Karl Quits Court...

TALLAHASSEE (UPI)— Supreme Court Justice Fred Karl, reportedly heavy in debt, has resigned the position he won in 1976.

Karl told his fellow justices he was unable to pay off his legal expenses. He shot off a letter to Gov. Rosalie Asewer and has been in hiding since Wednesday.

Karl's salary was raised from $60,000 to $62,000 on last Dec. 1. As a private attorney, he was making $75,000.

Karl has six children and has had serious health problems in the past two years, including two major operations.

Karl's successor, to be named by Gov. Asewer, must come from among the judges and lawyers in the 10-county 4th Appellate District, which includes Seminole County.

Who will replace Justice Fred Karl who announced his resignation from the Florida Supreme Court late Wednesday evening? Could his successor be a woman?

"I wouldn't be surprised at all if Gov. Rosalie Asewer appointed a woman, such as Circuit Judge Dorothy M. Dore of Dade County," said former State Sen. Mack N. Cleveland Jr., a close friend of Karl's, today.

"I've heard some good reports about her. I understand she had been a county judge in South Florida previously and her family, Bill Wadsworth, is a circuit court in Volusia County. Bill and I served in the State House of Representatives together. Karl, Wadsworth and I were in law school together at Stetson," Cleveland said.

Cleveland also pointed out that the government recently appointed a woman, Jeanne Ross, to succeed resigned Richard Gerstein in the powerful position of state attorney in Dade County.

But, Cleveland said, Judge Black would have to be nominated by the Supreme Court Judicial Nominating Commission first. He said that committee is composed of three persons appointed by the governors of the Florida Bar Association, three electors appointed by the governor and three electors, who are not members of the bar, selected and appointed by majority vote of the other six. No justice or judge may be a member of the bar.

The committee submits these names for the governor's consideration. The commission is headed by Julian Clarkson of Fort Myers, whom Cleveland described as an "outstanding lawyer, all around good guy and a friend" who has had very active in the Florida Bar and the Board of Governors.

Former County Judge Dominick Salvi said Judge Susan Black "has good credentials and is well respected. My contact with her has been in the Association of Circuit Judges. I would have no qualms about her serving on the Supreme Court," said Salvi.

Salvi was one of those under consideration recently for federal judgeship. When asked today if he might have ambitions for a spot on the high court, he said, "I have no real desire to go to Tallahassee."

Defaced Grave: City Or County?

By MAX KRILETTIAN
Herald Staff Writer

Roger Neiswender, county administrator, and Warren Knowles, Sanford city manager, faced today to determine once and for all where the vandalized grave of Governor Dixie Lee — in the city or out of the city.

To that end, both men went to the graveyard together in hopes of resolving the issue.

The grave was vandalized Jan. 31 and was not repaired until yesterday by the county. Neiswender's suggestion took Neiswender's suggestion to responsibility for repairing the grave, which cost $200. However, Neiswender said if the grave lies within the city, the county commission may seek reimbursement from the city.

The result is both men disagree as they did before yesterday.

Knowles claims the grave is not within the bounds of the city cemetery, though he concedes it "may" be within the city limits.

Neiswender maintains the grave is not only within the city, but within the city cemetery as well.

Asked his position on the controversy, Knowles told a reporter.

"Whether it is in the city is not an issue. It is on private land and that is the city's responsibility to care for the roads and things just like on a city street."

However, Knowles later

"Whether it is in the city is not an issue. It is on private land and that is the city's responsibility to care for the roads and things just like on a city street."

Knowles said the city has no program for aiding indigents in grave repair.

"It's like buying a house," said Knowles. "When you buy a house, you own it. Our only responsibility is to maintain the property and make sure the property is in good condition."

According to Neiswender's position, the grave is a few feet from the city limits.

Originally, Knowles had placed the site of the grave on private property just south of the city limits.

Knowles, who said he "would rather not say anything," reiterated that the boundary dispute is not pertinent. He noted that the matter is a problem for the family to resolve.

The county conducted an interview with Mrs. Katherine Bellamy, daughter of Diane, Wednesday and determined that she, as next-of-kin, was eligible for indigent funds to repair the grave.

A Salute For 'Sally'

Pertinence and relevance. These are two words that have become increasingly used. And they are two words that the staff of Salmagundi, Seminole High School's yearbook, take seriously.

