ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
NO. 18—THE TOLL-GATE BAT REAPPEARS

NANCY took one of the magic balls out of her pocket and threw it on the ground.

Presto! Change! There stood a spanking new motorcycle—license and all!

Then Nick took another one out of his pocket and threw it on the ground.

Change! Presto! There stood another spanking new motorcycle, inviting them for a ride.

"I'll run one," cried Jupe, the kangaroo, settling himself in the front seat without losing any time.

"Nancy you get on behind," said Nick.

"And I'll run the other," said Hickydo, the wooden man.

In about two minutes all four were sailing down the road like two strokes of lightning.

I don't know what the speed limit was in the Land of the Blue Cherry, but whatever it was, I am sure they were breaking it.

"We certainly should catch old Blue Whiskers at this rate," said Jupe. "Everyone knows that a motorcycle can go faster than an automobile. He can't be further than the cross-roads by this time."

On they sped like the wind.

But they were counting their chickens before they were hatched. In a flash, for suddenly a big voice shouted, "Halt!" And both motorcycles had to slow down and stop.

There, if you please, sat the same big blue bat that they had met on their way to the palace.

Only this time, the Twins noticed uneasily, he had his nose tied up with a large handkerchief, and one eye was swollen shut.

And Jupe, you may be sure, was not any too comfortable, either. He was acting as though he had just been stung by a hornet.

Only this time, the Twins noticed uneasily, he had his nose tied up with a large handkerchief, and one eye was swollen shut.

And Jupe, you may be sure, was not any too comfortable, either. He was acting as though he had just been stung by a hornet.

Now, my dears, you may understand why the travelers looked so worried when they saw the same enormous fellow parked on a big stone in the middle of the road, his wings spread out on both sides, and completely blocking it.

He had a queer look in his eye. "Oh, hi! So we meet, again," said he, snapping his jaws together as though he meant business.

"You can't get past this time unless you do exactly as I say," said Nancy. "Old Blue Whiskers, the wizard, stole the cherry and we have to get it before he eats it up."

"Must be a big word," said the bat. "And besides my nose is still sore as well as my temper. I'll let you pass when I am good and ready."

"Dear me," said Hickydo, getting off his bicycle and fumbling over his buttons with his wooden hands. "I'll have to look in my index and find what it says about bats. Nick, will you please press the seventh button and take out the bunch of yellow papers marked 'B.'"

"Don't trouble yourself," said the bat quickly. "I'll tell you all about bats that you need to know just now. First of all they can see better in the daytime than most people think they can. Second, they are always hungry. And I'm hungry now. I'm going to order a very fine dinner and you are going to get it."

"But we can't stop now, I tell you!" cried the Twins. "We have to—"

But the big blue bat went on as though he had not heard. "I want a basket of Jersey tomatoes," he demanded, "a bushel of Chinese dragon flies, and a bushel of fuzzy caterpillars with their hair cut off. Fetch me them for me at once or stay where you are, a wasp's nest. The wasps had stung the poor bat, and he had

Field's Minstrels Play To A Packed House At Milane Theater Last Night

Bert Swor, Billy Church and Jack Richard, the stars of the Minstrel Theatre, presented their thirty-ninth annual edition of America's premier blackface entertainment before an audience which packed the house, Manager Marenzette hung out the "S.O.R." sign early and many were disappointed when they were turned away from the box office.

Swor received plenty of applause with his usual line of negro comedy. The latter with his "By their fruits ye shall know them" brought gales of laughter time after time, and in his submarine scene he and some juggling with figures that had the house with him to a man. A hit always is the dancing of members of the cast, and last night was no exception. The "Blue Black Boys" came in for their share of the applause with two numbers and Swor and Church pleased the audience with a combination dance. Billy Church, a trifle heavier, threw his tenor toward the ceiling and rolled it around through the audience on several occasions. Then Jack Richards, a trifle older, tossed his voice, tenors and all, out into the uppermost regions of the gallery and the crowd liked it.

LIKE OTHER MEN

"Why can't you be like other men?" My Nellie says to me, "So many wives lead easy lives, from care and worry free. Their men don't do the things you do."

"Why can't you be like other men, And change your careless ways? Why can't you be the same to me As in our courtship days? Why must your little faults appear So prominent and plain, Put those away and be, I say, My old sweetheart again."

"Why can't you be like other men?" How often this is asked! World-wide and far all husbands are, Profoundly silent, and admit, Their faults may plainly see, And I've no doubt some point me out, And wish they were like me.

"Why can't you be like other men?" Well, here's the reason why, I am too much beneath your touch, Too often in your eye, Could you know all as you know me Day in and out, why then Your doubting mind would also find I am like other men! Edgar A. Guest

Speeding Fire Apparatus

Aside from who was right or wrong, the collision of a fire truck and an automobile at Sixth Street and Oak Avenue Sunday morning demonstrates the advisability of the City Commissioners taking immediate steps to limit the speed with which fire apparatus dash through Sanford streets.

Despite screaming sirens and warning horns, and the pretty well established custom of giving absolute right-of-way to speeding fire apparatus, there are in every community so called motorists who will attempt to make crossings first, who will pull out directly in front of onrushing engines, stall "flivvers" directly in their path or do any one of the apparently limitless number of fool tricks in the motorist's repertoire.

There are in every community motorists who demonstrate very clearly every day their inability to take care of themselves, consequently, this being a Christian country, city governing bodies are forced to protect those who refuse to protect themselves. It is a thankless and somewhat discouraging task, but it has to be done.

In a city of Sanford's size, fire engines limiting their speed to twenty-five or thirty miles an hour could accomplish practically the same salvation of a burning building by arriving a few seconds behind engines speeding at fifty or sixty miles an hour. While drivers of fire trucks in this city have usually exhibited maximum precaution in answering alarms, a heavy engine moving in excess of thirty miles an hour cannot easily be stopped, and sooner or later this practice, if continued, will take its toll in human lives.

In Sunday's accident, the automobile struck by the engine was reported to be almost completely demolished. Its occupants escaped serious injury almost miraculously.

It was doubtless one of those unavoidable accidents that are bound to happen, and neither driver may have been at fault, but the collision is indicative of the disastrous results that may come of fire engines abandoning all speed regulations in answering alarms.

An Interesting Suggestion

The suggestion of Governor Moore of New Jersey that all laws carry automatic time limits by which they will be repealed when they have served their purpose, seems to be the most interesting if not one of the best practical solutions of this nation's law troubles that has come to light in many months.

Thousands and thousands of unenforced, dead laws that were useful many years ago but which now have no weight are cluttering the law journals. Thousands of absurd laws that could not possibly be enforced today are carried as so much dead weight, a source of confusion and despair to the law student. In addition to removing all of these obstructions to the healthy progress of law, the adoption of Governor Moore's suggestion would create a more truly democratic form of government by giving the citizen of today the option of continuing under or breaking away from restrictions and legislative measures passed by their forefathers.

Some of the finest legislative minds in the country have sponsored Governor Moore's interesting suggestion, and the Associated Press says that a nation-wide movement to make twenty-five years the life-time of all statutes has been inaugurated.

Jay B. R. Smith, editor of law publications of the United States Corporation of America, and former assistant secretary of the state of New Jersey, tells us that "thirty-four governors have responded favorably and nine hundred and forty Chambers of Commerce have taken up the proposed legislative change."

