligators."

As in previous years, no hunting will be allowed in the Everglades because of continued mercury contamination, said Game Commission wildlife biologist Tom Stice.

Prices for alligator hides have dropped sharply this year, to $20 a foot, from $50 during the 1980 hunt, said state alligator hunt coordinator Dennis N. Dault.

Florida's dusk-to-dawn hunt contrasts sharply from daylight hunts in Louisiana and Texas, where hunters are allowed to use firearms and traps. Florida allows hunters to shoot their quarry only after it's secured with a line or gig and then only with a single-shot bang stick. No traps are allowed.

Mobile homes threatened by sinkhole

By Associated Press

PINE HILLS — Norma Burris thought someone was breaking into her mobile home when loud pops and cracking noises woke her at 2 a.m.

Her next-door neighbor heard it too early Tuesday and thought some animal had gotten into his tool shed.

Both were wrong. A shallow sinkhole was forming beneath Burris' screened patio in west Orange County.

"I got up and turned on the lights and looked out. The concrete floor of my porch was cracked," Burris said. "I told my daughter, 'Get your shoes on and your purse, and let's get out of here.'"

Over the next hour, she and her neighbors watched the 30-foot porch break up into chunks and fall into the funnel-shaped hole. The porch's aluminum roof caved in and part of the sheet metal on the home buckled.

"We stood there and saw it drop at least 2 feet in the space of 10 minutes," said Mark Calacra, whose home was about 20 feet from the hole. "You learn how to pack real quick."

Later Tuesday morning, at about 40 feet wide and 5 feet deep, the sinkhole stabilized. There were no reports of injuries.

Before the hole stopped growing, Orange County deputies evacuated 45 people from 28 mobile homes, said Cpl. Doug

Meanwhile, a Winter Park engineer said there has been a series of small sinkholes in Central Florida lately, most likely caused by underground rock eroded by drought.

That makes the rock too weak to support the weight of the higher groundwater level brought on by recent rains, explained Bob Goehring, vice president of PBJ/Jammal & Associates, the engineering firm that studied the famous Winter Park sinkhole of 1981.

Water

Through cutbacks and other cost-cutting measures, staff reported they can make up the difference for the next year, but future increases may be needed to maintain the system.

To deter excessive water use, staffers proposed continuing "inverted" water rates which increase in amount for users of larger amounts of water.

Under the proposed rates, users of up to 15,000 gallons of water a month, or about 83 percent of the residents, would pay 65 cents for each 1,000 gallons they use. Users of 15,000 to 20,000 gallons, representing about 7.5 percent of the total, would pay a slightly higher rate of $1 for each 1,000 gallons they use.

But users of a total of 20,000 to 30,000 gallons monthly, about 5 percent of the customers, would pay a greater rate of $1.20 on each 1,000 gallons they use. Users of 30,000 gallons or more, about 5 percent of the customers, would pay $1.40 for each 1,000 gallons.

Pit

CROP has also sued Seminole County for their decision to allow the pit. The lawsuit is on hold pending an outcome to the administrative appeal of the water district decision.

Jim Stelling, a partner in the venture, expressed confidence the tests would show the 55-acre, 37-foot-deep pit won't harm Geneva's fragile drinking water supply, the "Geneva bubble."

"We're disappointed we're not able to move ahead with the entire pit," said Stelling. "But we're pretty confident if we do the initial stages and then do the tests, we can show we'll have no effect on the water."

"We believe once they start, it will show that a lot more will happen," said Don Crabtree, CROP president. "That's alright. I don't mind him taking the dirt. I just want him harming the water. We understand property rights."

Ed Albanesi, district spokesman, said no decision had been made on whether to challenge Meale's recommendation. The decision must be taken up by the district governing board. If unhappy with the decision, Crabtree said CROP may ask a circuit judge to decide whether the permit should be issued.

Budget

Morris. "The main discussion on the budget will be at our public hearings and we'll also determine when those will be at tomorrow night's meeting."

During the special called meeting, City Manager John Litton is scheduled to recommend that the millage rate remain the same as during this past year.

The millage rate in Lake Mary has been 3.8991 per $1,000 of assessed property value. If the recommendation is approved, taxes for individual home owners in Lake Mary will remain unchanged from this present year.

With the inclusion of the $25,000 homestead exemption, the owner of a home assessed at $50,000 would pay $97.48 in taxes. The owner of a $75,000 home would pay $194.95, and a house assessed at $100,000 would pay $292.43 in taxes during this coming year.

In addition to the budget proposals, another item scheduled for Thursday night's meeting is consideration of recommended revisions to the City Charter. The recommendations, which include changing the length of terms for City Commissioners, were scheduled to be discussed on July 18, but tabled because of the length of that meeting.

Also scheduled for tomorrow night are hearings on a resolution dealing with an Urban and Community Forestry Grant, Lake Emma Road waterline easements, and setbacks in the Forest subdivision.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m., Thursday July 23, in the commission chambers of the Lake Mary City Hall, 100 W. Lake Mary Boulevard.

Democrats spoiling for fights with Bush

WASHINGTON — Emboldened by Bill Clinton's newfound popularity and a successful nominating convention, congressional Democrats are readying an abortion-rights bill and preparing to challenge President Bush across a broad front.

"We're not trying to embarrass the White House — we're trying to get some things done," House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said Tuesday.

Despite Foley's disavowal of partisan intent, Democrats are spoiling for fights with Bush over his China policy, abortion, taxes, health care and other issues.

In the Senate, Majority Leader George Mitchell announced plans to bring to the floor the so-called Freedom of Choice bill, which would put abortion rights into federal law for the first time and limit the restrictions states can place on women seeking abortions.

Gingrich wins eighth term in Congress

ATLANTA — GOP firebrand Newt Gingrich won a narrow victory Tuesday over a congressional primary challenger who ridiculed him for writing bad checks and using a chauffeured limousine.

Gingrich, the House minority whip and Georgia's only Republican in Congress, edged Herman Clark, a lawyer who served five years in the state Legislature. Gingrich, seeking an eighth term, was running in a redrawn, predominantly white district in Atlanta's northern suburbs.

