Hattaway's Haiti Trip Aimed At Halting Refugee Tide

ROBERT HATTAWAY
... helping Haitians

By DIANE PETRYK
Herald Staff Writer

State Rep. Robert Hattaway, D-Altamonte Springs, said today his trip to Haiti next week will be part of a somewhat desperate effort to stem the tide of Haitian refugees coming into Florida.

At the request of Gov. Bob Graham, Hattaway will fly to Haiti Sunday with 25 other Florida businessmen and legislators and Lt. Gov. Wayne Mixson.

The mission was designed to teach the Haitians some business techniques they might use to create jobs and thus lessen the desire of persons to leave the country, Hattaway said.

He said he was asked to go along because of his knowledge of the tropical-foliage business, which could be developed into a profitable business for Haiti.

With the same reasoning, State Sen. Pete Skinner of Lake City was asked to go along because of his knowledge of the watermelon industry, Hattaway said.

He said he doesn't know who the others are who will be on the trip, but all are paying their own way. It is not a government-sponsored trip, he said. They are scheduled to return Wednesday.

Hattaway said the governor planned the trip "because our backs are against the wall."

The federal government isn't helping Florida with the refugee crisis, he said.

"So the governor and the business community are taking things into their own hands," he added. "The attitude is, we've got to try something."

Hattaway said he thinks the governor views encouragement of business in Haiti as a possible long-term solution to stop the influx of refugees.

"The Haitians have not tapped anywhere near their resources," he said, and much more can be done in developing fishing and agricultural industries, among others.

But Haiti currently has phenomenal unemployment, he said.

"We can't really blame them for coming up here and trying," Hattaway said. "But we don't need them here."

Hattaway said many Haitians come here legally and possibly can be taught a business skill to take back to Haiti, which would create jobs.

If businesses can get started, he said, the close family ties of the Haitians will help to keep the people home.

"They have closer family ties than we do," he added. "Brother helps brother, and so forth."

"But they don't have the corporate structures we have to provide goods and money. We need to help them build that foundation."

He said the group will meet with representatives of the Haitian government and the business community.

"The governor has the feeling that if the business community sees their potential they can provide their own services and their own employment," he added.

Hattaway said he is negotiating to purchase 76 acres of farmland in Puerto Rico and 36 acres of greenhouses, but that he has no plans to expand his tropical-foliage business into Haiti.

In Lake Mary Approval Given To Subdivision

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Final plans for the 86-acre, 133-home Lake Mary Woods subdivision received the nod of approval from the Lake Mary City Council on Thursday night by a narrow 3-2 vote.

But the approval was contingent upon developer Donald McIntosh & Associates' striking a deal with the city of Sanford to provide water to the proposed development, located between U.S. Highway 17-92, County Road 427 and East Street, at no cost to the city.

Approving the plan were Councilmen Gene McDonald, Vic Olivera and Ray Fox. McDonald, however, expressed reservations about the portion of the plan calling for filling low-lying portions of the property for homesites. And Councilmen Dick Fess and Ken King continued their opposition to the plan. King was concerned about the quality and quantity of drainage from the property, while Fess was concerned not only about the drainage but also about the first phase of the development, bounding East Street.

East Street, the entrance road to Seminole Community College, is scheduled for improvements in 1982, and Fess has been worried that new traffic from the development would add to traffic congestion there.

Fess preferred that the development's first phase be located in a fashion to channel traffic to SR 427 and thus condition new residents to use that road rather than East Street.

City Manager Phil Kulbes told the council that Sanford City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles and Sanford City Engineer Mack LaZenby said Sanford might supply additional water to the city for the proposed development if the existing Sanford water line at County Home Road were extended south to loop the Lake Mary system.

Kulbes suggested the city might wish to pay some $6,000 for 550 feet of eight-inch water line in the loop. However, City Attorney Gary Massey, after asking whether the development could be built without the water line and receiving a negative response from Kulbes, said the city ought not to pay any of the cost of extending the water line.

"Let the developers pay for it if they wish to develop," Massey said.

Kulbes insisted the looping would also benefit the city in the future. He said that currently the city has only one source of its water supply from the city of Sanford, at Rantoul Lane and State Road 46A. By looping the system, he said, a second source would be provided if a breakdown occurred in the primary source.

"From a practical point of view, if the developer is interested in water, the work should be done by the developer. It's the developer's problem," Fox said.

While Kulbes said Sanford would only supply the water if the city looped its water system, Bill Colbert, city attorney of Sanford and lawyer for the developer, said no final decision had been made by Sanford on the Lake Mary request. He said the Sanford City Commission had not made a final decision and that Knowles' and LaZenby's recommendations were only staff opinions.

"The Sanford City Commission has not taken a position that a loop is necessary. If it had taken that position, I would have known," Colbert said.

Massey said his understanding is that Knowles and LaZenby make decisions concerning utilities' operating procedures on a day-to-day basis.

Larry Dale, developer of Cardinal Oaks, a subdivision adjoining the Lake Mary Woods property, said that if water were extended to the new development from his subdivision, water pressures for fire-protection purposes would be reduced to a dangerous level.

McDonald, who only a week ago voted to turn down final plans for the Lake Mary Woods development, said he had changed his position after believing it is not "defensible" since City Engineer Paul Porter has said the drainage plans for the development are "cool."

McDonald said he is opposed to swampland being sold and islands being built in swamplands for homesites, adding that half of the lots in the planned first phase will be located on flood-prone property. "If this becomes a problem in the future, I will personally get back to you to see that you are held responsible," he told developer Donald McIntosh.

130 Laid Off Or Moved As Qwip Ponders Future

Approximately 130 employees have either been transferred or laid off from Qwip Systems Inc. main office in Altamonte Springs, and an in-depth evaluation of the Exxon Corp.-owned firm will determine its future in its present location, said Linda Boyette, Qwip public information officer, today.

Last January Exxon decided to consolidate Qwip, a company that produces telephone facsimile machines with the other two office-machine-producing companies it owns, Qwip, Vydec and Qyx, each owned by Exxon, soon will become divisions of Exxon Office Systems Corp., Ms. Boyette said.

International offices for Exxon Office Systems will soon be located in Stamford, Conn. Marketing operations for Qwip, Vydec and Qyx will be conducted from the new campus type base there, Boyette said.

Originally, Qwip's entire business operations were to be conducted from its own campus-type base planned for a 187-acre site the company purchased in Lake Mary. Exxon paid $2.88 million for the site, Ms. Boyette said.

"We are waiting on results of a marketing and manufacturing study," she said. "There has been no information or direction given to us to close down this site."

Boyette said the study should be completed by early December. "We are under review of how to define and align our manufacturing systems," she said.

At the beginning of 1981, approximately 650 people were employed at Qwip's Altamonte Springs home. Boyette said nearly 100 marketing workers were transferred to Exxon Office Systems' Pelham, N.Y., temporary base early in the year.

Since January, another 37 workers were released from their jobs because of poor sales, Ms. Boyette said.

Qwip began its operations in Altamonte Springs in 1973 as an independent company. In 1974 Exxon acquired the company.

Ms. Boyette said she does not know what Exxon plans to do with the 187-acre Lake Mary tract now that marketing operations for all three Exxon Office Systems divisions would be based in Stamford.

Qyx production operations are based in Lionville, Pa., while Vydec's base is Florham Park, N.J. — LEE DANCY

The Games

Pinochle, Ping-Pong, Pancakes...

By LEE DANCY
Herald Staff Writer

Pinochle, ping-pong, pancakes, points, paddling and projects were the lineup for Thursday's Golden Age Games.

Seniors from as far away as Fairfield, Ohio, mustered their multiple talents for the fourth day of competition in the seventh annual games in Sanford.

The lineup for Thursday included synchronized swimming, a pancake race, a knitting contest, one-on-one basketball, and the first part of the decathlon events. Participants started at 9 a.m. for some events and carried on until past 6:30 p.m.

At the Hobby Show, sponsored by the Seminole County Agricultural Extension Office, over 330 examples of handiwork were exhibited and judged. Extension Office representative Beverly Dorton said the show's second day featured a broad assortment of handmade dolls, ceramic pieces, needlepoint and crafts.

A few of the outstanding exhibits included a handmade cherrywood desk, a three-faced ceramic doll, and a dollhouse made with needlepoint on a plastic mesh.

"There were a large number of spectators this year," Ms. Dorton said, "many more than other years. Approximately 630 people have come through (the Hobby Show) in the last two days."

A picture of a dog's head, made completely from beads, hand-glued to the surface of the portrait, stumped the judges at first, Mrs. Dorton said.

"The judges thought it was a painting at first," she said.

In basketball, men and women participated in field goal, free throw and one-on-one competition at the Lakeview School.

The aquatically inclined gathered at the Sharidan Aquatic Club in Langwood to compete in freestyle, backstroke and breaststroke. Synchronized swimming, reminiscent of dance director Busby Berkeley's geometric patterns created by human bodies in his 1930 movies, also was part of the water-oriented events.

Other competitors in the pancake race were required to flip a flapjack while running a race at Fort Mellon Park. Entrants in this event needed good hand and eye coordination and fast feet to win the race.

Shuttle Flight Will Be Cut Short

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — The pilots of the space shuttle Columbia will have to cut their mission short by three days and land in California Saturday afternoon because of the failure of an electrical generator, mission officials announced today.

Mission control in Houston said astronauts Joe Engle and Richard Truly will land at 4:22 p.m. EST Saturday at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif. — the same place it set down on its maiden voyage in April.

The decision, announced just after the astronauts had completed one full day in orbit, was made because one of three new fuel cell generators failed shortly after launch Thursday.

Spokesman Jack Riley said the abbreviated mission will allow the astronauts to accomplish most of the top-priority test objectives of the second test flight of the shuttle. It was the first time a used spacecraft had flown in orbit.

The astronauts, aware earlier of the likelihood of a shortened mission, worked hard today to salvage as much as possible, and successfully tested the new robot arm that will be used to unload satellites on future missions.

The initial tests of the $100 million Canadian-built manipulator crane demonstrated it indeed does work in the weightlessness of orbital flight. The operation represented a major success for the mission marred by technical troubles even before it got under way.

The early-return announcement was issued shortly after President Reagan announced in Washington that he will stop by the mission control center in Houston Sunday during a weekend visit to Texas.

"The arm is up for the first time," Truly said today in reporting the first details of the arm tests. "She's been deployed. Working great."

Television showed the arm — "Canada" painted on its side — partially raised, bent at the elbow, above the left side of the spacecraft Columbia. A shot from a camera on the arm showed the astronauts waving through two aft windows.

One view showed the arm hanging like a sky hook with the cloud-speckled Earth far below. A camera mounted on the arm showed the outside of the Columbia's cockpit section for the first time from space.

It was cruising upside down 160 miles high at the time, over the eastern United States on its 17th orbit and scanning the globe with advanced radar to search for clues to hidden mineral deposits.

The arm is mounted on the port edge of the ship's 60-foot long payload bay. Truly stood in the aft portion of the Columbia's cockpit and, watching through a window, operated the arm with a control stick.

"Okay, Jim, Richard has just deployed the arm and we're bringing it back to stow it," flight commander Joe Engle told ground communicator James Buchli. "Looking good."

The electrically operated arm, which has shoulder, elbow and wrist joints like a human arm, extends 50 feet and is critical to the success of the shuttle as a satellite launcher. It was not carried on the Columbia's first flight in April.

Engle said after awakening about 7 a.m. EST that he got the revised arm test instructions on the ship's radio teleprinter. He said the operation of the machine on the ship's lower cabin level did not bother them during the night.

"Jim, I'll tell you, this sure beats working for a living," Engle told Buchli.

Gunter Threatens 27

Car Insurance Companies

TALLHASSEE (UPI) — Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter has given 27 auto insurance companies 14 days to file updated 1980 earnings data or face penalties that could include revocation of their licenses to operate in Florida.

The companies that did not get the information in on time July 1 include GEICO and Colonial Penn., two of Florida's top 10 private passenger auto insurers.

Car Dealer Out Of Race

MIAMI (UPI) — Millionaire Miami car dealer Norman Braman — who has publicly opposed the sale of AWACA to Saudi Arabia — withdrew Thursday as a candidate for Immigration and Naturalization Service commissioner, citing business reasons.

The surprise announcement came in a one-page statement from Braman's luxury car-dealership office in Miami.

Med Fly Eradicated

TAMPA (UPI) — The Mediterranean fruit fly infestation in Hillsborough County was declared eradicated Thursday, 101 days after the first flies were found, and a quarantine on fruit and vegetable shipments in a 52-square mile area was lifted.

State Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner said the battle to eradicate the agricultural pest cost the state $492,000, with the federal government paying a matching amount.

Eastern Asks For Help

MIAMI (UPI) — With third-quarter losses of $38.7 million and more to come, Eastern Airlines is turning to its employees for help.

In a letter accompanying the paychecks of the carrier's 37,500 employees Thursday, chairman Frank Borman proposed a package of proposals — including a wage freeze — aimed at cutting costs.

Map Error May Cause Crash

MIAMI (UPI) — An error on an aerial map that civilian pilots use to cross central Florida puts civilian pilots in danger of colliding with F4 jets on mock bombing missions from Homestead Air Force Base, officials said.

Maj. Gene Syarto, chief of the airspace management office at the 31st Tactical Training Wings, said the error plots the route of Wings jets 30 miles west of the actual path. "We're concerned that a civilian aircraft will be run over by a high-speed F4," he said.

Drunk Driver Jailed

MIAMI (UPI) — A 48-year-old habitual drunk driver called a "traveling time bomb" by the prosecution has been sentenced to four years in jail.

Prosecutor Greg Lattimer said Johnnie Dowless, a Miami Beach roofer, had already been convicted of drunken driving 20 times, had his license suspended 25 times and revoked more than 20 times.

Napping Motorist Beaten, Car Burned

By DIANE PETRYK
Herald Staff Writer

He had parked in the woods just to relax, he said. But he ended up in the hospital after a severe beating and the car he was driving was totally destroyed by fire.

Robert Thomas Mass, 37, of Orlando, told police he parked in the woods off the south side of Lake Howell Lane just east of Lake Ann Lane in Casselberry about 4 p.m. Thursday. Then two men approached the car and engaged him in conversation, he said.

He told police that the two men then beat him up for no reason. Then, when he tried to start his car to get away it caught fire.