The suggested life of laws enacted under Governor Moore's plan is long enough to prevent the confusion that might result from the adoption and repeal of measures every year or so. If, at the end of a law's twenty-five year term of life, the measure is still applicable and popular, the law would be returned to office for another twenty-five year term.

I AM A FIRM believer in the soundness of agricultural communities, and believe there is no one economic factor in this country that controls our fundamental structure like agriculture and the production of crops. As Kansas has its wheat crop and Illinois its corn, Florida has both agriculture and its tourist crop. The latter comes every winter and produces great revenue and great wealth for the inhabitants. It has been the custom and necessity of mankind for ages to devote a portion of its time to rest, recreation and enjoyment, and when a state or community is so located with its climatic and natural attractions and accessibility as to draw thousands of tourists annually, it has a source of revenue almost incomparable with any industry.—R. S. Mikeseil, Vice-President Stranahan, Harris & Oatis, Inc., Toledo, Ohio, in Manufacturers Record.

SHE WHO SOUGHT FOR PEACE

Young Mrs. Smith was in need of a domestic for general housework. She inserted a notice, stating her requirements, in the local paper. In answer to the advertisement a rather stately-looking colored girl came to her door and applied for the job.

"Me, I likes peace—tha's why! I couldn't stand it no mo' to be stayin' in a house whar heys' always so much quollin' goin' on."

Now the Joneses were friends of Mrs. Smith, and to her always, they had seemed a happy couple, ideally matched. Naturally this disclosure shocked her greatly. She could hardly believe it. Still, she shared with the rest of us, an almost universal trait—she had a natural curiosity. If the household of her neighbors was rent by internal dissensions here was a chance to find out the true state of affairs.

Six years ago Ed Howe, the Kansas philosopher and publicist, gave it as his opinion that Big Talk was a nation-wide malady in America. His diagnosis still holds. Frequently Big Talk is the starter and the modus operandi of the man who desires to inflict their will upon the public. Big Talk is a malady, because it often takes the place of action. The day dreamer is an apostle and a victim of Big Talk. He has the imagination to conceive some plans and far-flung projects, but he has not the industry and concentration necessary to carry them to fruition.

Is Life Worth Living?

Key West Call

Dr. Charles Gray Shaw, professor of philosophy in New York University, is quoted as wanting some deity next prize its soul for an invention of a reason for living. "There's no use in any one worrying himself or frazzled over the question, 'Is life worth living?' Foolish men have been doing that for a long time. The most important thing to worth living, but HOW TO LIVE. There is nothing men are so anxious to keep a life, and nothing they take so little pains to keep well. This is no simple matter. 'Life,' said Hippocrates, at the commencement of his medical aphorisms, 'is short, Art is long, Opportunity fleeting, Experience uncertain, and Judgment difficult.'"

A MAN'S REPUTATION

ORLANDO REPORTER-STAR

How hard it is for a man to get away from a bad reputation, is again demonstrated in the case of Dr. Cook. Recently Captain Roald Amundsen visited Dr. Cook in the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kansas, where he is doing time because of his fraudulent oil transactions. In an interview following that visit, Captain Amundsen declared that the claims of Dr. Cook regarding the discovery of the north pole rested on as many facts as the claim of Commodore Peary. But the answer is that Dr. Cook is a cheat and a fraud. So he seems to have been. Because of that reputation, he is denied a fair hearing in his north pole claims. As Captain Amundsen points out, Peary brought back no facts concerning the north pole and its surroundings that Dr. Cook had not sold months before. To be sure, Dr. Cook's story was very cloudy in many respects, and there were some unpleasant earmarks, which with his reputation for making false claims and doing the spectacular stunt whenever occasion permitted, discredited his whole story.

WHERE ANGELS FEAR TO TREAD

FRANCE'S FAUX PAS

LOUISVILLE COURIER-JOURNAL

Against the advice of students of foreign relations that the imposition of the French income tax on American residents was a violation of treaty stipulations, the Chamber of Deputies endorsed this proposition. Against the protests of hotel proprietors that the confiscatory levies would ruin their business, the Senate has followed the course marked out by the lower house. From 20 to 50 per cent of the incomes of American citizens sojourning in France would thus be subject to a French fiscal scheme, while at the same time subject to a much milder form of the same revenue plan from their home Government.

MAKING IT "SAFE"

FT. LAUDERDALE NEWS

Ohio has been "exposed" to a proposal for compulsory automobile liability insurance backed by a state fund. This would be the state's most complicated undertaking, and especially so under industrial management. Why put the state into the business? Probably for no real reason except to build up the political machinery of government and hasten the day of socialistic control. The law proposed in Ohio would charge each motorist $10.00 in addition to license fees, for a state insurance policy to protect the public. Of course, the fee is an arbitrary amount and not based on any law of reason or experience. With the taxpayer to fall back on mistakes in estimated expenses for state undertakings make little difference. The theory of compulsory insurance is a means of creating responsibility in irresponsible persons, may be good. But by removing what little responsibility such persons now feel, it is probable they will be all the more careless and "let the state pay the bill." Thus accidents would be increased rather than prevented.

ANDERSON-MATTHEWS WEDDING IS EVENT AT GREENVILLE, S. C.

The following notice from the Piedmont, Greenville, S. C., paper will be of much interest to many in this city.

A beautiful home wedding of interest to a wide circle of friends in this city and in Georgia, where the bride was reared and has many relatives, was solemnized when Miss Nelle Anderson became the bride of David Augustus Matthews, formerly of this city but now of Gastonia, N. C.

The marriage took place on Saturday evening, Feb. 20, at the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Woods on East Avenue. The attractive home was decorated with Southern amylax and vases and tall banners of pink and white carnations with feathery ferns and softly glowing candles.

Just before the ceremony, several musical selections were rendered by Miss Heryl Brawley at the piano, and Mrs. Lucian Earle with violin.

At the first notes of the wedding march, promptly at 8 o'clock the wedding party descended the stairway to the ceremony room. Little Miss Sue Woods, the bride's niece, wearing a dainty pink chiffon dress, acted as flower girl and was the first to enter, carrying a basket of roses, from which she strewed the bridal path with rose petals. Edward Tisdale, nephew of the bride was the handsome ring bearer. Mrs. R. C. Tisdale of Gilbo, Fla., sister of the bride, was matron of honor and wore a handsome gown and carried a corsage bouquet of sweet peas and ferns.

The bride and bridegroom entered together and the beautiful and impressive words of the marriage ceremony were spoken by Dr. George W. Quick of the First Baptist Church. The musicians softly played "To A Wild Rose" during this time.

The bride, who is a very attractive young girl, was never more lovely than on her wedding evening. She wore a beautiful georgette crepe in tan shade in late spring model with this she wore a very becoming spring hat and carried an exquisite bouquet of sunset roses showered with bits of the veil.

Immediately after the ceremony an informal reception was held and a delicious buffet supper was served. Those assisting Mrs. Woods at this time were: Mrs. Tom Watson, Mrs. W. E. Ruth, Mrs. Henry J. Winn, Misses Catherine Coker, Mary Kendrick, Edith Ragsdale, May Louise Doster, Mary Dillard and Mrs. J. K. Muse. About 40 guests were present.

