

Coast Defenses Are Considered Superior To Ships

Authorities Here Say British Navy Won't Attack Nazi Shores

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—(AP)—So great is the superiority of coast defenses over naval power in attack that authorities here discount almost 100 per cent the persistent stories that the British fleet may attempt to force a landing on the North German shore.

They don't discount the possibility that the British fleet may break onto the Baltic sea and shut off German trade with Sweden, so important because of rich Swedish iron. But even that would be a hazardous task and might cost British half its navy.

Attempting to land on armed force in the face of German power along the Baltic or North sea would be one of those tasks no navy would undertake if any other avenue of attack remained. Authorities always leave light areas open. A British fleet pressed in other quarters might make the desperate attempt at a shore landing. Odds against success are high.

Long ago Germany saw the possibility that a British fleet action might be launched against her in the Baltic. She took protective steps. Taking Danzig was one important step. As a free city Danzig was not strongly fortified against naval attack. Polish forces there failed to beat off one German battle-ship. You can almost tank on it that by now Danzig is well fortified.

A Port Would Help

More than a year ago Germany crowded Lithuania out of Memel. That is another Baltic seaport that undoubtedly was only lightly armed until Germany took over.

An undefended port would be an ideal spot to make a landing. Under a naval barrage, troops could sail right into port and unload men and cannon. That is a dream situation for a navy.

Breaking into a fortified port is another thing. Shore guns have tremendous advantages over naval guns. They are concealed. The navy is in full view. Fighting and ranging devices for shore guns are greatly superior to those that can be installed on a ship.

Take Pearl Harbor, Hawaii as an example. The water all around is zoned off. The coast guns know in advance what range and direction to set off to hit a ship wherever it may be seen. Land guns, on fixed bases are far more accurate than naval guns rolling at sea. Their range normally is equal.

Any landing the British navy would attempt likely would be along some unfortified shore. It would be necessary for the heavy ships to stand offshore and lay down a barrage to keep defending forces back while troops landed. Troops ships, conveyed by destroyers and cruisers, would crowd closer into shore, put men out on small boats, and trust to naval fire to keep enemy light and heavy artillery fire and machine gun fire to a minimum.

Dangerous Work

But for a navy to stand offshore and pound away at land troops is risky business. Undoubtedly every submarine in the German navy would be concentrated on the fleet. A half dozen, breaking through the screen of destroyers and cruisers, could sink the British navy in a half hour. And they would try to break through even if it meant that time of every ten submarines would be sunk.

Moreover, a force once landed would be the target of all the defense mechanism that could be brought against it. Japan made a landing at Shanghai with considerable difficulty against a defense that was nothing compared with what Germany would build against a British attack.

The moral of this would seem to be: The war won't be decided in the Baltic.

BIRLE VERSE FOR TODAY

BUT ARE WE REALLY BETTER? The Pharisee stood and prayed thus with himself, God, I thank thee, that I am not as other men are...

A NAUSICAA REMEMBERS

These modern men! They browse carefully, skilled in the mechanics of love. They growse, they know all, and yet they know nothing.

There was a man once, He came kindly out of the sea, He was strong with the sea's laugh.

Knowing him was but yielding to the sun. JAMES DALY

There's always plenty of room at the top all right, but there's a lot more room at the bottom.

Remember the days when Woodrow Wilson was talking about "open covenants openly arrived at."

Don't blame us if most of the staff you read in the papers is disconcerting. We don't make the news; we just print it.

The new officer in charge of the Key West Naval Yard is Commander Hoey. Well, thank heavens, there's nothing in a name.

Nothing broadens one's mind, enriches his life, and flattens his purse like a vacation trip—Titusville Star-Advocate. Well, that is, nothing except two of them.

With the dictator nations things are never what they seem. Since Italy is "obviously" trying to indicate its neutrality, therefore it isn't neutral.

This writer may be old-fashioned, or just plain dumb, but he can't see where it pays the people of Key West to spend their money away from home to buy things that they can buy right here.

Most of the air raids over England so far have not amounted to much, and folks are beginning to get careless in the evident belief that the surprise attack from the air is off for the time being at least.

Under the rules of the game the Russians should have entered the Russian port of Murmansk, or returned it to its rightful owners.

William Jennings Bryan was the outstanding pacifist in this country prior to the last war, and finally resigned as Secretary of State when he became convinced that the Wilson policies were leading us into war.

Munitions For The Allies

The House of Representatives voted yesterday in favor of the Administration's neutrality program by 243 to 181, repealing the arms embargo by a margin greater than even the most optimistic of the President's supporters dared to predict.

