

School Heads To Study Problems Of Administration

DAYTONA BEACH, June 6.—Prominent educators from practically all Southern states began on Monday, June 3, a special two weeks' conference study on three important school administrative problems.

The State Department of Education and the University of Florida are co-operating in the work-conference and both Colin English, state superintendent, and President John J. Thwait of the university, will participate in certain phases of the meeting.

In general charge is Dr. Edgar L. Morphet, director of administration and finance of the state department.

Continuity of service for teachers, operation and maintenance of school buildings, are the three problems to which the conference will direct attention. Sessions of the Southern States Work-Conference will be held at the North Seabreeze school.

It was announced that the representatives from various southern states would come here at their own expense to work on their own programs. The Florida Work-Conference committee is to convene here for the two weeks period and then go to Gainesville for another four weeks term.

The advisory staff for the conference here will include a number of school administration specialists, among them Dr. H. F. Alvis, and Dr. Howard A. Lawson, Washington, D. C. John C. Powles, Madison, Wis. James L. Graham, supervisor of school plant planning, and T. George Walker, supervisor of transportation and manager of the state textbook service, both of the State department, will assist Dr. Morphet in the conference.

Reasons Are Given For Small Amount Of Cold Damage

Five reasons why the extremely low temperatures in Florida this winter resulted in much less permanent injury than would naturally be expected were given by A. E. Nelson, assistant field manager for the California Fruit Growers Exchange, in his report following three months survey in Florida recently completed, which was received in part by The Herald recently.

The five reasons given by Mr. Nelson for Florida's ability to withstand the unseasonably cold weather are:

1. There was a high degree of dormancy due to cold weather since early December. Abnormal low rainfall increased this dormancy.
2. Inversion of temperature was common during the freeze. In many instances temperatures a few feet from the ground were from 4 to 6 degrees colder than those 10 feet in the groves.
3. The multitude of lakes, particularly the larger ones in the citrus belt, had a tendency to moderate temperature in nearby groves. Winter Haven has approximately 100 lakes within the city limits, according to Nelson.
4. Much of the orange and grapefruit crop was late-bloom, and it showed less frost damage than the earlier crop.

California said he found this hard to believe, but careful investigations showed this condition to be general throughout the State.

5. Improved fertilizer practices using some of the minor soil elements such as copper, zinc, manganese and magnesium clearly increased resistance of trees and fruit to frost. Nelson emphasized that such practices could not be expected to apply as well in California, for the Florida soils as a whole are very sandy and lack a number of the essential minor elements.

The fruit inspection services in Florida were highly praised by Mr. Nelson for their efficient work after the freeze. He also commented favorably on the fine support on the part of the industry itself.

Florida Grapefruit Exports To Britain Show Drastic Drop

LAKELAND, June 6.—Florida's export business on canned grapefruit is showing the effects of England's import licensing requirement, with only 2,061,000 pounds exported during April, compared with 8,969,000 pounds during the same month a year ago. These figures are contained in a report from the department of commerce just received by the citrus commission.

April's canned grapefruit exports are valued at $144,000, compared with $369,000 for April 1938.

Total canned grapefruit exports for ten months ending

April are higher than in 1938, however. The government's figures show 48,705,000 pounds exported during the last ten months, compared with 35,321,000 pounds for a similar period ending April 1938. Value of these exports for the last ten months is $1,917,000, compared with $1,917,000 for the same period a year ago.

Exports of fresh oranges and grapefruit also showed a drastic drop, due to the war. Oranges showed the greatest decline, from 1,325,000 boxes in April 1938 to 585,000 boxes in April this year. Only about half as many oranges have been exported during the last ten months as during the same period a year ago. The figures are 3,378,000 boxes during the last ten months, and 6,445,000 boxes for the same period a year ago. Eighty-three thousand boxes of grapefruit were exported in April this year, compared with 168,000 boxes in April 1938. The government's report does not show the origin of these oranges and grapefruit exports.

