The Senate Education Committee voted a second time Tuesday, approving the bill 5-3 to allow student-led prayers at graduations, sports events and voluntary after-school

Last week, committee Chairman Donald Sullivan, R-St. Petersburg, passed the bill with little debate on a voice vote an illegal move because the votes weren't recorded.

Opponents said Tuesday the bill, sponsored by Sen. Charles Williams, D-Tallahassee, was an unconstitutional infringement on the separation of church and state. Williams considers it a matter of "free speech."

One opponent, Rabbi Stanley Garfein of Tallahande, 1966 senators the bill would open the door to established Christianny as the state religion and subject non-Christian students to ridicule if they didn't participate.

"Scapegoating is one of the stepping stones leading to holocaust." Garfein wrote to lawmakers. "Sen. Williams appears as a wolf wrapped in fleece of the Lamb of God." Williams said Garfein had a right to his opinion.

"He believes in his issue. I believe in mine," Williams said. "I've put my best foot forward. I've been open and above board. I've never tried to do anything underhanded in any way at all. If we get it passed, fine."

Those who voted for the legislation (HB 876) were Sens. Jim Horne, R-Orange Park, George Kirkpatrick, D-Gainesville, Jack Latvala, R.Palm Harbor, John McKay, R.Bradenton, and Sen. Karen Johnson, D-Inverness.

House passes hospital security bill

By ADAM YEOMANS Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - Legislation that requires hospitals improve patient security in recovery rooms has passed the House and is headed to the Senate.

The House voted 113-0 on Tuesday for the bill (CS-HB 621) that is a response to the rapes of sedated women at an Inverness hospital and other crimes against patients. "A hospital is a place where people go to get well," said Rep. Helen Spivey, one of the sponsors. "No one should fear being molested or raped while recovering from

The legislation was sparked by the crimes of Bruce Alan Young, who pleaded guilty Feb. 3 to seven counts of sexual battery upon a helpless person and was sentenced to 17 years in prison.

Young was arrested at Citrus Memorial Hospital last October after another nurse caught him atop a groggy 15-year-old girl. As many as 80 women have said he may have raped them while they were sedated in the hospital's recovery room sometime between 1990 and 1994.

Two of his victims testified before legislative committees this session pushing the bill.

The bill would require hospitals either to have two hospital staff in a recovery room after a patient has had a surgery or install electronic surveillance equipment to monitor the recovery room.

That option was a compromise with hospitals that had opposed the additional staff as too expensive, particularly for rural hospitals.

"They kept saying it's going to cost a lot of money," said Spivey, D-Crystal River. "To me a rape happening on their property and lawsuits are going to be a lot more expensive."

The bill also would require hospitals to immediately notify police and a patient's family when it suspects sexual misconduct has occurred.

Similar legislation (CS-SB 50) has been bottled up in the Senate. Sen. Karen Johnson, D-Inverness, has said she will try to get the measure on the

Nicotine, tobacco and teens

Studies may rejuvenate debate years later, only half of the Skoal users still preferred the milder brand — nearly a third had over nicotine manipulation

By LAURAN NEERGAARD Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - New research suggesting that teenagers get hooked on low-nicotine chewing tobacco and graduate to stronger brands is likely to rekindle the debate over whether nicotine levels to make their products more addictive.

A group of studies released today also lends weight to this argument by documenting for the first time the amount of "free nicotine" that may be absorbed easily into the bloodstream.

Critics told Congress last fall that makers of smokeless tobacco manipulate the nicotine in their products to hook young users. The industry furiously denied the charges and dis-missed the new studies as a rehash of old criticisms.

The research reported today in the Journal Tobacco Control documents for the first time how free nicotine, the type most easily absorbed, differs in 17 brands of smokeless tobacco and how teen-agers use the products.

The evidence is now more solid than what we had in the past," said Dr. Ronald Davis.

