Sanford Man Nabbed In Rape; Another Suspect

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

A 22-year-old Sanford man, one of two who allegedly raped a 20-year-old Winter Park woman last month, was being held today in the Seminole County jail in lieu of $8,000 bond, charged with sexual battery.

Assistant Sanford Police Chief Herb Shea said investigators will be reviewing with prosecutors from the State Attorney's Office the woman's allegations against the second man, a 48-year-old Sanford resident, to determine if he will also be charged in connection with the May 19 assault. Shea said the evidence may not support the woman's claim against the second man.

According to a Sanford police report, the woman had accepted a ride from the pair at the Delux Bar on 18th Street at Southwest Road in Sanford at about 10:30 p.m. The second suspect allegedly drove to a field behind Goldsboro Elementary School, 1301 W. 16th St., Sanford.

There the passenger, the man who has been arrested, slapped the victim in the face and forced her to take off her clothes, the report said.

He forced her out of the car and made her perform oral sex and then he raped her, the report said. He took $50 from her pants and then the driver of the car raped her, the report said.

After the woman was allowed to dress the three drove to 13th Street at Olive Avenue in Sanford where the passenger got out and the driver offered to take the woman to Winter Park.

When he stopped at a traffic light on U.S. Highway 17-92 at state Road 419 south of Sanford, the woman jumped out of the car and ran to a nearby Handy Way store and called police, the report said.

The woman reportedly identified the man who has been arrested, Shea said.

Lorenzo Everett, 22, of 75 Lake Monroe Terrace, a waiter, was arrested at his home at 9:38 a.m. Tuesday.

Asphalt Plant Plan Opposed

By Rick Brunson
Herald Staff Writer

About 100 residents in the Country Club Manor subdivision in west Sanford are protesting the proposed construction of an asphalt plant near their homes, according to one homeowner.

Orlando Paving Co. wants to build the $3.5 million asphalt plant at 2150 Country Club Road on a 60-acre tract surrounded by the Lockhart and Country Club Manor subdivisions. A concrete plant and two food processing plants are also near the proposed site.

The property is owned by the Atlantic Land Co., a subsidiary of the Seaboard Coastline Railroad Co., and is zoned medium industrial district, according to Bette Sonnenberg, city building official.

Wayne Evans, executive vice president of Orlando Paving, said the company wants to buy the property from Atlantic but the sale depends on whether the plant is approved by the city.

Thursday, the city's Planning and Zoning Commission is scheduled to consider Orlando Paving's request to store petroleum at the site. The first hurdle in getting the plan approved. The meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. in the commission chambers at city hall.

Robert Barrett, of 137 Country

Club Circle, Sanford, says he and his neighbors have banded together to fight the plant. About 100 have signed a petition asking the P & Z board to deny the request, he said. The group has also hired an attorney to represent them, he said.

They are concerned that the fumes and smoke emitted from the plant could be hazardous and that the plant's presence will slash the value of their homes, Barrett said. He also said noise from the plant would be a nuisance.

"They're going to drop a bomb in the middle of the city," he said.

Barrett, whose home is about 400 feet from the proposed plant site, said he visited Orlando Paving's plant in Orlando Saturday and talked with residents within a half-mile of the factory.

He said the residents complained of foul-smelling fumes, with one man saying he could not go outside because the smoke aggravated his sinus condition.

Barrett also said the plant was surrounded with mounds of clay and sand, which he considered unsightly.

But Evans said the proposed plant would be "state of the art" with little noise and no smoke or

Safety First

Assistant Chief Herb Shea, Acting Chief Steve Harriott, and Sanford motorcycle patrolmen Andy Collazo, Dennis Whitmire and Rick Poovey. Meriwether said their work includes using radar to monitor motorists' speed in school zones.

Religious Right Backlash Feared By Father Who Beat Prayer Law

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An Alabama father who beat a state prayer-in-school law in the Supreme Court says he feels "vindicated" but fears the religious right will use the case to rally for a constitutional amendment on school prayer.

Ishmael Jaffree of Mobile, Ala., said Tuesday he was "ecstatic" about the 6-3 Supreme Court ruling striking down an Alabama law mandating a moment of silence for voluntary prayer in public schools.

Jaffree, a father of six, told a news conference in Mobile he "was never opposed to children praying. I was opposed to teachers leading children in prayer. ... Now I can tell my children that I helped maintain the integrity of the Constitution."

Prayer-in-school advocates across the country attacked the ruling Tuesday, though it left intact numerous state laws that simply call for a moment of silence during the school day when students may meditate, pray or do nothing.

Rep. Thomas Kindness, R-Ohio, sponsor of a school prayer bill, said the decision is an "opportunity for us to get more light into the fight" for a voluntary prayer amendment to the Constitution.

"Now I can tell my children that I helped maintain the integrity of the Constitution."

Moral Majority leader the Rev. Jerry Falwell called the high court "completely out of step with over 85 percent of the American people."

While Jaffree said, "I feel vindicated," he also expressed concern that "those who belong to the religious right will use this as a rallying cry for 'Let's have a new constitutional amendment.'"

In its ruling, the high court made a distinction between a simple moment of silence and the Alabama law, which Jaffree, an agnostic, challenged in May 1982 because he objected to his children being exposed to prayer at school.

"The legislative intent (of Alabama's law) to return prayer to the public schools is, of course, quite different from merely protecting every student's right to engage in voluntary prayer during an appropriate moment of silence during the school day," Justice John Paul Stevens said for the court.

Heat Wave Smothers State A 3rd Day

A three-day heat wave that caused at least one death in the state caused the mercury to reach 100 degrees in Sanford Tuesday, a record high for the date for the second day in a row.

Today's temperatures were expected to go even higher with the chance of thundershowers this afternoon bringing some relief.

The dry spell and the excessive heat have brought water usage in Sanford to 8.2 million gallons a day, but the city utility director, Paul Moore, said the city is still able to meet the demand and there are no restrictions at this time. "People should be practical and considerate of others in their use of water conserving where they can," he said.

Record highs for June 4 were set in 12 cities Tuesday. Lakeland reached a scaring 105 degrees, the hottest the central Florida city has ever gotten since weather records began.

It was 102 in Gainesville; 100 in Orlando and Hollywood; 99 in Fort Myers; 98 in Miami; 97 in Miami Beach, Apalachicola, and Pensacola; 95 in Fort Lauderdale and Daytona Beach.