FDR Asks For Power To Sell To Allies

President Would Dispose Of World War Cannon Used Now In Fighting Nazi Tanks

50 Navy Planes Go To Britain

Authority Would Clear Way For Large Supplies To Allies

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today asked Congress for the power to dispose of surplus goods as well as ammunition and warplanes through a legal channel which might release those urgently needed munitions to the Allies.

Authorizing the Navy to purchase surplus warplanes which were turned over to the fighting forces of France and Britain, the President said the power to be granted authority to turn to the old war stock.

While he did not say so, it is apparent this would clear the way for the Allies to obtain large quantities of such weapons as the 75 millimeter guns the British are using extensively in fighting German tank attacks.

The United States Navy last week reported that it had received 50 surplus warplanes from the British.

Mr. Roosevelt said they were the best planes in the world and that they would be turned over to the British for use in the Mediterranean.

The President also announced that he had authorized the War Relocation Authority to dispose of surplus goods as well as ammunition and warplanes through a legal channel which might release those urgently needed munitions to the Allies.

Dr. R. E. Stevens, C. C. Priests Dies Unexpectedly Of Heart Attack

Return From New York Fair

Prominent Physician Was Chief Of Staff At State Hospital

Dr. Ralph E. Stevens, Sr., chief physician at the State Hospital for the insane at Chatterahoochee since July, 1936, died suddenly of a heart attack at the home of his sister at 631 Park Avenue last night about 10:30 p.m.

Funeral services have been held at the funeral home at 631 Park Avenue at 10 o'clock at the First Presbyterian Church here.

With his family, Dr. Stevens was enroute to Havana, Cuba for the annual convention there of the Rotary International and had stopped in Sanford, where he lived and practiced medicine for a number of years, to visit his sister, Miss Rebecca Stevens, local school teacher, who was to have accompanied the party on the trip this morning.

Dr. Stevens was widely known in Florida. He had served as chief physician of the State Hospital for nearly four years and prior to the time had served at the Veterans Hospital at Bay Pines and as physician for the City of St. Petersburg. He was a World War Veterans member and a member of the Florida National Guard here. He was president of the Chatterahoochee Rotary Club and had been a member of the Sanford Rotary Club.

Dr. Stevens was born in the city of Sanford, Fla., on Feb. 21, 1874. He graduated from the University of North Carolina in 1898 and graduated from the Jefferson Medical College at Philadelphia, Pa., in 1902.

He opened an office for practice in Sanford in 1917 and served as the United States Army in the Medical Corps as first lieutenant and served overseas with the 88th Engineers of the Eighteenth Division. He was later promoted to captain and served in a regimental hospital in France during the war.

He received from Gen. John G. Harbo, 4th division, an exceptional gallantry award for his service in France during the war.

He was a member of the Sanford Rotary Club and the Sanford Chamber of Commerce.

Those Who Stay Must Do So At Own Risk, Embassy In London Announces Today

LONDON, June 7.—(AP)—The American Embassy today urged all Americans without urgent reasons for remaining to return home aboard the liner Washington leaving Galway, Ireland, about the middle of June because it said this might be the last opportunity until after the war. It warned those not taking advantage of this opportunity "must be prepared to remain at home."

Somme Line Holds While Allies Wreak New Havoc With Nazi Tank Columns

GERMANS PRESS MIGHTY OFFENSIVE IN FRANCE

Here is the theater of war in France as it many pushes its double-thrust action in an effort to hit the Allies and bring France to her knees.

French Report Cannon-Equipped Airplanes Destroy Over 400 German Tanks

Fighting Hand To Hand Is Reported

Berlin Acknowledges Invasion Meets With Stiffest Resistance

Cannon-equipped Allied planes wreaked new havoc on German tank columns driving into France in the 3-day-old battle for Paris as the Nazi high command asserted in a brief communique that the Weygand Line was broken through on the "entire front."

