Events continue today with Hobby Show and Photography judgings and opening of the exhibits at Sanford City Hall. It will be open 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Thursday and 1-4 p.m., Friday.

Christiansen's wife, Frances, 65, won the gold medal in her age group finishing in 28:27.

Paraquat Spraying Halted Until Study Conducted

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A federal judge is in agreement with a pact prohibiting the federal government from spraying the herbicide paraquat on illegal marijuana plots in the national forests until it conducts an environmental impact study.

U.S. District Judge June Green Tuesday approved the agreement between the government and the Slerra Club and the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws. which filed suit to step the government's spraying program.

Under the agreement, the government will conduct a study to determine the environmental impact of using the spray on illegally planted marijuana fields in the nation's forests. In their suit, the Sierra Club and NORML charged the government did not consider the health and environmental consequences of spraying the toxic chemical on public lands. NORML also maintained that paraquatcontaminated marijuana presented a serious health hazard to an estimated 30 million annual pot spokers in the United States.

FCC: All's Fair

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Federal Communications Commission is refusing to change parts of the Fairness Doctrine that require broadcasters to provide free time to people or groups with opposing political viewpoints.

Eighteen groups had asked the FCC to declare that when time is sold for political advertisements, whether during or outside a campaign period, the broadcaster be obliged only to sell time for rebuttal.

"Broadcasters' concerns here are that they have to give away some free time - the argument they put forth really falls flat on First Amendment grounds," said PCC Chairman Mark Fowler in joining a unanimous denial of the request.

Under the Fairness Doctrine's Coleman rule, which deals with political issues both in and outside campaign periods, if broadcasters air one side of an issue and can't find anyone to pay for presentation of an opposing viewpoint. somewhere in their broadcasting they must present the opposing viewpoint.

MIAMI (UPI) - A 14-month-old AIDS out of alternatives," said Jay Kassack, a victim described as "easy to love" by doctors and nurses has been abandoned by her family, rejected by dozens of foster homes and the state is no longer willing to pay her medical costs.

The girl is too young to understand that her AIDS-infected mother died three weeks ago. Doctors say the baby has, at most, three years to live.

For now, she is caught between a hospital that needs bed space for acutely ill patients, state officials who no longer are willing to pay her medical costs and rejection by local foster parents for fear she will pass AIDS to others. She was abandoned by her father.

The infant, whose name was withheld to protect her privacy. Is one of fewer than 100 children nationwide who have contracted AIDS. The disease eventually destroys the body's defenses against infections and often ends in death.

Already taxpayers have paid more than $58,000 for the child's 133 days in the hospital. About 20 foster homes in Dade County have rejected her, and other forms of institutional care would not be appropriate, officials said.
"This has not arisen before," said Jane

Coleman, a spokeswoman for the U.S.

Department of Health and Human Services in Atlanta.

The girl was admitted to Jackson Memorial Hospital June 29 with symptoms doctors labeled collectively as "failure to thrive." Hospital and state officials say she stopped growing and eventually developed infections characteristic of AIDS.

"Social workers have gone into the community." said Carol Barker, a Jackson Memorial social worker who has spent three months trying to find a home for the child. "People have called friends to ask if they can take her. But there a lot of people who believe that AIDS is spread by an airborne agent — or have all kinds of untrue beliefs.

Even At 88, Golf 'Is Great Exercise'

Ninety-year-old George Olear tripped and fell face the tricky terrain. down in a marshy spot on the golf course Tuesday afternoon as he was attempting to retrieve a golf ball smile. during the Golden Age Games.

Unconcerned, Olear dried off his shirt and slacks with a towel and got ready to play the second hole at Sanford's Mayfair Country Club.

He and his 88-year-old golfing partner, James Delso, were more worried about the triple and double bogeys they had just shot on the first hole than about triping on

This is the third year Deiso has participated in the Games golf competition. It's Olear's first. Both men are from Rockledge, and they both golf together regularly at Brevard County golf courses.

"We just like the sport," said Deiso. "The people here (at the games) are very nice. Golfers are friendly people. We like the incentive the (Greater Sanford) Chamber of Commerce gives us here. They're very enterprising, It's just outstanding.

Deiso got into golf 70 years ago when he worked as a caddy at a golf course in Mt. Vernon, N.Y., a suburb of New York City. Later he owned a fleet of taxi cabs in Mt.

Olear, who used to be a salesman for a food broker in Pittsburgh, is a relative newcomer to golf. He's only been swinging the irons 35 years. "It's the best exercise you can get," said Delso, who also plays shuffle board and bridge and bowls.

Navy Pilots Killed In Two-Plane Crash

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) - Three Navy training pilots were killed when an anti-submarine jet taxiing across a runway at Naval Air Station Cecil Field hit a light attack jet as it was taking off, Navy officials said early today.

Two pilots were aboard a S-3A Viking anti-subamarine warfare jet returning from a routine training mission when the collision occurred about 9 p.m. Tuesday, sald Navy public affairs officer Nick Young.

The other pilot killed was aboard an A-7 Corsair II light attack jet just taking off on a similar flight, he said. None of the pilots were identified, pending notification of their families. The cause of the crash has not been determined.

Dangerous Gator Hunted

LARGO (UPI) - A hunter was dispatched to the shores of Walsingham Reservoir to search for an alligator that snatched a leashed puppy in Its laws, leading authorities to fear the gator has lost its fear of humans.

The 6-to-8 foot reptile grabbed a 61/2-week-old Labrador retreiver puppy and sank beneath the water with the pooch locked in its jaws. Larry Lutjen said he was walking his puppy Babe on a 3-foot leash when the alligator bolted out of a grassy area of the water Sunday.

"It happened so fast, I just stood there," said Lutjen, who who recently arrived from New Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission officials, fearing that the gator lost its fear of humans and poses a threat, sent licensed gator hunter Joe Borelli into the area Monday. He continued the search Tuesday.

Shuttle Ready To Fly

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) - The shuttle Columbia was back at its oceanside launch pad today, primed and poised for the twice-delayed traugural Spacelab mission later this month.

into effect today at the Capitol where an explosion smashed brick walls and precious paintings outside the Senate chamber and triggered a rash of bomb threats.

FBI agents hunted for clues to the homber's identity in a videotape from cameras trained on hallways leading to the alcove where the bomb was planted. Authorities believe it was slipped behind a window seat about 30 feet from the Senate chamber several hours before the time bomb was detonated Monday at 10:58 p.m.

Ever since rumors that a Libyan hit squad was pursuing U.S. officials. Senate leaders have been talking about stepping up security at the Capitol, visited by at least 2 million people each year. Guards have searched all bags and made gallery spectators pass through metal detectors since 1971, when a bomb exploded in a Senate restroom. Three weeks ago, a man wired with dynamite was taken from the gallery overlooking the House.

As of today, all visitors to the Capitol will have to wear identification badges and pass through two metal detectors before they can sit in the galleries overlooking the House and Senate floors.

Rigged Research

Since the days of the Great Society, the federal government has not only run complex, big-scale social programs but also evaluated them and experimented with them.

Undertakings as varied as Head Start and nutrition assistance for poor pregnant women and infants have been subjected to vigorous testing. aimed at determining whether practice matched promise; and such proposals as a guaranteed annual income (in lieu of welfare) and housing vouchers (instead of public housing) for the poor have undergone trial runs to anticipate the problems that might crop up.

Evaluation and experimentation permit government to learn from its mistakes and to proceed on the basis of knowledge, not just hunch or ideology.

The answers that research produces aren't definitive, to be sure, and bias sometimes intrudes to corrode the process.

But by and large, both Republican and Democratic administrations of the past two decades have respected the integrity of the research community.

In seeking information and soliciting advice, government has been willing to hear the bad news

It was the Nixon administration, for example, which sponsored a critical appraisal of education vouchers, an idea with Republican support, while the Democrats subjected their guaranteed-income properat to largely unflattering review.

Things have changed with the Reagan administration.

In the Department of Education, for instance, Common Cause reports that outside experts representing diverse perspectives, invited to review proposals under the $6-million-a-year Women's Educational Equity Act Program, were uninvited and replaced by an overtly conservative panel, after the extreme right-wing monthly Conservative Digest assailed the program as supporting "hard-left women's groups.

The Consortium of Social Science Associations, an umbrella group representing the several social science disciplines, has complained that Department of Health and Human Services officials now routinely ignore the evaluations of their expert panels, awarding research grants to proposals given weak ratings: Of the 88 proposals submitted for child-welfare training grants, for example, 12 of the top 25, as determined by impartial professionals, were rejected while the proposal with the lowest peer-review score was funded.

And when HHS recently solicited a study of public and private social service programs, it laid its political biases on the line.

