RESCUED AIRMAN TELLS ABOUT HIS PLUNGE INTO SEA

Describes Experience Clinging To Plane During Heavy Seas

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 14.—(A.P.)—Swathed in bandages and weak from exhaustion, Capt. Garay of the Honduran army air corps was brought into Savannah yesterday morning after clinging for 35 hours to the tail of his disabled plane in a choppy sea 16 miles off Cape Lookout, N. C.

With him aboard the American small line steamer Biboco which rescued him at 10:30 A. M., Tuesday morning, came the wrecked monoplane in which he left New York Sunday afternoon on an attempted non-stop flight to Honduras.

While in port yesterday morning, Garay told a dramatic story of his unsuccessful flight, forced descent into the sea, and his rescue.

"I left New York about five o'clock in the afternoon for a non-stop solo flight to Tegucigalpa, Honduras," he said. "My plane was a Bellanca equipped for long distance flying. I flew straight down to Cape May, then to Suffolk, and south to Bellhaven and thence by Wilmington, N. C.

"At this stage of the flight, winds became so strong I had to fly different levels to see if I could avoid bad weather. I aimed at 10,000 feet, but when I reached 9,000 feet I realized the speed I was getting out of the plane, slowed down by the bad weather, was not sufficient to enable me to reach my goal.

"I kept my head, and by the time I passed the coast, I was able to know my position. I knew what I was doing and I prepared my ship for an ocean landing."

Capt. Garay said he had experimented extensively in the methods of bringing a land ship down on water, and that little damage was done by his forced descent.

"After landing," he continued, "I found I could not get the door open and I had to break a window in the plane. The wind was blowing 50 miles an hour and as I broke the window, fragments of glass were blown into the cabin, cutting my face and hands."

"Blood from the gashes was sprayed on the tail of the plane 20 feet away by the wind."

Along the choppy sea, Capt. Garay kept the plane afloat by releasing gasoline from the tanks, which when empty acted as buoys. He stood on the tail, through the remainder of the night, all day Monday and Monday night. To make certain he would not be blown off by the wind, he ripped

Dixie Governors Hold Destiny Of Crop Suggestion

Chairman Stone of the board and Carl Williams, cotton member, promised every co-operation in carrying out the proposal, but emphasized that the plan's success depended entirely upon the attitude of the 14 governors to whom it was addressed.

They predicted a gain of millions of dollars in increased prices if the plan goes through. This in addition to other big savings by reason of a smaller crop to cultivate and the ultimate effect on future markets.

"It is up to the people of the South," said Williams, "if they want to accept a drastic remedy for this situation."

Meanwhile, Governors Carlton, of Florida, Russell, of Georgia, Miller, of Alabama, and Murray, of Mississippi, were members of the plan's practicability.

Murray, while saying he would join the movement said "You can't enforce it with the entire cotton crop. Some farmers would even resist it."

Carlton said cotton growers in Florida had lost a third of the crop were destroyed, but saw no way of inducing such action.

Georgia, said Russell, is willing to co-operate in any feasible plan but to him the board's plan seemed impractical.

Alabama's governor, Miller, termed the proposal "unwise, un-sound and impracticable."

To these expressions was added a telegram from Governor Bilbo to the cotton state governors, labeling the flowing under of every third row an "economical waste" and urging the adoption of his own plan of simply leaving the third row unripped.

His telegram concluded: "If we want to save the cotton farmers and the South from bankruptcy, heroic methods must be applied and whatever is done must be done quickly otherwise our distress is inevitable with five-cent cotton."

EXPLOSION KILLS 27

HONG KONG, Aug. 14.—(A.P.)—A terrific explosion of 10 tons of gunpowder stored underground killed 27 persons, injured many others and destroyed much property at Macao, Portuguese colony, near here yesterday. The blast was ascribed to spontaneous combustion.

A square of covering from the fuselage and worked himself partly inside the tail.

Officers of the Biboco said they found him thus when they found the ship about 10:30 Tuesday morning.

TORCH MURDER IS SOLVED AS 3 MEN CONFESS

crowd against possible mob violence.

Crowds of infuriated citizens gathered about the jail, here and at Ann Arbor, and it was with extreme difficulty that officials prevented the men being torn from them.

Crowds broke through the police lines as the men were being taken from the jail at Ann Arbor to the courthouse and stripped the clothes partly off one of the prisoners.

On another occasion police were forced to discharge tear gas into the threatening mass of late teenagers.

The slayers, David Thomas, negro, Fred Smith and Frank Oliver, said they shot the young people to death to cover up traces of a robbery.

