Sixth IRA Hunger Striker Succumbs

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — IRA hunger striker Martin Hurson died today, the sixth prisoner to starve himself to death in a demand for political prisoner status, and two more inmates were weakening.

There were no immediate reports of violence, but within an hour of Hurson's death in Maze Prison, women in Catholic west Belfast began blowing whistles and banging trash can lids — the signal for start of past rioting.

Hurson, 26, died within hours of the scheduled start of the traditional Orange Day parades when Northern Ireland Protestants march in witness to their faith and commitment to political union with Britain. Some 20,000 Orangemen were expected to parade in Belfast.

The two other IRA strikers said to be weakening by the Maze Prison II-Block Committee were Kieran Doherty, 25, confined to a wheelchair on the 53rd day of his fast and Kevin Lynch in his 52nd day.

Britain's Northern Ireland Office said Hurson, who was the only inmate to replace a faster who called off his ordeal, died at 4:30 a.m. "He took his own life by refusing food and medical attention for 45 days."

Hurson's death, in the 43th day of not eating, was the quickest of the six who have condemned themselves to die since the fasts began in March. All the others had lasted at least 59 days.

Of the six deaths so far, four were in May in the first group of fasters, and now two have come from the replacements of the original four — led by Bobby Sands, who succumbed May 9. Besides replacing the original four, the IRA added four more.

The death of Hurson came after the hunger strikers rejected Catholic mediation of the Dublin-based Peace and Justice Commission to end their fast to the death.

"There is no room for intermediaries of any sort for the British will use them to try and sell us short," the prisoners said in a statement smuggled from Maze Prison. "The commission's proposals are an unacceptable dilution of our five demands."

The prisoners are demanding unrestricted movement in prison, excusal from prison work, permission to wear their own clothes, more mail privileges and a 50 percent reduction in their sentences for good behavior. Britain has refused, contending that granting the demands will allow the inmates to run the prison and use it as a school to train terrorists.

Hurson was serving a 20-year sentence for attempted murder. He began his hunger strike May 29, replacing Brendan McLaughlin, who began fasting May 14 but abandoned it May 27 because of bleeding ulcers.

Three people died in violence that erupted after IRA inmate Joseph McDonnell's death last Wednesday.

The Orange Day parades commemorate the victory of Protestant King William of Orange over deposed Catholic monarch James II at the Battle of the Boyne on July 12, 1690, near what is now Drogheda in the Irish Republic.

Violence 'Shocks' Queen

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's urban riots spread across 11 cities today with blacks, Asians and whites battling police and firefighters in hit-and-run attacks. Queen Elizabeth was reported "shocked" and "concerned" by the 10 consecutive nights of violence and was expected to receive a detailed report from Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher at Buckingham Palace Tuesday night.

In all, at least 125 youths were arrested Sunday and early today, and 13 policemen were injured — lower figures than in earlier nights of the rioting when more than 200 police were injured and arrests topped 200. The arson and looting have scarred 30 English cities and towns.

Worst hit of the 11 cities Sunday night was Leicester where 500 people, including skinheads and Asians who often fight each other, battled police for three hours. They broke into small hit-and-run groups, pelting officers with stones and gasoline bombs before slipping into the darkness.

Leicester police called in reinforcements from as far as London, 100 miles to the south. At least five police were injured, including one with a head wound requiring 19 stitches. Police said 31 youths were arrested.

A lens manufacturing company and paint store were torched and numerous other shops had windows smashed. Police reported less looting than Saturday night.

Outbreaks of what police termed "mindless vandalism" and "hooliganism gone wild" also occurred in Derby, Birmingham, Wolverhampton, Luton, Southampton, Leeds, Huddersfield, Halifax, High Wycombe and London for the 10th straight night.

Mrs. Thatcher and Home Secretary William Whitelaw met Sunday and agreed to improve police equipment, review anti-riot laws and streamline court handling of public disorder cases.

MIDWAY GROCERY BURNS

Neighborhood children were playing in the rubble this morning of the Midway Grocery store, Sipes Avenue, which was heavily damaged by fire early Sunday. Residents of the Midway community east of Sanford reported the fire about 1 a.m., ac-ording to Seminole County fire investigator Ray Pippin. Arson is suspected in the blaze that did an estimated $10,000 to $12,000 damage to the grocery store. No one was hurt in the incident. The cause of the fire has not been determined.

Iranian Firing Squads Execute 23

By United Press International

Iranian firing squads executed 23 people charged with armed rebellion today and Tehran Radio reported six supporters of former President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr, including his brother, were arrested for helping to hide the fugitive politician.

The officials Pars news agency said gunmen riding motorcycles opened fire on an Islamic judge and an Islamic prosecutor in the Caspian region north of Tehran. Both men survived the attack but one of the assailants was wounded before escaping, the agency said.

"A suspicious person on the scene was arrested and a motorcycle left by the attackers was also found," the agency said.

The mass executions and the reports of the arrests came a day after Bani-Sadr released a taped message from his hiding place inside Iran, vowing to counterattack the religious "despots" who ousted him and are killing his followers.

The latest executions in Tehran and seven other cities brought to at least 196 the number of people put to death for political offenses since Bani-Sadr was impeached and dismissed three weeks ago.

Tehran radio said the 23 political prisoners were condemned for "armed uprising."

Knowles Raps Water Management District

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The St. Johns River Water Management District has ordered a cut-back of 15 percent in water consumption in the 19-county district which includes Seminole County.

Since the district has no way of enforcing the order, however, it is requiring city and county governments to adopt ordinances mandating the conservation and to provide enforcement by city and county police agencies.

Sanford City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles, in a memo to the Sanford City Commission prior to its 7 p.m. meeting today, criticized the district board and its staff for being "unaware" of state requirements for the adoption of ordinances and for having "little to no experience in the real world of interfacing with people." He said in the memo the district staff "apparently comprised of young academicians... have provided 'drawing board policies' for the district's board to pass.

In the memo, Knowles said that the district originally intended to order cities and counties to adopt an ordinance on the matter within 30 days. Knowles said, however, the district commissioners changed the order after being informed that under state law a permanent ordinance cannot be adopted in that short a period of time.

Knowles said the district board's attorney was not aware of state law concerning the time requirements for adoption of an ordinance or of the restrictions and legal problems confronting the enactment of no-growth policies and moratoriums.

The St. Johns River Water Management District has mandated that all public suppliers of water initiate a water conservation plan by Aug. 8, Knowles said, adding the plan may include pressure reduction, leak detection programs, restriction or ban on non-essential water use, a moratorium on new service areas and an increase in costs to reduce water use, Knowles said. City staff is to have a water conservation plan completed to submit to the city commission at tonight's meeting.

Knowles said the city was notified of the impending action by the water management district late Tuesday afternoon and was asked by the district to attend a meeting 36-hours later in Palatka.

He said upon arrival at the meeting there was no information available on the declaratory order and representatives from various local governments had to wait through 90-minutes of "housekeeping board actions" before coming to the issue of interest on the agenda.

"The (water management district) staff went through an hour of rehearsed presentations while all were quickly reading the declaratory order to determine what it said," Knowles' memo says.

He said the lack of rain has precipitated a situation that appears to make the order a desirable thing. "However, it was handled badly by the district staff and all were highly secretive about this order until it could be sprung—more as a production. The legal base for the order is in the Florida Administrative code, Chapter 17-22," Knowles' memo says.

"The district board is actually passing an order they cannot enforce directly but which they are requiring the local level to enforce for them," he said.

"When questioned on this enforcement problem, the district staff's reply was that the local level would enforce the district's order by ordinance and, if necessary, then through the state attorney's office as a misdemeanor. When told our state attorney's office will not enforce misdemeanors, and local ordinances are misdemeanors, they were completely at a loss," Knowles said.

Knowles said the district's order calls for a monthly review. "Note there was no comment made as to what action, if any, could be expected from a monthly review or under what conditions the order could or may be lifted," the city manager said.

He said the board ignored a suggestion that a date of expiration be inserted in the order.

Rush-Hampton To Construct Sanford Plant

By SYBIL MITCHELL GANDY
Herald Staff Writer

Rush-Hampton Industries, the sixth largest manufacturer in Seminole County, will expand into Sanford from its Longwood base, company officials have announced.

The manufacturing company makes air treatment systems that extract pollution in closed areas such as cars and homes with CA-90 a chemical made from citrus wastes.

At a special press conference in Orlando, President Rush Bailey and Rush-Hampton representatives announced plans for construction on 37 acres in Sanford.

According to Bailey, the plant is still being designed by engineers and architects who have not yet determined what construction will actually cost.

But the facility will span over 200,000 square feet, 175,000 of which will be a manufacturing plant and about 25,000 of which will be office space.

The Longwood plant, which recently completed a 30,000 square-foot addition to its facility, has more than 400 employees and is still hiring, Bailey said. Its $3 million annual payroll supports an almost 90-percent female employee population.