Prospective researchers were required to demonstrate that they understood the arguments for taking Washington out of the problem-solving business and spell out their own "perspective" practically an invitation to swear fealty to the "Less Is More" school of policy.

What's almost certain to result are studies about social problems that hew to the party line.

That's unfortunate for the research community, which can be most useful to policymakers if encouraged to turn up politically inconvenient truths, and for the taxpayers, who are spending millions of dollars on deliberately second-rate scholarship.

The real losers are those who have to live with the mistakes of a government so committed to its own premises that it refuses to recognize the possibility that it might just be proved wrong.

Free Market Illusion

WASHINGTON (NEA) — With winter rapidly approaching, millions of families that use natural gas to heat their homes again face the prospect of soaring fuel

Although household bills for natural gas have more than doubled in the past five years, the oil and gas industry supported by President Reagan - is pressing for federal legislation that almost certainly would require consumers to pay even more in the future.

The industry and the White House are pressing Congress to drastically revise the Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978, a law which created two major classifications of the fuel for purposes of feder. regulation.

Under that statute, "new" gas produced from reserves discovered after 1977 - no longer is subject to indefinite federal price controls. Instead, a phased decontrol schedule allows its price to rise steadily until 1985, when all controls are to be lifted.

"Old" gas — produced from reserves identified before 1977 — is to remain at lower, controlled prices until it is exhausted. Thus, the average price of old gas this year is $1.35 per thousand cubic feet, compared with $3.24 per thousand cubic feet for new gas.

Even though that old gas was discovered inexpensively many years ago and is still cheap to produce, the Reagan administration and the industry are seeking to remove the federal controls on its price.

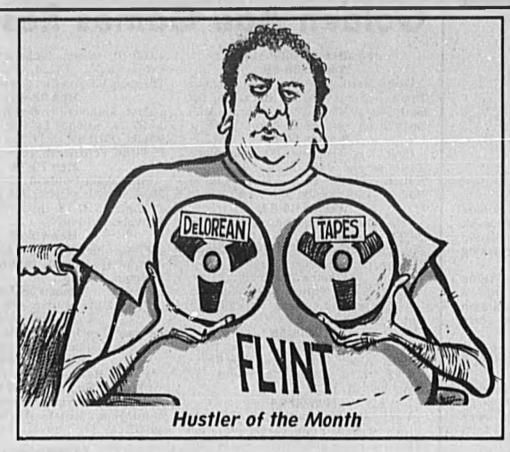

They insist that a "free market" in natural gas eventually will benefit consumers. That argument, however, is flawed because the industry's structure precludes free choice on the part of buyers and significant competition among sellers, both prerequistites for a truly free market.

Almost three-fourths of the nation's old gas is owned by the country's 20 largest oll companies, the largest of which are members of an informal yet powerful international oil cartel that never has disguised its distaste for competition.

Finally, there is no competition whatsoever among the local distribution companies, all of which hold exclusive territorial rights to provide gas to residential, commercial and industrial customers in their service areas.

Although the White House and Department orgy are promoting the unrealistic free market theory, DOE's independent Energy Information Administration has concluded that wellhead prices for natural gas would increase 47 percent by 1985 under the Reagan administration's plan.

Total decontrol of the natural gas market would produce a financial bonanza for the country's 16 largest oil and gas companies. According to EIA, they would receive an additional $4.2 billion in revenues during the first year

DeLorean Tape Legit?

WASHINGTON - Twelve days ago. Hustier Publisher Larry Flynt called a press conference to keep me from 'scooping" him. He released a short. almost unintelligible tape recording of a telephone conversation in which a government informant apparently threatens the daughter of automaker John Z. DeLorean.

If the tape is authentic, it could lend credence to DeLorean's claim that he was forced into a multi-million-dollar narcotics deal by the government informer, James Timothy Hoffman, and was afraid to pull out because of a threat to harm his 5-year-old daughter. According to the transcript put together by acoustics and linguistics experts, the crucial portion of the conversation between DeLorean and a man presumed to be Hoffmann went DeLorean: "I don't want any part of narcotics. I tried to tell you that in Washington when you first mentioned dope All I ever wanted was an investment to save the company."

Hoffman: "You honor your part of the deal and that way you'll obviously live DeLorean: "I just want out. I won't

Hoffman: "How is our little daughter? Wanna get her head smashed?"

The conversation supposedly took place on Sept. 15, 1982 - the same day DeLorean says he told other undercover federal agents he wanted out of the deal. This was two months after the deal was initiated - by DeLorean, the government says.

I've had the tape, obtained from a confidential source, for more than a month. I was worried about its authenticity, so I had experts painstakingly check it out.

The source had said that a bugging device with its batteries running down had picked up the conversation as it was being played back on a tape my associates Tony Capaccio and Indy Badhwar spent some 15 hours with voice stress experts at Peter Comras Associates of Springfield, Va., and Roger Shuy, a linguistics professor at Georgetown University. They produced independent transcripts that were remarkably similar.

Next we asked Hal Lion of Lion Recording Services, Washington, D.C., to run the tape through a battery of sophisticated electronic machines to see if the tape had been spliced - that is, faked by clever editing. "I could find no splices," said Lion, a respected audio engineer. He concluded that it was most probably the tape of a replayed telephone conversation picked up by a bug.

Next we tried to have a spectogram, or voice print, made by Voice Identification Inc., of Manville, N.J. But the company president. E.F. Alexanderson, said the background noise was "so overpowering that all speech patterns were obliterated; this made spectographic analvais impossible."

Alexanderson suggested we take the tape to "a linguist or speech scientist" - someone with a trained ear for voice patterns and other identification signs. We went back to Shuy, and also to Louis Gerisman, linguistics professor at City College of New York.

Both Shuy and Gertsman concluded that, while the tape was barely intelligible, speech formation patterns not dependent on voice clarity established that one voice is definitely DeLorean's and the other could be Hoffman's. They compared the tape to known samples of both men's voices.

"There are two and only two people in the conversation," said Gertsman. "One is DeLorean and the other plausibly is Hoffman," He noted "enough similarity in family of vowels and speech sounds" between the tape and the known sample to identify Hoffman.

JEFFREY HART

This Is Required Reading

When the Rev. Jesse Jackson made his long expected announcement that he'd join the list of candidates for president, he sharpened the focus of all candidates on the black electorate.

Each candidate now wants to know how to appeal to black voters. The Republicans concede as much as 85 percent of the black vote to the Democratic nominee. The best they can hope for in 1984 is the 7 percent Ronald Reagan received three years ago. Nine-ty-three percent of the black vote that year went to Jimmy Carter.

White Democrats - and Jackson will appeal to black voters by claiming strong allegiance to defending and protecting civil rights and increasing economic opportunity. The Reagan rhetoric necessarily plays down the civil rights commitment, but argues that the president's economic policies will reward blacks as the entire population is lifted by the rising economic tide.

But anyone who wants to know what problems black Americans face, andwhat a group of black thinkers believes are some beginning solutions, doesn't have to listen to any campaign speeches. The answers can be found in two small books published without fanfare in the last 12 months.

Each qualifies more as a "pamphlet" than a full-fledged book, but taken together they offer a cogent and frightening look at some harsh realities of black life in the United States today. They should be must reading for any candidate for any office.

"Black Americans in the 1980s" by John Reid, published by the Population Reference Bureau Inc. gives the frightening facts:

Thirty-one percent of black families are headed by a single parent, usually the mother. Infant mortality rates for blacks remain twice as great as for whites. Black life expectancy is six years shorter than that of whites. Divorce and separation are on the increase at a faster rate than for whites. Unemployment for blacks is twice as high as for whites. Teenage and out--of-wedlock births remain higher for blacks than for whites.

One of Reid's conclusions is stark:

"In education and occupation, blacks! have made significant progress in the last two decades. On the monetary side - income - blacks have made no gain and indeed appear to be falling somewhat behind in their quest for equality."

"A Policy Framework for Racial: Justice," issued by the Joint Center for Political Studies, identifies three areas! where action can be initiated to begin to erase the barriers that keep black Americans from the economic mainstream: "the progress of the economy, the condition of the black; family and educational opportunity."

The book's ideas are intended to "encourage widespread discussion."

Agoraphobia: Housebound By Fear

By Sharon Rutenberg UPI Science Writer

CHICAGO (UPI) - Barbara sees a purse in a store she wants to buy, but cannot move toward it. She starts to sweat. She thinks she is going to have a heart attack and die.