The bride and groom left shortly afterwards for a wedding trip to Florida after which they will be at home in Gastonia, N. C., where Mr. Matthews has recently gone to make his home. He is in charge of the R. S. Dickson Stocks and Bonds company and was for a number of years vice-president of

DISTRICT CONVENTION OF W. C. T. U. IS HELD AT SANFORD

The District Convention of Orange and Seminole County chapters of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held at Sanford, Florida, Thursday, Feb. 25, at the Congregational Church.

Mrs. Belle Avery of Tall, Fla., district president, called the convention to order. The opening song, "America The Beautiful," was sung by the audience, after which the devotional exercises were led by Mrs. T. E. Thornley.

Mayor Forrest Lake, made the address of welcome, and in a few words, congratulated the W. C. T. U. on the splendid work that they have accomplished, touching on the many things done in the Christian home along educational lines.

Mrs. Zachary and Mrs. C. H. Pearce Entertain The Pipe Organ Club

One of the most delightful meetings of the Pipe Organ Club of the First Baptist Church, was that of Monday evening, when the club was entertained by Mrs. W. A. Zachary and Mrs. C. H. Pearce.

The principal speaker for the evening was Mrs. La Mance, who told in a most interesting manner of her trip to the Holy Lands. She also told of the work of the Near East Relief, and how the children of the East look to America for help.

Mrs. Henry Wright, president of the Woman's Club, greeted the delegation in behalf of the local Woman's Club. In the absence of Mrs. Ada Hunter of Winter Park, treasurer, Mrs. Bertha Marvahn of Orlando.

The afternoon session was presided over by the district president Mrs. Belle Avery. The scripture reading was by Mrs. Lydia Murray, district vice-president, Orlando, followed by a prayer by Rev. P. H. Fry. This was followed by a vocal solo "Ninety and Nine," sung by Mrs. P. H. Fry.

HOLLYWOOD

BY-THE-SEA

Ideal City to Live, Play, Work

HOLLYWOOD By-the-Sea is the ideal city to live, play and work. It is the place for home ownership—the place for property investment. Hollywood By-the-Sea is growing stupendously. And yet its growth has but started. Its corporate limits occupy 33 square miles. Its streets are broad. There are fine homes, apartments, hotels, schools, churches—everything for visitors or permanent residents.

Hollywood beach has seven miles of frontage—a fine surf with bathing possible every day in the year—with the finest casino in Florida, with the cement Broad Walk and the $3,000,000 Hollywood hotel, Florida's most beautiful and "homey" hotel.

Industrial Hollywood will be built about the $15,000,000 harbor at Lake Mabel. An industrial unit will be built there. To this harbor will come the cargoes from the ports of the world for manufacture, and for consumption in Florida. And from this port will go the products of Florida—everywhere.

Thus briefly, the strength of Hollywood is stated—all following the original ideals of Joseph W. Young, founder.

The present development indicates only the great development to which Hollywood By-the-Sea will go as one of the great cities of Florida and one of the great ports of the world.

SONATA IN SYNCOPATION By FANNIE HUNTER

The World's Highest Paid Short Story Writer

Author of "Lummock"
"Humoresque"

Copyright, 1925, by
The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Thirty-two years, when you loved a thing, is not, after all, anything too much in the way of a dedication to a dream.
Clarence Denny, for thirty-two years, went about with a bell swinging in his head, a bell of melody, that was beating and pressing against his brain. Yet, when he sprang out of sleep, sure that he could capture this haunting melody, it always eluded him.
For thirty-two years.
Then came the great day when the melody took form, as naturally, as spontaneously, as gorgeously, as the leap of a cataract or the swoop of a rainbow.
Clarence Denny took his last ride, across the continent, to the ecstatic rhythm of his Sonata in Syncopation.

THIRTY-TWO years, when you love a thing, when you're consumed and burning with it, is not, after all, anything too much in the way of a dedication to a dream.

Clarence Denny had offered thirty-two years, gladly, upon the shrine of his dream. What were thirty-two years if out of them there would bloom some day fulfillment? It made you debonnaire about the thirty-two years of failure, of ache, of disappointment, of poverty, of yearning.

So long as Clarence Denny was able to keep alive in himself the flame of hope, and, later on, when the flame had died, even a pale and trembling spark of hope, it wasn't impossible to shut out the concrete realities of a world of disappointment and huddle beside the embers.

Consider what it must have meant for a man with a passive but rather sensitive face and long, nervous fingers that were always stumping on chair arms and street car window sills, to have carried around most of his lifetime a melody; a melody that hung in his brain like a bell in a tower, and swayed there, and sang there, and tolled there, and beat there, and ached there. A melody that sometimes could seem to hang in a haze before his eyes, and again to press against his temples, and again to sit upon his eyeballs. Silence buzzed to that melody. Street cars rattled to it. Wind howled to it.

People said Clarence was queer—with that look of listening in his face.

He wasn't queer. He was out after a melody. A melody that cluded him like a butterfly slipping through his fingers when he would grasp it.

Sometimes he sprang out of sleep and out of bed ready to pour it on paper, and lo, before his fingers had curved around the pencil, there was nothing there. Travellers on deserts go easily made with the elusiveness of a mirage. Well, Denny had been running up breathlessly to his mirage, for thirty-two years.

Denny had had his fingertips on the capturing of that melody and it had flowed through them like water.

No wonder that Denny was a failure. If you tried to be a salesman in a haberdashery and there was a bell swinging in your head, of melody, it was hard to remember the price of polka-dot cravats. If you attempted to be a book-agent and all day long walked from door to door with a sample copy under your arm, it was practically impossible not to sit on a door step while the days slipped by, swaying to the rhythm. The rhythm that seemed to make you a little mad because you couldn't capture it.

No, small wonder that Denny was a failure. Women liked him and thought him poetic and sensitive, but a little queer, and sometimes, when the listening look was on his face and he forgot them, they became a little frightened and rapped their foreheads with their forefingers and stopped yearning over his poetic look of frailty.

At twenty-five Denny was already marked as a man who was not getting on in the world. At thirty, a frayed collar no longer bothered him. At thirty-two he turned to a book-agent. At thirty-five he had already devoted himself to the writing of his life to the great end of the melody, the melody that needed to be born. The melody that was pressing against his being and restraining him and making his nights full of a tortuous kind of rhythm and making his days full of an endless and lonely agent and, finally, even as a water clock.

And then one night when Clarence leaped out of bed he had had his fingers on the capturing of that melody and it had flowed through them like water. It was as if he had been struck as spontaneously as the leap of a cataract or the swoop of a rainbow through a door, and he had leaped out of the bars of his body, and the end intoxicating rhythm of syncopation, reflected in him, as it were, of the pressure of thirty-two years.

When morning appeared in the little pale, gray street against the dingy room that Denny called home, there were forty-eight pages of musical hieroglyphics in a fury of swirl about him.