Now United States manufactures may sell all the airplanes, tanks, munitions, or other war supplies to the Allies, or to any other belligerents, which they have the money to pay for.

It is estimated that the Allies, mainly England, have about seven or eight billion dollars which can be used for purchases in this country.

However, it is not likely that anywhere near this huge sum will be spent for planes or munitions unless the war lasts a great deal longer than most people expect.

The repeal of the arms embargo, nevertheless, does make it very unlikely that the Allies will lose the war, a vital factor of more importance to this country than the additional business which may be expected.

Cash For Britain

Although Britain has declined to give India complete independence until after the war at least, there appears no disposition on the part of that country's leading potentates to hold that against her or to fail the Empire in its hour of need.

According to Time News-magazine, the Nizam of Hyderabad, reputed the world's richest man, with an income of some $25,000,000 a year, and an uncounted fortune in gold, jewels, and whatnot, has contributed $100,000 in cash to the British Air Ministry.

The Maharaja of Bikaner, a lieutenant general himself, has made a personal gift to the British government of $30,000, while the state over which he presides has contributed $30,000 more.

The Maharaja of Indore, one of India's richest, who has an American wife and is building a home for her in California, made an outright grant to Britain for the war of $150,000, while the Maharaja of Udupur gave $28,000 and promised $19,000 a year in addition.

All in all it appears that Britain will not lack for funds with which to fight this war.

Andrews Backs Measure To Pay Med. Fly Losses

(Continued from page one) It took several weeks during the closing days of the session this Spring and summer to weigh the matter out, and after many consultations with the Department of Agriculture and Hon. Fred Brown, the Comptroller General of the United States, we drafted and redrafted a bill in accordance with the precedent in such cases, and finally introduced one which will provide for an appropriation for reimbursement, according to the report of the Special Board.

It was impossible to go any further with it before Congress adjourned in August. We find it impossible to take it up at this special session. It is our purpose to have a hearing before the Senate Agricultural Committee to which the bill I drafted and we introduced has been referred in regular session after Jan. 1.

It is to be regretted that this matter has been thus delayed but it is my belief that no one could have advanced it more than we have. Naturally, I realize the situation and am devoting my time and every opportunity possible to advance this most meritorious measure. When you have to convince some 80 or 90 other senators of its value to one State, when they are not as deeply interested as you and I are, it becomes quite a task as you might imagine.

Senator Pepper and all members of Congress in the citrus area realize, as we do, the importance of this measure and I believe you can rest assured that we will work it the best way possible to get results.

Sanford Art Exhibit Considered Success

By MRS. FRED T. WILLIAMS
The Sanford Art Exhibit, held in observance of National Art Week under the supervision of Mrs. W. M. Scott, president of the Sanford Art Club, was more beautiful than ever before and many expressed surprise that such a varied collection of pictures could come from Sanford artists, which is proof that more people are becoming interested in art each year.

In this varied collection of pictures were found portraits, flowers native to Florida, little children in groups, ships, sun sets, and glowing rays of morning light. Also a march scene where the desire to purchase the painting of a hunter's gun stands solitary and alone, apparently enjoying the solitude.

The ship picture was lovely and the coloring quite unusual. The red hibiscus as Mrs. Larrimore has said, "has but a day to live" and seemed to catch the eye of many and in fact caused a group to purchase the painting.

The pictures typed by Miss Roberta Stahl were new and very different from any others. Flower arrangements brought out in such a riot of colors, and surrounded by the antique pictures of this being the Golden Jubilee year in Women's Clubs throughout the United States, and so we admired, too, the old pictures, Currier & Ives Prints, the old Italian Fisherman, an oil painting of value, the picture of Martha Washington at 37 years and Paris, a very old picture in an appressed frame, a woodland scene in oil over 100 years old and two small woodland scenes in oil paintings of gold frames.

Gladie Burns and Highland Mary to have known them was to love them, and the poems which have come down through the years so loved by all who read them would cause one to linger at this picture.

The work on display from the schools was very much admired and many expressions of appreciation were heard, especially from parents of children for the privilege and opportunity in the lives of children to become artists if they so desire.

Miss Edith Harvey, instructor in art at Stetson University, gave a most interesting talk on art, using as her subject, "Picture Appreciation." She also placed on display many pictures depicting fine art compared with art not considered good.

The picture painted by Mr. A. W. Epps, "Sanctuary," and the group of typed pictures by Mrs. Roberta Stahl received the greatest number of post cards.