The arrest of the suspects came early yesterday after a night of frenzied search. It started with the finding of a gun, a .38 calibre pistol, which was turned over to Chief of Police Southward of Ypsilanti, by a negro by the name of Edna Smith and another.

The gun was taken to Detroit, examined by a ballistic expert who determined that it was the same weapon from which a bullet found in the body of one of the victims was fired.

Hurrying back to Ypsilanti, police lay in wait for Smith and his negro companion who were seized at dawn, Smith at his rooming house and the negro at his home.

Thomas, questioned first, readily admitted the gun was his and after severe questioning told his version of the killing, and gave information that led to the arrest of Oliver.

The slayers, he said, drove to Milan, near here, intent on holding up a gambling house, but found the place closed. They started back to Ypsilanti and passed the car containing the four young people parked on the road.

It was decided to hold up the youths but after they had taken a few cents from the victims at the point of guns, Smith found that he knew one of them, 16-year-old Harry Lee.

According to Thomas, Smith pulled one of the girls, Anna May Harrison, 17, from the car and began threatening and abusing her. Later at their record-breaking trial, it was testified, Smith assaulted the girl.

Despite the girl's pleas, Thomas said, Smith then shot her through the head and killed the others, Vivian Gold, Thomas Wheatley, and Lee, in the same manner.

After a hasty consultation, it was decided to cremate the victims, and the robber trio got into their car and drove to a filling station near Ypsilanti for a supply of gasoline.

Returning, one of them got into their victims' car and drove about six miles along an isolated road with the bodies closely followed by his accomplices.

Here the funeral pyre was lighted. Their deed accomplished, the men returned to Ypsilanti only to be ferreted out within 48 hours by science's latest contribution to the never-ending war on crime—ballistics.

The three confessed killers sentenced to life imprisonment in the Michigan branch prison at Marquette, were to spend the night in the state prison at Jackson, 28 miles from here. Each was sentenced on four charges of murder, the life sentences not to run concurrently.

Sentencing to life terms on four murder charges means the slayers will not be eligible for parole during their life time. Sentencing on a single charge might have brought parole after 20 to 25 years in prison.

In passing sentence, Judge

CARLTON ASKS THAT COUNTIES USE ECONOMY

tax on power, gas and telephone, will produce approximately $200,000. This tax, however, cannot be collected before March 15, 1932. It is estimated the chain store tax will produce $200,000. This will, however, probably be the subject of litigation and it is speculative as to what amount, if any, will be derived from this source. The documentary tax will probably produce $500,000 a year. Taking into account all of the above sources of revenue we cannot anticipate more than $4,000,000 for the next year.

"The intangible tax will produce around $250,000 a year. This law, however, becomes effective Jan. 1, 1932, and the tax will not be realized until the following year. The inheritance tax will eventually produce around $2,000,000 a year. Since the estates, however, have five years in which to pay such tax we cannot count on any revenue from this source for the first year.

"The inheritance tax is one of the state's constructive measures of the tax situation. It was originally brought to the state around $2,000,000 a year without imposing a dollar's additional tax upon the taxpayers. It keeps in our state the inheritance tax which has heretofore gone to the federal government. While the benefits to be derived from this measure based upon constitutional amendment proposed two years ago will not come to this administration, it will help relieve the burden of taxes when the proceeds do come in.

"Cuts have been made in the state's activities from 10 to 20 percent. If the counties, which have much larger opportunities for reductions, would make similar cuts the taxpayers' burden would be greatly relieved.

"It should be borne in mind that the bulk of the revenues provided by the Legislature has gone to the relief of the counties, making it possible for the counties to meet their obligations for schools, for debts and at the same time reduce the general property tax.

"The $6,700,000 year gas tax is being sent back to the counties for road debts and local road construction and maintenance. If these monies were raised by general levy it would be equivalent to at least 15 mills, one mill producing $400,000.

"Then $7,500,000 will be sent back for the operation of the schools. If this amount were raised by general levy it would require nearly 20 mills.

"Without this relief bond defaults would be multiplied in the state to a hopeless degree. The schools in the majority of the counties would operate for part time only and the general property tax would be much higher.

"If the counties do not show a reduction in taxes because of accumulated financial indebtedness, current expenses, or other reasons, just imagine how much the tax would be without these new sources of revenue helping to carry the county burden."

Sample said: "If I were to express my feelings on this occasion, I feel I would be compelled to say that I feel like I am in the presence of friends. I don't wonder that the crowd is howling for vengeance. If they had listened to this testimony that we have had to listen to to give these parties their rights under the laws of the state, I am afraid they would not be as civil as they are."