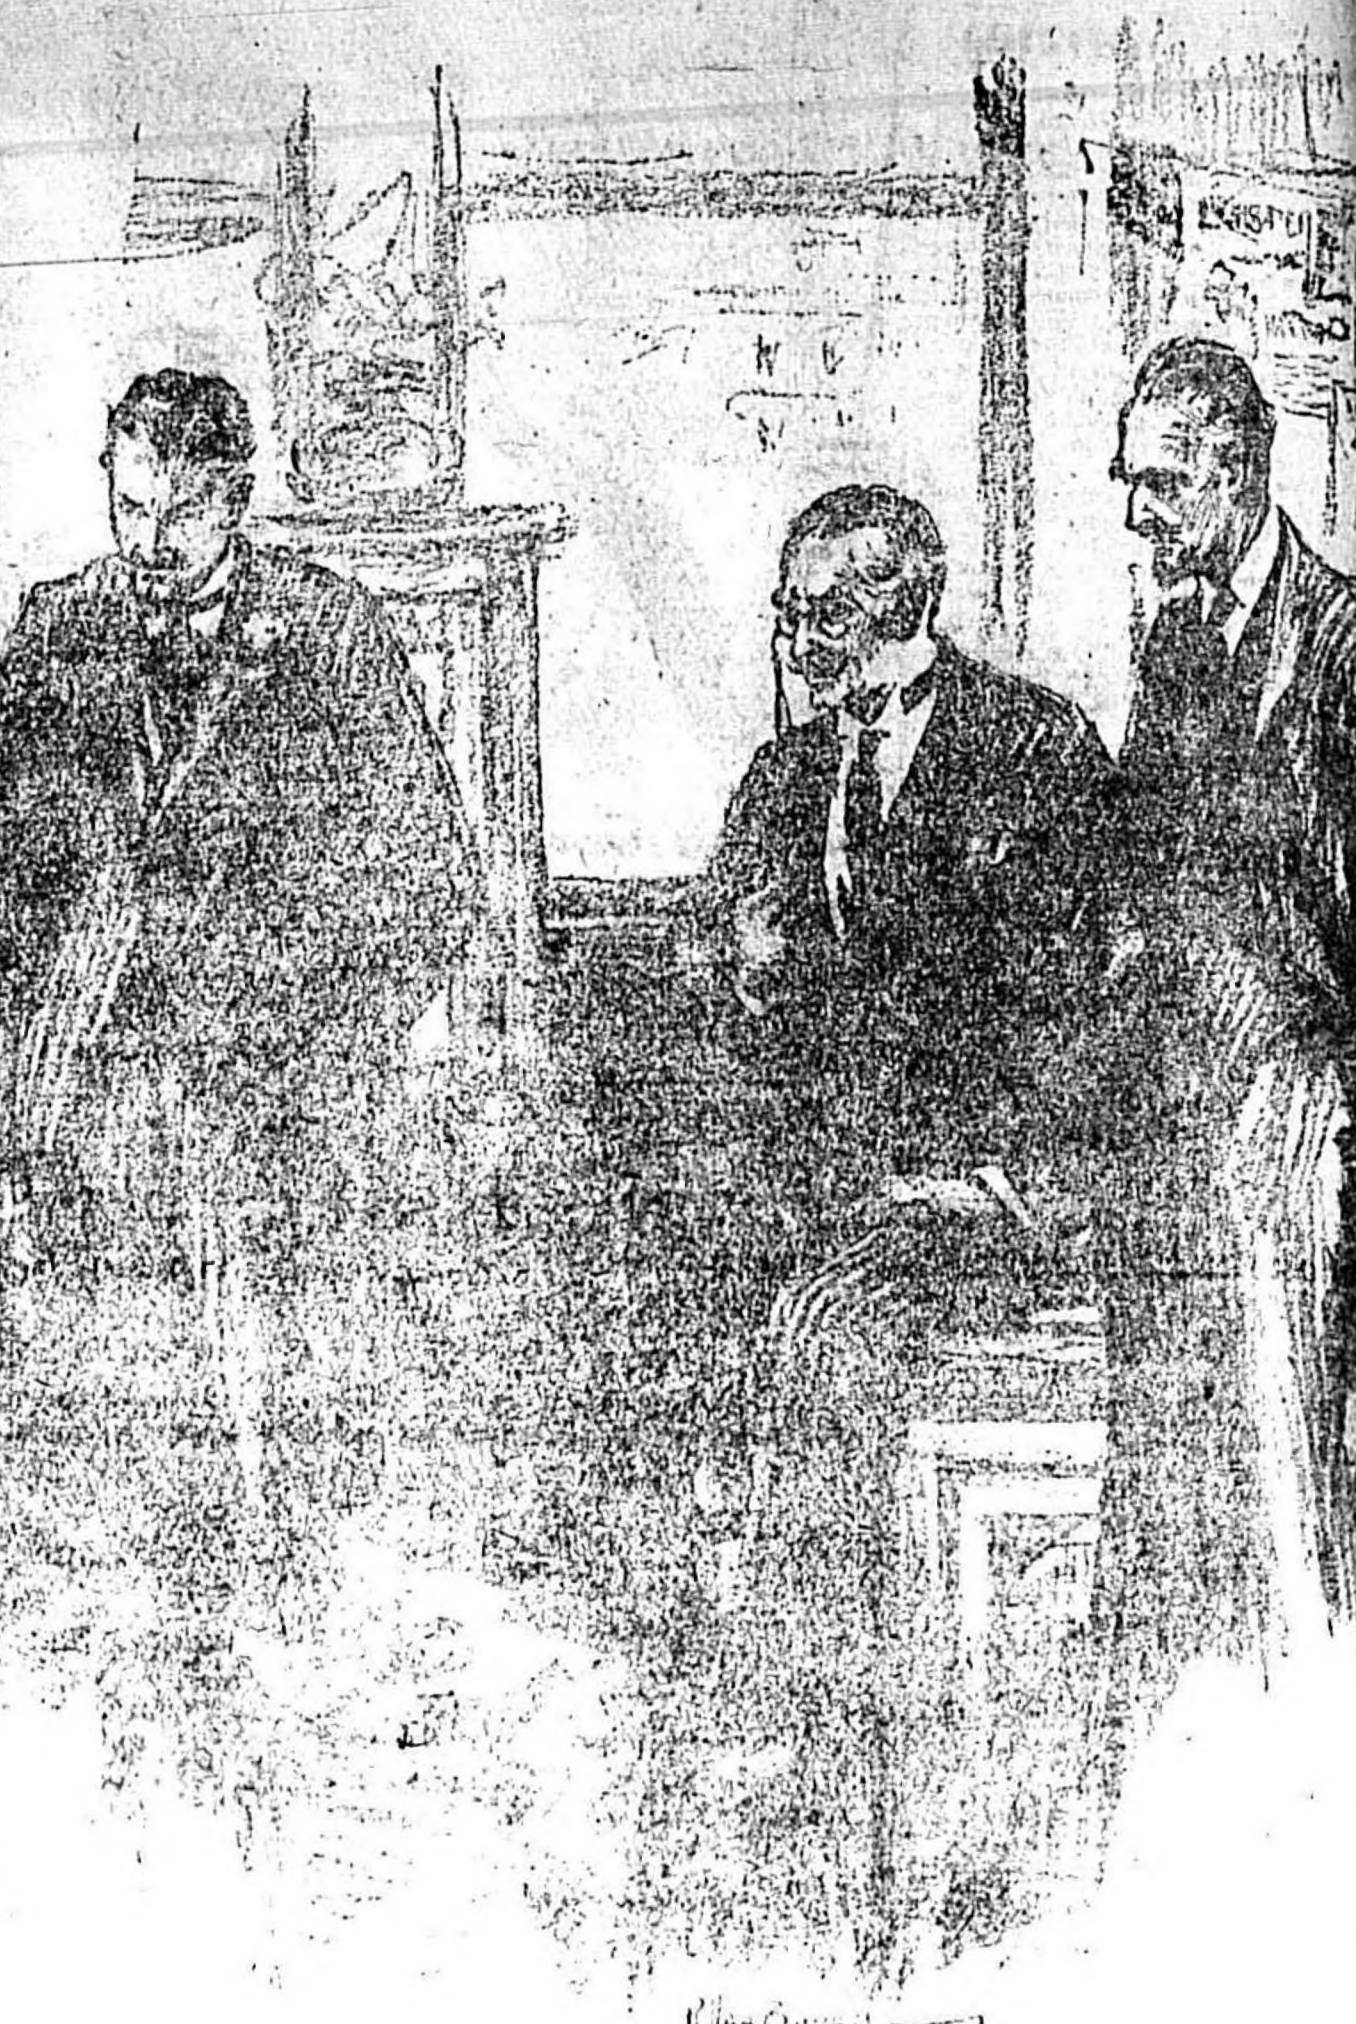

Denny had got said his Sonata In Syncopation. The impudence of that. A sonata in syncopation. He was drenched through with perspiration and his hands were too incoherent to gather up the pages and he kept laughing as he finally got them stacked.

The impudence of that. A Sonata In Syncopation.

Well, so the musical publishers thought, too. The impudence of that.

For another four years, between mixing pineapple sodas and banana splits, Denny peddled the Sonata In Syncopation. Peddled it on shoe soles that were actually separated from the sidewalk by thick folds of newspaper. The ache was gone and the rhythm was gone and the excitement of composition was gone and in Denny's hands, like the wings of a limp bird, were pages of manuscript. Pulp from handling and from sliding in and out from under his pillow nights when he slept.

One day a publisher with a new gilt sign above his doorway sat down at the piano while Denny waited, and played off the first two pages of the Sonata in Syncopation and told Denny to come back with a check.

Two weeks later the proprietor of a drug store opened shop one hot Sunday with a soda clerk suddenly missing. That was the day that Clarence Denny disappeared from the city in which for thirty-two years he had peddled his rhythmic wares.

One day, seven years after this event, a man in a hat on a Sierra was found dead on the pile of brush below his head. There seemed to be a certain resemblance to Clarence Denny. His thin face there in the brush, and his beard the color of brush, and his beard below his chest like brush. His eyes, it was hard to know a man lay just brush.

And suddenly he went out from those Sierras, starting a trumpet of a war, rearing lying dead on his pallet the color brush, was Clarence Denny. Composer of Syncopation, a musical composition recent the high-water mark of an era of magnificence. A musical composition America, at the moment of Clarence's death, was swaying to an intoxicating. A slow rhythm that must have been its way into public consciousness, just been slow in dragging itself out of the brain of Clarence Denny.

Symphony societies all over the country featuring it. Excerpts from it were in concert programs. The more melodious lines moved gradually out of harbor of it, and Clarence Denny, the color of lay dead in his hat on the side of the

They buried him very grandly across the desert on a pier at which came to look. Strains of his symphony floated across that desert at night in little desert houses.

They buried him from a church the streets of which he had tramped for years with the newspaper between his feet and the ground.

They buried him grandly the rhythm of Sonata in Syncopation.

Aggie Five to Win South's Tournery

Florida Polytechnic Institute (Auburn); University of Tennessee; Washington and Lee; University of Georgia and Vanderbilt.

University of Mississippi won ten straight, conference games after losing the opener to Louisiana State University, which did not enter the tournament. It did not meet the University of North Carolina during the season, but defeated the Aggies, 23-20, and the second game was cancelled because of assembly restrictions on the Aggie campus.