With 98 percent of precincts reporting, Gingrich had 35,571 votes or 51 percent, and Clark had 34,599 votes or 49 percent. A few hundred absentee votes remained to be counted, not enough to affect the outcome.

Fed chairman faces hostility

WASHINGTON — With unemployment rising and the economy threatening to go into another swoon right before the November elections, Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan is coming under increasingly hostile attacks from nervous politicians.

Greenspan was to face House interrogators today after enduring almost five hours of intense questioning Tuesday before the Senate Banking Committee.

For his part, Greenspan said he believed better times were ahead and he forecast that the unemployment rate would drop significantly, but not before late next year.

President Bush and members of Congress who must face the voters less than four months from now were likely to take little solace from a forecast that things will improve next year.

In presenting the Fed's semiannual report to Congress, Greenspan said the central bank believes the economy, as measured by the gross domestic product, would grow by around 2.5 percent this year and close to 3 percent in 1993.

He said this would be enough to cut the unemployment rate, currently at 7.8 percent, down to around 6.5 percent, but not until the end of 1993. For this year, many Fed officials believe unemployment will remain above 7 percent.

Private economists questioned even this outlook, contending that the Fed's economic growth rates were not high enough to produce such a sizable drop in unemployment over the next 18 months.

Baker best for Bush campaign

By TOM RAUM
An AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON — James A. Baker III has a reputation for finding success and staying away from failure — and that may be the best thing the Bush campaign has going for it.

"If Jim Baker goes into that campaign, you can bet your life that he figures Bush has a chance of winning. Because he ain't going to go near anywhere where he thinks he's going to lose," suggests Lyn Nofziger, a former White House political director.

Despite Baker's known reluctance to step aside as secretary of state, the Houston lawyer and longtime Bush confidante is now widely expected to overtake the president's re-election effort.

Republican and campaign officials said they expect Baker to announce that he has taken a leave of absence — at Bush's behest — to mastermind the campaign soon after he returns from his present tour of the Middle East. He arrives back here this weekend.

And, the officials said, Baker is most likely to perform such a role from the White House — where he can influence policy as well as politics — rather than from Bush-Quayle campaign headquarters.

"It's smart speculation," said Charles

Black, a senior campaign adviser to Bush. However, Black said Tuesday that any such announcement "will happen when the two of them are ready."

The New York Times reported in today's editions that Baker will leave his post in mid-August to run Bush's campaign. Administrative officials and Republican political strategists the newspaper did not identify said Baker will resign shortly after a scheduled visit to the United States by Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

Baker, a veteran of many past GOP campaigns, stepped down as Treasury secretary to run Bush's successful campaign in 1988.

Political dirty work being planned

By JOHN SOLOMON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Independent political groups are planning to do the dirty work for the presidential candidates in the fall election, inflicting attacks deemed too nasty to come directly from the campaigns or their parties.

For Democrats it would be their first full-scale venture into the so-called independent expenditure strategy, which Republicans have used for years to launch attacks like the infamous Willie Horton ad in 1988.

"We will be tough," declared Victor Kamber, a Democratic consultant who has formed Americans for Change, a political group hoping to raise and spend $1 million on ads encouraging President Bush's defeat.

This time around everything from Bush's family business dealings and Dan Quayle's spelling mistakes to Bill Clinton's character and relationship with cabaret singer Gennifer Flowers appears to be fair game.

"We're going to deal with some of the issues that maybe the campaign wouldn't dare touch that we wouldn't be afraid to touch," Kamber said.

Kamber is the Democratic answer to Republican operative Floyd Brown, who four years ago altered the political landscape with an independent effort to support Bush that culminated with the Horton ad.

That ad scorned then-Democratic nominee Michael Dukakis as soft on crime by highlighting the case of a convicted murderer who raped a woman while on a weekend furlough from a Massachusetts prison.

The ad was branded racist by some because it used a picture of Horton, who is black.

This year, Brown has formed a new group which already has tried to revive Flowers' unsubstantiated allegations that she had a 12-year affair with Clinton.

"We're not involved in case. ... This is truth and fact," Brown insisted, promising to raise "other character issues."

Using flawed AIDS vaccine recommended

By RANDI MUTTER SPYTEM
Associated Press Writer

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands — Settling for a flawed AIDS vaccine soon instead of holding out for a more effective one could save thousands of lives, a U.S. vaccine official said.

Dr. Daniel Hoth, who heads AIDS vaccine development at the National Institutes of Health, said keeping people from catching the AIDS virus is urgent enough to offset the risks of a partially effective vaccine.

He spoke Tuesday at the Eighth International Conference on AIDS.

Hoth said that offering an AIDS vaccine in 1992 that is 60 percent effective makes more sense than waiting until 2003 to find one that is 90 percent effective.

"The strategy of introducing a less-than-perfect vaccine earlier actually prevents more infections than waiting to find the more effective vaccine," he said.

Hoth offered this projection: If the 60 percent effective vaccine were introduced into a population of 1 million high-risk people by 1992, 145,000 people would be spared from the disease by 2008.

Waiting five more years for the better vaccine would mean that only 122,000 people would be saved by 2008, he estimated.

The AIDS virus, which destroys the body's immune system, has proven to be one of medicine's wildest preys. The virus has repeatedly altered its tell-tale characteristics within the last decade, foiling researchers' efforts to develop a vaccine.

Current AIDS vaccine research focuses on two approaches. One kind of vaccine aims to stop the virus from infecting healthy people. The second type, called a therapeutic vaccine, aims to halt the spread of disease among people already infected with the virus. It does this by fortifying the body's defenses against the virus.

Earlier Tuesday, scientists reported encouraging evidence of the effectiveness of experimental therapeutic vaccines on AIDS patients.

BUILDER

Q. Is now a good time to buy a new home?

A. Of course every individual situation is different, but generally speaking it is an excellent time. Interest rates are lower than they have been in almost 20 years. There are mortgage programs that fit almost every need if you consider buying a new home. I SAY GO FOR IT. You may never see money this cheap again.

