Harriett calls for immunizations

SANFORD — All Sanford police officers and firefighters should be immunized against the deadly Hepatitis B virus in the wake of a national epidemic, Sanford Police Chief Steve Harriett has told city officials.

Last month Harriett requested that the city provide immunization for officers after the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta issued a health alert to those working in public safety jobs.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration has issued policy that "all employees at substantial risk of directly contacting body fluids shall be offered Hepatitis B vaccinations free of charge."

In a memo to the city commission, city Personnel Director Tim McCauley said inoculation of all 152 city public safety workers would cost $136 per employee, or $20,672, if done by the Seminole County Health Department. He also recommended allotting another $1,700 in the 1991-92 city budget for additional inoculations needed due to employee turnover.

The city commission will consider the Hepatitis B inoculations at its regular meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in the commission chambers of Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Ave.

About 300,000 new cases of Hepatitis B were reported in 1990, according to the CDC. The virus can be transmitted to police officers or fire rescue workers when blood from accident victims enters a worker's eyes or an open wound. The disease is also transmitted sexually, or through any exchange of body fluids.

1-4 lane closing for tonight

LONGWOOD — The left, inside lane of eastbound Interstate 4 between State Roads 434 and 436 will be closed from 8 p.m. tonight until 6 a.m. Tuesday morning while crews set up barrier walls. The work is part of the $3.1 million state construction project to build a four-lane bridge at Center Street.

Welcome home...Dad

FORT HOOD, Texas — Becky Bleranowski had some good news for her husband when he came home from the Persian Gulf War: she was about to give birth.

"I'm having contractions," she told Staff Sgt. Steve Bleranowski.

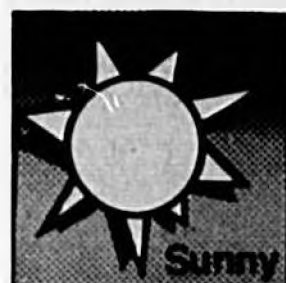

Bleranowski, still wearing his desert fatigues, drove her Saturday to Darnall Army Community Hospital, where she gave birth to a girl about 30 minutes later, her fourth child.

Retail gas prices drop

Average cost less than before Kuwait invasion

By LACY DOWEN
Herald People Editor

SANFORD — Although the nation's average gasoline price this month dropped below its level before Iraq invaded Kuwait, Sanford area stations are already beginning to pass along increased prices to motorists.

Sylvester Chang, owner of Chang's Mobil, said this morning oil companies have raised prices to dealers about three cents in the last week.

"It's higher than it was last week. We have to pass the increase along, but overall it is still good because consumers are paying 9.3 cents more in taxes. Gas prices are about what they were last July," Chang explained.

Joe Hall, owner of two Sanford Chevron stations, confirmed prices had been going down, but had "probably bottomed out."

"They're up a penny or two. We're holding it down because there's a little more competition on this strip," Hall, referring to I-7-92, said this morning.

Prices are predicted to rise as winter ends and more motorists take to the road, said industry analyst Trilby Lundberg.

"In this period, with consumption coming up, but considering how low prices are, consumption can be expected to be strong this spring," Lundberg said.

The average price for all grades of gasoline at full- and self-serve stations was $1.1688 on Friday, down 3.46 cents since Feb. 22, according to the Lundberg Survey of 13,600 gasoline stations nationwide.

At self-serve stations, the average price of regular leaded gasoline on March 8 was 98.54 cents a gallon; regular unleaded, 104.13; and premium unleaded, 120.46.

At full-service stations, regular leaded was 134.71 cents; regular unleaded, 136.19; premium unleaded, 160.95.

Chang said his price for self-serve regular

Legislative action could aid schools

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — Area lawmakers say Seminole County schools could be the big winner from the current legislative session.

More money for school programs and school construction and greater local discretion in spending it could benefit local schools despite a year that is projected to have up to a $1.4 billion deficit in state spending.

Rep. Frank Stone, R-Oviedo, said a main accomplishment of the session which began last Tuesday could be the equalization of revenues that assures Seminole County schools receive a fairer share of the tax revenues collected in the county. Now the county receives a smaller per-student share of state school appropriations than many other counties.