The car, a 1980 Ford Thunderbird, was completely destroyed by fire, police report. It was owned by Nelson Norton, of Orlando, a co-worker of Mass.

Mass sustained severe bruises, swelling and cuts about the face, a broken nose and second degree burns on the left arm, and was transported to Florida Hospital North where he was treated and released. The cause of the fire is unknown.

PARKING LOT PILFERERS
A Tampa man who parked at the Days Inn off State Road 46 in Sanford Thursday night reported to police his car was stripped of a dash mounted radio, door panel speakers and a wallet sometime between 1 a.m. and 10:10 a.m.

Golf pro Karl P. Kimball told police the burglars apparently entered his 1979 Ford van through the driver's side door. Kimball estimated the loss at $285.

Meanwhile, across the street at the Holiday Inn parking lot, someone made an unsuccessful attempt to gain entry to a black and silver 1981 Chevrolet pickup truck owned by a Merritt Island man.

In the process, however, the would-be bandits broke the right door vent window and its lock which will probably cost $100 to fix, owner Earl Whitcomb said.

The incident occurred sometime between 1 a.m. and 9:30 a.m. Thursday, police said.

CHARMING THEFT

A 14-karat gold charm bracelet valued at $1,200 was reported stolen or missing from Patricia Mooney's residence at 103 Tedworth Court, Longwood.

Ms. Mooney said the bracelet could have been taken anytime between September 15 and 11:49 a.m. Monday, police said.

TOOLS TAKEN

A tool box, assorted hand tools and an air-driven ratchet tool valued at $900 were taken from an unlocked carport storage room at 526 Radio Ave., Sanford, sometime between 4 p.m. Sunday and 11:10 a.m. Monday, police report.

The tools belonged to George C. Clark of that address.

THROUGH THE ROOF

Burglars who wanted to get into Tiago Tavern, 1013 W. 13th Street, Sanford, found a unique mode of entry. They ripped up part of the roof above the tavern's restroom and lowered themselves in, police report.

Once inside, the burglars stole an undetermined number of bottles of wine and cans of beer, and broke into a juke box.

JEWELRY TAKEN

About $2,200 worth of men's jewelry was taken from the home of Howell T. Drawdy, 2310 Park Ave., Sanford, sometime between 4:30 p.m. Oct. 22 and 3 p.m. Sunday, police report.

LESSON IN SECURITY

The Small World of Learning nursery school got a lesson in security Tuesday when it was discovered the school had been burglarized.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies report someone entered the building at 809 Fox Valley Drive, Longwood sometime between 6 p.m. Monday and 5:53 p.m. Tuesday, taking a 21 inch color television set and stand, and three packages of ho dogs. The south side door of the building was found unlocked, deputies added.

Judith Barclay of Longwood, owner of the school, told deputies she has had trouble with employees forgetting to lock all the doors.

COURT SENTENCINGS

A 17-year-old Maitland youth has been sentenced in Circuit Court in Sanford to four years in prison and two years probation for the armed robbery of a Longwood woman six months ago.

Stephen M. Carnody of 45 Squire Run Apartments pleaded guilty in August to pointing a gun at Lois Joseph in the parking lot of El Torito's restaurant, 375 W. State Road 436 in Altamonte Springs, and fleeing with her purse which contained $20.

In other court action, Robert C. Faulkerson, 34, of Sanford, pleaded guilty to uttering a forgery and was given credit for the 65 days in jail he already had served and released.

Faulkerson was accused of taking a $41 pension check from the desk of real estate agent Mossie Bateman, 60, of 2640 S. Sanford Ave., Sanford, and cashing it at a local hardware store.

SILVER HEIST

Jewelry and silver dishes and plates of an unknown value have been reported taken from 2590 Sweetwater Trail, Maitland.

Shirley J. Pampinella reported the items missing and said they were taken sometime between 8 p.m. Friday and 11:30 p.m. Sunday.

Police report entry to the home was gained through a living room window and the burglars exited through a bedroom sliding glass door.

CASH, STAMPS STOLEN

A cash box containing $62 worth of U.S. postage stamps and $264 in cash was stolen in the burglary of Photo Chemical Systems, Inc., 40 N. Lake Howell Road, Casselberry, sometime between 5 p.m. Saturday and 7 a.m. Monday, police report.

Burglars broke a glass door to gain entry.

Hoosier Settles For 2nd In Golden Age B-Ball Contest

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

Basketball in the state of Indiana is considered by some experts to be the best in the nation.

Every winter "Hoosier Hysteria" afflicts the roundball enthusiasts to the point that packed gymnasiums are as common-place as empty ones are in Florida.

But the disease does not touch just the high schools. Coach Bobby Knight's Indiana Hoosiers took last year's NCAA National Championship followed by a sea of red-clad fans.

There's just something magic about Indiana basketball.

Then, it should come as no surprise that Gayle Davis, a spry, 65-year-old Hoosier should descend on the city of Sanford about every time this year.

"I don't know when I first heard about the Golden Age Games," said the Hamlet, Ind. farmer. "One year, though, I came down to watch."

Apparently, he liked what he saw. What he saw were people his age and older having a great time.

He also liked what he didn't see. Which was no one that could shoot a basketball better than he could.

Davis has won the shooting contest the past four years. In the event the shooter gets two attempts from five spots on the floor and 10 free throws. The first 10 are worth two points each, while the free throws count one each.

Last year, Davis canned 20 points, while the runnerup had 19 and the third place contestant had 18. "It wasn't easy," remembers Davis. "But I took it again."

And if his free throw shooting is any indication of his final score, Davis just might have an opportunity to pick up a little money on the side—and his fifth gold medal!

Using perfect bended-knee form, Davis hit his first shot during Thursday's competition at Lakeview Middle School, missed his second, then tickled the twine for eight in a row for an excellent 9-of-10 effort. With those numbers, Bobby Knight might need a little clinic around the end of this month.

While Davis' prowess is exceptional at the free throw line, he says he would venture into other areas—if he just had the conditioning.

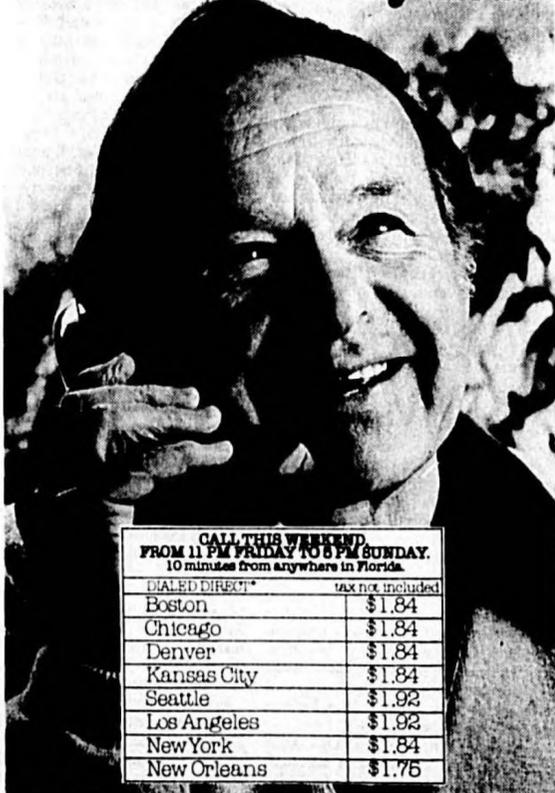

"I think I could win that one-on-one too—if I just had to play one game," he chuckled. "No, I don't run or anything like that. "I just shoot the basketball." And, very well at that.

Stockman Gets 2nd Chance After Talk With Reagan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Budget Director David Stockman is getting a "second chance" from an angry President Reagan, but it remains unknown whether he will survive his broadside criticism of "Reaganomics."

An apologetic and contrite Stockman, in what he described as a "woodshed" chat with Reagan on Thursday, offered his resignation. But the president, although perturbed with his economic "whiz kid," refused to accept.

Balanced Budget On Hold

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Democratic-led House Budget Committee has decided to do exactly what President Reagan proposed as far as balancing the budget — wait until next year.

But its Senate counterpart, where Republican members are concerned they will look like "a bunch of fools" if they wait, is having trouble closing its eyes to projected huge government deficits.

Double Eagle V Makes It

RED BLUFF, Calif. (UPI) — The Double Eagle V balloon, flying through heavy rain and poor visibility, crash-landed safely on a rugged mountain top late Thursday, successfully completing a historic 3½-day trans-Pacific flight from Japan.

Minutes after the 270-foot-high helium balloon landed on a ridge 50 miles southwest of Red Bluff in northern California, the four-man crew radioed that it was okay and staying with the craft until daybreak.

Security Tightened For U.S. Diplomats In Europe

PARIS (UPI) — Security against feared Libyan attacks on U.S. diplomats tightened today following the attempted assassination of the American ambassador and news that another diplomat was followed by a car without license plates.

The American diplomatic community was badly shaken by the Thursday attack on U.S. Ambassador Christian Chapman, who escaped by ducking behind his limousine as a bearded man fired six bullets at him.

Concessions Ease Strikes

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Solidarity and the government both made concessions to resolve major strikes, improving chances for success in next week's talks on what authorities termed the "growing chaos" of Poland's economy.

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, on a tour of southern and western Poland trying to end some of the 65 major and minor strikes plaguing the country, said union members should work for conciliation.

Casselberry Complex

Contract To Be Awarded

Awarding of a contract for construction of Casselberry's municipal complex is slated for Monday night's City Council meeting which will begin at 7:30 p.m., 95 Lake Triplet Drive. Mayor Owen Sheppard and Utilities Director Ed Keuling are recommending the council award the contract to low bidder Southland Construction Inc., Orlando, for $1,082,390. The company's base bid is $985,240, plus an additional $97,150 for landscaping, flagpoles, furnishings, sidewalks, driveways and roofing.

Keuling said the city "was very fortunate in receiving eight excellent bid proposals with only a 7.6 percent spread between the high and low bid and less than one percent spread between the two lowest bidders."

Keuling had previously estimated the cost of the complex at $1 million. However, he added he had not included furnishings, covered walk ways and renovation of the present city hall in his estimate.

If Southland Construction Inc. is awarded the contract at Monday night's meeting, Keuling said company officials have indicated they can begin work the following day.

Other bidders for the municipal complex job were Aagaard-Juergensen, $1,023,238; Boyce Construction, $1,069,000; Kelsey & Son, $1,039,696; Kincaid Construction, $1,049,000; Mark C. Arnold, $1,017,100; Mark Construction, $1,079,000; and O'Neal & Corcoran, $1,089,000.

The city council is also slated to discuss drainage conditions on Quintuplet Drive in Monday night's work session.

According to Sheppard, Mrs. James Matheny, 1315 Quintuplet Drive, has complained that city work crews damaged several trees on her property while installing a drainage ditch and that the culvert is causing severe erosion to her property.

From City Chemical Site

Agreement Reached For Removing Deadly Wastes

"Knowles (Sanford City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles) brought the issue off dead center. If it hadn't been for him there would be no agreement," said Michael D. Jones, lawyer for City Chemicals Co. Inc. of Orlando, today of the final agreement reached in the circuit court at Sanford on Thursday.

After a 90-minute negotiating session, the state Department of Environmental Regulation, the city of Sanford and the Orlando-based chemical firm came to agreement, setting a 26-week time schedule for the removal of 3,264 barrels of waste chemicals from a 2-acre Sanford site.

A court session before Circuit Judge Kenneth Leffler was set for Thursday after agreement between the three parties broke down more than a week ago.

During Thursday's hearing, Leffler called a recess to preside at a brief hearing on another matter. He urged the representatives of the three parties to negotiate and come to an agreement before he returned to the courtroom.

Leffler is scheduled to sign a court order today confirming the agreement.

The agreement, according to Jones and Knowles, calls for City Chemicals to remove the waste material at a steady pace, beginning later today or Monday.

"The time span is 26 weeks," Knowles said. "It is understood unforeseen difficulties can arise with such things as weather, accidents, unavoidable items. And the city will work with City Chemicals as long as it follows its good intent and purpose with a steady, truthful, continuous removal of the chemical waste."

Knowles said the agreement means the material will start moving out right away and will continue to move out at a steady pace. "This will establish the good intent and purpose of City Chemicals to effect complete removal in the shortest possible time span," Knowles said.

Jones said that at a closed-door meeting of principals and lawyers during the Leffler-called recess, a frank discussion was held. "But if it hadn't been for Knowles the agreement wouldn't have come about," he said.

"Knowles was very helpful in bringing about the resolution of this situation, and helped in dealing with the state," he said.

The agreement calls for the state to lend City Chemicals $100,000 in state trust funds for 18 months at 18 percent annual interest to help pay City Chemicals' cost of removing the waste material.

Jones said Knowles urged the state to also reimburse City Chemicals for the $17,800 it already has spent for testing chemicals and preparing some of the materials for removal. And Knowles said today that a schedule of payment for the work from the state to the company as it proceeds also was worked out.

Originally the state had offered to lend City Chemicals only $50,000 in state money for the removal costs. Jones said earlier there is no way the work could be done for that amount.

"We'll do the work as fast as we can," he said today. "But we can do it only as fast as the money comes from the state. Everyone is going to have to cooperate. From hindsight I see that it is better to cooperate with the city of Sanford."

Heart Disease

New Hope For Reducing Killer Arterial Cholesterol Deposits

DALLAS (UPI) — High levels of a specific blood protein can dramatically reduce the risk of heart disease — a discovery researchers say could help the 1 million Americans each year who suffer from the nation's No. 1 killer.

Several international researchers working individually discovered that the protein molecule — called High Density Lipoprotein (HDL) — reduces cholesterol buildup in arteries when present in blood in rich quantities, thus lessening the risk of heart disease.

"The negative correlation between HDL levels in the plasma and the risk of heart disease is undisputed," said Dr. Daniel Steinberg of the University of California School of Medicine, San Diego, commenting in advance of an international symposium Sunday on HDLs and heart disease.

A number of experts will attend the one-day meeting.

Scientists also have confirmed that another blood component — low-density lipoproteins or LDLs — increases cholesterol buildup. They are testing a new drug to see if the proteins can be balanced to reduce overall cholesterol levels.

Studies show development of clogging of arteries or arteriosclerosis depends not so much on the absolute amount of cholesterol present in the blood but on how the cholesterol is "packaged" for transport into the bloodstream.

The medical experts say one-fourth of the cholesterol is transported by HDL, two-thirds by LDLs and the remainder primarily by very-low-density lipoproteins (VLDLs).