GOLF PROFESSIONAL

Q. Is Golf difficult?

A. Technically, golf is a much simpler game than most people realize. If you are consistently missing and misdirecting the ball, there are two basic causes. Either: 1. You have an open club-face at impact, which makes you swing across the target line from outside to inside, which makes the club descend too steeply into the ball and not meet it solidly, or 2. You have a closed club-face at impact, which makes you swing across the target line from inside to outside, producing a shallow descent into the ball, causing the ground behind it or hitting the ball "thin" at the start of the upswing. The perfect impact occurs when the clubhead heads along the target line, and exactly meets the target.

FINANCING

Q. When should I refinance my existing mortgage and/or obtain a second mortgage?

A. NOW! Rates are as low as they have been in the last twenty five years and probably will not remain at current levels for much longer. If your current rate is especially 2% above today's market or you have an adjustable rate mortgage, that refinance should be considered. You may increase your loan to a fixed rate, to a balloon with an extended term option, or to another adjustable rate. With sufficient equity in your property, a second mortgage or line of credit might be considered for debt consolidation as well as any home improvements. These loans may also be tax deductible. Please call for FREE CONSULTATION to discuss your individual needs.

FUNERAL HOME & CEMETERY

Q. Why should I bother with a viewing and a funeral service? No one really cares if I'm there.

A. The funeral is the way our society provides for the death of one of its members. It is an occasion for showing our affection and respect for the deceased, for expressing our sympathy and concern and for participating in the religious or cultural rites. You attend the funeral in the company of other friends and relatives, services to a fellowship of support extended to the family and relatives. They appreciate your personal contribution to their grief. The funeral may mean, by being there you have communicated that you care. It makes a tremendous difference when you speak sincerely about the deceased.

MEDICAL

Q. Can exercise help control my high blood pressure? Will I be able to stop taking medicine for my blood pressure if I exercise?

A. Exercise can reduce or control blood pressure problems. Not everyone responds the same way, but it has been proven that proper routine exercises can lower one's blood pressure and reduce or eliminate the need for medication for control of the blood pressure problem. Some doctors in fact will try to have their patients exercise before considering medicine for control of blood pressure. Again, each person is different and has to be treated so, but proper exercise is becoming more important in the total care of any patient.

OPTICAL

Q. How long will my visit with your office take?

A. The selection process for purchasing eyewear is an important one. Therefore the amount of time you spend should be in finding what best suits your style and needs. Look for style, color, comfort, fit and quality in the frames you choose. When choosing lenses you should consider light weight, plastic, glass, tint, light adjustable no line bifocals and other options. Again what best fits your lifestyle is what will be best for you. The staff of Budget Optical will be glad to discuss these options with you.

REALTOR

Q. What is a lease purchase? How does it work?

A. A lease purchase must be shown up by an attorney. A selling price is generally agreed upon by the seller and buyer. A substantial down payment is made and an amount per month, generally around 10% of Market Return. A portion may, or may not, be applied to the down payment. A closing is agreed upon and if this agreement is not consummated, the tenant may or may not, forfeit the down payment. It is a good practice to qualify the purchaser or tenant as to his ability to perform a mortgage of the form of the lease purchase agreement. A lease purchase is a good option for those who have recently looked to a new area, who are waiting for a previous house closing, or needing additional time on-the-job to qualify for a traditional mortgage.

SWIMMING POOL CONSTRUCTION & SERVICE

Q. I am interested in having a pool built. How can I be sure my pool builder is reputable?

A. You've answered your own question. Reputation! At Pools by Max we have 24 years of experience and a track record of 24 years. We are a family owned business and our pool in Langwood in 1968. In these 24 years over 200 other local pool companies have come and gone. So look for longevity. Roughly 70% of our business comes from repeat. Look for a company whose testimony of quality is from the most important people of all, the customers. Lastly, remember to watch for danger signs like a super low price. If your pool cost is very cheap chances are it is the worst. Your pool is not a car you don't trade it in, so look for a quality builder. At Pools by Max that's what 24 years experience is: quality and reputation.

ORLANDO — Nigel Wilson had three hits, scored a run and drove in a batter to lead Knoxville to a 4-1 Southern League victory Tuesday over Orlando.

Tim Brown (8-10) earned the win after going seven innings. He gave up eight hits, one run and two walks. He struck out five.

SunRays' Alan Newman (4-7) got the loss. He went six innings, giving up eight hits, three runs and one walk, while striking out five.

JACKSONVILLE — Stan Fansler scattered eight hits over seven innings to lead the Carolina Mudcats to a 7-5 victory over the Jacksonville Suns in Southern League play Tuesday.

Fansler pitched his fifth win, while Zavaras (3-5) took the loss.

MIAMI — The University of Miami men's basketball team enters its second season in the Big East conference with an early December conference game at Seton Hall University and two national television appearances.

The Big East placed five of 10 teams in the NCAA tournament in 1992, in addition to three in the NIT, with Seton Hall advancing to the Sweet 16 before losing to eventual two-time national champion Duke.

Highlighting Miami's non-conference slate are a contest at the University of Georgia on Dec. 2, followed by a matchup with Southern California on Dec. 27 to be played in West Palm Beach.

Miami's contests at Pittsburgh on Jan. 6 and at home against Boston College on Feb. 10 will be carried live on ESPN.

Hillin to relieve Allison

ALLENTOWN, Pa. — Team owner Robert Yates and crew chief Larry McReynolds have hired Bobby Hillin Jr. to relieve or substitute for injured driver Davey Allison in Sunday's DieHard 500 at Talladega Superspeedway.

The announcement was made Tuesday by telephone from Lehigh Valley Hospital, where Allison was upgraded from stable to satisfactory condition despite a restless night.

Hillin, 28, whose only NASCAR victory came in this event in 1988, has a part-time schedule with Martin Birrane's Team Ireland this season but was not scheduled to drive at Talladega. The deal is only for the one race, with Yates and McReynolds expected to sign a road racing specialist to help out at Watkins Glen on Aug. 9 in the next Winston Cup event.