Yearbook sponsor John Cullum has been instrumental in expanding the yearbook coverage to other matters besides the time-worn student activities, campus goings-on, and all the other inside stories that had for so many years been the hallmark of such publications.

Under Mr. Cullum, the yearbook staff has extended itself into as he explains it, "the outside world." Says Mr. Cullum: "We try to cover the outside world as it affects the students, not just what is going on inside the school."

For example, news coverage in this year's "Sally" will include the Ronnie Zamora murder-conviction; television violence; how the media affects the minds of students; and coverage on why it is so easy to skip school.

Again: Pertinence. Relevance.

Because such coverage has been thorough and successful, "Sally" as the book is lovingly called, has been recognized nationwide.

The year book, in the past several months, has captured three awards. First, back in September, the yearbook was the All-American award from the National Scholastic Press Association—an honor bestowed upon only four percent of the 3,000 or more yearbooks considered for awards.

That was good enough. But now, we this week, the yearbook has outdone itself—gaining a pair of new awards.

The first is the N.S. Patterson award, presented by the National School Yearbook Newspaper Association Critical Service Corporation, and the Medalist award of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, affiliated with Columbia University in New York City.

"The Patterson award," explains Mr. Cullum, "is presented to only four yearbooks in the country, which have to go through long series of eliminations." The award cites proficiency in the areas of "coverage, copy, photography, design, cohesion, and creativity."

The Columbia award, according to Mr. Cullum, represents specific standards which we must meet."

Obviously, "Sally" has met them and then some. The community should be proud of the effort.

John Cullum calls the series of awards "The Yearbook Triple Crown."

We call it great.

Mr. Cullum and his student staff deserve the highest praise and commendation.

A Lame Excuse

The argument given by Defense Secretary Harold Brown for dropping the Navy's surface effect ship from President Carter's budget proposal was hardly persuasive.

He said if the concept of a ship that could travel nearly 100 miles an hour on a cushion of air proved to be feasible, the Navy would have to figure out how it would be used and what weapons it would carry.

That's like grounding the Wright brothers at Kittyhawk because no one had figured out how to use flying machines.

It's not an argument; it's an excuse, and a lame one.

Congress shouldn't buy it. President Carter, a Navy man himself, has cut deeply into the Navy's shipbuilding budget. There may be sensible reasons for some of the cuts, considering the trouble the Navy has been having with its most important private shipyards.

But there have been no such troubles with Nimitz Industries of Costa Mesa, Calif., which is developing the revolutionary new surface effect ship (SES).

Congress must restore the $2 million needed to keep the SES project flying full speed.

Chamber Is Super!

The Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce is actively engaged in its annual membership drive. Almost 100 volunteer chamber members began calling on businesses and individuals Tuesday and will work through Thursday on a concentrated effort to make the chamber bigger and stronger than ever.

Look for this year's drive: "Sanford Is Super!"

What is the Chamber of Commerce? It's an organization through which volunteer leaders of our community work effectively to make the Greater Sanford area a better place to work and live. Some 700 businesses, professionals men and women and individuals have joined together to promote the economic well-being of the community; to provide a strength-to-strength pursuit of job-providing opportunities for the community and to promote to increase the local retail merchants market volume. The chamber also is the Better Business Bureau of the community. The policies and programs carried out each year are determined by the 37 members of the board of directors.

During the past year the chamber has initiated, sponsored and conducted an impressive list of events and activities. We are happy to list here just a few to indicate the diverse activities:

Sponsored the third annual Golden Age Olympics.

Formed the Blind Moquito Task Force.

Sponsored small business seminars conducted in the chamber facility by Seminole Community College.

Completed the Industrial Action slide presentation. Participated in numerous the interview of several potential new employees.

Sponsored the International Students Program which hosted 88 foreign students in December.

Coordinated senior citizen income tax assistance seminars in chamber facility.

Participated in business education and career education days in Seminole County schools.

Sponsored the Mid-Florida Power Boat Show at the Panoramic Bowl Hall of Fame.

Maintained information center on business and tourism.

Maintained conference-seminar facilities for

"You certainly look like someone who jogs," said an acquaintance of mine the other day. "Are you sure you don't jog?"

