

SANFORD IS BALLED OUT

Tourists Put The Kibosh On The Collegians Yesterday

On the glorious Fourth, the day made famous as the exact time in which to trim Orlando, the Collegians fell down and today there is nothing but sadness and gloom once again.

How was it? Nobody knows exactly. The morning game was coming along nicely and the Collegians had coaxed the Tourists out in the open and made them think they were easy all along. The score stood 1 to 1 in the seventh and Sanford was getting ready for the knock-out when the rain that always seems to be on tap in Orlando at the proper time for them was turned loose and the game was called. Some people say that Mr. Cheney controls the rain supply in Orlando as well as the water and when the game looks bilious he pulls out the plug and stops the deal.

In the afternoon the great crowd was held tense in the greatest game of the season and what looked like sure victory for the Collegians at the last moment was turned into defeat by the Tourists landing on Father Wallace and bringing in the winning runs.

It was simply awful, and the tense silence was only broken by the sobs of Jim Harris and Paul Biggers who had to be led off the field by their loving friends. It was even said that the hard-hearted Orlando people actually snickered at the awful suffering depicted on the faces of the loyal Sanford fans.

Truthfully, though, and we know that the sporting writers on the Reporter-Star, Citizen and Sentinel will agree with us in the statement that Sanford outplayed and outclassed the Orlando team in every way.

Why was it thusly? Over confidence, perhaps. The Collegians are so good that they sometimes imagine they are unbeatable and let the Tourists slip one over on them. Again the Orlando team is rather hefty and Clyde Pounds never overlooks a bet, takes chances to win and works like a Trojan all the time. It is doubtful if there are two teams more evenly matched in the whole realm of base ball than the Tourists and the Collegians. They play ball from the time the bell taps until the call of time at the last end of the ninth and if an error creeps in the other team is quick to take advantage of it. The ball season is a good one from every standpoint and the boys are giving the fans a good run for their money. While we regret the defeat of yesterday we can also take comfort in the fact that Sanford played some and there is not a sore head in Sanford today. The boys and the supporters are taking it gracefully and good humor prevails.

To those who care to take a slant at the remains before we lay them to rest pass around this way and read below.

Sanford Keeps Doing It

In a very fast game the Collegians put the rabbit's foot on the Tourists here on Tuesday. The day was ideal for playing and a large crowd filled the new grand stand and many cars were parked around the enclosure.

Edwards occupied the mound for Sanford and played a heady game, keeping his hits well bunched. Gentle for the Tourist was gently pushed to the limit several two base hits being given up by him. Farmer and Brittain did some excellent stick work and Wofford at second for Sanford was a place in the hearts of the fans at once. Following is the medley set to slow music:

Orlando on the Game

One to nothing Sanford was the awful lay of yesterday's game played here. A large crowd went out to cheer and remained to weep.

If you ask why this sudden turn of events, the answer is Sanford saw a light, or a star, somewhere and followed it. In every day parlance they strengthened up. We would prefer to write this than to say that Orlando weakened. Orlando fortunately has passed the weak kneed stage.

Errors on the part of the local boys handed out the victory, the run coming in the second inning. A man was on first and second, and Frank Pounds on second fumbled the ball, and the man on second, imagining apparently that a Kansas cyclone, or a deputy sheriff was after him, came home.

But for that one run—well—after all, what's the use of butting? And it was a good game at any rate.

Vaiden and Beardall did the honors for Orlando, and Wallace and Lowe were in for Sanford.

The tenseness of the game was tightened with two baggers, one by Boyer of Orlando, and the other by Farmer of Sanford.

Vaiden struck out eight men, and Wallace six. Wallace was touched up for three hits, and Vaiden seven. Orlando made three errors, to the celery crowd's one. Moore and Tilden kept order.—Reporter-Star.

Sanford Loses One

Kissimmee, July 4.—The locals returned from Sanford last night after defeating the Sanford team 8 to 3.

The locals have signed Tillman, formerly of Orlando, to pitch. He started in yesterday's game and his beginning was rather an auspicious one as he fanned eighteen and allowed only four hits.

Doc Nance just to prove that he was not in urgent need of spectacles put one over the fence for four sacks in the first inning of yesterday's game.

The team lined up as follows: Doyle, 3b.; Alderman, 2b.; Nance, c.; Snedigar, ss.; Kulp, cf.; Alvey, lf.; Mims, rf.; Olson, 1b.; Tillman, p.

HAPPENINGS DURING THE WEEK

Here the Readers Will Find a Brief Historical Spring Flowing For hurried Readers

The fourth revival of the Olympic games was formally opened at Stockholm Saturday morning, in the presence of the king and queen and 80,000 spectators. The American contingent is by far the largest, and brought great cheer from the multitude. The first athletic victory for the United States was won but Ira Courtney of Seattle, in the third heat of the one hundred meters flat race. His time was eleven seconds.

Only 3,500 men, it is estimated comprise the Mexican rebel army today, desertions on account of lack of food and pay, as well as federal triumphs, having greatly reduced their ranks. It is probable the army will be divided into guerrilla bands of 10 each, to harass the federal authorities.

Relatives of J. M. Geter of Geneva, Ala., for thirteen years cashier of the Citizens' Bank of that place, tonight appealed to the newspapers of Georgia and Alabama to assist them in finding some trace of him. Mr. Geter was last seen at Warm Springs, Ga., on the night of June 17th. He started to walk to the depot, a mile distant, and said that he intended to go to Macon on business, and then to Atlanta. He had more than $3,000 in currency at the time and it is feared that he met with foul play.

Triumphantly Victoriano Horta, commander-in-chief of the government forces in northern Mexico at 10 o'clock today rode into the city of Chihuahua. Gen. Tellez and Gen. Rabago, in command of two brigades of cavalry, entered the city a short time before, but were immediately dispatched northwest toward Casas Grandes to head off the fleeing rebel army. To the number of foreign flags raised many days ago by foreign residents, who feared that a season of loot would follow the rebel retreat and evacuation, were added hundreds of Mexican banners giving the city a holiday aspect.

Every Atlantic and Gulf port is today enforcing strict precautions against the spread of the bubonic plague into this country. Surgeon General Blue, of the public health and marine hospital service telegraphed orders to the officials at Portland, Me., Boston, Providence, New York, Perth, Amboy, Baltimore, Norfolk, Wilmington, Charleston, Savannah, New Orleans, Pensacola and Galveston. They were directed in view of the plague outbreak at Havana and Porto Rico, to confer with the city health officers and urge the collection, examination and destruction of rats, especially on the water fronts. Flea-infected rats are the most common means of spreading the plague. Past Assistant Surgeon R. H. Von Ezzdorf was ordered from Mobile to assist in the outgoing quarantine at Havana.

The real work of organizing the Republican campaign for 1912 will be taken up tomorrow when the sub-committee of the Republican national committee will meet and select a chairman. All the members of the sub-committee are here and will be the guests of President Taft, at a luncheon at the White House tomorrow afternoon, when the name of the chairman probably will be announced. President Taft will arrive early tomorrow from his summer home at Beverly, Mass., to meet the committee.

Damage aggregating more than $150,000 was caused by an electric storm which beat upon Chicago this afternoon for several hours. Five inches of rain fell this afternoon. Twelve houses were struck by lightning and forty-two alarms were received by the fire department. No lives were lost. Thousands of dollars damages were caused by flooding of basements, stocks in some business houses in outlying quarters of the city being ruined. Lightning struck a large tenement house at 1146 West Lake St. and twenty families were driven into the street by the fire that followed. The storm brought relief from the hot wave, the thermometer dropping from 81 to 69 degrees. Three deaths from heat and five prostrations were reported today.

DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

The Document Covers Every Subject of Importance Which Has Been the Subject of Party Discussion During the Last Four Years.

The following is a summary of the planks of the Democratic platform. Reaffirms party's devotion to the principles of Democratic government as formulated by Jefferson.

Declares for a tariff for revenue only and denounces "the high Republican tariff as the principal cause of the unequal distribution of wealth."

Favors immediate downward revision of present duties, especially upon necessities of life. Favors gradual reduction so as not to interfere with or destroy legitimate industries.

Denounces President Taft for vetoing tariff bills of last congress. Condemns Republican party "for failure to redeem its promises of 1908 for downward revision." Takes issue with the Republican platform as to the high cost of living, contending it is largely due to the high tariff laws.

Favors vigorous enforcement of the original features of the anti-trust law. Demands such additional legislation as may be necessary to crush private monopoly.

Favors prohibition of holding companies, interlocking directors, watering, etc. Condemns Republican administration for "compromising with the Standard Oil company and Tobacco Trust." Denounces as "usurpation the rights of Republicans to deprive the people of their rights and to enlarge powers of the Federal government."

"There is," says the platform, "no twilight zone between the nation and the state in which exploiting interests can take refuge from both."

Urges people to support proposed constitutional amendments pending in various state legislatures, providing for an income tax and election of United States senators by direct vote of the people. As justification of the campaign expenditures attention is directed "to the enormous expenditure of money in behalf of the president and his predecessor in the recent presidential contest."

Declares for presidential preferential primaries. Directs national committee to provide for selection at primaries of members of national committee.

Pledges party to enactment of law prohibiting campaign contributions by corporations and unreasonable campaign contributions by individuals.

Favors single presidential term and making president ineligible for reelection.

Celebrates Democratic congress on its record, enumerating important achievements and pledges an adequate navy.

Denounces Republican administration on charge of extravagance and demands return to simplicity and economy befitting a Democratic government.

Favors efficient supervision and rate regulation of railroads, express companies, telegraph and telephone lines and a valuation of these companies by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and also regulation over insurance and stock of corporations. In connection with a demand for such revision of the banking laws as will give temporary relief in case of financial distress, there is a denunciation of the Aldrich bill prepared by the monetary commission.