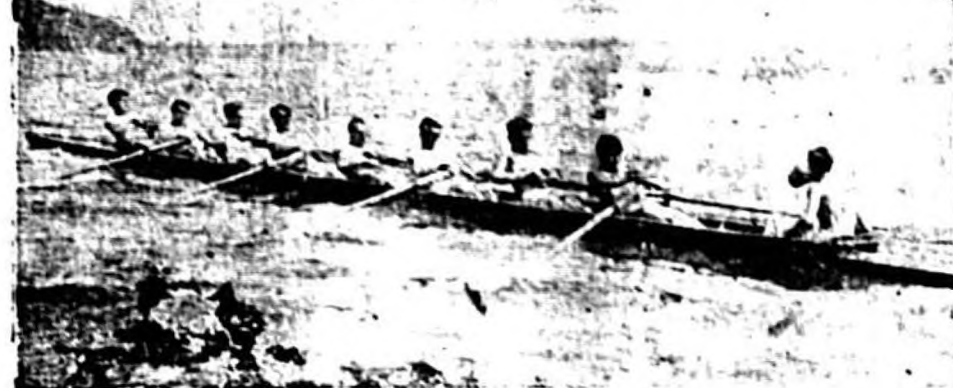

"There is a law of civilization that we must not indulge the law. The law must take its course. The people of the state of Michigan have declared that the penalty for this crime is life imprisonment."

Unnecessary Expense

Former President Coolidge lived up to his name of "Silent Cal" also "Cautious Cal" when he arrived in New York the other day to attend the regular monthly directors meeting of a well known life insurance company. Spotted by an inquisitive reporter as he attempted to slip through the crowd unnoticed at the Grand Central Station, the former President was somewhat disconcerted and extremely uncommunicative when the usual interrogation began.

Coming from no less an authority than a former White House physician, the report that Mr. Coolidge might be available for another Republican presidential nomination, naturally was worthy of a question or two from any self-respecting reporter, and, it seems to us, worthy of an answer also. But even before the question could be fully propounded, Mr. Coolidge, tightening his already thin lips and quickening his step, replied, "Nothing to say."

So it was, when the question was finally completed and had taken the form of "four percent beer," Mr. Coolidge still had nothing to say. That, of course, ended the interview, which was in reality just what Mr. Coolidge wanted. Even the most persistent reporter could not get an interview out of a Sphinx, nor a statement from a mummy.

We assume from this attitude of the former president, however, that he is not considering very seriously the suggestion of his availability for any further political office holding. Were he thinking of again running for the presidency, he would be more civil to reporters. Seeking public office, one's most important, and sometimes most difficult task is getting one's views properly before the public. Easy and cordial is the best method naturally provides a most convenient method.

It would not have been necessary for Mr. Coolidge to declare at this time his desires regarding the Republican nomination. Had he not fully made up his mind, or was the time for such an announcement regarded as premature, it would have been easy enough for him to have told the reporter that he would let him know later.

If he did not care to have his views on prohibition battered about first by professional "wets" and then by professional "drys", in answer to the four per cent beer question, he could have answered, "Ask me another". He might have, in other words, accorded the reporter the courtesy of an interview on some other subject. What a former president thinks regarding business, the Philippine island situation, the Hoover moratorium, or the Cuban revolution is a matter of general public interest.

And civility is as important in a former president, even toward a reporter, as in anyone else.

Public Building Under Way

Very considerable attention has been given recently to the subject of delayed construction of public buildings as provided for by various acts of Congress, where provision was made and appropriations voted for such buildings, but the government of necessary sites on which Federal buildings should be erected.

There has been a great deal of criticism—some justifiable and some not—because of the beginning actual construction work, much of this criticism being due to the fact that the Congress made numerous and generous appropriations in order to give employment to hundreds of thousands out of work. Delay in beginning construction has deferred employment of many thousands who are unemployed and practically without funds with which to supply themselves and their families with the necessities of life and living.

Senator Fletcher recently took it upon himself to criticize those charged with getting this Federal building work started, contending that they were delaying the preliminary plans and authorization for such work as proposed. Later, the senior Florida senator was joined in protest of conditions by Senator Bingham of Connecticut, and others. These protests, apparently, are bringing desired results.

Recently, President Hoover assigned to himself the task of personally finding out the true conditions pertaining to Federal building construction as authorized by the Congress. As recently as Tuesday of last week the President, in an oral statement, set forth that by Autumn public building projects administered by the Treasury Department, totaling $300,000,000 in value will be under contract. This statement was based on a report the President had requested from the Treasury Department, and which report was made public, along with the President's statement. In that report are included Federal building projects in Jacksonville and in other Florida cities.