Stone, whose district includes most of the county east of U.S. Highway 17-92, said the equalization of all school revenues throughout the state would cost $400 million. To trim costs, Stone said the Legislature may initially bring school districts receiving the least return on tax revenues to the middle range. As a result, Seminole County could receive $450 or more per student in additional revenues, a potential windfall of more than $2 million.

"There's a lot of concern about equity," Stone said. "I think there's a real potential that if there was a

Free school textbooks offered

SANFORD — The Seminole County School Board will be giving away school textbooks Tuesday through Thursday at the book warehouse, 1211 Mellonville Ave.

Dick Hofmann, at the School Board office, said there will be a wide variety of books from practically every subject area offered throughout the school system, but no longer in use because they have been replaced by newer updated versions of the books.

Hofmann said the first books will be available on Monday, but those will be for selection specifically by personnel of the school system. "This Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday," he said, "anyone who wants any of these books is welcome to stop in and take their pick." He added that the only request is that people wanting the free used textbooks bring either bags or boxes in which to carry them.

The free textbook give-away will be between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. for each of the three days.

Fishing trip turns tragic; 2 drown

By VICKI DeBORMIER

OSTEEN — A fishing trip turned tragic for three men caught in high winds on Lake Harney yesterday morning.

David Silas Armstrong, 50, of 2169 Lake Drive, Winter Park; his son-in-law, Brad Keith Riggs, 21, whose address was not released; and Robert Roosevelt Thomas, 43, 4827 Cherokee Rose Drive, Orlando, a family friend, were attempting to return to shore in Osteen when their 15-foot Cobia boat began to take on water about 10:30 a.m.

Armstrong and Thomas were killed in the attempt to return to shore. Riggs survived and was transported to Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford where he was treated for exposure and released a few hours later.

According to Lt. Vinard Hitt, a spokesman with the regional office of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission in Ocala, the trio was caught in violent winds on the lake, which is a part of the St. John's River on the Seminole-Volusia County border.

Riggs was saved from the boat by a helicopter crew from the Volusia County Sheriff's Office who were called to the scene at about 12:30 p.m. after several failed attempts at rescue were made by other boaters in the area.

"It was very windy and rescue was difficult," Hitt said. "But they did it."

Armstrong and Thomas were found at about 2:45 p.m. by Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission officers, Hitt said.

"They were still clinging on their life preservers," Hitt said.

Though previous reports stated that the boat had flipped over causing the pair to drown, Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission officials are not confirming that at this time.

"We know they were taking on water to the rear of the boat and they started submarining through the waves," Hitt said.

Riggs was not available for comment this morning.

At 51, misfit CPA trades business for classroom

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — Stephen Vartin was a certified public accountant, a misfit CPA who couldn't make himself believe that everything in life can be reconciled like a bank ledger.

So he quit. For the 20 years that followed, the CPA-turned-poet, now an English and humanities instructor at Seminole Community College, alternated between the career he loved — teaching — and the career economic constraints dictated to him — business. At 51, Vartin said, he is done "selling out" to business.

"Even when I worked in other fields," he said, "I always thought of myself as a teacher."

"I think once you hit 50, you should do what you want to do," Vartin said. Earlier in his career, he said, he had been forced to leave teaching because of the meager salary it offered.

Vartin began his teaching career in New Jersey, where he taught junior high, high school, then college. At Fairleigh Dickinson University in Rutherford, N.J., he said, he taught a young woman who he would later call "my most famous student": Peggy Noonan, speechwriter for George Bush credited with phrases such as "thousand points of light" and "read my lips."

"I helped teach her to write," Vartin said, beaming.

Vartin, a thin man whose words are spoken with a heavy New Jersey accent, reluctantly left Fairleigh Dickinson when paying rent became nearly impossible on his teaching salary, he said. He became a manager for real estate developers in New York, then later in Boca Raton. He worked full-time as a

Collins celebrates birthday quietly

TALLAHASSEE — Former Gov. LeRoy Collins was too ill to celebrate his 82nd birthday, but he has been touched by the hundreds of cards and letters he's gotten from around the state, his wife said.

