

Problem Of Inter-Faith Marriage

By LOUIS CARROLL
United Press International

When a Protestant boy falls in love with a Catholic girl, neither of them likes to be told an inter-faith marriage is a perilous undertaking.

That's precisely the advice probably got if he consults his pastor and she consults her priest.

Mixed marriages are increasingly common in this country. Protestant and Catholic children grow up in the same neighborhoods, participate in the same community events, and attend the same schools or colleges.

According to the official Catholic Directory, one-fourth of all marriages in Catholic churches involve "mixed" couples. The figure does not include the large number of Catholics who marry non-Catholics in civil or Protestant ceremonies.

Source of Trouble

Some inter-faith marriages work out fine. But clergymen of both faiths say a difference of religion may become a serious source of friction. This assertion is supported by at least three separate surveys — in Michigan, Maryland and Washington state — which show divorce and separation rates for mixed marriages that are three times higher in those states than in those where husband and wife are of the same faith.

Pastors and priests also are troubled by evidence many "mixed" couples solve their problem by turning away from religion altogether.

A Catholic bishops' committee conducted a 10-year survey of this problem. It concluded about 30 per cent of Catholics who marry non-Catholics are "lost to the faith."

A Methodist sociologist, Prof. Murray T. Lauffer of Garrettsville, Ohio, interviewed more than 400 couples who had married across religious lines. He found one-fourth of them no longer maintained even a nominal church connection, while another fourth had not attended church in more than a year.

Reflected in Children

This tendency to sweep the "sore subject" under the rug also is reflected in the children. A YMCA study revealed that in families where both parents were Catholic, 88 per cent of their sons also were practicing Catholics. Where both parents were Protestants, 88 per cent of their sons were practicing Protestants. But in "mixed" families, only 34 per cent of the sons were practicing members of either faith.

The spiritual divide of a mixed marriage is officially recognized by the Catholic Church. Its Canon 1080 forbids a Catholic to enter into a mixed marriage without special dispensation. This is granted only in cases where the non-Catholic partner to the marriage signs a pre-nuptial contract guaranteeing the faith of the Catholic partner will not be "perverted" and all children born to the couple will be "baptized and brought up in the Catholic faith."

Protestant Resentment

Canon 1080 has provoked widespread resentment among Protestants. Its existence is often cited by Protestant clergymen as a main reason for their opposition to mixed marriages.

The Episcopal Church has issued a pamphlet warning its young members they will deny the validity of their own faith if they sign a pre-nuptial agreement in which they surrender any voice in the upbringing of their children.

The most recent Protestant reply was made in West Germany where there is a growing number of inter-faith marriages. The West German Conference of Lutheran Bishops objected sharply to what it called Catholic "pressure" on Protestant partners to solve the problem.

The bishops' statement concluded with a plea to Lutherans to "remain loyal" to their own church and to "instill" their children be brought up as Protestants.

Size Doesn't Govern Value Of Lots

By EDWARD COWAN
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A report by the Urban Land Institute, a national research organization, asserts that land development costs do not necessarily rise as the size of a residential lot is increased.

More important in determining capital outlays for development, the institute found, are such factors as frontage and the number of improvements.

According to Max S. Wehrly, executive director of the institute, the relation of development costs to the size of the lot has become especially significant because of the trend toward single-level or ranch style homes.

"The trend toward the ranch style has stretched houses out, Wehrly said in an interview. Since the early 1930's, he added, preliminary lot size has risen from 500-600 square feet to the 10,000 square feet for the average lot in new suburban communities today.

Several Factors

A major contributing factor has been the popularity of having the longer dimension of the house parallel to the street. Still another factor has been the two-car garage and the "breakaway" or "attached" connecting passage between the garage and the house.

Wehrly said that the larger lots these features require can be developed at little or no more expense than for smaller lots.

An institute study of the matter in the Boston area found that "substantial economies can be achieved for the developer and home owner in large lot districts if the requirements for certain improvements are waived" or are adjusted to take account of relatively low population density.

In low density districts, the study said, "sanitary sewers, storm sewers, sidewalks, curbing and grass strips might safely be eliminated."

It also suggested narrower streets where vehicular and pedestrian traffic is light. But most communities, Wehrly said, do not take lower population density into account in setting their standards and as a result land development costs are higher than is necessary.

The study rebutted what it described as the assumption of many communities that large lots and low population density would hold down future costs for new schools and police and fire services. The study said that on a per capita or per dwelling basis, the cost of these necessities was not reduced.

Farmers Find 'Sesame' In Oil Seed

By GAYLORD P. BOWEN
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Farmers in Texas and other Southern states are learning that sesame refers to something more tangible than the "open sesame" of All Baba and his Forty Thieves of the Arabian Nights.

"Open Sesame!" was the magical phrase which opened the robbers' den to All Baba and his followers. But that was only an Oriental dream of the ninth century. The modern sesame is a relatively new cash crop for Southern farmers.

It is one of the oldest oilseed crops cultivated by man. It was grown commercially in the United States for the first time in 1901. In 1957, domestic growers harvested an estimated 15,000 acres, nearly all in Texas. Present indications are the 1958 acreage may increase to around 17,000. Average per acre yield in 1957 was about 800 pounds of seed. The 5-9 million pounds of seed produced in 1957 brought an average of $308 per ton.

Further, Kohn testified, he didn't know the first thing about the joint council, had never seen Local 447's books and wasn't even sure where the union's office was located.

Committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy said Kohn and his fellow officers actually were "ferocious" workers as operators of a curious "chickadee ride" for Royal American Shows, a 4-wheel even union members in good standing because they paid dues only six months a year.

The committee called Karsh, but got no information other than his name and address. He refused to answer 23 other questions on grounds he might incriminate himself.

The child's mother, Mrs. Doris DiBlasi is at center. Police said the child was beaten for not eating her dinner and was then locked in a cellar until her mother arrived home from work and released her. (UPI Telephoto)

Police Nab Slayer In 'Perfect Crime'

TOKYO (UPI)—Police today arrested a brilliant, 19-year-old high school student who spoiled his "perfect crime" by taunting them on the telephone for the lack of clues to a slaying.

The victim was Yoshie Ota, 16, a schoolmate of the murderer. The boy who boasted of his perfect crime was Shizuo Kaneko, a student and part-time factory worker. He was found today in a ramshackle house in Tokyo's factory district.

Police claimed Kaneko, whose Korean name was Lee Ching Koo, had confessed details of the murder of Yoshie. They said they had discovered in a notebook a notation that he had also killed Mrs. Setsuko Tanaka, a 24-year-old factory worker, on April 20.

Kaneko was described as an intelligent student with an avid desire for learning. He was always No. 1 scholastically in his class. It was said, but the poverty of his family had twisted his outlook and embittered him.

Police nabbed Kaneko, whose Korean name was Lee Ching Koo, had confessed details of the murder of Yoshie. They said they had discovered in a notebook a notation that he had also killed Mrs. Setsuko Tanaka, a 24-year-old factory worker, on April 20.

Kaneko was described as an intelligent student with an avid desire for learning. He was always No. 1 scholastically in his class. It was said, but the poverty of his family had twisted his outlook and embittered him.

Yoshie was murdered on the evening of Aug. 17 and her body was found four days later in a ventilator at the school she and Kaneko attended.

If he had not persisted in taunting police about the crime, Kaneko might have remained free. Police could get no clue to the killer. But his boasting telephone calls to a Tokyo newspaper and to police finally trapped him.

When police traced one call to a public phone booth, they arrived too late to catch him but obtained a good description of the youth and his bicycle from a group of three grammar school girls at the scene.

A recording of his telephoned voice provided the other clue. Police gave students at the school the description, let them hear his voice and asked them to name someone connected with the school who might fit it. Kaneko's name was listed on several papers.

George W. Kromer, a department economist, said sesame is well adapted to the climate of the cotton belt. The crop is grown under both irrigated and dryland conditions, from South Carolina to California, with main production in Texas. In general, sesame will produce about as much seed per acre as cotton.