North Carolina won six out of eight conference games, being defeated by North Carolina State in a big upset, 18-7, and by Maryland, 23-22. Among the conference teams it played were Maryland, University of Virginia, Washington and Lee, Florida, Clemson and North Carolina State, the latter twice. It won 16 out of 21 games on the 1925-26 schedule. Harvard won 40-37 in an extra period.

To reach the semi-finals, Mississippi Aggies had defeated Maryland, a big favorite, 22-19, and North Carolina State, 32-20.

Kentucky has defeated V. M. I., 32-26, and the University of Georgia, 33-24. The latter was something of a grudge battle as Kentucky won over in the finals of the 1921 tournament by a one-point margin, on a free leg after the timer's gun had sounded.

"Ole Miss" has defeated University of the South (Sewanee), 50-16 in a run away game, and Georgia Tech, 30-14.

North Carolina has defeated Clemson, 52-21, and Virginia, 25-23.

Armer Scheduled For Armory Show Tonight

Armer is the best of them at his weight. He is said to have been booked with a tough opponent in Arno, who several look good.

Arno has knocked out Wally Atkins, Joe Edwards, Billie Richards, Frank Carroll and Babe Nelson.

Though these boys are milling in the armory, many local fans believe Irving has grown out of the preliminary class and deserves a chance at the main go. He has proven very popular here and has always shown a willingness to fight at every stage of his bouts.

One of the preliminaries for tonight's show is to be between none other than Kid Slapney, Sanford Negro and Kid Gerry, of Orlando. Slapney has been dancing around in a lead ring for several weeks and has been whipping every day to face him. In Gerry he will meet the kind of opposition which will make the bout one of the entertaining features of the evening for the customers.

Fight Results

HARTFORD, Conn., Mar. 2.—Louis (Kid) Kaplan of Meriden, featherweight champion, outpointed Billy Petrolle of Fargo, N. D., 12 rounds.

Philadelphia—Ted (Kid) Roy of Canada, knocked out Danny Garner of Philadelphia, 8 rounds. Eddie Leonard of Baltimore, beat Cleve "Kid" Durand of Canada, 10 rounds.

Cleveland—Pete Sarminto of Philadelphia, won on a foul from Benny Bass of Philadelphia, 10 rounds.

Morris Layton of New York, outpointed Jimmy Zill of Youngstown, 6 rounds.

New York—Jimm Dundee of Baltimore, scored a technical knockout over Tommy Freeman of Hot Springs, Ark., 6 rounds.

"Mushy" Callahan of Los Angeles and Archie Walker of Brooklyn, fought a draw, 10 rounds; Carl Duane beat Malone, 10 rounds.

Memphis, Tenn.—Harold Smith of Chicago, and Johnny Rosen of Memphis, fought a draw, 10 rounds.

Clearwater, Fla.—Harry Forbes of Akron, Ohio, knocked out F. Muller of Havana, 1 round.

LIVE OAK—Contract let for installing modern steam heating plant in county courthouse.

WILLIE KAMM, famous third-sacker of the Chicago White Sox, differs from most of the other high-priced minor leaguers that have come into the majors of late years, in that he made good with a vengeance.

Kamm cost the Chicago club a heap of money. He was purchased at about the same time Jimmy D'Connell, Sammy Hale and some other stars from the lower leagues were grabbed for big coin. Kamm proved his worth right off the bat. Kamm is an especially sweet fielder. He can get 'em anywhere around the hot corner and make a stout arm which enables him to shoot the ball across to first with speed and accuracy.