Craig Sethness, curled up in the sofa corner while his wife leaves for work, used to be afraid to go out of his house. Both suffer from agoraphobia, a syndrome that afflicts less than 1 percent of the population. Derived from Greek, the word translated literally means fear of the open market. What it describes is fear of the world outside the Agoraphobics fear such ordinary daily activities as walking into supermarkets or driving on expressways. They fear they might faint, "go crazy" or make fools of themselves in front of other

"In general, agoraphobia is a fear on the part of an individual that he may lose control or something terrible will happen and he will be unable to obtain help," said Dr. William Matuzas, University of Chicago phobia clinic director, psychlatry professor and expert on the

'They're increasingly housebound. Agoraphobia can strike at any time and last forever. There is no known cause, although Matuzas said a recent lowa study of families suggests there is a "significant inheritable component to the disorder; that there is some biologic vulnerability that leads to particular individuals being at risk for developing agoraphobia."

Arthur Hyams, co-director of COPE Limited -- Center of Phobic Encounters - in suburban Glenview, said agoraphobia usually occurs between ages 18 and 35 and once was known as the "housewives' disease."

Matuzas said 80 percent of his patients are women.

The specialist said women are more apt to acknowledge their fears and seek help, while men - most of whom have no choice but to go out of the house for work - are more "macho" and might hide their fears in aicoholism.

Most agoraphobics can remember their first attack.

"It's hard to believe that you could feel so physically lousy and not really know what it is," Barbara said.

She became housebound for nine months and even became afraid of her own home.

I sat and begged to die," she said. "There was a time there that I felt walking from one room to the other that I was going to collapse," Barbara said. "I couldn't go down to my basement for a long time. I could go down there to wash my clothes and then I'd run back

There was a time when I couldn't take a shower because I thought I was going to pass out." Sethness was housebound for three

"I couldn't even leave the house. I would sit around the house 24 hours a day. I wouldn't even go outside. And all I could think about was suicide. It scared the hell out of my wife.

"I knew I needed help. I knew I was really depressed and frustrated. My wife was getting worried. She'd go off to work and I'd be sitting on the couch in the corner, all curled up just sitting there. I wasn't crying or anything like that. Just lost in thought."

Their worlds began to shrink even

Barbara quit her office job and now does promotional telephone work at her north suburban home 30 hours a week.

"I started rug hooking. I got tired of that. I started reading. I got tired of that. I'm bored. I'm angry. I'm resentful. I'm jealous."

Sethness runs a computer design firm from his Glenview home. He quit his downtown "rat race" Job of calling on clients, going to meetings and lunching with co-workers. "That was terrifying," he said.

"I had a lot of friends before this happened. And I guess because I'm not a functional person right now - I can't do what I used to do - people have tended to lose interest," Barbara said.

Sethness said: "If somebody told me I'm going out a week from tomorrow to dinner, I would start right now and worry about II. You'd go about your day-to-day activities, but you'd still feellike there's an underlying fear."

The normal errands of life are intoler-"People do my shopping." Barbara said. "I have somebody who comes and cuts my hair. Sometimes if I feel up to it. somebody will take me for a ride in the car. Sometimes I'll stand in the front of a store." Her doctor's office is on the second, floor. It she needs a shot, the doctor runs down and gives it to her in the car-Her dentist knows she might have to leave the chair any time.

She makes herself go out to dinner. As she leaves the car, she holds the driver's car keys in her hand - just in case she has to make a getaway. She wears a rubber band on her wrist to snap herself? out of attack symptoms. The pain will f distract her. She keeps smelling salts in her purse.

She walks into a clothes store but is afraid to venture far from the front door. She always has to see a clear pathi between her and the door and feels i trapped if it is blocked. She holds onto a cart for security.

If she can make it to a dressing room; she tries clothes on over her own clothes. "In case you have to leave. you'd have to leave stark nude," she

TOKYO (UPI) - Helmeted and masked student radicals snake-danced through a park under the close watch of rlot police today to protest the arrival of President Reagan on his first state visit to Japan.

The noisy out peaceful raily by about 1.500 protesters was held at a small park near Tokyo's Haneda Airport where Reagan's Air Force One jet touched down today following a more than 16-hour flight from Washington.

A group of 18 university students began a 72-hour hunger strike to protest Reagan's visit. The students and other leftist groups claim his

Aquino Probe Resumes

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) - An inquiry into the assassination of popular opposition leader Benigno Aquino Jr. reopened today amid criticism its procedures were "highly irregular."

Among those scheduled to testify at the second public hearing of a revamped panel was Col. Pedro Elvas, head of the Philippine Constabulary crime laboratory where an autopsy was conducted on Aquino's alleged assassin, Rolando Galman.

Officials said Rosendo Cawigan, who claims Galman was a hitman for the Communist Party of the Philippines, also would testify, time permitting. Cawigan, who claims he once was an aide to Aquino, said the Communist Party had asked him to kill Aquino.

Voters Pick Woman Governor, Black Mayor

In a day of political firsts. Kentucky elected a woman governor, Philadelphia chose a black mayor and Georgians refused to give a dead congressman's seat to his widow.

The 1983 off-year elections Tuesday also junked some other political myths. Mississippi voters refused to be stain-peded by an "October surprise" charges that a candidate for governor had sex with black males dressed as women - and Ohioans rejected a proposal to cut their taxes.

Washington state voters, after sending two Democrats to the Senate for more than 30 years, completed a turnabout by electing former GOP Gov. Daniel Evans to fill the five years left in the term of the late Sen. Henry Jackson. The first woman governor of Kentucky will be Democrat Martha Layne Collins, death of Rep. Lairy McDonald went to a the lieutenant governor under retiring Gov. John Brown, Mrs. Collins, a seasoned campaigner, defeated GOP State Sen. Jim Burning, who won more than 240 baseball games as a major league pitcher but got sent to the showers in his first outing as a statewide candidate.

Democrat Wilson Goode, son of a North Carolina sharecropper, won the Philadelphia mayoral contest with ease, beating Republican John Egan and independent Thomas Leonard.

Despite the GOP win in Washington, Democratic National Committee Chairman Charles Manatt, focused on Kentucky and Mississippi and the victory of Democrat Edwin Edwards last month in Louisiana, and pronounced the results "Good news for the national Democratic Party, particularly in the South, which will be crucial to our presidential and Senate hopes in 1984."

Infertility On The Rise In U.S.

CHICAGO (UPI) - Reports of Infertility are on the rise in the United States because of a changing society in which couples are waiting longer to have children and many would-be mothers are long-time pill users, researchers say.

Though the problems of infertility are real. a report in the Journal of the American Medical Association said some of the increase in reports can be attributable to nerves and Anxiety among older couples who finally decide to have children may increase reporting of infertility. Sevgi O. Aral and Dr. Willard Cates of the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta said in the report.

After years of using contraceptives to avoid pregnancy, many couples rush to their physicians when a wanted pregnancy does not occur immediately, they said.

"When women discontinue oral contracertion, they take longer to become pregnant than those who stop other methods or who never use any type of contraception." they

"Any delay in the ability to conceive among women who discontinue oral contraception would be perceived as infertility by the Older couples also might try to have all their children in a shorter period of time and will be less patient, they said.

"Because a larger proportion of American couples have delayed childbearing until their later reproductive years, they have condensed the interval of desired fertility into a shorter time span than have previous genera-

Women who delay childbearing also allow more time for environmental hazards and sexually transmitted diseases to damage reproductive organs, Aral and Cates said.

The proportion of couples classified as infertile increased with age, they said. Birth statistics for the past decade show in 1976, 2 percent of 15-to-19-year-olds were infertile compared with 16 percent of those aged 40 to Dinosaurs Done In By Dust?

Karl Turckian and Jean-Marc Luck of Yale University reported that analysis of two isotopes of the rare metallic element osmium found in ancient layers of sediment indicates the material came from an extraterrestrial

The sediments examined were deposited in Denmark and Colorado 65 million years ago - at the end of the Cretaccous period when numerous species of plants and animals disappeared from the fossii record.

Luiz Alvarez of the Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory in California and his son. Walter Alvarez of the University of California at Berkeley, first proposed the catastrophe theory in 1980. It was based on a jump in the element iridium in sediments formed at the end of the Cretaceous period

Iridium is extremely rare in Earth's crust but is 1,000 times more abundant in extraterrestrial material, suggesting the extra iridium in sediments deposited 65 million years ago came from debris strewn about by the

Study Says Sore Throats Are Treated Irrationally

CHICAGO (UPI) - Fear of a disease , that is no longer a major health threat , may cause doctors to over-prescribe antibiotics for a simple sore throat, doctors report in the Journal of the . American Medical Association. A Rhode Island survey showed there were more than 157,000 throat cultures a for a population of 930,000 in 1980.

But before culture results were known, 87 percent of primary care physicians prescribed antibiotic therapy and about 40 percent continued therapy for 10 days regardless of culture results.

"Antibiotics are frequently given when cultures are taken and such therapy is often not stopped when culture results are negative," said Dr. Scott D. 1 Holmberg, with the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, and Dr. Gerald A. Faich, with the Department of Health and Human Services in Rockville, Md.