Kromer estimated that U.S. acreage in whole seed would have to be doubled to meet domestic requirements. Production can be further expanded, he said, to meet the demand for specialty uses of sesame oil, but at a reduced return to the farmer. Expansion beyond this would result in competition with the lower priced major oilseeds domestically produced. To compete, sesame yields per acre would have to be substantially increased and production costs reduced. In this event, the seed would move into the oilseed crushing industry. Oil and meal demand probably would increase when large quantities are available regularly at prices comparable with those of competing oilseed products.

'Phony' Teamsters Officers Reported

By ARNOLD SAWHAR
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senate subcommittee investigators, who discovered phony Teamsters "paper locals" last year, believe now they have dragged up a case of "paper officers" in the big union.

The committee today continued its investigation of Harold J. Gibbons, the St. Louis Teamsters vice president considered closest to the presidential throne occupied by James R. Hoffa.

Further, Kohn testified, he didn't know the first thing about the joint council, had never seen Local 447's books and wasn't even sure where the union's office was located.

Committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy said Kohn and his fellow officers actually were "ferocious" workers as operators of a curious "chickadee ride" for Royal American Shows, a 4-wheel even union members in good standing because they paid dues only six months a year.

Safety Expert Almost Killed

RALEIGH (UPI)—Television station WRAL-TV was filming a farm safety show which featured demonstrations by extension service experts.

A corn husking expert was talking about safety as he approached the mechanical husker. The cord of the microphone about his neck became entangled in the whirling machinery.

The cord drew him closer and closer to the de-husking blades. Horrified cameramen leaped to his rescue just in time.

Station officials withheld the name of the almost de-husked expert. The scene was deleted from the film.

4 Persons Drown; 'Stepped In Hole'

NEW YORK (UPI)—A woman, her daughter and two other children drowned Sunday when they were "swallowed up" in a hole in Jamaica Bay.

A witness said the four seemed to step into a hole and disappear. They were identified as Mrs. Auri, 39; her daughter, Zorita, 14, and two friends, Juan Veloz, 14, and his sister Matusuella.

Truman Blasts Reduction In Force, U. S. Spending

By EVERETT IRWIN United Press International CHICAGO (UPI)—Former President Truman lashed out at the nation's armed forces today and attacked the idea that increased defense spending might bankrupt the country. Truman told the 40th annual convention of the American Legion "it is wicked" to talk of economy in defense spending when the nation is faced with Russia's growing strength. Tuesday night, legion leaders and convention guests heard Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy tell reports that the nation was dropping behind the Soviets in terms of military strength. McElroy addressed the annual commanders' banquet held in conjunction with the convention. He said the United States was strong enough now to win any war thrust upon us and could take care of the future by remaining alert.

Integration At-A-Glance

North Carolina GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI)—A few Negroes integrated schools here for the second straight year today for the flag-waving taunts of Ku Klux Klansmen. Negro pupils also entered quietly at two schools in Charlotte, the state's largest city, this morning. Only a firecracker bomb, exploding on the lawn of Central High at Charlotte, marred the peaceful scene. Officials said the firecracker apparently was not connected with the admission of a Negro boy to an all-white class, but probably was just a prank. At Greensboro's Gillespie Park elementary school, Klansmen shouted "nigger" at six Negro boys who entered. The group was headed by the Rev. George Dorsett of Greensboro, the KKK chaplain. He shouted and jeered at four Negro boys and two girls as they stepped on the school grounds.

Pastor Endorses Seminole Bonds; Backing Is Urged The Rev. David C. "I am glad to give my wholehearted support, not only for the good of our children today, but also for the benefit of our community tomorrow," Rev. Carnefix said. "It is my conviction that the public school system is one of the most important phases of our community life. What our schools are now will determine, in a large measure, what our community will be in the future. If the school program is deterred and confused with overcrowded conditions, and in Seminole County it already is, then the progress of the year that is ahead of us will be hindered and retarded in proportion. Let us all who are eligible to vote on this vital issue go to the polls and vote for the school bond issue."

Integration In Virginia

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (UPI)—A Negro lawyer hammered at an Arlington County School Board news today in an effort to show that application of 30 Negro students to attend white schools were rejected solely on racial grounds. Attorney Frank D. Reeves began a detailed cross-examination of James J. Joy, a school board member, as he testified on the integration suit resumed before Federal Judge Albert V. Bryan. Bryan asked Reeves at the outset to limit his questions to the school board's action last Thursday in rejecting the 30 applications. "The issue is quite simple," the judge said. The question is "whether or not there is evidence to support the assignments as made" on whether the board's action was "arbitrary, capricious and unlawful."

Integration In Florida

ST. PETERSBURG (UPI)—A city-owned Spa Beach and pool closed last June when Negroes insisted on using them, were open today with the city still apparently determined to maintain segregation. City Manager Ross E. Windom ordered the facilities reopened Tuesday for the first time since Negroes used the beach June 3 and the pool three days later. The "closed" signs were torn down and the police guard removed. Officials would not comment on what action they would take if Negroes again use the beach and pool. But they confirmed their policy of keeping the recreation areas segregated. The Rev. Ench Davis, chairman of the Negro Citizens Cooperative Committee, said he knew of no plans for Negroes to use the facilities.

Recreation Budget To Get Close Look

At a special budget meeting last night, Sanford City Commissioners promised a close look and evaluation of the $10,000 recreation department of Recreation's budget. For this fiscal year, the Department received $10,000. Due to the proposed year-around recreation program, it is requesting $20,000 for the next fiscal year, starting Oct. 15. Slated for closest study is the request for $5,500 for program workers' salaries. Warren Knowles, city manager, said that the workers are paid for the individual sports they teach, such as softball, swimming or baseball. Mayor Merle Warner said that it is time "the City Commission and the people of Sanford look at their recreation program." Warner and the Commission agreed that there must be better "cooperation and coordination" between the city recreation programs and those of the churches and schools. Commissioner David Gatchel said that civic groups such as the Ministerial Association, the Sanford Women's Club, and the others should "come to the city of Sanford" for a better program.

Station, 2 Homes Damaged By Fires

Fire Chief Mack N. Cleveland reported two fires in Sanford last night. The first occurred at the Market Service Station, 1300 French Ave., and is thought to have been caused by spontaneous combustion. Small damage was reported. At 4:30 a.m., two houses located at Pine and Hickory Sts., at 10th Ave., were reported on fire. Chief Cleveland said that one house was nearly destroyed by flames and there was considerable damage to the second house. Both houses were owned by Jay Beck, 410 Magnolia Ave., Sanford.

New Bill Requires Textile Labeling

NEWPORT, R. I. (UPI)—A new federal law requires household textile products to be accurately labeled to show their fiber content and source of production. President Eisenhower signed Tuesday a bill sponsored by Rep. Frank Smith (D-Miss.) and supported in particular by cotton producers. The new law carries a maximum penalty of up to a year in prison and a $5,000 fine for "misbranding" textile items. Smith and cotton producers had called for enactment of the bill, arguing it was possible to make a synthetic fiber resemble cotton in the finished product.

Less Smoking Here

Have reports that cigarette cause cancer reduced smoking? The Sanford City Commission thinks so. And it has a few suggestions to back up this contention. The biggest decrease in city revenue has been registered in cigarette taxes. City Manager Pete Knowles attributes the drop to the linking of cigarettes and cancer. The commission agreed that the great problem in giving Sanford a well-rounded program for all ages is the lack of community spirit and apathy found in the citizens.