Under the treasury report heading of "Projects where sites have been acquired and plans partially completed," is included the Federal building to be erected in this city and to be used for postoffice, Federal court and other government purposes. As stated in the report, $2,000,000 is the amount appropriated for this project. The other Jacksonville building specified in the report is the parcel post building to be erected near the Union Station and for which appropriation have been thoroughly investigated if the investigation requires the services of a committee and a paid clerk for 44 days.

We also find such interesting public trusts and payroll padings as "Custodian of Stamps," 60 days, at $6; "Typewriter Mechanic," 33 days, at $6; "Bill Binder," 58 days, at $6; "Index Supervisor," 30 days, at $6; "General Bailiff," 53 days, at $6.

It is rather late, we know, by referring to this scandalous waste of the people's money at this time—but the great Florida public should bear the facts in mind until next spring. The attaché graft should figure prominently in the demands made by the voters upon candidates for the next Legislature.

Michigan Points The Way

The state of Michigan has probably established a record, and has certainly set a splendid example to other states of this country, for the prompt apprehension of criminals and the expeditious carrying out of justice.

The general public had hardly been informed of the gruesome details concerning a highway robbery on a lonely road near Ann Arbor which resulted in the murder of two young couples and the cremation of their bodies in their gasoline-soaked automobile, when they were reading of the arrest of three men charged with the crime, of their confession and sentence to life imprisonment.

Finding practically no clues around the funeral pyre, the officers with this handicap soon discovered a gun believed to have been connected with the crime, took it to a ballistics expert in Detroit, proved their theory, returned, arrested the suspects, and obtained a confession from them within forty-eight hours after the murders were committed. Arraignment, sentencing, incarceration followed within three hours.

It is probable that most crimes committed in the United States are no more difficult of solution than this one. Of the dozens of Vivian Gordon, Starr Faithfull, Arnold Rothstein cases degrading this country every year, it is probable that not a single one of them offers any more puzzling complexities than this Michigan tragedy. No solution is ever found for them, no suspect ever convicted, no slayer ever punished, not because the "perfect crime" has been encountered, but because the case involves some "higher up", some friend of the "special investigator", or some important "pay off man".

We recognize that possibly once in the lifetime of any law enforcement officer, a crime might be met in which some "master mind" has so effectually covered his steps and eliminated clues as to defy solution, but this is not the rule. Even the most careful criminal leaves some finger print or other convincing evidence.

Wherever crime persists unsolved, there's apt to be more to it than the usual "mystery".

UNCONSCIONABLE EXTRAVAGANCE
TAMPA TRIBUNE

The people of Florida are going to do considerable thinking between now and June, next year. They are going to think about the doings and results of the late Legislature, the individual performances of the members representing their particular county. They are going to make up their minds about certain things and most of them will have their minds made up before the candidates for the next Legislature begin soliciting their votes. As a result of this mental makeup, they are going to insist that these candidates declare themselves on certain matters, so that they will not be fooled again when some of these candidates are elected and begin functioning in Tallahassee.

One of the things the people of Florida are going to insist upon, if we mistake not their present temper, is that there be no repetition, at the next session, of the shameful and indefensible attaché payroll of the late session. The unreasonable extent and amount of extravagance of that payroll was a scandal, and a scandal which should never again be thrust under the noses of the taxpayers of Florida.

The official list of employees of both houses during the recent session is a revelation of unconscionable waste of public funds.

The Senate employed 120 employees, a total of 120—more than one for each Senator. The House had 125 employees and 25 payroll of these attaches was $98,641.08—or nearly $1,000 a day for the 100 days of the three sessions. A few of them drew $4 a day—none less than that—but practically all got $6 a day, the same pay as the members received.

Names and jobs of these employees of the Legislature are given in the official list. The jobs included about everything that extravagance could invent. It was common knowledge in Tallahassee that not more than half these attaches were kept regularly at work. There wasn't enough for all of them to do.

We find from the list that this army included, besides the regular elective attaches, who have specified jobs and who are employed at every session, a host of specially appointed clerks, stenographers, typists, messengers, clerks, for whose continuous services there couldn't possibly have been a demand. Among these we note, a long list of "verifiers," whatever they are—but whatever they are, they get $6 a day for "verifying." Committees had clerks, assistant clerks, stenographers, messengers, bailiffs, conference men, and some of them had "helpers" for these hard-working helpers in the legislative vine.