Top secretary

Secretary Teggy LeRoy, right, accepts a bouquet of roses from her boss, Seminole High School Principal Gretchen Schapker, Tuesday at a function at which she was named the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Secretary of the Year, Schapker nominated LeRoy for her enthusiasm and versatility on the job.

Among the findings:

-Research shows acidic tobacco releases nicotine into the bloodstream far more slowly than alkaline tobacco. A new Swedish Tobacco Co. fact sheet tobacco companies manipulate says the industry adds chemicals to increase products' alkalinity "in order to release the nicotine from the tobacco," reported Gregory Connolly of the Massachusetts Department of

> U.S. firms have dented doing that, and U.S. Tobacco Co. denied that alkalinity even plays a major role in nicotine absorp-

-Two laboratories, at the National Institutes of Health and the American Health Foundation, independently measured the pH levels - the degree of acidity or alkalinity - and free nicotine in top-selling brands. The pH of the mildest, Skoal Bandit, was 1,000 times more acidic than the strongest brand. Copenhagen. The free nicotine increased 17 times as the brands' alkalinity increased.

"It is very unlikely that differences as large as these are editor of the journal, published inadvertent," said Dr. John by the British Medical Associa- Stade of the Robert Wood Johnson Medical School, who analyzed the studies in an accompanying editorial.

However, he acknowledged that people's blood levels never have been measured to ensure saliva or other factors don't impact this free nicotine, "so direct evidence that these predicted differences actually occur is lacking."

-The first brand survey of teen-agers found the youngest users bought the lowest-nicotine Skoal Bandit while older teens switched to the highest-nicotine Copenhagen, the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported.

Food and Drug Administration Commissioner David Kessler last year produced U.S. Tobacco documents detailing marketing plans to "graduate" first-time users from Skoal up to Copenhagen. But until now nobody knew what brands teens actually used.

U.S. Tobacco, the nation's top seller, dismissed the studies as "false and misleading," but ref-used to elaborate. The Smokeless Tobacco Council declined comment.

The FDA is considering reused stronger brands. But four gulating nicotine as a drug.

Salute to secretaries

Today is Professional Secretaries Day. Webster says a secretary is "...one entrusted with secrets, one who keeps records, handles correspondence, etc. for an organization or it sounds like an important job - and it is. Secretaries are important in most any business. Why then, do some secretaries refuse to identify themselves as such. They prefer to call themselves aides or assistants.

Perhaps it's not the actual job as Webster sees it, but what some supervisors and/or bosses perceive it to be. Some people have apparently overlooked the fact that slavery has been abolished.

They use their secretaries to pick up clothing from the dry cleaners, send their spouses flowers on an anniversary, remind them of junior's birthday, or go pick up lunch

Certainly there are secretaries who do such chores. There may be different reasons. For some, their friendship with the supervisor may bring about a feeling of wanting to help in any way possible. Some business owners often hire spouses or close relatives as

For the majority of secretaries however, we suspect they may feel the need to do these personal chores in order to preserve their

That's a shame. Some people apparently believe a secretary is a robot, with the sole job of serving their personal needs, more so than helping manage a business. They have a tendency to forget secretaries are real people, problems, and desires to improve themselves and their positions on the job as well as in the

While our schools do an excellent job in teaching typing, stenography, computer sciences, record keeping, and budget preparations, we suspect only a handful of students would openly admit, "I want to be a secretary when I grow up."

Yet the profession lives on. Secretaries continue to be a vital part in the operations of a business. They are extremely important to not only their supervisors, but industry.

On this, Professional Secretaries Day, we salute all those who sit at the desks in America and, day-by-day, keep the wheels of business moving steadily forward.

They deserve appreciation from their bosses. Today, why not fix THEM a cup of coffee, then beginning tomorrow, let them be secretaries. Everyone will benefit from that approach.

But when the left-leaning Greenies gathered recently for Earth Day, the public didn't hear about these and other environmental success stories of the past quarter-century. Instead, there were wild, unsubstantiated pronouncements that the planet's ecosystem is facing imminent

The false prophecies of environmental calamity are almost too numerous to catalog. Here are but a few of the most outrageous examples:

- Global warming. This is the mother of all environmental scares. We are told that the increasing use of fossil fuels is heating up the Earth's temperature and that unless this warming trend is reversed, we will see the end of life on the planet.