The Sanford plant will be larger, Bailey said, employing 500 to 650 people. Construction, which will take about nine months, should begin in December, Bailey said.

"We'll be putting the first shovel in the ground Dec. 1 if everything goes according to plan," he said. "And the doors will be opening some time during the winter of '82."

The new Sanford plant, say company officials, will be constructed on Sanford Avenue directly across from Cardinal Industries.

Rush-Hampton Industries opened in 1973 with one major product, an air treatment system for eliminating odors indoors, said Dr. Stephen Frazer, head of research.

The company's products, according to Frazer, takes air in the immediate environment, chemically treats it with CA-90, and then redistributes the purified air.

These "ecologizers" are actually ductless fans with motors housed in plastic cases. Currently on the market is a plug-in table model, a wire-in automobile model, a model for the bathroom which comes on automatically when the light switch is flipped on, and a wall-mounted home system.

Two new products will be introduced in Chicago at a semi-annual home show next week, Bailey said.

One of the new products, is merely a larger version of the home ventilating system designed for wider spaces.

It will meet the needs of offices, hospitals and nursing homes, hotels and restaurants, and consumers with large homes, he added.

The other product is a menthol vapor pad designed to be used overnight with the home filtering system. When placed over the filter of an ecologizer, the pad emits a menthol vapor to clear nasal passages for cold and flu victims.

The ecologizers, which Bailey said are easily wired into the home, cost less than $1 a month in electricity when they are run constantly, according to company officials.

Short Reopening

BEDFORD, Ind. (UPI)—Only a day after its "Grand Reopening," the newly remodeled Greystone Hotel closed down again with the bang of tons of falling limestone.

A 150-foot long facade of the 5-story building collapsed Saturday, wrecking the hotel's bar and dance floor, slightly injuring one man and crushing a parked car and motorcycle, which burst into flames.

The hotel had just been reopened Friday, but because of continuing renovations there were no lodgers.

Authorities said Donald Mullinax, 43, of Bedford, was hospitalized for observation after he was slightly injured by falling debris as he was playing an electronic game in the hotel arcade.

Authorities, theorizing remodeling had weakened the structure, said the 57-year-old building would be closed down until it was either torn down or certified safe by engineers.

Altamonte Group Starts Drive For Historical Society

In an effort to preserve their city's rich and vibrant heritage — dating back nearly a century — a group of Altamonte Springs residents headed up by City Manager Jeff Etchberger have launched an effort to form a municipal historical society.

The society's purpose will not be some mystical search for the city's roots. Altamonte Springs' past is too sufficiently documented for that. Rather, society members will concern themselves with collecting and preserving those roots — those bits of yore that tell us where we've been and perhaps where we're going — for enjoyment by local citizens for years to come.

A meeting for persons interested in forming such a society will be held at 4 p.m. July 21 in city commission chambers at city hall.

The idea of forming an Altamonte Springs historical society has been kicked around since the beginning of the year, according to Etchberger, and was finally taken before city commissioners several weeks ago who gave the undertaking their formal blessing.

"Altamonte Springs has a history which goes back to the early 1800s," Etchberger said. "It's a rich history, one which we are very proud of and feel needs to be preserved."

Old photographs — some dating back to the latter part of the 19th Century — will be a major portion of the society's historical collection. The photos were donated by the Wister Park Telephone company and are now on display at the Altamonte Springs Library.

According to Brad Johnson, public relations manager for Wister Park Telephone, the company's speakers' bureau has some 20 presentation programs, but those dealing with local history are the most popular.

"We have historical slide presentations of Altamonte Springs, Longwood, Maitland and Winter Park," Johnson said. — SYBIL MITCHELL GANDY

WORLD IN BRIEF

Israeli Raid Sparks PLO Reprisal Threats

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Israeli warplanes struck Palestinian targets in southern Lebanon for the second time in three days, leaving at least five dead and 17 wounded, and prompting threats of military reprisals by the PLO.

The Palestine Liberation Organization news agency Wafa said Sunday's raid killed two Palestinian fighters. Hospital sources said three civilians were killed and 17 other civilians injured in the air strikes.

PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat's political adviser Hanial-Hassan warned in an interview Sunday that the Israelis were planning large-scale operations against the Palestinians.

He said the PLO would have to concentrate more on armed confrontation rather than on diplomacy.

"We have before us a year of heavy struggle and the violence may reach a point where many constants, many methods of work, will change," Hassan said in an interview with the Beirut weekly magazine "Monday Morning."

Polish Strikes Threatened

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Longshoremen, seamen and fishermen issued strike threats on the eve of Tuesday's special Communist Party Congress, but Moscow praised Polish authorities for their tougher stand against the Solidarity union.

"The (Polish) authorities refused to make any concessions" in the face of "new pressures on authorities," said the television report, quoting a Soviet broadcast made Saturday.

Solidarity warned that longshoremen, fishermen and seamen will strike Thursday if the government does not respond to their demands for better conditions. In addition, a two-hour strike today by transport workers was threatened in the central city of Kutno to protest food shortages.

Lightning Strikes Tanker

GENOA, Italy (UPI) — Lightning struck a Japanese oil tanker moored in port Sunday, sparking an explosion that killed six people and injured 10 others, port officials said.

The lightning struck the 102,000-ton tanker Hakuyuh Maru during a fierce afternoon thunder and rainstorm that raged over Italy's northwest coast.

Port officials said four South Koreans of the tanker's 33-man crew were killed instantly by the explosion and resulting fire and another died in a hospital.

Hours after the explosion, officials also recovered the floating corpse of an Italian technician who was working at the port at the time.

Hospital officials said 10 people, including three Yugoslavians from a nearby tanker and several Italian port workers and firemen, were injured.

Counterattack Pledged

By United Press International
Former President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr is distributing a clandestine tape message from his hiding place inside Iran, vowing to counterattack the religious "despots" who ousted him and are killing his followers.

"I am in Iran and waiting," said the message, reported Sunday by the independent Turkish newspaper Hurriyet in Istanbul. It was his second secret message since Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini removed him from office three weeks ago.

"I shall resume work for my country in the near future," the fugitive leader said. "We shall fight till a true Islamic republic is established and we shall take Iran back to the happy days."

Weekend Visitor Robbed At His Motel

By BRITT SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

A Wayne, Pa. man's weekend visit to central Florida didn't turn out quite like he had planned. Robert McClintock, 44, was robbed at his motel and threatened with death.

McClintock told Seminole County sheriff's deputies that he was unloading his car at the Quality Inn at Interstate 4 and State Road 434 in Longwood about 4 p.m. Sunday when two men walked up to him and one of them pulled a pistol.

McClintock said that while one of the men held a gun on him, the other went through his pockets, taking $60 in cash. Unsatisfied, the gunman threatened to kill McClintock if he didn't give him more money. The second bandit, however, said, "Cool it, slick" and the two fled on foot.

CHURCH BURGLARIES

Two Seminole County churches were burglarized over the weekend. Nothing was taken in one of the break-ins, but several hundred dollars in offering money was stolen in the other.

The first incident occurred late Friday night or early Saturday morning when someone forced open the double glass doors at the South Seminole Church of Christ, 5014 Lake Howell Rd. Once inside, the burglars forced open the doors to two offices, but apparently didn't steal anything.

Parishioners at Lakeside Baptist Church on Bear Lake Road in Forest City weren't so lucky. The morning offering of $478.57 was taken Sunday when it was left unattended in an unlocked room for 10 minutes.

Phyllis Griffith, the church's financial secretary, told

Suit Against County To Be Considered

Casselberry Official Seeking To Resolve Taxation Problem

A Casselberry city official will try to bring to a head the feud simmering between that city and county government for years over the thorny issue of double taxation.

Council Chairman Tom Embree said he will ask the Casselberry City Council at its regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. today to instruct Mayor Owen Sheppard and City Attorney Kenneth McIntosh to look into the feasibility of the city filing suit against the county to resolve the problem.

"I would like to see the mayor and city attorney look into the possibilities and report back to the council in 30 days," Embree said.

"There was an effort made through the Council of Local Governments in Seminole County to have the county commission take the initiative in forming a committee to study double taxation," Embree said, noting that in a similar situation the Orange County Commission set up a committee.

The Orange County committee's conclusion was that double taxation does exist. The result was that county property taxes to residents in the unincorporated areas were increased to make up the difference in the cost of services which were not equally provided to city residents, Embree said.

Double taxation is generally defined as taxes which are levied by the county against city residents for county services which are already supplied by the cities to their residents.

"I would hope when the mayor and city attorney present information to us that Casselberry could go to the other cities in Seminole County and ask that they join with us," Embree said.

Several months ago members of the Orange County committee, on invitation from Altamonte Springs City Commissioner Dolores Vickers explained to the Council of Local Governments the work done by that committee.