Jacksonville also had a June 4th record high, hitting 100 for the third day in a row. The Duval County Medical Examiner's Office listed the late Monday death of Elaine Trauger, 42, as heat related.

Police reports say rescue workers found Trauger collapsed with no blood pressure and a body temperature of 108 degrees.

A high pressure air mass over the Gulf of Mexico is raising the heat. Forecasters say until it moves, the mass will create weak westerly winds that blow away normal cooling sea breezes.

It was 106 in Ocala and 102 in Tallahassee Tuesday.

Along the south Florida coast, there were few bathers bothering with the 85-degree water. On Fort Lauderdale beach, lifeguard B.J. Kearney said the crowds had been light.

"There's not much point in coming out here to cool off," he said.

A North Miami resident was saved from oven-like heat by an air conditioning repairman who fixed her unit.

Karen Thorburn said when the air conditioning isn't working, "you take five showers a day after you come home from work."

"You're happy to go to work," the accountant said.

But those workers not in offices suffered.

Bobby Lattimer stood under a work rack at Johnny's Auto and Trailer Service in Miami Tuesday. One hand held a gas-burning torch. He wore goggles and heavy work clothes. Sweat ran off him.

"I've got to wear the long sleeve shirt," he said. "You get

FBI Seeks 5th Suspect In Spy Ring

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The FBI is hunting for a fifth person believed to be a member of a family-and-friend operation accused of penetrating Navy security from coast to coast and passing secrets to the Soviets for 20 years, authorities say.

Law enforcement sources said Tuesday the FBI apparently knows the identity but not the whereabouts of a person known as "F," the code letter used by accused spy ring leader John Walker to identify an operation participant in letters to Soviet contacts.

Sources said other suspects also were being investigated and the case was far from closed.

FBI agents in Washington seeking to trace the scope of the conspiracy Tuesday sifted through thousands of documents seized from the homes of the four men already charged in the case.

Walker, 47, and his son Michael, 22, appeared at a brief arraignment Tuesday in U.S. District Court in Baltimore to enter pleas.

"Not guilty to all counts," Walker, a retired Navy warrant officer, told U.S. District Judge Alexander Harvey.

Walker then watched his son, a sailor from the aircraft carrier Nimitz, also plead guilty.

Charges Pending In Baby's Traffic Death

A 24-year-old Sanford man may be charged in connection with a Monday traffic accident that left a Winter Park infant dead.

Jennifer Cheney, 13 months, of 1921 Bonanza Court, died at 7:49 a.m. Tuesday at the Orlando Regional Medical Center after being helicoptered from Sanford's Central Florida Regional Hospital.

Also injured in the 9 p.m. Monday accident were the child's parents, Jack and Julia Cheney. Mrs. Cheney was in satisfactory condition today at CFRH and her husband was treated and released after the accident.

According to Sanford Assistant Police Chief Herb Shea, Michael Zarch, 24, of Mattie St., Sanford, lost control of his eastbound pickup truck and drove into the westbound lane of Airport Boulevard just west of 25th Street.

Zarch's truck hit Cheney's westbound Subaru, throwing it into a spin. The Subaru was then struck by a westbound van that could not stop, Shea said. The van was driven by Donald W. Nichols, 37, of 3206 Country Club Road, Sanford. He was not injured.

During the accident, Jennifer suffered a penetrating wound above the right eye.

Zarch received minor injuries when his truck overturned. If charges are filed, they probably will be against Zarch, Shea said.

Jennifer was in the car's front seat at the time of the accident but police do not know if she was in a child restraint seat as required by state law.

Failure to provide such a seat is punishable by fines like other traffic infractions.

Blue Cross Chief: Old Doesn't Begin At 65

NEW YORK (UPI) — Old age doesn't begin at 65 and government and health care policies should be changed to reflect the reality that the golden years are age 75 and up, says the president of the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Association.

Bernard Trensowski said that in 1935, when the Social Security Act was enacted, it was accurate and sensible to consider men and women age 65 and over elderly because the average life span in the United States was 64.

But, he said in a report on aging released Tuesday, the life span of Americans has risen to 74.9 years.

"Yet the image in our minds evoked by 'age 65' is still adorned with canes and hearing aids and little old ladies in tennis shoes, even as we are jostled on the streets and in the stores by energetic, vigorous men and women in a hurry — at age 75," Trensowski said.

"To be sure, the Congress has moved the mandatory retirement age up to 70. But the problem of bringing our laws and our practices in line with the reality — old age at 75, not 65 — are formidable, if not prohibitive."

The report was released Tuesday in conjunction with the 50th anniversary symposium of Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Greater New York.

The leader of the insurance "Blues," provider of health coverage for some 90 million Americans, urged symposium members to accept the new definition of elderly and trash the obsolete one.

The reality of old age starting at 75, not 65, he insisted, is essential to any discussion of "long-term care" — nursing home — needs of the nation's aging population.

"We will make more progress if we insist on realism," he said, noting that there are an estimated 27 million people over age 65 in the United States today; that there will be 30 million by 1990, and 35 million by the year 2,000.

"But because the survival rate is picking up speed the old gain as a percentage of the population. Those 85 and over are projected to be the fastest growing part of the older population.

"As a result, the need for long-term care is on the fast side of the growth curve. There are 1.3 million in nursing homes now. The estimated need is for an additional 600,000 nursing home beds by 1995."

Trensowski noted that thousands of hospital beds are lying idle nationwide as admission and occupancy rates decline while lists of people waiting to get into nursing homes keep growing. He suggested that some of those beds could be used for the aged.

Judge: No Money Motive Evidence In Von Bulow Trial

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — The judge in Claus von Bulow's attempted murder retrial has refused to allow the prosecution to introduce his wife's $75 million will as rebuttal evidence, saying the state failed to support a money motive.

Superior Court Judge Corinne Grande's ruling came after the defense rested its case without calling von Bulow or his teenage daughter, Cosima, to testify.

The state contends von Bulow twice tried to kill his wife, Martha "Sunny" von Bulow, with insulin injections to collect a $14 million share of the fortune and marry his former mistress.

Defense attorneys claimed Mrs. von Bulow was suicidal over her husband's affair and caused her own comas in 1979 and 1980 by mixing drugs and liquor at the family's Newport mansion. She remains comatose at a New York hospital.

Grande refused Tuesday to allow the state to introduce Mrs. von Bulow's will in this portion of the trial saying the state had not proved that financial gain was a motive in the case.