About 150 people called to view the pictures Wednesday afternoon. Displays included varied art work by the school and a custom portrait by E. Watt.

The group of oil paintings included: 2 portraits by Mrs. Dan Mitchell, bird express, flowers, I still life by Miss Gretchen Brown; flowers by Miss Margaret Spence; 3 flower studies by Mrs. Babcock; horse boat, zinnias, and rear entrance of the home by Mrs. W. M. Scott; 2 landscapes by Victor Farley; 1 flower study and 1 still life by Mrs. Roy Paxton; "Sanctuary" by Mrs. A. W. Epps; 1 pastel by M. K. Dawson; 1 pencil by Charles Dawson; 5 typed pictures by Mrs. Roberta Stahl.

The water color group consisted of 1 Japanese panel, square pig, canoe and parrot by Victor Farley; fruit by Miss Gretchen Brown; vase by Miss Virginia Zurek; 1 flower study, cabin and vase by Miss Annette Abraham; flower studies of mangelia, delphinium, and amaryllis by Mrs. H. H. Coleman; red hibiscus, morning glories, magnolia, thumbergia, black and white, "Florida scenes" by Mrs. R. L. Cornish.

Antique paintings included exhibits by Mrs. W. T. Langley, Mrs. J. B. Ray, Mr. Fred E. Williams, Mrs. C. E. Rawson, who displayed a painting over 100 years old and Mrs. Harry Hoover who showed a painting, "Neapolitan Fisherman" by Francesco, an Italian painter. This latter picture has only been in this country for 30 years.

The Sanford Art Club also had a part in this lovely program which was developed by Mrs. W. M. Scott as each circle of the club placed a most attractive flower arrangement in windows of business places on First Street.

In the spacious window of the Yonell Company store was a true Delicieux arrangement of flowers, fruit and vegetables arranged by Mrs. A. P. Herndon and Mrs. H. C. Washington representing the Anala Circle.

For the Central Circle, Mrs. H. H. Coleman placed an arrangement of glorious specimens of climbing ivy with a beautiful painting of the Florida Power and Light Company window.

Rose Circle with Miss G. D. Bishop in charge placed a pleasing arrangement of hollyhocks, as well known as Mammoth but, in the Sanford Atlantic National Bank window.

Mr. Herbert Pope in charge for the Hort Gardeners Circle chose the beautiful hollyhocks in the window of the Federal Savings Bank.

March Of Time Film To Be Shown Sunday

Charles Morrison, Manager of the Ritz Theatre, today announced that the new and much-discussed March of Time film, "Uncle Sam The Farmer," has just been scheduled for showing at his theater for three days starting Sunday. This film brings to Sanford moviegoers a story of 32,000,000 Americans their life, work and future.

The March of Time has this month featured the attention of this vast group of Americans because the War in Europe has created new and serious problems for the U. S. Farmer, and because the farmer's personal welfare and economic condition directly affect the well-being of the entire nation.

"Uncle Sam The Farmer" with a Walt Disney cartoon, "Agriculture History" and a brand new feature of Metro News, will be shown on the same program with the great Frank Capra production, "Mr. Smith Goes To Washington," starting James Stewart and Jean Arthur with an outstanding supporting cast.

Celery Feds To Face Strong Orlando Eleven Tonight

Tigers Favored On Seminole Squad On Basis Of Comparative Records

Sanford To Start Same Lineup As Last Week With Page, Epps, Angel, And Beckwith In Backfield

The Sanford Celery Feds face the Orlando Tigers here tonight in a rivalry of many years in an effort to prove they can play a good game against the men of Coach Walter Horvath.

The game starts promptly at 8:00 o'clock and indications are that a large crowd will be on hand. Although beaten in four out of five games this season, the Feds have shown a power attack on one or two occasions and haven't failed to score on a single team yet.

But they have uncovered a bright running play in the person of Jimmy Page unbranded half back who came into his own in the Deland game two weeks ago. Against the Ocala Wildcats Page also showed his fleet feet to the Ocala defensive men on one or two occasions. Dub Epps has also shown plenty of stuff when it comes to passing the oval and it may be his trusty right arm tonight upon which the Feds will call as they try to smash the Tiger defense.

The line play has also improved rapidly in the last two games although it cracked in the last half against Ocala. Members of the team promised a different story tonight. Traditionally, Sanford always gives Orlando the fight of its life.

The record of Sanford-Orlando games back to 1930 reveal that the Tigers dropped the first game of this current series, lost the next two, tied the 1936 game, and then chalked up five consecutive triumphs over the Sanford eleven.