The Seminole County council, composed of representatives from each of Seminole's seven cities and the county commission, agreed to ask the Seminole County Commission to form a similar committee.

The county's delegate, County Commissioner Sandra Glenn, reported back to the Local Governments Council the next month that county officials were involved in preparing a budget for the 1981-82 fiscal year. She said the county board delayed action on the request until after the budget is adopted in late September.

Several years ago, the city of Sanford filed a suit against Seminole County charging double taxation. Sanford also urged other cities in the county to join in.

None of the other cities did, however.

Last year, Sanford withdrew the lawsuit. Embree said several committees in recent years have studied the issue to no avail.

"The courts appear to be the only way to solve the problem," Embree said.

In recent weeks, Casselberry officials have been sparring with the county over several other issues.

First, the county won a lawsuit against the city of Casselberry, successfully challenging the annexation of the Deer Run planned unit development. The city appealed to the 8th District Court of Appeal. The appeal has not as yet been decided. In the meantime that area is no longer within the city of Casselberry.

Sheppard said the city recognizes it has lost that battle.

Secondly, in recent weeks the city has been trying to get the county to discuss the possibility of transferring to the city a part of the 1.8 million gallons in sewer capacity the county has reserved at the Orlando Regional Sewer plant at Iron Bridge near Orlando.

"We are in dire need of part of that capacity," Sheppard said, adding, however, his request to County Attorney Nikki Clayton and Commission Chairman Bob Sturm for negotiations on the matter have gone unanswered.

Despite Objections

Sanford Signs To Be Placed At Lake Mary Boulevard Exit

Signs will be placed on eastbound Interstate 4 at the Lake Mary Boulevard exit, saying "Sanford Via Lake Mary Boulevard", despite objections from the city of Lake Mary.

State Department of Transportation District Engineer C.A. "Bill" Benedict has notified the city of Sanford that the sign will be placed as soon as the Federal Highway Administration concurs.

Benedict sought the Federal Highway Administration approval after receiving a letter from County Commissioners Bill Kirchhoff and Bob Sturm saying that the county, not the city of Lake Mary, has responsibility for the maintenance of Lake Mary Boulevard.

In the joint letter to Benedict, Sturm and Kirchhoff said: "Inasmuch as traffic eastbound on Interstate 4, moving in a north-northeasterly direction, must travel many unnecessary miles if they miss the Lake Mary interchange and exit at SR 46 and then travel south again to reach such destinations, we are of the opinion that the City of Sanford's signing request has merit.

"We do not believe that the amount of additional traffic that would utilize Lake Mary Boulevard if the signs were erected would be of such severity that the city of Lake Mary or the existing roadway would be adversely impacted in comparison to current traffic volumes."

The two county commissioners concluded, "Under the circumstances we request your further consideration of the city of Sanford's request."

The city of Lake Mary was able to delay the posting of the signs for the past year by insisting to DOT that it would cause additional traffic through Lake Mary streets. Until the county commissioners wrote the letter, the DOT had abided by Lake Mary's wishes.

Psychiatrist Analyzes Nixon's Speech Patterns

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A University of Maryland psychiatrist who diagnoses personality abnormalities through speech patterns says his study of Watergate tapes and transcripts indicates former President Richard Nixon showed symptoms of mental disorder.

Dr. Walter Weintraub of the university's medical school has developed what he believes is a short-cut method of diagnosis by listening to how people talk — not the logic of their words.

"I examine the grammatical structures of speech because they are constant, whereas choice of vocabulary changes rapidly, depending on the subject of the conversation," he said.

For 15 years, Weintraub has been studying the speech of paranoids, depressives, impulsives and "binge-eaters." Weintraub obtained copies of the Watergate transcripts and tapes and used them to diagnose four of the key figures in the political scandal — Nixon and his aides John Dean, John Erlichman and H. R. Haldeman.

By comparing their speech samples with those of people known to have personality abnormalities, Weintraub concluded Nixon was the only one of the four who showed symptoms of mental disorder.

The psychiatrist said the former president's speech pattern indicated he was clinically depressed and had traces of impulsivity.

Weintraub concluded the speech samples of Erlichman and Dean revealed their personalities were near those of the "normal" population, while Haldeman's sample fit no definite group.

In a recent book he wrote, titled "Verbal Behavior: Adaption and Psychotherapy," Weintraub deduced people with similar behavioral traits or problems tend to have similar speaking styles.

During his study of the subject, Weintraub has found certain words are inclined to show up in the speech of those with particular psychiatric problems.

For example, he said depressions tend to make excessive use of "I" and other personal references that may be symptomatic of extreme self-preoccupation.

Weintraub also said obsessed people use many passive expressions such as "It seems to me" and "The feeling is." "They do not see themselves as doers, but as people to whom things are done," he said. "They have a very passive outlook on life."

Weintraub said he prefers to analyze written speech because many words have to be counted before he can draw an accurate psychiatric picture.

"I spend many hours counting words," he said. "It's very time-consuming, dull-work. Only obsessed people do it."

Code Enforcement Board Organized In Sanford

Sanford's new code enforcement board has organized by electing officers and designating regular meeting times.

Elected chairman of the six-member board was Ron Dycus, a certified public accountant in Sanford, while B. C. "Cal" Conklin, a consulting engineer, was named vice chairman.

Other members of the board are: J. Q. "Slim" Galloway, Edward Korgan, Leo Scott, and Ernest Horrell.

The board will meet regularly on the third Tuesday of each month at 7:30 p.m.

The Florida Legislature has authorized cities in the state to create code enforcement boards to enforce city zoning and other ordinances.

The Sanford board has adopted and modified its rules and regulations, procedures and forms those currently used by the Miami Shores Village.

NATION IN BRIEF

In September It'll Be: Lights, Camera, Action

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The tentative contract producers reached with script writers apparently means there will be only a slight delay in the debut of the new fall television season in September.

If the 8,500 members of the writers guild of America agree with the deal struck with union leaders during the weekend to end their three-month walkout, scripts will again flow and television production will begin perhaps as early as Wednesday.

The striking motion picture and television script writers vote Tuesday on the tentative four-year accord.

Under the proposal, writers would receive an overall 53 percent to 57 percent increase in minimums paid for scripts over the contract period plus a share of the home and pay TV markets. The contract is retroactive to March 1.

National Guard Called Up

BOSTON (UPI)—Massachusetts officials, fearful a strike by state employees would spread to 25,000 workers despite legislative progress today towards a new budget, called up 5,000 National Guardsmen to man 17 mental health facilities.

The legislative conference committee approved a compromise $6.3 billion spending plan for fiscal 1982 shortly after midnight, but the breakthrough did not alter the strike plans of state employees who have not been paid since the new fiscal year began July 1.

Striking workers picketed Sunday outside the mental institutions or stayed home to protest the delay in completing the budget, which has also frozen checks to 140,000 welfare recipients.

'Outlaws' Founder Arrested

TUSCON, Ariz. (UPI)—A man acquitted of murder in 1974 in the deaths of three Hell's Angels motorcycle club members in Florida was arrested Saturday in connection with a slaying outside a Tucson bar.

James Thomas Nolan, 37, founder and former president of the Florida chapter of the Outlaws motorcycle gang, was arrested at the scene and was booked into Pima County jail on suspicion of murder.

Nolan was accused of the slaying of John McQuillen, 26, who died during surgery at University Hospital.

Police said Nolan and McQuillen were involved in an argument inside the bar and the argument continued when the two men went outside. McQuillen was shot in a car.

Kirkland Raps Administration

WASHINGTON (UPI)—AFI-CIO President Lane Kirkland criticized the administration today for espousing "free trade" in a world where free trade does not exist.

In testimony prepared for a third day of joint hearings by two Senate subcommittees, Kirkland accused the administration of "an abdication of responsibility" to increase employment through economic policy.

"The major decisions have been to avoid taking necessary actions to revitalize the U.S. economy while talking about 'free trade' in a world where free trade no longer has meaning," Kirkland said.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

92-Year-Old Man Held For Failing To Pay Alimony

CLEARWATER (UPI)—Robert Rabinof is not one of your typical big spenders, which may be one of the reasons he is the oldest man on alimony row in Florida and perhaps in America.

The 92-year-old former Chicagoan has been in the Pinellas County jail since June 29, serving 30 days for contempt of court.

Circuit Judge William Walker ordered Rabinof, of St. Petersburg, jailed because he refused to pay $12,420 in back alimony due his second wife, the former Elsie Piccolo, whom he married March 20, 1970, and divorced last February.

It isn't that Rabinof can't afford it. His lawyer admits his client has at least $150,000. Mrs. Rabinof's lawyer estimates Rabinof's net worth at $250,000.

Mrs. Rabinof, 77, lives in a $202 per month apartment. She says her only income without Rabinof's alimony is Social Security and she can't live on that.