"There is not a suggestion anywhere at all that a financial gain impelled the defendant to take the action that the state says he took," she said, referring to the case the prosecution earlier presented.

Hotel Strike Widens

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Teamsters and other unions have vowed not to cross picket lines of 15,500 workers striking 55 hotels, causing mounds of garbage to pile up, halting most food deliveries and making it even harder for hotel guests to get taxis.

The strike by an estimated 15,500 workers, ranging from bellhops to bartenders, is the first in the 46-year history of the AFL-CIO Hotel and Motel Trade Council.

Marvin Bogner, a spokesman for the city's Health Department, said 18 hotels had already been declared public health nuisances because of piles of garbage. Bogner said the Sanitation Department picked up trash at those hotels at the owners' expense.

About 14,000 workers walked off the job Saturday at 45 hotels, including some of the city's poshest establishments such as the Waldorf-Astoria. The union has said it has targeted 40 more hotels for the strike next week.

About 1,500 workers at 10 more hotels walked off the job Tuesday bringing the number of establishments affected by the strike to 55.

Arms Sales Intended To Encourage Peace Talks

United Press International

The administration, despite opposition from Israel and 60 senators, says it plans to sell new defensive weapons to Jordan to encourage the Arab kingdom to open direct peace talks with the Jewish state.

The exact timing and size of the sale proposal to be sent to Congress has not been determined, administration officials said Tuesday, but the decision to make the sale has been made.

U.S. officials noted the irony of the debate, in which the Israeli lobby has opposed Jordan's King Hussein's request at a time when he is prepared to talk to Israel.

The senators oppose any sale to Jordan until direct negotiations begin.

The U.S. officials said the emphasis of the arms sale would be air defense, specifically anything to protect Jordan against Syria, which has opposed any participation in Middle East peace negotiations with Israel or the United States.

The most volatile part of any arms deal would be Stinger shoulder-fired surface-to-air missiles, which the Israelis fear could fall into the hands of Palestinian guerrillas.

The next most sensitive item would be improved Hawk surface-to-air missiles, mobile weapons that can hit low- and medium-altitude targets. Jordan has Hawk missiles but at Israeli insistence they are fixed and cannot be moved to areas where they would threaten Israeli aircraft.

Syria Tries To End Shooting

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Palestinian and Shiite Muslim gunmen clashed in two Beirut refugee camps today as Syria explored how to end the fighting that has killed more than 500 people since May 19.

Sporadic gunfire rocked Shatila and Bourj Branjeh, two Palestinian refugee camps on the southern outskirts of the capital, less than a day after Red Cross workers entered the Sabra refugee camp in a search for bodies.

The sources had no immediate estimate on casualties today.

The fighting came after representatives of both sides met in Damascus Tuesday night with Syrian Vice President Abdel Halim Khaddam, who reportedly made progress in efforts to stop the shooting.

Political sources who asked not to be named said Syria wants Amal to lift its siege of the camps, whose defenders then would be allowed to go to the Bekaa Valley in Syrian-controlled eastern Lebanon.

But Money Already Spent

County Richer Than Expected

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County received nearly $1.3 million more in revenues during the first eight months of fiscal 1984-85 than expected, but the new money represents no windfall. It has already been spent.

Management and Budget Director Eleanor Anderson, in reporting that the county's record $93.9 million budget grew to $95.2 million during the eight months, said the additional dollars will replace money spent on unforeseen expenses in the transportation program, for the sheriff's road patrol, and other items such as projects to be funded from the 4 cents-per-gallon special gasoline tax.

The increase in revenues came from the sale of the county's mental health facility and other county property, $566,159, a larger than expected cash surplus from last year of $320,106, more in property taxes than expected, $197,328; extra income from the state's 5th and 6th cents of gasoline tax, commitment fees and contributions from cities for road construction, $158,196, and $40,774 in revenues from a variety of other sources.

In addition, Mrs. Anderson said the state now estimates the county will receive $13.7 million from the proceeds of the special penny sales tax, approved by the voters for criminal justice facilities, some $500,000 more than first estimates of $13.2 million.

Earlier, it was reported that the county plans to spend $14.08 million, some $300,000 more than expected, from that fund even with expected increased revenues only for expansion of the county jail and renovations of the courthouse but also for renovations of the former health department building and the state attorney's office (the former jail behind the courthouse).

In a report to the county commission last week, Deputy County Administrator Richard George said some money for the renovations of the state attorney's building and the old health department would come from court facilities fees. These fees are levied at the rate of $2 per case when lawsuits are filed.

Meanwhile Mrs. Anderson said county revenues from interest income are down. She said the reason is that the county's funds, which had been invested in only one financial institution at a 10 percent interest rate, have been spread around to several county banks and placed in accounts paying a lesser interest rate.

Clerk of the Circuit Court David Berrien charged with the responsibility of investing county funds, said all county investment money — about $40 million — were in certificates of deposit with Freedom Savings and Loan.

When Berrien took office in January, he said, he took the funds and spread them among seven or eight banking houses.

While that may cut the interest the money earns, it is safer, Berrien said.

Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff, a stockbroker, noted that Berrien is asking for reports on assets and liabilities of each banking house that wishes to be a depositor of county funds as a way of making sure the county does not have problems with its money like those seen in bank and savings and loan collapses in the states.

Berrien said that interest income on county investments had been estimated at 10 percent, but with interest rates dropping the interest rate the county is receiving now is 8 percent.

The following persons have either pleaded or been found guilty of driving under the influence or having an unlawful blood alcohol level.

As first-time offenders, most have had their driver's license suspended for six months, ordered to pay a $250 fine, pay court costs of $27.50 and complete 50 hours of community service. When a guilty or no contest plea is entered or if the defendant is found guilty of an alcohol-related charge, other charges are usually either not prosecuted or dismissed. Most of the first-time offenders are allowed to apply for business-only driving permits.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: Southerners stuck close to their air conditioners while waiting out a record heat wave that killed people and poultry, pushed the demand for power to new highs and displayed few signs of disappearing. Records fell in Dixie for a third day in a row Tuesday as the mercury climbed into the 90s and past the century mark.

Two dozen records were reached or set from Mississippi and Florida to the Carolinas, and a reading of 105 was the highest ever recorded in Lakeland, the National Weather Service said.