The present method of depositing government funds is condemned and the party is pledged to the enactment of a law for the deposit of such funds by competitive bidding in state or national banks, without discrimination as to locality.

Recommends investigation of agricultural credit societies in Europe to ascertain whether a system of rural credits may be devised suitable to conditions in the United States.

Pledges party to enactment of legislation to prevent devastation of lower Mississippi valley by floods and the control of the Mississippi declared to be a national rather than a state problem. The maintenance of navigable channels is also recommended.

Favors national aid regarding post roads.

Repeats party's declaration of the platform of 1908 as to rights of labor and pledges the party to an employees' compensation law. Declares the unnecessary withdrawal of public lands to retard development and bring reproach upon policy of conservation that reservations should be limited to purposes which they purport to serve. Favors broadest liberality in administering land laws and says forest reserve act permitting homestead entries within the national forests had not been nullified by administrative regulation declares for immediate action to make available Alaskan coal lands and safeguarding of lives of miners.

Favors encouragement of agriculture and legislation to suppress gambling in agricultural products.

Believes in fostering growth of a merchant marine and urges speedy enactment of laws for the greater security of life and property at sea. Reaffirms previous declarations regarding pure food and public health.

Recommends law reform legislation.

Welcomes Arizona and New Mexico to sisterhood of states.

Favors parcels post and extension of rural delivery.

Ingenious Plea. "Prisoner at the bar, I find you have been sentenced to prison twice before. What have you to say why I should not send you there again?" "I urge, your Honor, the generally accepted feeling against a third term."—Baltimore American.

CULLED FROM THE STATE PRESS

An Epitome of the Week's Most Important Happenings in the State's Domain.

As a result of what they term a defeat of the people's choice for nomination by the Republican national convention in Chicago recently, supporters of Theodore Roosevelt, as well as former Republican leaders of Florida, have cast their lot and their zeal with the third party movement, it is said.

Under command of Major Samuel J. Wolf of Key West the Second Regiment of infantry, National Guard of Florida, is now under canvas at the state camp near Black Point, the regiment having mobilized there yesterday morning for its annual tour of field duty, which will cover a period of eight days.

The Tampa Northern has passed to the control of the Seaboard Air Line. That information is given out in Tampa by one who is in a position to know. The transfer of stock is made to certain officials and stockholders of the Seaboard and Seaboard men have been elected to the executive offices of the Tampa Northern, which it is understood will continue in operation as an independent road but in connection with the Seaboard. This transfer of property and election of officers was made in Boston a few days ago and shortly there will be a meeting of the new stockholders and officers in Tampa to make the necessary changes.

A. C. Hewitt, recently appointed agent of the Southern Express Company at Easton, is mysteriously missing and with him approximately $3,000 of the express company's funds. Hewitt was in Leesburg on the Fourth of July celebration and was seen on the streets in the evening when he received the express from the evening train. This morning he did not appear at the office and upon investigation it was found that he did not seem to be in town. The agent at Leesburg was notified and he immediately came over and took charge of the office. The safe was opened late tonight and it was found that a shortage existed of about $3,000.

Fred DeBerry of Lakeland, formerly local manager for Ludden & Bates Southern Music House, but now a traveling salesman, yesterday entered a suit for $10,000 damages against P. K. Wilson of Jacksonville, state manager for Ludden & Bates. The plaintiff alleged that he has been libeled by the defendant and seeks to recover accordingly.

Afternoon Party

Mrs. Morton Hopson was hostess of an delightful afternoon party Tuesday in honor of Mrs. West Hopson.

The tasteful decorations of green and white were both dainty and attractive. The guests had been requested to bring their fancy work, which pleasant occupation was followed by two very interesting and clever word contests. Mrs. J. W. Dickins was the fortunate winner in the first contest, and also the silver tumbler which was given as the prize.

Correct answers were given by several of the guests in the second contest, and the prize, a box of candy, was therefore cut for and won by Miss Lucy Whitner.

The pretty color motif was carried out in the delicious ices and cakes, which were charmingly served by Misses Alice Caldwell and Fern Ward.

Mrs. Hopson's invited guests were Mrs. West Hopson, Mrs. J. W. Dickins, Mrs. F. J. Gonzales, Mrs. C. H. Summers, Mrs. J. C. Bennett, Mrs. Claude Herndon, Mrs. W. E. Hubbs, Mrs. F. L. Miller, Mrs. W. W. Abernathy, Mrs. D. L. Thrasher, Mrs. Samuel Puleston, Mrs. Robt. Newman, Mrs. R. L. Peck, Mrs. Henry McLaulin, Mrs. J. B. Lawson, Mrs. N. O. Garner, Mrs. J. A. Harrold, Mrs. Ernest Mirrow, Misses May Doyle, Madge Ward, Mell Whitner, Lucy Whitner, Annie Lee Caldwell, Lillian Gibson, Margaret Roberts, Bessie Long, Carrie Abernathy, Alice Caldwell, Fern Ward.

Dispatches to the public service today say a case under observation in the Havana hospital has been confirmed as bubonic plague. The service is watching the situation closely.

CURBSTONE GLEANINGS

A Budget of Opinion "Just Between You and Me"

EVEN THE GATE POST NOT IN IT

A Chief is Among Ye Taking Notes and Faith, He'll Prent 'Em'— So Says Saunterer.

¶ I note that Mr. Leffer is out soliciting members for the Charity Association and he tells me that he is having trouble in getting people to sign up as members and give their little old iron dollar. This question has been threshed out time and again and needs no explanation if the party wants to donate. Some people want an excuse for not donating and of course it will be a hard matter for any one to explain to them if they give a dollar for Associated Charities they will not receive five dollars in return. There are some people in Sanford that have been putting out money on the twenty to one shot so long that they can not get out of the habit. They will not donate anything the charity or to anything else and I am not explaining the charity game to them—in fact I never explain any project to them.

The Sanford Charity Association is the finest organization that the good people of Sanford have ever had in their midst and every one should be familiar with the idea. For instance: Before the Association was organized the people of Sanford were besieged especially in the winter by cripples, children, grown men and women, and all kinds of people who wanted assistance. Some of them were worthy and most of them were not. The professional beggar is very crafty and Sanford people spent hundreds of dollars every year on people that were better fixed financially than the donors of money. Charity became such a burden on the merchants especially that some action was necessary in order that the real sufferers could get relief and the fakes could be turned down. The Herald called for a Charity Association and the good people of this city responded promptly to the call. The strong organization is today working for the interests of the real charity patients and the fakes are sent on their way, thus saving the people of this city money and annoyance. The busy man who is approached by a mendicant would rather give up a quarter than be bothered. Mistaken charity and the real sufferers are hardly ever taken care of because their cases do receive recognition. Now this is all changed.

The person seeking alms is directed to the secretary, who looks into the case, calls up the executive board, and if the case is a worthy one receives immediate attention. The busy man who formerly became a prey for the sharks and who seldom gave a penny toward real charity is never bothered longer than a minute by the mendicant. He simply refers them to the proper authorities. It only takes a dollar to become a member of the Association and the benefits to be derived are many. The needy are taken into the whole system of the organization and will be cared for until such time as the authorities see fit to discharge them, and there will be no more promiscuous begging on the streets and the professional beggar and pun handler will have to ply his little game in greener pastures because Sanford will be no place for him. Charity will be charity in deed as well as in name and the citizen who gives up a little money each year for the Association can rest assured that the money will be expended to a good purpose.

¶ A gentleman who signs his name, Wm. Utalk, writes me a lengthy letter about the good roads and wants to know why he cannot vote on the bond issue. He admits that he owns no property and does not expect to own any. In a rambling way he talks about the landowners and darkly hints that the "big men" as he calls them are trying to choke off the little ones and wanders off in a diatribe against the man who owns property trying to build good roads and pay taxes and keeping the non tax pay from voting in a bond election. His letter is too lengthy to publish and contains nothing that would throw any light on anything. I will only reply briefly to him by asking what right he would have to vote a tax on a man's property when he has none of his own? He makes a strong plea about "taxation without representation" and yet he would allow the landless man to vote on questions that affect the interests of the property man most vitally. He states that he favors good roads and would like to vote on the question and does not attempt to give any plan for building roads by the non-taxpayer. There are two unanswerable arguments to Mr. Utalk.

The man with no property has no right to vote a tax on the property man and there is not a banking house in the world that would take a bond issue that was not guaranteed by the vote of the property owner. Like many other smart Alecks who expect to revolutionize the world Mr. Utalk has a diarrhoea of words and a constipation of ideas.

¶ Men and women who sing and love music for music's sake must, perhaps be happy people, despondent people are never heard singing. Singing people who are happy must be good citizens and what nation, as a whole, produces greater numbers of lovers of song than Germany, and what nation has sent to these shores a better class of aliens who have become good citizens than the Fatherland? Germans are a happy, song loving, peaceful, law-abiding body. Their habits and social customs may not be of the orthodox Puritan, but show a us group of members of a Sangerbund and we'll point out to you a body of men worthy of American citizenship.

¶ One of the reasons why I expect to see a Democratic victory in November is because the northern Republican newspapers are losing hope and many of them joining the ranks of the Progressives. The following from a conservative Republican paper published in Michigan is a fair sample:

It took the Democrats a long time to do what seemed to ordinary lookers-on the only logical thing to do, and that is to nominate Governor Wilson as their candidate for the presidency. Whether the party, as a party, is truly progressive or not, the issue throughout the country is clear, and with the reactionary influences behind President Taft, it is well that the people of the country are to have an opportunity of expressing themselves at the polls.

Wilson and Marshall are a strong combination, viewed from every standpoint, and the Republicans will have to give the people more than promises, too many of which have been unfulfilled, in order to retain its place and power in national politics.