Faculty Upset Over Pact

TALLAHASSEE (UPI)—The leaders of faculty unions at the state's two largest universities are asking members to vote down a recent negotiated settlement.

They are upset with the proposed 7 percent pay raise because an arbitrator recommended 10 to 12 percent. They also are angry because of other issues, claiming the regents reneged on promises made during contract negotiations concerning summer pay and affirmative action policies.

McKnight Won't Run Again

MIAMI (UPI)—Robert McKnight won't run for reelection next year, but he might be interested in the gubernatorial race in 1986.

McKnight, 37, a wealthy south Dade County land developer, said he is considering the race but would never challenge his close friend, Gov. Bob Graham.

McKnight, who already has said he won't run again when his current term expires in 1982, says the only office that interests him is that of governor.

'All-American' Son Held

ARCO President, Wife Are Slain

DALLAS (UPI)—Police today held the 14-year-old "all-American" son of ARCO Oil and Gas Co. President William A. Keeler for questioning in the shooting deaths of his parents during a family argument that apparently started over a shoplifting incident.

Detectives said David Keeler, riding his bicycle, approached a policeman in suburban Addison, several miles from the Keelers' home in wealthy north Dallas, Sunday afternoon and said, "I just shot both my parents with a shotgun."

He was turned over to Dallas police and booked late Sunday on two counts of investigation of juvenile delinquency and placed in custody of the Dallas County Juvenile Detention Center.

Under Texas law, teenagers younger than 15 cannot be certified as adults to stand trial.

The 53-year-old Keeler was pronounced dead at the scene of "multiple gunshot wounds," police said. His wife, Anita, 49, died later at Parkland Memorial Hospital where she was undergoing surgery.

A Dallas County medical examiner's spokesman said both had been shot in the chest. Investigators found a .12-gauge shotgun and seven spent cartridges at the scene.

The Keelers' 27-year-old daughter, Barbara, found her parents' bodies. Her father was dead, but she said her mother whispered to her, "David did it."

Police said the daughter believed the shootings could have stemmed from an incident Saturday in which David and two other youths were accused of shoplifting while at Six Flags Over Texas amusement park in nearby Arlington.

Authorities at Six Flags said the boys admitted stealing several small novelty items. The trio was held by park security officers until released in the custody of their parents. No charges were filed.

Homicide investigator James Shivers, who interviewed David, described the youth as "not hysterical, but upset."

The shooting appeared to be "a family situation from the start. I'm not certain exactly what did take place. It's an ongoing deal and this is the culmination of it," Shivers said.

"It's like a lot of killings," said investigator Jim Gholson. "You ask why, but a lot of times there's not a really logical reason."

Acquaintances and neighbors expressed shock over the deaths.

"Everybody here is in a total state of shock, it all seems so unbelievable," said Mrs. Walter Duerenberger, a neighbor. "There's nothing I could possibly imagine that would explain it. They were very devout people."

Police said the Keelers and their son had just returned from attending church when the shootings occurred.

Regan And O'Neill Take Off The Gloves

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Treasury Secretary Donald Regan says the administration's tax cut program will mean 11 million new jobs and the Democrats are being ridiculous when they say their tax program is "the poor man's bill."

Gloves off, House Speaker Thomas O'Neill promptly retorted that the Democrats are aiming their tax cuts at the middle class. He accused the administration of already cutting benefits for 3 million Social Security recipients.

Regan, appearing Sunday on CBS' "Face the Nation," and budget director David Stockman, appearing on ABC's "Issues and Answers," both predicted President Reagan's 25 percent, 33-month tax cut would be passed by Congress.

"We are looking for about 11 million jobs" to be produced by the Republican tax plan, as small business entrepreneurs again become willing to take risks that will boost employment, Regan said.

The treasury secretary scoffed at the Democrats' alternative, maintaining it is a bill to redistribute wealth, not create it. He accused the Democrats of "trying to buy their way to victory over us" with tax breaks for special interest groups.

"Now as far as theirs being a type of bill that's slanted toward the low end of the scale ... the poor man's bill," Regan said, "Napoleon made a remark after his return from Moscow to the effect that it's only a step from the sublime to the ridiculous, and look at the steps they took last week.

"What they did, in an effort to prove they have a poor man's bill, they went out and gave 2,500 wealthy speculators on the floors of the Chicago Board of Trade and other commodity exchanges a tax break of $400 million."

In a statement, O'Neill said, "We would be remiss if we did not straighten the record on Secretary Regan's comments today.

'Captain' Suffers Heart Attack

CAPT. KANGAROO

TORONTO (UPI)—Bob Keeshan, television's Captain Kangaroo, was in stable condition today in the intensive care unit of a hospital recovering from a heart attack.

A spokeswoman at Etobicoke General Hospital said Keeshan, 54, had remained in stable condition since he was taken to the hospital Saturday from Toronto International Airport, where he was stricken.

Keeshan had come to Toronto to receive an award for outstanding service to children at a national convention of Parents Without Partners, a 199,000-member organization for single parent families.

Stamps May Go To 23 Cents In '82

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Postal Service is seeking approval of a 20-cent first-class stamp by August, and if it doesn't get it, look for a 23-cent stamp in 1982.

Postmaster General William F. Bolger said the Postal Service has asked the independent Postal Rate Commission a third time for permission to increase the first-class postal rate to 20 cents.

But if it is refused, leaving the current 18-cent rate in effect, Bolger said he will file for another rate hike by the end of 1981.

"Rate increases that would be needed would probably go into effect in September or October 1982," Bolger said in an interview on the UPI Audio "Roundtable" program.

"We have to wait until we get close to filing time to decide what the costs ought to be," Bolger said. "Probably, at least we're talking about 22 or 23 cents."

Since last year, the Postal Service has been seeking a 20-cent stamp for first-class mail, which it said is needed to keep pace with its rising costs.

The Postal Rate Commission said in February the Postal Service needed only an 18-cent stamp. The Postal Service Board of Governors then put the rates into effect under protest and sent the case back to the commission for reconsideration.

The commission recently upheld its decision on the 18-cent stamp and the governors again asked reconsideration.

"The 20-cent rate is not an additional increase," Bolger said. "That's what we asked for in the first place."

Murder Plot May Violate U.S. Law

MIAMI (UPI)—Five men who the Cuban government says sneaked into the island nation to assassinate President Fidel Castro may have been in violation of U.S. law, the FBI said Sunday.

Radio Havana reported Saturday five "Cuban counter revolutionaries" had been captured on Cuba's northern coast last week in a plot to assassinate Castro.

Andres Nazario Sargen, leader of the anti-Castro Alpha 66 organization, said Saturday the group left from the Miami area. On Sunday, Alpha 66 spokesman Alberto Delbusto would not disclose their point of departure.

"They may have come from the United States, or a third country," he said. "We go to Cuba whichever way is safe."

An FBI spokesman said if they left from this country, the commandos or the organization could be prosecuted.

"This is a violation of the Neutrality Act," he said. "It is against the federal law to export arms and interfere with another government."

The Havana radio broadcast, monitored in Miami, said the group, "together with other elements due to arrive later," planned to kill Castro "during the upcoming July 26 celebration."

The date marks the anniversary of the abortive assault on the Moncada garrison, led by Castro in 1953.

Sanford City Commissioner Eddle Keith, admitted to Seminole Memorial Hospital Friday suffering from chest pains, was listed in satisfactory condition today.

Keith said he expects to be released from the hospital Tuesday or Wednesday. His problem was diagnosed as "fibrillation" and he did not suffer a heart attack, he said.

Moscow-Colored Glasses Here...

The Reagan administration's decision to sell Pakistan $3 billion worth of modern military equipment is, at first look, plausible. In the time since the Carter administration banned such sales in reaction to Pakistan's growing nuclear capability, the Russians have swept across Afghanistan to Pakistan's borders, and Iran has become an unpredictable neighbor led by radical mullahs. Viewed within the scope of those events, and given the incipient Soviet threat to the whole Persian Gulf, the administration's strategy is not without logic.

Yet, as in so many recent foreign policy decisions, the Pakistan arms deal finds the administration reinforcing the impression that it regards the world chessboard solely through the prism of Soviet behavior. This narrow way to looking at the complexities of foreign affairs suggests a dangerous absence of a wider vision, one with the suppleness and imagination to foresee further consequences for American actions than merely countering Russian moves.

The new military relationship with Pakistan's dictator, Gen. Zia, is rationalized by the administration's worry that the Russians may decide to take on the tough Pakistani warriors. Even without the U.S. arms, Zia's forces have a history of stubborn resistance to invaders which parallels that of the rugged Afghan guerrillas now giving 100,000 Soviet troops so much trouble. It is plausible that Moscow's expansionist designs would be enhanced by tackling Pakistan across the formidable Hindu Kush range or the narrow defiles of the Indus Valley?