We still have that big high pressure center off the eastern Gulf of Mexico and it's been causing the heat for three or four days," Bill Pendleton, an NWS forecaster in Miami, said today. "It's not planning to move through Sunday." Plains storms flooded Texas streets with up to 9 inches of rain in Sudan.

AREA FORECAST: Excessive heat to continue today and Thursday. Daytime heat index in the 105-115 degree range.

Today sunny and hot with the high 98 to 104. A 20 percent chance of late afternoon thunderstorms. Wind northeast 5 to 10 mph. Tonight fair with the low 72 to 76. Light wind. Thursday sunny and hot with the high around 100. A 20 percent chance of late afternoon thunderstorms. Wind northeast 5 to 10 mph.

BOATING FORECAST: St. Augustine to Jupiter Inlet out 50 miles — Variable wind 5 to 10 knots except easterly onshore sea breezes during the afternoons through Thursday. Sea 2 feet or less except 2 to 4 feet during the afternoon. Mostly fair.

Sheriff, FHP Sued For False Arrest

Seminole County Sheriff John Polk and the Florida Highway Patrol are being sued for false arrest.

The plaintiff in the case claims, among other things, that the arrest hurt his feelings.

Frank Lee Williams III, of Sanford, filed the suit in Seminole Circuit Court Tuesday. He is seeking an unspecified amount of damages in excess of $5,000.

According to the suit, Williams was arrested March 16, 1984 by an FHP trooper.

The trooper apparently stopped a car in which Williams was a passenger and after checking out the driver ran a computer check on Williams, using his driver's license for information. The trooper was told there was an outstanding warrant issued by Dade County authorities for a Frank Lee Williams that fit the description of the car's passenger, according to Williams' lawyer, John Morgan, of Orlando. Both the Williams named in the warrant and the Williams arrested are black, according to the suit.

Williams said in the suit that he was kept in the Seminole County jail for five days while friends and relatives tried to convince authorities that they had jailed the wrong man.

Williams contends that if Polk's officers had followed standard procedures they would have discovered the error earlier and let him go.

He said he was finally released after jailers learned of the mistake.

Williams states that his imprisonment deprived him of his civil rights. He states he was both physically and mentally injured. He also stated his reputation was damaged and his feelings were hurt by the incident.

He asks in the suit that FHP pay $5,000 or more in compensatory damages and that Polk

Williams asks for a trial by jury. No trial date has been set.

TEST DRIVE

A DeLand man charged in connection with the theft of a car from his Sanford car dealer employer reportedly told Sanford police who arrested him that he took the car because he just wanted to take a test spin in it.

The 1982 Toyota was reported missing from Prestige Honda, U.S. Highway 17-92, on April 15. Police were told that an employee may have had keys to the car and he had left the business without notifying a supervisor, the report said.

A suspect turned himself in at the Sanford police station on Monday. Charged with grand theft auto at 8:50 a.m. was Abraham Alexander Milton, 24. He was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

BEAN BATTLE

A 45-year-old Altamonte Springs man charged with battery spouse abuse after allegedly hitting his wife in the face arm told sheriff's deputies the alleged attack was provoked when the woman threw a pot of cooking lima beans at him.

He received a minor burn on his right arm, deputies reported, but Eliza Drakes, 44, of 1110 Spring St., told deputies she threw the beans after she was hit during an argument, a sheriff's report said.

Mrs. Drakes' eyes were swollen, the report said. Henry Drakes, 45, was arrested at his home at about 8:40 p.m. Tuesday and was being held in lieu of $500 bond.

BURGLARIES & THEFTS

Bill Dooley, 35, of 330 Lake Seminary Circle, Maitland, reported to sheriff's deputies that his $690 video recorder and four tapes with a total value of $85 were stolen when his belongings were being moved from 208 Varmouth Road, Fern Park, between May 30 and Sunday.

Pictures, sculpture, jewelry, cleaning supplies, a camera and other items worth about $1,500 were stolen from the home of Michael Eugene Hagley, 28, of 1521 Bear Lake Road, Sanford, on Monday, a sheriff's report said.

Theresa Rice, 36, of Orlando, told Seminole County sheriff's deputies that a gold chain and pearl earrings with a combined value of $250 were stolen along with a $150 shotgun from her car while the vehicle was parked at Butler Plaza, state Road 436, Casselberry, between 5 a.m. and 3 p.m. on Monday.

A thief slipped into the room of Jackie Davis, 37, of the Pine Grove Motel #8, Fern Park, while she and her daughter slept Monday night and took a pair of jeans containing $145 cash. The door to the room was closed, but not locked at the time of the theft, a sheriff's report said.

Roofing materials, 50 pounds of nails and about 10 sheets of plywood with a total value of about $185 were stolen from a construction site belonging to Sierra Properties Corp., 3606 Palm Ave., Apopka, at 1669 Windy Bluff Point, Longwood, according to a report filed with the sheriff's department.

Linda B. Rahona, 45, of 512 Whisperwood Drive, Longwood, reported to sheriff's deputies that antique gold coins, cash, jewelry and prints worth a total of about $1,500 disappeared when her household furnishings were moved from Tennessee by a moving company between April 16 and 23. She reported her loss on Friday.

Tammy Vanessa Noble, 21, of Watson Street, Jamestown, gave deputies the name of a suspect who may have taken $300 from her purse in her trailer on Saturday.

NABBED WITH CAR

A DeLand man has been charged with possession of a stolen vehicle after a Seminole County sheriff's deputy spotted him driving the car.

The man was arrested on Lakeview Avenue at North Street, Altamonte Springs, where he had been driving the 1977 Datsun that a computer check by the deputy confirmed was reported stolen in DeLand, a sheriff's report said.

Bernard Dwayne Martin, 20, was arrested at 11:25 a.m. Monday and was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

DUI ARRESTS

The following persons have been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence:

—Joanne Rose Mullen, 22, of 541 Marigold St., Casselberry, was arrested Saturday after her car was seen weaving on U.S. Highway 17-92, Longwood. She was also charged with driving with a suspended license.

—Bobby Glen Smith, 23, of Winter Garden, at 2:30 a.m. Sunday after he was seen driving with bright headlights and crossed the centerline of U.S. Highway 17-92, Longwood.

—Todd David Kessinger, 25, of Route 4, Box 366, Apopka, was arrested at 3:26 a.m. Tuesday after his car was seen weaving on state Road 434, Winter Springs.