One industrial body was employed for 14 days, at the usual $6 per day, of the committee investigating the "Mackay" case. We don't know how many of these were kept at work.

SENATE RECEIVES FULL AUTHORITY TO PROBE CANNON

Legal Obstacle Is Removed From Path Of Quiz Committee

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(A.P.)—The legal obstacle that Bishop James Cannon, Jr., recently placed in the way of the Senate campaign funds committee's inquiry into complaints he violated the federal corrupt practices act in 1928, was removed yesterday.

Justice Cox in the District of Columbia supreme court dismissed the Southern Methodist churchman's petition for an order restraining the committee from further investigation into his political activities.

Unless some action is taken against Bishop Cannon soon, he cannot be prosecuted on charges of violating laws in 1928, when he threw all his influence against Alfred E. Smith, Democratic nominee. The statute of limitations expires in September, although there is some question as to the exact date.

In the absence of the bishop, who sailed several weeks ago for Europe, his attorneys, R. H. McNeill and H. W. Winburn, argued yesterday that the Senate investigation was a persecution and

Second Marriages Discovered To Be As Happy As First

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(A.P.)—Ninety-six students at the summer sessions of teachers' college, Columbia university, who have been studying matrimonial failures, find divorces have a four-to-five chance of leaving a successful second marriage.

Dr. Paul Popenoe, head of the Los Angeles family relations institute, which conducted the course in "social problems of the family," admitted the findings showed the error of his belief that these people who did not get along in a first marriage would also make a failure of the second.

"It seems," he conceded, "that young people can be so shaken up by a divorce and a broken home that they will make concessions to a second husband or wife that they would not have made to the first. They have learned that marriage takes cooperation."

A study of case histories, he explained, revealed that 80 percent of second marriages were successful. And by successful he meant they lasted five years or more.

The most recent figures on divorce, he said, show the greatest danger of broken homes occurs in the second and third years of marriage. The rate drops slightly after eight years and after 10 years most of the danger is passed.

Later, Tinkham repeated some of the assertions in a statement to the press. Bishop Cannon recently sued him for $500,000 charging libel.

Chairman Nye said recently that he planned an early hearing on the Cannon case.

Rehabilitation Projects At University Of Florida Effected During Summer

By FANK R. WRIGHT
GAINESVILLE, Aug. 12. — Many rehabilitation projects, looking to more efficient and economical operation, and tending toward general improvement of the University of Florida buildings and grounds, have been carried on this year by the maintenance department. In this program of accomplishment, Business Manager Klein H. Graham has been an active figure, and the state university campus will be more attractive than ever when the large influx of students reach Gatorland next month for the opening of the academic year 1931-32.

Valuable help was rendered by the School of Agriculture, Rudolph Weaver, director; Prof. A. B. Merritt, head of the department of landscape design; R. T. Irving, superintendent of buildings; Prof. Joseph Wells, head of the department of electrical engineering; Stanley Johnson, assistant superintendent and custodian of property; C. H. Lancaster, in charge of the central heating plant; C. E. Nelson, superintendent of grounds, and J. H. Buchanan, painter.

Installation of 35 white way posts, and other improvements in campus lighting, possible under a new method of handling electricity, is an improvement of prime importance. Combining of the telephone switchboards in Language Hall and the Experiment Station to a central board now located in the auditorium, is an economical move. Installation of telephones will effect a saving in close rental. Several electric drinking fountains have been placed in instructional buildings, and an electric dumbwaiter in the cafeteria is now being installed.

Completion of the $60,000 modern, fireproof infirmary, so badly needed at the university, permitted the moving of the north half of the old infirmary building to a point south of the swimming pool amid a setting of trees and bamboo, where it will be utilized by the department of athletics and for "P" Club quarters. The south portion of the old building was dismantled, and has been erected near the central heating plant for use of the main building department as headquarters for plumbers, carpenters and painters. Store-room facilities have been provided for lumber and equipment, enabling the unsightly old garage building near Benton Engineering Hall to be dismantled and the material used for building additional space near the maintenance building. Centralizing of this department of university activity at a point immediately south of, and near the central heating plant, effects a much desired condition. Trucks will be housed and gasoline station maintained here.

Completion of a temporary road leading to the rear entrance of the new infirmary has made possible a park development in this part of the campus. Planting of shrubbery, improvements in walks and roads, and considerable attention to drainage, has brought much noticeable enhancement of the campus.

The west side of the north-south road leading past the new infirmary will be entirely cleared with the removal next week of the delictian's cottage to a point adjoining east of the barracks. For the present the barracks can not be removed to more completely beautify this area of the campus, though the planting of bamboo and shrubbery has helped materially.