Dream Team tunes up

MONTE CARLO, Monaco — Magic Johnson and Michael Jordan were the darlings of the small sellout crowd at Stade Louis II arena Tuesday night as a U.S. Olympic team of NBA professionals made its European debut with a 111-71 victory over France.

Johnson's 8-point, 11-assist performance in the pre-Olympic exhibition game and his appearance in the Olympics at Barcelona may guarantee that he will never again have a peaceful life in public.

Jordan scored 21 points, 17 in the first half when the United States started slowly against the French national team.

Charles Barkley scored 14 of his 21 points in the second half and also was a crowd favorite with five dunks. Chris Mullin added 16 points, while Clyde Drexler scored all of his points on four dunks for the United States, which was rusty from the outside, missing six of seven 3-pointers.

Larry Bird started but played only 16 minutes with two points.

Raines showing signs of getting cranked up

By TONY DeSOMMER
Herald Sports Editor

BOSTON — As Tim goes, so go the Sox.

At least, that's the way the Chicago White Sox thought it would go when they acquired Sanford resident Tim Raines from the Montreal Expos two years ago. A career .300 hitter with an 86.7 percent success rate as a base stealer, Raines was to be the sparkplug to help the White Sox move into the upper echelon of the American League.

But much to everyone's mutual frustration, it hasn't quite worked out that way.

In 1½ seasons with the White Sox, Raines is a .260 hitter, dragging his career average down to .266 (through Chicago's win over the Baltimore Orioles Tuesday night). And while he has stolen 81 bases since joining Chicago, Raines hasn't quite been the offensive force the White Sox had expected him to be.

That frustration reached its height when it was speculated in Chicago newspapers that Raines might be traded, perhaps to the Boston Red Sox, who were supposedly looking for a leadoff hitter themselves, for a starting pitcher.

While the rumor was preposterous, Boston being one city Raines would refuse a trade to because of an extremely unpleasant incident that involved Raines, his wife and local police at Boston's Logan Airport, it showed how strained the situation had become as the White Sox, expected to challenge for the AL West title this year, were extremely streaky during the first half.

Raines, knowing he always heats up along with the weather, was expecting big things from himself and, as a result, the White Sox during the second half of the season.

"You'd like to be in a better situation," said Raines during an interview before the White Sox' game with the Red Sox at Fenway Park on July 10, referring to his un-Raines-like performance so far this season.

"But the most important thing going in is that we have a chance to win. And I feel I can be a big part of this team having a chance to win in the second half of the season."

Part of what kept Raines from enjoying a truly outstanding maiden season with the White Sox (although he did hit .285 with a .345 slugging percentage and a .359 on-base percentage, scored 102 runs and stole 51 bases in 86 attempts) were constant problems with his hamstrings in both legs.

Normally, Raines would take a few days off or, being in the American League, be the designated hitter and spare his legs the wear and tear of playing defense in the outfield. But with Frank Thomas limited to DH duty because of a bad shoulder and the White Sox in the pennant chase until the final month, Raines ended up playing in 155 games and collecting a team-high 609 at bats.

While still not completely injury free, Raines said that injuries □ See Raines, Page 6B

While he's hit under .270 since joining the Chicago White Sox, Sanford's Tim Raines has been red-hot since the All-Star break, hitting at a .346 clip while stealing four bases and scoring four runs in six games.

Special to the Herald

OCCOEE — When the smoke had cleared, the championship in the District 14 Minor League Top Team Tournament at the Ocoee Little League Baseball Complex came down to a battle between two Oviedo Little League Baseball teams, the Dodgers and the White Sox.

In the championship game, the White Sox used a pair of two run-innings, the second and third, to erase a 4-3 deficit and held off a last-inning Dodgers rally to post an 8-7 victory and claim the first Minor League Top Team title for an Oviedo team.

The White Sox won an impressive 40-inch trophy to signify their championship.

Ryan Adams allowed one run in 2½-innings of relief of starter Andy Valentin to get the pitching win, while Scott Kinard was touched for a pair of sixth inning runs, but struck out four in two innings to get the save for the White Sox.

Contributing to the White Sox offense were Noah Tyler (three singles, two runs), Ryan Adams (triple, single, three runs), Brian Lorenzetti and Daryl Stephen (two singles and one run each), Ryan Sarvia and Keith Phipps (one single each) and Danny Waldman (run).

Doing the damage for the Dodgers were Josh Stralitzo (double, two singles, run), R.J. Swindle (triple, single, run), Jake Costa (single, run), Alan Grimage (three runs) and John Gettschak (run).

The tournament was a single elimination affair that drew nine teams. In addition to the two Oviedo squads also participating were Ocoee, Winter Garden, Dr. Phillips Nationals, Dr. Phillips Americans, Pine Hills, Rolling Hills and Windermere.

The White Sox were able to claim the title despite having to win four games, whereas, the Dodgers only needed three wins to claim the crown.

The White Sox advanced to the finals by hammering the Rolling Hills Twins 16-1, edging the Windermere Royals 7-5 and nipping the Ocoee Cardinals, which entered the game with a 22-1 record, 7-6.

The Dodgers had knocked off the Dr. Phillips Nationals and the Dr. Phillips Americans on route to the finals.

The Sox used Sarvia, Adams, Kinard, Lorenzetti and Valentin to pitch the four games played in six days.

Sarvia pitched in three of the games and went 2-0. He worked eight innings and allowed only one run and one walk while striking out 10. Kinard provided excellent relief in pressure situations and wound up with two saves.

Lorenzetti paced the offensive attack with a triple and eight singles. Also having a good tournament □ See Oviedo, Page 6B

Guards top SCC recruits

SANFORD — The Portland Trail-blazers used a three-guard lineup to rally for a come-from-behind win over the Chicago Bulls in Game 4 of the 1992 National Basketball Association Finals.

Seminole Community College women's basketball coach Ilen Gallager hopes a similar lineup will also produce points and wins for her next year as the Raiders will face the new season with plenty of guards and 10 new players.

Only two players — center Kerri Archer and forward Monique Hayes — return from last year's 15-14 squad that qualified for the state tournament.