Apparently every man on the Orlando eleven is ready to face the Feds tonight with the notable exception of Percy Kautzinger, crack fullback.

Coach Horvath told his team yesterday that "in spite of the fact that we're favored to win easily, I respect the ability of Coach McLucas to key his team for the Orlando game too much to take this game lightly."

Coach McLucas said he thought his team would put up a good fight against the Tigers. "The boys have improved quite a bit in the past couple of games although we did lose to Ocala and I expect they will play the best game of the season tonight. If they play the best game they're capable of, then it will be an interesting game."

The probable line-ups:

Orlando	Sanford
Fullback	Fullback
End	End
Quarterback	Quarterback
Running back	Running back
Wide receiver	Wide receiver
Tight end	Tight end
Line	Line
Backfield	Backfield
Defensive line	Defensive line

Miami To Tackle Texas Tech Team At Home Tonight

MIAMI, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The University of Miami football team, trying to bounce back after losing to Catholic U. last week, will start a veteran lineup for the first time this season against Texas Tech's Red Raiders in the Orange Bowl Stadium tonight.

Among the Miami men wound up practice yesterday noon Coach Jack Harding announced he had weeded out the sophomores and would rely, at least at the start, on the boys who won the State championship last season.

He named Terry Fox at fullback, Carl Jones and Mike Corcoran at the halves and Johnny Kuterra Dyer the blocking quarterback assignment.

Texas Tech promised a flashy attack led by Charlie Calhoun, a triple threat and Billy Dodd, 170-pound sophomore star. The Texas team's strong aerial game, with Dodd C. L. Starks and Calhoun tossing, and all of them are speedy runners.

Rain, which made the ball hard to handle, muffled Texas Tech's pass threat when the Raiders lost to Duquesne 13-0, last week.

The Texas team, which spent several days in Jacksonville, after coming down from Pittsburgh, was quarantined last night at Holly wood and will not arrive here until just before the game time.

Powermen Defeat Lemmond Outfit By 7 To 6 Score

Kilgore Forfeits Nightcap To Reel; Men Fail To Report

Florida Power and Light's softball team last night demonstrated plenty of power in turning back Lemmond Tire 7 to 6 for its first loss of the season. Lemmond now has won 6 games and lost one.

In the nightcap Kilgore forfeited its game to reel as several players failed to show up. However, men were recruited from other teams to fill in the empty spot and the game was played anyway with Kilgore winning 11 to 4. The game goes into the record books as a victory for Reel.

The game was exceptionally well played in spite of several errors. Dyson, pitching for Lemmond permitted the Florida Power team eight hits while Kinlaw, tossing for Florida Power, gave up nine.

He named Terry Fox at fullback, Carl Jones and Mike Corcoran at the halves and Johnny Kuterra Dyer the blocking quarterback assignment.

CHALKING 'EM UP

With CHAHLIE CHALKER

Many persons wonder if the University of Tennessee has the greatest team in the country or if a lot of experts are wrong again. We think there is no doubt that Tennessee is the greatest team in the country and we pick Tennessee to beat LSU by three touchdowns. Just take a look at that Tennessee outfit.

Neyland's senior backfield is the dazzling quartet that tore through every team it faced in '38, seldom declining to use a pass except as a waste ball. Tight-lipped, head-bumped George Cafego in the tailback position again is the spearhead of the attack with his footings, twisting drive. Captain Sam Bartholomew, quarterback, and Lew Coffman, fullback, are the stars. Roy Lamkin and Stumpy Thomson cleared the path for Warner Mizell a decade ago.

In his own right Coffman does a dizzying job of spinner-bucking, and Bob Fox at wingback, his timing so delicate on the reverse that Jack Sutherland's "south would water at sight of him."

Ahead of them is a slashing line, big enough but not ponderous, and as fast in unit speed as the average backfield. As sophomores, Jimmy Rike at center, Bob Suffridge and Ed Mohrski at guards, and Abe Shires at tackle are veteran seniors off the field. Suffridge got a lot of honors for All-American. He was very good, but probably no better than Minkki—just a bit more spectacular. Shires gives promise of becoming a national stand-out. He is a coach's player—a lineman who is never off his feet, who is always moving downfield ahead of the ball-carrier. Bob Clay, powerfully-thewed veteran, takes adequate care of the other tackle spot.

Reserves are three deep, but there is no back of the proved ability of Babe Wood to substitute for Cafego. Hunt Warren, though, is a streak of lightning and Rookie Johnnie Butler is a flashier passer and punter than old Red News himself and after the field, Suffridge got a lot of honors for All-American.