Hurricane Expected To Regain Force; Six Dead In Cuba

MIAMI (UPI)—Tropical storm Ella faded Cuba and the Florida keys today with winds up to 70 miles an hour and was expected to recharge to full hurricane strength tonight in the warm waters of the Gulf of Mexico. The storm left at least six dead in Cuba. Although the center of the tropical howler was located about 100 miles southwest of Havana, the fiercest gusts of 70 miles an hour hit Dry Tortugas, close to Key West. Highest winds near the center of the ill-defined storm were only about 40 miles an hour. Gusts of 50 miles an hour lashed Key West early today, but the wind appeared to be subsiding around noon. Despite the squalls, only a few residents of the southernmost U.S. city bothered to board up. Wind damage appeared to be slight. Miami received squalls carrying gusts up to 38 miles per hour. At 11 a.m. the weather bureau said Ella was centered near latitude 22.0 north and longitude 83.4 west about 320 miles southwest of Miami. The storm was moving toward the west-northwest or northwest at about 13 miles per hour. Forecasters said they expected Ella would continue churning on its present course at about the same rate of speed for the next 12 hours. "After the center crosses the western end of Cuba and passes into the Gulf early this afternoon, gradual intensification will begin," the advisory said. "The storm should regain hurricane intensity tonight."

Contracts Awarded Two Oil Companies

The Seminole County Board of Commissioners yesterday awarded fuel supply contracts for the next six months to the Texas Co. and Standard Oil. The Texas Co. will supply the county with gasoline, diesel fuel and grease. Standard Oil was awarded the contract for motor and diesel oils. The Commission was shown blueprints of a proposed subdivision in Altamonte Springs by F. E. Roberts. He asked the Commission how soon it proposed to pave the roads leading to his property, since he couldn't receive an FHA loan for his project without the guarantee of surfaced roads from the county. Commissioner Lawrence Swafford said it was impossible to guarantee any specific date for the paving of the roads, but it would be done as soon as feasible. The Commission deferred action on a proposal by L. Lindsay for a right-of-way through county property at that island, pending a visit by the Commission. Commissioners were asked by Andrew Carraway of Carraway and McKibbin Insurance Agency, to discuss the possibilities of the Commission themselves being included under the Workmen's Compensation Bill, which now insures all county employees, except fire officers. He stated that since none of the fire officers in the county take this coverage that it would be beneficial to have the Commission take out a master policy and then discuss the coverage with each individual fire officer. Carraway said that due to increased coverage it would be necessary to raise the premium by approximately $10.00 per year. The Commissioners voted to include themselves under the terms of the policy and to adopt Carraway's suggestion. The owner of the Mobile Manor Trailer Park was advised by the Commission to work out his electrical problems, concerning voltage, with the Zoning Commission.

City Recreation Schedules Released

The first winter activities of Sanford's new year-around recreation program will get under way next week. Ronald Perry, recreation director, today revealed some of the new program's initial activities to be offered to the residents of Sanford. Joe Curtis, an Oklahoma champion square dance caller now living in Orlando, will call and instruct square dancing for adults. Starting Wednesday, Sept. 10 and every other Wednesday thereafter, square dancing under the stars will be held on the patio of the Sanford Civic Center. All adults interested are urged to be present for the opening lesson. Several clubs in this area have indicated that they will attend Sanford's opening night to help re-organize a square dance club here. Adult arts and crafts instructions will be offered through Christmas to give those who wish an opportunity to make gifts. Several areas of craft work will be taught, including ceramics, mosaic, tin copper enameling, wood-

Notting Hill: Where Blood Flowed

United Press International camera correspondent Kenneth Coyte (left) and London's Notting Hill district in the wake of the worst race clash since the 1955-56 season. KENNETH A. COYTE, United Press International LONDON (UPI) — "What'll ya' pay me for a pint of Negro blood?" The 16-year-old white ruffian with a razor scar on his face swaggered along sunny Bramley Road in Notting Hill, where white and Negro blood flowed in London's worst race clash. "What are ya' doin' here?" A swarm of interested children and teen-agers which had collected around our television camera melted away before the skinny, 5-foot youth with the razor slash. Jacket and jeans. He wore the international uniform of juvenile delinquents: black leather jacket and light blue jeans. The outfit stretched taut across his hunched, thin shoulders and tapered down his scrawny legs. He was a leader of the local teen-age mob—and calling reinforcements for his followers. "If it's television you after, ya'd better stick around until tonight," he snarled. "Stick around until tonight. The kids are coming over from Bayswater. Some are coming from Hermondey. As a matter of interest, mister, what'll ya' pay me for a pint of Negro blood?" How did this riot start and why? A 25-year-old white housewife living in the area thinks she knows the answer. She pointed across the street from her shiny new apartment to a ramshackle, derelict brownstone tenement. "That's the cause of the trouble here," she said. "It's empty, and the white streetwalkers come here and use it with the colored men. It's used like a brothel only they don't even pull the curtains. All the tenants in my building have refused to pay their rent because of what goes on here. "Whappened last night? "When the bars closed a crowd collected around the brothel and started smashing windows. Then the coopers came in and that's when it started." In a tour of tense Notting Hill, most persons questioned said the majority of Monday night's and this morning's clashes were between white men and police. An old Negro shuffled along sweeping the streets, calm and undisturbed. Playing white children followed him. "I've lived here for four years and it's always been peaceful," he said. "Any trouble we have here comes from the outside."

Soldier Fights Red Police For Camera

BERLIN (UPI)—An American soldier who faced the guns of nine Communist policemen on the East-West city border was more concerned today with his lost $100 camera than his narrow escape from getting shot. "It cost a month's pay," said Specialist Forth Class Sterling E. Bantle, 20, of (1080 South El Molino), Pasadena, Calif. Bantle's camera was confiscated at gunpoint Monday when he was taking photographs of a Communist propaganda sign on the border of the American and Soviet sectors of Berlin. "The Communist policeman tried to grab my camera," Bantle said. "I got a headlock on him, punched him in the face a few times and dragged him about eight yards into West Berlin. "He never would have got my camera if a West Berlin policeman on border duty has not butted in. Instead of trying to help me run up and shouted at me 'let 'em go. You are causing trouble.' "I let him go and then the Eastern policeman pulled out his gun and pointed it right at my head. He was young and nervous and he didn't seem to know what he was about. He had trouble cocking his pistol. He didn't seem to know how to do it. "He demanded by camera and he was so nervous and upset I wasn't going to quarrel with him. I gave it to him. He might have shot me." Bantle said in addition to the West Berlin policeman who came to the aid of the Communist policeman there were two West Berlin customs guards present. "Who just stood around and made no move to help me." The soldier said an examination today of a map of the border area proved he was across the border in East Berlin when the Communist policeman tried to arrest him. But both Bantle and American officials pointed out that there are no rules against entering the Soviet sector of the city or taking photographs there.

Former Monastery In Volusia County To Become School

ORANGE CITY—A former monastery, in a picturesque Florida setting near Ponce de Leon Springs and the St. Johns River, will become a non-sectarian boarding school for boys scheduled to open Sept. 15. Renamed Volusia Manor Boarding School for Boys, the former Good Shepherd Monastery occupies one of the most beautiful sites in Florida, embracing 345 acres in the rolling hills and lake area of Volusia County. Since out-of-door activities and health promoting recreation will be an outstanding feature of the school program, a more ideal location or facilities could not be found. This unusual out-of-door program will include swimming, fishing, hiking, camping, nature, archery, handcraft, quiet games and virtually every kind of activity. Ideally located within easy driving distance from such prosperous and growing communities as Deland, Daytona Beach, and Sanford, the school nestles amid beautiful oaks and is surrounded by sparkling lakes. Ransom Starr, formerly of Tampa and Miami, a director of the new school, states eight grades will be taught at the outset and 12 will be offered later. Starr emphasized that the rural setting, as compared to most other private schools situated in heavily populated areas, is one of the most attractive and appealing features of Volusia Manor. An opening enrollment of about 50 boys is anticipated, with students from all over the United States and Central and South American countries. It is a non-profit institution, chartered by the State.