The interests have been working and voting for their own pocketbooks; the common voter is strongly feeling the necessity for protecting himself and his family. High sounding speeches will not go down, this year. Voters want to know the whys and the wherefores, and there are so many things to explain that certain gentlemen throughout the country will be kept very busy.

The Democratic convention seemed to clearly demonstrate that the same interests have been seeking to control both parties, and have succeeded to a large degree.

This is a crucial year for the Republican party. It has enjoyed the confidence of the people for over half a century, and for sixteen continuous years has been trusted with the administration of the affairs of the national government. It ought to be big enough and wise enough to adapt itself to changing conditions—to know there is no such thing in this progressive age as standing still. The term "stand-pat" has brought opprobrium upon the party, undeservedly so, because a large majority of the party has no sympathy with that policy. Unfortunately however, the control of the party in many states and sections has been in the hands of that element, and if the party suffers defeat this year it will be because of the absolute refusal of these party leaders to see what is clearly apparent to any man not blinded by political prejudices and ambitions for office or power.

Mercy For The Poor Beast

The inhumanity and brutality of some of our about-the-city horse and mule drivers excite the righteous indignation of many an on looker. We all feel the heat of a Florida summer, especially if obliged to labor, or for that matter even stand or sit, in the direct rays of the sun. The poor equine feels and suffers with a keenness of nerve and prostration very akin to man. Without thought of this, numerous Jehus whip and whale their steeds along the driveways as though they have before them a machine as unsusceptible to torture as cold metal. Not only must the poor animal endure the blazing hot sun, but his skin and flesh quiver under the cruel lash, until it is a marvel that breath and life are not literally pounded out of him. In some cases, this does result, though it seldom occurs in the public view, else the thoughtlessness, of stendishness (as the case may be) driver might be recalled to some sense by an infuriated mob. Usually the driven-to-death creature passes away in his stable or barnyard, and the reason of his taking off is assigned to other than the real cause.

We do not believe all cruel drivers are vicious. Some are ignorant, some are thoughtless, some are inexperienced. No doubt many do not realize that the brute they are racing, acutely feels and suffers as he truly does. Others are unthinking and simply criminally careless. Still others are not aware that overheating and prostration are so easily inflicted. We have a humane society here in Sanford, and the members are ready and desirous to in every way assist in educating the ignorant, jogging the think-tanks of the thoughtless, and jolting to summary justice the brutal and vicious. Complaints should and will be made, unless the warnings given through medium of the Herald publishers' space and otherwise are promptly heeded. Towns all about us are handling this evil of cruelty to animals with praiseworthy rugged severity. Fines of $15 and even more, are rapidly checking inhumanity in other cities, and would prove wholesome here, without doubt. Owners who are willing to kill their live stock by inches and thus deplete their exchequer will usually halt if compelled to disgorge two or three five dollar Williams for each recurring offense.

Among rules prescribed by a Humane Society in another city we note the following, which we would like to see promulgated and practiced here:

Load lightly and drive slowly. In stopping, let it be in the shade whenever possible. Water frequently. Watch your beast. If he suddenly stops sweating, if he breathes short and quick, his ears droop and he stands with legs braced sideways, he needs attention at once; get him in the shade, remove harness and bridle, wash out his mouth, sponge him all over, with vinegar water if possible, and give him four ounces of ammonia, or two ounces of sweet spirits of nitre in a pint of water, or give him a pint of warm coffee, cooling his head with ice water or chopped ice wrapped in cloth. Do not use a horse hat, unless it be a canopy top hat, the ordinary bell shape does more harm than good. On coming in after work, sponge him off, removing harness marks and sweat, swabbing mouth, nose and dock, wash his feet but not his legs. Never turn the horse on him. Give him a cool, airy place to eat and rest. Unless he cools off at night, he is illly prepared to stand the next day's heat and labor.

The above humahity will lengthen the life and double the efficiency of your team, afford onlookers relief from heartaches at sights of cruelty, increase the self-respect of drivers and owners, and make each a kinder hearted and better citizen.

SIDE LIGHTS OF THE CONVENTION

Some Interesting Details of the Baltimore Gathering.

During an outburst talk at the convention hall, Representative Henry Clayton of Alabama, one of the speakers who got all "het up" over things in general, made the fatal mistake of starting three sentences in succession with the words "I know." By the time he got to his fourth burning thought 12,000 persons started with him. It didn't bother him, and he kept right on "I knowing."

"I know," roared the Alabama man. "Do you know that you've been talking fifteen minutes?" asked a man in the gallery.

"If you will be patient, there are only half a dozen more speeches," pleaded Judge Parker at the morning session, when the crowd was breaking the anti-noise ordinance.

"Let them all talk together, and then we can go home," was a bit of advice from the floor which raised a laugh.

Mrs. Taft Attends Session. The convention was watched by the "first lady of the lady," Mrs. Taft.

WM. J. BRYAN

His plea for a progressive candidate was headed by the Democratic convention.

wife of the president, came over from Washington, and was an early arrival in the gallery near the speaker's platform.

She saw an animated scene, for spurred by the promise of lively action, the early crowd took a good start, with the result that a lively interesting throng was on hand an hour sooner than Wednesday.

For them the first center of attraction was Mrs. Taft. She arrived with Mrs. Norman E. Mack three quarters of an hour before the convention met.

There was not a ripple of applause on the part of the incoming thousands as Mrs. Taft walked up the aisle and was ushered to a seat on the platform.

As the party went up the middle aisle to the stage Col. John I. Martin, sergeant-at-arms, hurriedly crossed the platform. He was late, but made up for his tardiness by the cordiality of his welcome. Colonel Martin personally led the way to the first row of seats reserved for the Taft party.

Her seat was in the front row of the guests' gallery to the left of the chairman's stand and immediately overlooking the west section of the press gallery. She had read every detail of the story of the Chicago convention, where her husband was re-nominated, and she was deeply interested in the work of the opposing convention.

It was the first time in the history of the country, so far as the oldest convention fans could recall, that the wife of a president had attended a convention which was to nominate the man who would oppose her husband for re-election.

Unable to Handle Crowd.

When Baltimore puts up five or six more hotels and can muster more than one ticket taker for each doorway of its armory, it properly may aspire to the honor of having another national convention within the city walls—but not before. It is barely possible that the city could take care of the crowds if it knew how, but it is a long call from the last big national gathering to the present one, and while the last one was not anything like as big as this one, Baltimore seems to have forgotten the lessons which other cities have learned. Marooned on Upper Floors.

The Illinois delegation had a big banner thrown out from one of the hotels announcing that its headquarters were on the fifteenth floor of one of the leading hotels. If the man who wanted to see Roger Sullivan, or it might have been Mayor Harrison, if valiantly he had gone to the room of the prairie delegation, he either had to walk up fourteen flights of stairs on feet already tired with tramping and standing, or else he had to wait for the hourly chance to board an elevator which carried its heavy burden jangling and perspiring aloft.

Two of the Southern negro delegates who recently played a starring engagement in Chicago had evidently got the convention spirit running so madly in their blood that at their own expense they decided to go to Baltimore to see with their own eyes what the Democrats were going to do to one another.

They strolled into the bar at Nixon's about nine o'clock, when the restaurant was practically deserted.

They called for drinks and the bartender served them. Then one of them, emboldened by the first display of courtesy, which they had experienced in Baltimore, exclaimed to his running mate:

"Supposing we dine heah, Charles? What do you say? It's too far to go all de way back to de Belvidere, and anyhow, after dose splendid meals we had in the Pompeian room at the Congress in Chicago, the Belvidere don't somehow seem to fit my fancy. Did you notice that coffee they had amament. But cannally, quite by Why, it was liddy, see, it was, positively puddy."

By this time the bartender's mouth was hanging wide and loose from amazement. But casually, quite by accident as it were, one of his eyes rolled in the direction of the negro head waiter of the dining room, who was standing near by.

"Rufus," said the bartender, "come hither. I would speak with thee."

Head Waiter Hands Out Kibosh.

Then in a lower tone he continued: "Don't misa this, Rufus. These two colored gentlemen have just arrived from Chicago. They're talking a lot of rum stuff about the last days of Pompeii and I think—I say, I think, Rufus, they are contemplating dining here to see if our chef has got any thing on Chicago."

By this time the two negro delegates had sauntered into the almost empty dining room. But in a moment Rufus was upon them. "Beg pardon, sirs," he said, "was either of you gentlemen inquiring for me?"

"We've just dropped in for dinner. That's, of course, if you have no objections."

"Objections? My, no sah, we don't have no objections, only I regret to say we have not got any empty tables."

"What?" cried the other delegate, furiously. "What's the matter with this one? My, there ain't scarcely a living soul in the room!"

"But dey is all engaged, sah, every one of 'em. The particular table you was going to sit at is reserved for Mr. Bryan. William Jennings Bryan, sah. Though I take it you is Republican, you may of heard of him. We're expecting him and his friend, Mr. Parker, to run in at any moment, so you see, gentlemen, how impossible it is."

And without more words Rufus bowed the two delegates out of the door.

Brisbane "Boosta" Cheer Leader.

During a Woodrow Wilson demonstration in the convention hall during the Tuesday night session the wild applause was suddenly doubled. A "whoop" arose that put to shame all the previous cheering. The enthusiastic cheer leader was more surprised than any one else in the building.

HE NOMINATED WILSON

As he excitedly stepped from one writing bench to another in the press stand his progress was checked. The Wilson lithograph he had been waving was dropped for a moment and then the cheer leader was catapulted through the air into the crowd below. When the police had taken the matter in hand, it was found that the second actor in this successful effort of arousing the crowd was Arthur Brisbane, chief editorial writer for William Randolph Hearst. He objected seriously to having his "copy" walked on and acted promptly. Later he said he merely "boasted" the cheerer out of the way.