—Thaddeus Lee McNeil, 53, of 116 Hughes Ave., Sanford, at 4:25 p.m. Monday after his car was involved in an accident at 2306 Jitway Ave., Midway. He was also charged with careless driving.

The Two Sides Of The GD Mess

The Navy's crackdown on General Dynamics for improper charges and tactics in handling defense contracts is of serious concern to the nation, but it certainly is nothing new.

As long as the government has been involved in purchasing military hardware, there have been bribery, overpayments, kickbacks and other illegalities. These white-collar crimes date back at least to the Civil War and probably even to 1775, when the Colonists were hiding munitions from the British in such communities as Lexington and Concord.

Nevertheless, the present uproar over war profiteering is the biggest flap of its kind in peacetime since a Missouri senator named Harry S. Truman gained national attention as chairman of a committee investigating defense contractors just before Pearl Harbor. And the discovery that we haven't been getting our money's worth in defense spending threatens to bring to a sudden stop the massive military buildup that started when Ronald Reagan was elected president in 1980.

Because illegal activity cannot be tolerated and because there must be public confidence in the defense budget, Secretary of the Navy John Lehman was right to come down hard on General Dynamics, the nation's third largest defense contractor.

Lehman fined General Dynamics $676,283 for giving gratuities to retired Adm. Hyman Rickover, canceled $22.5 million in existing contracts with the defense firm and stopped action on about $1 billion in new contracts with two of General Dynamics' major divisions. They are Electric Boat, which builds nuclear submarines in Groton, Conn., and the Pomona Division, near Los Angeles, which builds missiles and missile-defense systems.

The fine was for 10 times the value of gifts and gratuities that General Dynamics lavished on Rickover during the years he headed the Navy's nuclear submarine program. The admiral not only willingly received these favors from the defense contractor, he asked for many of them.

Rickover's response was typical of those who take favors when they know they shouldn't: "No gratuity or favor ever affected any decision I made." Perhaps true, but Rickover never for one moment would have accepted such an excuse from a subordinate.

Charges against General Dynamics include the request for government reimbursements for dues and fees to more than 20 country clubs and other organizations, lobbying, advertising and entertainment expenses, traveling costs — even $155 for boarding an executive's dog in a kennel.

General Dynamics should not shoulder the entire blame in these matters. The Pentagon must share the guilt. It has become the world's biggest bureaucracy. Service rivalries are rampant. As Navy Secretary Lehman said in a recent speech:

"Fifty thousand people now labor for the Defense Logistics Agency. There are 11 separate defense agencies, nine joint and specified commands and scores of subordinate offices and bureaus with staffs of a thousand or more.

"Everywhere in the Pentagon are senior assistants and lesser assistants, confidential assistants, personal assistants, administrative assistants, special assistants, executive assistants, aides to these assistants, and all of them have staffs," Lehman said. "It is a Herculean task to fix accountability anywhere in the defense establishment."

The Pentagon's ineffective management procedures are surely as much to blame as the defense contractors for the current scandals.

Obviously, changes must be made. Somehow the Pentagon must reform and reduce itself. Congress should keep hands off, because its interference causes more problems than it solves. The executive branch should take the initiative.

Only Sap Always Rises In The Spring

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Stock market prices, as reflected by the Dow Jones Industrial average, closed above the 1,300 level for the first time in May. But was it a genuine rally or merely a manifestation of springtime on Wall Street?

The answer to that question, I gather, is important to statisticians, market analysts, magazine writers and others concerned with mathematical probabilities.

According to the Stock Traders Almanac, only three times in the past two decades has the Dow boasted a gain during the May 1-June 30 period.

Your broker presumably knows that and is in a position to advise you that only sap always rises in the spring. Brokers likewise should know that the stock market itself, much like spring romance and the weather, tends to become seasonably unsettled.

Also be advised that as a general rule the stocks you purchased in April probably will slump in July. That prognosis presumably is subscribed to by plungers who regard the head as a more reliable indicator than the heart.

It is practically axiomatic in financial circles that an increase in aspirin consumption is followed by a drop in the New York Stock Exchange composite index.

Since headaches apparently outnumbered heartaches last year, making aspirin production bullish, we may be in for a bearish 1985, index-wise.

Or may you simply wish to instruct your broker to sell the stocks you bought in April and invest the money in the shares of companies that make headache remedies.

My own favorite omen, the hemline indicator, appears to augur well for the summer of 1985.

That theory, as all good brokers and girl-watchers know, holds that stock prices are likely to follow skirt lengths, going up when hemlines do and vice versa.

I don't know where the 1,300 average comes to on a lady's limbs, but judging from the warm weather fashions I have seen, we are in for a high-flying summer.

The hemline signal, incidentally, is supported by the necktie hypothesis.

The latter doctrine is based on the principle that narrow ties create confidence in the market. Hence, according to the magazine Dynamic Years, a comeback of slim neckwear should be accompanied by soaring stock prices.

Baseball fans, however, will have to wait until fall to again test the theory that there is a correlation between stock prices and major league batting averages.

Except for three annual exceptions since 1965, the market has gone down when hitting improved.

It won't be known for certain until autumn whether young eyes this season are sharper than last. Ergo, any prediction of the batting average impact on the Standard & Poor index would be premature at this time.

If salary scales mean anything, however, ball players will have more money to invest in the market than ever before. You and your broker can draw from own conclusions from that.

As for me, I shall continue to stink any investment dollars that come my way in an old Washington Senators sock.

Protest Pattern Familiar

The recent student demonstrations on college campuses against the U.S. trade embargo of Nicaragua and investment in South Africa are in a pattern familiar to Americans who remember the protests of the Vietnam war era. They are well-orchestrated media events in which the demonstrators accept no responsibilities for the consequences of their protests.

Campus demonstrations in the sixties and early seventies helped create the political climate that led to withdrawal of effective aid for an anti-communist government and the triumph of a regime allied to the Soviet Union. Today, Vietnam is a totalitarian state which is waging a large-scale war against its weaker neighbors in Southeast Asia.

If the foes of U.S. pressure against communist Nicaragua have their way, the Cubans and Soviets will be able to consolidate their foothold in Central America.

As for the demonstrations against U.S. investment, the protesters aren't candid with the American people as to what would be the end result of the bloody revolution they seek to encourage. One of the few candid voices is that of Beyers Naude, the political activist and secretary of the South African Council of Churches, who calls for harsh U.S. treatment of South Africa.