"I'm positive I do not now, nor have I ever done that sort of thing and informed my acquaintance. While I do not deny that jogging is good for you, I have my own exercise program that might be called mini-jogging."

For mini-jogging, you need the proper equipment. I recommend a house without central heating.

Ideal mini-jogging weather is now upon us, with the nights temperature dropping into the 40s or 50s.

Here's how your day begins as a mini-jogger:

When the alarm rings in the morning, you find yourself sleeping from under the covers, warm covers are an excellent insulator.

Naturally, the warmer, the easier it is to get out of bed.

When you're out, head into the kitchen and the bathroom's cold.

Next, step back to your warm bedroom — where the space heater is pumping away — and down in 45 seconds flat. If you carefully stepped out of your slippers while holding for the count, your feet making contact with a cold floor should keep you moving.

In a few steps, you're ready to see how quickly you can move.

When the alarm comes, you rise into the kitchen, leaving that comfortable fire behind, and have a quick dinner together. Remember that the sooner you accomplish this task, the sooner you'll be able to kick back in front of the fireplace.

Naturally, it's worth it. Like I said, mini-jogging is a great way to stay healthy.

VIEWPOINT

Highways: A Grim Outlook

By DON GRAFF

notice how rapidly you can do the dishes. That's because you're building confidence in yourself — it's also because the kitchen, on the other side of the house from the fireplace, is a little on the chilly side.

Frost soon it's time for the grand finale in your day of mini-jogging. Begin starting by the fireplace with your feet spread comfortably apart and your hands relaxed at your sides. Now charge into the bedroom, flip on the space heater and see how fast you can undress and get under the covers. My best time is for 30 seconds, but there's always room for improvement.

You've completed your first day as a mini-jogger. You've improved on your speed and agility, and those ugly pounds are beginning to melt away.

You've also enhanced your image by moving faster than you thought possible.

Naturally, it's worth it. Like I said, mini-jogging

Administration sources said, however, Sadat was assured privately the United States will begin sending military supplies to Egypt for the first time, but the details, including strategy for congressional approval, will be worked out later.

The sources said Egypt will receive F-4F fighters among other weapons and an American military survey team will make an overall assessment of Egypt's needs.

Sadat told a news conference in Geneva, Switzerland Wednesday the sale of U.S. aircraft to Egypt will be tantamount to "an ultimatum" to the Jewish state.

"It would have a negative effect on the very peacemaking process," he said.

Right, in Switzerland on a fund-raising tour, also reiterated

Sadat's opposition to any establishment of a Palestinian state because it "would be no time turn into a Soviet base."

In New York, Assistant Secretary of State Alfred Ahearn

(now) was meeting with Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan as part of a new shuttle between Egypt and Israel in an attempt to find agreement on a basic set of principles for resuming face-to-face talks.

In a farewell statement, Sadat said, "I came to the United States really disheartened and discouraged. But I shall return with more perseverance ... especially when the U.S. role is a complete partnership.

"I promise the American people, I shall never fail you."

A White House statement said Sadat "affirmed that the door remains open to negotiations (with Israel) and that Egypt will continue to do its part to assure continuity in this negotiating process."

It also made a pointed reference to Israeli withdrawal from "all fronts." American officials said it was a restatement of the U.S. position that Israel must pull back from all occupied territory, including the West Bank of the Jordan.

Bucs Hire Cardinals' Joe Gibbs To Call The Plays

TAMPA (UPI) — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers, who suffered from a lack of offense while recording a 2-12 record last season, have hired Joe Gibbs away from the St. Louis Cardinals as offensive coordinator.

Gibbs will be responsible for the offensive play calling for the next two seasons, a job handed last year by Head Coach John McCaffery and quarterback coach Bill Tolson.

Gibbs, 37, coached in the college ranks for 10 years and has been with the Cardinals for the past five seasons.

Gibbs said he is leaving the Cardinals only because of the unstable position of Head Coach Dan Coughlin.

"I had a chance to leave after the 1976 season, but when we weighed everything, well, we like living here," he said in St. Louis. "We felt at home and we felt like we would have a long time."

"I had about four or five places I could have gone," Gibbs said. "It landed down to Detroit and Tampa and it just seemed like Tampa was a place with a great future."

"I'm extremely happy and proud to have Joe as a part of the Buccaneers," McCaffery said in a news release handed out by the Bucs.