Indeed, in his 1992 screed, "Earth in the Balance," Vice President Al Gore claims that even a 1 degree change in temperature can cause widespread famine.

But these predictions of global warming, and the consequences, are based not on empirical research, but on highly questionable computer models. These models project a doubling of carbon dioxide levels in the atmosphere over the next century and a resultant 1 to 5 degree rise in global temperature.

Decisions made

It is very revealing that less than a week after Mac McClanahan is appointed to planning and soning by his pals on the city commission that the controversial development bordering Mayfair Golf Course was back again on the P&Z agenda. How convenient! MacClanahan personally supported this development when it failed P&Z approval in early January. At a recent meeting, Mac's pals: Betty Smith, Bob Thomas and Whitey Eckstein appointed him to P&Z. He was appointed because Whitey said he had promised Mac that he would suggest him for P&Z after Mac lost the election to Kerry Lyons. (Only a week prior, Lon Howell had Mac appointed to Sanford's charter review board). And of course, this latest action was ramroded through the very same night it was presented. just like Mac's self serving health insurance plan in December that was only rescinded because of very heavy criticism from Sanford citizens.

Remember several years back when the commission held their meeting on a Tuesday instead of the normal Monday to appoint Bill Simmons city manager? Not one citizen was present because this meeting was never officially announced. Not only did they have the meeting on a different night, other than the normal Monday night, but they chose to hold it on the second floor, not in the first floor chambers.

Another example of our leaders picking one of ther pals is when they promoted Ralph Russell to police chief. The city's job description for police chief states that the applicant must have a college degree. The citizen's review committee reminded the city commissioners that Russell didn't have a college degree. The commission merely ignored any input from the city's review board and went ahead and got another one of their pals in a position of power. There should have been a national search for both the city manager's and the police chief's positions. That's what most cities would have done. But then if that were done, the citizens of Sanford might have a chance to get involved (which is what democracy is all about - I don't think our leaders have any concept of democracy). Even Mayor Smith will admit how close they all are by saying. "Isn't it great that Sanford's leaders never argue with each other like other cities in Central Florida: we all get along and agree on most everything."

Conversely, when something such as the Duany codes comes along it takes the city two years to act on his suggestions. I recall Bill Simmons saving, "The city of Sanford moves very slowly on important decisions such as the Duany codes." Sounds good, Bill, but looks like two sets of rules to me. If the commission favors something then it is ramroded through the very same night that it is presented so that we the public (and taxpayers) are aware of it only after it has already been passed.

And if our so-called "leaders" disfavor something then it is "studied" for cons in hopes that we will forget about it. Our "leaders" actually needed two years so that they could waste $7,500 of our tax dollars by whittling the Duany project down to nothing. Oh, yes, the commission did pass the Duany project but only after removing any rules that would benefit Sanford's Historic District. How convenient! Other examples of their discriminatory "selective" procrastination: waterfront improvement, code enforcement, enforcement of illegal aubatandard weekly rentals, criminals living for free in our public housing (which our tax dollars pay for) and crime in general.

Before Betty's, Bob's and Lon's re-election two years ago, the illegal weekly rental issue was hot on Bill Simmons' and the commission's minds. But suddenly after Betty, Bob and Lon had all been re-elected, their interest in these illegal weekly rentals suddenly vanished by their voting to actually keep the state out of Sanford so that the state would not be able to investigate these dangerous habitats. How convenient for slumlords.

Even something as simple and logical as the downtown merchants' request to display nice antiques outside the front of their stores took over a month to pass.

Thursday's P&Z meeting was merely a request dealing with water-related matters on the property bordering Mayfair Golf Course. However, I'll bet the farm that immediately following approval of these water-related matters the developer will be back before P&Z with basically the same request that he had in January. And Mac will be doing any and everything possible with his position on P&Z to get it passed. Again, how convenient.