In a recent article in The New York Times, Mr. Naude offered a rare admission of what would be the end result if the South African government were toppled. He wrote that the United States "must accept that the political change that black South Africans wish to bring about will inevitably involve changes in the capitalist system of free enterprise — a change toward some form of socialism."

Fortunately, President Reagan and his advisers understand the ultimate objective of the campus demonstrations. The administration is standing firm against hysteria. It is defending the national interest in this hemisphere and eight thousand miles away in Southern Africa, a region rich in strategic materials vital to the security of the West.

If the Southern tip of Africa were to pass to the control of Marxist forces, the global strategic balance would be drastically altered and the security of the American people endangered.

FBI Was Split On Biaggi Bribery 'Evidence'

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — Some FBI officials thought they had a prosecutable bribery case against Rep. Mario Biaggi, D-N.Y., as a result of wiretapped conversations, according to internal FBI documents.

But at least four FBI and Justice Department officials thought the G-men were "hyping" the evidence against Biaggi drawn from the recorded conversations.

No official charges were ever brought against Biaggi.

Biaggi, now serving his ninth term in Congress, told our associate Tony Capaccio he had been unaware of the allegations until a few weeks ago, and had never been interviewed by either the FBI or the Justice Department on the matter.

A review of the tapes in the FBI's controversial "TUMCON" investigation turned up Biaggi's name. He was mentioned on a TUMCON tape made on April 14, 1979, of a conversation between alleged mob figure William Masselli and a friend. Masselli's phone was one of those tapped in the anti-

JEFFREY HART

Expand Death Penalty

The crime situation in many of our major cities has reached the point where we might be ready to think the unthinkable. Gangs of young toughs, for example, roam New York's Times Square at night, accosting pedestrians and robbing them while passersby do not dare to interfere. Often the robbery is accomplished in a minute or two, allowing little chance for the police to catch up with it. Casual beatings on the streets and in the subways have become commonplace; knifings and deaths are commonplace.

Which raises the following question: Should the application of the death penalty be broadened, and extend beyond capital crimes to include demonstrable sociopaths who present an obvious menace to the ordinary citizen?

In this country we have now virtually completed the first phase of our re-assessment of capital punishment. There exist holdouts against the current national consensus. In his dissents, Justice William Brennan has been trying to lay the basis for elimination of the death penalty on the grounds that it represents cruel and unusual punishment, and therefore violates the eighth amendment. He denies that electrocution is quick and painless, and cites all sorts of grisly details about what happens to the electrocuted body; but, one gathers, any mode of execution would be similarly, for Brennan, an eighth amendment violation. Nevertheless, despite Brennan, despite New York's Mario Cuomo, a consensus now exists that in the case of murder, execution represents a legitimate recourse for society, on the grounds of justice, deterrence, and self-protection against that particular criminal. As a judge once remarked to me, "I don't know whether execution deters murder, but it certainly deters that murderer." If New York's Governor Mario Cuomo continues to hold out against the capital punishment consensus, he will inevitably pay the political price for his obduracy.

But, now, let us move a step further. It is certainly plausible to argue that the death penalty should be available — on the same grounds of justice, deterrence, and self-protection — in the case of a demonstrable criminal sociopath, for example, in the case of an individual three times convicted of employing violence during the commission of a felony.

At the present time, the presence in apparently increasing numbers of obvious sociopaths in our urban areas poses an unprecedented danger to the ordinary citizen. The outpouring of public support for Bernhard Goetz, the so-called "Subway Vigilante," who had been mugged twice before and decided enough was enough, is just one indication of an emerging public demand that the government observe its minimum responsibilities under the social contract; safety for the law-abiding.

The discussion should begin about the desirability of a three-times-and-you're-out death penalty.

It's Complex, All Right

Item: Defense appropriations for the past four years total more than $1,007,900,000,000 (one trillion, seven billion, nine hundred million dollars). Every hour of every day, the Pentagon spends on the average $28 million.

Item: The defense industry includes some 20,000 prime contractors and 150,000 subcontractors and vendors, but is dominated by a few large suppliers. In fiscal 1984, the 15 largest received 41 percent of all military contracts.

Item: The profit rate of the 10 largest military contractors averaged 25 percent in 1984, compared with an average of 12.8 percent for manufacturers of all types.

"They start chuckling and they look around to see if the office is bugged. And they say, 'It's like shooting fish in a barrel.'" — Lee Iacocca, chairman of Chrysler, on the reaction of suppliers when asked if defense contracting is easy money.

Item: General Electric, pleading guilty to defrauding the government on a missile contract, has been fined $1.04 million.

Item: The Pentagon withheld $244 million in payments to General Dynamics as restitution for overbilling. The company has also been fined $676,000 for improper gifts to Adm. Hyman Rickover.

"I took the company line." — Panagiotis Velliotis, former manager of General Dynamics' Electric Boat Division, interviewed in Greece where he is a fugitive from indictment on kickback charges.

Item: Pentagon buying is supervised by 54,000 military and civilian officials.

Item: In the three-year period ending in 1983, at least 1,900 high-ranking officers retired from the military and went to work for defense contractors.

Item: In February, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger told the Senate Budget Committee that a freeze in the defense budget would necessitate deactivation of military units and the closing down of weapons production lines.

"We hope and we believe that we have eliminated any fat." — Caspar Weinberger

"The problem is a federal system that rewards high costs. The bureaucrat gets promoted by raising a larger budget from Congress. And the government contractor, whose profit is a percentage of costs, has an incentive to raise his costs." — Sen. Charles E. Grassley, R-Iowa, member, Senate Budget Committee.

racketeering investigation.

According to an FBI narrative taken from the tape, Masselli's friend was describing how he allegedly got Biaggi's help on a dumping contract. "Biaggi wanted $5,000 to secure the contract," the friend told Masselli.

The friend told Masselli he handed the congressman a check for $5,000 "on the steps of the (federal) administration building," and that "on the face of the check he wrote 'annual retainer,'" according to the FBI narrative. It noted that "Masselli was told that this incident with Biaggi occurred several years ago."

Biaggi scoffed at the whole idea. A much-decorated former New York City police lieutenant who was wounded 10 times in the line of duty, the 67-year-old congressman said: "I'm an old cop. If I'm going to do something wrong, do you think I'd do it with a check? That's ridiculous."

It is not uncommon for mobsters to boast of political payoffs and connections.