"I'm really excited about this group," Gallager said. "It's going to be exciting to try and put them together. Everybody will be in the same boat."

Six of the incoming freshman are guards — including two pure point guards and two shooting guards.

Gallager said none of the new back-court players stood out — but they all had talent.

"I've got a lot of good shooters and I want to use them," Gallager said. "I definitely want to pick up the tempo."

Almost all of this year's recruits came from high schools close to SCC, including four from Seminole County.

Lake Mary graduate Dawn Judd will be battling for playing time at guard. A walk-on, Judd will have to contend with Melissa Mendz of Deltona and Port St. Lucie's Lisa Williams at the point guard spot. Jennifer Campbell of Father Lopez and Kerri Wilson will compete for a starting role at shooting guard.

Wilson, a native of Texas, sat out last season as a medical redshirt. Fort Pierce Central's Thomas Iris could see some playing time as the third guard in Gallager's small lineup.

Judd averaged 9.2 points per game for the Rams last season while dishing out 2.0 assists per game. She shot 75 percent from the free-throw line and 40 percent from the field.

While guards dominated the recruiting class, Gallager also signed some tall players to help open up the outside shooting. Oviedo's Sylvia Dames and Christa Vaughn both stand at 6 feet, 0 inches while Shirley Dames of Oviedo and □ See Raiders, Page 6B

RAINES GAUGE

Tim Raines is a Sanford native and Seminole High School graduate now playing for the Chicago White Sox. His stats are for the 1992 season in the first column, personal-best season totals in the second column and current career totals (including 1992 games) in the third column.

On Tuesday night, Raines was hitless in three at bats, but did score a run and stole his 30th base as the White Sox rallied to beat the Baltimore Orioles 10-7. The two teams will play again this afternoon in a 1:30 p.m. game that can be seen on cable television station WGN.

Burkett's Late Model win marred by pit-clearing brawl

Special to the Herald

SANSULA — FASCAR (Florida Association of Stock Car Automobile Racing) Late Models point leader Ronnie Burkett led every circuit to win the Late Model feature event Saturday night at New Smyrna Speedway.

The win, however, was not the usual jubilant celebration that drivers share with family and crew in victory lane.

With two laps remaining, Jeff Burkett, Ronnie's brother, and David Rogers became involved in a scuffle on the front straightaway under the flag stand. The incident stemmed from the alleged rough driving tactics.

"It could have been a good win," said Burkett, from Longwood. "The car ran real good and I felt that I had the car to beat. The incident between David and Jeff was really uncalled for."

The Burketts started the event from the pole position. Ronnie on the inside and Jeff on the outside. At the drop of the green Ronnie charged to the lead with Jeff and Guy Thomas duelling for second place.

Ronnie Roach moved into third place and as he began to close on Jeff Burkett, Rogers, who started the race in 11th position, worked his way up through the field.

On lap 14 Rogers got by Roach for third place and made a bid to take over the second place spot.

"I had a fast car and through traffic with no trouble," said Rogers, the winningest Late Model driver at the speedway. "As soon as I pulled even with the four car (Jeff Burkett) he started to bang on me. For one whole lap he beat on my car all around the track. He finally put me in the wall and the officials blamed a lapped car."

As in the accident several weeks ago at Orlando Speedway between Jeff Burkett and Jim Crowe the flagmen did not see this incident either.

"I gave David all the racing room that he needed," said Jeff Burkett. "When I saw him coming I dropped down to give him the high side, but he didn't take it."

Rogers pitted after the wall banger to change a tire, on the following restart he drove into the outside wall and the race was put under a red flag condition (all racing action stopped).

Rogers backed his car off the wall and drove to the flag stand where he confronted Jeff Burkett.

While Burkett and Rogers were engaged in a scuffle, the crews of both teams came over the wall and also got involved.

"I race clean and I won't take this type of racing," said Rogers. "At the drivers meeting the flagman said he won't tolerate rough driving and that's exactly what happened out there without him doing anything about it. I just lost my cool and confronted him face to face. Two weeks ago he put me in the wall and wrecked my car real bad. No one saw that wreck either."

When asked about the rough driving allegations made by Rogers, the flagmen said they were both looking at another part of the track and did not see any of the incidents.

Rogers was disqualified from the race, but the flagman let Jeff Burkett restart the race from his previous position.

Following Ronnie Burkett across the stripe were Roach, Jeff Burkett, Thomas and Greg Froemming.

It took Samsula ace Mike Fitch three laps to regain his old form as he cruised to his 22nd Modified feature win of the season.

Fitch, who was sidelined for four weeks due to a leg injury, got by race leader Wrey Shaffer on lap three. Once on the point he raced unchallenged to the checkers.

Rounding out the top five were: Shaffer, John Gamble, Kenny Heckle and Ed Woodring.

Jerry Symons held off a late race charge by Ted Vulpius to win his seventh Mini-Stock feature. Trailing Symons and Vulpius were Osteen's Bobby Sears, Don Keithley and Jim Trevarthen.

The top five finishers in the other divisions were:

Sportsman: Paul Colgan, Randy Hecker, Dale Howard, Ted Head and Barbara Pierce.

Bombers: Darren Gould, David Gould, Bob Richardson, George McKissick and Ron Dubeau.

Run-A-Bouts: Steve Bond, Ron Blackard, Kelly Griffin, George Parrow and Rick Alexander.

Limited Late Models: Timmy Todd, Allen Rhodes, Wayne Heckle, Randy Grief and Darrell Fryc.

Budweiser Triple Crown Series resumes at Volusia race track

Special to the Herald

BARBERVILLE — Round II of the Budweiser Triple Crown Series took the green flag this past Saturday, July 18th, at Volusia County Speedway.

Extra distance and extra monies were in store for each of the five divisions plus separate points towards the three-race Budweiser Triple Crown Series Championship.

The Late Model Stock feature saw defending champion Tony Ponder of DeLand hold the early lead with David Showers of St. Augustine in hot pursuit. On lap five, Showers moved to the inside of Ponder for some side-by-side action until the seventh lap, when Showers took the lead for good.