Nobody knew why the time at which the demonstration began was selected by the Wilson forces as the "psychological moment," but the evidences all pointed to a well laid-out plan to storm the convention.

It began when a New Jersey delegate climbed into the press stand surrounding the platform. He was clad in white flannels, and with arms stretched to their fullest extent he held a Wilson lithograph. This he turned toward one side of the house and then the other.

LEARNING FROM EXPERIENCE

Florida Farmers Want Good Roads And Drainage

The present year has been a phenomenally unsatisfactory one for farmers all over the country, floods and frosts have greatly damaged the crops. In this part of the state the beginning of the year have compelled replanting of crops until, it was found useless to plant any more and the low lying fields were "thrown out." In traveling through the country one finds the crops on the hillsides and slopes to be pretty fair, but on the lowlands they are either very sorry or have been abandoned. The staple crops will probably not give half of the yield a good season would have brought forth.

Every other untoward season has taught the farmers valuable lessons, and so will this. Ditching the lowlands will be the first lesson, for, no matter how shiftless a man may be, he will no longer delay bringing about preventative measures to save him from doing his planting and cultivating for nothing. The next lesson is to diversify his crops so that if one of them fails for any reason, another may be successful. Then comes the health lesson, for after a man has paid heavy doctor's bills for sickness engendered by poisonous surface water, he will not doubt that a deep well is cheapest after all. Last comes the road lesson. A man who gets caught in a blinding downpour of a rain on a road where his horse is able only to proceed at a walk is apt to change his mind about the "fool good roads agitation" and do his share in providing better roads.

Talking about roads, the farmers living within easy reach of shipping stations have done pretty well selling tomatoes and sweet corn, thus, to a great extent making up for their loss in staple crops. They haul their stuff over bad roads but the haulage is short. If it takes twenty five minutes to travel a mile on a bad road, and twice the distance can be made over a good road in the same time, with less fatigue for the team, is not the good road the cheaper? Roads firm enough for rapid travel at all times would enable farmers living far from the shipping points to raise truck crops that have a ready sale instead of confining them to the more unprofitable staple crops. (Stark's Telegraph)

WOODLAND PARK NOTES

Among those who kept cool at Woodland Park on the Fourth were Rev. G. B. Waldron and family, Mr. Walker and family, Mr. Barcille and family, Mr. and Mrs. McQuain, Mr. and Mrs. Campbell and the troupe of Scout boys. The boys were well supplied with fire crackers, tee, and celebrated loudly. Rain kept people under shelter for awhile, but they made up for it after dinner. Nearly every one went in swimming. In the afternoon a number of visitors drove out. The day passed off pleasantly and, as usual, everybody enjoyed themselves. WOODSMAN.

FOR GOOD ROADS

Next Saturday is the election for good roads—at least that is what it means—the legal term will be an election to make Sanford a special road district and vote $200,000 worth of bonds to construct brick roads throughout the Sanford district. The people of this district should give this matter their earnest attention, for there is nothing that means quite so much to our section as this movement for good roads. Every other available material has been tried and found wanting. Every other plan has been tried with indifferent success. There is nothing in the way of material but brick and no plan for the building of roads but the bonding plan. For the past year this section has suffered for roads. For the past year we have heard nothing of road building and this state of affairs will continue mayhap for years before relief is in sight. Realizing that something must be accomplished at once the idea of a unit building and bonding originated with the property holders who pay the bulk of the taxes and who realize that for the past ten years the vast sums expended on temporary roads have been thrown away sought relief in the idea just promulgated—that of building roads that would last for at least twenty-five years and require no more money for the upkeep. They have come to this decision after careful study. They have come to this idea after every other plan had been tried and found inadequate to our needs. It only remains now for the public spirited people of this section to say next Saturday whether they want to advance and at the same time save money or retrograde and expend a larger amount for temporary roads and makeshifts that have served us for roads in the past. This is a most vital question that confronts us and one that means much to our section. It should not be acted upon hastily, but the information gleaned from our former experiences should prove valuable now that we have reached the turning point in our onward career. Other parts of Florida are making brick roads. Other sections are favoring the brick even though they have good materials at hand in the way of shell and clay. Other sections of other states that have rock and gravel are taking the vitrified brick because of its wearing qualities.

Just a word to the farmers. You are miles from town or from the loading station. You have been averse to the good roads question perhaps because the idea has been advanced by the calamity howler that your taxes would be raised. Did you ever stop to think that with a good brick road to the station or to town that you are independent of the railroad and the high rates? Did you ever stop to think that with a good brick road you and your family can always come to town or can visit your neighbors no matter how much rain is falling? And in the dry season how much more comfortable the brick road will be and no dust to stifle you and make the ride a torture? Did you ever stop to think that your farm on a brick road or even near a brick road will sell for more money to the stranger who comes from a section of the country where they believe in good roads? Did you ever stop to think that the town people can get along without any brick roads and that you are the one who is vitally interested in having this bond election succeed? And after all, if you think the brick streets in town are not necessary or satisfactory just ask some of the town people who kicked against them at first and who would not be without them now for the world.

We have them in Sanford and they looked like a great amount of money at first, but there is not a citizen today who would willingly go back to the sand, clay or marl or any other material that formerly took the money from the treasury and gave nothing in return. The Herald does not wish to coerce or force a single voter to act contrary to his judgment in this matter. But we do not want you to be averse to good roads unless you have gone into the situation thoroughly and have conversed with the county commissioners and the other gentlemen who have been active in the campaign for good roads. There is none of us in Sanford or in the Sanford section who want to increase our taxes. We are all alike when it comes to paying out money each year and getting nothing in return and looking back over the past few years the work on our county roads looks like that. Our commissioners have done wonders in Orange county and have gained a wide reputation as good road builders, but the roads have only been temporary and the money has not been a good investment. Look at the question from all angles, you taxpaying voters. Look up the records and get all the data and then place the question on strictly business principles and you will come to the bonding for brick roads. The Herald is not giving advice as an outsider. This paper has as much invested as any ordinary property owner and probably more than most of you. Our taxes have soared along with yours and we have been just as far down the financial scale as the poorest among you. We have no wish to place an added burden upon you or you, but like all business men we look at every question from a business standpoint and from our view point and from our experience gathered from years of study in every state and clime we conclude that the time has come for brick roads.

Give this matter your attention and remember that you are making history next Saturday. Leave the page for your ancestry as you would have them judge you after you have left this mundane sphere—not as a penny wise and pound foolish man but as an up to date progressive in the year 1912.

AROUSING INTEREST

Another step in the right direction has been taken in reference to good road building. This time the credit must be given the Palatka Board of Trade. This organization has issued an invitation to the Florida Automobile Association and to the State Good Roads Association to hold a joint meeting in that city on July 26th.

This meeting cannot but boost the good roads game to a considerable degree, because of the fact that both organizations are interested in the same line of work. The automobile men want better roads in order that they may get better use of their machines, while the good roads people want better highways for the general good.

However, in both cases the results will be the same. Each organization is working for the betterment of the state, the one along lines primarily for the pleasure seeker and the tourist, while the other is for the farmer. With these two organizations meeting together ideas can be exchanged, and good results cannot but follow.

The most important matter to be discussed is the pending bill, which is to be introduced at the next session of the Legislature. This bill will provide for the financing of a plan which will insure many hundreds of good roads. All of the people who meet at Palatka on July 26th will be anxious to push this measure through at the next session. The State Editors' Association has endorsed the bill, and will boost it between now and the meeting time of the law makers. With the joint work of the three organizations, together with the people at large who do not belong to the organized effort for roads, but who are always working for the improvement of the state, the success of the measure seems assured.

It is at such meetings as this one called for Palatka that interest is created. Such gatherings keep the needs of the commonwealth green in the minds of the citizens. Nothing is so much needed in Florida as roads, and it is to be hoped that other cities will follow Palatka and call meetings to push the good work along during the summer and fall.—Jacksonville Metropolis.

NO-PLACE FOR A BACHELOR

Florida newspapers this week are devoting a great deal of space to the meeting of the Florida Press Association at Palatka and many nice things are being said of the good people of Palatka and Crescent City. It is no secret that Crescent City is getting a whole lot of enviable notoriety over the fact that it can boast of more pretty girls than any other town of its size in the state. There can probably be found some editors who would go so far as to insist that no village, town or city in Florida is the home of so many charmingly beautiful members of the fair sex and there must be something to the argument when such staid members of the Press Association as the handsome president, the venerable secretary, the dashing treasurer, the ever enthusiastic Powell and the modest and retiring Bob Holly say—well, The Record does not propose to get these gentlemen into any more trouble than that in which they have already found themselves. A trip to Crescent City would give some of St. Augustine's caloused and hard hearted bachelors a new and brighter viewpoint and might even induce them to say "yes."—St. Augustine Record.

And when the "Press Gang" meets in Tampa next year Harry Brown had better have his wife along on the trip, because those dark eyed beauties on the Isthmus will not be as retiring and modest as the Crescent City girls.

Some of the papers are having fun with the "original" Wilson men who are springing up on every side now that he is nominated beyondper adventure. The Herald cannot lay claim to any such distinction and would not do so at any stage of the game. We were for the strongest man in the party and if Mr. Wilson is that man all well and good. He already has our support and for that support we ask him nothing. Mr. Wilson does not know that such a paper as The Herald exists and we only know that he exists because the Associated Press says so.

We are in for electing a Democrat and whether his name is Wilson, Smith or Jones is immaterial.

Frank Selfrung, a blacksmith, is said to be rapidly gaining prestige as the champion shoer of fractious horses in Redwood county, Minn. He does not use straps and ropes to hold the ill-tempered animals while he performs his work. Instead he sings weird, strange German songs, which have a hypnotic influence. Unruly horses from all parts of the country are brought to him to be shod.