The experts discovered that LDLs are the major cause of arteriosclerosis. HDLs or lipoprotein molecules high in density, on the other hand, apparently do not contribute to arteriosclerosis and in fact, appear to fend it off.

Scientists theorize that HDL acts either to remove excess cholesterol from artery walls or inhibit its delivery. Scientists currently do not know why, however.

The effective way to treat patients running a high risk of heart disease, therefore, would be to increase the levels of HDLs and at the same time reduce those of LDLs, the researchers say.

Medical professor David T. Nash at the Upstate Medical Center in Syracuse, N.Y., says in one of his studies the drug, gemfibrozil, was found to be safe and effective in lowering cholesterol.

Small Businesses Seek Assistance From Gov. Graham

The statewide Conference on Small Business held in Tampa was concluded earlier this week with a promise from Gov. Bob Graham to do everything in his power to help small-business persons in Florida.

The three-day conference which began Sunday and ended Tuesday was attended by more than 200 delegates from around the state including Duke Adamson, president of the Rich Plan, United Home Services, Sanford.

Adamson said the top 9 recommendations made to Graham by conferees were:

- To require federal, state and local agencies reduce duplicative regulations such as building and environmental standards and inspections and information requirements. Also, to adopt a state flexibility act and include a time limit restriction on government responses. To establish a regulatory review oversight board to accept input from affected associations and business people to determine economic impact prior to and after a law is passed.
- Provide equal access to justice and law in the state of Florida.
- Establish a standing small business committee in both houses of the Florida Legislature.
- Provide a tax credit for an investment in small business and deferral of taxes on rollover of investments affecting small business at the state and federal level.
- Amend the state tax code so that it conforms with federal tax laws.
- Establish a small business advocate in the Governor's office who would represent small business, and oversee contracts between small businesses and state and local governments.
- Index federal and state corporate income taxes and raise the state exemption to $25,000.
- All business and personal real estate assessed value to be locked in at its present valuation and be increased only at the time of sale or transfer.
- Amend the homestead exemption law to tax the first $25,000 of value of all residential dwellings with the exemption applied thereafter.

PATCO: A Lesson For All

When the Professional Air Traffic Controller Organization (PATCO) recently declared it would be willing to end its three-month-old strike against the government and people of the United States if the strikers were permitted to return to work, the news was hardly worth announcing in the media.

It just doesn't matter any more. The announcement, in fact, was a pathetic irrelevancy because PATCO has ceased to exist. On Oct. 23, the Federal Labor Relations Authority (FLRA) decertified PATCO as the exclusive bargaining agent of the air traffic controllers. The U.S. Court of Appeals sustained the FLRA decision that put PATCO out of business.

As a consequence, the 6,300 PATCO members who did not go out on strike in August will no longer be required to pay dues to a union that couldn't represent them. The Federal Aviation Administration now may proceed with new contracts and working controllers may form a new union.

Meanwhile, the administration served notice that PATCO's belated offer changes nothing; the 11,500 strikers will not be allowed back to work.

How are the mighty fallen. When PATCO members voted overwhelmingly to go on strike in August because the administration would not cave in to their demands for a $10,000 across-the-board pay increase on top of an average salary of $33,000, they not only violated federal law but their own signed agreements not to strike. The arrogant union leadership, convinced that its members were indispensable to U.S. air traffic, intended to have its demands fully met under threat of blackmail or else paralyze every airport. In their greed and insolence, the air traffic controllers simply underestimated President Reagan, who gave them 48 hours to return to work or be permanently fired. Even then, PATCO counted on winning through public concern over air safety and support from foreign controllers.

As it turned out, PATCO's rolls were padded by about 3,000 members, and with 6,300 controllers who did not strike being reinforced by managers and military personnel, the inconvenience was minimized to an amazing degree. Mercifully, no air disaster occurred during the transitional period that PATCO could have blamed on the government.

There is a memorable and obvious lesson in the PATCO episode for members of other public-sector unions. The American people, who overwhelmingly supported the President in his tough response to the illegal air-traffic controllers strike, are fed up with strikes and sick-outs by their public servants. Little support exists for such strikes. Those who seek public jobs are fully aware that the right to strike is not among their privileges, even as they know they enjoy civil service job security not usually available in the private sector.

Out-of-work air traffic controllers, who, as President Reagan said, resigned their jobs, have themselves and PATCO to blame, not the President whose duty it is to uphold the laws of this land.

BERRY'S WORLD

"So you're a supply-sider! Big deal! So is everybody else, these days."

By DIANE PETRYK

If last year is any indication, the State Division of Forestry should be getting very nervous now at the opening of this year's forest fire season. More than a half-million acres of wildlands were consumed by fire last year and almost all of the 14,000 fires involved were started by people, according to State Forester John Bethea. And conditions that led to the destruction last year still exist, he said. "The foremost factor was an extreme shortage of rain," Bethea said, "and we're still lagging below normal in all parts of Florida except the extreme southern area. The discouraging thing is that we don't expect this problem to improve anytime soon because we have just finished what is traditionally our rainy season." Other factors influencing the increase in fires were, of course, human factors. Due to the expanding population, there's more chance of accidental and careless fires, Bethea said.

This means everyone has to be more careful. The State Division of Forestry has started a crackdown on illegal fires. State law says all fires that burn any forest, grass, woods, wildlands, marshes or vegetative land clearing debris are illegal unless the Division of Forestry and adjacent landowners are notified beforehand.

Violation of the law is punishable by up to five years in prison, a $5,000 fine, or both, Bethea said.

People should keep in mind also, he said, should a fire get out of control, even if at the onset it was a legal fire, the landowner who starts it is liable for damages. Seminole County officials were so concerned with the hazards of wildfires last year that a burning ban was put into effect during the fire season. Seminole County Forester Mike Martin advises all residents to contact their local city or county fire department before doing any outdoor burning this year.

A pamphlet containing Florida's forest fire laws and open burning regulations is available from the Division of Forestry offices statewide, or it can be obtained by writing Florida Division of Forestry, Fire Control Bureau, Collins Building, Tallahassee, Florida 32301.

"Although it seems like the fire season has been going on for a year now, actually we are just now entering the time of year when we traditionally have the most forest fires," Bethea said. "So it is extremely important everybody knows the laws concerning outdoor burning and that they abide by them."

Secretaries In The Home

By MARCELLA S. KNEITER
CHICAGO (UPI) — Gladys Giraldo loves her job and better yet, she estimates she ends up making about a third more than other women doing similar work.

Mrs. Giraldo, 26, is one of four women taking part in Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co.'s residential word processing experiment.

"It's a wonderful program for working mothers who do not want to work outside the home," Mrs. Giraldo, the mother of a 3½-year-old son, said. "I wouldn't be working if it wasn't for this."

Mrs. Giraldo figures she saves roughly 30 percent of her salary by not having to leave home. "I save carfare money. I save commuting time. I save on clothing, food, baby sitters — I'm making more by staying home."

Continental — the seventh-largest bank in the country and biggest in the Midwest — began experimenting with secretaries working at home about three years ago and is planning to expand the program next March.

"Every company is having trouble getting good secretaries and the situation is getting worse," said Mary McArthur, who is in charge of the program. "There are a lot of women who would be willing to work if they didn't have to leave their homes."

In 1978, the bank took two women out of its secretarial pool to initiate its pilot program.

"One person was sick of commuting and the other individual was a good steady performer," Ms. McArthur said. "Our personnel division and our systems area had a lot of tools in place that we could capitalize on."

"We didn't know what to expect but it worked out just fantastically," she said. "Last February we hired four more women, trained them at the bank for two weeks and then sent them home in early March."

The women transcribe letters and other documents from dictaphone-type recorders on video display terminals. The material is transmitted over phone lines back to the bank where it is printed out in the proper form.

Ms. McArthur said the four women — Mrs. Giraldo of Chicago; Donna Pucini, 27, Arlington Heights; Pat Kelly, 43, La Grange; and Jewel Pugh, 36, Country Club Hills — work from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and from 2 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. At the end of the day they are given another three hours of work that they are expected to finish before the start of the next business day.

"Donna gets up at the crack of dawn to do it," Ms. McArthur said. "She prefers to spend her evenings with her family and says she's at her best at 4 a.m."

Mrs. Giraldo said she arranges her "flex hours" around the other things going on around her home.

"It really depends on how much work I may have," she said. "There's always your housework too... I really don't set up any set schedule."

The job has made Mrs. Giraldo feel more productive.

"I did work outside the home before Daniel was born," she said. "Then when this opportunity arose, I felt a lot more productive. The money always helps too."

Mrs. Kelly had other reasons. "I had been typing in my home for eight years," she said. "At my peak I had three court reporters and an insurance man I did transcriptions for."

"When you have your own business, your time really isn't your own," Mrs. Kelly said. "If somebody... needs a rush job, you feel obligated to do it. This way, my hours are set."

ROBERT WALTERS

The $1.75 Tomato?

WASHINGTON — A loaf of bread costs $7.68, tomatoes are priced at three for $5.24, bananas sell for $3.28 per pound — and a 10-ounce jar of instant coffee is a luxury item selling for $45.08.

The nation's consumers, warns Robert Rodale, are likely to encounter those prices within 20 years "if a more sustainable and energy-efficient food system is not created soon."

A board chairman of a highly successful family-owned publishing firm, Rodale has spent years promoting the cause of an abundant, safe, efficient and flexible food system from the Emmaus, Pa., home of Rodale Press Inc.

Now he's planning to carry his campaign to Washington, with a warning that "the $7.68 loaf of bread will be a fact by the end of this century unless we act now."

Rodale's personal commitment to the issue has led him to establish a public-interest venture called The Cornucopia Project, which employs six full-time staff members and is financed through hundreds of thousands of dollars contributed annually by the publishing company.

It concerns range from soil erosion and land loss to energy use and chemical contamination of food. In an era when huge corporate farming operations provide much of the nation's food, Rodale offers compelling arguments for localized agricultural production on a modest but self-sufficient scale.

New Yorkers, he notes, consume about 24,000 tons of broccoli annually, virtually all of it grown on the West Coast, then shipped across the country at a cost of almost $6 million — but that trip isn't necessary because broccoli could be produced almost anywhere on the East Coast.

Although Pennsylvania is the leading agricultural state in the Northeast, it imports 90 percent of its lettuce, 88 percent of its carrots and 77 percent of its beef. Transportation costs total more than $400 million annually.

For every $2 spent on energy to grow food in this country, another dollar is spent on energy consumed in shipping — but transportation isn't the only villain because processing and packaging also use vast amounts of energy.

A typical 44-cent can of California tomatoes, for example, contains 20 cents' worth of processing, 19 cents' worth of transportation, overhead and profit — and 5 cents' worth of tomatoes.

Quality invariably is sacrificed in food varieties bred principally to endure a mechanical harvesting process and the rigors of cross-country shipping — but there are alternatives that can both reduce costs and improve quality.

An Agriculture Department study of farmers' markets in Colorado shows that local producers receive 44 percent more profit when selling directly to consumers rather than to wholesalers, while buyers save 28 percent compared with supermarket prices. In New York City, farmers' markets save purchasers 7 percent to 38 percent compared with grocery store prices.

An even more efficient and economical alternative already has been chosen by the approximately 34 million households that grow food in their own gardens and 8 million others who use containers on porches, patios and decks.

Home gardens, with average dimensions of only about 22 feet by 30 feet, produced 40 percent of all vegetables consumed last year, with a net worth of $15 billion.

A 1980 nationwide survey conducted by the Gallup Organization found that another 17 million households have space for a garden but don't choose to have one, while an additional 14 million households would like a garden but lack the land.

U.S. Radio In Cuba

Jose Marti was a violently anti-Yankee hero of the 1890s Cuban revolution. Now the Reagan administration wants to name its proposed anti-Castro radio station "Radio Marti."

The station's original name was "Radio Free Cuba," but in Spanish that comes out "Radio Cuba Libre," which elicits rum jokes from Cubans.

So the Reaganites went to the new name and promised to put the station on the air Jan. 28, Marti's birthday.

The Reaganites also want to create an 11-member presidential commission to lay down guidelines for the new station. The commission is to report to the president no later than Oct. 1, eight months after Radio Marti is supposed to go on the air.

There's another problem. Radio Marti is supposed to be a medium-wave AM station aimed at Cuba, with a transmitter in southern Florida and a studio in New York or Washington. But the best frequency so far found for the station could precipitate Fidel Castro into putting two new 500-kilowatt stations on the air to jam Radio Marti — and also jam U.S. radio stations as far west as Des Moines, Iowa.

The goal of Radio Marti, according to National Security Council chief Richard Allen, is to bring detailed local news and commentary to Cuba's 11 million people. Cubans "yearn for the truth," he said Sept. 23, the day Radio Marti's birth was announced at the White House. The Voice of America, British Broadcasting Co. and others "cannot satisfy" that yearning.

The Kennedy administration tried the same thing in 1961. That was abandoned in 1966.

But Allen didn't hark back to the 1960s. He said Radio Marti "will tell the truth to the Cuban people about their government's domestic mismanagement and its promotion of subversion and international terrorism."

A "background" briefing followed in which an official said $10 million in "reprogrammed" State Department funds would be required in Radio Marti's first year, $8 million a year thereafter. By mid-October the State Department doubted such funds would be available.

When asked if the United States was "prepared to take" thousands who might be inspired to leave Cuba, the official replied: "We think there are perhaps up to 2 million Cubans that have indicated in one way or another a desire to leave, but those Cubans are the responsibility of the Cuban government... not of the U.S." Radio Marti is "not designed to invite them to leave," he said.

When it was noted that "many in Cuba now listen to" Florida radio stations in English and Spanish, and watch U.S. TV, the response was that Radio Marti would be "additional to available services."

The senior official said "this is a U.S. government initiative" but private donations would be welcomed. He claimed members of Congress of both parties had "expressed considerable interest." But Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, knew nothing about Radio Marti, and Rep. Daniel Faskell, D-Fla., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee's international operations subcommittee, privately thought the idea was nutty.

But Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., has been pushing almost identical legislation.

Overthrow Plot Threatens Haiti Dictator

WASHINGTON — An incredible plot is in the works to end the dictatorial regime of Haitian President Jean-Claude "Baby Doc" Duvalier.

These are the bizarre ingredients: An American soldier of fortune, a handpicked team of international mercenaries, a group of Haitian exiles and some Italian businessmen looking for a fast buck.