An economic move was effected with the installation of lines to furnish heat for cooking as well as supplying hot water for the infirmary from the central heating plant—elimination of a moccasin breeding area, and opportunities for ground improvements are possible under this change, which relegated the old Commons boiler to emergency use only. The old central heating plant near the College of Engineering has been disposed of in the centralization, and the space rehabilitated and made available for relieving congestion in the shops and other departments of the college. A cement road has been built in the area in front of the new shop, between Benton Hall and the Mechanical Engineering Building.

Remodelling of a portion of the basement of Language Hall into needed quarters for University Administration, places student body offices for the coming year in Science Hall, formerly occupied by the maintenance department. More efficiency is contemplated in the enlargement and improvement of the book store and mailing room.

A two-inch surface of clay has been placed on the artillery field which will be used for R. O. T. C. parades and polo grounds. This area has been vastly improved. An additional tennis court was just recently completed paralleling the other concrete courts.

Shrubbery has been planted on the barren east and west side slopes of the stadium, and work carried on to better the roadways and drainage in the vicinity of "Florida Field."

Among marked improvements made in several of the buildings, is the enlargement of the orchestra pit in the auditorium, and the placing of the organ console on an electric elevator in this pit. The orchestra pit was always unsatisfactory and never used. Disappearing footlights have also been installed. Storage rooms have been remodeled into studio and dressing rooms.

Much needed storage space was obtained by partitioning off an area under the main auditorium, putting in a cement floor, and placing an entrance from the wood side.

The ship's bell from the dismantled U. S. S. Florida has been installed atop the Chemistry-Pharmacy building to announce class hours and convocations.

A definite policy as to parking has been adopted, and rules established to cover proper placing of vehicles on the campus.

into the king's lap. "Where are you going?" the woman called, as the Nomy-Gnomes man about and about excitedly. "We want to make a lot of noise," the Nomy-Gnomes told the woman. "We want to wake, to wake him up." They pointed to King Org, who by this time was puffing loudly and regularly, a sign that he was fast asleep. The woman walked to the edge of the table. "Come here," she said firmly. The Nomy-Gnomes sat down close by, their little legs dangling over the edge. "The king is sure to think of a way to make you grow. Please be patient." Lucky shook his head. "I'm sure he's already forgotten all about us. He's fast asleep." "A good sleep always clears the head," the little woman explained. "When he wakes up he will be able to think more clearly." Just then the king awakened with a start. "What's this?" he said, as he picked up the orange which had rolled into his lap. Looking up at the woman, he noticed the two tiny chaps. "Oh, he," he shouted excitedly. For he had suddenly remembered the matter in hand. "I have been thinking that orange juice," and he looked at the piece of fruit in his hand. "Will help them grow. At any rate, we will feed it to them until it does."

Future members of New York's "finest" are pictured above as they passed in review before Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney and other high officers of the department. They are students at the famous Police Academy, Pelham, N. Y., and when their training is completed they will take up their work as police officers of the country's largest city.

Three little Elk hounds all in a row, and the one in the center has been selected as the mascot of the new giant grigible, Akron, now undergoing final preparations at Akron, Ohio. The mascot will be presented to the commander of the Akron by Scandinavian residents of New York City.

Gandhi Decides He Won't Attend London Parley

The Mahatma said he also was influenced by the fact that the present viceroy, Lord Willingdon, refused to appoint an impartial tribunal to investigate alleged violations of the pact.

Gandhi informed The Associated Press that yesterday's decision does not mean his campaign of civil disobedience will be renewed immediately. It is certain, however, that he will not consider the decisions of the impending conference binding upon his followers, and it is considered likely that if the conference fails to grant the principal Nationalist demands, the Mahatma will sound the call for a new fight against England.

Such a movement, many observers believe, would be more bitter and widespread than any in the past.

When the news of yesterday's action got abroad, street crowds, undaunted by drizzling rain, took part in demonstrations. The Mahatma came outside and walked up and down briskly for an hour in order to refresh himself. He looked fatigued.

"I need not say what a great blow it has been to me that I am not to go to London," he said. "I know what it will mean to Lord Irwin and I know also what a severe disappointment it will be to my numerous friends in England, but the decision not to go became inevitable. I had hoped against hope justice would be done, even at the eleventh hour."

LONDON, Aug. 14.—(A.P.)—Profound regret was expressed last night in many quarters here over advice from Bombay that Mahatma Gandhi was not to participate in the second Indian round table conference.

