

Need For Careful Yard Planning Is Great, Says Housing Administration

The need for careful plot planning is almost as great as the need for careful house planning, Federal Housing Administration emphasizes.

No matter how attractive the house may be, it is pointed out, the development of the lot is much to offset the appeal of the home.

Too much emphasis cannot be placed upon the usefulness of planting as an adjunct to the value of the house itself. It is the trees and shrubbery may be used to enhance the architectural character and are frequently more effective than the decorative material in providing the charm essential to a satisfactory property.

The Federal Housing Administration has offered the following suggestions to home owners as a guide to practical plot development:

Large trees should be placed to provide shade from the afternoon sun and to frame houses. Such trees need room to grow and should never be planted too close to the house.

Fast growing, heavy feeding trees, such as poplars and willows, should be avoided as they tend to clog sewer and water lines and they grow very quickly.

Through these means the Federal Housing Administration feels that the value of a home may be gradually increased, and especially in the case of well-selected planting, in a measure surpassing the actual expenditure.

CAMERAS FOR AIR RIFLES

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 27.—(AP)—The "swords into plowshares" advice has been brought up to date here. The Chattanooga Humanistic Educational Society is doing a brisk business in trading cameras for air rifles. It believes that children learn more by shooting animals with film than with guns.

Model Relaxes By Assuming Peculiar Position On Chair

By BETTY CLARK
NEW YORK, May 27.—(AP)—

When a man has a sore back, he bends over his feet on his desk; he's found a pretty good way to relax. Better still is the method used by pretty Cynthia Hope, New York photographer's model.

She turns a straight-backed chair upside down on her bed. Then she lies down with the end of her spine on the bed against the top of the chairback and stretches along the tilted chairback. That minimizes circulation to her feet, increases circulation to her face, benefits both.

She adds another trick, placing cotton pads soaked in alcohol on her eyes. After 15 minutes of this eye-soaked relaxation, she feels like new.

Her feet and legs are often her modelling fortune, as Cynthia Hope favours low heels. She rubs foot cream into the soles of her tired feet or soaks them in hot water. She shaves surplus hair from her legs every three days.

Sweet Young Girls Go Back To Indians For Jewelry Ideas

NEW YORK, May 27.—(AP)—

The 1940 sweet girl graduate is borrowing jewelry ideas from South American Indians. And like the Indians, she makes some of the jewelry herself. She's coying the Indian in unusual color combinations; in odd designs and in getting exotic ornamentations out of ordinary souvenirs like peanuts, beans, safety pins. She even fashions a gay necklace of cardboard plus beads she molds out of wax.

She has several ways of preserving nuts or beans. They have a coating that's likely to sprout. She shishes each nut or covers it with sealing wax. She can run a lot of dried beans up on a string, then dip the whole string into clear nailpolish. But she'll have to wine edges the same way she smooths polish on her nails.

To make beads out of wax you need the following tools: knitting needle, candle (or alcohol burner), glass of cold water, heavy sewing needle, long thread, wire and 24 pieces of round elastic.

Here's how to make round beads of wax: Heating the knitting needle two inches from one end, press it into a small piece of wax, putting a second piece of wax on top while the needle is hot. Revolve that slowly over the flame. The wax is sealed, then moulded with the fingers. Then to get rid of the marks from fingers leave on the hand in one place it quickly through the flame, then dunk it into cold water.

Your bead is still on the needle. Now, wine off the water, then heat the needle in front of and behind the bead, but don't heat the bead. Now, while the needle is hot, slip the bead off and drop it into cold water.

over six months. Add water to water bath and mix with water. Soak bottle. Then add to treatment the salts, to 10 hours sleep a night—so you don't get the salts. Cynthia soon found right life and modeling didn't interfere.

She limits her play to week-ends. She goes to a beauty salon once a week. Like many other American girls she rolls her hair on bobby pins every night.

Eye To The Future

"I'm the most unathletic woman who ever lived probably," she says with a laugh. "forgetting the five hours a day she practiced aerobics dancing as she grew up as well as the walking, swimming, tennis, golf, etc., she does now. She and her sister mean to become stage dancers until Cynthia reads a glamour story about models and comes to New York at 16. Then her sister, like her mother, started writing. Cynthia writes top; her sister, 975, on a writing career later. Also she makes her own hats and designs jewelry.

She set her heart on a pink birthday cake with 21 blue candles this spring. And she got it. But she won't vote next Fall unless a presidential candidate interests her.

FDR Asserts Nation Must Be On Guard

men, children and old men" who have fled the battle zones of Belgium and northern France. This is what he said, "in the name of our common humanity."

As for the nation's present defense, he deplored all indications that billions spent for the past year had been wasted.

"The war is stronger now than at any other time in history, the army had been vastly strengthened and the air corps has grown and developed."

To help the Administration recruit the big industrial power involved in arming the nation against any eventualities, Mr. Roosevelt said, "patriotic Americans of proven merit and unquestioned ability in their specialized work and knowledge" should be called to Washington to help the government with their training, experience and capability.

Much will be heard of that in the next few days, he added.

"Today's threat to our national society is not a shadow of military importance, there's a real, we know of now, shadow of attack. The Trojan horse. The fifth column that betrays a nation unprepared for treachery. Spies, saboteurs and traitors are the actors in this new strategy. With all these we must deal vigorously."

He spoke of "a new technique" for winning a nation's support through "false reports and sensational appeals." By such methods he said, "American public opinion would be swayed to befriend the aggressor."