Why would the city commission nominate someone such as Mac MacClanahan to a position as important as a seat on P&Z, when the citizens have already put him out to pasture in last December's election. The only suitable position in Sanford for Mac is in the Sanford Museum where he should be stuffed and labeled "Tyrant-O-Saurus Mac Obsoletus."

When it comes to Sanford's "leaders" (with the exception of Kerry Lyons) they think that if it's good for them, then it must be good for Sanford - at least that's how they see it. Doesn't matter what we, the taxpayers think. Again, how very, very convenient for them.

ARC funnels money to wrong projects

WASHINGTON - The Republican Congress is forging ahead with funding for a 30-year-old pork barrel program which promised economic renaissance but has produced little more than dashed dreams.

We pointed out this hypocrisy of Republicans who profess to be budget-cutters but save the Lyndon Johnson-founded Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) - in a recent column that stirred controversy on Capitol Hill.

Our four-month investigation of ARC. including travel through all 13 states affected by it. uncovered the fact that the commission has failed in its prime mission. Nevertheless, it keeps on col lecting gobs of federal money. The 1965 act that created the commission defined its prime directive: "To build the foundation for a vigorous, diversified, selfsustaining Appalachian economy that affords a wide range of social and economic op projects, like new roads, is evident. portunities for the people of the region."

That has not happened. The window dressing of public works projects, like new roads, is evident. But it has failed to put forth a long-term solution to poverty.

Certainly there are other signs of visible progress: Mobile homes and trailers, purchased during the coal boom and not by the ARC, have now replaced many of the tar paper shacks. Indoor plumbing is a more common feature than outhouses. The ARC built $11 million-a-mile roads, hospitals, and water and sewer lines.

Asked for signs of progress, officials most often point to a Wendy's, Pizza Hut or McDonald's that's come to town in the last decade.

, Our examination revealed that one of the reasons the ARC failed was because of the relative pittance it applied to what is considered the most important factor in propelling a people out of poverty education.

The largest single expenditure the ARC made for education - more than $400 million over the last three decades - was not for high schools or colleges in the region, but toward a massive effort building and equipping 700 vocational facilities at 510 vocational schools. The ARC's public relations magazine, Appalachia, has touted this as one of their greatest achievements.

As one critic of the ARC put it, this largest single ARC education expenditure did "a double disservice to the region's people: It locked them into the fickle job-demand system of marginal industries and deprived them of the analytical skills needed to press for long-term reconstruction of the region."

Scarce education dollars have gone to programs such as the Regional Truck Driving Training Program in North Carolina ($89,910). The Arch A. Moore Junior Vocational Technical Center in West Virginia got $232,000 for equipment at the beheat of its namesake (who was later sent to jail for corruption).

The ARC wouldn't abandon voc-ed programs when the Cabinet agency over education advised that what was needed was not more voc-ed training but more than 200,000 college graduates. That number would barely bring the region up to national norms and provide a truly educated job pool for high-paying employment. Instead, one ARC staffer charged that the ARC was giving Appalachians "a choice of becoming skilled machine laborers, or starving."

How do you retaliate for Oklahoma City?

Perhaps more importantly. how do you get advance warning of a domestic terrorist attack in the way the CIA is supposed to warn of a foreign military attack?

"The issue of what is security has now changed," said Richard Shultz, director of international security studies at Tufts University's Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy.

Terrorism, of course, has long been a threat to Americans' security. But it was assumed that the attacks would come from abroad. And so, naturally, the U.S. military and the CIA and other intelligence agencies had key roles.

'With the greatest military might in the world you cannot prevent these things," the Texas Republican said, whether the terror originates at home or abroad.

The United States is not the only country learning the limits of preventing homegrown terrorism. #### Charges mount

OKLAHOMA CITY - A week after the catastrophic truck bomb explosion that demolished the federal building, the body count neared 100 as investigators added charges and pressed a search for their most-wanted suspect.