There was no disposition to minimize the effect of the absence of Indian and Nationalist leaders at the resumed negotiations. When the news first reached London some asked whether it would be worth while to hold the conference without the Indian Nationalists.

Although no formal statement was made, it was known the official view was that the conference must be held.

Many British statements felt that Indian firmness was experienced by the Mahatma. "Final decisions" are mentioned but definitely final and there is the possibility that before the conference finished its labor the conference in the Indian independence.

TRUCE EFFORT THOUGHT BEING MADE IN CUBA

The conferences had one specific result up to last night. Acting on the president's suggestion, it was said, Colonel Amiel issued an edict ordering promptly to all insurgents who give up arms within 24 hours.

After his talk with the chief executive, Colonel Amiel told newspapermen troops had climbed with insurgents 22 times since the revolution started, with "good fortune" for the government forces. It was not made known which rebel leader the president expected to meet. Insurgent headquarters in Havana, however, indicated that Col. Carlos Menditea and Col. Roberto Mendez Puente, nationalistic abolitionists, were operating there. It was said, also, that Menditea might be empowered to speak for Gen. Mario G. Menocal, opposition leader, who is believed to be located in Oriente and Mariano Miguel Gomez, former mayor of Havana, should occasion arise for peace negotiations.

All information as to the actual progress of the truce effort was fragmentary, however. It was not known, even, how long he intends to stay.

Only from Pinar del Rio province, where most of the fighting has taken place, did reports come yesterday of fresh conflict. These were rumors.

Acting on information that General Menocal is not in Oriente, but in the far extremes of the eastern province, Senator Wilfredo Hernandez, close friend of President Machado who had taken the role of publisher, set out for the section yesterday with other congressmen, hoping to meet Menocal.

Orlando Bank Given Freedom By Judge Koonce With

Reports from Occidente yesterday said troops, including two artillery and one machine gun detachments, were converging on 500 rebels said to have been located by scouts. The place of expected action was not revealed.

Because of disorganization attendant on the revolution, the House of Representatives yesterday afternoon agreed to suspend indefinitely discussion of constitutional reform measures now before it.

Three representatives have been imprisoned for alleged insurrectionist activities and others of the group of 22 "orthodox conservatives," opponents of President Machado's regime, are reported in the field with insurgent forces.

During yesterday's brief session, Dr. Carmelo Urquiza, leader of the majority faction, endorsed Gen. Francisco Peraza, aged figure in four revolutions in Cuba, who died Tuesday in a conflict near Los Palacios, Pinar del Rio province.

Cuban newspapers are giving front page play to editorials printed in United States newspapers maintaining that the American government should not intervene in the revolution, and to Washington dispatches characterizing the state department's policy, as one of "hands off."

King Org bleeps on a thought.

King Org clasped and unclasped his hands. "Can I give them something to make them grow?" he said, repeating the woman's question. Then looking about him he said, "Guess I'll sit down and think it over."

The woman who kept house for the king at the peal castle, stretched out her arms and said something that sounded like "pinks," to the two little Nomy-Gnomes who were resting against a fruit bowl on the center of a large table—but of course, they weren't sure.

Instantly a rustling green spray arose from nowhere. And when the woman had stretched her hands when she had uttered those magic words, they were now resting on the back of the chair.

"The queen," she suggested to the king. And she pushed the orange nearer to him so he wouldn't be able to exert himself.

King Org sat down thoughtfully. "Let me see," he said, as he stretched out his legs. "Let me see," he repeated softly, as he moved his hands and rested his head on the arms of the chair.

"Let me see," he started to say the third time, but before he had stretched his legs were shot, and another instant he was asleep.

King and Lucky sprung to their feet. If they had been taller they could have seen the fruit bowl. What they had seen was a small green woman with a crown and a wand, who was sitting on the back of the chair.

Bids Are Asked For Private Operation Of Muscle Shoals

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14. (A.P.)—Bids for private leasing and operating of Muscle Shoals were invited yesterday from 135 leading chemical, farm industrial and power enterprises by the Muscle Shoals commission. They are to be submitted by Sept. 1.

Among those from whom offers were asked were the Ford Motor Company, the Allied Chemical & Dye Company, the General Electric Company, and three farm organizations including the National Grange, the Farmers Educational & Cooperative Union of America and the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Col. Joseph L. McMullen, one of the three army officers appointed by President Hoover on the commission, said any bid which promised to devote the Muscle Shoals project to agriculture in the most effective way would be the most acceptable to the commission.

McMullen indicated that in some cases the bids was satisfactory to the commission for recommendation to President Hoover and ultimately to Congress, an effort would be made by the commission to effect a compromise.