In an accompanying editorial, Dr. Alan · L. Bisno of the University of Tennessee in Memphis said accepted strategies for management of simple sore throat were devised by the American Heart Association at a time when acute rheumatic fever, ARF, was a much greater health

But the occurrence of that disease has plummeted in the 20th century to as low as one case per 200,000 school-age children per year in parts of the United States, Bisno said.

ARF is caused by group A Streptococcus. Throat cultures are taken to differentiate sore throats caused by that microorganism from those caused by other agents, mostly viruses, "Acute rheumatic fever is rare in the state (Rhode Island)," Holmberg and Faich said. "The costs of present practices are high while the benefits of these practices relative to control of ARF are doubtful.

"These findings suggest that promotion of throat culturing by public health laboratories should be reconsidered." Holmberg and Faich said physicians "probably routinely culture out of habit. in deference to the expectations of patients and parents, or in accord with professional recommendations."

Doctors probably begin antibiotic therapy immediately so their patients are spared extra office visits, they said.

"One can only hope that future advances ... will lead to more rational and cost-effective strategies for management of the common but perplexing problem of 'simple' sore throat," Bisno

A Baby's Crying May Signal Physical, Emotional Problems

BLACKSBURG, Va. (UPI) - A baby's cry may someday be used to predict problems from crib death and mental retardation to child abuse, a psychologist

For the past eight years. Virginia Tech psychology professor Dr. Phillip Zeskind has been using voiceprints and computer graphs to analyze the cries of thousands of infants.

Zeskind said a constant high-pitched wail may be an early warning of an imbalance in the nervous system that can lead to serious complications.

"The question is, can we use the cry to diagnose problems, very subtle things that we wouldn't know otherwise?" he Zeskind said his research suggests that a mother who drinks alcohol during pregnancy may harm the nervous system of the unborn child in minute ways that cannot be detected in ordinary medical tests. But once the baby is born, the damage may reveal itself in the cry.

"I see crying as a reflection of the biological health of the infant, and then I see crying as influencing the kind of care the baby gets," Zeskind said.

Years ago. French doctors noted that infants with brain damage exhibited a piercing shriek dubbed "the cry of the Zeskind noticed that some babies who appeared perfectly normal cried like cats - and an alarming number of them later died suddenly in their cribs, grew up retarded, or fell victim to parental abuse or neglect.

His theory is that alcohol use by the mother may upset the autonomic nervous system - the control center for sleep and arousal, breathing and heartbeat. Like a governor on a motor, the autonomic nervous system keeps our bodies from racing or stalling.

"In babies that have this funny cry. the balance is way out of whack,' Zeskind said.

His tests confirmed that bables with unusual crying characteristics have pulse and respiration rates that fluctuate wildly. Zeskind said their higher incidence of crib death suggests "they don't have the mechanism to jerk them awake" when they "forget to breathe"

A shrill and unwavering cry also tests a parent's patience, making the infant a prime candidate for neglect and abuse.

"Parents who abuse their children often say they had this high-pitched grating cry, is drove them nuts," Zeskind

A parent's reaction to the child's cry determines whether the problem gets better or worse, Zeskind said. A parent who recognizes that the baby sounds sick may catch the problem in time. A parent who turns away from a noisy baby invites trouble.

Will All Small Cars One Day Be Built By The Japanese?

DETROIT (UPI) - Domestic of other firms are taking a "join them" automakers, who once boasted they could "drive the Japanese into the sea," now are threatening to send small car production overseas because they cannot compete with Japanese tax and currency advantages.

The debate over whether future small cars can be built profitably in the United States is this fall's hot political issue in the auto industry.

This past week found automakers due mainly to a codvantage enjoyed by reacting with rage to the agreement between the U.S. and Japan to a fourth year of Japanese auto imports at 1.85 million, up from the current 1.68 million, beginning in March.

All but General Motors Corp. - which plans to import 300,000 small cars and build the same number with Toyota denounced the deal. But even GM felt the heat and at week's end unveiled a long-rumored prototype of a subcompact that likely will replace the Chevette around 1987.

The rub is that while GM has put its top 325 engineers and designers on the project, the technology for the car still must be culled from the GM-Toyota joint venture, which is bogged down in a dispute between Toyota and the Federal Trade Commission. Tercel. It was the most astonishing display of chutzpah I've ever seen," said an executive at another automaker. But these domestic auto fans are subcompact and sporty models.

The cost advantage is due mostly to export tax breaks allowed by the Japanese and the undervaluation of the yen against the dollar. These are factors the U.S. companies cannot fight without government help, giving them an unbeatable argument for sending small car production off-shore.

Ironically, small car production in the United States has never been profitable. For decades, profits have made on sales of mid-sized and large cars, not on

Nuclear Power Not Economical Because Of High Building

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Skyrocketing costs of un finished nuclear plants present "severe economic problems¹¹ to utility companies because many new reactors will produce electricity at double or triple the price of OPEC oil, a new report warns.

The study, prepared by a prominent energy consulting firm, the Massachusetts-based Cambridge Energy Research Associates, identified several troubled reactor projects, and predicted that the probable cancellation of the $1.6 billion Zimmer plant near Cincinnati "could well mean financial ruin' for Cincinnati Gas & Electric.

"As many as a dozen or more electric utilities now are facing severe economic problems as a result of their investments in new nuclear facilities," the report said. "American ratepayers and utility company shareholders and creditors have yet to learn - let alone pay - the

White Out Knocks Teens Out; Side Effects May Be Deadly

BALTIMORE (UPI) - American teenagers are "getting whited out" sniffing typewriter correction fluid, a lethal form of substance abuse that doctors say is gaining popularity na-

Dr. James E. Greer of Tulane University says the new type of high produces effects similar to drinking large amounts of alcohol, but an overdose can send sniffers into comas or cause cardiac

"Inhalation of correction fluid is gaining popularity in just about every region of the country," he said, adding that the dangerous fad began in California "about a year ago."

In a paper delivered to the annual meeting of the Southern Medical Association, Greer said users either inhale the fluid straight from the bottle or from a bag. The ensuing sense of euphoria lasts 15 to 30 minutes, followed by about an hour of drowsiness described as "pleasant" and mild head-

"It (sniffing correction fluid) is cost effective. The high is much cheaper than an equivalent one produced by alcohol, marijuana or barbituates," Greer said. A small bottle of correction fluid costs about $1.25 at most office supply stores. Sniffing the commercial solvent, which contains the toxic chemicals trichloroethylene, perchloroethlyene and trichlorothene, appeals espcially to pre--adolescents and teenagers under 15, he

"It is easy to shoplift and conceal," said Greer, adding that many of the youths steal the substance from homes, schools and offices.

The doctor said the relatively short duration of the highs and the absence of telltale odors - such as those that accompany consumption of alcohol and marijuana - make it popular for use among students and residents of institutions.

"It's quick, you can do it between classes. And the bottle is small, so it's hard to be detected," Greer said.

The doctor said he learned of the dangerous trend while working at a home for adolescent boys in Louisiana. He said one young sniffer was hospitalized in a comatose state for 10 days before recovering.

Toys, exhaustion and excitement cause most of the trouble, says Phillip L. cal reflexes. Kaufman, a Crete optometrist who has drawn up a annual survey of toy 1983 dangerous Christmas toy list as a warning to parents.

Heading the list are a to gun with glow-in-the-dark ammunition that encourages children to shoot at each other in the dark, and a toy rifle that fires plastic balls more than 25 feet.

"A number of toys labeled 'safety tested' still can cause eye damage,' he said. "Even a light blow by an object that would not hurt another part of the body could cause corneal injury, blindness or other serious problem to the eyes."

Kaulman said several manufacturers promote plastic balls or darts as 'soft" and "safe" when they could cause severe eye injury if fired from close range.

"More than 800 children suffer eye damage from Christmas toys every year. 10 times more than at other times of the year," he added.

A few years ago dental research scientists began to look for a way to replace missing teeth that would conserve the tooth structure of the remaining teeth — be strong — and good looking - and economical.

MARYLAND BRIDGE

Various methods were tried with some success. However, the real breakthrough came recently at the University of Maryland when researchers found that a bridge could be connected to the adjacent natural teeth with small hidden metal attachments. These attachments could be electrolytically etched in a way so that they could actually be bonded to the outer footh structure of the remaining feeth. There would be minimal footh preparation; hence, usually no anesthetic would be required. Further, we would not have DR. PATRICK L. DELFLORE to depend on the deeper portions of the tooth for holding power.

It was at the University of Maryland that a major required step took place. Researchers found that it was possible to electrolytically etch the inner motal surfaces of the attachments in such a way that the bond to the metal would be two or three times as strong as resir bonding to etched tooth enamel.

The "Maryland Bridge" procedure means that you would spend less than half the time allotted, say, for a conventional lixed bridge.