Even if such a scenario is not farfetched, however, the Pakistan arms deal is burdened by other problems that may pose as great a threat to the stability of the Persian Gulf as the Russians ever will. The promised military sale came at the precise moment when Pakistan and India, historic mortal enemies, had begun an exchange of foreign ministers in an unprecedented atmosphere of rapprochement. Let us educate each other in friendship," Gen. Zia told Indra Gandhi, promising Islamabad would not seek military parity with New Delhi. All of that instantly changed with the announcement of a U.S. arms package that includes F-16 fighterbombers whose most effective use is as an offensive weapon.

India, outraged, logically asked: Against whom would the new sophisticated arms be used? Such equipment would have little value, Indian ministers pointed out, in the mountainous terrain bordering Afghanistan, surely the only likely target would be India. Whatever the substance of those fears, the Reagan administration's decision has raised to dangerous new levels the tensions between Pakistan and India, tensions further exacerbated by Pakistan's growing nuclear capability and Zia's insistence that the nuclear explosion he intends to set off will be for "peaceful" purposes. Here again, the Reagan administration's arms sale to Pakistan carries implications of broader importance. The Carter administration had banned arms sales because of Pakistan's refusal to sign the Nuclear Non-proliferation Treaty. Undersecretary of State James Buckley returned from recent meetings with Zia, however, giving lip service to the assertion that Pakistan's purpose is purely peaceful, and voicing the administration's view that supplying Zia with conventional weapons will make him feel so secure he won't want A-bombs.

Beyond all other considerations, the administration's reliance on military deals—whether with China, Argentina, El Salvador or Pakistan—without having yet formulated any visible foreign policy framework within which those decisions can be coordinated, carries risks of regional conflicts that may prove as serious as any Soviet threat. A Pakistan bristling with modern weapons and on the verge of possessing the first Islamic A-bomb not only pushes India further into the Russian orbit, but heightens the instability of the vast subcontinent of Southern Asia.

Around

The Clock

By DONNA ESTES

The 4th of July celebration in Lake Mary, sponsored by the Civic Improvement Association of the Lake Mary Rotary Club, was a huge success. About $1,500 was cleared from the day's activities.

Proceeds from the event are to be set aside to build a community building on parkland owned by the city.

Two of the most popular events were the pie throwing contest with city officials as the targets and the "tar and feathering" of Mayor Walter Sorenson.

Sorenson volunteered for the tarring and feathering which was accomplished with vegetable oil tinted a deep brown and real feathers.

Millie Murray, a Lake Mary barber, was the highest bidder at $100 for the tarring and appeared to enjoy the exercise immensely.

Winners of the feathering with the highest bid of $80 were Larry Dale, a local land developer; City Attorney Gary Massey, Bonnie Olvera, wife of Councilman Vic Olvera; and John Edwards, Sorenson's business partner.

Sorenson, also a member of the volunteer fire department, is active in many community-wide projects. Another one upon which he is working diligently is the stripping of the paint from the wood in the proposed new city hall, the former chamber of commerce building, on Country Club Road.

He continues, with assistance from City Clerk Connie Major and citizens of the community, to work weekends cleaning up the wood in the building. Although it had been painted a Robin's egg blue over the original varnish, the cleaned wood is a light color with a beautiful grain.

The wood is so attractive Sorenson hasn't decided yet whether it should be sealed so its natural tone can be seen; varnished in a natural shade or stained dark again.

Anyone who goes in the building should not be concerned about the more than 70 holes, which look something like bird's nests, which have been drilled in the walls near the ceiling level. Sorenson explains that a contractor said the holes were necessary in order to blow insulation into the walls.

U.S. Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Lakeland, in testimony before the Senate Finance Committee this past week, called the administration's proposal to cut social security benefits by 10 percent "totally unnecessary."

He insisted that the Social Security program not be used "as a vehicle for balancing the budget or cutting taxes."

"Younger workers and retirees want to see the system restored to soundness," he testified. "Both are willing to sacrifice if necessary, but we must be careful to balance the interests of both as the generations are not set against each other in conflict."

In a bill introduced in February to reform Social Security, Chiles urges that student benefits and minimum benefits for new retirees be phased out. The bill would permit interfund borrowing between the old-age survivors fund, health insurance fund and disability insurance fund.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Whenever President Reagan makes a speech extolling the virtues of private enterprise, the men and women who own and operate the nation's small businesses invariably are singled out for special commendation.

"Those who say we are in a time of no heroes just don't know where to look," the president proclaimed in his inaugural address when praising the "entrepreneurs with faith in themselves and an idea, who create new jobs, new wealth and opportunity."

In his widely acclaimed address to a joint session of Congress in late April, the president offered a paean to "the small independent businessman or woman (who) creates more than 80 percent of all new jobs and employs more than half of our total work force."

But beyond rhetoric, the Reagan administration isn't offering much to small business — especially in comparison with the bonanza awaiting the nation's biggest corporations in the president's package of tax-law modifications.

The biggest of the proposed business tax cuts is the "10-3-3" accelerated depreciation formula that would allow firms to write off the cost of new buildings in 10 years, machinery and equipment in five years and vehicles in three years.

Small businesses would receive less than one-quarter of all benefits conferred under that formula — even though they account for 46 percent of the gross national product produced by the private sector of the economy and employ 58 percent of the country's non-government work force.

"It would be difficult," says William Hardman of the National Small Business Association, "to write a tax bill better designed to speed the extinction of small business."

Rep. Byron L. Dorgan, D-N.D. notes that "nearly 80 percent of the benefits of 10-3-3 would go to the very largest corporations with assets of over $250 million."

At a recent House subcommittee hearing chaired by Rep. John J. LaFalce, D-N.Y., one economist especially knowledgeable about small business, Robert E. Berney of Washington State University, offered a discouraging prediction:

"Accelerated depreciation programs, however they are structured, are going to benefit large business several times more than small business. . . ."

"What accelerated depreciation will do for big companies is to encourage them to buy up smaller ones, which is the only way they grow. That doesn't create new jobs."

Past performance reinforces the worst fears about the Reagan initiative. Small firms, Dorgan notes, filed approximately 99 percent of all corporate tax returns in the early 1970s "yet they received only about 30 percent of the depreciation benefits during those years."

Senator Heads For Ethics Hearing

WASHINGTON — Sen. Harrison "Pete" Williams, D-N.J., who liked to call himself "the voice of the voiceless" because of the dozens of social welfare bills he sponsored, sometimes loses his own voice when he tries to talk about ABSCAM.

He was the only member of the Senate to be trapped in the FBI's "sting" operation, and he insists he got a raw deal. He now faces expulsion from the Senate because of his ABSCAM conviction; his hearing before the Senate Ethics Committee begins soon.

"They've put me in an impossible situation," he said in an exclusive interview, referring to the committee.

Williams had wanted more time to prepare for the hearing. He had also wanted former Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., as his attorney before the committee.

But Williams lost on both counts. My associate Indy Badwar happened to be interviewing Williams in his office when the ethics committee blow fell. Also present was Eugene Boyce, Morgan's law partner, who was going to represent Williams at the committee hearing. Morgan himself had been ruled out by the ethics committee because he had been a member of it until he left the Senate this year.

A secretary came in and handed Williams a sealed envelope. The senator's hands trembled as he opened it. He stared at the letter and his face dropped. His eyes moved across the page again and again.

Art Should Go Back

The New York Daily News has recently committed itself editorially to a position which violates every principle of intellectual and artistic freedom — which, indeed, represents an attack on the mind itself.

It seems that after World War II, the U.S. Army in Germany took possession of a large quantity of art produced during the Nazi era. I learn from the News editorial for the first time that the Army "intended to destroy them but never got around to it."

One gathers from the tone of this editorial that the News thinks the Army should have destroyed the art.

A correct stance would have been to demand a criminal investigation of those in the Army or among the civilian leadership in the Defense Department who were responsible for this blatant crime against the property rights of other people. Simply because the U.S. Army was able to roll its tanks into Germany does not give it the right to ransack museums.

We were repeatedly told during World War II that one of the great Nazi crimes was "book burning." We now learn that the Army was going to burn works of art, but just didn't get around to it.

The immediate occasion of the editorial, however, is a bill introduced in Congress by Rep. G. William Whitehurst, R-Va., which would return all of this art — including four watercolors by Adolf Hitler — back to Germany. Comments the News:

"We strongly urge that this whole idea be abandoned. Otherwise, the U.S. government will stand guilty of helping a considerable number of Germans to draw financial profit and/or sentimental satisfaction from art that glorifies the most evil government Europe has known since the Dark Ages."

This position is entirely outrageous. First of all, it is a scandal that this art has been sequestered and unavailable to scholars, historians, art critics and for that matter the general public for more than 35 years.