The Sanford special road district will hold an election July 13 for the purpose of bonding for good road building. Our respect for the progressiveness of Sanford people leads us to prophesy a unanimous carrying of the issue. Miami Metropolis.

The delegates to Baltimore are coming in for their share of criticism for voting as they did. The Herald has no criticism for any of them. The delegates voted for Underwood until they were released and then part voted for Clark and part for Wilson. The Florida delegation is all right.

The papers at Kissimmee are certainly prospering. A few months ago the Valley Gazette built a fine new home and now the Journal follows suit by erecting a new building. Both papers are prospering in the capital of Osceola and are receiving well merited support.

There may not be much direct benefit in the ball games but nothing has advertised Sanford and Orlando in the summer season as the games now being played between the two cities.

Death of Frederick Kageley

Mr. Frederick Kageley, while on his way to make his future home with his daughter, Mrs. L. Grow, was found murdered with throat and right arm broken near Ulmers, Barnwell county, S. C., June 30, 1912. He has been living at Hampton, Va., for some time. When he left there he had a large sum of money on his person. He would have been ninety years of age Oct. 12, 1912. Mr. Kageley was an old soldier who fought for his country in the civil war.

Every effort is being made by L. H. Williams, magistrate of Ulmers, S. C., to find the malefactor, but nothing has been heard so far.

Mr. Kageley leaves a son, Mr. C. F. Kageley, Scranton, Pa.; a daughter, Mrs. Frances Shelley, Freeland, Pa., and youngest daughter, Mrs. L. Grw, Sanford, Fla.

The body was so decomposed that it could not be shipped, so the remains were buried June 31, 1912, at the Great Saltkiahatchie Cemetery in South Carolina.

Temple ought to have the contract for hedging the walks around the building, for nothing makes quite as nice a finish around the lawns as this hedge.

Wild Cat Attacks Geneva Lady

One night last week Mr. C. A. Saunders, who resides at Geneva, heard a commotion in his chicken coop and barnyard and went to investigate. Mrs. Saunders stopped at the doorway and sat down to await the result of Mr. Saunders' investigation. Meantime the intruder had attacked a calf and as the calf raced away out of danger the large wild cat, for so it was proved to be, rushed upon Mrs. Saunders and jumped upon her head. Before Mr. Saunders could come to her rescue the cat had clawed the lady badly. Mr. Saunders at once rushed upon him and had his night gown torn to shreds, but stuck gamely to the beast and finally succeeded in getting the animal upon its back and held it until Mrs. Saunders' father, Mr. Rust could procure an ax and cleave his skull. The cat was finally despatched and upon measurement proved to be three feet long and was well formed.

This is one of the first instances of a wildcat attacking people in such a bold manner and he must have been starved out to show such nerve. It was the intention of the cat to procure some of Mr. Saunders' chickens and afterward he turned his attention to the calf, and no doubt the intervention of Mr. Saunders and his wife saved some valuable barnyard animals, although neither of them would care to attack a wild cat in their night clothes again. The cat in leaping upon the lady had to spring about ten feet and over a small porch, but his catship did not seem to mind such a small thing as that.

Black Hand Sentenced

Viterbo, Italy, July 8. The verdict in the Camorra trial was handed down today. Nine of the accused were declared guilty of the murder of Gennaro Cuscolo and his wife. The remainder of the band was found guilty of belonging to a criminal association.

It had been said yesterday that the conclusion of the notable two years' trial still was several days off, but there came a change in the situation, and as word was flashed that today might witness the jury's verdict, relatives of the accused flocked to town, bringing offerings for the Madonna and Saint Rosa, Viterbo's patron.

Forty-sixth ballot, official: Clark, 84. Winsop, 990. Harmon, 12. Absent, 2.

The end came in sight when, at the beginning of the forty-sixth ballot, Senator Bankhead of Alabama, manager for the Underwood forces, mounted the platform. "Mr. Chairmah," he began, "Mr. Underwood entered this contest hoping he might secure the nomination from this convention. But I desire to say for him that his first and greatest hope was that, through this contest he might eliminate for all time every vestige of sectional prejudice in this convention. Mr. Underwood would willingly forego this nomination if the country has concluded that Mason and Dixon's line has been trampled out and that it is once more a thoroughly united country."

Bankhead Speaks. Senator Bankhead said Mr. Underwood did not enter the race to defeat any man and would not be party to any such plan. His hope was that what he had accomplished for the Democracy would help to secure the election of a Democratic president next November. He was for the party nominee and always had been. Mr. Underwood had taken no personal part in the campaign and would have no regrets.

Senator Bankhead said Mr. Underwood would stay in the house and perform "his great duties without complaint."

"How about vice president?" called a delegate.

"Vice president No," shouted the senator. "Do not take him from his present post if you cannot elevate him to the highest office. Vice president? No. Anybody can sit in the vice president's chair. Even I, humble as I am, could sit there and say: 'The gentleman from New York moves that we now adjourn.' It would be a crime to take him from his present duties, and I hope no one will present his name to this convention."

Senator Bankhead's action in withdrawing Mr. Underwood aroused the ire of the Missouri delegation and toward the end of his remarks he was constantly interrupted. How Governor Wilson Heard News. Seagirt, N. J.—Governor Wilson was seated on the veranda of the "little white house" with Mrs. Wilson and his daughters when he received the news of his nomination from his managers.

"The honor is as great as can come to any man by the nomination of a party," he said, "especially in the circumstances. I hope I appreciate it at its true value; but just at this moment I feel the tremendous responsibility it involves even more than I feel the honor. I hope with all my heart that the party will never have reason to regret it."

Governor Wilson was posing for a photograph with his wife and daughters when he was informed that Underwood had withdrawn.

"Well, I declare," said the governor, "that will give me enough votes, if they are to be mine."

Mrs. Wilson, whose native state is Georgia, said: "The only thing I regret is that Georgia did not vote for Mr. Wilson."

AFTER THE INSURANCE TRUST

Chris. Codrington Gives More Fact And Figures

Mr. Clark's article on the Insurance Trust in Sunday's Tribune throws more light on the subject, and light is exactly what the people want and trusts don't want.

Until Mr. Clark made the statement, some people in Florida did not know that 20 per cent of the total amount they paid in insurance went to the agent. Mr. Clark says it does, and this throws some light on the matter. Twenty per cent is a pretty fair profit on the average business. It is in mine and it is in yours, Mr. Editor. Perhaps Mr. Clarke can tell us what becomes of the other 225 per cent the people of Florida pay for their insurance. I can account for 100 per cent of it, and I can account for the other 125 per cent? The report of the companies made to the state officials show that the people of Florida are paying the insurance companies doing business in Florida all the way from 200 per cent to seven million per cent.

Of course it is not fair to single out a certain company that happened to have only a small loss in any certain year, and to use these figures as a sample from which to take a moral. Let us, then, take all the companies doing business in Florida, and see what their report for the last year 1911 shows according to their own figures:

Seventy-two fire insurance companies did business in Florida in 1911, taking out of the state in premiums, $2,814,521.10. These companies reported losses aggregating $1,289,242.79. These are their own figures. In other words, the people of Florida paid $2.81 for $1.28 returned to the state—and some of them had to go to law to get this. The people of Florida paid 245 per cent for their insurance in 1911.

Take it in your own city, where, according to newspaper reports, Tampa paid the foreign insurance owners $475,000 and received only $34,000 in policies paid in return. Mr. Clark would doubtless assure us that in this Tampa was fortunate, but the other fellow was more fortunate in that he may rest in the assurance and insurance that it is more blessed to receive than to give.

Tampa would have been more fortunate if she had paid only $200,000 for that insurance and then the companies would have been well paid for their risks.

My contention is that the people of Florida are paying much too high for their insurance—too dear for their whistles—and the fellows in New York and Philadelphia and Europe are blowing the whistles. My fight is not against local agents, most of whom are good citizens and would willingly join in any legislation that would take the insurance business out of the hands of the trust.

Mr. Clark states that there is no Insurance Trust in Florida—nothing more than a rating board. Mr. Clark might have added that the South Eastern Tariff Association has issued a book on which rates are based in various towns, according to the class of the town. This book gives basic rates at which insurance may be written in the several class towns. Any agent of intelligence can take this book and fix the rate at which the companies agree to take the insurance, adding so much per hundred dollars for each additional hazard. But the trust is not satisfied with this. Rates are now made according to this book. Any 16-year-old boy in the office of the trust in Atlanta can tear to pieces a rate based on the published tariffs and add as many more extras as he sees fit, setting at naught the rate made by a reputable local agent who made have spent his life in the insurance business. It is only of recent years that there has been so much complaint among the local agents themselves on this score.

If there is no Insurance Trust in Florida, as Mr. Clark asserts, will he please inform us what a rate-making board is, especially when that board has the privilege of expulsion from its membership of any of its members who does not obey the injunctions and follow the rates promulgated by the rate-making body?

What is a trust anyhow? There are companies in business in Florida which have been represented by agents here for a quarter of a century or more. I am reliably informed that some of these companies have offered to take risks at published rates, as approved by their agents, but were prevented from doing so by the fear of the wrath of the South Eastern Tariff Association.

The people of Florida are getting the hot end of the stick, and when they wake up to the matter they will see that the Insurance Trust is outlawed in Florida, as it has been in Texas, Alabama, Kentucky, Missouri, Michigan and many other states.

In 1911, the "average rate" of insurance in Kentucky was $1.38 per hundred. Any of the people of Tampa who are paying more than $1.38 per hundred for their insurance, are paying more than their brothers in Kentucky are paying.

In 1911 the average rate in Michigan was $1.19 per hundred. Are you, Mr. Tampian, being treated to any such rate as this, with your excellent fire department, known all over the country, with your brick and stone buildings, and fire only one or two months in the year in your premises for heating purposes? If you are not, get after your Senator and members of the house. They are to blame.