Once in the lead, Showers distanced himself from the pack, hung tough and went on to take the win in the 35-lapper.

Current points leader, Mike Hunter of DeLeon Springs, ran a strong fifth for nearly 30 laps before finally getting by David Browning Jr. of Jacksonville with five laps to go for fourth place and taking Greg Ward on the final circuit to finish a respectable third. Ward held on for fourth and Browning wound up fifth.

Karl Stairs of Sanford and David Ponder of DeLand battled side-by-side for the first two laps of the Sportsman feature with Ponder edging ahead to take the lead on lap three.

With the lead in hand, David Ponder began to pull away from the field and a duel for second ensued between Stairs and David Clegg of Bunnell. Stairs and Clegg were nose-to-tail for some 12 laps until the two were involved in a racing incident which forced them to retire to the pits.

On the re-start, David Ponder was still out front and held on to the stripe ahead of Rusty Eberole and Jim Kinder.

Jeff Miller of Ormond Beach, Roger Wren of Orange City and Rod Gassman Sr. of Ormond Beach were in a three-car battle for the lead in the Street Stock feature with Miller prevailing. Working their way up through traffic were Chris Lawrence of Orange City and Scott LeCates of Ormond Beach, with LeCates moving into second place by the 10th lap.

LeCates began to put pressure on Miller and was trying all ways to get past the leader until a caution on lap 17 halted the action. On the re-start, LeCates dove to the inside of Miller to take the lead and held on for the victory. Miller faded after being passed for the lead and Gene Pellicer, Lawrence, Scott Laughlin and Billy Jones wound up second through fifth.

From the pole, Jerry Gilliard of Apopka moved into the lead in the Mini-Stock main but, before a lap had been completed, current Budweiser Series points leader Rick Fairbanks of Inverness got past and built a commanding lead on lap two.

The battle was for second between Leroy Kinlaw of St. Augustine and Derike Luthie of Orange City, however, Luthie got hung out to dry in the outside groove, enabling Bob Ford of DeLand to take over third place. Ford would later move into the runner-up spot, but he could not reel in Fairbanks, who went on to victory. Kinlaw, Luthie and Phil Orr completed the top five.

Jay Whitaker of DeLand jumped into the lead at the drop of the green in the 20-lap Charger feature with Robert Young of DeLand following. Just prior to the halfway mark it was Whitaker, Young and Tony Newsom of Orlando running one-two-three.

Young and Newsom got into a battle for second place, allowing Whitaker to move out to a four-car length advantage. But Newsom finally got by Young for second place and once in the clear he ran down Whitaker and challenged for the win.

Newsom tried the high side, then dove under Whitaker to take the lead and held on to the checkers. Jim Hefner came out of the pack to pass Whitaker for second. Young wound up fourth and Bob Peterson grabbed fifth.

Crowes drive to first, fifth in Orlando Late Model action

Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — Putting several years of frustration behind him, Jim Crowe sped to an exciting Florida Association of Stock Car Automobile Racing (FASCAR) Late Model win last Friday night at Orlando Speedway.

Driving his Hamke-built J & B Towing/Rite's Auto Marine/Covey's Radiator special, Crowe took the initial lead from Don Fenn, only to find David Russell on his rear bumper following the only caution period of the race on lap two.

Russell began to put pressure on as FASCAR points leader Ronnie Burkett soon made it a threesome. A torrid battle ensued that kept the fans on their feet. Burkett snuck under Russell with three laps to go and pulled even with Crowe coming down for the checkers, but Crowe held on by a fender.

"I'm very happy with tonight's win," said Crowe. "After last week's wreck, everything was just perfect with the car. It's nice to be in victory lane."

Crowe, who used to own the Late Model class at the now defunct West Palm Beach Fairgrounds Speedway, has been only semi-active in recent years, suffering through his share of spectacular crashes.

As a result, Crowe was understandably jubilant in victory lane, especially after he was joined by his son, Jim Crowe Jr., who drove a new care to a well-deserved fifth-place finish.

Ronnie Burkett was second, followed by Russell and Jeff Burkett.

Mike Williams also turned his recent bad luck around, leading wire-to-wire to win the Limited Late Model feature. Timmy Todd stayed close, but had to settle for second ahead of Wayne Heckle and Randy Grief.

Gary Schlichter and John Willis were fifth and sixth, respectively, impressive considering that they and their crews burned plenty of midnight oil to repair their cars after a grinding crash the week before.

After winning the Panic Press Mini Stock Dash for Cash, Gene Van Alatine came back to claim the 20-lap feature, passing Bobby Sears early in the race to claim his fourth win in five weeks. Sears claimed second in front of Richard Newton, John Roberts and Don Keithley.

Modified laurels again went to Glen Carter, who drove to his 11th win of the year. Jon Compagnone Jr. held off his father, John Sr., for second as Wally Patterson and Kenny Heckle came in fourth and fifth, respectively.

Paul Colgan was the only driver to make the outside lane work all night as he sped to his eighth Sportsman win of the year. It was a special birthday present for his mother, who was watching from the stands.

Ted Head was second over Jim Robinson, Barbara Pierce and Rick Johns.

The action-packed Bomber feature proved to be another popular victory for George McKissick, his fifth of the year. John Smith tried every trick in the book but couldn't get around McKissick and had to settle for second.

Dwayne Waddell and Darren Gould, who came into the evening tied in the points standing, tangled later in the event but came back to claim third and fourth, respectively. Glen Castro was fifth.

Kelly Griffin, driving in his first race, inherited the Run-A-Bout feature when apparent winner Ron Blackard's car was disqualified for illegal springs. Rounding out the top five were Lyle Messinger, Rodney Tweedie, Wallace Barber and John Fregont.

Using a last-lap pass, Dana Clark won yet another Powder Puff event, leading Kerry Gould, Terri Hughes, Kathy Filippo and Sally McRoberts across the stripe.

Jerry Symons defeated a 40-car field to win his second Four-Cylinder Enduro of the year.

haven't been a factor this year. "Not to the point where they're slowing me down, any way," he said.