Everyone, It Seems, Had Bit Too Much 'Influence'

By LEON BURNETT United Press International Pay attention, please, because this is complicated. At Macon, Ga., William Cole goes to sheriff's office, complains his car has been stolen. Officers find that a man named Amos Linderman bought a car from Cole but does not have it in possession. Also, that shortly after the purchase Linderman was arrested on charges of driving while under influence of intoxicants. While case is under discussion in sheriff's office, Deputy Ollie Golgs is going out of the building when he spots Howard Ray driving away, overhauls him and charges him with driving while under the influence. Deputies then learn it was Ray who drove Cole to sheriff's office. Cole's auto finally is located at the home of his brother-in-law, J. W. Clements—who also is facing a charge of driving while under the influence. With the car case cleared up, officers jail Cole on charge of being intoxicated in a very public place—the sheriff's office. An interesting legal question with international ramifications was posed at Tallahassee, Fla.: Who has jurisdiction over a workman's compensation claim filed by a Louisiana resident insured in Puerto Rico while working for a Florida-based firm—under a contract drawn up in Mexico. William H. Lindsey Jr., the workman in the case, filed a claim with the Florida Industrial Commission, reporting that he was injured while helping build an airport in Puerto Rico. The decision: While the commission would not presume to say who might be responsible for the case, it could say with certainty that Florida was not. Claim dismissed. Excuse of the week —Harold Rich, 22, in Asheville, N.C., where he was to be tried on car theft charges, told officers when they apprehended him: "I just thought I would go home and eat dinner." When Louisville, N. C., Police Chief William Dement sent his men out to search for a missing pet skunk named Bridget (theodorized), he added a word of warning: "Approach any stray skunk with caution. It might not be Bridget."

U. S. Keeping 'Open Mind' On Quemoy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. officials today kept an open mind on the possible use of American military forces in the Quemoy-Matsu crisis despite reinforcement of the 7th Fleet. They said the reassignment of the aircraft carrier Essex, with about 80 planes aboard, from the Mediterranean to Formosa area duty was a matter of getting prepared for action in case that were necessary. They cautioned that no decision on direct use of U. S. military forces has yet been made. Informal sources said it would be wrong to conclude from remarks by President Eisenhower Wednesday that this country has decided to defend the offshore islands automatically in event of a Chinese Communist invasion attempt. The President told his news conference that Nationalists "have now deployed about a third of their forces" to Quemoy and Matsu. He said this "makes a closer interlocking between the defense systems of the islands with Formosa than was the case before." The President added: "Now, apparently the thing, the philosophy is that to hold the whole thing it is part of the territory from which they (the Nationalists) hope to make their living, so there is a closer relationship than there was before." But Eisenhower declined to comment on what "military decisions" he might make because "there are all sorts of permutations and combinations" of factors to be taken into account.

Committee Urges Integration For Air Base School

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Veterans Committee has urged Defense Secretary Neil McElroy to overrule an Air Force decision preserving racial segregation in the elementary school at Little Rock Air Force Base.

Officials at the base said the federally-financed school would be segregated when it opens next week because they wanted to conform with a decision of the Pulaski County School Board.

In a letter to McElroy, Louis D. Warshaw, chairman of the AVC civil rights subcommittee, said:

"It is simply intolerable that a unit of the armed services of this country should place itself in the position of collaborating with a local school board in defying the 1954 decision of the Supreme Court." Warshaw denounced the Air Force explanation as a "trifling ground" for banning integration. The small veterans group said segregation at the base school would increase "already existing tensions plaguing" school integration in certain cities. Base officials said the armed services, traditionally have followed local civilian rules in regard to segregation.

Woman Physician Rewarding Career

BOSTON (UPI) — No other career is quite so rewarding as that of the woman physician, says Dr. Sara Jordan.

Dr. Jordan, director of the gastroenterology department of the top woman doctor in Boston's Lahey Clinic and considered the world-famed medical community, says nothing can equal the spirit of rewards the field of medicine returns.

No woman should want to become a doctor without an "urge to overcome all obstacles," she said. "Medicine is as much a calling as theology. It demands an urge to serve humankind." "Forget the sex barrier. The prejudice against women in medicine was eliminated by the difficult work of women doctors during World War II," she said. The only remaining prejudice of any sort is in medical schools which fear female students will marry and never do their training.

Dr. Jordan said women doctors, who usually enter the fields of pediatrics, obstetrics or psychiatry, find "happiness to a far greater degree than in any other profession. I have never heard a woman physician regret her choice."

And, she emphasized, "Women in medicine often marry and have children and remain doctors." Dr. Jordan said "being a woman doctor is spiritually and financially rewarding and causes no great problems in marriage."

'Push And Treat' Dead For While

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Gov. LeRoy Collins said today that he considers the compulsory phase of Florida's "push and treat" spreading decline program dead "for the remainder of this fiscal year at least."

Collins said his statement has nothing to do with the circuit court ruling Wednesday invalidating compensation limits in the program set by the last Legislature.

Seminole County Flexing Muscles; Successful Future Needs Planning

Seminole County, long dormant, now is flexing its muscles. According to economic experts, this county can look forward to its greatest growth in history in the next few years.

For too many years, Seminole County has been content to "watch the rest of the world go by." As a result, the county has been by-passed on a great many occasions. Many of the things which Seminole County could have obtained would have helped to make this area better. But, hindsight is so much better than foresight. And hindsight is much more accurate.

Amid reports that this county will assume its rightful place among Florida's growing counties, it is well to pause and look at the present situation. Just what is the status of Seminole County today? What has it to offer industry, business, new residents? How does Seminole County compare with other counties seeking to obtain these same things?

These questions, of course defy concrete, complete answers. However, it would seem that this county can compare favorably with others on many points. On a population basis, Seminole is a small county, when compared to others in Florida. It has no great city. There are no large industries, such as those which provide the backbone of many Florida counties.

Seminole County has two important assets. These are "room for growth" and plenty of commercial water from the St. John's River. By combining these two big assets with "set up and go," Seminole County could become one of Florida's fastest-growing areas.

In any area on earth there are certain elements satisfied with things as they are. That, no doubt, is true here. But what was good enough for father no longer is good enough for son and grandson. Newer and better services are required to keep pace with the jet and satellite age.

The day is past, too, when we can let the future take care of itself. A successful future of an area, as an individual's, must be planned.

There is no time better than now for Seminole County to start working for its "place in the sun."

True Love Triumphs Again

When will Shakespeare opined that the course of true love never did run smooth," he said a mouthful. It is such a quotable mouthful that it has been worn shiny by four centuries of reiteration.

Shiny or not, the immortal remark is herewith going to be used again. It applies neatly, with a happy twist of plot that the Swan of Avon would have enjoyed, to the case of two young actor folk named Andra Martin and Ty Hardin.

The first part of the plot is simple: the young lovers decided to be wed. Enter obstacle, in the form of their agents. Marriage, warned the agents, might hurt the young peoples' acting careers. So Andra and Ty decided to postpone the wedding.

Now for the denouement, here stated in the words of Miss Martin: "We talked it over and decided that our love comes ahead of our careers." True love wins again! Shakespeare could have written a five-act play with less of a basic plot than that.

Marsh Facts On Mid-East

There are some harsh facts of conflict in the Middle East which cannot be wished away. The Arabs, under Nasser or any other leader, do not appear capable of organizing the Arab world and leading it into the 20th century with a rising standard of living and a widening of democratic freedom for the masses of the Arab people. If this be so, they will have to lean to the East or the West.

An independent and united Arab state offers no promise of being able to play a truly neutral role. The rivalry between the Soviet Union and the United States almost certainly will continue to be a decisive factor in the Middle East. At present, there is no solid basis for hoping that United Nations forces and a regional development plan can eliminate this rivalry.

The main interests of the United States in the Middle East are economic and strategic; those of the Soviet Union are strategic and political. The Soviet Union is seeking to establish itself as a power in the Middle East but has not, as yet, achieved this goal. Moscow will not abandon its offensive for the sake of assuring progress and stability in the Arab world. Nor can the U. S. surrender its position in the Middle East without greatly heightening the possibility of war.

There can be no easy or quick stabilization of the Middle East, and there is little hope of an American-Soviet understanding. This does not give us much to hope for in the near future, but if hope is made superior to the facts then hope is an illusion.