CHRIS. O. CODRINGTON.

Seen From Northern Eyes Writing to the Cosmopolitan, E. Roy Millicent, who spent two years in Florida, says:

"I have seen ten acres of Florida land produce at the rate of more than $800 per acre. The man who owned this garden patch of ground came to Florida to die, after he had sickened his body bending over a desk for fifteen years in a northern city; and, mark you, this man knew nothing of beyond his wildest dreams of youth. He can go out any day in the year and pick growing things for his table. His wife and babies are simply bubbling over with generous health, and this man is every bit as much of a prince as though ages of royal blood flowed through his veins.

"When the whole north is settling down to six months of ice and idleness, large coal and plumber's bills, and the northern farmer is doing nothing but chop and mend the fences, the Florida farmer is tilling his farm, planting his third crop, which he will send to market in mid-winter and sell for prices that would set a northern farmer's ears tingling with envy. This is the beauty of Florida. You buy the land and pay the money for it according to the number of years you contract for, the climate and the sunshine, the ability to walk around every day in your shirt sleeves these things belong to the land and come to you free from care."

Pecan Culture Culture

Few people have a realization of the enormous impetus that has been given to pecan culture in the past ten years. The South, that portion of it which has been proven adapted to its culture, has awakened to the great profit that there is in its culture, and thousands of plantations have a ten-acre plot or even more than that planted in trees of the best variety and kind. This section of Florida especially has attained notoriety, because of the possibilities of its land for the pecan growers and the readiness which is being manifested by the shrewd land owners to take advantage of the opportunity.

Statisticians anticipate a great enlargement of the use of this favorite nut and adaptation of the product to the manufacture of many other food materials after it has become so extensive in its production that they can be readily obtained. The pecan man need have no fear, they say, that this nut will not pay him. Some men of pecan knowledge are paying a hundred dollars per acre for land and planting trees. They estimate that when land goes to five hundred dollars an acre it should be used for other purposes.

Government figures gathered last year show that the total yield in 1910 was 9,890,769 pounds, with a value of more than a million dollars. The total number of trees in 1910 was 1,619,521, which are bearing. The trees of bearing age in 1900 was only 643,392, and the quantity produced at that time only a third of what it was last year. These figures show approximately what the people think of pecan culture and its possibilities.

Through Orlando's Glasses
 Basgally speaking, it was one glorious Fourth here yesterday. Orlando pulled out of a sure enough bad place in the eighth inning of the second game and took it from the celery crowd three to one.

At the beginning of the eighth inning the score stood one to nothing, and the from up yonder were saying things audible afar about how it feels to beat a crowd of tourists on the nation's birthday.

But, as Speaker Champ Clark would say, you can't always sometimes tell. There are chances and the prices of celery and luck and political fortunes fluctuate.

The morning's game was a tight one, score one to one at the ending of the seventh inning, when the weather man emptied the bases.

What was perhaps a record crowd for Orlando, including visitors from many sections of the county, were present, when the afternoon game was called. Wilson went into pite! for Orlando, with Beardall holding the mit. Sanford's crack, Wallace, was put in with Lowe.

A new man appeared on the first sack for Orlando. His name was Ed. White of Jacksonville, who last year played with Miami and made a reputation.

The fun began in the second inning when Sanford, following a custom she has, made a run. Wofford got a hit, and beat it to first base, Lowe and Bundy and the nerve systems of the fans began to tighten. They were stung when Roberts drove the pill into left field, and Wofford tallied.

Clean, fast ball prevailed then until the eighth, the interim being as barren of hopes as a palmetto scrub, except in the seventh, when Orlando looked like she had a chance. Then, somebody pulled down the star in Sanford.

Lee started the fun by beating out a slow grounder to first. Then came C. Pounds with flood in both pupils, which were gauged for an in-shot. It came. Pounds landed on it and galloped around two bases, and Lee came home. The band struck up Dixie, but you couldn't notice it.

Boyer followed Pounds and went him one better. He picked what was intended to be a lemon and knocked a three bagger. C. Pounds came home. Then the strain got too great for the visitors and a wild throw scored Boyer.

It was all over but the shouting, which lasted until the last fan had said good-bye to gate-keeper Allen.

Orlando made one error and Sanford four. Orlando took six hits and gave Sanford three.

Features of the game—well, the main feature was the score, incident to which Frank and Clyde Pounds each knocked two baggers and Boyer a three sacker—and all off the great Wallace.

Fans from Jacksonville, Tampa, Kissimmee and many neighboring cities attended both games.—Reporter-Star.

Orlando Wins Game

Orlando, July 6. (Special) Wilson was too much for Sanford this afternoon and with Boyers' help he beat them 4 to 2.

The locals took an early lead and were never headed. Wilson allowed the visitors only two hits and fanned four. Boyer took his customary four trips to the plate and laced out much needed bingles on each trip.

The score by innings:
 Sanford 000 002 000—2
 Orlando 002 002 000—4
 Batteries: Lee and Lowe; Wilson and White.

Summary: Struck out by Wilson 4; by sby Lee 7. Hits off Wilson 2; off Lee 8. Two base hits, Farmer. Sacrifice hits, Lee, F. Pounds, White and Wilson. Left on bases, Orlando 5, Sanford 2. Stolen bases, C. Pounds, Boyers and Bowen. Time: 1:40. Umpires, Tilden and Morrow.

BRICK ROADS FOR OSCEOLA

E. Donegan, R. G. Johnson and E. L. Lesley have been named by the county commissioners as a committee to investigate the advisability of bonding Osceola county for $50,000 in order to provide good roads. A. E. Donegan brought the matter before the board of county commissioners and gave his views on the subject and urged consideration at the hands of the commissioners. It is the intention, if concurred in by the members, to use vitrified brick in the construction of the proposed highways. The committee will make a thorough study of the cost and other features pertaining to the system of roads needed in the county. They will then report to the board and it is presumed that that body will be governed by the committee's recommendations. There are really not very many bad spots in the roads in the northern part of the county, but by inaugurating the brick work, good roads would be here for years to come and would require but little attention, while the clay, marl and sand roads existing today constantly demand repairs.

A Republican Compromise

Washington, July 6. A nation-wide movement to withdraw as the Republican candidate is being backed by a large number of Republican office holders who feel that they face defeat in November unless the breach in the party can be healed.

These men include members of Congress, state legislatures, who will elect senate, state and county office holders and others. It is said these office holders may also ask Colonel Roosevelt to withdraw as a progressive candidate for President and allow a compromise in a man acceptable to both sides. It is also said that a decision shall be reached before August 15th, when the Roosevelt factions plans to hold a convention in Chicago. A circulation of the petitions, it was declared today, would start within a week. It was said the movement would begin spontaneously in every state. The organizers now are circulating blank forms of petitions and appointing supervisors who in turn will engage canvassers to solicit the signatures of Republican voters. The authors of the plan expect to offer to practically every Republican voter in the United States a chance to express his opinion of Mr. Taft's candidacy either by signing the petition or rejecting it.

For Better Rural Schools

Chicago, Ill., July 6.—A report presented by Frank W. Miller before the fifth annual convention of the National Education Association here, said of the 50,000,000 school pupils of the United States, 12,000,000 were being educated in rural schools and that only one-third of the country boys and girls were making a satisfactory showing. Thomas H. Harris, state superintendent of schools of Louisiana, declared the condition of the rural schools was becoming so deplorable it was time for the federal government to provide both money and methods to remedy the situation.

"The fear of federal interference with the control of schg is should be set aside in the interest of the rising generation," said Mr. Harris. "National supervision of country schools is an absolute necessity. Our schools need a better education." It will be decided what steps are to be taken later. It is likely that the rural school problem will of the most important to come before the convention. A special committee appointed to investigate the subject will urge appointment of field workers to travel over the country in the interest of country schools.

Court Week at Orlando

Two courts convened in the city this morning. The Circuit Court continued over from last week, and will probably continue throughout this week.

Owing to the fact that the Circuit Court occupied the court room, the Criminal Court, with Judge Warlow on the bench, assembled in the city hall.

In the Circuit Court the only case considered during the morning was that of R. T. Wynne, vs the Atlantic Coast Line Railway. The case was postponed owing to the absence of an important witness.

In the criminal court a jury composed of R. W. Herndon, C. G. Butt, H. G. Bryarly, W. E. Allen, R. L. Gresham and S. Canada, acquitted C. H. Harris, charged with "breaking and entering."

In the case of Will Williams, charged with keeping a gambling house, the State accepted a plea of gambling, and Will was fined $40 and cost or sixty days.

Evans Holman plead guilty to gambling and was fined $20 or thirty days. This afternoon the court is trying Evans Holman on a liquor selling charge. The case is a local one.—Reporter-Star.

A Note From The Summer School At Knoxville

"We are studying astronomy and forestry just for our own pleasure.

We thoroughly enjoy looking at the moon and plants through the big telescope. Jupiter, the star in the south, looks like a big full moon and we can see his seven satellites following him. The moon is perfectly huge. We can see the mountains, the craters of her volcanoes and plateaus.

But what you would enjoy most is the delightful climate. It feels like fall, breezy and cool—no mosquitoes—nothing to botherone—not even men. The country is perfectly beautiful.

We are studying forestry and one teacher tells us there are 135 different varieties of trees here. Our class is to go on an expedition tomorrow. There will be a sprinkling of timid males in the party. They will need a policeman to guard them when they go out alone. I really feel sorry for them."

SANFORD GIRL.

ETHEL ITEMS

The A. C. L. train killed two of A. T. Lippford's Berkshire hogs Monday. It would be a fine thing for the people of Ethel if the A. C. L. would fence the railroad, as a good many head of stock have been killed through this section lately.