This revolutionary technique is rapidly becoming the preferred alternative to conventional methods. Of course, there is significant cost reduction.

Because of possible bite related problems, not everyone is a candidate for this revolutionary new technique. However, we will certainly be glad to availuate the possibilities for you. Why

Secret Is In The Stroke, Winner Says; Lightweight Aluminum Craft 'A Joy'

By Micheal Beha Herald Staff Writer

There were a lot entrants in Monday's canoeing competition who were just killing time waiting for their favorite events. But Canadian-born Albert Christiansen wasn't one of them.

The Venus, Fla., resident turned in a one-minute 52-second performance in the canoe sprint race in capturing a gold medal in the 55-59 age bracket at Sanford Landing ing.

"I hadn't really been doing anything to train for this," said Christiansen. "The only thing I've been doing lately is pulling out gallberry bushes on our farm."

Galiberry bushes have deep roots, he said, and give chest and shoulder muscles a real workout. Canoeing also gives the muscles of the chest and shoulders a workout.

But Christiansen said the secret of canoeing is knowing how to stroke.

"I learned how to paddle a canoe in Canada when I was about 13 years old," he said.

"I had an old pair of sprint skis I traded for a canoe when I was in the eighth grade. I remember it was a birch bark canoe. Man, was it heavy."

He said the lightweight aluminium canoes used in the competition are a joy to paddle compared to that old canoe.

His strokes kept him on a straight and true path and Christiansen said because of his experience he didn't have to take turns paddling on the right and left.

That switching was only one of the hazards which befell some competitors. Aging knees also presented a problem. Some of the competitors couldn't kneel so they had to sit to paddle.

"I could've gone a lot faster if I could've kneeled," said Ernest Hammond of Illinois. Despite the disadvantage, Hammond earned a bronze medal in the 50-59 age bracket.

Ghosts Of Guyana, Mayor's Slaying Still Haunt City

By John M. Leighty

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Legal cases linger on a half decade after San Francisco was shocked by the mass suicides of Jim Jones' Peoples Temple and the slaying of the city's mayor and a city supervisor.

On Nov. 18, 1978, the Rev. Jones, a former San Francisco Housing Commissioner, and 912 cultists were shot or drank poison in Guyana following the jungle airport slayings of Rep. Leo Ryan, D-Calif., and four others who had flown to there to investigate the religious group.

It was the end for Jones' Peoples Temple, a cult that had built up political clout in California and whose members even canvassed for the election of George Moscone as San Francisco mayor.

Within two weeks of the Guyana horror, Mayor Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk were slain in their City Hall offices by former policeman Dan White, later convicted of manslaughter in a jury verdict which caused a riot on the streets.

The unrelated twin tragedies left the city in shock and mourning. Flags flew at half staff. There were memorial services and candlelight vigils.

Five years later the ghosts of both cases are still present in San Francisco, where the Peoples Temple was headquartered and where Moscone and Milk were popular politicians.

Although the $9.5 million in Temple assets have finally been distributed to 75 claimants — survivors and their families — there is still the unanswered question of how much the U.S. government was involved with the commune of Jonestown.

A suit dismissed on a technicality by the Supreme Court last month charged that mind-controlling drugs were experimented with at the Guyana compound with the "consent, knowledge and ald" of the Central Intelligence Agency. The $65 million lawsuit had filed in San Francisco federal court by several survivors of the Guyana bloodbath.

Larry Layton, a temple aide, still faces a possible second murder-conspiracy trial for the jungle airstrip attack on Ryan, the event which triggered the mass suicide of the cult at Jones' orders. Layton's first trial ended in deadlock in 1981.

Prosecution material banned from the first trial, including "last hour" video tapes of Jones, will be permitted as evidence at the new proceeding under a ruling by an féderal appeals court.

The defense, on the other hand, has failed in numerous attempts to obtain classified government documents pertaining to Jonestown, where they said the CIA condoned "mind control" experiments using drugs and other techniques.

Layton's attorney Tony Tamburello said if the prosecution entered the "last hour" tapes as evidence, the defense should be allowed to unseal government documents pertaining to Jonestown.

"We still feel strongly that the government knew way ahead of time that bad things were happening in Jonestown and failed to act properly," said Tamburello.

The case of Dan White has also re-emerged in the legal arena.

White, whose "Twinkie desense" got him a relatively light manslaughter conviction when attorneys argued that he had been under severe pressures and was living on junk food prior to the killings, is due for parole in January.

He could, however, be re-prosecuted under federal civil rights laws for assassinating a person seeking political office. Both Moscone and Milk had re-filed for election just prior to their slayings.

A decision on whether to order such a federal trial—requested by Gov. George Deukmejian and San Francisco Mayor Dianne reinstein among others—is in the hands of U.S. Attorney General William French Smith.

Competition Stiffer Than In Early Days

Charles Swartz won the first men's shoots nearly every day on his own pool 8-ball billiards competition when the Golden Age Games began in 1975, but he was too ashamed to pick up his winner's

"It was too easy," said Swartz. "That was the first game and it wasn't too organized and there weren't many people taking part in it. Now I can't win," he said with a smile.

But he still eagerly gives it the old college try and Monday afternoon he had his visor on his forehead and his pool cue in his hand as he took a break between billiards games at Woogie's Pub where about 34 other senior citizens were competing in the ninth annual men's eight-ball contest.

Swartz, who was born 76 years ago in Mt. Pleasant, Pa., about 45 miles from table at his home in DeBary.

Back in the 1920s "all we had was the pool room and listening to big band music on the radio."

Swartz, a jovial man, is also a musician and will play two classical selections on his flute in the Golden Age Games talent show.

He often performs with his wite who plays the hand organ. As a hobby, he also cuts gem stones.

Swartz, who worked in a glass factory in Pennsylvania, retired and moved to Florida 13 years ago.

"The games are fun," he said. "You have to keep active. I'm always doing something like working in the yard. I like billiards because it's a challenge. If I had Pittsburgh, has been "fooling around been sitting in a chair since I retired, I with billiards all my life," and he still would be doubled over by now."

Charles Swartz, 76, gives 8-ball billiards 'the old college try.'

Flynt Banned From Court After Outburst

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt, enraged at not being allowed to represent himself before the Supreme Court, screamed obscenities at the justices and was promptly whisked out of the courtroom and arrested.

A Supreme Court policeman immediately rolled Flynt, 40, out of the courtroom in his gold-plated wheelchair. Hours later, Flynt, crippled by a 1978 murder attempt, was released on his own recognizance after a U.S. magistrate extracted a promise that he would not appear at the Supreme Court again until after his case

Flynt was charged with unlawfully demonstrating at the Supreme Court. He was charged under a law that prohibits "interfering with, obstructing, or impeding"

Flynt's outburst came as the court finished hearing arguments in a case where Kathy Keeton, companion of Penthouse publisher Bob Guccione, had sued Flynt for $80 million. She charged that Flynt libeled her in a 1976 cartoon in Hustler depicting Guccione as infecting her with a venereal disease.

Flynt, clutching a King James version of the Bible. velled obscenitites at the justices as he attempted to unbutton his shirt to reveal a T-shirt printed with the words: "F --- the court."

Flynt, who lives in a lavish mansion in Los Angeles, was involved in a similar outburst last week in U.S. District Court in Los Angeles, when he sought to represent himself in a case involving FBI videotapes of showing automaker John Delorean allegedly making a cocaine deal with undercover agents.

Compromise Sought On Nerve Gas Ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Twice this year, the Senate deadlocked on the issue of whether to lift a 14-year-old U.S. ban on chemical weapons. Both times, Vice President George Bush kept the program alive by casting the tie-breaking vote.

Now the issue moves behind the closed doors of a House-Senate conference committee that will iron out differences between the military appropriations bills passed by both chambers.

With Bush casing the tie-breaking vote, just as he did in July, the Senate agreed 47-46 Tuesday to provide $124 million for nerve gas production for the first time since 1969 when it was banned by President Nixon. The Senate then overwhelmingly passed a $253 billion military appropriations bill, 86-6, which also contains money for producing the first 21 MX nuclear

The House refused to appropriate the nerve gas money last week when it wrapped up work on its $247.3 billion military bill, so the issue must be resolved in the conference committee, which is expected to meet later

In other votes during three days of work, the Senate added $547 million to the military bill that was recommended by its Appropriations Committee, making it almost $6 billion over the House version.

Each bill contains more than 22,000 individual items, but Senate and House language on some of the biggest ones is identical.

Slack's 3 TDs, Crespo's Defense Highlight Week

After eight weeks of the regular football season, Lake Howell fullback Jay Robey continues to lead the rushers. Silver Hawk Darin Slack sets the pace for the passers, Lake Mary's Donald Grayson heads the receivers and Ram linebacker Bill Caughell is the top tackler.