"We have a mountain of cards and letters to show him," Mary Call Collins, Florida's first lady from 1956 to 1961, said.

Collins, stricken by lung cancer last year, was resting this weekend at their home, The Grove, next to the governor's mansion.

Mrs. Collins said no celebration was planned for Collins' Sunday birthday because of his illness. The family was taking things "one day at a time," she said.

"I wish I could say he was doing better," Mrs. Collins said. "But he appreciates so much the friends all over the state who have sent cards and letters, showing their support. I just wish he could say how much that has meant to him, and to all of us."

Collins was governor from 1956 to 1961. During that turbulent era, when other Southern states were wracked by violent resistance to integration, Collins steered Florida on a course of moderation and accommodation.

Couple search for turtles' cure

MARATHON — The golf-ball size growths, resembling moldy cauliflower, bulged from the green sea turtle's head and body.

"You can see why it's so hard to ignore," said conservationist and Florida Keys motel owner Tina Brown as she held up the turtle, its eyes concealed by the grotesque fibropapilloma tumors.

Indeed, Brown and her boyfriend, Richie Moretti, have all but ignored the mysterious ailment, which is baffling scientists and threatening to wipe out the species.

For the last few years, Brown and Moretti have devoted part of their Hidden Harbor Motel, all of its proceeds and countless hours to finding the cause of the disease — and a cure.

The plague is so widespread that experts say at least 50 percent of the green sea turtle population is suffering from fibropapilloma. In the Florida Keys and Hawaii, the figure may be more than 60 percent.

"We've seen it go from a minor problem in 1986 to something that's just eating the turtles up," said Moretti, 47, who owned a large Volkswagen repair shop in Orlando before retiring to the Keys.

Despite the widespread occurrence of fibropapilloma tumors, however, little was done to determine its cause until the last couple of years.

Commission criticized over rights

TALLAHASSEE — Critics say the rights of property owners rather than the needs of wildlife are getting priority at Florida's Game and Freshwater Fish Commission.

Once primarily concerned with hunting and fishing issues, the five-member commission has matured in recent years into the state's protector of all wildlife.

That's quite a challenge. Years of studies show that at least half of Florida's un hunted wildlife species are declining in number, Susan Cerulean, former head of the commission's non-game program, said.

"These should be red flags to anyone interested in wildlife conservation," she said.

But, led by three men appointed to the commission by former Gov. Bob Martinez, the panel is retreating from rather than advancing conservation measures, the St. Petersburg Times reported Sunday. And the other two commissioners have voted with the Martinez majority more often than not, the newspaper said.

"There is a lot of concern being expressed for private property rights and for the rights of agriculture," Cerulean said.

Mr. Rogers' 'Walk of Fame' slab moved

ORLANDO — Can you say, "sophomore prank?"

A 40-pound stone slab engraved with the name of Fred Rogers, soft-spoken host of "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood," was missing from the Walk of Fame at Rollins College only hours after Rogers was inducted.

Some 400 parents and children were on hand when Rogers was honored by his alma mater Friday. School officials then discovered a hole where Rogers' slab had been put Saturday morning, between those honoring Edith Wharton and Beethoven.

A few hours later, the missing stone was found about 150 feet away, near a dormitory.

"It turned out to be a prank," school spokesman Larry Humes said. "It's in good shape. We'll probably put it back Monday."

Although no one at Rollins remembers a slab ever being stolen, some have been moved in similar pranks, Humes said.

After the Rogers slab was found, Rollins officials did the neighborly thing — at least in the eyes of the culprits. They didn't call the police.

Break spent far from beach

By JKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

APOPKA — Joanne Wasko, a 20-year-old psychology student at Trinity College, spent part of her spring break working at a plant nursery alongside women and children who labor 12 hours a day for minimum wages.

"The physical work is incredible. They do it every day from dawn to dark," said the senior, who volunteered for a special program conducted every spring by the private school in Washington D.C.