Mrs. Cyril Boyd is visiting relatives in Winter Park at the present.

Miss Sallie Lippford has returned home from Paola, where she has been for the past two weeks.

Mr. Robert Kennedy and H. W. Garins were guests of A. T. Lippford Sunday.

The farmers of Ethel are busy at present gathering fodder.

The people of Ethel decided to have a same Fourth this year and the sports that were indulged in were as follows: Bear hunting, picnicking, boating, bathing and dancing, and despite there being no fire works of very one seemed to have a glorious Fourth.

Fogg Solves The Question

Editor Sanford Herald:

I have read with much interest the letter referring to "Transportation the Problem" from the Arcadia Champion, in which he states that there is only one great question confronting the people of Florida today, and when that question is rightly settled all others will practically adjust themselves. I will add in South Florida. He asks what are we going to do about it?

That is an easy one. It is simply to build a traction railroad from the city of Sanford south and, if necessary, to Arcadia, which would cut the freight rates half in two between these points. And elect Theodore Roosevelt President.

Notice of Meeting
 The Woodman's Circle will meet on Wednesday at 3 p. m. at the Eagles' Hall.

Twenty-one lives were lost, according to the official list, in the wreck on the Ligonier branch of the Pennsylvania railroad Saturday night, when a passenger coach was crushed between two locomotives. Many of the injured were taken to Pittsburg.

Worship in Song

It is a pleasure to note every improvement in our thriving little city of Sanford, and among these is the disposition to make our Sunday services more attractively worshipful in the churches. The anthems of praise and inspiring devotion that went up from the Congregational house of worship, a Sabbath evening since, are along this line. Everything given was beautifully rendered much being truly artistic, and everything being devotionally appropriate to the time and place. The address, too, was in sweet accord with the central idea of worship in song. The Congregational choir was showered with well merited praise for the excellent work of the evening, and the pastor highly complimented on the thoughts presented, all of which would have been helpful in large degree to the entire community could every one have heard same. The church was filled, the large audience by their presence and subsequent comments giving substantial evidence that these services are both enjoyed and spiritually helpful. Let such good work go on, let the pastors encourage their choirs, let the singers make conscientious and persistent effort, let us have more of that music which contributes a foremost delight and occupation of heaven mingled with our pulpit addresses, and soon we shall see not empty sittings, but crowded pews in our sanctuaries.

After The Blind Tigers

Blind tigers are not de la mode this year in Sanford and Mayor Spencer has been smiting them hip and thigh every time they face the railing. All that he requires is sufficient evidence and he can be depended upon to do the rest.

Two unbleached dispensers of the mountain dew faced His Honor yesterday morning and they were caught with the goods on and handed a neat package of $200 fine. Mayor Spencer states that he is getting tired of taking the money and should these old offenders face him again he will give them about six months road work and keep them out of mischief at least that long. He is determined to break up this illegal selling and expects to adopt drastic measures to round them up and send them over the road.

R. Harding Davis Married

Greenwich, Conn., July 5. Richard Harding Davis, the author, and Miss Elizabeth Genevieve McAvoy, known on the stage as Bessie McCoy, were married here today by a justice of the peace. The matron of honor was Mrs. Russell Colt, formerly Miss Ethel Barrymore. Mr. Davis was attended by Gouverneur Morris, the story writer.

Portland Filled With Elks

Portland, Ore., July 6. Elks' reunion flow did not begin until this morning. The convention of the grand lodge opens in the Armory tonight with prayer, song and speeches. The entire city is profusely decorated. The downtown streets, depots and hotels are thronged with enthusiastic crowds and the familiar "hello Bill" is to be heard on every hand.

Exit Near Beer

Atlanta, Ga., July 6. Liquor legislation was again taken up in the Georgia house of representatives today, in the shape of the Tippins bill, which prohibits the sale of any drink containing more than one-half of one per cent of alcohol. The bill is designed to wipe out the sale of "near beer."

NEWS OF THE WORLD

Items of Interest Gleaned From Various Sources

HAPPENINGS DURING THE WEEK

Here the Readers Will Find a Brief Historical Spring Flowing For Hurred Readers

J. Wylie Smith, the Atlantan charge with embezzling $200,000 and wrecking the Commercial Loan and Trust Company of that city, will be returned to the United States, after a year's imprisonment in Mexico, according to a telegram received today by Gov. Brown from United States ambassador Wilson at Mexico City. Smith was apprehended in Mexico shortly after his disappearance from Atlanta, but defied extradition. Ambassador Wilson's telegram states that Smith will be placed on United States land at Juarez. Detectives from Atlanta have been sent to that city to arrest Smith.

The last of the expert testimony by alienists was given in the Harry K. Thaw hearing today, when Dr. William A. White, head of the federal asylum for the insane at Washington, and Dr. Charles K. Mills, a lecturer at Columbia University on mental diseases, gave in their positive opinions that the slayer of Stanford White now is sane. The head of the federal asylum declared that at his institution, "constitutional inferiority" was considered cause for the detention of enlisted men. He asserted that Thaw's characterization of Stanford White as a "gorilla" and a blackguard was "emotionally justified."

Gov. Wilson talked for half an hour to 500 men at Atlantic City on the necessity of working today for results tomorrow and on the evil of individual and national extravagance. The governor's audience was composed of delegates to the national convention of the Building and Loan League, and the address he delivered was one of welcome on behalf of New Jersey.

Immediate downward revision of the tariff is likely to be one of the demands made by the new party headed by Col. Roosevelt. While the former president was non-committal today regarding the course he would urge the Chicago convention of the new party to adopt, it developed from the talk of a number of leaders today who have conferred with Col. Roosevelt in the last few days that the party doubtless will declare for immediate revision. According to the present program, the demand for legislation would be restricted to the schedules which, in the opinion of the party heads, are obviously higher. The woolen and cotton schedules were pointed out as perhaps the best examples.

The eleventh prohibition convention got under way at Atlantic City Thursday but at three sessions progressed little beyond the preliminaries of organization. There were developments enough, however, to indicate a strong undercurrent of "insurgency" in the party and to forecast a fight of some of the delegates for a more progressive and aggressive attitude in the coming campaign.

A few tantalizing thunder showers that pattered vainly on burned fields and streaming pavements were the only promises of relief in sight tonight from the wave of humid heat that has enveloped the country. From east and west tonight the weather bureau received reports of generally increased temperatures. Behind the stolid figures came a story of sweltering cities and seared farms. Increased death rates in the over crowded cities and general suffering as a result of the heavy depressive heat was generally recorded. New York and Chicago all caught the rising temperature. Throughout the New England and middle Atlantic states the mercury rose.

A presidential nomination boom, based on a new issue that would substitute practical politics for "church politics" in the prohibition movement, was started at Atlantic City on the eve of the national prohibition convention. Finley C. Hendrickson of Cumberland, Md., was launched as a candidate for the prohibition presidential nomination by the Maryland delegation, which will appeal for his election as the party standard bearer on a broad platform, especially urging that there be more earnest appeal for votes outside the churches and less of the energy of the party be expended in "howling for the church vote."

SANFORD IS THE BEST

Has Better Stuff And More Advantages Than California

Among the visitors to the city this week are Mrs. Sossman and son of Chillicothe, Ohio, who have purchased celery land here and are delighted with the many advantages of this city and the celery delta. Mrs. Sossman is the sister of Mrs. Davis Forster and was attracted to Sanford by the glowing accounts of this section as told by Dr. Davis Forster who, though called away to Hawks' Park, where he has a large sanatorium, still has a warm spot in his heart for Sanford. Speaking about different celery sections Mrs. Sossman remarked that Sanford was far superior to the California growing centers and that as soon as the growers could get together on the growing and marketing of their crops there would be nothing to prevent Sanford from becoming the greatest winter celery section in the world. Mrs. Sossman speaks from experience, having been in California. The growers in the west had to go through the same crucial period that our growers are now experiencing, and they were down and out before they perfected the marketing system for the benefit of the growers. Mrs. Sossman is of the opinion that within another year with all the many improvements of brick roads and a good hotel and a general getting together of the farmers, Sanford will be unable to hold the many people who are contemplating coming here to locate.

Paid Sanford High Tribute

At a booster's meeting of the DeLand Board of Trade the other night Sanford and the Herald came in for their share of bouquets and compliments. We copy from the DeLand Register the following: The speech of Hon. Cary D. Landis was one of the features of the evening's oratorical display. Mr. Landis compared Sanford and DeLand and paid Editor Holly's town a high tribute.

"Sanford has one of the finest bands of hustlers in Florida," said the speaker, "and she is forging to the front daily. Ten years ago weeds blocked traffic on the main street and I am not joking when I make this statement because I was there at the time and saw them."

"What of the Sanford of today?" "Why, my friends, that town is a gem. She has paved streets, an excellent water system, sewerage and schools that are a credit to the south."

"We can have the same if we will work, and I know we are going to get busy now. And mark that word 'now.' Let's put our shoulders to the wheel this minute and start the ball rolling. If we do we'll win our fight."

Prominent Lake Co. Official

Hon. W. G. Long of Tavares was in the city yesterday and when he returned home he had a new Overland car with him. Mr. Long has been tax assessor of Tavares ever since St. Clair Abrams discovered Tavares, and the court house would fall down if Long was not there to hold it up. In his absence R. E. Nutt, the collector and clerk Duncan play the Atlas act. They have all been officials for the past 75 years more or less.

Four Young Men Who Dared

Mr. Waldron will give a series of three sermons at the Congregational church on the three remaining Sunday nights of July. Every one is invited to attend. Services begin at 7:30 sharp. Following are the subjects and dates:

"Four Young Men Who Dared." July 14. "The Four Bean Eaters." July 21. "But If Not..." July 28. "A Night Of Peril."