Brothers James and Terry Nichols, previously held as witnesses, were charged Tuesday as conspirators with Timothy McVeigh in the construction of explosive devices in Michigan.

McVeigh, 27, remained the only person arrested in the actual bombing of the Alfred P. Murrah federal building. He is not charged in the Michigan case, and the Nichols brothers are not charged in the Oklahoma bombing.

A law enforcement source in Washington, speaking on condition of anonymity, said traces of nitrates and high explosive were detected in the car McVeigh was driving when stopped for a traffic infraction hours after the blast.

Gov. Frank Keating asked Oklahomans to observe a moment of silence at 9:02 a.m. today, the time seismologists say the bomb - now estimated to have weighed 4,800 pounds detonated on Wednesday, April 19.

Clinton touched personally by bombing

WASHINGTON - Touched personally by the Oklahoma City bombing. President Clinton is mourning the death of a former member of his Secret Service detail killed in "this terrible madness.

The president and first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton were attending a funeral today for agent Alan G. Whicher, who left the White House seven months ago for the supposedly quieter confines of Oklahoma.

Whicher is one of four bombing victims whose lives shared a path - however remote - with the president, and whose deaths made the bombing strike closer to home for Clinton than most national tragedies.

"I will never forget, more than anything else, the faces and the stories of the family members of the victims," Clinton said Monday during a three-day Midwest swing dominated by the

The trip, designed to promote his legislative goals and lay roots for the 1996 election, ended early today after Clinton again urged Americans on Tuesday to rebuke people who inflame hatred or violence.

Unabomber breaks silence

SAN FRANCISCO - Railing against industrial society, the clusive killer known as the Unabomber has broken his silence, taunting the FBI and seeking to justify his 17-year campaign of terror.

Typed letters were mailed to two of his victims and The New York Times, authorities said Tuesday. A mail bomb sent by the Unabomber killed a timber industry lobbyist Monday in his Sacramento office. In the letter to the Times, the Unabomber claims he belongs to a group that advocates breaking down society into small. autonomous units. And he offers to stop the bombings - if major print media agree to publish a 37,000 word article espousing his group's views.

The Unabomber, thought to be an anti-social white male in his early 40s, boasts that he expects "to be able to pack deadly bombs into ever smaller, lighter and more harmless looking packages."

He says his group's immediate goal is "the destruction of the worldwide industrial avatem."

A top federal law enforcement source said the three letters, which include scratched out words, errors and misspellings, are a sign the Unabomber is "off the deep end."

LOS ANGELES - Who was that bearded man?

It certainly couldn't have been Superior Court Judge Lance Ito, who has been belittled by some for not bringing a semblance of control to the playground he calls his court of

But there he was Tuesday, robed and hirsute as usual — only with a new personality. The O.J. Simpson judge was glaring at lawyers, cutting them off in mid-sentence, telling them their questions were irrelevant and refusing their requests for sidebar talks.

Ito unveiled his assertive side on the first day of testimony since the Simpson trial was hobbled by a remarkable juror revolt. Thirteen of the sequestered panelists had refused to hear testimony to protest the reassignment of three of their guards.

The judge had adjusted his courtroom style only slightly after an avalanche of criticism from legal pundits. But after meeting with the jurors, he apparently took their concerns to heart. For the first time in a long while, it looked as if the trial of the century wouldn't last until the end of the millennium.

Testimony continues today when defense attorney Peter Neufeld completes his tough cross-examination of police criminalist Andrea Mazzola.

How can civilians be protected?

KIGALI. Rwanda - The question that haunted the U.N. force in Somalia is now nagging peacekeepers in Rwanda: How can a mandate that permits firing only in self-defense protect the civilians whom soldiers are charged with sheltering?