Meanwhile, the ominous hint of Italy's imminent entrance into the war came when an Italian line in New York reported all Italian ships on the high seas had been ordered to leave neutral ports and all sailings were cancelled. Asked if it meant war, the line manager said "I don't know, but it looks like it."

The French said the 800-mile front is being held firmly against the fury of the German onslaught and that French and British planes have destroyed 400 tanks.

Polius were reported fighting fiercely with rifles, bayonets and hand grenades.

Scottish highlanders supporting their French comrades in the lower Somme battled in their shirt sleeves in the still-line heat.

London military quarters reported the situation along the Somme-Aisne Line "is not too bad—in fact it's pretty good."

Authorized Nazis in Berlin proclaimed Germany's war aims in blunt terms: annihilation of France and annihilation of England.

The French government radio reported two-thirds of the Nazi air force's famous dive-bombing units have been destroyed.

Aside from an official Nazi communique claiming breakthrough through the Weygand Line—a statement unsupported by details, Berlin acknowledged the German invasion was meeting the stiffest resistance.

It gave three reasons:

The French were not taken by surprise.

The new "quicksand" defense strategy devised by Weygand presents a "real problem" to the Hitlerian juggernaut.

The French are using far heavier arms "than the invaders might expect."

The Germans bombed central France and the English coast. There were but few casualties. The British bombed German supply lines.

British bombing planes, attempting to stem the German Blitzkrieg along the Somme, were sweeping deep behind the Nazi advance lines and heavily bombing military objectives in the valley and other parts of the Reich, the Air Ministry reported yesterday.

Medium and heavy bombers of the Royal Air Force struck smashing blows at German troop concentrations and harassed enemy movements behind the fighting front. The Ministry said while British coastal command planes bombed and machine-gunned oil tanks at the German-occupied Belgium City of Ghent early yesterday.

The attacks were reported after German planes had raided a 250-mile stretch of the English coast, seeking to knock out aircraft from which BAE planes were attacking the German Army of the Somme. The Nazi raids were described officially as the first "business" attack of the war on the coast.

Greatest activity of the British planes, which were said to have shot down six enemy planes with but one loss to themselves, was directed against German lines of communication behind the front.

State Asks WPA To Begin Work On Livestock Market

Restrictions On Securities Is Now Forbidden

Funds are available for the State share of the WPA project for the construction of a livestock auction market in connection with the present facilities at the State Farmers' Wholesale Market and the agriculture department "is anxious for the work to begin."

The district office of the WPA was advised in a letter from William L. Wilson, State director of markets, according to H. J. Lehman, local market manager.

A copy of the letter which was sent to J. M. Grogins, district WPA supervisor, by the State Market Director is as follows:

"We would like to have the construction of the Sanford Livestock Market commence at once since funds are now available and we are anxious for the work to begin. Please let us know what you want out of this office."

Representatives Attend Informal Orlando Meeting

Representative E. E. Brady and John G. Leonardy attended the informal meeting in Orlando yesterday of members who have been nominated to serve in the 1941 session of the Florida Legislature.

Representative John S. Burks of Pasco county, frequently mentioned as a candidate for Speaker of the 1941 Legislature, said yesterday he would not continue in the race and that he would support Representative F. E. Harrell of Hamilton county.

Burks' statement cut to four the number of persons in the race. Representative George E. Holt of Duval and Representative L. C. Ledy of Orange withdrew Wednesday night and said they would support Representative Dan McCarthy of St. Leon.

Other candidates are Representative Raymond Sheldon of Hillsborough and Representative W. P. Crockett of Dixie.

Nominations for the 1941 Legislature will meet in Tallahassee July 20 to make their selection of a Speaker.

Burks said he would support Harrell because the Hamilton county seat will be in Harrell's home town in service with few consecutive sessions behind him.

Next Sunday To Be Sanford Day At The Mead Botanical Gardens

When ground was broken two years ago on the Mead Botanical Garden, the 44-acre tract consisted of a dense jungle, a 20-acre swamp and an abandoned city dump. The undergrowth in many places was so heavy that a trail less than a city block in length required an entire day to cut. High top-boots were necessary equipment for penetration, and each footstep had to be chosen carefully, because of the swampy character of the ground.