Grayson, a funior, caught just one pass for 15 yards, but it was a big one which set up a Lake Mary TD. Grayson has 25 catches for 395 yards while Oviedo's Howard Lingard as 19 grabs for 386 yards.

Lyman's Mike Crespo turned in the strongest defensive performance of the week with eight tackles and five assists against conference-leading Apopka. Crespo and Slack were selected Burger King Players of the Week.

Robinson Injured In First Game Vanguard Ousts Oviedo, 15-5, 15-7

Herald Sports Writer

When you've lost your leader, it's extremely hard to win the battle. In the first game of Tuesday night's 3A-4 Regional volleyball title match between Oviedo's Lady Lions and the host Lady Knights of Ocala Vanguard, Oviedo's senior standout, Fayetta Robinson, went out with a knee injury.

Ocala Vanguard had a 9-4 lead when Robinson was sidelined and the injury was severe enough that she didn't return. The Lady Lions didn't have much of an attack after Robinson went out and the Lady Knights went on to a 15-5, 15-7 victory.

'We were leading for a while with her (Fayetta) in there," Oviedo coach Anita Carlson said. "But, we came apart when she got hurt. We don't know how bad it is yet, she went to see the dooter this morining."

Behind Robinson's play, the Lady Lions built an early 4-2 lead in the first game. Ocala Vanguard then came back, thanks to a few Oviedo missed serves, with seven straight points to take a 9-4 lead and that's when Robinson injured her knee. Oviedo scored only one more point in the first game as Vanguard inched closer to the the score at 8-7, in favor of the Lady Knights, a missed serve by Oviedo gave it back to Vanguard and the Knights reeled off three points for a 10-7 lead. Another missed serve enabled Vanguard to regain the serve and they went on to clinch the match.

"Serving is usually our main strength," Carlson said. "We were consistent in serving the entire season, but we couldn't get our serves in last night. Our most consistent server, Mary Lokers, missed two serves in a row."

The Vanguard team did not play the power type of volleyball the Lady Lions are accustomed to, but, after losing Robinson, Oviedo's power game suffered tremendously. "You never know what would have happened if Fayetta would have been in the whole match." Carlson said.

Oviedo ended the season with a 17-5 record and its second straight district title. The Lady Lions lost to Tampa Catholic in last year's regionals.

In 4A regional action, District 9 champion DeLand lost a three-set match to Orlando Evans, 4-15, 15-13, 15-7. DeLand defeated Lake Howell in the district finals to

Pell Warns: Gators Better Beware Of Upstart Kentucky

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) - With his team coming off two heartbreaking losses, Florida Coach Charley Pell warns the Gators had better beware of upstart

'We've extended ourselves emotionally the last two weekends," Pell said of Florida's losses to Auburn and Georgia. "We'll have to pick ourselves up off the ground.

"It's going to be very hard to prepare. We'll know more about the people on this team after this weekend." The recent defeats left the Gators 6-2-1 overall and 3-2 in the Southeastern Conference and dropped them to

"We've come so very close," Pell said Tuesday at his weekly news conference. "I don't know of any other team who's had to play the No. 3 and 4 teams back-to-back. We did it, and there was only an eight-point difference (28-21 against Auburn and 10-9 against Georgia) between us."

Kentucky also stands 6-2-1 overall and is 2-2 in the back in last Saturday's loss to Georgia conference. The Wildcats beat Vanderbilt last weekend, 17-8, to clinch their first winning season since 1977. They're a very determined team," Pell said. "They're very similar to our 1980 team. Just like us, they didn't win the year-before and now they're hungry.' Kentucky finished 0-10-1 last year in Coach Jerry Claiborne's first season back at his alma mater.

Florida was 0-10-1 in 1979, Pell's first season in Gainesville. The next year, Florida fashioned an 8-4 record that included a Tangerine Bowl victory over Maryland — which was coached by Claiborne.

Pell said quarterback Wayne Peace suffered a bruised

3 Ingredients Make A Good Player

Making your practices more meaningful.

There are three basic ingredients that go into the making of a good tennis player. The first is natural ability or motor skills, the second is good instruction and the third is plain hard work or practice.

If I were to put those three items in order of importance, in my opinion, practice would go first. natural ability second and good instruction would rate third. Now, it's true that if you take any one of the three and throw it out the quality of the product will suffer. but if you have all of the athletic ability in the world and don't practice you can never be very

If you have the best instruction in the world but never practice, you will never be very good. Hitting the ball, running, doing realistic drills, trying as hard as you can every minute of time you spend on the practice court and playing meaningful practice matches, all of these things are vital to becoming a simply can't use them. If you have a good tennis player.

Many people simply do not know how to practice. They will go to the courts, open a can of balls and start to hit. If you observe them for a very serious about improving. Someone long period of time, you will see that most of the time is spent in walking after the balls or talking and very little time is spent actually hitting a ball. Really only about 15 percent of as many balls as possible, about running after every shot, about working on your weaknesses, about getting in some actual sets.

You should be very tired after a good hour practice session if it is done right — and you should have hit hundreds of balls in that time. The following suggestions may help you learn to practice more meaningful and really improve your game - not to mention getting you in much better physical condition.

First of all take as many tennis halls to the courts with you as possible. Don't throw your old balls away until they are so bad you couple of dozen balls to practice with you will not always be chasing

Practice with someone who is also who will drill with you on weaknesses, one who will try all the time.

Have a specific plan in mind when you go out to practice. Don't just hit a few balls and then start playing. the time in a two hour practice. You might want to work on certain session of this nature is spent in strokes or certain situations for say an hour, and then play a couple of Player A will drop hit the ball to sets for an hour. This seems to be a good mix. There are some players the net, player A drop hits the who just want to play sets and there second ball to player B but the shot are also those who just want to hit.

Work on your weaknesses. There practice partner feed you balls to that spot so that you can hit it over and over again. This is the only way you can groove it and the only way you can ever develop confidence in

Run after every ball. I see a lot of players practicing who will only hit the ball if it is right to them. They even get angry at their partner if they have to move to hit a ball. Tennis is a game of movement. You must gain the habit of moving your feet, in practice go after every ball even if its in the doubles alley.

Practice all strokes. You may have a great serve or a great net game but you still need constant practice even on your strong shots. They won't stay strong unless you ware on them often.

Cross training is important. It is very useful to do other types of training off the tennis court that will help your game when you get on the court. Some very important activities include lots of stretching before and after you practice. You will gain flexibility which really helps your tennis. Running, jogging, or walking is great for any tennis player. The more you can get in each week the better it will be for your over-all physical condition. Some weight training or Natulius training is valuable to most tennis players. They, of course, help certain muscle groups become stronger but also help your stamina and flexibility. Other activities that are good to combine with tennis include cycling and swimming. Both are great over all conditions and will only improve your over-all fitness which affects your tennis in a very positive

Above all try to get on the courts as often as you can. Once or twice a week is really not enough if you want to really improve. A serious tennis player needs to play at least four times per week and preferably more. At any rate, though, if you will use your practice time wisely

Dolphins Take 4 Of 5 From Jackson Heights

Two of the powerhouses in the Seminole Youth Sports Association football league - Jackson Heights' Bobcats and the Lakeview Dolphins squared off at Sylvan Lake Park Saturday, and the Dolphins claimed four victories in the five games.

The lone Bobcat victory was a special one for coach Jim Norton and his squad as it recorded its first victory of the year with a 12-0 blanking of the Dolphins. Kevin Blage scored on a three-yard run in the first quarter and Eric Bryant added an insurance TD in the second quarter from 16 yards out Bryant had set up the first TD with a 17-yard scamper. The Bobcat defense did the rest behind another strong effort from Bryant who had 15 tackles to lead the Bobcats.

Bryant ran for 70 yards in 10 carries while Kimsey Hall added 20 yards in even tries.

"The inside running game of Kimsey Hall and Harlan Wilcoxson with the outside threat of Bryant kept the Dolphins' defense off balance," said Norton.

Norton cited Anthony Mays, Shawn Canning, Frank Morton, Robert Harrigton and David Niren for strong defensive efforts.

Murphy Repeats As MVP Raines Comes In 5th

NEW YORK (UPI) - Outflelder Dale Murphy, whose aff-round skills kept the Atlanta Braves in NL West Division pennant confection until the final days of the season, was named the National League's Most one-siden than it was a year ago Valuable Player for the second year in a row Tuesday by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

The 27-year-old center fielder became only the fourth player in league history to win MVP honors in successive seasons. He joins Ernie Banks of Chicago (1958-59), Joe Morgan of Cincinnati (1975-76) and Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia (1980-81) as back-to-back winners of the award, which was first presented in 1931.