Instead of heading for the Florida beaches, 10 young women from the Roman Catholic college jumped in a van last week and drove to Apopka, a migrant-worker center just minutes from the glittering make-believe of Walt Disney World.

Within a couple of hours, they realize they are not helping at all. They are the ones being helped.

-Sister Seton Cunneen

The young students from a different society boarded with farmworker families, labored in ferneries and helped in health clinics and with community groups.

They attended meetings of Spanish-speaking youth groups run by the Office of Farmworker Ministry, and generally glimpsed a world of poor blacks and Hispanics living in rundown houses while scraping out a living harvesting citrus and vegetables or working in the plant industry.

"As college students, we live a sort of sheltered life, so this is really an eye-opening experience," said Sharon Conzidine, a junior history major from Salem, N.Y.

Ms. Conzidine, 21, and Carey Thompson of Lexington, Mass., lived for the week with Lucia and Jesus Rodriguez and their six children in Apopka.

The one-week program is intended to broaden the outlook of the students at the small liberal-arts college founded in 1897 by the Sisters of Notre Dame de Namur.

The Trinity group that comes to this Central Florida community gives up the time between semesters normally used by college students across the nation to relax, visit home and party.

Manatee, marina issue surfaces again

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Almost 1 1/2 years after the state established a policy that limited marina development in 13 counties with significant manatee populations, the issue is surfacing again.

Since the state Department of Natural Resources is considering making the policy a formal rule, public feedback is required and marine industry lobbyists and advocates for the gentle and endangered marine mammal quickly made their positions known.

Manatee advocates want to halt the construction and expansion of marinas in the 13 counties at least for the time being. They say a moratorium is needed because of lax enforcement of manatee protection measures at new and expanded marinas.

But lobbyists for the state's $3.5 billion marine industry say the state's current policy handcuffs the state's third-biggest industry and has little to do with helping manatees.

The policy, adopted in October 1989, restricts marina development and expansion in the 13 counties by allowing only one powerboat slip for every 100 feet of shoreline at marinas with more than five slips.

The restriction is rescinded after each county passes a state-approved manatee protection and manatee-keeping plan.

So far, neither side's position is playing well with the DNR. Agency officials say they must straddle a whippet-thin line to balance environmental interests with economic interests.

Pam McVety, DNR's director of marine resources, and Pat Rose, manatee coordinator, say marine industry lobbyists exaggerate the economic ripple effect of the 1-to-100 policy. However, neither rule out the possibility that the strict policy could be eased.

While both think the marina compliance issue is a serious problem, they say a moratorium may be too harsh.

Sometime in the next six weeks, the two sides will meet in a workshop. After that, the proposed rule resulting from that meeting will be subject to public comment at a series of hearings around the state before returning to Gov. Lawton Chiles and the Cabinet for a vote.

"We never fought the idea of protecting the rascals," said Wade Hopping, a Tallahassee lobbyist who represents the Chicago-based National Marine Manufacturers Association. "We've fought the idea of blanket protection."

ACLU irked by political test questions

Associated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE — Civil libertarians say questions concerning the political past of applicants for law-enforcement jobs in Broward County are unconstitutional and smack of the "red-baiting" tactics of the 1950s.

In at least a dozen Broward cities, prospective officers who will be trained at the local police academy are asked whether they have ties to communist or fascist groups, or if they know people who do.

Job applicants also may be asked whether they have been to parades or classes organized by certain groups.

But those questions have raised the ire of the American Civil Liberties Union, where officials say the county's loyalty questions could be at odds with the same Constitution police officers are sworn to uphold and protect.

Chiles eyes changes in how electoral votes are awarded

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Republicans say it'll never happen, but Gov. Lawton Chiles says he wants some changes that would keep the winner of Florida's presidential vote from getting all the Electoral College marbles.

While the Constitution dictates the number of electoral votes a state has, it is up to the states to decide how they are awarded in presidential elections.