The former Coast League star isn't a terrific clubber but is fairly dangerous in a pinch. One season he had the happy faculty of turning many of his hits into doubles, which earned him the name of "Dublin' Bill." Kamm, by the way, dislikes the name "Willie." He much prefers to be called just plain "Bill."

Many Veterans Are Gone From The Major Leagues

NEW YORK, Mar. 2.—Many veterans of long standing will be conspicuous by their absence when the 1926 major league race gets under way. Some dropped out while the 1925 chase was in progress; others drifted along since the world series last fall.

Included in the list are three of the most prominent utility players in the American League has had in a long while. They are Ernie Johnson, Mike McNally and Howard Shanks. All were in the big show over a lengthy period. Each played with several clubs.

Johnson broke up with the White Sox in 1912. He also saw service with the St. Louis Browns and New York Yankees. He was twice shut out to the minors, only to have on a comeback with the Yankees in 1915.

McNally "came up" with the Boston Red Sox in 1915. He spent the latter part of the 1915 campaign with Providence in the International circuit. He was also with the Yankees, Red Sox and Senators, returning to the Yanks last season when Everett Scott went to Washington.

Shanks joined Washington in 1912. He played the outfield and took a crack at every infield position during his 11 seasons with the Nationals. In 1923 he was traded with Val Picinich to the Red Sox for Muddy Ruel and Allan Russell. The following year he went to the Yankees in exchange for McNally. Neither Johnson, McNally nor Shanks ever reached stardom heights in the main tent. All were ball club, however. Johnson gained quite a reputation as a pinch-hitter on several occasions.

"Rube" Marquard, the once famous "$11,000 beauty," is another of

ORLANDO BALL FANS DECIDE TO ENTER LEAGUE

Enthusiastic Meeting Held Monday Night When Plans Are Made For This Season

ORLANDO, March 2.—(AP)—Orlando will have a baseball club of young, clean cut hustling players entered in the revamped Florida state league.

This was the decision of a score of sport fans gathered at the San Juan hotel Monday night at which time officers of the organization were named and plans perfected for the sale of stock to finance the opening of the club. A second meeting will be conducted at 4 p. m., today at the San Juan hotel at which time officers hope to receive the sale of stock valued at $10,000.

According to the present plan of operation, shares of stock will be sold for $100, with which will be granted two season passes. Sale of season and former admission tickets will be conducted later.

More than 100 men will be included as stockholders of the organization, according to plans. Approximately 40 men were signed at the meeting last night.

Officers of the new organization named by the fans are: Charles A. Allison, president; Charles Tidwell, vice president; Charles F. Farry, secretary and E. G. "Duke" Hauslett, treasurer.

With the organization of the new club comes the inauguration of the "knob-hole gang," an association of youthful rosters who will be given admission on specified days. One suggestion included the plan to give tickets to all students obtaining high grades in their studies. Ladies' Day will also be included in the "special events" of the club program.

Immediately after the club was organized, Tim Hurst, sporting magnet and former manager of Barney Oldfield, famous racing driver, offered $500 to obtain an option to buy the stock of the club at the end of 12 months.

Plans for the staging of the games includes the revamping of the fair grounds, the installation of turning many of his hits into doubles, which earned him the name of "Dublin' Bill." Kamm, by the way, dislikes the name "Willie." He much prefers to be called just plain "Bill."

BILLY EVANS SAYS

SOUTHPAWS ERRATIC

What makes the southpaw wild? Major league managers would welcome the answer to that question.

Without a doubt the biggest disappointment of last season in the big show was "Lefty" Groves of the Athletics.

Lack of control made more or less of a "bust" out of Groves.

The previous season with the Baltimore club of the International league, Groves had a sensational season of the circuit. He won 23 and lost only 6. Incidentally he struck out 231 men in 236 innings, almost on an inning. Some pitching.

When Groves got the ball over the plate in the American league he was almost as effective for he whiffed 118 men in 107 innings.

On the showing of Groves largely depends the chances of the Athletics to win this year.

"I wasn't so much wilder than usual last year," explains Groves, "it was the careful way the big league batters look over your stuff that made me seem so. They don't offer at many bad balls in the big show."

CASE OF HARPER

In connection with the experience of "Lefty" Groves, I recall the case of Harry Harper who started his major league career with the Washington club.

I have called him and strikes for Rube Waddell when he was in his prime, seen all of the great left-handers of the last 20 years in action and will say that a few of them had more stuff than Harry Harper.

But Harper was wild and during his connection with the Washington club it was the exception for him to finish a ball game. When he pitched I was sorry I didn't have an inflated suit. Half of his heaves would strike the ground in front of the plate.

The Washington club finally decided to control what they thought Harper never would acquire, so he was pushed on to the Minneapolis club of the American association, Joe Cantillon, former Washington manager, owned that club and Washington was a working agreement between the two teams.

Harper gave players and scribes of the association much to talk and write about before he had been in the league a month.

UNUSUAL CAREER

Last spring while touring the training camps, I bumped into Joe Cantillon in Florida. He was doing some scouting work for the Chicago White Sox. Harper was one of the topics we discussed.

"When Harry joined my club," said Cantillon, "he explained to me that he had been instructed to let up on his stuff if unable to get it over."

"I told him to forget about such instructions, that I wanted him to put something on every ball. I don't care if you give enough passes to make a parade of players from Minneapolis to Louisville, give 'em all you got."

"In his first game he lost 8-7 in 11 innings, striking out 16 and walking 6. He lasted four innings in his next start, whiffing 7 and passing 11. Must have thought he was rolling the dice instead of pitching baseball.

"His wildest day was his third game. In eight innings he play he walked 20 and fanned 7. Of course he lost.

"That season he worked 133 innings and struck out 135 men, also walked 121. He averaged better than a strikeout an inning and almost a base on balls."

Unquestionably lack of control kept Harry Harper from being as much talked about as the late "Rube" Waddell.

WINTER HAVEN GAINS

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., Mar. 2.—(AP)—Building permits for Winter Haven for February totalled three hundred thirty four thousand three hundred dollars. A slight decrease from January but a gain of four hundred and twenty per cent over the same months last year.

The planes arrived here Sunday afternoon from Hampton Roads, via Morehead City, N. C.

Gambling For Large Stakes Is Tabooed

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Mar. 2.—(AP)—Gambling for high stakes and dice are absolutely taboo at the Paso Robles, Calif., spring training camp of the world champion Pirates. Reports received here say Manager William McKechnie has issued an edict to this effect and those known that games with only small amounts involved will be tolerated.

"I have seen many clubs disrupted by dice games," the Manager is quoted as having told the players.

STATE NEWS BRIEFS
BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

TAMPA, Mar. 2.—The most beautiful bionia vine in the country is believed to have been found in Florida. It is at the home of Henry Beaumont, near Lutz. The vine, a small cut plant when placed into the ground, now covers several large oak trees and a portion of Beaumont's home.

GAINESVILLE, Mar. 2.—A variety dual swimming meet with Georgia Tech, in Atlanta, April 24, has been announced by the University of Florida athletic officials. The standing of the two teams in swimming contests of the past is now even, both having won the same number of meets.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Mar. 2.—The Seaboard Air Line railroad has filed nineteen condemnation suits against property owners of Broward county. The suits are being brought to afford the carriers rights-of-way for its line extension from Palm Beach to Miami.