Duvalier is known to be worried to the point of paranoia over the possibility that he will be assassinated. He has been publicly warned that there is a plot against him. In late October three light planes flew over his unhappy country and dumped tons of literature proclaiming the dictator's imminent downfall.

Whether it was the Italo-American-Haitian plot that was the specific cause of Baby Doc's alarm is not clear. Maybe he doesn't even know about this one. But here's the story, as reported by my associates Dale Van Atta and Bob Sherman.

The soldier of fortune is John Dutcher, a rugged 40-year-old ex-Marine and self-proclaimed assassin who used to work for fugitive ex-CIA agent Edwin Wilson. I reported last August that Dutcher once identified himself as a "mercenary specializing in protection, training and hostage retrieval missions for foreign governments."

In mid-September, Dutcher was sent by Wilson to northern Italy to negotiate a Libyan construction contract with some Milan businessmen. While he was there, he met some Haitian exiles who want to get rid of Duvalier.

Dutcher agreed not only to recruit mercenaries in Britain and South Africa but to purchase arms for the coup. The cost was calculated at $2 million, which the two Italian companies agreed to advance. A source close to the deal explained that the Italians had been promised lucrative construction contracts in return for financing the coup.

The plotters have picked Duvalier's successor. He is Roland Magloire, a former Haitian army lieutenant and the nephew of Paul Magloire, who was president of Haiti from 1960 to 1968. Scheming against Baby Doc and his late father, Papa Doc Duvalier, he has been involved in several attempted coups. In the late 1960s, he spent a year in jail in the Bahamas as the result of a botched invasion of Haiti.

Dutcher could not be located for comment, but Magloire returned a call from Montreal late one night. Surprisingly, he did not deny that a coup was being planned. At first, he professed not to know Dutcher, but then he said, "Maybe I do, but under some other name." When presented with details of the plot, he said coyly, "Maybe it is possible that something is going to happen."

Sources in the Haitian exile community tell me that Magloire has always been committed to the idea of overthrowing Duvalier by force.

In fact, they say, his insistence on a military ouster led to the breakup of the "Haitian Coalition," an emigre group dedicated to Duvalier's downfall. Magloire's opponents wanted to arrange a less bloody coup within Haiti.

Whoever wins — Duvalier or Magloire — it seems likely the wretched Haitian people will still lose. Exile sources say that a Magloire victory would merely replace one dictatorship with another. A military showdown between the two adversaries would be a contest the long-suffering Haitian populace could view with evenhanded dispassion — like the hesitated frontiersman of legend, who greeted the sight of his wife and a grizzly bear locked in mortal combat, with encouraging cries of "Go wife! Go bear!"

Footnote: The anti-Duvalier plot is one bit of skulduggery that cannot be laid at Ed Wilson's door. Dutcher quit Wilson's employ when the Haitian deal was cut.

Miss D'Amico, James J. Koczan Exchange Vows

Roslyn Marie D'Amico and James John Koczan were married Oct. 10, at 2 p.m., at Sts. Peter & Paul Church, Goldenrod. Father John Mitzl performed the double ring, nuptial Mass.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. D'Amico, 8406 Roanne Drive, Orlando. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Koczan Jr., 404 Highland St., Altamonte Springs.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a formal gown of organza and lace. A lace crown held her tiered veil of illusion. She carried a cascade of white roses, miniature carnations and white stephanotis.

Mrs. Bernadette Brewer attended the bride as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Jean Roth, Karen Ortiz and Rosemary Barth.

Alan Brown served the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Richard D'Amico, Ronald D'Amico and David Koczan. The reception was held at the Naval Training Center, Orlando.

Following a wedding trip to the Bahamas, the newlyweds are making their home in Altamonte Springs. The bride is a data review technician for the Social Security Administration. The bridegroom is a lieutenant with the Longwood Fire Department.

HOME BEAUTIFUL

The Home Life Department of the Woman's Club of Sanford presented Jane Phillips, center, of Phillips Decorating Den for the November program at the regularly scheduled meeting. Mrs. Phillips co-ordinated a fashion show on windows, walls and floors using contemporary and traditional concepts. Helping Mrs. Phillips present the show were Ron Mauldin, manager of the carpet-vinyl department, left, and Mary Lou Peake, decorating assistant.

In Bloom And On Canvas

Roses, Roses Everywhere

Roses, roses everywhere. The Volusia Rose Society will sponsor its annual Rose Show Sunday at the First Federal Bank of Mid-Florida in DeLand. Thousands of live, prize-winning roses from all over the South will be on display from 1 to 5 p.m. Cut roses and miniature rose plants will be on sale in the entrance foyer. The prize-winning roses will go on sale at 4:30 p.m.

The roses on display — which include hybrid teas, grandifloras, floribundas and polyanthus, as well as miniatures no bigger than a thumbnail — have been grown in the outdoor private garden of the exhibitors.

They will be judged according to the national standards of the American Rose Society — on form, color, substance, stem and foliage, balance and proportion, and size.

Rosarians will be on hand to provide rose-growing hints and their success secrets.

This year's show is marked by a special occasion. In amongst the live blooms, will be roses of another kind. In perpetual bloom on canvas, the paintings of Benini, the internationally known artist who was profiled in August in "The Evening Herald," will be displayed in the lobby of the bank.

On display, for the first time in Florida will be Benini's huge shaped superroses, canvases which have edges shaped to the contour of the outside petals of the rose.

No artist in the world has made more extensive or symbolic expressions of the rose. For more than 10 years now, Benini's paintings have been exhibited throughout the world, an endless succession of roses in a variety of roles and colors. The Superroses, for which he is most famous, result from an intimate observation of Nature — her rhythms, her foreplay of lights and shadows, her motion, and especially, her colors.

Benini currently lives on the shores of Lake Harney, near Geneva. He is expected to attend the Rose Show on Sunday. His paintings will remain on display at the First Federal of Mid-Florida through Jan. 15, 1982.

Geneva artist Benini stands before his painting, "The Fortune Giver."

Xi Epsilon Sigma

Members of Xi Epsilon Sigma met at the home of Millie Gilbert for a costume party on Oct. 31.

There were a variety of costumes displayed by members. These costumes ranged from an intensive care patient and her attending doctor to Raggedy Ann and Andy. There was also a skateboard champ, a pioneer woman, a baseball player, Dracula and others.

One of the highlights of the evening was a ride on a hay wagon to a Geneva Halloween carnival where members visited a spook house. Members also stopped at many of the game booths at the carnival.

Public Hearing Set On Proposed Development

Geneva has been buzzing this week over the request submitted by the Marion Development Corp. of Maitland to the Seminole County Zoning and Planning Board to subdivide 12 acres of prime land in Geneva for the purpose of building about 32 homes.

Approximately 35 citizens from Geneva showed up to express their feelings at the scheduled board meeting on Oct. 4. Most people in the community voiced their concern about the water supply, stating that what is known as "the Geneva bubble", a fresh water supply that does not draw from the same aquifer as Orlando and Sanford, does not seem to have an inexhaustible supply of water.

According to Bill Diamond of the zoning office, the development corporation's request received a unanimous denial from all members of the Development Review Committee. The final decision, however, will rest in the hands of the county commissioners at a public hearing to be held Tuesday evening, Nov. 24, in commission chambers on the second floor of the court house at 7 p.m.

Mrs. Loraine Whiting, secretary of the Geneva Citizens Association, urges all concerned residents to attend this commission meeting.

At the present time, the U.S. Geological Survey Service in Orlando is conducting a study on the water table in Geneva. Trudy Phelps, USGSS project leader for this study, was in Geneva this week doing more work on Osceola Road.

Lou Childers

A test well sunk at the corner of Avenue C and Highway 46 several weeks ago has been used in the study, too. Results of the tests are not available at this time.

Another subject that has the citizenry of Geneva up in arms is the proposed corridor of power towers that Florida Power & Light proposes to string from Georgia to Central Florida at the recommendation of the Public Service Commission. Part of the proposed route will cut right through Geneva, with 330-foot wide easements being granted.

The Administrative Hearing Office of the State of Florida has scheduled a special hearing for Monday, Nov. 23 at 9 a.m. in the Volusia County Court House Annex at Daytona Beach.

Margaret Cammack, president of the Owners of Seminole County, Inc., may be reached at 349-5300 for further information regarding this issue.

When Daisey Hinojosa, treasurer of the Geneva Historical and Genealogical Society, finishes paying the bills incurred for the annual Halloween carnival, it looks like the group will have an additional $900 in the kitty.

Everyone was well pleased at the turnout this year for the carnival. As promised, it was bigger and better than ever. The ways and means committee of the historical organization is now thinking up new ways to get the people of our community together more often.

Time is running out to purchase tickets for the side of beef to be given away at a drawing the night of Oviedo High School's homecoming game with Cocoa Beach on November 20.

The tickets are being sold by the Athletic Association for $1 each and may be purchased from the football players or boosters prior to the game.

The 300 pounds of beef donated by Imogene and Ed Yarbrough will be cut and freezer wrapped, according to Imogene.

Mrs. Sharon Ceiner, an officer with the Geneva Elementary School Parent Teacher Organization is urgently requesting that all the good cooks in Geneva jot their recipes down and get them to the school office by Monday.

The PTO is organizing a Geneva Cookbook to be published and ready for sale before Christmas. The book will include a brief history of Geneva in the first few pages, and lots of great recipes from the local cooks.

Sharon says, "You don't have to be a parent of a child in school now to qualify to have your recipes in our book — you just have to live in Geneva." You may call her at 349-5591 for more information.

Kids Don't Need 'Special Love'

DEAR ABBY: I've prayed about this for months, and the only answer I get is, "Write to Abby." My husband and I are having severe problems with his mother. We have four small children under the age of 8. We think we are doing a good job of raising them, but every time we leave them with "Namaw," she messes things up. She gives our toddlers wine and beer behind our backs even though we've asked her not to. She also sneaks them candy and all kinds of junk food, knowing that we allow them only fresh fruit between meals or for dessert.

Namaw also tells our 5-year-old that he is going to the "wrong" church — the one she goes to is the "right" one. (She's still mad because her son left his church, which is also hers, and joined mine.)

Abby, I want to love her, but her behavior makes it impossible. What should I do? Don't tell me not to leave the children with her because we feel that children need the special love their grandparents can give them.

DISCOURAGED IN OREGON

DEAR DISCOURAGED: This is "special love"? Sneaking toddlers wine, beer, junk food and sweets? Plus undermining their confidence in their church? This kind of "love" your children can do without. Sorry. Something is drastically wrong with "Namaw." I would never leave the children in her care.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 33-year-old widower with no children. My wife died four years ago, and I am very close to her brother and his wife. We live near each other and get together several times a week.

My problem is in dealing with the sexual advances of their 14-year-old daughter.

Dear Abby

She is extremely well-developed for her age and could easily pass for 19 or 20. For the past year I wrote it off as just family affection (she was very close to my wife.) However, in the last six months she has been very aggressive, and there is no mistaking what she has in mind. (She even asked me point-blank in very coarse language what I've been doing about my "sex life" since my wife's death!)

Abby, I love my niece, I am not perverted and I am no child molester. I have made no advances toward this child. I date different women and lead a normal, healthy life.

Don't tell me to ignore her. I've tried, but to no avail. I'm at the point now where I don't know whether to grab her and turn her over my knee — or just grab her.

FRUSTRATED IN W.VA. DEAR FRUSTRATED: You've contradicted yourself. The little tease has you on the ropes. Don't "grab" her for any reason. But do tell her like a Dutch uncle that she is playing with fire. And tell her parents to take their daughter in hand before she brings home a heap o' trouble.

DEAR ABBY: I am in my 40s. My hair is streaked with gray and I wear it pulled back in a bun. Each year I earn a line or two on my hands and face. I have never been to a beauty parlor and I own no cosmetics. I have always felt that cosmetics were basically unhealthy for the skin, a waste of time and money, and somewhat dishonest. I have been happily married for 20 years to an exceptional man who makes me feel like the most beautiful woman on earth. He is the only person I care to please. If he asked me to alter my appearance through cosmetics and hair coloring, I would do so — and gladly. However, since he seems to love me just the way I am, I will leave the refinements of age to God who is our sculptor, and be satisfied with the results.

PLAIN JANE DEAR JANE: If you are happy, and your husband is happy, you are living in utopia. Ah, would that we were all so fortunate!

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 12080 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.

SEMINOLE BOYS

Who: Sanford vs. Mainland
What: District 4A-9 Football Title
When: Tonight at 8
Where: Daytona Beach Memorial Stadium
Next: State Football Playoffs

Tribe Goes For It Tonight

Jerry Posey says this year's Seminole High football team has "more heart" than any squad he's ever been associated with.

Tonight at 8 in Daytona Beach's Memorial Stadium he'll find out if that "heart" can fall in love with a District 4A-9 and Five Star Conference Championships.

Posey's 5-0 Seminoles take on Bob Wallace's 5-1 Mainland Buccaneers for a post-season spot in the state high school playoffs.

"We started stressing the importance of this game last Saturday," pointed out the Florida Gator graduate. "They know how much it means and how much a win will accomplish."

When the season started its doubtful that Posey could have realistically envisioned playing for the twin titles on this date.

Not that he lacked confidence in this year's crop, but the numbers were small, the size was small and the depth was...for lack of a better word...nonexistent.

If Posey said it once, he's said it a thousand times. "One or two injuries will devastate us." Well, he hasn't had those one or two injuries, or if he's had no one on this guilty squad would speak up and tell him.

"We've gotten more out of less than we ever have," said Posey candidly. "This team has more heart than anybody. They just don't give up. That's our biggest plus."

"And we stay healthy," Jerry hurriedly added.

Another team that has stayed reasonably healthy is Wallace's Buccaneers. Thursday morning, Wallace disclosed that only standout running back Isaac Bell was "questionable."

Bell didn't play last week when Titusville blew away the Bucs, nor the week before when Mainland paved its way to the title shot tonight with a 14-10 conquest of Spruce Creek.

He wasn't missed. Johnny Rivers, no relation to the singer, but a band student just the same, ran for 79 yards, caught two passes for 95 yards and scored both TDs.

"It's his first year playing football," confirmed Wallace about his senior flash. "He had other interests the past few years."

"We told him he'd be at a great disadvantage after missing three years, but he wanted to try it anyway. He's worked real hard."