1959 Autos To Be 'Sleek' Beauties

By JACK VANDENBERG
UPI Automotive Editor

DETROIT (UPI) — The auto industry hopes to transform a jewel-encrusted dowager into a sleek bathing beauty in styling of its 1959 models.

The industry recognized it went too far in 1958 with its heavy use of chrome trim. It has cut back, in some cases drastically, in its 1959 models.

While chrome was used to cover heavy, bulky lines of the car in 1958, it will be used only to emphasize the long, graceful lines of most of the 1959 cars.

The changes, of course, vary from maker to maker.

Buick is the best example of the change.

In its 1958 models, Buick was one of the heaviest users of chrome. The 1958 Buick had chrome splashed all over it. But the 1959 Buicks will display less chrome than any car has in many years.

The only chrome on the side panels of the 1959 Buick will be a narrow strip along the natural division between the body of the car and the fins and another narrow strip along the crest of the fins.

Buick stylists say they designed the 1959 model without any chrome and then added chrome to emphasize the natural lines of the cars.

Cadillac will continue to splurge with chrome on one of its lines but most others will be trimmed judiciously to give the car a "cleaner" look.

Dixie's Emphasized

Ford Motor Co. also has moved toward quiet dignity in styling its 1959 models.

One Ford official described the difference between the company's 1958 and 1959 cars this way: "The 1958 looked like a big, bulky car. The 1959 isn't any smaller but it has a 'light on its feet' appearance. It doesn't look like it would take a giant sized engine to drag it away from a stop

Used to Highlight

This new appearance of the Ford cars is achieved again by using chrome only to highlight the natural lines of the car. Ford will add to the change, however, by offering two styles of tops on some of its cars—one fashioned after the sharp-angled "thunderbird" top, and the other following the traditional curved styling.

Chrysler Corporation's styling was expected to be least changed of any of the "big three" auto makers. But, here again, attempts will be made to make the chrome emphasize the car's lines rather than cover them up.

In 1959 the auto stylists hope to emphasize the beauty of their cars with chrome, not create beauty with it.

The first Catholic Mass in the United States was said in St. Augustine, Fla., in 1513.

THE ROCK OF AGES

Labor Reform To Be Election Issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican determination to make a campaign issue out of labor reform legislation should result in heavy and continued pressure in Congress next year for action.

Meanwhile, a great deal of questionable stuff will be dispensed by both parties during the 1958 campaign about who was to blame for the failure of Congress to act this year.

This is one of the few issues which finds the GOP on the attack and the Democrats on the defensive. Since the Democrats did control Congress they cannot escape final responsibility for failure to enact a bill to deal with corruption and racketeering in unions.

House Democratic leaders tried to protect themselves from this attack by resorting to extraordinary procedure in the closing days of the 1958 session. They attempted to pass the Senate-approved bill, which was acceptable to the AFL-CIO leadership, under a two-thirds vote, barring amendments and permitting only 40 minutes of debate. Most Republicans and Southern Democrats refused to go along with this all-or-nothing approach. Few in Congress would defend this procedure on a subject so complex as Labor legislation but the Democratic leaders in the House obviously felt that they had no other choice.

The Democrats now are blaming the GOP for putting up most of the votes to kill the bill.

Meanwhile, the Republicans are talking about the "40 days and 40 nights" that Speaker Sam Rayburn held the bill without referring it to the Labor Committee. Most members of Congress would agree that a subject as complicated as labor legislation should be subjected to full committee hearings and a study even if it had already gone through the process in the other chamber.

No evidence. There was no evidence, however, that the House committee was ready to tackle the subject. Powerful management organizations objected to a bill along the lines of that passed by the Senate, and John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers wanted none at all. If a majority had wanted to move ahead with a general labor bill, the House committee could have started months ago without waiting for the Senate bill. Nothing in the rules of Congress requires a committee in one house to wait for passage of a bill by the other chamber before acting.

It is common for committees in the two houses to work on companion bills at the same time. But now union reform legislation survives as a political campaign issue and as unfinished business for Congress next year.

Polio Showing Late Rise; Officials Are Concerned

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Officials of the U.S. Public Health Service expressed concern today about a late season upswing in paralytic polio.

A spokesman said the upswing shows "We can still have epidemics among the large segment of the population who have failed to get Salk anti-polio inoculations."

Each week for the past three weeks, the number of paralytic polio cases in the nation has been higher than the preceding week, and also higher than during the comparable week of 1957.

During the week ending Aug. 23, there were 144 cases, compared to 118 the previous week and 89 during the same week of 1957.

Figures for the week ending Aug. 30 have not yet been compiled, but health service officials fear the total may be higher.

The current number of polio cases is admittedly small by comparison with the years before Salk vaccine was available. In the pre-Salk era, it was not uncommon for the number of polio cases to run as high as 2,000 a week in late summer.

But public health officials are distributed by the figures because, as one of them put it, "Even one child crippled by polio is one too many now that Salk vaccine is plentiful."

There are about 110 million Americans in the under-40 age group which is most vulnerable to polio. The Public Health Service estimates that 30 million of these have received the protection of a full series of three Salk shots. An additional 20 million persons had had one or two shots, which give some protection.

About 40 million have had no Salk vaccine.

The federal meat inspection stamp which reads "U. S. Inspected and Passed" shows that the meat product has been made from wholesome ingredients and processed under sanitary conditions.

Keep Florida Ahead!
RE-ELECT SPESSARD L.
HOLLAND
YOUR U. S. SENATOR

How To Make Friends (For Florida) And Influence Legislation

Senator Spessard Holland has earned the respect and friendship of most of his colleagues in the U. S. Senate. Through statesmanship and continuous, efficient effort he has helped Florida obtain its fair share of federal funds for worthy projects —aid totalling millions of dollars. His voting record of 97.7% is among the highest in the Senate.

Holland is the first Florida Senator to serve on the powerful Appropriations Committee in more than 40 years. He is also a member of the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry. Both committees are vital to Florida's economic welfare.

His opponent's voting record shows only 76% of votes in three Congresses. And during two of these he voted against the majority in 85 of 191 ballottings. He voted against assistance to Greece and Turkey when Russia was threatening the freedom of these countries. He insisted that aid to these nations and assistance under the Marshall Plan be administered through the U. N.—despite Russia's demonstrated vote power.

COMPARE THE RECORDS

Compare the records and realize that Holland is your best choice for U. S. Senator. Florida deserves a Senator who can make friends and influence legislation for Florida.

Support and vote for Senator Spessard Holland on September 9.

Give Youngsters The Opportunity To Voice Opinion In Meal-Planning
By Jeanne Lesem
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI)—Talk "curry" with Junior. The family consultation is the key to the well-balanced diet for the school child, says nutritionist Elizabeth D. Munnies.
Dr. Munnies, an associate professor at New York University's School of Education, says mothers would have less trouble with their youngsters' appetites if they gave the children a regular voice in meal-planning.
"I often wonder, too, how much parents guide their youngsters' choices in packing or buying lunch," she said in an interview.
"If a child is going to fix his own lunch, or buy it at school, tell him in advance what you're having for dinner."
This technique helps prevent complaints of loss of appetite at the evening meal because of duplication, she explained.
If the number one problem with the child is at breakfast, maybe you're not giving enough time for a good meal in the morning. Let children know there is ample time to eat and get to school, she urged, and get up early enough yourself so that there is no need to rush.
At night, set the table and lay out clothing to help everyone off to a good start next day.
Teen-agers who turn up their noses at the conventional breakfast foods—cereals, eggs, bacon and toast—may find their appetites again if you vary the menu with cheese on toast or a regional specialty, such as fish or fish cakes, she said.
The after-school snack also calls for strategy. If mother has sandwiches ready for the leeches, or sandwiches mixed made from leftovers, school children will be less apt to fill up on pretzels, chocolate doughnuts and packaged cookies and cake.
Left to their own devices, teen-agers and many younger children will pick up "empty calories," Dr. Munnies explained, and, while they do need lots of calories for growth, they can get these with extra nutrients—vitamins and minerals—if their snack-time selection is planned carefully.