When Rwandan troops fired on refugees in the crowded Kibeho camp during the weekend, U.N. soldiers hunkered down several feet away and didn't intervene. About 2.000 people died in the shooting and the stampede that followed. Now, as tens of thousands of refugees are forced back to villages where they are often unwelcome, peacekeepers fear there is little they can do to protect them. "We have limitations to what we can and should do in a critical situation," said the U.N. special representative in Rwanda, Shaharyar Khan. "We are not in any case required to fire except in self-defense. From Associated Press reports

Dodgers escape Marlins

MIAMI - Baseball returned Tuesday night with a big crowd, a few boos and a powerful performance by Raul Mondesi.

Last season's National League rookie of the year homered twice, doubled and drove in four runs to help the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Florida Marlina 6-7, ending the splintered sport's record 257-day layoff. Although there were a few thousand empty seats on opening night, the crowd of 42,125 was announced as a sellout. The first game since the strike, however, was still surrounded by another labor problem - locked-out umpires picketed outside while replacement umps worked without any arguments.

The Marlins rallied from an 8-2 deficit, scoring four times in the ninth inning before Rudy Seanez struck out rookie Charles Johnson to end the game.

Danapilis railies Suns

JACKSONVILLE - Eric Danapilia drove in the game-winning run with a grounder in the 10th inning to give Jacksonville a 4-3 Southern League victory over Carolina on Tuesday night. Danapilia also hit a decisive home run in th ninth to wipe out Carolina's (14-6) 3-2 lead.

George Canalis homered for the Mudcata. Jermaine Allensworth had a single and a double while Jim Polcovich added two singles.

The Suns' John Kelley (1-0) earned the win.

Erickson cited for DUI

KIRKLAND, Wash. - Seattle Seahawka coach Dennis Erickson acknowledged Tuesday he was cited recently for drunken driving.

Erickson was stopped April 15 on Interstate 5 near Marysville, in Snohomish County. He was cited for a blood-alcohol level of .23, said Snohomish County Deputy Prosecutor James Townsend.

A level of .10 is the legal threshold for intoxication in Washington state.

"I have no excuses," Erickson told a hastily called Tuesday afternoon news conference at Seahawks headquarters. "It was an awful mistake. I regret it. It's embarrassing. I apologize to the organization, to this community. It's been a tough learning process and it'll never happen again. All I can do is apologize."

Erickson, an Everett native, coached the University of Miami to two national championships and a 63-9 record in six seasons.

Enjoy popular and flavorful Oriental cooking with ease

Oriental cooking has long been one of the most popular of the international cuisines. The stirfry technique of cooking is quick and the meats and vegetables maintain good color and flavor and nutritive value.

The microwave oven adapts well to this method of cooking. since it is designed for quick cooking with little added liquid. Actually, oriental foods prepared in the microwave can be lower in fat, since very little, if any, oil is needed during cooking.

This nutritious pork and vegetable combination is ready to serve in 20 minutes. If serving with rice, cook rice conventionally while preparing this portion in the microwave. ORIENTAL PORE STIR FRY #### husband ever stop cheating?

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married 12 years and we have three beautiful children. I have never cheated on my husband, and he is the only man I have ever been

"Ben" treats me well and is a good father, but he has always had other women. I knew his reputation before we got married. I fell madly in love with him

When we moved here two years ago. Ben became very friendly with our neighbor, a divorced mother of three. I thought "Dolly" was my friend. too. Then about three months ago, she told me that she and Ben had been having an affair for a year and a half. I was devastated.

When I confronted Ben, he denied it. Right after that, Ben lost his job. Because of the financial strain and the other problems we separated and Ben moved out of state.

Abby, I thought the separation would be good for me, but I love Ben and our kids miss their father. He says he wants to reconcile and be a good husband — and that as long as I'm married to him, the other women don't count.