Just to take one specific example. Suppose that you are a historian, writing about the Nazi era. Part of that history would surely be the art it produced. The unavailability of the art represents a serious infringement on your rights as a scholar.

And to what purpose this tacit censorship? Are we really to imagine that these paintings and whatnot would turn present-day viewers into admirers of the fuhrer, turn them into brown shirts, revive the S.S.?

The whole idea is absurd. No, no one believes any such thing. Locking up the art merely represents petty spite, a spirit of revenge that apparently is not quenched by the passage of the years. It is also a crime against the very free inquiry and artistic freedom that were supposed to be among the things we fought the war about.

Are the gentlemen at the News willing to censor Stalinist art? Poems written under Mussolini? Chinese art of the Mao era? Books written in the American South during the slavery period?

The art belongs in Germany. If that cannot be worked out, it should be made available to museums here for prompt exhibition, and it should be permanently available to researchers and critics.

State Goofs Again

Just when you probably thought it safe to begin taking your State Department seriously again, along comes the chief himself to warn you off.

You may have missed the latest exercise in foot-in-mouth diplomacy — although by the time you read this it may no longer be the latest; things tend to move along that rapidly on this team of foreign policy makers.

It does not have the headline-making implications of an intra-administration personality clash that made the criticism of U.N. Ambassador Jeane J. Kirkpatrick by still-anonymous aides of Secretary Alexander M. Haig Jr. such a splashy story for a while there. But the implications it does have are enough to raise questions — even fears — of the team's grip on the political realities of the policies it's supposed to be making.

Briefly, we had Haig justifying American lecturing of the French on the makeup of their new government as the consequence of a simple fact of life — "that Communist regimes, whether they are closely aligned with Moscow or not, pursue policies which are not consistent with those of the Western family of nations."

Forget how the French regime could be expected to react to that wholesale writing off of the Socialists who are running the show. What makes the comment worth commenting on is that Haig had just returned from China — you know, the China on the mainland, the one with all the territory and all the people and a Communist regime. More, he had offered U.S. weapons to that regime that by his own definition does not pursue policies consistent with those of the Western family of nations, which presumably are also the policies of the United States.

How do you explain that apparent un-diplomatic back of the hand to both Paris and Peking? However you try, you're on your own. Neither the secretary nor his anonymous aides are providing any help.

But that's not all, for which Haig can probably be thankful. At about the same time, his boss was publicly expressing his continuing regard for HIS preferred China — the one on an island with few people and a non-Communist regime. Who is a Chinese capital — Peking or Taipei — to believe is defining policy? A secretary of state or a president?

But that's the way it has been going since January, even November. Secretaries of state and defense, U.N. ambassadors, national security advisers and even presidents have been bumping into each other and even themselves on occasion in Washington's corridors of power.

At least if you believe what you read in the newspapers. And right there, you may have the problem. Or at least some very well-placed observers think they have located the problem.

Nobody spoke. Then, in a low voice, choking back his emotion, Williams said: "They won't postpone." The letter was from ethics committee counsel Robert Bennett.

"I can't get ready for the ethics committee proceeding in three weeks," Williams murmured to no one in particular. Just the day before, a judge in New York had begun to hear arguments from the senator's attorney charging that the FBI had entrapped Williams and otherwise violated his rights to due process.

"The committee could at least have waited until the end of my due process hearing," said Williams. "One day, just one day after my due process hearings begin, I get this letter."

There was more to come. Boyce told Williams he couldn't defend him before the ethics committee. Like the aging, arthritic deputy in "High Noon," the lawyer evidently felt he would be more of a hindrance than a help to his client.

"I can't do it," he told Williams. "I did want to help you, but if I said I could represent you, it would be wrong on my part. It would be unethical. I could not prepare for it."

Williams, a lawyer and 22-year Senate veteran, explained that an ethics committee proceeding is quite different from a court trial. "It's an adjudicatory, fact-finding hearing," he said. "It needs a special kind of lawyer."

That was why he had wanted Morgan to defend him. But the committee expressed "serious concerns" over the choice of the former senator because he had been present at executive sessions where the Williams case had been discussed.

Morgan reluctantly dropped out, but not without sending the ethics committee a blistering note, in which he said Williams, "like any other citizen, should be allowed counsel of his choice without being subjected to unfounded and groundless irrelevancies in the form of a specter of attack on his lawyer's ethical standards."

What Williams wanted to do was make the ethics committee hearing "the most profound examination" of ABSCAM, he said. The senator maintains that the jury at his trial was not given all the evidence, and he had hoped the committee hearing would bring it all out.

For instance, the prosecution had charged that Williams had contacted the New Jersey Casino Control Commission on behalf of the Ritz Casino Hotel in Atlantic City — even though a Justice Department document shows that investigators had concluded there was no evidence that Williams had acted improperly. Yet the prosecution repeatedly brought up the matter before the jury.

"They planted the seed. The idea is that since we spent so much time on it there must be something to it," Williams said.

"We still have got no documents about the geographical and individual selection of ABSCAM targets," Williams said. He suspects the fact that he was a known backer of Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., for president may have targeted him under the Carter administration. Material on how the ABSCAM targets were selected is in unreleased Justice Department files, which the ethics committee could subpoena, if it so chooses.

Despite his feeling that he has been treated unfairly by the FBI, the Justice Department and now the ethics committee, Williams still retains a wry sense of humor. Asked how it felt to be the first member of the Senate to face expulsion because of an undercover FBI operation, he said: "Well, I've been on the pioneering side of this. This whole thing is a first." Then he added, dead seriously: "It's also a first in that the executive (branch) went in to frame the legislature."

Footnote: At press time, Williams was still seeking a postponement of the Senate hearing.

WATCH ON WASTE: Ever hopeful of pay raises, the federal bureaucrats have more than a dozen costly surveys done each year comparing government pay scales with those in private industry. One, the Professional, Administrative, Technical and Clerical Survey — called PATC, or "Patay" — costs $2.3 million a year. Two separate studies of the pay comparability system have suggested that surveys might better be made every two or three years, especially since Congress tends to ignore the surveys' findings.

Sanford National shortstop Craig Dixon slides into second base on the left as Sanford American second baseman Michael Edwards attempts to make the tag and shortstop Marvin Killingworth (left) helps out. At the right, umpire Bob Meyers signals Dixon safe much to the dismay of Edwards (no. 3) and Killingworth who ends up with the ball. Eddie Korgan (no. 8) threw a seven-hitter as the Americans whipped the Nationals 15-5 for the Little Major League sub-district championship.

'Korgan's Clubbers' Belt Nationals For Championship

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

Eddie Korgan finally pitched and the Sanford Americans finally captured the Little National Little sub-district baseball tournament Saturday morning with a 15-5 conquest of the Sanford Nationals at Ft. Mellon Park.

Held in reserve after pitching Monday, Korgan fired a seven-hitter at Sid Griffin's Nationals and struck out nine as the Ed Korgan Jr.'s "Clubbers" did it the "American Way" with three home runs which resulted in eight runs.

"They just had too much power," confessed losing Manager Griffin about his arch-rival opponent. "But I think our guys stayed with them pretty well. I'm proud of our guys."

Griffin's scrappers did more than stay with them the first four innings. After Reginald Bellamy jacked a two-run homer deep to left field in the top of the first inning for a 2-0 American lead, the Nationals bounced back with two runs in the bottom half of the inning.

After Korgan retired the first two batters, Craig Dixon straightened out a curve ball on the line over the left-field fence. J.D. Paul coaxed a walk, stole second and was wild pitched to third.

Andy Griffin, a continual thorn in the American's way, slapped a single to tie the game at 2-2. National starter Calvin Davis breezed through the second inning, but was touched for two runs in the third.

Darris Little started the rally with a walk, but Davis bore down to get Mike "Slim" Edwards on a fly ball to center field and Korgan on a liner to Dixon at shortstop.

Bellamy, however, duplicated his home run blast of the first inning to left field as the Americans seized a 4-2 advantage. It was Bellamy's fifth home run of the tournament.

The Nationals jumped right back into the lead in the bottom of the third, once again using a two-out rally. After Jeff Blake grounded out on a nice play by Edwards, Dixon slashed a double.

Korgan slipped a curve ball past Paul, but Dixon stole third base on the next pitch and came home when Littles threw the ball into left field. The irrepressible Griffin socked a single off the wall in right and then Griffin pinch hit big Oscar Merthie for Willie McCloud.

The gigantic first baseman-outfielder zapped another Korgan curveball over the center-field batter to propel the Nationals into a 5-4 advantage.

After surrendering the third-inning tallies, though, Korgan was just about untouchable. Mixing fewer curves with more exploding fastballs, the sandy-haired right-hander blanked the Nationals on just one hit over the final three frames.

At one point he retired five Nationals in succession and finished the game by striking out the final two hitters.