And now it's the opposition that is at a disadvantage thanks to Rivers' 4.7 40-yard dash speed. He is joined in the backfield by quarterback Eric Childs, a sophomore who tossed the 56-yard score to Rivers.

While Wallace is happy enough with his offense, he is quick to point out that it's his defense that makes the Buccaneers' rivals walk the plank.

"Our defense has given the offense good field position all year," said Wallace who has resurrected the Mainland program from the depths of the Atlantic Ocean. "We don't have great statistics, but we've been scoring enough to win."

That defense is spearheaded by defensive end junior Eric Somerlad a 6-foot, 170 pounder and senior linebacker Darryl Singletary, a 5-foot-10, 185 pounder.

Tackles Pat Reese (6-foot-1, 180) and Brad Davis (6-foot, 205) anchor the defensive line. Both are Juniors. Wallace points with pride to his defensive secondary, which he calls Mainland's strongest point.

"They've been together three years," says Wallace about his senior foursome of Terry Hawkins, David McMillon, Paul Watson and Rod Wallace. "They are all good hitters and know what they're doing."

Wallace makes no cross and skull bones about what the Buccos have to do to stop Sanford.

"We have to stop the fullback (Lenny Sutton)," stated the articulate Wallace.

Seminole High volleyballers and fans celebrate.

"He is the crux of their offense. Seminole does a lot of things well. They are a well-precisioned team that deserves to be where they are."

And the reason the Tribe is where they are—ready to grasp a district title—is because of coach Dave Mosure's rock-ribbed defense.

Mosure calls it a pro 4-3 with "variations of other types of defenses that I've used through the years." He also utilizes a pro 3-4 similar to Tampa Bay's.

"I'm surprised the 3-4 results against the run," said the Tribe's motivator. "It's designed for the pass, but people haven't been able to run against us with it."

Wallace, on the other hand, doesn't know what to call it. He just knows it works. "They have a scramble-type defense," said Wallace about Mosure's defense which has over 50 options. "They put 11 men on the line and dare you to beat them."

The "dare starts at 8 p.m."

Lady Seminole Netters Take On Poised Plantation

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

Seminole High volleyball coach Donalyn Knight talks a lot about experience and poise under pressure as being the keys for the success of this year's team.

Those keys have paid off for Five Star Conference, District 4A-9 and Region 4A-5 championships. She's right, of course, the "Solid Six" of Tony Hardy, Jackie Link, Laura Grace, Dee Hogan, Cindy Pendarvis and Cathy Hall are all seniors with savvy.

When Knight marches her Seminoles onto the Plantation gym floor tonight for the Section 4A-3 playoff at 7:30, however, she brings her Tribe into a tee pee which is layered with experience, poise and tradition concerning the game of girls' volleyball.

Plantation's squad led by coach Marge Payton and assistant coach Evelyn Hayes didn't invent the game, but they sure have thrived with it.

Plantation has six district titles, five region titles and a 1977 state championship for its claim to fame. This year's squad doesn't compare to the '77 squad, but it can "play" according to Hayes.

"This team doesn't have the height or power of that team," Hayes said Thursday. "But they are very scrappy and they play hard all the time."

A funny twist to this scenario is that despite the titles after titles after title, Seminole holds a victory over this Plantation crew—and the Tribe did it on this very floor.

"Yeah, they beat us," admitted Hayes about the 15-13, 12-15 and 16-14 setback during the Oct. 2-3 Colonel's Invitational. "But we've improved a lot since then. That loss won't affect us."

Knight was quick with a comeback. "It might not affect them, but it will affect us. We know we beat them and on their own court," the confident coach added.

Plantation's team also has a "Solid Six" composed of seniors Cici Coffee (hitter), Cindy Springer (hitter), Liz Bridges (setter), Gina Martini (hitter) and Juniors Patty Hepler (hitter) and Tammy Whittington (hitter).

The Planters went 30-8 this year. They play multiple offenses, depending upon what the opposition presents them.

"They hustle and set up all the time," remembers Knight about the October meeting. "We've got our work cut out for us. There's only eight teams left in the state, so you know they're all good." Plantation does have a weakness. "It's our bench," replied Hayes. "It's not as strong as in past years."

"We know we beat them (Plantation) on their own court" — Donalyn Knight

While the senior members of the Planters, primarily Coffee and Bridges, carried the team during the regular season, ironically, it has been the juniors pulling the load through the playoffs.

"Hepler and Whittington have brought us through the post-season games," informed Hayes. "We have a lot of girls that have been in post-season play. That is a definite advantage."

Tonight, Seminole and its bench of super subs—Lisa Nelson and Teri Hardy—will try to offset that advantage.

O'Leary's Gone Too Far! Penn State Battles Knights

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

This time Jack O'Leary has gone too far.

The University of Central Florida's already-departed athletic director has been accused of over-scheduling by some of the coaches on this year's staff.

But really, Jack Penn State in the Tangerine Bowl Saturday night at 7 o'clock. Weren't the Knights supposed to be moving into Division II, not Division I.

Before coaches Don Jonas and Sammy Weir fall into a state of cardiac arrest, it's always important to look for the hyphen when making out football schedules.

And by golly, there it is. Right after the Penn State. It says...hyphen...Millersville. Whew. At least now the Knights will be around for the season-ending "Mayor's Trophy" battle against Bethune-Cookman slated for Nov. 21.

While this Millersville Pennsylvania State school is not the Division I Nittany Lions, it does boast some statistics worthy of high-ranking.

Until the Marauders dropped a 40-7 decision to Lehigh (Division I-AA) last week, they had won seven straight games. They are 7-2 for the year and lead the Pennsylvania Conference in scoring.

In fact, the Marauders 39.6 points per game is second nationally, while their 341 yards rushing a game is first in the nation.

Millersville State has the top three rushers in the conference. Running back Bob Coyne has rambled for 931 yards and 11 touchdowns. Sidelkick Rick Stonewall has 746 yards and 10 TDs. Brent Thomas has only 891 yards and 10 scores.

UCF

That's 31 touchdowns and 2,568 yards among the trio.

The passing attack, as if it was needed, is a little lacking. Quarterback Luther Roberts has hit 23-of-70 tosses for 451 yards and three TDs.

The UCF offense, as usual, pales in comparison. The Knights have 1180 yards rushing as a team. They average just 3.4 yards per try and 150 per game.

UCF has four touchdowns rushing and three passing. The other two came on a fumble recovery and an interception return. Most of the Knight punch-offensively has come from kicker Scott Ryerson, who has 17 field goals in 28 attempts. His percentage was much better than that until last week when he connected on just 3-of-8 attempts.

Despite last week's slump in the Knights' homecoming victory over Hampton-Sydney, 17-0, Ryerson is a very dangerous threat.

The 6-foot-2, 215-pounder from Boone High has an almost limitless range. Two of Saturday's boots came from 32 and 44 yards and further enhanced his Division III-leading field goal output.

For Ryerson to have a chance to win or lose this game for Central Florida, however, the Knights will need probably their best defensive effort of the season. The statistics speak for themselves. The Marauders running attack is awesome.

But the UCF defense talks a bit too. Led by Casselberry and former Lyman linebacker Billy Giovanetti, UCF is holding the opposition to a stingy 3.1 yards per rush and 133 per game.

And, when the Knights outrush the opposition by an average of 17 yards per game with their 165-pound backfield—you know that defense is tough.

That same defense is picked off 17 enemy passes and held opposing quarterback to a completion percentage of just 41 percent. That too is a little lower than the Knights success.

Coach Todd Goodyear's eleven has given up just 79 points or less than 10 points a game. For most schools, bowl dreams would be dancing in their heads, but for the Knights it has resulted in a 4-4 record.

A further look at Giovanetti, Eddie James, Scott Reddit, John Scargie, Ed Gantner and company, reveals that the opposition has tallied just 33 points in the opening half.

The other 48 come later when the defense runs down after some overtime on the gridiron. Of 34 fumbles forced or recovered by UCF, it has recovered 18, a surprisingly high number.

Can the Knights' awesome defense stand up to the Marauders awesome offense?

Can Ryerson kick 14 field goals for a 42-36 victory? There's a better chance for the former than the latter.

'Worry Week' For Wives—Wallace, Posey

It appears that the wives are more nervous than the coaches on the eve of Sanford and Daytona Beach Mainland's District 4A-9 showdown tonight at 8 in Daytona's Memorial Stadium.

To hear Martha Posey and Susanne Wallace tell it, though, the women are always more nervous than the men.

"The coaches' wives have to worry all week," said Susanne, wife of Mainland mentor Bob. "I thought it would be a rough week for Bob, but he's been real calm."

How can he be calm the week of the biggest game of the year? "Because he has them so well-prepared," Susanne answered quickly. "This is Mainland's chance to prove itself after four or five pretty bad years."

"They've worked real hard for Friday night. I believe in this football team. I know they're going to win," she added. Well, there's not much doubt whose side Susanne's taking.

While Mrs. Wallace is taking care of the Daytona Beach worry warts, Martha Posey says she's doing her part this week in Sanford.

Mrs. Posey also reports that Jerry has been a good boy all week. "He's been calm," said Martha. "He wants to win very bad. He keeps saying, 'We've gotta win just one more.'"

Well, then, why do you think the Seminoles will prevail? "Because they've got the best coach," was Martha's just as quick reply. "Our defense will make the difference. And our attitude. These little boys try so hard it's wonderful."

Sam Cook

"We used to have big boys, but they had nasty attitudes. I'd just as soon have this type of team any year."

The Poseys have another reason for wanting a district title. They figure it will be a perfect complement to their 30th anniversary Nov. 23.

Well, Seminoles, you aren't going to let them down are you?

Sanford (6-3) at Mainland (6-3)
The wives are, of course, split. Stripp picked against the home boys. How do you ever expect to get promoted picking against Sanford? DeSantis and Cook say 'Noles. Sanford's going to blow them away, I say.

Spruce Creek (6-4) at Lyman (6-4)
Two pretty evenly-matched clubs. Homecoming for the Greyhounds may make the difference. Stripp, not being a "Healey High" alumnae like myself, went with the Creek Hawks.

Bishop Moore (8-6) at Oviedo (5-3)
Lions will rip them up. Unanimous.

Apopka (2-5) at Lake Howell (2-6)

An interesting matchup. Hawks have won two straight. Blue Darters beat Creek last week. Posey and Wallace take Apopka. At least they agree on something. The rest like LH.

Lake Brantley (3-5) at DeLand (2-6)
The Patriots have lost four straight. I think the trend will continue against the defensively-tough Bulldogs. The panel disagrees.

Millersville State (7-3) at UCF (6-4)
Once again I'm all alone. I say too much offense beats the Knights. The rest say too much defense beats the Marauders.

Kentucky (3-7) at Florida (5-4)
Bye-bye Fran Curci. The Gators drive a unanimous nail into Curci's coffin. Well done panel. Where's George Allen?

Southern Mississippi (7-1) at Florida State (6-3)
It's a big weekend for Seminoles. At least everyone but Sandra Glenn feels so.

Broncos (7-3) at Bucu (5-3)
The Tampa Bay boys haven't lost at home all year. They haven't played anyone as good as Denver either. DeSantis, Glenn and Cook say Broncos. The rest are Buccaneers, especially Mrs. Wallace.

Raiders (6-4) at Miami (7-3-1)
Stripp, Glenn, Posey and DeSantis go with the Dolphins. It's Ted Hendricks' homecoming. Go Raiders.

Hawks Look For Third Straight Victory

That's the trouble with the end of the season. One or two games in the Five Star Conference mean something — and the rest are just previews of next year.

The biggest preview takes place at Lake Howell, where Mike Biscaglia's Silver Hawks take on Apopka. After six disasters, Howell has put together a two-game winning streak which Biscaglia and his players feel will be four when the season concludes.

Quarterback Scott Frick finally played like he was capable of last week, and Howell's wide receiver Jeff Hughes and linebacker Joe Navarro picked up Burger King awards for offensive and defensive excellence respectively. If Scott Grant can outrun Arnel Lykes, the Hawks should win this one.

Down the road space in Oviedo, the Lions host Bishop Moore for their homecoming. A victory will improve the Lions to 6-3 in the district and earn them a share of the title.

Kissimmee, however, must beat St. Cloud next Friday to give Oviedo the title. A St. Cloud victory sends Oviedo "Bowl Shopping," possibly the Rotary Bowl.

Oviedo's season is on the upbeat. After a narrow loss to Rockledge, the Lions have won two straight. Two more wins give them a 7-3 mark. Bishop Moore continues to rebuild at 2-4.

Two other county teams — Lyman and Lake Brantley — are struggling to stay at the 500 mark. The 6-4 Greyhounds are a little lame. "Prince Vince" Frenley, the county's fastest runner, is injured, so the 'Hounds will need an aerial circus from Jerry Axley to whip Spruce Creek at Lyman's homecoming.

While the Greyhounds are wounded, the Hawks are suffering from their yearly wounded heart. For the second straight year Spruce Creek was sitting pretty in the district and conference race, only to stumble at the end. The Hawks have lost two straight to fall to 6-4.

Kenny Flowers is another excellent junior running back who is having a dad senior season.

Coach Dave Tullis and his 2-5 Patriots take on mysterious DeLand. Friday the 12th is not the night to play a team of mystery. DeLand held the first-place Fighting Seminoles to just one TD. The Bulldogs did the same to Mainland. And you know what Mainland and Sanford are doing tonight.

IN BRIEF

SCC Raider Tournament Tips Off Season Tonight

Seminole Community College basketball coach Joe Sterling gets his first look at his 1981-82 Raiders tonight at 8:30 p.m. when the SCC Raider Tournament tips off the JUCO roundball season.

Sterling's Raiders, returning four starters from last year's team which won 29 games, takes on Warner-Southern in the second game of the double-header. Valencia Community College meets Brevard Community College at 6:30 p.m.

The winners go at it for the championship Saturday at 8:30 p.m., while the losers battle in the consolation game at 6:30 p.m.

High-scoring Sanford forward Bruce McCray heads the SCC attack with fellow Fighting Seminole Reggie Butler penciled in for duty at the pivot. McCray, 6-foot-4 1/2, and Butler, 6-foot-7, are sophomores. Smooth, silky Travis Filer is one guard and Daytona Beach Seabreeze product Eric Ervin is the other. Lake Howell's Reggie Barners and Boone's Arthur "A.J." Jackson share time at the other forward.