Even so, he was looking forward to getting home for a few days over the All-Star break (July 13-15) to watch his son, Tim Jr., play for the Seminole Bronco All-Stars and just get away.

So far, it looks like the break did Raines some good, opening the second half of the season on a 348 tear (9-for-26), stealing four bases and scoring four runs. And while the White Sox have lost four of six since the All-Star break, two of the losses were in extra innings.

"I feel that if I do well, then the team will do well," said Raines. "When the team doesn't do well, a lot can come back to what I didn't accomplish. When I do well, it's a big part of getting things started offensively."

It's no idle boast. With Raines on base and a threat to steal his way into scoring position, opposing pitchers can't concentrate fully on the rest of the White Sox lineup, which includes such dangerous hitters as Steve Sax, Thomas, George Bell and Robin Ventura.

"If I'm on base, I have a real good chance of scoring with the rest of the guys hitting behind me," said Raines, who was 0-for-3 Tuesday night, but stole his 50th base of the season and scored a run as the Sox rallied past the Baltimore Orioles 10-7. "I need to be on base for them to drive me in."

Despite not being satisfied with his performance for the Chicago White Sox, Tim Raines maintains his youthful passion for playing the game.

with the bat were Sarvia (eight singles, eight RBI), Adams (triple, two doubles, three singles) and Tyler (six singles).

The team was managed by Louie Lorenzetti and coached by Joe Sarvia. Gloria Kinard was the team mom. Other members of the team were, Charles Bennett, Eric Tener, Chris Rogers and Brian Rotolo.

The White Sox finished the season with a nine-game winning streak and wound up with a 20-3 record overall. The last seven wins came in the Oviedo city playoffs and the District 14 tournament.

Raiders

Wilcox of Port St. Lucie can also post-up inside. Add them to Hayes, who averaged eight points and eight rebounds per game last year, and the Raiders have both height and speed.

Vanghari led the Lions in points scored and rebounds each of the past two seasons.

"Hopefully, we'll be a little quicker team this year than last year," Gallager said. "I'm excited because we have a lot of good freshmen coming in and we have two good returning players. Hopefully, we'll have a good bond this year."

Cook draws from heritage

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Making quick, nutritious meals that satisfy her family while watching the family budget is a task Sanford resident Shirley Ramirez seems to accomplish with ease.

A working wife and mother of three daughters, Ramirez draws on her Puerto Rican heritage to cook meals that don't suffer from "the same old, same old meal syndrome."

"The secret to Puerto Rican recipes is an ingredient called Sofrito," she explains. "Actually, Sofrito is a mixture of pureed ingredients. This is the basic ingredient of any traditional Puerto Rican recipe, and it consists of green peppers, onions, garlic cloves, coriander leaves and cilantro leaves."

"Sofrito can be used in basically any recipe whether Puerto Rican or not," Ramirez said. "It can be used in soups, stews, meats, spaghetti or pasta sauces. Even use it in prepared sauces like Ragù, and it gives the sauce a totally unique flavor."

With her busy schedule as a floor manager at Lake Mary McDonald's, Ramirez makes Sofrito ahead of time and stores it in the refrigerator in a glass jar. Stored in this manner, it will last two to three weeks. Then when pressed for time, she or her husband, Angel, can cook and season a variety of meals for their three daughters: Zerimar, 11; Angely, 7; and Amanda, 6.

"Mamma even grows the cilantro herself," Angely says proudly, pointing to the balcony where the herb is grown in containers.

Another secret to our traditional recipes," Ramirez adds, "is the seasoning called Adobo, a mixture of salt, garlic, pepper, oregano which is available in most supermarkets along with a seasoning called Bazon. This is also a spice in packets that gives your meats, soups and sauces that "traditional" flavor. Try it in your meats for baking, barbecuing or frying. It will give it a great taste."

Shirley Ramirez gets admiring glances from daughters Angely, Zerimar, and Amanda (l to r) as they volunteer to taste-test cupcakes for their mom.

Born in New York City, Shirley says she didn't really learn to cook from her mother.

"My mother wouldn't let us cook because she thought we'd burn ourselves — even at 17 years old!" she recalls.

The tradition of close family ties and large dinners was fostered while she was growing up, by Sunday visits to her grandmother's house.

"We were always at Grandma's on Sunday," she recalled. Her grandmother cooked for restaurants for 40 years and sometimes cooked for 40 to 50 people at the Sunday get-togethers.

"Even if we had plans with friends that day, my grandmother would say bring them too," she continued.

As a bride married to an Army man stationed in Germany, Ramirez began cooking in earnest. "I guess you could say I used my husband as a guinea pig when I started cooking...and the other soldiers there, they'd eat anything!"

After 7½ years in the Army, including two tours of duty in Germany, the family opted to return to civilian life although Shirley still considers Germany her home.

"All of my children were born there and we had our first home there," she said. The family was still stationed there when the American hostages were released by Iran and taken to Germany on their way back to the U.S.

As a homemaker during her husband's military career, she also sharpened her cooking skills catering for the NCOA (Non-Commissioned Officers Association).

From the Empanadillas, little meat pies good served hot or cold, to the Puerto Rican-style Corned Beef (recipes follow), the dishes she prepared were subtly spiced with no flavor overpowering another. Beans and rice are a traditional part of a Puerto Rican meal and can be served with chicken, steak or other meat.

At the end of the meal, the family sometimes has slices of guava or mango paste on Jack cheese. The paste has a gel-like consistency and is sweet but not overpoweringly so. In local

Annoyed reader implores men to remove those caps, hats

DEAR ABBY: Ever since I moved to South Texas, I have been annoyed by the lack of common sense and courtesy displayed by men who wear baseball and cowboy hats indoors — particularly in churches, classrooms and theaters. Apparently, it has never occurred to them that not only are they being rude, but they are also blocking the view of most people seated behind them.

I assume that these men have never been informed that it is impolite to wear their hats and caps indoors.

Since this may be a new subject to your readers let me paraphrase Llewellyn Miller's Encyclopedia of Etiquette on this subject:

Men are required to remove their hats on entering places of worship during a prayer, burial, dedication or wedding; during the raising or lowering of our flag or while the flag is passing in a parade; during the Pledge of Allegiance; on entering the inner lobby of a theater; and on entering a restaurant.