While Korgan was throwing blanks at the Nationals, Griffin was having trouble with his mound corps. Davis held the mighty American bats in check until a disastrous fifth inning where the entire Americans' batting order reached base before reliever Dixon could record an out.

"Our pitching just couldn't matchup with them," sighed Griffin after the game. "Calvin Davis was just dog tired."

Korgan Jr. used a pinch hitter of his own—Tommie Mitchell—to ignite the explosive fifth inning. Mitchell drew a pass from Davis and moved to third on successive singles from Littles and Edwards.

This loaded the bases for Korgan who rapped a ground ball at shortstop Dixon, whose throw to the plate was dropped by Blake as Mitchell scored the inning's first run and tied the game at 5-5.

Bellamy, already with two round trippers, was walked on four pitches to force in the eventual game-winner. Griffin then brought on Dixon to face cleanup hitter Steve Warren.

Warren, who had two home runs already this week, watched four wide ones to force home Littles for a 7-5 edge.

After Keith Denton drew yet another pass to force in a run, center-fielder Gregg Pond blasted a grand-slam home run to straight-away center, increasing the Americans' bulge to 12-5 and for all practical purposes ending the Nationals' hopes.

"That was a big hit," an elated Korgan said about Pond's smash. It was the rangy outfielder's fourth homer of the series. "Now if we can only get some pitching next week (at the district in Clermont), we'll be in good shape."

The Americans will play Wednesday night at 8, probably against last year's state runnersup Clermont. The tournament is a four-team, double-elimination affair.

Marcello Tosses Four Hitter, Altamonte Whitewashes Winter Park, 13-0

The Altamonte Springs Post 183 American Legion crew continued its winning ways over the weekend with a pair of victories.

A 13-0 whitewash of Winter Park on Saturday followed by a forfeit victory over Boone Sunday upped Altamonte's league leading mark to 8-1.

Captain Bob McCullough's squad will take its seven-game win streak to Valencia Wednesday afternoon for a $:45 non-league outing.

Righthander Rick Marcello tossed a four hitter Saturday as Altamonte posted Winter Park for the third consecutive time.

Post 183 blew open a 2-0 game with six runs in the bottom of the fourth. They added insult with three more tallies in the fifth and a pair of runs in the sixth.

Marcello got the only runs he needed in the bottom of the first inning. Shortstop Bob Parker led off with a walk, stole second, advanced to third when the throw sailed into center field and trotted home when the throw from center scooped past third. Dave Martinez drew another base on balls, swiped second and scored on a single to right by clean-up hitter Rob Reich for the 2-0 Altamonte edge.

Winter Park staged a brief threat in the third when Marcello issued three consecutive walks after two outs. He retaliated by fanning third baseman Kurt Beavin to end the inning and quiet the Parkers for the remainder of the afternoon.

Altamonte sent 10 batters to the plate in its six-run fourth. Six hits, a walk and a Winter Park error accounted for the damage with a bases-loaded, Charlie Miller double being the big blow.

Orlando and Altamonte are both riding courses destined to collide at the end of the month. The top two records in the league are scheduled to face each other in a two-out-of-three playoff the last week of July with the winner going on to the state tournament in Jacksonville.

The two squads are in the driver's seats with only one league loss each.

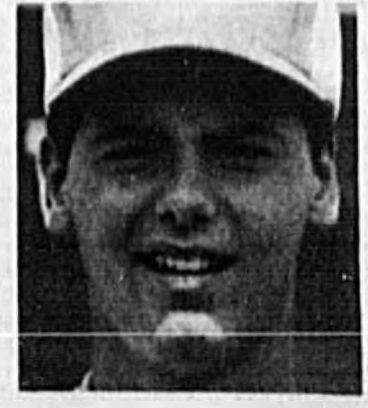

Post 286, the defending league champs and third in the state a year ago, and Altamonte meet two more times during the regular season with their next matchup slated for next Saturday at Lyman.

REPLAY

Palmer, Casper Face Newcomer In Playoff

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (UPI) — Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper may offer a replay of their 18-hole playoff for the 1966 U.S. Open golf championship. They also could run into a "Stone" wall.

Little known club pro Bob Stone of Independence, Mo., will join the far better known Palmer and Casper for the 18 holes today that determine first place in the $150,000 second U.S. Senior Open golf championship. The winner gets $26,000 and the two runners-up get $9,586 each.

That Palmer, 51, is back on top again is exactly what the PGA had in mind last year when it lowered the age limit for the seniors from 55 to 50. Turning back the clock in this fashion did not bring the Latrobe, Pa., legend's putting touch back, however.

A 10-foot par-putt attempt by Palmer that would have won the tournament on the 18th hole Sunday curled left and missed the cup by 1 1/4 inches.

Casper, 50, who made the qualifying age with four days to spare, then stepped up and rattled in his 6-footer for a par-4 on the 445-yard hole, which plays to a par-6 for members of Oakland Hills Country Club. He finished with 73 for a 289.

Palmer then tapped in his short putt to complete his round of 73, 3-over-par for the difficult 6,790-yard course. Palmer, Casper and Stone all wound up at 289, 9-over.

Stone, 51, playing with Art Wall in the twosome ahead, three-putted both the 18th and the 185-yard, par-3 17th to close his round of 72 with two bogeys.

"So far I haven't been nervous," said Stone. Stone spent 1968-73 on the regular PGA tour, winning the 1970 Florida Citrus Open before muscle spasms in his back left him unable to walk without pain and sent him to a job at Crackerneck Golf Club.

Casper and Palmer figured in one of the most storied U.S. Opens ever played. Palmer had a seven-stroke lead with nine holes to play in 1966, only to be caught by Casper, who buried him by four strokes in their 18-hole playoff the next day.

U.S. Advances In Davis Cup

Smid Proves 'Patsy' For McEnroe

NEW YORK (UPI) — Always, for John McEnroe, there is something to prove.

Last week he showed that he could win the Wimbledon championship and that Bjorn Borg wasn't the only one who could fight from behind. For his memorable effort, McEnroe replaced Borg as the world's No. 1 player.

This week, McEnroe felt he had something more to prove and he did so in smashing style Sunday by routing Tomas Smid 6-3, 6-1, 6-0 on a steamy afternoon to clinch the Davis Cup quarterfinal series from Czechoslovakia, the defending champion.

The United States completed a 4-1 victory when Jimmy Connors defeated Ivan Lendl 7-5, 6-4 in a match reduced to a best-of-three set.

There was a touch of controversy about this since the Czechoslovakian captain Antonin Bolardt first suggested the best-of-three format to Arthur Ashe, the U.S. captain, then returned later and said it should be best-of-five. However, Ashe insisted a gentleman's agreement had been reached.

It was the eighth consecutive victory for Connors over Lendl and he has yet to drop a set to the player ranked fourth in the world.

"It was nice to win because a lot of people think you only care about yourself," McEnroe said. "People think you have a letdown after winning Wimbledon. But I was trying to get up for the Davis Cup, and as long as they keep asking me, I'll play to the team."

"I wanted to end it. I wanted to contribute to the tie. It's nice that Stan (Smith) and Bob (Lutz) won the doubles yesterday. It took the pressure off."

After losing the opening singles in straight sets to Lendl on Friday, McEnroe was in total control against Smid once he broke service in the fifth game of the first set. He broke again in the ninth game, then raced through the second set in 20 minutes. Not once in the match did he drop his service.

"It's fine with me," McEnroe said to a suggestion that Smid let down after dropping the first set. "I've played him several times before and always beat him. He's gotten discouraged before against me."

DEAD HEAT

Okay, railbirds, pick the winner in the eighth race Saturday night at Seminole Greyhound Park in Casselberry. Oh, yes—use a magnifying glass. Actually even with a magnifying glass, it is still a dead heat for win. The No. 1 dog—Worth A Venture—was caught right at the wire by the No. 2 entry—GE's El Greco. Action resumes tonight at Super Seminole, where the free Super 8 is worth $16,000.

Thousands Of Gifts Arrive Royal Pair Receives Used Silver-Plated Mousetrap

LONDON (UPI) — Most newlyweds know the feeling of unwrapping a wedding present toaster, then another toaster, then another ...

So imagine what happens when wedding presents come by the thousand, as they're doing to Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer — a flood so enormous its logistics have been put in the charge of a royal navy rear admiral.

"Avoiding duplication is always a big problem," said a spokesman for Buckingham Palace. "It is always best to consult Sir Hugh first."

Sir Hugh is Rear Admiral Sir Hugh Janion, who keeps the gift list for a couple who have everything and then some. A few people, without consulting him, have gone to extreme lengths to make sure nobody duplicates their gift.

Like the wedding present of a ton of peat.

Handy for the garden at the couple's new country estate. Or so thought the Sedgemoor District Council, which valued its gift at 127 pounds ($254).

Former mayor Vernon Gould of Weston-super-Mare also had the country house, Highgrove, in mind. He sent the couple a used, silver-plated mousetrap.