For small fry, she urged that milk or fruit juice be served in mid-afternoon, and considered a part of the overall daily diet.
She also recommended that the evening snack for children of any age be more than just a dessert. It, too, should be figured as part of the child's daily calorie intake, to add essential food value without overbalancing the fat in any one category.

Teen-aged girls will find a new find in jewelry—angle rings. The rings have one or two gold loops to which charms are attached. About 25 types of charms are available, including cultured pearls, berries, and birth-stones.
Tweeds, for example, will be all the rage this winter with beads who hope to hit the best dressed list.
Miss Kruger custom-makes "anything sensible" for dogs. Her new line features a grey flannel suit, lined in red corduroy. No attached-cage set.
For her "sun outfit" costumes, docheck's "Bracons" has stocked the latest fabrics, including vicuna. No self-respecting dog need worry about wrapping up in that.
For puppy-type dogs, there's a "foreign Italian" raincoat with big buckle, wide belt and epaulettes.
For the felines, there are sheer four-legged nighties, belets, milk collars and coats with pockets for "mad money."
For couples who are going on cruises this winter, there are life jackets, swim suits and beach robes.
If an "old houn dawg" wants "blue suede shoes," they can be ordered. Same goes for track shoes for greyhounds.

Couple Exchange Wedding Vows In Double-Ring Ceremony
A candlelight, double-ring ceremony united in marriage Miss Margaret Jeannine Benham and Charles David Wirth on August 30 in the Pinecrest Baptist Church at 8:00 p. m.
Miss Benham is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Benham. Mr. Wirth is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Wirth of Columbus, Ohio.
Rev. Donald Gravemiller and Dr. W. P. Brooks Jr. officiated. The church was beautifully decorated with white chrysanthemums and red and white gladioli. Mrs. Verla Robbins played wedding selections.
The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in a full-length nylon taffeta gown. She carried a white orchid on a white ribbon. Long streamers of white ribbon with fresh orange blossoms and red rosebuds fell from the arrangement.
Mrs. Jerry Lumberson, matron of honor, wore a full-length dress of light blue taffeta. She carried a bouquet of red and white carnations.
The best man was Lance Cornelius. Charles Benham Jr., brother of the bride, and Curtis Hughes, cousin of the bride, were ushers. The mother of the bride wore a beige linen dress with white accents. Her corsage was of red and white rosebuds. The groom's mother was dressed in a pink linen dress. Her accessories were white and her corsage was identical to that of the mother of the bride.
Following the wedding a reception was held at the church. Decorations of white gladioli and greenery were used.
For a wedding trip to Columbus, Ohio, the new Mrs. Wirth wore a pink suit with white accessories. Her corsage was the orchid from her bouquet.

Women Prefer High-Heeled Shoes
LAWRENCE, Mass. (UPI)—High-heeled shoes may hurt our feet, but women wouldn't be without 'em.
That's the report of a nationwide survey on women's heel preferences, made by the Lifetime Heel Co. It interviewed more than 8000 women in 30 cities.
About 75 per cent of the ladies questioned prefer high, thin heels. Only 14 per cent wear heels less than two inches high.
But vanity is expensive, the survey showed. All the women questioned had heels break at least once in the past year. More than 30 per cent had heels break at least six times. Cost of replacement ranged from 35 cents to more than $1. The average cost was about 60 cents.

Couples Eager For Underwater Wedding Rites
By Patricia McCormack
United Press International
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (UPI)—Hundreds of people in the United States are eager to take the plunge into matrimony—literally, to the bottom of the ocean.
The opportunity is being offered for late this month by George Haudrill Jr., manager of the Atlantic Steel Pier. He has agreed to make available for love and publicity—a diving bell for a wedding on the ocean floor off the pier, 90 feet down.
And more than 300 couples have begged for the chance. Each couple has its own reasons, and they are almost as many as ocean waves.
A window washer, Henry Zabicki, 27, of the Bronx, N. Y., wrote that a submerged wedding would give him a chance to go "from the heights to the depths."
What's more, Emma Nehring, 26, his gal, is "the only one who has gone fish for fish with me." Hair or shine, they angle three times a week. He met Emma accidentally when she saved her from drowning off Jones Beach. A wate-ry romance seeking a watery conclusion.
All of the applicants, shipwrecked financially or not, swear "true love." And the only other couple ever married in the bell, Ruth Ehler and Louis Villani of North Bergen, N. J., say that true love was what led them to the diving bell.
The sea of matrimony has been calm, indeed, for them since their "stunt" wedding nine years ago.
Mrs. Villani said:
"We have three wonderful children and we're not sorry one bit that we followed the advice of the fortune teller who told me to get married where I met my lover."
They met on the boardwalk near the Steel Pier.

Cover-ups For Dogs Set Tails Wagging
By Patricia McCormack
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI)—The new line of covers-ups for the canine crowd is enough to set tails wagging.
The last "furr" in doggie fashion has four legs and zips up the back. It's a water repellent snow-suit.
According to Joan Kruger, who runs the world-famous Park Avenue Poodle Salon, fashions for the furry set follow fads set by show featuring dresses and things for man's other best friend.
Tweeds, for example, will be all the rage this winter with beads who hope to hit the best dressed list.

Tips On Moving
There are authorities on everything. Here are some suggestions from one who specializes in the problems of moving.
DON'T take anything non-essential. Start a fresh string and box collection at the new location.
DON'T attempt to pack very fragile things yourself. Let the professionals handle this. They're insured.
DON'T drag along bulky things like old mattresses and springs on a long trek. They can easily be replaced (and probably should be) in the new town.
DON'T move furniture you plan to store on arrival. Sell it or give it away.
Do get rid of the children and pets on moving day—store them with grandparents, board them, or check them. But get them out of the way for their safety and your efficiency.
New winter coats have a look of narrowness, a tapering toward the hem. But there will be a fullness gathered into a yoke at the shoulder or in a deep oval drape in back.

Sandwich Idea For School Lunches
It won't be long until those little lunch box captives in your home will be called front and center to man their desks and text books. School has started again. Once more Mom must assemble meat, cheese, jam, bread, relish, fruit and anything else which will pack easily and which the youngsters will enjoy when eating their noontime meal from a lunch box. Having variety is usually a problem. We have an idea to please the younger set and Mom, too. This idea is a ham and raisin spread. Cooked ham is the meat. In addition, raisins, nuts, celery, chopped onion and salad dressing play an integral role in this filling. The chopped raisins and nuts add texture to the filling which will build more flavor appeal.

Cool Pear Salad Appeals To Family In Warm Weather
In this hot, humid weather it takes a cool, eye-appealing dish to tempt the appetite. This pear salad, which can be made with fresh or canned pears, will perk up your warm-weather menu.
Pink Lemonade Pear Salad
4 pear halves
2 tablespoons cherry preserves
2 tablespoons honey
1/4 cup lemon juice
Lettuce
Chill pear halves until serving time. To make dressing: mix preserves, honey, and juice. Place pear halves on lettuce leaves. Add the dressing and garnish with cherries.

Drysdale Beats Giants Again

The 22-year-old native of Van Nuys, Calif., was picked to be the National League's No. 1 pitcher for the year. He can't win that honor because of a disastrous start but Tuesday night he fired his sixth straight victory to give the Dodgers a 4-0 win over the San Francisco Giants before a partisan crowd of 22,316 at the Coliseum. Drysdale's six straight victories equal the highest string by a National League pitcher this year and they have finally squared his record at 11-11. At one time this year he stood 0-3 and at the July All-Star break he was 4-9.

The Sanford City Bowling League finished its first night of the new season in two three-way ties for first and last places. Bill Kazee, with a 541 series, led Geno's Seminoles Dry Cleaners to victory in two games over Marlon Sanford, who took one game. Paul Pezold had a single game of 236. Burnett Painters, with the high team series for the night of 2324, emerged with a 2-1 triumph over Celery City Printing, "split-shrinkers" for the night included Clyde Piercy, who made the 47 9-10, Dick Richards with a 4-10 to his credit, and Paul Pezold who picked up a 3-7-10.