The information on Biaggi was presented during a briefing for more than two dozen FBI officials on the TUMCON investigation six days after the conversation in which Biaggi was mentioned.

"Among the conclusions reached" by the briefing agent was "that they had sufficient information regarding Congressman Biaggi to be able to conclude prosecutable cases within a short amount of time and minimal amount of effort," according to a report made to FBI inspectors last October.

And in an earlier TUMCON review made in late 1980, FBI official Kenneth Walton "commented to the effect that if the bureau did not go after Masselli ... he believed there was a shot at Biaggi," according to an FBI internal document.

Walton also lamented a decision by a Justice Department attorney "which thwarted investigative efforts," according to the document, which explained: "He stated that a decision was made to issue a subpoena" against the man who claimed to have given Biaggi the $5,000 check, "rather than execute a search warrant to produce the check he had given to Biaggi, and not surprisingly the check disappeared."

However, the two federal prosecutors closest to the TUMCON case thought the evidence of political corruption was exaggerated by the FBI.

U.S. Attorney Michael Rosa "advised he feels the TUMCON case was hyped by the FBI in that the FBI considered every case to be a good one ... [and] all the high-level cases the FBI talks about are just hype," according to an internal report. The other U.S. attorney, Patricia Hynes, told FBI inspectors "there were no political corruption cases."

According to an internal agency review, two FBI officials also agreed that some of the TUMCON cases were being overblown.

Footnote: At our request, Walton reviewed the documents. Through a spokesman he said: "At the time, that was what I thought, based on the information available to me. But time and additional information can change opinions."

SGA Steps From Obscurity Into Spotlight

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

ORLANDO — Since founding the Sanford Gymnastics Association in 1977, coach Eugene Petty and the board of directors have dreamed of providing the best for the association's budding gymnasts.

A permanent training facility with the best equipment has been a fantasy in the SGA's head for many years. Tuesday night, that fantasy materialized before an appreciative crowd of 400.

Thanks to the ingenuity of Ed Siegrist and the dedication to the sport by Olympian Kurt Thomas, the SGA's dream took a large step forward in its drive for a new building. It was a magical night. One in which the SGA stepped out of obscurity and into the spotlight.

And what better place to watch dreams come true than one of Central Florida's tourist fantasylands. The Kurt Thomas Benefit was a tremendous success and a very entertaining evening at Sea World's Nautilus Theater.

The grand total for the benefit was announced just prior to the night's entertainment which included performances by the Sanford gymnasts and Thomas' Gymnastics America Show. In total pledges, the SGA has raised $42,600, more than 50 percent of its goal of $85,000.

"We're very proud of what we have accomplished," Siegrist said. "Hopefully, with the facility, one of these gymnasts will become the next Kurt Thomas or Mary Lou Retton. And Kurt Thomas and Sea World made it all possible."

Everyone associated with the SGA said they were extremely happy with Tuesday night's turnout. Some of the people on hand were even surprised it went so well.

"For such a small community to put on such a fundraising effort is great," said Ken McGee, state director of the Special Olympics. "There aren't too many times when we've made 10 percent of our goal in fundraisers. To make 50 percent is almost unheard of. For them

Herald Photos by Tammy Vincent

It was a magical night for the Sanford Gymnastics Association as it shared center stage with Olympian Kurt Thomas. At left, Cherie Van Camp acknowledges the cheers of the crowd. Above, Shannon Wilcoxson executes a maneuver during her floor exercise.

[SGA] to have this kind of support is really exciting."

The sponsors of the evening's event got to see just how spectacular world class gymnasts can be and also got to take a look at some of the gymnasts they are supporting. The Sanford gymnasts performed as a preliminary for the Gymnastics America Show and, although there were some butterflies, they put on an excellent display of what they have learned.

Featured gymnasts from the SGA Tuesday night included Karen Grainger, Tracey Kaleel, Kimatha Kelly, Jennifer Kopp, Shari Siegrist, Shannon Wilcoxson and Cherie Van Camp.

The Sanford gymnasts started out by performing some basic tumbling exercises. Then they divided up and performed on three different apparatuses. Siegrist and Wilcoxson showed the basic routine for Class III gymnasts in the floor exercise, an event that combines tumbling and dance.

Next, Grainger and Kopp performed on the most difficult apparatus, the balance beam. Grainger displayed a back layout which is one of the hardest maneuvers on the four-inch wide beam. Kopp put on a dynamic performance of balance and grace on the beam and she showed the butterflies were gone in a routine that would have scored high with the judges.

The third apparatus was the uneven parallel bars. Kelly and Van Camp were impressive on the bars during their stunts.

Then came the Gymnastics America Show which features Thomas and a number of gymnasts who were world class or college All-Americans. Thomas' creation is not just a group of gymnasts performing basic routines but is a very entertaining show with plenty of variety including lavish costumes and even a bit of comedy.

Thomas himself did some amazing routines and displayed the famous, "Thomas Flare," a move on the pommel horse and floor exercise that is used by many gymnasts today, but not many can master the move like its namesake.

"This was so close to what we do every day it was easy for us," Thomas said of the show. "It was for a great cause, and the kids loved it."

After the show was over, Thomas signed autographs, took pictures with some of his fans.

Petty, who was co-founder of the SGA and has been the head coach since it began, was ecstatic over the outcome of the benefit.

"It's super," beamed Petty. "It initially started a little slow and we were kind of tense. But we're very pleased to come out as good as we did. I hope this will open the public's eyes.

"Right now, we can call this the highlight of our career," added Petty. "It's been eight years of dreaming, begging and borrowing and doing anything we could. Now, it looks like our dream is going to come true."

Petty said the SGA gymnasts have always done well in competition but the training facility is needed for the gymnasts to continue to excel as they get older. One of the most successful SGA gymnasts ever is Linda Arent, who took home two silver medals from the 1983 International Special Olympic Games in Baton Rouge, La. Arent was one of the special guests at Tuesday's event.

Sanford and Central Florida businesses and individuals rallied around the SGA in impressive fashion for Tuesday's benefit. Siegrist and the association is hoping the support will continue.

"The time frame for constructing the building depends on the support we receive after tonight," Siegrist said. "We'd like to raise enough funds to start construction before the end of the year."

Siegrist said contributions to the SGA building fund can be made at all Seminole County Sun Bank locations.