Most presents from the 2,500 wedding guests remain secret. But a palace official said gifts from the public have been flooding in since mid-June.

Hundreds of these are touchingly sincere, inspired only by a desire to please and to express affection. Children's paintings of the royal couple, needlework from nuns, workshop products from dads. And probably several dozen teapots.

Even foreign embassies in London had duplication problems, though they went direct to the top and asked Prince Charles what he'd like.

"We suggested we would like to give an item of furniture for his country home, and the prince mentioned he would like a bed," said Dhurmandass Baichoo of the Mauritius high commission, who passed the hat for 30 pounds ($60) from each of London's 150-plus embassies for the joint gift.

But meantime a small country firm called C. and C. Bedding was investing hundreds of hours hand-crafting another wedding-present bed, "and the end product is supreme," said company partner Ray Cadman. That's two beds.

"If too many duplicates arrive, then we ask the donor if they would mind the gift being handed in the couple's name to a charity," the palace official said.

"You have to be tactful because of all the thought and trouble that goes into a present. Prince Charles's way of coping is to ask for checks to be sent to a charity for the disabled."

Checks are not the style of the likes of King Khalid of Saudi Arabia. The fabulously rich monarch's gift is a guarded secret, but embassy sources described it as "breathtaking," rich in gold and diamonds.

Cambridge University, on the other hand, is spending nothing. Its wedding present is a 1771 book called "The Complete English Traveller" by Nathaniel Spencer, no relation of the bride's. It's a spare copy bought by accident 15 years ago and the university settled on it as a "token" present.

Buckingham Palace says "a large selection" of Charles and Diana's wedding presents will go on public view, as did those given to Princess Anne and Capt. Mark Philips, at 400-year-old St. James's Palace in central London, beginning Aug. 5.

In 1973 the charge to view Anne's amazing present haul was 25 pence (now 50 cents). This time it's 1.50 pounds ($3), with all proceeds going to "a charity chosen by the Prince of Wales," the official said.

Older Women Favored In Franklin's Advice

DEAR ABBY: I read some time ago that Benjamin Franklin wrote a letter to a young man advising him to take an older woman for his mistress. I haven't been able to find it in any of Franklin's writings. Are you familiar with it?

LIKES OLDER WOMEN IN TUCSON

DEAR LIKES: Yes. And here it is, from "A Treasury of the World's Great Letters":

June 15, 1745

"My dear friend: If you persist in thinking sex is inevitable, then I repeat my former advice that in your amours you should prefer older women to young ones. This you call a paradox, and demand my reasons. They are these:

- "1. Because they have more knowledge of the world, and their minds are better stored with observations; their conversation is more improving, and more lastingly agreeable.
- "2. Because when women cease to be handsome, they study to be good. To maintain their influence over man, they supply the diminution of beauty by an augmentation of utility. They learn to do a thousand services, small and great, and are the most tender and useful of all friends when you are sick. Thus they continue amiable. And hence there is hardly such a thing to be found as an old woman who is not a good woman.
- "3. Because there is no hazard of children, which irregularly produced may be attended with much inconvenience.
- "4. Because through more experience they are more prudent and discreet in conducting an intrigue to prevent suspicion. The commerce with them is therefore safer with regard to your reputation; and regard to theirs, if the affair should happen to be known, considerate people might be inclined to excuse an old woman, who would kindly take care of a young man, form his manners by her good counsels, and prevent his ruining his health and fortune among mercurial prostitutes.

Dear Abby

"5. Because in every animal that walks upright, the deficiency of the fluids that fill the muscles appears first in the highest part. The face first grows lean and wrinkled; then the neck; then the breast and arms; the lower parts continuing to the last as plump as ever; so that covering all above with a basket, and regarding only what is below the girdle, it is impossible of two women to know an old from a young one. And as in the dark all cats are gray, the pleasure of corporal enjoyment with an old woman is at least equal and frequently superior; every knock being by practice capable of improvement.

"6. Because the sin is less. The debauching of a virgin may be her ruin, and make her for life unhappy.

"7. Because the conception is less. The having made a young girl miserable may give you frequent bitter reflections; none of which can attend making an old woman happy.

"8th and lastly. They are so grateful!!!

"Your affectionate friend,

BEN J. FRANKLIN

Whether "the dear friend" ever took the above advice remains unknown. But in 1776, at age 70, Franklin was sent to Paris to serve as minister to France. There he had ample opportunity to consort with women of all ages, but he always preferred older women. Perhaps it was one of the younger ones who told Ben to go fly a kite.

DEAR ABBY: How does one introduce stepparents gracefully? My parents are divorced, and they are both married again to wonderful people. Using the terms "stepmother" or "stepfather" seems too unfeeling. I love my parents very much, and I truly love their new mates, but introductions are so awkward for me. Can you help?

STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: Why not simply introduce them as "my parents"?

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Tuesday, July 14, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY July 14, 1981
You're likely to have a few extra responsibilities this coming year, but you'll find them manageable. On the plus side, one of your secret ambitions will be fulfilled.

CANCER (June 21-July 21)
Tasks should be properly scheduled today so that you have adequate time to perform them. Projects which you slip in at the last minute will only get a lick and a promise. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph, Mail #1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Good things could happen today from sharing time with persons whose ideals are in harmony with yours. Individuals who are too self-seeking may cause problems.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Your prospects for material rewards are very promising today, but don't try to get more than you're entitled to. Be content with a reasonable return.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
You're extremely convincing today. Most persons you deal with will find merit in your ideas and suggestions, provided you don't try to force your views.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Benefits will come to you today through persons to whom you've been helpful. Don't expect anything, however, from one who always offers hollow promises.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Arrangements today where groups are involved should work out quite well. One-on-one situations could prove to be very tasty.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
You're a solid achiever today and onlookers will note your accomplishments. Let them talk about what you've done, instead of tooting your own horn.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
When dealing in serious matters today, don't introduce frivolous touches into the conversation. Others aren't to be receptive to what you deem humorous.

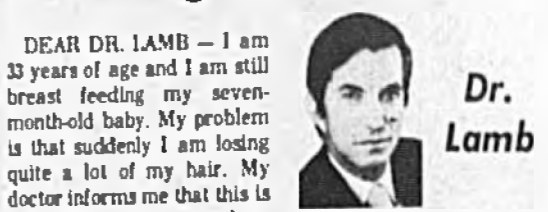

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
You are capable of handling involvements outside of your domestic domain very successfully today. Dealings with family members may not come off as smoothly.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Your judgment and ideas are good today, but you must guard against a tendency to make impulsive last-minute changes which might not work out.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
In matters where you are sharing something of value today, strive to be fair and impartial. Selfish gestures will provoke associates to do likewise.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
In situations requiring collective effort today, be a team player. Striking off on your own could seriously hamper the involvement.

Hair Loss Worries Nursing Mother

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 33 years of age and I am still breast feeding my seven-month-old baby. My problem is that suddenly I am losing quite a lot of my hair. My doctor informs me that this is normal for nursing mothers and that it will grow back once I stop nursing. This explanation is insufficient. Can you offer me any further advice?

DEAR READER — It is quite common for a woman to have a sudden loss of hair after a pregnancy. Your hair follicles all have an active and dormant phase. In the active phase they sprout hair shafts. When they are dormant there is no visible hair shaft. They are on a rotating shift so to speak so that ordinarily such a small number are dormant that you don't notice it.

When you are pregnant the hormone changes activate more of your hair follicles so you have a lot more hair shafts. In the latter months of pregnancy a woman's hair is apt to be its thickest.

The drawback is that with so many follicles in the same active phase you then have a lot going into the dormant phase at the same time. When that happens the dormant follicles shed their hair and a woman may experience massive hair loss. But your doctor is right in saying that it is temporary. Very soon there will be hair follicles that have been dormant which will be active again and you will grow your hair back.

There are many other causes for losing hair which are discussed in The Health Letter number 12-8, Hair Care, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1351, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. There are a number of things you can do to minimize hair loss which are also discussed. Crash diets and certain grooming team game both South players elected to open with one spade. The hand is too strong for an opening preempt and doesn't have enough high-card strength to make a forcing opening advisable.

Oswald: "South was a trifle disappointed when North passed to the one-spade opening but East reopened with a takeout double. Now South decided to try to trap his opponents. He simply bid two spades right over East's double. West bid three hearts. East raised to four and South proceeded to four spades."

Alan: "The trap worked. West passed and East decided that his three aces warranted a business double. The defenders did get three tricks, but dummy's jack of diamonds was all South needed to bring home the doubled game."

Oswald: "At the other table East also doubled one spade. South jumped right to four. West thought awhile and finally bid five hearts. Everyone passed. North opened his singleton spade and West had to lose two spades and a diamond for down one, so team one gained 890 points for 13 IMPs."