DEAR RUTE: I found it:

DEAR ABBY: When I read your column in The Kansas City Star regarding mistakes in grammar and pronunciation, I was disappointed that no one mentioned the oft-quoted phrase: "A mind is a terrible thing to waste."

I cringe every time I hear it, and wish someone would phrase it right: "A mind is not a terrible thing — 'It is a terrible thing to waste a mind' is what is meant."

Thank you for setting the record straight.

DEAR MS. BOYCE: It is indeed terrible when a mind is wasted because the person lacked the funds to attend college. The United Negro College Fund adopted those words for its national fund-raising slogan. Bill Cosby and Oprah Winfrey have been generous beyond description in support of that cause.

'Hot day specials' won't heat kitchen, tax air conditioner

My inspiration for this column came as I was reading the entries of a magazine food contest that required using ground beef. There were no microwave entries although all of the recipes could be adapted to the microwave. I thought to myself these recipes sound good, but I wouldn't want to turn on the oven during these hot 90° days for any of these meals no matter how interesting. You can prepare nutritious, hearty meals without heating the kitchen or taxing the air conditioner. These recipes, too, use ground beef. They could be called "hot day specials."

SPINACH MEAT LOAF PIE
1 lb. lean ground beef
1 onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
½ tsp. dried basil
¼ tsp. dried marjoram
¼ tsp. dried oregano
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. ground black pepper
1 (10 oz.) package frozen chopped spinach, defrosted and drained
4 large eggs, beaten
¼ cup shredded Mozzarella cheese

garlic, basil, marjoram, oregano, salt and pepper and microwave on 100 percent power 5-6 minutes or until beef is no longer pink.

Stir in drained spinach and eggs. Cover and microwave on 100 percent power 2-3 minutes, stirring several times. Press mixture into a buttered 10-inch glass pie plate. Cover with wax paper, and microwave on 70 percent power 4-6 minutes or until set. Sprinkle with cheese and let set 3-4 minutes. What causes man to talk to himself?

DEAR DR. GOTT: What causes a hard-working, older person to whisper or talk to himself constantly? Is this cause for concern?

envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR READER: Many normal, healthy people talk to themselves from time to time. Although most of us sometimes carry on an internal mental dialogue during complex tasks, older people are more likely to verbalize this conversation. The cause of this phenomenon is unknown, but the behavior may be related to problem-solving techniques or a feeling of isolation; lonely people often talk to themselves.

For example, when alone, I'm sometimes amused to hear myself making comments aloud -- or, if engaged in an especially frustrating activity, to hear myself giving instructions or making supportive comments.

Of course, whispering or talking to one's self may reflect a severe mental disorder, particularly if the speaker carries on a conversation with non-existent voices. Such a symptom may indicate a psychosis, a type of mental disease marked by a break with reality. Normal people recognize the nature of their mutterings, whereas psychotics cannot. Continued sole conversations indicate the need for professional intervention; the person should be examined by a psychiatrist or psychologist.

In my office, I'm frequently asked by people (who occasionally talk to themselves) if this is something they should worry about. I answer: It's OK as long as they don't answer themselves. This seems to work.

WHAT'S

By Phillip Alder
Today's deal is the first that South played in the trials held last May in Memphis. I was South's non-playing captain. Follow the hand from my perspective.
West's opening weak two-bid is hardly textbook, but it gave South an awkward problem, which he solved by taking the middle course. A reopening overall of two no-trump still shows 15-18 points, unlike one no-trump in the balancing position, which is weaker.
West led a spade, and declarer put up dummy's jack, expecting this to win the trick so he could lead a diamond toward his hand. However, East produced the ace. A spade return at this point would leave declarer in trouble, but East didn't know that South had only one club. Thinking there were five club tricks ready to run, East tried to cash four diamond tricks, switching to the diamond eight.

After much thought, South put in the jack. West discarded a spade, but I knew it didn't matter. When South leads a low diamond now, he can't go down. If East returns a heart, South finessees. If East returns a spade, declarer wins, cashes dummy's two top clubs and leads a diamond toward his hand.
However, after even more thought, South led the heart queen from his hand. It held the trick. Then he played the club 10 and called for dummy's jack -- it won. Now the A-K of clubs followed by a diamond ensured nine tricks. Whew!
Afterward South told me why he had played that way. He thought East had started with five diamonds. Even experts miscount once in a while.

By Bernice Bode Coel YOUR BIRTHDAY July 22, 1992

New horizons will be opening for you in the year ahead, and experience has taught you how to disengage yourself from situations that are potentially unproductive.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You could be rather fortunate today where your material interests are concerned. However, there are indications you might not be as adept at handling things that affect your reputation. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) As long as you treat today's developments philosophically, this should be a pleasant day for you. However, if you lose your cool and overreact, you could cause yourself and others discomfort.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Strive to be as fair toward yourself today as you will be toward others. You're entitled to the same considerations as they are -- no more, no less.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you do things with a partner today, you'll be held accountable for this individual's tactics and procedures. Be sure the person you're teamed with measures up to your standards.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Objectives can be achieved today, provided you do things the way you envision they should be done. Input from outsiders could have a negative influence and steer you off course.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you're planning on having a social event today, leave people who don't mix well with one another off your guest list. They could clash and spoil everyone's good time.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There are ample opportunities around you today, but there is a chance you might be oblivious to their presence. If you cannot recognize them, you'll have only yourself to blame.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

It's important that you treat everyone you're involved with today on equal terms. Don't kowtow to the big shots while disrespectfully patronizing the little guys.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Financial trends could be a trifle unstable today. In situations where you come out ahead, make certain you don't do things that might nullify your gains.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be careful today that you don't put yourself in a position where you are operating against your better judgment and best interests. You could be your own worst enemy.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your luck has its limitations today, so don't press it too far, especially in situations where you think it can be used as a substitute for honest effort.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you do not dominate events today, they will end up dominating you. Have a game plan that makes sense and stick to it, or else you may be buffeted about.