A crew of 75 men set to work, drained the swamp, cut trails and cleared undergrowth. But the trails were not cut and the undergrowth cleared in such a way as to preserve the natural beauty of a Florida jungle. There are bay trees, wild magnolias, native holly and native oaks. There are colorful ferns and tree shrubs and many birds nesting in the protection of a garden sanctuary. There are many varieties of wild flowers and widely varied trees.

But the Mead Botanical Garden has more to offer than the wild and lovely beauty of a natural Florida wilderness. Along the trails are particularly lovely spots where many rare and beautiful plants are growing. There are a number of rare and beautiful plants growing in the garden.

Restrictions On Securities Is Now Forbidden

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—The Government clamped restrictions today in an order designed to block the sale of such wealth seized from owners in Europe's invaded countries.

Treasury officials said they were acting to prevent the "dumping" in this country's markets of securities that may have been seized from "rightful owners" in Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway and Luxembourg.

They said they had no information as to whether Germany had confiscated any securities in the invaded countries or was trying to peddle them here, but they decided to take precautionary measures.

Stop Hitler In France

With the sale of 50 U. S. Navy warplanes to the Allies last night, the federal government has taken the position of actively assisting the French and British in their fight against Germany. To be sure the transaction was accomplished by a subterfuge—that is, the planes were turned back by the Navy to the manufacturers, who are now at liberty to sell them to the Allies—this technically the United States government avoids the implication of openly aiding Germany's enemy.

Personally we do not like to resort to subterfuges at any time, much less when the civilization of the entire world is at stake. If the federal government believes it should actively aid in the cause of the Allies, we think it should do so openly and above board, without trying to pretend it is not helping them. We do not think that Hitler will be fooled in the slightest respect by such tactics.

However, it is better to help the Allies by subterfuge than not to help them at all. At present their backs are to the wall. They are hopelessly outnumbered in the air by German planes. There is grave danger that they may be completely overwhelmed within the next few weeks because of this one deficiency. Ultimately American airplane factories can outbuild the Germans, but in the meantime the Allies may lose the war.

There is bitter opposition in certain quarters against any help by our government to the hard pressed Allies. Senator Wheeler is one who regards it as likely to lead to war. Senator Lundeen insists that "it is getting into the war through the back door." Senator Reynolds says, "It is unquestionably an unneutral act," while Senator Holt declares, "another edging toward a declaration of war." Various "peace societies" are taking very much the same position.

We have complete sympathy for any father and mother with a son of military age who object to their country doing anything which is likely to cost the life of limb of their son. We do not blame them, or anybody, for wanting to keep out of war. We believe the President wants to avoid war. Senator Pepper wants to keep out of war. Certainly we want to keep out of war. The only question is how this can be done.

It was the unanimous verdict of every foreign correspondent or traveler a year or two ago that not a single country in Europe wanted war. If anyone wanted war, it was Hitler and Mussolini. Not even the German or Italian people wanted war. And yet nearly all Europe is at war today or has already been devastated by war. Certainly the Norwegians, the Dutch, and the Belgians did not want war. But the wish was not sufficient to save them.

What fathers and mothers, as well as the youth of America, have got to decide, is whether there is greater likelihood of war for us by being strictly neutral and hoping for the best, as other European countries have been doing, or by doing everything we can to assure an Allied victory. There is not a single responsible person in the United States who believes there will be any danger of war for the United States if the Allies win.

But there are millions of loyal clear-thinking Americans who feel absolutely certain that, if Hitler wins, his next goal will be South America, and the early destruction of American will resist including that of the United States. Those who argue "So what?" "Why resist?" have no conception of what life under a Hitler regime is like. Those who argue "preparedness and eventual single-handed resistance to Hitler" do not realize how long such preparedness would take, or how quickly Hitler will strike.