Other area players include; a slumped-down, third guard Doug Dershimer from Lake Brantley and another backcourt performer Tim O'Shaughnessy from Lake Howell. Fred Alexander, another Sanford product, is a 6-foot-5 forward-center.

Sterling, who is assisted by Solomon Batton, and the Raiders open their regular season Tuesday, Nov. 17 at Florida College in Temple Terrace (Tampa). Tipoff is 7:30 p.m. The Raiders home-opener is Tuesday, Nov. 24 against the same Falcons.

In other tournament action, the Third Annual Women's College Tipoff Jamboree at Lake Howell High School tips off at 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

In the first quarter of action, Kelly Jordan's Stetson Lady Hatters battle the University of Florida. In quarter two, the Lady Gators meet defending Florida Division I champion Miami.

Quarter three matches Joe Sanchez's Central Florida Lady Knights against the Lady Hatters, while in the fourth quarter UCF comes back against the Lady Hurricanes.

The Knights feature three former Seminole County standouts—Teresa Tinsley (Lake Brantley), Sonja Manley (Seminole) and Cindy Frank (Lake Howell)—on their roster.

Stetson has a local tieup with assistant coach Cheryl Klein, who last year coached the Seminole High girls. Top players in the tournament include Miami's Sylvia Wilson. Stetson's Donna Johnson and Diane Hayes. Wilson was All-State and All-Region last year.

Johnson also earned both titles and Hayes was All-State.

Kuchar Leads Swallows

Wally Kuchar and Doug Grooms each fired a 69 Thursday to take the opening round lead in the Swallows Open at the Deltona Country Club.

Action resumes today in the 36-hole tournament. In the Pro-Am portion of the tournament Wednesday, Curt Snell fired a course-record 63. It eclipsed the old mark of 65. Snell is the club pro.

Chuck Thorpe, who carded a 65, led his foursome to the best ball with handicap championship. The quartet of Thorpe, Herbert Dixon, Claude Johnson and Dr. Frank Clontz recorded a fine 56.

There was a tie for second between the group of Al Chandler, Bobby Johnson, George Price and Jerry Robinson and the foursome of Bob Erickson, Bud Benz along with Sanford's John Spolski and John Polk. Each group carded a 57.

Erickson Fired a 59.

Titusville Hosts X-Country

Lyman carries the boys hopes, while Lake Brantley, Lake Howell and the Greyhounds are still alive on the girls side of the course when the Regional Cross Country Meet begins Saturday at Titusville at 12 noon.

Sophomore Doug McBroom leads Brian Hunter, Craig Stapleton, Adam DeMino and Brett Stockwell in its weekly chase of Edgewater and Winter Park.

"Hounds coach David Huggins feels this will be the weekend that they overtake the Wildcats. Edgewater, however, is another matter. The boys easily won the district at DeLand and the girls won their portion too.

Coach Jim Marshall's Patriots stand the best chance of upsetting Edgewater among the county teams. Senior Tracy Bonham and junior Ellen Stern pace the Lady Pats attack.

Dawn Bender and Susie Bringardner and the top Lyman threats, while Kerry Ryter and Kathy Compton head Tom Hammond's Lake Howell contingent.

Miami Football Rumors Fly

MIAMI (UPI) — With the University of Miami football program on probation and rumors flying, defensive back Jamie Boone figures he has a motive for beating up on Virginia Tech this weekend.

"That's the team that turned us in to the NCAA and we're not going to let up on them," Boone said earlier in the week.

Boone's statements, denied by both coaching staffs, stem from a rumor that an assistant Virginia Tech coach accused Miami of "hiding" recruit linebacker Greg Brown on letter of intent day two years ago.

That accusation, however, is not included on a list of 66 violations the NCAA used to strip the Hurricanes of bowl eligibility this year and 10 freshman scholarships next year. In fact, the NCAA says hiding a player is not an infraction.

Baseball Agents Free Today

NEW YORK (UPI) — The date, Friday the 13th, suggests otherwise, but today could be a lucky day for 41 major league baseball players.

Major league baseball conducts its sixth annual re-entry draft of free agents, beginning at 11 a.m. EST, and for many on the list it will mark the start of a new and very lucrative career.

Pitchers Ron Guidry of the New York Yankees and Ed Farmer of the Chicago White Sox and outfielder Reggie Jackson of the Yankees are among the more prominent names who have declared their free agency and are almost certain to wind up with contracts worth $1 million a year or more.

There are several others who should become rich as a result of their being able to negotiate with any club that drafts them.

Those likely to command plenty of interest are outfielder Dave Collins of Cincinnati, shortstop Chris Speier of Montreal, pitcher Glenn Abbot of Seattle, pitchers John Denny and Rick Waits of Cleveland, second baseman Jerry Remy of Boston, catcher Ed Ott of California, outfielder Tony Scott of Houston, outfielder Jeff Burroughs of Seattle, catcher Tim Blackwell of the Chicago Cubs and relief pitcher Dick Tidrow of the Cubs.

Under terms of the agreement which ended the 50-day baseball strike last August, there is no limit to the number of clubs that may select negotiation rights to a player. Also, as negotiated in the Basic Agreement between the clubs and players, a system of ranking players has been established for the first time.

Players in the top 20 percent at their position on the basis of a set of predetermined statistics over the past two years are classified as Type A while players in the top 20-30 percent are designated Type B.

Type A players require compensation in the form of an amateur draft choice plus a professional player selected from a pool of all non-protected players. Type B players require compensation in the form of two amateur draft choices. Compensation for non-ranked players is an amateur choice. However, there is no compensation for players selected by fewer than four clubs.

Players selected by fewer than four clubs are free to sign with any club.

Guidry, Farmer and Tidrow are the only players who fall under the Type A category. Type B players are Blackwell, Collins and Speier.

Jackson, one of baseball's top sluggers, is not considered a ranking player since he has previously been through the re-entry draft. Jackson signed a lucrative five-year contract with the Yankees in November of 1976 after playing out his option with the Baltimore Orioles.

Ironically, the Orioles are one of only a handful of teams interested in acquiring the 35-year-old Jackson this time around.

Several teams, including Jackson's prime choice, Los Angeles, have said they are not interested in the slugging outfielder, who is seeking a five-year contract in excess of $1 million per year.

Yankees' owner George Steinbrenner has indicated that he will retain negotiation rights to Jackson, however.

Five clubs — Boston, California, Los Angeles, Minnesota and Seattle — have elected not to participate in the selection of Type A ranking players for the next three years and are considered to be "excluded" clubs. That means they will not have to make players available for the pool for possible selection as compensation.

A club which does not sign a Type A player is entitled to protect 26 players in its organization and a club that does sign a Type A player can protect 24. No club may lose more than one player a year from the pool.

Pistons Give Isiah Ball — Let Him Go

By United Press International

The Detroit Pistons, after years of incompetence and futility, may have found a way to win — give Isiah Thomas the ball and let him have a good time.

Unfortunately, old habits die hard in Detroit. Fans who have spent most of their time avoiding Pistons games in the past will have to be pointed in the direction of the Silverdome.

Thomas scored 32 points and Kent Benson added 22 Thursday night to power the Pistons to a 130-99 thrashing of the Cleveland Cavaliers before less than 4,000 spectators.

"We really had fun in the second half," said Thomas. "It was a good time. That's what basketball is all about."

Cleveland opened an early lead but after Thomas hit a free throw with 1:18 left in the first quarter for a 29-28 lead,

Pro Basketball

Detroit was never headed. The Pistons led 62-57 at the half and outscored Cleveland 33-19 in the third quarter to take a 95-76 advantage going into the final period. Cleveland didn't help its own cause, chalking up 14 turnovers in the third quarter alone.

Kelly Tripucka contributed 21 points for the Pistons, Greg Kelsner added 14 and John Long had 12. Geoff Huston led the Cavaliers with 19 points. James Edwards, James Silas and Bob Wilkerson each added 14 points.

Bullets 95, Hawks 87

At Atlanta, John Lucas scored 23 points and registered 10 assists to lead Washington to a victory that snapped Atlanta's three-game winning streak. Dan Roundfield scored 23 points and had 15 rebounds and Rudy Macklin finished with 15 points for the Hawks.

Suns 95, Pacers 93

At Phoenix, Alvin Scott scored two key baskets in the closing minutes to help preserve the Suns' victory. Johnny Davis made one of two free throws with 30 seconds to go and the Suns then let the 24-second clock expire, giving the Pacers a last chance with six seconds left.

Clippers 122, Trail Blazers 115

At San Diego, Michael Brooks scored 29 points in leading the Clippers over Portland, the Trail Blazers' first loss in eight games. San Diego, which trailed 75-61 in the opening minutes of the third quarter, caught Portland on a tip-in by rookie Tom Chambers at the start of the final period and evened the game 93-93.

Rock Lake White's Pee Wee cheerleaders were judged the best in their division. Cheerleaders include; Jennifer Best, Pamela Camella, Diane Del Rosso, Kelli Eoans, Monica Frakes, Heidi Gibbs, Dianne Gaant, Gina Gray, Danielle Maxwell, Nikki Meyer, Sharon Orr, Janice Parris, Leslie Parris, Tara Rinehart, Tracy Rosenbluth, Lauri Tipton, Lisa Silverstein, Shannon Smith, Wendy Temple and Amy Zegelbone. The team mother is Lois Gibbs.

South Seminole Meets Milwee In Midget Playoff Saturday

It's playoff time for the Seminole Youth Sports Association Midget football Division. Saturday, the semifinal round continues with regular season champion South Seminole meeting Milwee at 1 p.m. and Rock Lake playing Tusawilla at 3 p.m. Both games are at the Sylvan Lake Complex just off State Road 46.

The first round of playoffs produced a pair of outstanding defensive efforts as both Milwee and Tusawilla applied whitewash brushes. The Spartans defeated Jackson Heights, 22-0, and the Warriors topped Teague, 14-0.

Milwee exploded after the halftime intermission for all its points. Bob Becker tallied two TDs as Mike Sirmans one with Ryan Lisle. Blaine pair of extra points. T.J. Blaine clutch passes to Chris Timar and Lisle picked up key first downs in the touchdown drives as Milwee led 280 total yards on offense. Fin blocking up front by Davi Kwiatkowski, Chad Bendit, Bob Perkins, Andy Lahumia and Ken Barnett contributed considerably to that yardage total.

Tops on defense, which held the Bobcats to 50 yards, were Ralph Philpott, Trey Norman, Mike Cheek, Terry Philpott, Mark Sampson, Dave Peterson, Ira Melton and Chuck Mullins.

Tusawilla scored early late to go hand-in-hand with that defensive effort and gain the victory. Pat Bollacker and Manuel Medina picked up lots of yards on the ground with the first TD drive culminated by QB Ron Campbell's scoring sneak from the one. Bollacker scored the last TD on a pass from Campbell which covered 45 yards. Medina kicked one extra point. Greg Wheeler's runbacks helped set up Tusawilla's scoring drives.

Defensive standouts were Craig Duncan, Mike Kelly and Pat Mahoney.

In the Pee Wee Division, the Lakeview Dolphins turned in their sixth straight shutout as they rolled over Eastbrook, 19-0.

Eric Williams broke loose for a 45-yard touchdown run on the Dolphins first possession. In the third quarter, flashy Jerod Jones galloped 30 yards for another score. Quarterback Terrace Carr added the final TD in the fourth quarter on a 30-yard jaunt.

Jones rambled for 104 yard rushing, while Carr picked up 103 on just nine carries. Williams added 58 on four carries.

A strong second-half defensive preserved shutout number six. Sean Boudreaux and Thomas Lawson pace Lakeview with six tackles apiece.

Carr had four tackles, while Jones and Arthur Bradford each had an interception.

Montreal — Reappointed Manager Jim Fanning for 1982; added Billy DeMars and Bob Gebhard as coaches to work with returning coaches Steve Boros.

Collins Writes Secrets

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The lurid novels of Jackie Collins, sister of actress Joan Collins, all have their basis in truth, the authoress admits.

Jackie, a tall redhead whose novels would appear to be the illegitimate offspring of the erotic works of Jacqueline Susann and Harold Robbins, is moving to Hollywood to be closer to the source material of her books.

Her eighth and most recent novel, "Chances," has made the best-seller lists in hard cover, Jackie's first novel to do so.

Like most of her previous efforts, Jackie's new tome deals with rich and famous people, mostly involved in show business. She writes in the sure knowledge that she will win no Nobel Prizes for literature.

This woebegone perception is ameliorated by great wealth which she is amassing in royalties.

Still, Jackie is miffed at her new British publishers. The veddy proper English establishment asked if Jackie would mind if they did not put their name on the spine of the book, using instead her soft-cover publisher.

It was quite clear they did not want their good name besmirched by the rampant sex in "Chances," although they were more than willing to reap the big bucks that her books invariably earn.

In addition to building her novels around eroticism, Jackie has become a high priestess of roman a clef novels, those books shot through with thinly veiled characters based on actual persons.

She has, in fact, heard reverberations from some of the rich and famous who believed they detected themselves in her plots. Singer Tom Jones thought he was the hero of "Lovers and Gamblers." Rock star Mick Jagger suspects he was the model for Jackie's "The Stud."

The late Peter Sellers was damned sure he was the centerpiece of "The Hollywood Zoo." And he was quite right.

"Peter was a pal of mine," Jackie admitted between bouts of house-hunting in Beverly Hills. "We'd been neighbors in England and he had revealed a great deal about himself to me. And I did pattern one of my characters after him."

"When the book was published, I was afraid he would never talk to me again. One of his ex-mothers-in-law told him about the book, he bought it and loved it."

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Saturday, November 14, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY November 14, 1981
Knowledge you've gained academically and from past experience will be put to new and profitable uses this coming year. Success in your chosen field is likely, with advancement occurring before your next birthday.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
As always, honesty is the best policy. Keep this in mind today so that you will tell it like it is rather than like what someone hopes to hear. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph, which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
There won't be any question in your mind as to what is the correct thing to do, yet where a loved one is concerned you may yield to his or her impractical wishes.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Don't let pride stand in the way of your accepting wise counsel from friends who are only too willing to help. Your only enemy could be yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
Your ideas are so good today that others can't help take note of them. Be wary of one, however, who'd like to enlist you for a selfish cause.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
You're in a friendly and curious mood today and enjoy mingling with all types of people. It's best to select a companion who doesn't expect your undivided attention.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Try to be as charming as you are logical. Your ideas will be received more readily if they are presented with wit and grace.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
In commercial dealings your judgment is good, but you may fail to heed your own insights and do something you know you shouldn't.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Your financial prospects look encouraging today where your earning powers are concerned, but they may not be that promising regarding investments or joint ventures.