What should I do? I am considering transferring my job and moving to be with Ben. Should I try to go on without him? I know he loves me. Do other women let their husbands have affairs and accept it? Could

I be missing out on true love?
CONFUSED IN TEXAS
DEAR CONFUSED: The leave is not whether other wives "let" their husbands have affairs: It's that some husbands choose to have affairs. Ben may be selfish and immature, or he may be sexually compulsive, but he can change his behavior if he wants

Obviously, you still love your husband. But before you drop everything to rejoin him, I urge you to seek counseling until you can make a rational (rather than an emotional) decision. Then, if you decide to go through with the move, do it on the condition that Ben join you in marriage and family counseling. Good

I said, "Do it yourself, You want equality? Well.you got it!" It's about time we men stopped coddling women. When we do, maybe men will live as long as they dol

D.W. MYATT IN MOUSTON DEAR D.W.: Don't count on it - not for a long time, anyway. The life expectancy of women continues to be seven years longer than for men, and we show no signs of weakening.

Is using vitamins in excess harmful? DEAR DR. GOTT: Is there mation about vitamins (and their such a thing as abuse of misuse), I am sending you a free vitamins? I am concerned for a copy of my Health Report "Fads relative who may be using I: Vitamins and Minerals." Other vitamins in excess. Perhaps you could recommend a book that covers what vitamins are self-addressed, stamped needed, what is retained, what is envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New excreted and those vitamins that York, NY 10163. Be sure to would be harmful in excess.

DEAR READER: Some vitamins can, indeed, be poisonous in large doses. The two paperback books to be most notorious are the following:

Vitamin A is found in animal and fish products, as well as in many fruits and vegetables. It is necessary for normal vision and healthy skin and bones. The Recommended Dietary Allowance is 5,000 international units a day. Supplements above 25,000 units a day will lead to serious consequences, such as loss of appetite, anemia, poor vision, bone pain, mouth ulcers, and many other symptoms.

Vitamin D is found in fish and eggs: milk is often fortified with D. The vitamin is vital for proper bone metabolism. (A deficiency causes rickets, a disease marked by bone softening.) The RDA is about 200 international units. Excess vitamin D (above 1,200 IU) is associated with weight loss, nausea, headache, fatigue, anemia, kidney damage, and other complications.

Pyridoxine (vitamin B6) is found in nuts, grains, meats and fish. It is needed for nerves to function normally. The RDA is 2 milligrams. Modest doses (5 mg) may block the beneficial effects of L-dopa, a drug used to treat Parkinson's disease. Higher doses (2,000 mg) can lead to unsteady gait and numbness of the feet.

Vitamin C is found in fruits and vegetables. It is a necessary component of many metabolic reactions, including wound healing, blood formation and healthy teeth and gums. The RDA is 60 mg. Levels above 2,000 mg may lead to diarrhea. kidney stones, joint pain, rash, iron overload, and other complications. Vitamin C has not been shown to protect against the common cold.

Recently, I have featured two deals in which Edgar Kaplan played brilliantly. These promoted a letter from Joe Elsbury. of Lafayette, Louisiana. He deacribed today's deal, which took place during the final of the en Pairs at the 1965 Fall Nationals in San Francisco. Edgar was the declarer, playing with his wife, Betty. Sitting West was Dr. Nathan Ostrich.

The weak jump to two diamonds by Elsbury was an imaginative effort. Edgar Kaplan bid two spades, of course, and no one saw fit to act further.

What should Dr. Ostrich lead? Somehow, he guessed on the heart four! And what a lethal lead it was. Not suspecting the position, Kaplan played low from the dummy. After winning with tells you that partner has the the queen, Elsbury switched to king and you prefer him to win with the 10, cashed the heart ace and returned a low club, which East ruffed. Now came a heart ruff and another low club, which was ruffed by dummy's spade jack and overruffed by East's queen. South ruffed the heart return high, but later on West scored his club ace for two down and a top to East-West.

When should you risk underleading an ace against a suit contract? The classic situation is when dummy has shown a strong balanced hand. You hope the king is in the dummy, with the jack being either in the dummy or in declarer's hand. Then, if partner has the queen, declarer will surely misguess.

Another occasion is when the auction, in one way or another, king and you prefer him to win his singleton club. West won the first trick. But that is very ©Copyright1995 by NEA Inc.