Murphy, who batted .302 with 36 homers and 121 RBI, received 21 first place votes and 313 points from the 24 writers - two from each NL city - who participated in the balloting to easily outdistance outfielder Andre Dawson of the Montreal Expos. Dawson received one first place vote and 213 points.

Schmidt, a third baseman, Unished third with one first place vote and 191 points and third baseman Pedro Guerrero of Los Angeles was fourth with one first place vote and 182 points.

Rounding out the top 10 votegetters, in order were outfielder Tim Raines of Montreal (83 points). outfielder Jose Cruz of Houston (76), shortstop Dickle Thon of Houston (67), third baseman Bill Madlock of Pittsburgh (45), rely.f pitcher Al Holland of Philadelphia (42) and eatcher Terry Kennedy of

San Diego (37). Each writer votes for 10 players and points are awarded on a 14, 9, Murphy's victory was even more probably the most valuable com-when he beat out St. Louis outfielder Lonnie Smith for the award. Murphy amassed 283 points last year and beat Smith by 65 points.

Besides his 21 first place votes, Murphy was named second on two ballots and fifth on another. Murphy, Dawson, Schmidt and Guerrero were the only players to be named on all 24 ballots.

A quadruple threat star who can beat you with his bat, glove, throwing arm or running speed. Murphy led the league in RBI and slugging percentage (.540), was second in home runs and runs scored (131) and finished third in on-base percentage. He also stole 30 bases, making him only the sixth player in major league history to accumulate at least 30 homers and 30 stolen bases in a season.

A devout Mormon who doesn't smoke or drink, Murphy epitomizes the work ethic. While most players probably would have rested on their laurels after winning an MVP award, Murphy went to the Florida Instructional League two weeks rero batted .298 with 32 homers after the 1982 season ended to work on improving his batting skills.

Under manager Joe Torre's tutelage, Murphy learned to hit the ball with authority to right field and he "Li'l Abner" look-alike, took an handle the pitch on the fists. The results were an improvement of 21 points in his batting average, an increase of 12 RBI and a reduction in strikeouts from 134 to 110.

"I'd say he is probably the best all-round player in either league, boyish-looking Atlanta Braves outmodity in baseball right now," said baseball's all-time home run king Hank Aaron, the Braves' vice president of player development and an all-round star himself during his playing days.

Murphy's stiffest competition for baseball's best all-round player comes from Dawson. The 29-yearold center fielder hit .299 with 32 homers and 113 RBI and also scored 104 runs. However, he went into a terrible slump over the last two weeks of the season when the Expos needed him most and that no doubt cost him several first place votes.

Schmidt hit only .255 but had 40 homers, tops in the majors, and drove in 109 runs in leading the Phillies to the NL East title. Guerand 103 RBI in sparking the Dodgers to the NL West pennant.

Gossage Tests Waters, Look For Him To Return To Yanks burnout, either, if it comes down to

NEW YORK (UPI) - Look, how ean you blame Goose Gossage? They're all saying he has lost a little off his fastball, so he was curtous to see how much. He was anxious to see how many clubs are still Interested in him. He wanted to test the water, and now that he has, you can look for him to be back at the same old swimming hole next summer.

Things change lightning-quickly in this space age of ours. Only a few days ago, Gossage seemed ticketed for the Angels. They hadn't exactly made it a secret they were going to do everything they possibly could to get him. Gossage had dropped some hints himself he wouldn't be back with the Yankees. His agent, Jerry Kapstein, said last week that alltalks with George Steinbrenner had come to a standstill and the big 32-year-old right-handed reliever "definitely" was going through the re-entry draft. Well, Gossage did on Monday and 11 clubs officially declared their intention of negotiating with him. Only one made any real commitment, though, and that was his old club, the Yankees.

They retained their rights to him. claiming him for the second time in six years, and I'm positive that was no off-the-cuff remark Murray Cook. the Yankees' general manager. made but one straight from the man who signs the checks, when he said "we feel our commitment is to sign Gossage.' The Angels were among the clubs who requested negotiation rights to Gossage, although somewhere along the line their interest in him quite obviously seems to have diminished.

"I think the Yankees will get him," and should get him, because as far as I'm concerned, he is a Yankee," sald Angels GM Buzzle Bavasi from Anaheim, "From what I've heard about Gossage, I believe he's going to go where he can do the Job and be happy at the same time." The other clubs who selected

Gossage were the world champion Orioles, Braves, White Sox, Indians, A's, Pirates, Padres, Glants. Rangers and Blue Javs. Baltimore's Hank Peters called Gossage "a highly desirable pitcher," but didn't hold out much hope of getting him.

"On the basis of the interest shown in him, it is rather doubtful that we'll be successful in signing him," Peters said. "I can visualize some club will go all out trying to sign him and that will lead to a bidding contest in which we wouldn't be interested."

Peterson wasn't overly optimistic about landing Gossage.

"We're not going to give a player in the draft a whole lot more money than a comparative player on our club," he said.

Gabe Paul of the Indians didn't sound that enthusiastic, either, even though they were one of the clubs to draft him.

"We're going to find out what the situation is on Gossage and then we'll assess it," Paul said, and you can interpret that as meaning the Indians aren't planning to play any kind of bidding contest. Now why would Gossage ever choose to go with a club like Cleveland, you ask, when others; like Rick Sutcliffe, Gorman Thomas, ... Ron Hassey and Jim Essian are in such a hurry to leave It? Well, one theory has it Marvin Davis is about to purchase the club and then move it to Denver, which would be right up Gossage's alley since he lives in nearby Colorado Springs. But that's all theory.

The fact is Donald Trump, the multimillionaire real estate man who is going around buying up half of Manhattan and tried to get Don Shula to coach his New Jersey Generals, is hot after the Indians. He's supposed to be the leading candidate to get them but there is no rush on the part of the other American League owners to approve him as the new owner for a variety of reasons.

Darrel Evans, the Giants' home run hitting first baseman, was selected by the most clubs, 17, and Kent Tekulve, the Pirates' skinny reliever, was next line with 12 clubs Likewise, Pittsburgh's Harding drafting him. The Yankees, who went only for Evans and no one else, passed up Tekulve, thereby lending support to the belief they feel confident they are going to get Gossage back.

> Newsmen kept asking Cook about Gossage and about stories to the ct Gossage said he didn't wish to return to New York and play for Billy Martin anymore.

"Goose or lifs agent never said anything to me that he would not return to New York," Cook explained.

Student Shares Perfect Holiday Entertaining Ideas

By Lou Childers Herald Correspondent

When you're young, you sometimes cook the way you learned from friends and family members. That's exactly how this week's cook, Barbara Childers of Geneva, is doing it.

Barbara has a few favorite recipes - most of them with a foreign flair - that she has collected over the past five years. "For the creamiest scalloped potatoes you've ever tasted," says Barbara, "try Polish Scalloped Potntoes." This is a recipe that her good friend, Jennie Jodlowski, of Orlando taught her how to make. It has mushrooms in it for a change in flavor. Then, Barbara says, "Perfect for entertaining during the holidays, especially if you are planning a buffet, is my grandmother's German Potato Salad," Barb's grandmother, Mary Peterson of Winter Park, gets the credit for passing this one on to her. It is a family tradition.

No matter what the fare, it seems that Hawaiian Delight makes the gathering a total success. This delicious dish can be served as a salad or a dessert. Be sure to take extra copies of the recipe with you if you ever take this to a covered dish dinner, because your friends will want to know how to make it, too.

What party would be complete without chips and dip? Barbara likes to make Mexican Bean Dip in the microwave. It is sure to be the rave, and the nice part about it, it takes about 10 minutes to make.

"I'm proud to be an American, too," says Barbara. And what could be more All-American than meatloaf. Again, she likes to use the microwave, and the baking time is count down to 30 minutes.

Barbara is a recent graduate of Oviedo High School and is attending Seminole Community College. She likes to plan entire menus. Her favorite includes Southern Fried Chicken, REAL mashed potatoes, green beans blender and blend until smooth. Pour into bacon almondine, tossed salad, iced tea and French Apple Pie.

TIPS & TECHNIQUES

Heating soups — soups are easily prepared and heated in a variety of serving containers. Heat canned ready-to-serve soups loosely covered. Prepare desired canned condensed soup in a measuring cup and heat uncovered. Packaged dry soup mix is quickly prepared in a mug or serving bowl. Stir soups before serving.

Freezing soup and reheating - Whether you've prepared a double batch of your favorite homemade soup of have smaller portions of soup left over, you can freeze it and reheat it quickly in the microwave oven.

Line a microwave oven-safe dish or soup bowl with a double thickness of foil or clear plastic wrap, or use a heavy-duty plastic bag. Fill with desired amount of soup. Freeze until solid. Remove from bowl; seal, label, and store in the freezer.