Another of the founding members, SGA President Jeanette Stiffley, said the support from the city of Sanford was excellent. "Sanford was really represented well tonight," she said. "It's fantastic to see it behind us."

The Stiffley family was also one of the Silver Sponsors ($500) of Tuesday night's benefit. Stiffley's son, Tommy, and daughter, Sandy, are assistant coaches with the SGA.

After the SGA has reached its goal, and gymnasts are flourishing in the new training facility, they will look back on this night as the one that got it all started.

And they will realize that dream can come true.

Clinger Hurls 1-Hitter, Butch's Chevron Rolls

Harvey Clinger had his no-hit bid broken up in the bottom of the fourth inning but he settled for a one-hitter as Butch's Chevron trounced Seminole Ford, 20-0, in Sanford Little American League action Tuesday at Fort Mellon Park.

Through three innings, Clinger held Seminole Ford hitless and had walked just three. Dallas Inman led off the bottom of the fourth with a base hit to break up the no-hitter but Clinger preserved the shutout when Inman was caught stealing third and by retiring the next two hitters. Clinger had seven strikeouts in the game that was cut short due to the slaughter rule.

Butch's Chevron sewed up the win early with 13 runs in the top of the first inning. Although it got just one hit in the inning, Jay Bell's RBI single, Butch's Chevron capitalized on 14 walks.

Butch's had seven hits in the game including two by Bell, Bernard Eady and Eric Washington added RBI doubles.

ADCOCK OUTLASTS FORD

Medco had five hits in the game off winning pitcher Chavers. Floyd Henderson had two of the five hits including a two-run homer in the first and a triple in the fourth. Albert Anderson slugged a solo homer in the fourth.

JACKSON BOOSTS SHELL
Tersell Jackson was 2 for 2, drove in three runs and scored three to pave the way for Leonard Shell's 12-9 victory over Adcock Roofing in Sanford Pee Wee League action Tuesday at Chase Park.

Jackson started the scoring of Leonard Shell with a two-run homer in the first, added an RBI single in the second and walked and scored in the third. Edmond Daniels' RBI double was the only other hit for Shell which capitalized on 12 walks in the game.

Adcock Roofing had five hits off winning pitcher Neville Fuller, including a two-run homer off the bat of Jamie King in the third and a two-run double by Quint Hunt, also in the third. Brandon Simpson was 1 for 1 with an RBI single, two walks and three stolen bases.

In Tuesday night's second game at Chase Park, an eight-run second inning lifted McRobert's Tires to a 14-5 victory over Rinker Materials.

McRobert's jumped out to a 6-0 lead in the top of the first but Rinker came back within one, 6-5, in the bottom of the frame.

McRobert's Tires then erupted for eight runs in the top of the second. Craig Merkerson's single was the only hit in the big inning as McRobert's cashed in on six walks, to hit batsmen and 12 wild pitches.

Pitcher David Strindl went on to strike out the side in the bottom of the second to give McRobert's Tires the victory. LaShunda Anderson's two-run single in the first inning was the only hit for Rinker.

Celtics Try To Eat Meat Without Choppers

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — When last seen, the Boston Celtics and Los Angeles Lakers tangled more times than cheap fishing line. The NBA championship series resumes tonight with vows of more aggression.

"We've been called the 'bad boys,' but we've just been too nice about it in this series," Boston forward Kevin McHale said Tuesday before the Celtics practiced for Game 4. "We have to rededicate ourselves to playing harder. They're the ones going out being the 'bad boys.'"

"We have to change things. It's not punching or hitting anybody — it's putting the body on the ball, being aggressive."

The defending champion Celtics trail the best-of-seven series 2-1 and need to win one of the next two games to send the teams back to Boston. Game 5 is Friday night at the Forum.

Cedric Maxwell agreed with McHale that the Celtics must reestablish their physical domination.

"We've let them go out and pull our teeth," the forward said. "We're trying to eat meat out there without our choppers. On. They've won the battle of the boards, and that's our game."

Routed 10 days ago in Game 1, the Lakers have turned the series around with a ferocious streak that many claimed was missing last year when they lost the championship to the Celtics in seven games.

Los Angeles coach Pat Riley, pleased with his team's play in the last two games, said the Lakers must stay hungry.

"We have no edge — none," he said. "If we think we have an edge, we're in trouble. We have to go in like we're down 1-2."

The series turned brutal Sunday when three incidents prompted the benches to empty.

"I don't think the intensity can increase," said Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who Sunday became the NBA's all-time leading scorer in the playoffs.

Maxwell said the Celtics' problems are their own doing.

"We don't have the desire to do what we have to do," he said. "We're a little bit more selfish this year. I don't feel we need a gimmick to beat the Lakers. I don't think they'll be startled like last year."

"We're very programmed and we're not moving the ball around. We don't have our house in order."

Riley is pleased with his house after three games.

"Both teams are very aggressive," the Lakers coach said. "We've been a little more efficient on offense. When we're doing the basics, we can rebound with any basketball team."

Only four teams have come back from 3-1 deficits to win a playoff series.

"If we can get it 2-2, Friday you'll see us at our best," said Boston forward Larry Bird, the league's MVP who is mired in a shooting slump.

NOTEBOOK

Michael Cooper claims teammate Byron Scott has the best shooting range on the Lakers. Cooper points to his minning waist as proof.

"He hit three in a row from a row behind our bench," Cooper said of Scott. "All hit net, so there wasn't any luck involved. It cost me $35 — $15 to Byron and the rest to the other guys playing the game (in practice)."

Kurt Rambis is being compared to "Rambo" for his aggressive play in the series. The Lakers' forward laughed off comparisons to Sylvester Stallone.

"I'm better looking than he, aren't I?" he asked.

Cedric Maxwell is still slowed by his mid-season knee injury. He said the Celtics are hurt by the reduction in his minutes played.

"I'm a guy who has led by example," he said. "That example hasn't been there."

Brian Talgo, a senior and the No. 1 player at Rollins College is the 1985 NCAA Division II singles champion. Brian has been a vital force in the Rollins tennis program for the past four years and really went out in a blaze of glory. Winning a national championship is an awesome task and it takes a great player to do so. Brian Talgo has been and is a great player.

I talked to Brian's coach, Norm Copeland, recently and Norm said that Brian really played well and peaked at just the right time. Norm loses most of his players this year, so is in for a massive rebuilding job next year. The Tars finished fourth in the nation this year in NCAA Division II.