There is only one way, as we see it, to save our young men from such bloody battlefields as that of Flanders, guns, raw materials, and natural resources they need. They will be glad to furnish the men. Stop Hitler in France.

By Way Of Orient

That notable local delicacy known and spelled variously as "pearlo", "perlow", "pilaw" and pronounced p-i-k is a delectable concoction of rice, with meat, fowl, fish, etc. It is declared to have originated in the Orient. In the Near East they have a similar dish known as "pilaf." There is a French style of pilau which features almonds, raisins and curry powder. The Russian style calls for the use of tomatoes and shrimp.

So far as known pilau was introduced first into this country by the people of Salsburg, Austria, known as the Salsburgers, who landed at Savannah many years ago, and moved up the Savannah River.—St. Augustine Record.

War Increases The Number Of Migrant Families By Half

WASHINGTON, June 7.—The European war, Secretary Wallace has advised Congress may result in an increase from 250,000 to 500,000 in the number of migrant farm families who go about the United States looking for temporary work in orchards and fields.

This gloomy forecast from the secretary of agriculture became public yesterday with publication of Senate hearings on the annual relief bill.

The Senate agriculture committee has increased rural relief funds administered by the Farm Security Administration from the $118,000,000 voted by the House to $200,000,000. Wallace told the committee that it would cost the government less to make grants and loans to help low income families stay on farms, than it would to let them migrate and seek relief on rural or urban relief.

The agriculture secretary said that the war had created a new demand for rural relief.

Wallace is reported to have said that the war is forcing more and more people to leave their farms and seek relief in the cities.

Senator Wheeler Plays War Mongers In United States

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Senator Wheeler of Montana and Ben of Washington, both Democrats, took some of their Senate colleagues to task yesterday for what they said were public utterances leading to war hysteria.

Wheeler declared he was shocked and surprised at a remark by Senator King, Democrat, Utah, that Hitler is already making war on us by intruding in South America.

Wheeler said every effort of Senator Pepper (Iowa) to be convincing the country clear and clear to the hall of war.

Referring to Pepper by name Wheeler said, "Day by day we are being misled by the war mongers who are leading us to war."

DIFFERENT WORLDS

AN END OF NEUTRALITY

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE

In the judgment of this newspaper the time has come for the United States to stand up before the nations of the world and declare that while respecting its non-belligerence, its neutrality in respect to the European war has come to an end.

That neutrality has always misrepresented the basic convictions of the American people. The sympathies of the nation stood with the Allies from the start. But it seemed to the generally of Americans that by holding aloof from the European scene, by practicing an extreme of neutrality, criticizing far beyond anything required by international law, this country could insure itself against the peril of war.

So though the small neutrals of Europe, as well as the lesson that has been taught those neutrals has had its inevitable effect upon the American mind. Respect for the German people was traditional here. As long as they could, Americans refused to believe the reality of Nazi intentions. Only as the Hitler plan drove across the boundaries of peace-loving neutrals, and by conspiracy within and force from without, drenched their soil with the blood of thousands of innocent victims, did the truth find acceptance here.

Before such a swiftly spreading attack upon right, justice and the peace of the world, this country cannot in our opinion, longer remain bound by the rigid fetters of formal neutrality. To attempt to do so would hamper us in every set we must perform—whether to aid the Allies with supplies as they fight desperately, courageously, with their backs to the wall, or to take over the task of caring for the streams of refugees pouring westward in Europe to escape from the fury that has descended their lands, and to set swiftly and firmly to safeguard our shores against Nazi aggression in the hands and continents of this hemisphere.

Let us be specific. There are today thirteen Army aircraft planes of the latest type, not completed in this country, but of them is scheduled for shipment to the Wehrmacht. The French have no other fast bombers to overtake the fast German bombers which for two years have bombed the cities of the Rhine Valley and yesterday bombed the city of London.

It is said that the German planes are to be used to bomb the cities of the Rhine Valley and yesterday bombed the city of London.

see what may come to our unhappy knowledge—Paris in flames and ruins.