In joining the Bucs, Gibbs will be re-joining McCaffery. He was an assistant to McCaffery at the University of Southern California in 1970-71.

He also has coached at San Diego State, Florida State and Arkansas.

The Cardinals were first in passing, 10th in rushing and 12th overall in offense in the National Football Conference last season and were first in those categories two years ago.

In the first year of the Bucs existence, they were in the American Football Conference and finished last in passing, next to last in rushing and tied in total offense. Last season, they played in the NFC, and were last across the board in the offensive categories.

'Ol' Stosh' Can Still Show'em

By United Press International

A decade ago, before Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito began rewriting the record books, a team from Boston's Little Italy owned the scoring championship in the National Hockey League.

The fact remains that "Ol' Stosh" was an extraordinary hockey player, and Wednesday night he proved he still has lots of life left.

Three months shy of his 50th birthday, Mikita tallied two power plays and three goals as the Chicago Black Hawks scored a 3-4 victory over the New York Islanders, the Hawks' fourth straight victory.

Mikita scored in the first period and, with Tony Esposito and Ivan Boldirev, had a hand in the other three goals. The Hawks, guided by Larry Robinson, Mike Bossie and George Hart, tied the game, 3-3, after two periods before Mikita scored the game-winner at 5:53 of the third period. Chicago never trailed thereafter.

"Give Chicago credit," New York Coach Al Arbour said. "It was a good effort. They had 10 minutes to play and, but that's not an excuse — Chicago played well and deserved to win."

In other games in the National Hockey League, the New York Rangers topped Minnesota, 3-2, Buffalo ripped Cleveland, 5-2, and Toronto nipped St. Louis, 5-4.

In the World Hockey Association, the Cincinnati Stingers and Edmonton Oilers battled to a 6-6 overtime tie and the Winnipeg Jets never trailed the Birmingham Bulls, 6-4.

Rangers 5, Bruins 6:

Danny Esposito scored two goals, the second into an open net with 26 seconds left, as Buffalo pulled even with Boston for first place in the Adams Division.

Maple Leafs 5, Blues 4:

Errol Thompson's 15th goal of the year broke a 4-4 tie at 12:17 of the final period as Toronto extended St. Louis' winless streak to 10 games.

WHA:

Third-period power play goals by Ron Plumb, Claude Larose and Robbie Lederer lifted Cincinnati into itsagainst Edmonton... and Winnipeg's Hot Line of Anders Hollberg and Bobby Hall combined for 11 points to highlight the Jets' rout of Birmingham.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. — David Graham surprised himself and, for that matter, his rivals as well in the opening round of the $25,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic.

Playing for only the second time this year, and after a nearly three-week layoff during which he hardly practiced, the 30-year-old Australian shot a 6-under-par 66 Wednesday, for the lead in the five-round Hope.

Wednesday, Kiechelberger and Regaldo, will play La Quinta, the course most think is the toughest of the four they use in the 10-day Hope Classic, the sixth event of 1978.

"I have no illusions," said Graham, "about being in front." "I think the pressure is the same whether you are in front or a shot or two behind."

Today, Graham, as well as

In the Hope, there are 304 amateurs, grouped in teams of three, who play one round each on the four courses, and with a different pro each day. It can be a very nerve-wracking week.

"Oh, I don't mind," said Graham. "After all, it's the amateurs who pay our way and I feel by playing in an event such as this I am making a contribution as well. I try to have fun and let it at that."

Of the four rounds of 66, Graham had his first round at easier Indian Wells, where he goes to Bermuda. Dunes.

Defending champion Bill Mungrope survived having to play with host Bob Hope, for mer President Gerald Ford and wife Rosalynn, who had a 71. Gene Littlewood was at La Quinta, while Tom Puryear shot 68 at Bermuda and Larry Nelson 68 at Indian Wells.

Tom Watson, already the winner of two events this year, and Arnold Palmer, who has won the Hope five times — but not since 1973 — both played at La Quinta Wednesday and both 68. They play at Elsner today.

Jim White, Ron Corrao, Bob Murphy, Tim Shaw, Barry Jarrett, Greg Jones and Bill Rogers had 68 at Indian Wells in the second round. Bob Redberg was the lone 69 shooter at Bermuda. Hope's La Quinta today.