CLEARWATER, Mar. 2.—The legislature, at its regular meeting next year, will be called upon to enact a law making Pinellas county a sanctuary for birds. The board of commissioners approved such a move, and Pinellas county's representation in the law-making body has been asked to present the bill. Sanctuaries have already been established in the county, and it is proposed to add other sections.

DELAND, Mar. 2.—Howard G. Putnam, incumbent state senator, has announced his candidacy to success himself. Senator Putnam stated that he would make the race on a platform opposed to the proposed division of Volusia county.

PENSACOLA, Mar. 2.—The schooner Robert L. Bean, which ran ashore here along with the Annie C. Ross, will be hounded, it was decided after efforts to float, the craft were found to be futile. The Annie C. Ross is being salvaged.

BRADENTON, Mar. 2.—School has re-opened at Verus. After two teachers had quit their jobs, because of alleged difficulties encountered in running the institution, Miss Beatrice Maynard, of Manatee, arrived to take up the duties. Miss Maynard is a former Tennessean and taught in the mountain schools of that state.

DAYTONA BEACH, Mar. 2.—The proposed sale of trustees of the internal improvement fund of submerged lands in the Halifax river, along the water front here, will be fought vigorously by Daytona Beach, R. Dennis Craig, city commissioner declared. The sales have been advertised for March 16. The land, Mr. Craig said, was bought by the city some time ago to settle internal difficulties.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Mar. 2.—Order prevails again in the local high school following the action of a number of students in walking out for a Washington's Birthday holiday.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON, Mar. 2.—"Young Bob" La Follette's friends make the mistake of keeping the "baby senator" too much in a glass case. They seem to fear two things: 1—That "young Bob" will be represented as just "his father's son." 2—That he'll be made to look undignified. These twin worries may originate with "young Bob" himself. If so, his friends fall for them very readily. They ought to talk him out of them. SAY, you want to see "Bob" in connection with some weighty national subject, in connection with which the correct answering of which the nation's fate hangs. In that case, you can see him all right. It will be worth your while, too. "Young Bob" is better posted concerning really big issues than many a galon of twice his years

BUT suppose you want to know, "Is 'young Bob' human?" What does it feel like to be the youngest senator? "Young Bob" is something of a dandy—not an inappropriate person to consult concerning clothes. He's a highly eligible senatorial bachelor. How about that? JUST touch on one of those subjects, in connection with him, not to "young Bob" himself, but in conversation with any of his friends, and see what happens. You'll be hawled out in a minute for even mentioning such matters in the same breath with "young Bob."

IN reality, "young Bob" La Follette is thoroughly likeable, a good fellow, no swank, no airs, no "side." His dignity can take care of itself. He'll turn no handsprings on Pennsylvania avenue. But he's young. Why not admit it? Why insist, in his letters, is decrepit and has to walk with a cane? Bosh! His unmarried state?—well, that's his business, but it's no crime for a society editor to wonder if he'll always stay so. SENATOR GERRARD P. NYE is but a little older than "young Bob." He isn't so monumentally solemn. For that matter, neither is

A Growing Population Demanding More Homes

The need for more homes throughout the city is proven by the scarcity of "For Sale" signs. Make it a point to prove the claims of the Chamber of Commerce and Real Estate Organization during your next tour of the city. You are sure to realize the true condition of Sanford's home shortage.

To Lot Holders in Loch Arbor

As we've said, for 20 days from February 18 we will make to lot holders, who signify their intentions to build a home within the next ninety days, a discount of 10 per cent. Only 16 days remain in which to consummate your plans. This discount to apply on the purchase price of the lot and deductible from the next following payment.

We will take a subordinate loan on the lot, giving the Building and Loan Company or other financial institution, the right of way for the amount of the building loan.

Under this plan "Home-builders" in Loch Arbor will not be required to raise a large amount of cash as initial payment.

This offer is good for only twenty more days. If you intend building a home in Loch Arbor now is the time to complete your plans and take advantage of this unusual home-building offer.

You Can Help Sanford -- We Can Help You

We want homes in Loch Arbor and are making this inducement to get more homes on the property. Talk with our representative, have him explain in detail the manner in which we can further your building plans and financing.

What Changed Alice Longworth?

IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Mar. 2.—Random bits from an afternoon's ramble: The Wall Street section at noon-time. A sandwich man in front of the Standard Oil Building with a sign reading: "Big round stock, 25 cents." Everybody in Wall Street isn't rich. Streams of humans literally flowing down the narrow thoroughfares and spreading like tiny creeks at street junction points. Special police holding back the crowds in front of the Chamber of Commerce on Liberty street. "What's the crowd all about?" "Aw, that skipper and his crew from the Roosevelt—you know, he's the one that saved that bunch of 'em. They're giving 'em a banquet, or something," is the answer.

I wander in. David T. Varden, multi-millionaire head of a great oil company sits listening intently to a young man. The young man wears one of those blue suits to be seen in windows of waterfront stores. His hair is plastered down just a little too immaculately. He is Cosmo Franglich, one of "the men in the first boat," if you know what that means. Two of the men in the first boat never came back to the Roosevelt. There's was epic heroism and yet a man with such courage seems flustered and self-conscious in the presence of a few mere millionaires. "I fear I shall never understand human reactions."

Just because I'm marrying a congressman they needn't expect me to attend all those frumpish affairs of congressmen's wives." And the new Mrs. Longworth left New York for over 20 years. KIWANIANS HOLD 'LADIES NIGHT' AT FORREST LAKE

Jules Brazil, Famous Canadian Humorist, Features Meet; Judge Wright Praises The Ladies In Keynote Address

Featured by the original wit and an fervent personality of Jules Brazil, Canadian humorist, the "Ladies Night" entertainment of the Sanford Kiwanis Club held last evening at the Hotel Forrest Lake will go down in the annals of Kiwanis as the most enjoyable gathering ever attended by members of the club and their wives and friends.

Following dinner in the hotel's special dining room and a brief opening address by President Edward Lane, Dr. Goston Edwards, past president of the Orlando Rotary Club, in a short talk outlined the practical benefits that Kiwanis can derive from visiting other chapters of the organization and studying their methods and ideas.

Following the address of the evening, Judge Wright introduced Jules Brazil as "one of the most notable entertainers in the world, a man who can make you laugh or cry at will."

With amazing versatility he ran from the sublime to the ridiculous, bringing his listeners from a sorrowful contemplation of an old discarded, neglected piano to a contagious laughter by his impersonation of an amateur quartette singing grand opera.

Accompanying himself on the piano, the comical Canadian made his audience hysterical, laughing with merriment and tears, with the wit of a poet and the wit of a comedian.

His unusual personality and his senseless lying, beneath all of his buffoonery, left no room for the slightest resentment, in connection with his personal life at the hotel until a late hour.

NICKEL PLATE MERGER FAILS TO GET OKEY

Interstate Commerce Board Rejects Scheme By Vote Of 7 To 1 But Leaves Way For Promoters To Revise Plans

Financial Aspects Of Plan Chief Objection

Five Large Railroad Units Were To Have Been Taken In By Huge Consolidation

WASHINGTON, March 3.—(AP)—By a vote of 7 to 1, the Interstate Commerce Commission Tuesday rejected the vast Nickel Plate railroad merger, but left the way open for its promoters to revise their plans for financing such a transportation system.