Player Of The Day

SACH MONROE
"He did it at just the right time."
Manager Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees was doing the talking about Sach Monroe, the rookie who hurled a five-hit, 6-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox Tuesday night. The triumph created the Yankee American League leader over the Milwaukee Braves 10-10.

But, more important, it eased a Yankee pitching shortage created by the sidelining of Whisley Ford, Don Larsen and Tom Sturdevant. It was Monroe's third win but the first time he went more than seven innings.

"He didn't look so good after we brought him up from Denver June 18," said Stengel. "But he sure showed 'em last night."

Vandy To Field Better Team In 1958

By RUSSELL DALEY
United Press International
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Vanderbilt Coach Art Guape (left) says his 1958 football team should be stronger than last year's squad. But there's one catch—he also expects his opposition to be stronger.

"It's a relative thing," Guape said of Vandy's prospects. "It depends as much on what the others have as on what you have."

Guape thinks his biggest question mark may be at tackle where he does not have a single letterman on hand. The rest of the team, he says, shapes up as potentially stronger than last year, "especially in the middle."

David Ray, Mack Rolfe and David White are the one open spot in the backfield.

The schedule: Sept. 20—Missouri at Columbia, Mo.; Sept. 27—Georgia here, night; Oct. 4—Alabama at Birmingham, night; Oct. 11—Clemson here, night; Oct. 18—Florida at Gainesville, Oct. 25—Virginia here, Oct. 31—Miami, Fla., at Miami; Nov. 8—Kentucky at Lexington; Nov. 15—Tulane here; Nov. 29—Tennessee here.

Florida State Set For Biggest Year In College Football

TALLAHASSEE—Florida State University will kick off its 12th and most significant year of intercollegiate football here Sept. 13 against Tennessee Tech. With only 11 days, excluding Sundays, to get the Seminoles ready for their fourth, and most imposing, campaign against major colleges, Coach Tom Nugent has set up a streamlined practice program. The program calls for three sessions daily. No player will take part in more than two sessions, however. Reporting for the first drills were 53 candidates. Nugent said about 35 freshmen also are working out. Following the Sept. 13 game with Tennessee Tech, the Seminoles will face Furman, Georgia Tech, Wake Forest, Georgia, Virginia Tech, Tennessee, Tampa, Miami and Florida, in that order. Seventeen lettermen, including four from 1956, and 28 untested sophomores are among the 33 varsity candidates. Gone from the 1957 squad are 10 lettermen, including all fullbacks and centers. The Seminoles must rely on sophomores to round out a squad capable of staying in the game park with many of their opponents, according to Nugent. "We'll be one of the youngest teams in the country," the Seminoles' director of athletics and head coach says. "Sophomores are the key."

The coaching staff will race the clock to ready a two-team system for the opener—Florida State's 100th regular-season game. Nugent plans to go "all the way" with a two-team plan, with one unit replacing the other at regular intervals. At least four sophomores may crack the starting lineup with another half-dozen sophs figured among the first 22 players. The Seminoles' varsity is smaller in numbers than any in recent years. But Nugent believes "it's the best-rounded we've ever had."

2 Big Bouts Stated This Week; Aragon To Tackle Basilio

NEW YORK (UPI)—Art Aragon, the California "Golden Boy," will try to beat former welterweight and middleweight champion Carmen Basilio at Los Angeles in next week's big TV radio fight, Friday night.

Wednesday night's TV bout brings together light heavyweight contender Tony Anthony and heavyweight Archie McBride at the Syracuse, N. Y., Memorial Auditorium. When Aragon of Los Angeles and Basilio of Chittenango, N. Y., square off for their 10-rounder in the city of angels, the crowd may reach 25,000 at Wrigley Field and the gate $250,000 for a new Pacific Coast record, according to promoter George Parnassus.

The fight will be televised and broadcast nationally by NBC, but the Los Angeles area will be blacked out for TV. Basilio, 31, will be making his first start since March 25, when he lost the middleweight crown on a split decision to Sugar Ray Robinson in a return bout at Chicago. That was Carmen's only fight since last Sept. 25.

Aragon, 29, has 13 straight victories, including five this year. Although Basilio will be favored, Aragon is given a chance because of his punch. He registered 55 knockouts while winning 81 of his 101 bouts. He had five draws. Basilio's 32-13-7 record includes 23 knockouts.

In Wednesday's bout at Syracuse, light heavyweight contender Anthony of New York seeks his fifth straight knockout victory of 1958 against McBride of Trenton, N. J. Their 10-rounder will be televised nationally by ABC. McBride hasn't fought since last Dec. 13, when he lost a decision to Sweden's unbeaten contender Jonansson, Swedish champion, at Göteborg, Sweden. His 21-13-0 record includes seven kayos. Anthony's 34-3-1 list has 27 knockouts.

Hurricanes Start Practice; To Face Wisconsin Sept. 26

CORAL GABLES (UPI)—Coach Andy Gustafson announced that the University of Miami football team has begun light scrimmages to try to get in shape for their opener against powerful Wisconsin in the Orange Bowl Sept. 26.

Gustafson said his lightly-regarded Hurricanes will have two-day practice sessions until the week before the season opener. He indicated that the first full-scale scrimmage would not come until later in the first week of practice.

"With Wisconsin, one of the really great teams of the Big Ten and the nation, as our opponent in the opening game, we'll have to buckle down in contact work right from the start and press the squad every minute to make them ready," Gustafson said.

The Hurricanes donned their uniforms Sunday, a day before practice opened, but only for gridiron "cheesecake" pictures for press and television.

A squad of 55 answered Gustafson's call to workouts. Eleven of them are seniors, and 16 are juniors. The rest are sophomores from last year's yearling eleven which Gustafson labeled one of the best in the school's history.

A new public address system has been installed at the backfield center, by George Reilly, Paul Kirsch, and Chester Rebeck. Tailman Van Asdale is planning to install the cabinet for the new equipment.

Mr. and Mrs. Stan Guzek, Smithtown, L. I., visited Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wolff of Lake Drive recently. Miss Doris J. Weary, Alona Rd., leaves soon for Orleans, France, where she will spend the next school year teaching the children of American servicemen stationed there.

The Imperial House, Winter Park, was the scene recently of a surprise birthday party given in honor of Mrs. William Williams, Plantation Road. Among the guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Beske, Mr. and Mrs. S. Novak, Miss Mary Dowler, Mr. and Mrs. S. Beske, and Mr. William Williams. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Leonard, DeBary, and their son, Richard Leonard, Morestown, and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Newton were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Bertrich, Eldorado Road, on Saturday evening.

Salt Water Fishing Thriving Business

TALLAHASSEE—The extent and value of salt water sports fishing has been clearly defined in a just-published survey made for the Florida State Board of Conservation. Figures were compiled by agents of the Board with help of technicians of the University of Miami, using personal interviews and telephone calls to thousands of residents and non-residents, including boat captains, fish camp operators, tackle dealers, and others. All areas of the state were surveyed.

It was found that salt water fishing is an even more significant part of Florida life than was suspected. Some of the important points of the survey are these: about 24 per cent of Florida residents fish in salt or brackish water; $108 million dollars were spent by salt water anglers for certain items and supplies in the state; incidental and indirect expenditures are not included in this total; of 290,000 boat owners in Florida, about 144,000 use the boats to fish in salt water.

Breaking the fishing down into types, the Conservation Department survey shows that bridge and pier fishing is the most popular, accounting for nearly 40% of the total. There are 225 such fishing accommodations listed. Party boats booked almost a half million fishermen on 164 boats; 702 charter boats took out nearly 450,000 sportsmen. Tackle purchases, travel costs, housing, and food all combined to place fishing in Florida's "big business" category.