In this way, he said, a satisfactory arrangement might be worked out for disposing of the project. He added that anyone aside from those from whom bids were solicited might submit a proposal.

The requested proposals were expected to take in the entire project, including up-river and down-river developments.

Legalized Beer Idea To Help Unemployed Is Handed Ridicule

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14. (A.P.)—A claim that legalizing beer would increase employment was ridiculed yesterday by Dr. Eugene L. Crawford, secretary of the board of temperance and social service of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Quoting August A. Busch of the Anheuser-Busch company as contending such action would give employment to 1,250,000 persons, Dr. Crawford said in a statement that Busch "was more modest than he realized since the amount of new employment which might be affected would probably surpass that number."

"Although," he added, "probably not even Mr. Busch would wish to see greater activity among the undertakers, the grave diggers, the insane asylum guards, the poor farm employes, the hangmen, the penitentiary wardens and employes and directors of soup kitchens."

Industry Leaders Hit For Not Aiding In Present Crisis

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 14. (A.P.)—The executive committee of the American Federation of Labor, in a statement on unemployment yesterday, accused the managers and owners of industry of "standing impotent and helpless in the midst of all the existing distress."

Expressing the opinion that the president of the United States should assemble a national conference of representatives of labor and industry, the committee, in a long statement, said the subject in a direct way.

"An irresistible demand for work," the statement said, "had been created by the cry of distress."

The executive committee recommended a five-day week, six-hour day with maintenance of the same wage scale and immediate federal and municipal construction programs to alleviate unemployment distress.

Texas Adopts Bill Curbing Excessive Production Of Oil

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 14. (A.P.)— Acting under the spur of Gov. Ross S. Sterling's threat to declare martial law and halt oil production if legislation curbing the prolific East Texas field was not enacted, the Texas Legislature late yesterday adopted a conservation bill by an overwhelming vote.

The new rich East Texas field generally is credited in oil circles with major responsibility for over-production which has hammered mid-continent crude prices down to a top of 52 cents a barrel.

Coinciding with the passage of the conservation bill, termed "satisfactory" by Governor Sterling's advisers, came the first definite sign of success in the fight of Gov. W. H. Murray of Oklahoma for a price of a dollar a barrel in that State.

Eight days after Governor Murray declared martial law and closed flush wells in Oklahoma, a refinery company said it was in need of crude and would pay $1 a barrel to obtain it from the clamped down wells. Rex H. Winget, general manager of the Cushing Refining and Gasoline Company, made the offer at Oklahoma City.

Governor Murray said to expect other companies to make similar offers within a week, and Winget he was leaving for Texas today and asked the oil man to return to his office Monday.

Independent operators of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas agitating a production "strike" for higher prices, in many instances have voluntarily closed their wells.

The conservation bill as passed by the Texas Legislature was a compromise measure arrived at in an all night session of the free conference committee meeting of the House and Senate.

Hint Made That "Legs" Diamond Will Beat "Rap"

Attorney Arthur Schwartz, who prosecuted Diamond, laughed at all the reports.

The youthful prosecutor who has just passed his twenty-seventh birthday said the rumblings were false bravado coming from a terrified group.

He stopped long enough in his work of hiding up a Jones law case against Diamond to show what a corner the man from the Catskills is in.

"Just because 'Legs' is out on bail pending his appeal, don't think we aren't keeping our eyes on him," the prosecutor said. "He's being watched day and night. The minute he tries to engage in a little of his old beer or narcotics business, we'll behind his bail and put him behind bars at once."

"We aren't worrying about any defense fund and neither are we losing any sleep over the possibility of Diamond slipping away. In the first place he's being watched, so he couldn't go far. In the second place he's actually at liberty on $57,000 bail, $15,000 on the prohibition case, $10,000 on an old narcotics case and $32,000 on state banks. And he's not likely to sneeze at that amount."

The attempt to add many more years to the sentence by prosecuting "Legs" under the Jones law was the idea of Federal Judge Richard J. Hopkins of Kansas who sentenced Diamond Tuesday.

Yesterday morning Mr. Schwartz started to marshal his evidence. He said it probably would be a month before he would be ready to present the case to the grand jury.

Mr. Schwartz himself said he considers the conviction important not because it has broken the grip on a large section of the state held by a man who assertedly enforced his autocratic edicts with hot peppers and revolvers, but rather because Diamond was a symbol.

"We have shown, I believe, that the federal government is stronger than what Diamond typifies—the gangster with his big defenses, funds, their attempts at intimidation and their wealth of contacts and influence."