The application of the Van Swearingen interests to link up five railroad units involved in the merger was denied chiefly because of objections relating to the financial aspects of the plan. The transportation phase was generally approved, but the considerations and terms of the suggested negotiations were held to be not in the public interest.

The merger would have linked up the New York, Chicago and St. Louis railroad company, or Nickel Plate with the Chesapeake and Ohio, Hocking Valley, Erie and Pere Marquette railroads in a system having more than 9,000 miles of line in 11 states and Canada, with a property value of more than a billion dollars.

What effect the commission's decision will have on other mergers remains to be seen, inasmuch as Congress has yet to pass upon a definite consolidation policy. Several other roads, however, have been awaiting the Nickel Plate decision before formally applying for authority to consolidate, among them being the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific and the St. Louis and Francisco railroads.

In its sweeping denial, the commission also necessarily disapproved the Van Swearingens' application to issue securities and to construct a new line 63 miles long from Valley Crossing to Strongsville, Ohio. In the latter instance, however, the decision was "without prejudice" to re-submission by the Chesapeake and Ohio, since track rights now held by that road include the right to build a new line through the territory now held by the Chesapeake and Ohio, and will not be renewed. Minority stockholders in two of the three units of the proposed merger who had accepted the acquisition plan on the ground that they would not receive a share of the stock in the new corporation, were upheld by a decision by the majority decision.

After going over the history of the proceedings, the majority decision was written by H. Meyer and concurred in generally by the six other commissioners participating. Detailed provisions of the proposed lease dealing with the rights of non-assenting stockholders of the units other than the old Nickel Plate "appear to be designed to coerce all the stockholders into exchanging their stock for that of the new company upon the terms proposed."

HOUSE SWAMPED WITH PROPOSALS TO AID FARMERS

Members On Subject Will Probably Be Opened Thursday By Agricultural Committee Of Lower Chamber

WASHINGTON, March 3.—(AP)—With a divergent proposal for farm relief legislation was the chief consideration of the House Agricultural Committee today.

More than a score of bills relating to agriculture have accumulated during the three months of the session. They include proposals that the government go into business with the farmers, buying crops and selling them on the market, and various price fixing bills, while others would have the government aid the producers to fund markets and to obtain reasonable prices.

Prominent in the suggestions for legislation is the demand for assistance in disposing of surplus crops. These bills now are before the House committee.

By Representative Dickinson, Republican of Iowa, to create a federal farm board, under whose direction farmers, co-operative associations would buy surplus crops at the domestic price and sell them at the world price, being reimbursed for any losses by a fund obtained by collection of an equalization fee from the producers.

By Representative Aswell, Democrat of Louisiana, to establish Interstate Farm Market Association, which, through its agencies, would provide for storing, transporting, processing and marketing commodities.

People Of Arkansas Come To Aid Of Town Stricken By Big Fire
NEWPORT, Ark., Mar. 3.—(AP)—Funds were being collected throughout Arkansas today for the relief of the town of Newport, which was destroyed by a fire which swept this town Monday, destroying approximately 225 homes and causing more than $1,500,000 damage.

The local relief committee had approximately $10,000 in hand early today with telegrams being received from other states telling of contributions for the relief work.

In most cases, subscription lists were being rapidly filled, and reports received by Earl Kilpatrick of St. Louis, staff assistant of the American Red Cross, who is in charge of the relief work.

The homeless continued optimistic, making light of their misfortunes. "Where do you live?" was the favorite greeting of one neighbor with a laughing exchange following.

Golf Club Officials Believe Annual Tournament Will Bring Out Good Players

The Rotary Club team and the team representing the American Legion are said to be slightly favored to win the Civic Club Golf Tourney scheduled to start Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, on the links of the Sanford Country Club.

Six teams are entered, representing in addition to the Rotary and the American Legion, the Lions Club, the Kiwanis Club, the Sanford Country Club, and the Sanford Rotary Club, all of whom will compete for the Studebaker Trophy donated by the San Juan Automobile Company, and which is to be retained by the club which wins the tournament for three consecutive years.

All tourists and visitors to the city are invited to attend these affairs, Mr. Long stated, and those who have failed to receive invitations are asked to come without them. Those in charge of mailing invitations say they have been unable to reach many visitors and that anyone failing to receive a card should notify officials of the tourist club tonight.

At the last meeting, C. W. Brown of Boston, was elected president of the new club and it is expected that at the affair in the city hall tonight, Mr. Brown will attempt to organize a tourist card club in order to be far more pleasant if they will come out and mix with other visitors and with the people of the city," said Mr. Brown in commenting on the purpose for which the clubs are being formed.

Chamber of Commerce officials have arranged to have many affairs of interest during the next few months for the entertainment of the city's guests and an attempt is being made to get in touch with every winter visitor in order to swell the membership of the clubs.

Practically all arrangements are complete for the dance to be given tonight and in view of plans to be discussed at the dance, a record crowd is expected to attend, Mr. Long added.

Tourist Card Club May Be Formed At Entertainment In Municipal Hall Tonight

From the success attained in entertaining tourists at a dance held in their honor last week, at which time the Sanford Tourist Club was organized, plans have been made for another dance to night and for similar entertainments during the remainder of the season, according to an announcement made today by Fred Long, chairman of an entertainment committee of the local Chamber of Commerce.

The dance to be given tonight at the City Hall is to begin at 8:30 and the music is to be furnished by the Reizenstein Orchestra.

Ten Day Leave Of Countess Will End Tonight At Eleven
NEW YORK, Mar. 3.—(AP)—The 10 days' leave granted the Countess of Cathcart in her fight to enter the United States despite an order barring her for "moral turpitude" is up at 11 o'clock tonight.

There was much doubt today, however, as to whether the night would find the Countess on Ellis Island again or in her suite at the Hotel Ambassador. The $500 personal bond, which she signed on her release from the island, declares that she must surrender to Commissioner of Immigration Curran at the expiration of her leave "as required."

No order directing her to return has been issued yet. Such an order, Ellis Island officials say, must come from Washington.

Teaching Theory Of Natural Mating Leads To Principal's Ousting
SHANNON CITY, Iowa, Mar. 3.—(AP)—Gus Stockdale, principal of the Consolidated School, has resigned following parental reports to school authorities that he had taught his classes theories of natural wedlock without marriage ceremony.

The school board accepted the resignation after questioning the principal-in-charge, C. E. Pisch, chairman of the board, said:

"Mr. Stockdale was unprofessional," that was all. He admitted, however, that reports concerning the teaching of wedlock without license was the prime cause of the resignation of Stockdale's resignation."

Three Are Killed And More Than 20 Hurt When Trains Collide
CHICAGO, Mar. 3.—(AP)—Three trainmen were killed and more than 20 passengers were injured, 15 seriously, in a head on collision of an Illinois Interurban train and a Michigan Central fast freight on the south side, today.

Officials of each road immediately began an investigation of a report that an open switch was responsible for the crash. A foreman and his helper near the scene of the wreck were held for questioning by a coroner's jury. The dead are:

Edwin N. Benjamin, Chicago, conductor of the suburban train; John Rusk, Detroit, fireman on the Illinois Central engine; Ole Nelson, address unknown, a trainman.