CANCER (June 21-July 21)
Someone who is smitten with you, but whom you see merely as a friend, could receive false encouragement if you speak without thinking.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Necessary little tasks should be attended to as early in the day as possible. Your interest is likely to switch to fun and games as the day wanes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Spend more time fulfilling your ambitions today and less time talking about what you hope to accomplish. Actions speak louder than words.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Success in your endeavors is likely today, but your gains may be measured in inches rather than yards. Be content as long as you're moving forward.

Impotence Symptom Not Diagnosis

DEAR DR. LAMB — I hardly know how to write this but I must. My husband is nearing 50 but for some reason he has lost his sex part of life. What has happened? I'm worried sick. He is so depressed.

Is there anything that can be done? He can get to the point partially, then it's gone. This began to happen around two months ago. I'm at my wits' end.

DEAR READER — Judging from the huge volume of letters from people with this problem, I must say it is quite common. Probably more common than generally recognized because people are embarrassed to ask about it, just as your husband is. And not understanding the problem can ruin people's lives.

First, let's recognize that impotence is a symptom, not a diagnosis, just like having a fever. Many people do not realize that the penis is just a large specialized blood vessel — not a muscle. And erection depends upon trapping blood in that blood reservoir. That is accomplished through complex nerve reflexes that increase the flow of blood in while controlling the flow of blood out. The reservoir fills to capacity, resulting in an erection.

It becomes obvious from this that both nerve pathways (I don't mean nervousness) and circulation are important. In addition, nervousness and depression can affect how these complex reflexes work, so the mind can and does influence reactions. But you can have damaged nerve fibers, as from diabetes, and have no "nervousness" problems at all as a cause of impotence.

Depression that occurs often in mid-life is a frequent underlying cause of impotence in the male and loss of interest in sex in the female. Impotence then makes the depression even worse.

The different factors that contribute to impotence are discussed in The Health Letter number 104. Help for impotence, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. It also includes information on implanted cylinders that are the only answer in some cases.

Impotence can be caused by hormone imbalances, too. Usually these are not from lack of testosterone, but somewhat more complex. A good place to start unraveling the problems of impotence is with a urologist if your family doctor doesn't seem interested.

DEAR DR. LAMB — About eight months ago my Pap test was rated number II. My doctor prescribed Premarin hormones. Six weeks later the Pap test was normal, so he said to continue with the hormones.

However, I became concerned from what I heard from doctors on TV. I quit and two weeks later went to the doctor. He took another Pap smear and it was Class I and showed moderate inflammatory changes and low estrogen effects. So he continued the hormone tablets. I've never suffered the slightest symptoms except dryness, which was taken care of with the hormones. Am I in danger?

DEAR READER — Yes. Remember the adage "a little knowledge is a dangerous thing." Estrogens are believed to increase a woman's chances of developing endometrial cancer of the uterus (lining of the body of the uterus), not cervical cancer. A Pap smear is mostly for cervical changes. Evidently your changes were caused by your decreased level of estrogen and corrected when you were properly treated by your doctor. You will do well to rely on his knowledge of your individual case.

There were 13 tricks at either diamonds or no-trump if the diamond queen dropped, but queens don't always drop and South was delighted to be in just six.

He studied the dummy for a while and finally decided to guard against all possible bad diamond breaks. So at trick two he led his deuce of diamonds toward dummy. Any diamond play would guard against four diamonds in the West hand. South's play also guarded against the four that East held.

He could play any diamond from dummy, but selected the jack. East won and led a second club. South entered dummy with a spade; led a diamond and covered after East split. Another diamond lead from dummy took care of East's case.

East was bitter and remarked: "To guard against one chance in 20 you gave up all play for an over-trick. Why?"

South replied: "Easy. I doubt if more than one other pair played six no-trump so the over-trick was unimportant, but my contract was important."

Stained Glass: Subtle Power, Lasting Beauty

By DIANE JEFFERSON

As you're sitting in church on Sunday, the sun breaks free from a cloud and suddenly everything is awash in color. Long bands of blue, green, red and yellow light stretch down from the windows and fall upon the heads of the worshipers beneath, on hymnbooks, down the aisles, imparting a special quality to everything they touch.

Witness the subtle power of stained glass.

Frenchmen worshiping in Chartres Cathedral in the 12th Century felt it. Noted art scholar and historian Dr. Bernard S. Myers once described the glow produced by Gothic stained glass windows as a "rich full light" giving a "spiritual feeling." In Chartres' Belle Verrie're window, a compassionate Madonna holds her child and looks down upon worshipers from a red glass background, surrounded by ascending angels in blue.

An ancient art, stained glass seems to be enjoying a new popularity.

"It's had a real renaissance in the last five or six years," according to Dan McNamara. McNamara should know. He teaches glass staining to Seminole Community College (SCC) students and also owns Custom Stained Glass Works, a stained glass shop in Winter Park.

"I think people wanted to add something to their home that is different, but has been an accepted art form for hundreds of years," McNamara says.

As he talked, McNamara's creations floated in the air around him, suspended from wires strung across his shop. A hummingbird with wings outstretched, sipping nectar from an abstract yellow flower, caught brief glimpses of sun and threw slivers of it upon McNamara's face.

McNamara's students learn to make these "sun-catchers." Smaller than a window, they require less time and are easier to design.

Often, people contemplating stained glass windows for their home are drawn to take up the art themselves in an effort to save money. Stained glass can be expensive, because the more small pieces contained in the work, the more time is required to assemble it.

However, McNamara does not advise taking up glass staining as a hobby unless you are prepared to put some time into it.

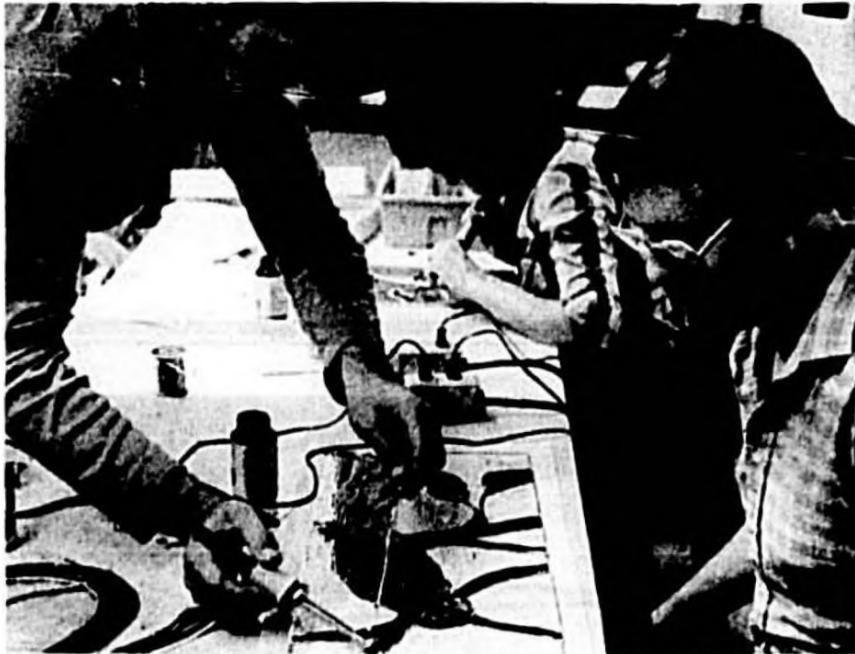

If you feel you might be interested in learning how to make stained glass creations, McNamara advises you begin by buying "Stained Glass Window Art" by Luciano. The book retails for $6.95. Get a few scraps of glass and a cutter, which together should cost you about $5. Experiment. Then, if you're still interested, join a class like the one McNamara instructs at SCC. Cost: $80.

McNamara teaches what is known as the copper foil method of stained glass manufacture. The process sounds deceptively simple. The first step, naturally, is conceiving a design. It may be as small as your hand or as large as a picture window. It may contain interweaving flowering vines or a single bird perched on a branch. The degree of

Long a favorite of church architecture, as evidenced in this window from the First United Methodist Church, 419 Park Ave., Sanford, (right) stained glass is now making its way into the home.

Instructor Dan McNamara gives a helping hand to student Jeff Lemon of Sanford. Lemon's parrot piece is more complicated than it first appeared, and McNamara shows him a few tricks to solder around tight corners.

Jennifer Cutter of Longwood, applies solder over copper foil to fasten glass pieces in pattern together. The solder lends the piece a silvery sheen, which is antiqued with copper sulphate crystals to give a warm, coppery glow to the work again.

...Stained Glass

complexity is determined by how many pieces of glass you will have to cut and shape to form the final pattern.

Once you have created a pattern (or bought one), the next step is deciding what colors you will use. This, McNamara says, is for many people the toughest part of the process.

After the colors have been selected, the pattern must be painstakingly drawn to scale. By buying a pattern, you can save yourself this headache. Once the drawing is ready, the tedious work of cutting the many individual pieces of glass to fit the pattern begins. They are then fitted together using copper foil and a soldering iron.

McNamara prefers the copper foil technique over the older process of imbedding the glass in lead.

"It's stronger, airtight and watertight," he says. "The work is not subject to sagging and bowing like it is with the lead glass."

Jeff Lemon of East 8th Street, Sanford, watches McNamara drip solder into a difficult joint in his pattern of a parrot perching jauntily on a branch.

"I've always been a do-it-yourselfer," he says. "I've always wanted a stained glass window, but I didn't want to pay for it."

After spending 20 hours working on his first stained glass panel, Lemon smiles and says, "Well, now I've paid for it."

These poems are by Seminole County students kindergarten through 12th grade. They resulted from the Florida Poetry in the Schools program taught by poet Bob Wisnoff of Oviedo and Evelyne Maas of DeLand. Pupils are provided with a general theme, but are not told what they should write.

THE RAIN

Down, down, down,
The rain falls.
I watch it as it
Slides down
My window and hits
The ground below,
Slowly sinking
Into it.
As I watch the rain,
It slowly slacks up.
Now I see a
Beautiful rainbow
Where the rain
Once was.
Filled with color
And joy, the rainbow
Slowly fades away
Into a clear blue sky.

Finished With Drugs

Mackenzie Phillips Returns To Television

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — "I was fired," says Mackenzie Phillips, "and it happened right in this very office."

"I was sitting right on this couch and I thought they'd called me in to give me a pat on the back for doing a good job. But Alan Horn fired me. At the time, it didn't mean a thing to me, being fired."

"To me, it was as though I'd lost an address book."

At the time, two and a half years ago, Mackenzie Phillips was on drugs, which is why being fired from the cast of "One Day at a Time" meant so little to her.

In the interim, however, she has grown up, matured, fought hard to conquer her addiction and now she is attempting a comeback. She is returning to the cast of "One Day at a Time" for a two-week reunion, which began Nov. 8 and will conclude Sunday.

Mackenzie Phillips' story is a tragic one, with what appears to be a happy ending. She says she has "no doubt at all" that she is off drugs for good, and all of her fans are rooting for her.

She thinks she got started on drugs largely because of the atmosphere she grew up in, the music atmosphere — her father is John Phillips, who was part of The Mamas and the Papas, a group which was tremendously popular during Mackenzie's early years.

"I grew up thinking," she says, "that I'd never get involved with drugs because I knew they were bad. And I wanted to be a star. Then, at 13, I was a star, of sorts. So I said to myself, 'Well, I've made it so I don't have to worry any more — now I can try anything.'"

She started using drugs. She quickly learned that "there is no such thing as a casual long-time drug-user — it's impossible."

So she used drugs and her work and her life suffered. There were well-publicized incidents, embarrassing moments, loss of interest in her acting, a sinking lower and lower into behavior that even frightened her.

"Two things made me stop," she says. "First, I OD'd once, and that scared me. Then my dad was arrested for drug trafficking. He faced a possible jail term, and I love my father very much. The idea of losing him was frightening."

Mackenzie Phillips is putting her years of drug use behind her now — she is beginning her comeback. "They are giving me a second chance," she says. "But I know that I have to stay clean from now on — I don't think they would give me a third chance."

' So he went into a hospital in New Jersey. And he'd call me every day and try to persuade me to join him there. I kept saying that I didn't need that. But one day, on the phone, he just sounded so good, so healthy, that I felt I had to try it, too."

She was wearing her red Capezio's that day — with the odd designs on them she had painted herself under the influence of drugs. She flew east, just wearing those shoes, a Hawaiian shirt and a pair of shorts. She landed in a snow storm in mid-winter.

She estimates that she spent some $400,000 on drugs in the last year and a half she was a user. She spent every dime she had made on "One Day at a Time."

There had been previous attempts to kick the habit. After she had OD'd, she was in intensive care for several days. But when the hospital released her, she says her first stop was at her dealer's for a fresh supply.

"Everybody tried to help me," she says. "Bonnie Franklin (the star of 'One Day at a Time') talked to me so often, but I wouldn't listen. My mother tried, too. Everybody."

But the treatment at the New Jersey facility appears to have done the trick. She is now living in New Jersey with her father, stepmother, "my stepmother's mother, who is like my grandmother," her brother and two younger brothers and sisters, "plus cats and dogs."

She says it hasn't been as hard starting her career over as she had anticipated it would be.

"People seem to trust me," she says. "They are giving me a second chance. But I know that I have to stay clean from now on — I don't think they would give me a third chance."

Old Ironsides actually had a wooden hull but earned the nickname when a cannon shot in the War of 1812 fell harmlessly off her side and a sailor is said to have shouted, "Huzzal Her sides are made of iron."

She's Right, Alex Was Dingaling

DEAR DICK: My question concerns the actress who played Alex Quartermaine on "General Hospital." While watching a rerun of an old Dean Martin show, my wife was positive Alex was one of the four girls known as the Dingaling Sisters. I say she's wrong. B. KEEN, Williamsport, Pa.

DEAR DICK: My daughter insists that Frank Smith's daughter on "General Hospital" and Alex Quartermaine were played by the same actress with different hair styles. I say no way. S.S., Saginaw, Mich.

Alex was played by Renee Anderson. Mrs. Keen is keen-eyed. Renee used to call herself Tara Leight and was one of the Dingalings. But she wasn't Frank Smith's daughter — that part was played by Lisa Marie. There shouldn't be any confusion on that—Renee is 5 foot, 7 inches and Lisa is only 5 foot, 3 inches.