To reheat, unwrap and return soup to bowl. Do not freeze soups containing flour or cornstarch because these ingredients break down and become grainy when thawed.

raise turkeys on the family farm.

But before long, it's time for Christmas banquets and restaurant, cooking turkeys for thousands of hungry catered parties, and the crowds seem to just keep on coming all the way through to Easter and Mother's Day. Adams began by raising turkeys on the ferm, graduated to dishwasher and busboy in the restaurant cook the stuffing in arate pan, not in the bird. and eventually attended the Culinary Institute of

That's why they cringe when they think of the overcooking I cook a 25-pound turkey in 2 1/2 hours dried-out, overcooked, unsatisfying turkeys carved on that's without the legs and the wings. thousands of dining room tables every Thanksgiving.

If that describes your holiday bird, Adams has three words of advice: "Don't stuff it." If that's not heresy, it's downright un-American in some people's minds, but Adams says it makes sense to

"There's a lot of people that'll swear up and down by their stuffing, and it is good," he said. "But it's extremely dangerous when you stuff a turkey. If everything is not cold when you stuff it, a lot of times it can spoil on you. The other thing is that the Adams said it's not necessary to cook a turkey to 180 degrees, the temperature some recipes call for to prevent the growth of bacteria.

"At 160 degrees, you're very, very, very safe and your bird's not overcooked," he said. "It won't fall apart, it's not dry and it's much easier to slice."

Adams doesn't expect Americans to give up the beef they love so much, but he said more and more are adding more low-cholesterol, high-protein foods like turkey to their diet.

"It's easy to use the whole thing and It's real easy to cook," he said. "They're making so many products out of it now, like turkey pastramis and hams.

FDA Controls Food Additives

What do baking powder, paprika, and vitamin C have in common? They are food additives. In simplest terms, food additives are natural or synthetic substances added to food either directly or indirectly during manufacturing. Often, samiliar substances are listed on labels using unfamiliar scientific names assigned by food scientists. For example, monocalcium phospate, a leavening agent, is a type of baking powder. Oleoresin paprika, a color and flavor enhancer, is the scientific name for paprika. Ascorbic acid, a nutrient and antioxidant, is simply vitamin C.

Throughout history. substances have been added to foods - both in the home and commercially - ior many reasons. They preserve freshness: add color and flavor; improve nutritive value, texture and consistency; and control acidity and alkalinity. Today, additives are most frequently used as flavoring agents and nutrients.

Synthetically derived additives are usually patterned after their natural counterparts. For example, carotene, a color enhancer extracted from carrots, has the same chemical structure as carotene produced in the laboratory. Furthermore, the additives used in homemade foods are similar to their commercial counterparts in manufactured foods. For example, baking powder, a common ingredient in a cake made from scratch. resembles the commercial leavening agent in a cake

In the past, Americans grew and prepared most of their own food. Before refrigeration, people relied on additives, particularly salt, to preserve their food. Today, only 2% of the U.S. population grows food for the remaining 98%. Americans enjoy an abundant and varied food supply due to a sophisticated production and distribution system. Additives allow this system to function, keeping foods safe and palatable - from farmer to dining table.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is responsible for the safety of food additives, and evaluation is an ongoing process. Since 1958, the Administration has strictly regulated additives. A manufacturer seeking approval for a new additive must file a petition containing scientific evidence that the additive is safe. It often taks years for new additives to gain approval.

A recently updated booklet from Kraft, en-titled "Additives and Our Food Heritage," compares the historical and modern use of additives. The booklet also includes a chart listing some common additives and their functions and provides further information on FDA regulations. For a free copy, send a post card to: The Consumer's Right

Tradition Teams With Contemporary

Holidays are a time for tradition and for doing things the same way year after year. Grandma's favorite recipes are always prepared. It just wouldn't seem right any other way.

But lifestyles have changed. More mothers are working. The kids are too. Finding time to do everything is turning out to be the biggest problem during the

When the turkey comes from the oven, let it stand at room temperature for 15 to 20 minutes before slicing. It will cut more easily. An important part of a holiday meal is a good sharp knife. It will make a world of difference in the appearance of the slices and in the disposition of Another tip for making the meal easier to serve is to prepare the gravy in advance. While the turkey is roasting, simmer the giblets with liquid, herbs and vegetables. Use this stock to make the gravy. To make a rich-colored gravy, use a color and flavor enhancer in place of the drippings. There'll be the traditional homemade taste without all the calories or fuss.

Turkey wouldn't be the same without dressing. This rice/sausage/apple variation tastes great. Rice, perhaps the most ancient of foods, is also a modern convenience food. Uncooked, it can be stored at room temperature, ready to measure with other dressing ingredients just before baking. Cooking the dressing separately, rather than using to stuff the turkey, saves time in preparation, roasting and serving.

Cranberries are the traditional turkey accompaniment. They become even more special when mixed with fruit cocktail raspberry flavor gelatin, and blue cheese. The piquant, domestically aged blue cheese is used in the dressing as well. It is indeed a special blend of flavors for this special meal. Find time the day before to prepare the molded salad. The flavors blend and mellow overnight while yu rest easy knowing there's one less dish to prepare.

Tradition doesn't need to go out the window when an easier-to-prepare-and-serve meal is put on the table. Perhaps this one will become a tradition in its own right.

FILLETING A TURKEY

This simple method yields large slices of breast meat for an attractive platter.

1. REMOVING LEG, THIGH, AND WING Start with an extremely sharp knife.

Place turkey on a cutting board. Remove drumstick and thigh in one piece by pulling leg away from bird and slicing through the joint. Separate leg and thigh by cutting through the connecting joint. Remove bones and slice meat, if desired.

Remove wings by pulling them away from the body and cutting through the joint closest to the breast. Separate the wing into sections at the joints for serving, discarding tip.

2. REMOVING BREAST

The breast will be removed in two sections. Make a vertical cut along the entire length of the breastbone about I inch deep until you reach the bone Place fingers in the slit and peel the meat away by pulling with your hand and slicing with the knife.

3. SLICING BREAST Place the breast sections on cutting board; starting at the small end, make thin diagonal alices at a 45° angle. Arrange the light and dark meat on platter and garnish with paraley and fruit-filled orange shells, if

Substitute Squash For Spaghetti

The produce counters are plied high with many variations of squash. They come in many colors, shapes, and sizes. The squash is a member of the gourd family. There are two main types, summer and winter. We are fortunate in that we have available both kinds year-round.

When selecting this vegetable, look for firm, well-shaped squash without soft spots. The squash should be heavy for its size. Since so many varieties are available now, try some of the ones that are unfamiliar to you. You will be pleasantly surprised at the different tastes and textures.

The spaghetti squash looks much like strands of spaghetti on the inside. It can be used instead of pasta, served with tomato sauce or as an accompaniment to meat.

'Bill On His Own'

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) - The world of Bill Sackter comes back to television in a movie sequel author Barry Morrow said is not the final chapter in the story of a man wrongfully held 44 years in a mental institution. The publicity generated by Mickey Rooney's portrayal of Bill in the first movie, and Bill's death in June of natural causes, are not mentioned in the sequel, Bill: On His Own.

It will be shown on CBS tonight at 9.

Tonight's production picks up where Bill left off, with Morrow leaving Sackter to fend for himself in the Iowa City coffee shop he ran after Morrow helped obtain his release from the Minnesota institu-

Arafat Considers Cease-Fire Offer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) - Yasser Arafat's guerrillas. driven into the port city of Tripoli by a relentless onslaught from Syrian-backed Palestinian rebels, today considered an Arab cease-fire offer, political sources

Arafat aides in Cyprus and dissident officials in the Syrian capital of Damascus confirmed the offer by the foreign ministers of Kuwait. Qatar and Saudi Arabia, but both sides denied that a cease-fire agreement had been

They said heavy fighting and artillery exchanges between the Palestinian factions in northern Lebanon superceded the peace efforts. State-run Beirut Radio said the fighting around Tripoli, 45 miles north of Beirut, gained momentum early today after an overnight lull. "The fighting and long-range shelling intensified this morning. The fighting is particularly heavy around the Beddawi refugee camp and the northern suburbs of

despite a fierce defense put up by Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization loyalists. "It is a matter of time before we capture Beddawi," said a Damascus spokesman for Col. Said (Abu Mousa) Mousa, who sparked a mutiny in May against Arafat over what the PLO rebels claim is Arafat's too-moderate policy toward Israel.

Lebanese police estimated more than 100 people had been killed and at least 300 wounded in the six-day rebel assault that drove Arafat and most of his 5,000 PLO guerrillas from two refugee camps north of Tripoli.

There was confusion whether Arafat was still in Tripoli. One report Tuesday said a helicopter ferried him to a French warship, out of reach of Israeli gunboats patrolling the Mediterranean sea off Tripoli.

In Paris, a French navy spokeswoman denied the