"All this is no idle dream. It has happened time after time, in nation after nation, during the last two years."

A Weak King

The most charitable thing we can think of to say at the moment regarding King Leopold of the Belgians is that he is a weak king. The British newspapers this morning have a more expressive term for him. They call him "King Quailing," did no doubt the French are calling him worse things than that. But whether or not you think of King Leopold as a traitor or as a weakling, no one can deny that his premature surrender has left the Allies who rushed to his aid in an apparently hopeless dilemma.

For two weeks the Belgians have been fighting bravely and stubbornly protecting the left wing of the Allied position in Flanders. Desperate as was the plight of this isolated Allied army, there has been no evidence to indicate that the Belgians were suffering any more than the British or French who had come to their country, following the German invasion, to help them. United they might even yet have won the battle.

It was bad enough for Leopold to surrender his arms to the Germans under any circumstances, but it was infinitely worse—indeed—in the midst of battle without previous notification to the British and French commanders, leaving their left wing completely exposed to the German onslaught. This is what makes the whole tragedy so strongly of treachery.

Optimists have been busy pointing out for weeks that Italy would not enter the war on the side of Germany because the Crown Prince was married to a sister of King Leopold. He, it was thought, would surely be able to bring sufficient influence to bear through his sister upon the powerful House of Savoy to keep Mussolini from taking the desperate plunge. Instead it seems to have worked just the other way. This sister of King Leopold may have been interested in his surrender.

"All Gaul is divided into three parts," Julius Caesar wrote two thousand years ago. "And the bravest of these are the Belgians." Century after century the Belgians have fought fiercely and bravely to defend their homeland. They have fought against the French and they have fought against the English and they have fought against the Germans. And though they have been defeated many times before, they have never surrendered until they were beaten.

Veterans of the World War will remember the courage and fortitude with which King Albert fought the Germans. They will remember the inspiration he was to his troops who from the beginning fought a losing battle but held the Germans back long enough to enable a British expeditionary force to cross the Channel and stem the advance toward Paris. They will recall that though his entire country was in German hands, he continued the fight through four long years to the victorious end.

What has Leopold to hope for now? He has been promised a castle in Belgium, but a castle in Belgium under German domination will be like castles in Spain. He has saved his cities from destruction, but he has lost the freedom of his people. He has preserved his life but he has lost his soul. He has appeased his enemies, but he has betrayed his friends.

Satisfied Customers

Recalling the old saying that "A satisfied customer should be the best advertiser," the Melbourne Times points out that even the canny old-time storekeepers who hung this saying on pictures in conspicuous places saw the importance of letting strangers and newcomers in their neighborhoods know that they could find what they needed in the neighborhood store, so they took means of extending invitations to these newcomers.

"Come and see what we have. We carry a good stock and sell at fair prices," a modest merchant was likely to say in the three-line notice he inserted in the county newspaper.

"They were the right idea," the Times continues, "and they are still the big idea back of all successful advertising—the satisfied customer who tells his friends about good treatment he receives, and the invitation to prospective customers to come and see for themselves."

"But there is no longer the simplicity of the one general store for a neighborhood. Dealers in everything that is for sale must send their invitations out in the most effective way they can. They can't depend on the word-of-mouth advertising of satisfied customers. Their constant need is to create new patronage, and still keep a tight hold on the patronage they have already created."

"The successful dealer these days is the dealer who keeps up an advertising campaign straight through the year. Every successful business in the United States has been made that way by intelligent, unfatiguing search for new customers on top of constant persuading of old customers to increase their buying. We go where we are invited, and go again if we are treated well."

What The Townsend Plan Means To You . . .TOWNSEND WELDY

Q.—Why is the Townsend Plan an economic necessity?

A.—The machine age has solved the problem of production, but the problem of distribution. The result is an estimated twelve million out of work. They want to either starve or die, or possibly join Hitler's Hitlerite state. Our solution is this: charity or other official or private sources need the Nation $100 billion a year and there is only one answer: Let's do it.

The Townsend Plan offers one of the best answers and it follows our suggestion.

It is a plan to end poverty by giving every man, woman and child a guaranteed minimum income.

Hudson Beats Gainesville 5-1 With Six Hit Pitching

Seminole Pound Price In First
Three Innings For All Their Runs

Leo Jeter Bangs Out Double And Two
Singles And Justice Gathers Pair
Of Two Baggers To Pace Team

Sanford's Seminoles went all the first three innings to nine hits and five runs off of Gainesville and then came behind the — stable exhibition of Frank Hudson to win 5-1.

Charlie Roberts knocked in Campbell with the first run in the first inning, then crossed the plate again in the second lead-off, belted out five hits. Al Johnson drove in Jeter with a single in the third.

Price limited Sanford to one in the final six frames, no damage had been done.

Frank Hudson exhibited control and walked but two while retiring eight G-Men in strikeout route. Only put-outs were made in the ninth. Hudson was never in difficulty as the Sanford engineered two double plays.

Leo Jeter banged out a double and singles and Joe Justice had doubles to lead the Seminoles to the plate.

Whitey Campbell in his usual consistent Whitey slugged twice, was both cleanup player, and drove in one run.

Both teams played errorless ball all the way.

Leesburg dropped a close 3-2 decision to Daytona Beach and as a result Sanford stayed in lead over the Florida State League field to a cool eleven games.