DEAR DICK: I'm an 80-year-old widow and here is my problem. My neighbor and I are very good friends, but we disagree on this: I say Bobby Burgess (the dancer on Lawrence Welk's program) married the daughter of Myron Florin (Welk's accordion player) and she says he married Mr. Welk's daughter. Who is right? MYRA PHILLIPS, Tucson, Ariz.

You are right, Myra. Florin's daughter married Burgess.

DEAR DICK: What do the letters "A.S.C." stand for after a name in the credits of a film? J.M. LACKY, Juneau, Alaska

American Society of Cinematographers.

Ask Dick Kleiner

By DICK KLEINER

DEAR DICK: For some odd reason, my roommate thinks Bill Bixby is dead. There is $1 riding on this. Will you tell him that Bill is not dead? DAVE BIDDLE, Decatur, Ill.

Hey, big spender, you win. Bill Bixby is not dead.

DEAR DICK: I saw a recent movie on TV, "The Kiss of Death," with Victor Mature and Brian Donlevy. Can you tell me whatever happened to them and are they still acting? And is Christina Raines of "Flamingo Road" the daughter of Ella Raines? FRANK JULIAN, Washougal, Wash.

Donlevy died in 1972. Mature retired, but does un-retire from time to time — the last time was to do a cameo role in "Won Ton Ton." Christina Raines is not related in any way to Ella.

DEAR DICK: Who starred as Capt. Crane on TV's "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea?" W.O., San Jose, Calif. That was David Hedison.

DEAR DICK: We recently had a discussion at bridge as to what nationality Lawrence Welk is. I believe he was born in North Dakota, but were his parents Austrian, German or Polish? MRS. N. GANNON, Covina, Calif.

They were German. Actually, they had a remarkable life, and they could have served as the basis for a great novel. The Welks had fled from Germany to Alsace-Lorraine, fleeing from Bismarck, and then went to Alaska. They spent several years there before coming down to North Dakota.

Greatest Clowns Can Make You Cry

By RUTH THOMPSON

There's an old story that in Shakespeare's time every clown had a broken heart because he secretly yearned to play "Hamlet."

How about now? That old put-down is obsolete; among today's well-schooled actors, comedy is considered just as or more difficult than heavy drama—and many comedy performers make successful forays into drama.

The list of those actors is long.

Hard on the heels of his

triple-crown success with "No Time for Sergeants" (It was a television special, a Broadway hit and a movie, all with him starring), Andy Griffith, in 1959, drew critical approval for a change-of-pace movie that cast him as a complex man tainted by success in "A Face in the Crowd." The next year Griffith reverted to a sunnier role, as the sheriff of Mayberry in his own long-run (and still rerun) television series.

One of show business' all-time great comedy talents is Carol Burnett. Though she often romped through pure slapstick in her television skills, she also appeared as characters who were forlorn, plain, jilted or aged.

That may have paved the way for audiences to accept her—which they did—in such heavily dramatic roles as the one she played in the television docu-drama "Friendly Fire." She played a mother who was angered and anguished when she learned that it was an accident by American forces, not enemy ammunition, that killed her soldier son in Vietnam.

Show Born Of Commercial

MEAN JOE GREENE

When a TV commercial becomes the springboard for a television drama, that's unique.

The Coca-Cola commercial featuring Mean Joe Greene, defensive tackle of the Pittsburgh Steelers, and a young boy, Tommy Okun, is just such a commercial.

In it, Greene is seen limping off the field into the football tunnel and the admiring youngster offers him his Coke. Greene first refuses the drink, then accepts it and downs it in one swallow. He turns to leave, then suddenly changes his mind.

"Hey, kid," he says, throwing the boy his battered football jersey. "Catch."

"Gee, thanks, Mean Joe," says the starry-eyed youngster.

The commercial received numerous awards, including two Clions, the "Oscar" of the advertising industry (best 60-second TV commercial in soft drink category and best male performance, shared by Greene and Okun). It also was voted the most popular of the year by Video Storyboard Tests, an ad industry evaluator, amassing more votes than it was symbolic, meaning that Greene is through with football. When the little boy hears this, he is determined to return the jersey to his football hero so that he can get his power back and go on playing.

Learning that the team is off to Dallas, Nick heads for the airport, manages to get on the plane and finds himself trapped aboard on take-off.

After realizing why the boy is there, Joe offers to look after him on arrival in Dallas. While there, Nick learns values from Joe that his parents have been trying to teach him all along. In turn, Joe learns something about the spirit of football that he has forgotten, helping him to come out of a period of doubt and uncertainty. Nick's enthusiasm is contagious, affecting not only Joe but the other members of the team.

Greene portrays himself in the drama and Henry Thomas, who was 9 years old at the time of filming, plays the boy portrayed by Tommy Okun in the commercial.

MARRIAGE AT LAST

TV's most popular couple are finally tying the knot! Longtime sweethearts Laura Baldwin (Genie Francis) and Luke Spencer (Anthony Geary), of the afternoon serial "General Hospital," pose for their formal wedding portrait in anticipation of the traditional wedding ceremony they have planned, scheduled to air Monday and Tuesday on ABC.

Cindy Says:

Cher's Show; Niven's Novel

NEW YORK — Cher has been sitting in on some acting classes, possibly for her new Broadway comedy that will be directed by Robert Altman... Between managers, technicians, staffers, aides, golfers, etc., the Rolling Stones drag 103 people along on their road tours. Next to them, Muhammad Ali's company operation... Diana Ross, who maintains a Fifth Avenue hotel apartment, also has two houses in Connecticut. She just sold one to buy another, which has 20 rooms... Virginia Graham lost 25 pounds. She also has a new hairdo and new makeup. She looks smashing... David Niven's life, which reads like a novel, gave him the idea to write one. His first novel, "Go Slowly, Come Back Quickly," is a classy love story. Published by Doubleday, it'll be out almost immediately.

Says Shelley Winters: "Diet freaks act like there's something obscene about food. Well, I'm not ashamed to admit I love it. How could anyone turn down chocolate ice cream?"

Charlton Heston stars and directs a 6-million-dollar survival story written by his son, Fraser. It's called "Mother Lode" and it is being filmed in Canada...

Joe Levine, pushing his new movie, "Tattoo," has a wash'n'wear rose decal on his left forearm... England's Poseldon Films is looking to film the biography of Russia's ballerina Anna Pavlova, starring some unknown twinkle-toes. Filming will be in Paris, New York and Moscow and the budget is $20 million, which is one large load of rubles.

Carl Reiner Shifts To Drama

Carl Reiner is one of television's top comedy entertainers, with 11 Emmy awards in comedy acting, writing and producing to back up his reputation.

So Reiner knows that viewers are sometimes surprised when they hear that he is to act a completely serious role — as he does in "Skokie," to air Tuesday, on CBS.

"I understand that reaction," Reiner says, "especially after my long association with comedy. But what most people don't know is that as a young man I really wanted to be a serious actor. I did two years of summer theater, just acting in plays, and then I toured in Shakespeare. Comedy didn't come to me until World War II.

"I was in the Army, but you couldn't act in the Army. You couldn't get a bunch of actors together and put on a play. So, out of a need to perform, I developed a stand-up comedy routine.

"After the Army, I was cast in Broadway revues. Sketch comedy became my field. That led to my going with Sid Caesar in 'Your Show of Shows' and doing sketches on television for nine years."

Reiner's next credits included "The Dick Van Dyke Show," "The New Dick Van Dyke Show," and the "2,000-Year-Old Man" record albums with Mel Brooks. He also directed such comedy films as "Oh, God," with George Burns, and "The Jerk," with Steve Martin.

"Now," Reiner says, "when I act a serious role, as I do occasionally, some people are surprised. But I personally have no problems at all. I just remember going back to my beginnings, to the days of summer stock and Shakespeare."

Reiner's co-star in the film is Danny Kaye (who is making his television drama debut in the special). Between scenes, the two veteran actors filled the time by swapping hilarious stories about growing up in New York City. Kaye was born in Brooklyn; Reiner, in the Bronx.

Says Reiner: "One of the dividends of doing this film is finally getting to work with Danny Kaye. He is the one that we all looked up to when we were young. I'm probably only nine or 10 years younger than Danny, but he was the old man of comedy. I had his records, and I attempted to learn those remarkable, unique patter songs he sang. I never could copy them, because I don't have a good enough ear musically. But Danny Kaye has maybe the best musical ear ever gifted to man."

"Skokie" tells the story of the citizens of Skokie, Ill., who became embroiled in a bitter controversy when neo-Nazis announced their intention to demonstrate in the Chicago suburb four years ago.

"Let me tell you about this script. This is a script that in two seconds I knew I had to be in it. The minute I read it, I knew that this was a very important piece of work. It's necessary to have it produced and put on television.

"People need to be aware of this subject matter. We're talking here about the resurgence of racism in the world, and in our country."

'Travels In Space And Time'

DR. CARL SAGAN

How can we travel through the entire universe — past, the present and future.

possibilities of interstellar space flight and the question of time travel are explored in "Travels in Space and Time," the eighth episode of "Cosmos," to be rebroadcast Tuesday on PBS. (Local times may vary; check listings.)

"Cosmos" host Dr. Carl Sagan, the Cornell University professor and Pulitzer Prize-winning author, shows that although our lives span only a single cosmic instant, they offer the chance to connect with the entire universe — past, the present and future.

Dr. Sagan explains that each culture has imposed its order on the heavens by grouping the stars into constellations, a kind of "cosmic Rorschach test." Using a computer-animation model of the Big Dipper, Dr. Sagan takes the audience on a tour that circles around and behind the seven stars in the dipper, showing how the view of the constellation would change if we could embark on such an interstellar journey.

The Price Of Fame

Meryl Streep Loves, Hates Success

By DICK KLEINER
NEW YORK — Put the blame on fame, boys.

More and more, today's new young crop of stars get to the top (which, after all, is where they want to be) and then start moaning and groaning about how unpleasant it is up there.

Here is Meryl Streep. Incredibly talented. Beautiful beyond reason. And becoming recognized as probably the finest of today's young female stars.

And she hates it. Or, at least, that's what she says. Hates being complimented. Time Magazine called her "the actress of the '80s" and now she turns around and says, "No, I'm not the actress of the '80s — somebody has said that to sell magazines."

Hates having a recognizable face.

"That can damage the way other actors treat you," she says. "If I walk into a rehearsal hall with other actors, and I am preceded by my reputation, it takes time to clear all that away and start working."

Hates being a celebrity. "I'm freaked out by what being a celebrity means," she says. "Having to have security all the time. People are — no, I don't want to talk about that. I've had to change my phone number every five minutes."

Hates losing her anonymity.

"The source of what I do," she says, "is observation. But ever since I've become famous I can no longer watch people, because now the people are watching me."

One cannot help but wonder what she expected fame to be — sugar and spice and everything nice? Obviously, any person who goes into the acting profession must want fame or they wouldn't go into it in the first place. Then when they get it, they start complaining about it.

But Miss Streep will certainly have to adjust to it, because unquestionably it's only just begun for her. Her latest film, "The French Lieutenant's Woman," solidifies her grip on the top rung of the ladder.

It is a beautiful film, and she is superb in it. As is her custom, she went about her portrayal of Sarah very seriously. For a time, for example, she seriously considered changing the color of her hair and her eyes.

"I thought I should have brown hair and brown eyes," says the very fair, very blue-eyed Meryl Streep. "I tried it, with a wig and contact lenses, and I looked terrible. My skin looked yellow. The darkest I could go with my hair was auburn."

"Blonde hair somehow seems so modern."

One thing she likes particularly about acting is the opportunity it gives a person to play-act, to don different guises and assume different personalities.

As for the enigmatic character she plays in "The French Lieutenant's Woman," she doesn't pretend to understand her motivations or her changing moods. And, even if she thought she understood them, she wouldn't reveal that understanding publicly.

"I've promised," she says, "not to explain Sarah. It's his (referring to novelist John Fowles) baby. It's not my baby. I am only an interpretive person."

Meryl Streep plays an enigmatic young woman in her new movie, "The French Lieutenant's Woman." "... Acting is the perfect profession for me," she says. "It's fun and it's fakery and it's real and it's very liberating to be an actress."

ANGIE DICKINSON

an illiterate (Johnny Cash) into reading lessons. He was warm in his praise for the way singer Johnny Cash succeeded as an actor. Wallach is equally ecstatic — in fact, he used the word "touched" — by the performance of Danny Kaye in "Skokie," on CBS this month.

Wallach says that he recognized Danny Kaye — even at his comedic best — as a man of unplumbed talents. "But even I was surprised," he says. In "Skokie," Danny Kaye, who plays concentration camp survivor Max Feldman, protests the march by neo-Nazis in a Chicago suburb.

And speaking of cameleons: One of the most dastardly, villainous characters in "Skokie" is played by the very gentle Eli Wallach. On the job, this actor-chameleon conveys whatever the playwright is trying to tell us.

Can the leopard change its spots?

Well, no. And according to actors, too many producers and casting directors liken actors to leopards and think they can't change their spots, either. But adventurous actors see themselves as chameleons... able to change for whatever role they're cast in.

With the cost of failure rising as high as the economy today, it's not hard to see why a producer doesn't want to gamble on casting — for instance, making an established villain into a hero.

But most actors are chameleons who can pull off quick changes. Bette Davis did it when she went from movie heroine to horror film queen ("Whatever Happened to Baby Jane?") then back to a fine, feisty heroine as a pioneer woman pilot in NBC's "Skyward."

Angie Dickinson, who stepped far out of her old "Police Woman" role to star in Brian DePalma's "Dressed to Kill" a while ago, is now returning to police work.

Angie, who after the close of "Police Woman" thought she would never again want to do a series, is ready for such a weekly commitment again. So she was as happy as Johnny Carson was when she agreed to star in a series his production company would develop for NBC.

It probably will be another police series, but as Angie said the other day, "None of us can be sure what will come out." They're trying for a product that will be both entertaining and comfortable for Angie.

Her rejection of a concept that would have cast her as a bossy police chief offended some feminists. Angie's answer: "You can do this as a special, dramatize it. But week after week, not only is it not my image (with her established audiences) but it is not my self-image. I don't want to boss a large group of both men and women."

She's grateful that Carson's group scrapped the heavy-message concept and shopped for something lighter. If the first scripts