Mickler Is Named Coaches' President

Paul Mickler, baseball and basketball coach at Oviedo High School, has been elected president of the newly organized Orlando County Coaches Association. At the organizational meeting, Marcene Parlin, girls' coach at Oviedo, was elected secretary-treasurer. Coaches formed the association in an effort to coordinate the athletic programs in the county. The association plans to hold round-robin tournaments in baseball and basketball. Schools to participate in the tournaments are Semolee High, DeFoe, and Leon High of Leesville. In expanding the association, coaches said they feel it is a needed step to the good of the county.

Fast Mule Needed To Race Postman

DEBARY, N.C. (UPI)—Wanted—a fast mule. The mule is "Sam" for a day here each September on the occasion of DeBarry's annual Mule Day celebration. This year, the lowly mule must uphold his right to fame such attention. The challenger will be postman Paul (Harold) Simpson of Huntington. The association's officers, Simpson has challenged any mule at the Mule Day celebration to a 20-mile race. Simpson claims he can beat any mule alive at that distance. If the mule day sponsors can find the right animal, the race will be run on Sept. 13-14 on one of Harrell County to the other—from Kenley to Bonon, a distance of 20 miles.

Maine Election Will Be 'Barometer'

(For The West, Sept. 3)
By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Maine election next Monday will give politicians their most important barometer reading so far this year to judge the political climate in November.

In 1954, the September vote in the once rock-ribbed Republican state foreshadowed a Democratic victory in the other 47 states two months later. But it misled Democrats who thought it foreshadowed a Democratic presidential victory.

Since Muskie was on the ballot and President Eisenhower was not, his personal popularity presumably drew votes for the Democratic nominee for Congress. The GOP polled 51.4 per cent of the total vote, compared with 55 per cent in 1954 and 66.6 in 1952.

TROUBLED WATERS—Icelandic coast guardsmen boarded a British fishing boat on the second day of a "cold cod war" over Iceland's imposition of a 12-mile limit on foreign fishing vessels. The British Navy said a frigate, on escort duty with the British fishing fleet, was speeding to the rescue of the trawler. This newspaper shows the extension of Iceland's home waters.

Correspondent Tells Of Big Naval Battle

EDITOR'S NOTE: United Press International photographer Norman Williams and UPI correspondent Charles Smith were aboard a Nationalist LST off Quemoy today which was attacked by Communist gunboats as it unloaded troops. Smith made it to Big Quemoy with the troops. Williams was forced to remain aboard. Their two dispatches follow.

ABOARD A NATIONALIST LST OFF QUEMOY (UPI)—Communist artillery and attacks by Red gunboats broke up an attempt today to reinforce the Nationalist garrison on Big Quemoy.

Some 30 Nationalist soldiers, 8 correspondents and 2 Nationalist navy escort officers managed to get ashore despite the Red attacks but the rest of us returned to the Pescadores.

We zigzagged all the way back because of a submarine alert, but there was no word whether the alert was caused by Soviet submarines or underwater craft supplied to the Chinese Communists. Typhoon Grace, the most powerful Pacific typhoon of the year, churned up huge waves when we approached Big Quemoy, a few miles off the Communist coast.

There were two British, one Australian, two French, 11 American and 15 Chinese newsmen aboard, on route to Big Quemoy for a look at the war. We got it sooner than we expected.

Despite the rough sea, Nationalist soldiers and some of the correspondents—eight Americans and seven Chinese—managed to board the small boats for the rough trip to the main island.

Close Vote Seen
Muskie is running this year against Sen. Fred A. G. Payne, a staunch Eisenhower supporter first elected in 1952 when he polled 55.7 per cent of the vote. A close vote is expected this year. Whatever the outcome, an interpretation of the result may have to be adjusted to account for the fact that Muskie-like Eisenhower has shown himself of no stronger than his party in Maine. He received almost 50 per cent of the vote when re-elected in 1954.

A Muskie victory would be a crushing blow to Republican hopes for regaining control of the Senate. Those slender hopes do not allow for loss of any of the Senate seats which the Republicans now hold.

Maine may show whether there were any political repercussions at the ballot box from the Sherman Adams case. Payne has admitted that he also accepted some favors from Adams' friend, Bernard Goldfine.

Authorities Hope Information Pool To Cut Accidents

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Military and civilian aviation authorities announced today a plan to reduce air accidents by pooling radar information.

The joint announcement by the Civil Aeronautics Administration and the Air Defense Command said the pool arrangement would start in the fall. One official said it might get under way as early as the last week of September.

Key of the program is installation of 31 high-powered and long-range radar sites to be operated by the CAA and AdC. Microwave delays will permit a detailed and constant exchange of information between the radar installations manned by the two agencies.

The new radars will have an effective range of up to 125 miles, a CAA spokesman said, compared to the maximum of 75 miles for CAA equipment now in use.

With the new facilities and exchange service, traffic controllers hope to do a better job of maintaining minimum separations of planes. Pilots who have drifted off their prescribed courses could be spotted and notified quickly.

ADC radar information will be made available to air traffic control centers in Kansas City, Spokane, Wash., Great Falls, Mont., Jacksonville, Fla., Oakland, Calif., Los Angeles, Washington, New Orleans, Fort Worth, Memphis and Seattle.

Transmitting radar data to military installations including some Army and National Guard units, will be the traffic control centers in Denver, Boston, Pittsburgh, Seattle, Atlanta, Miami, Los Angeles, Salt Lake City, Houston and Nashville.

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—The storm was held responsible today for the collision of two ocean-going freighters in the mouth of the Mississippi River.

The storm, still a poorly-defined tropical howler with winds of 40 to 70 miles an hour, was isolated in the Gulf about 500 miles south of Mobile, Ala., in a midday advisory issued by the New Orleans weather bureau.

Hurricane-weary residents of Louisiana watched the advancing storm with extreme caution, remembering the havoc caused at Cameron last year when more than 500 were killed by a hurricane.

The Coast Guard was alerting coastal residents about the oncoming storm, and oil rigs in some areas were being evacuated.

By JAMES W. SMITH JR. Herald Managing Editor LONGWOOD—Seminole County candidates seeking Democratic nomination in next Tuesday's primary last night made appeals to a large crowd in city park here.

Discussion became split at one point. Questions from the audience, directed to Vernon W. Dunn, concerning the source of funds for his proposed progress led to an exchange between a spectator and J. Bralley Odham.

Candidates were called in the order they will appear on the ballot. Leading off was F. E. Brady, 80-year-old former representative and sheriff, seeking to unseat Mack Cleveland Jr.

In answer to a question, Dodd said a "rough guess" on the cost of reevaluation of county property would be $100,000. Asked how he could "conscientiously vote three mills tax" on the people without knowing the cost of the program, Dodd replied: "We had to have the money ready for the survey." He was asked if it were true that the program was "pushed on" the Commission and replied, "Could be."

During this time the crews will be conducting what we in the Navy call field carrier landings. This training enables our crews to be capable of landing our nuclear aircraft aboard carriers at sea, both by day and night. Through the use of the same techniques used aboard many of our latest ships, the aircraft crews use a small portion of one of the runways as a "flap top" on land.

"Experience has shown this to be invaluable in preparing the officers and men for future operations in every ocean and sea in the world. Many accidents are averted at sea by this method. Efforts will be made to confine flying from sunset to midnight, but on some occasions it may last a little longer. It is hoped that the people of this area will bear with us during this period. Remember, the pilots are not doing this for fun.

"This is a serious business for them, in view of their early possible assignment to aircraft carriers which operate both day and night. As you know, the course for Pacific are not conducive to complacency. A real relaxation, rather, it is a time for preparedness, and the Sanford squadrons are of the greatest importance to our national defense efforts."

In clarification of this point, a high U.S. official said that present plans are not to send in fighting forces to help defend the offshore islands unless the situation should get out of hand. He said the Nationalists wanted it that way and that they had a good chance of holding Quemoy with their 80,000 troops there.

Dulles said that "naked use" of armed force by the Chinese would "achieve territorial ambitions... would pose an issue far transcending the offshore islands and even the security of Taiwan."

"It would forestall a widespread use of force in the Far East which would endanger vital free world positions and the security of the United States," he said.