Senator Bally, Democrat, North Carolina, asked Pepper if he favored a declaration of war against Germany. When Pepper said he did not, Bally said he could see no difference between intervention by giving the Allies a portion of American defense machines and an actual declaration of war.

"If the senator intends intervention and intervention means war—then he must know that we cannot have war of limited liability," Bally declared. If we intervene with airplanes, we must intervene all the way—with money, planes, ships and men.

Senator Lucas, Democrat, Illinois, asked Pepper what the position of the United States would be if Hitler should declare war on this country in the event the government supplied war materials to the Allies.

"It wouldn't change the situation—there very much at all," Pepper replied. "He's already at war with us, but not with the world. He is at war with South America. He has sent his fifth column down there. He has his fifth column in the United States, of America. That's intervention."

Hitler Is Already At War With U. S., Declares Pepper

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—Senator Pepper, contending that Hitler already is at war with the United States, urged yesterday that the United States give aid to the Allies "to help destroy Hitler."

Pepper proposed legislation suggesting that the President use all existing authority to sell planes and other war material to foreign countries. The senate foreign relations committee already has rejected the Pepper proposals to aid the Allies.

After a visit to the war department, Pepper said reporters this country has a great deal of equipment, including 500 first line planes, which could be sold without injury to the national defense.

Remembering his daily appeal to make existing army and navy planes and supplies available to the Allies, the senator predicted that the country's defense would stand up to any war which Germany would undertake.

"While it is possible for the Allies to destroy Hitler," Pepper urged in concluding his speech, "it is necessary to have a strong and well equipped army and navy to do so."

Allies Wreak New Havoc With Nazis Columns Of Tanks

Continued from page one to the Somme battlefields, where British military experts said Germany had made some progress but failed to penetrate the deep French defenses.

The Air Ministry said iron convoys were bombed and a military train derailed, and highway and railway communications temporarily were disrupted at various strategic points.

Direct hits on the Cambrai railway yard, in which tracks were torn up for hundreds of yards, were reported. An important crossroads in the same neighborhood was damaged.

Allied bombers of the Westland Whitley type, especially early today to clip the iron convoys of a Nazi platoon which had the party of 11.

The desperate struggle to stem Adolf Hitler's offensive against the heart of France continued with the "same violence" after midnight, the high command said.

The 12th mile front from the English Channel to Soissons, blazed with the fury of battle on land and in the air.

Premier Paul Reynaud, in a radio broadcast to the French people promising an ultimate Allied victory, said Hitler unleashed his offensive at dawn Wednesday.

The high command added that "more than several hundred" enemy tanks had been destroyed after being lured into trenches in the Allied lines where they were blown to bits by the point-blank fire of the famous French T.V.

At least 25, and perhaps 45, Nazi planes had been shot down and 100 tons of explosives had been dumped on the German lines and rear-line positions, it was said.

The claws of the Nazi planes, pointed down toward a struggle-held on Paris, were admitted to have dug into France at varying depths from six to 16 miles at both ends of the Somme front.

It was said that the German advance was not full-scale, but that there were only "partial penetrations" along the channel coast which carried the Nazi advance guard 10 miles southwest from Abbeville.

Last night's West-Offize communique admitted the loss of five of "total annihilation," but by a swarm of tanks and Stahl divisions, had driven British and French troops back about 10 miles along the English Channel coast, where the German advance guard had been "completely and completely" destroyed.

The invasion of the north bank of the Aisne and the subsequent heights there led by German "stormtroopers," it was said.

At the other end of the front, the Germans pushed across the Aisne River and cut and reached strategic heights on the north bank of the Aisne in the immediate vicinity of Sedan, it was said.

Hammond leaves for Cornwall, where he makes a "subtle" discovery. Tony's plane starts the same day as the others. But the twelve captives on board, headed by Tony, are not of the same caliber as the others. The battle is in his hands when a destroyer is sighted. Hammond is on it.