Palatka Party Here

A party of prominent Palatka citizens were here yesterday coming down to see the ball game between Sanford and Orlando. Among them were Lew Kalbfeld, Tom Cannon, Otto Corcoran, Bob James, Jeff Doyle, M. Martin, Leo Jacobson, J. A. Browning, Fred Corcoran, Chas. Burt and Fred Shelley. The Elks entertained them royally while here and they enjoyed the trip to the fullest.

It has just developed that forty persons, all members of the Canady family near Garfield, Ga., were poisoned at a family reunion at the home of Mac Canady on the Fourth of July. Indications are that poison was put in several articles used in the dinner, since every member of the family at the table was a victim and all of them did not eat of any one particular kind of food.

RAILROAD FIGURES

Estimates of What Transportation Cost Growers

ON SANFORD'S WONDERFUL SOIL

Railroads Get Over Eight Hundred Dollars From Acre of Land For Freight

Many people have been inclined to doubt the actual figures that gave the yield from one acre of land in the great Sanford section. Now comes the statement from the transportation companies that give the startling figures on the amount given up for express charges and one can easily conjecture what the grower actually could make from an acre of Sanford soil. The following article is from the Manufacturer's Record, whose editor recently made a trip through Florida and verified the statements for himself. The figures are correct and make interesting reading:

The interest of the railroads of the south in the development of trucking and fruit growing has probably never been fully realized by people outside of railroad circles. It is known to the general public that the trucking and fruit growing interests of the south, shipping over $100,000,000 worth of stuff a year to northern and western markets, furnish a vast amount of freight in volume and in the rate paid is not generally fully understood. The statement was recently made to the writer while in Florida that it sometimes happens that in the celery growing district of that state the product of one acre would pay to the railroads as much as $1,500 freight. The statement was credited to Mr. M. Riddle, general superintendent of the Atlantic Coast Line Railway, and in reply to a telegram as to its correctness Mr. Riddle wrote as follows:

"The statement that you refer to as having been made by me was about as follows:

That there was land around Sanford that had produced in a year freights which, if shipped to New England points, would give to the transportation and refrigerating companies $1,500 per acre.

This was based on an acre of land producing 600 crates of lettuce, followed by 950 crates of celery, and these followed by 400 crates of beans. The freight rate from Sanford to Boston is 56 cents, refrigerating charge 19 1/2 cents, or a total of 75 1/2 cents per crate, which would produce $1,472.25. This, of course, is the maximum yield under the most favorable conditions.

A member of the Vegetable Growers' Association of Sanford, who has had several years of practical experience, has informed me that for a general average per acre on a 10-acre tract the production is about as follows:

500 crates lettuce
450 crates celery
200 crates beans.

A total of 1,150 crates, which, at the rate above quoted, would produce $868.25 to the transportation companies.

A grower at Sanford whom I know very well, has stated that he has done as well as my first estimate, with lettuce and celery on the same ground, but he contented himself with two crops, and has never planted the third. There have been individual crops on certain acres very much higher than my maximum figures."

The confirmation of the statement that the railroads for freight and icing sometimes receive as much as $1,500 per acre out of the celery growing district is an amazing proof of the marvelous productivity of the soil. While this amount has been paid, it is, as Mr. Riddle says, above the average as quoted by him for three crops on the same land, and taking Boston as the central point of shipment, the transportation companies would receive for freight and refrigeration considerably over $800 per acre of land under cultivation in the celery district.

While the yield of freight from celery land is doubtless higher than from any other trucking sections, yet the amount of freight paid by truck growers generally per acre under cultivation is so great that it is not to be wondered at that every railroad in the trucking regions of the south from Virginia to Texas is putting forth all possible effort to encourage the development of this great freight creating business. Any agricultural region whose crops can pay the railroads,

MARSHAL TILLIS LINES 'EM UP

Will Make The Vehicles Conform to Our City Ordinances

Under strict orders from Mayor Spencer, Marshal Tillis and the police force have begun a campaign of education on the travelling public, and every driver of automobiles and vehicles of all kinds are requested to keep to the provisions of the ordinance recently made. Youngsters under the age of fifteen are not allowed to drive a car in the city limits and those who have been doing so were warned against repeating the offense. If the general public is not familiar with these ordinances they are given below and from now on they will be enforced to the letter:

Abernathy-Watson

Yesterday morning at ten o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents on Oak avenue Miss Carrie Abernathy, and George Watson were united in marriage. The wedding was a quiet home affair, only the immediate family being present.

The ceremony occurred at ten o'clock and was performed by Rev. C. H. Summers of the Methodist church. The happy couple left immediately after for the East Coast, where they will spend their honeymoon. Upon their return they will make Sanford their future home. The bride is one of the popular girls of the younger set and has resided in Sanford for the past three years, making many friends by her unfailing good humor and the ability to make friends and hold them.

The groom has been a resident of Sanford for several years and is a trusted employee of the Yowell & Co. store. He is popular with the trade and the younger society set in Sanford and other cities where he has resided.

The young couple start in life under the most auspicious circumstances, having the respect and esteem of every one and the best wishes go with them in their journey through life, in which the Herald joins.

An accounting filed in the supreme court by Andrew Freedman, custodian of the property of Mrs. Ida F. Flagler, wife of Henry M. Flagler, the Standard Oil millionaire, shows that Mrs. Flagler's estate is valued at $3,444,000. Mrs. Flagler, who is confined in a sanitarium, was adjudged as incompetent by the supreme court in 1904. Because of the increased cost of living Judge Cuschoff in approving the accounting, allowed $10,000 a year to be added to the $75,000, the sum already provided yearly for the maintenance of Mrs. Flagler at the sanitarium.

Surgeon General Blue, of the Public Health Service, today approved a regulation to prohibit passengers from Havana entering any port in Florida unless they have been detained seven days at Briscena quarantine station. This was done because of the short distance between Florida points and Havana. Passengers from Havana to New York or New Orleans are from three to five days en route.

Leon Votes Dry

Tallahassee, July 11. (Special)—In the wet and dry election in Leon county yesterday the vote was: Dry, 347; wet, 214. Later returns will give dries 175 majority. The election went off very quietly.

even in extreme cases, as high as $800 to $1500 per acre under cultivation is necessarily a region of marvelous potentialities, for there are few farming countries in the world which can produce such crops, so many in number and so great in quantity, in any one season as to yield such a vast sum to the railroads. When corn and wheat yield to railroads only a few dollars of freight per acre, a land where early vegetables and fruit furnish many thousand carloads of freight at the very high rate paid by the truckers and fruit growers is certainly worthy of the very best railroad facilities that can be provided. Every investor in southern railroads, every business man interested in the advancement of the railroads of this section, can understand from Mr. Riddle's letter what the trucking development of the south means to every line of industry, and thus understand why the Manufacturer's Record so persistently emphasizes to the world the possibilities of fruit and vegetable growing throughout the south.

CULLED FROM THE STATE PRESS

An Epitome of the Week's Most Important Happenings in the State's Domain.

H. R. Stokes of Kanapaha is a genuine success, when it comes to producing watermelons. Mr. Stoke's acreage includes a large tract of Col. Evans Halle's land near Kanapaha, and the soil is so fertile and Mr. Stokes' knowledge of the culture so thorough that it has been a problem to handle the melons this season. One melon was sent Col. Halle a few days ago that tipped the scales at 74 pounds, and another was presented the writer which caused the 69 pound weight to aviate. It was possessed of a large heart—like the donor—and was exceptionally fine flavor.—Gainesville Sun.

A serious fire took place in Key West a few nights ago which resulted in the total loss of the building and in the death of one woman and serious injury to several other persons. During the fire the electric lights were cut off, the telephone wires fell and over 200 phones were out of commission as a result the next day. The bottom floor of the building in which the fire started was used as a dry goods and hardware store, respectively, while the upper portion was used as a lodging house. Editor Matthews of the Key West Journal was injured in the fire while trying to save the life of a lady.

Contractor G. A. Miller of Tampa has been awarded the contract for building a $55,000 brick structure at Orlando. The building will be used for business purposes.

It is understood that a free delivery mail system will soon be established in Kissimmee.

Lake Had Narrow Escape

Hon. Forrest Lake had a narrow escape the other day from a horrible disfigurement and what might have been the loss of one eye. While at the ice plant he stopped to fix a part of the machinery and upon taking a plug from the ammonia tank the vapor came upon him and only the quick action of the involuntary muscles of the eye saved his sight. The ammonia burned one of his feet and part of his face and he looks like he had fought a bull dog. He had a very narrow escape from what might have been a very serious accident and his many friends are congratulating him today on the fact that he did not suffer the loss of his eye sight. He will be forced to wear smoked glasses for some time and may have to receive treatment from a specialist.

In Favor of Brick Roads

The Herald office has been thronged this week with people from various points in the proposed Sanford road district and they seem to be united upon the bonding plan for brick roads. As yet we have not heard a dissenting voice against the bond issue and the project is bound to carry next Saturday. The folks in the precinct outside of Sanford are most heartily in favor of better roads and this spirit upon their part means that it will pass. Sanford people have always been in favor of brick roads, especially since we have experienced the good that has accrued from our own brick streets that were built by bonding.

Illinois Party Camping Out

M. S. Nelson and daughter and a party of Illinois people arrived in the city Tuesday and are enjoying themselves and looking after their lands in Eureka Hammock. They have pitched their tents and are enjoying the cool breezes off of Lake Monroe, while their unfortunate friends in Illinois are being baked in the hot air that is prostrating people in the streets. Mr. Nelson says that Sanford is good enough for him summer and winter and Illinois will know him no more.

Presbyterian Church

At the Presbyterian church next Sabbath will be the Communion Service Rev. McKinnon will preach at both morning and evening services. All are cordially invited to attend.