Presently, all of Florida's 21 electoral votes, one for each of its 19 U.S. House and two Senate seats, go the winner of the popular vote. Only twice in 40 years have the votes gone to Democrats. Lyndon Johnson won them in 1964; Jimmy Carter in 1976.

Now, Democrat Chiles is asking the Legislature to change the process to let the votes representing the U.S. House districts go to the presidential candidate who wins that district.

The two remaining votes would go to the statewide winner.

"It's just basically fairer," Chiles said last week as he made his proposal.

The proposal is already drawing fire from Legislative Republicans, who see it as a partisan maneuver to break the GOP stranglehold on presidential elections in Florida.

Van Poole, chairman of the Florida Republican Party, says there is "no way" it will pass.

Meanwhile, some political experts aren't convinced that changing the way electoral votes are awarded would product the results Democrats want.

"It doesn't necessarily solve the problem and it may create others," said Larry Sabato, a University of Virginia political scientist. He said he once favored the changes Chiles seeks, but changed his mind after learning that in 1960, John F. Kennedy would have been defeated by Richard Nixon had the rules been different.

In 1988 in Florida, Chiles' way would have given Democrat Michael Dukakis only one of Florida's electoral votes. George Bush would still have received the other 20.

But Michael Martinez, who teaches political science at the University of Florida, speculated that Dukakis might not have surrendered the state to the Republican Party so early had the rules been different.

Williams was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Soviets turn over American charged for fraud by DEA

By James Rowley
Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — A St. Louis man wanted on fraud charges is in custody after the Soviet Union turned him over to federal authorities in what is believed to be the first display of such cooperation.

Felix Kolbovsky, 42, was handed over to a Drug Enforcement Administration agent who had been quickly dispatched from Vienna to Moscow over the weekend to pick him up, the Justice Department said.

Soviet authorities notified the Justice Department late Friday that they were holding Kolbovsky but would expel and release him in 72 hours, said a department official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The DEA agent sent to Moscow took Kolbovsky to London, where he was picked up by two deputy U.S. marshals and escorted to Washington on Sunday.

He was being held in the Washington area today pending a bail hearing in U.S. District Court in Alexandria, Va., the department said.

The decision by Soviet authorities to assist the Justice Department in locating Kolbovsky is apparently the first time that Moscow has cooperated with U.S. efforts to obtain custody of a fugitive in the Soviet Union, the official said. The two nations do not have an extradition treaty.

The history of Soviet cooperation with U.S. police authorities is very sketchy. "We have so little experience on straight law enforcement," the official said.

The return of the Russian-born Kolbovsky, who emigrated to this country and became a U.S. citizen, may signal increased cooperation in the future.

Last fall, the Soviet Union joined Interpol, the international police organization.

Bush turns concert into victory gala

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — With President Bush clapping them on from the front row, country music stars turned a Ford's Theater gala into a joyful celebration of America's victory in the Persian Gulf War.

Bush mounted the stage at the close of the 2½-hour extravaganza Sunday night and spoke with emotion of the impact of watching televised scenes of the homecomings of American troops.

"It is very, very exciting. And as they come home, I expect every family is like Barbara's and mine with tears coming down our faces today and almost every day since they started back," the president said.

The event was part of a weekend fund-raising festival that raised more than $400,000 for the historic theater where Abraham Lincoln was shot.

The stage was surrounded by red-white-and-blue stars and flags. When Bush pointed out his defense secretary, Dick Cheney, and Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, in the audience, they got a standing ovation.

The crowd earlier rose to its feet for Bush-actor Morgan Freeman read a tribute comparing President Lincoln's courage in the Civil War to Bush's decision to send American troops to the gulf.

The first performer, Ricky Skaggs, said he selected a song called "Somebody's Praying" because "prayer is the very key factor which has caused this thing to come to an end the way it has."

Bush closed the show by saying, "Ricky, someone was praying. Someone was praying."

The president also delighted in a song Randy Travis sang called "Point of Light" about Bush's crusade to get all Americans to volunteer their time and talents to help their fellow citizens.

Bush, who forsook his native New England for Texas after college, said: "The incredible feeling here in this theater-to-night shows really what I love best about country music: it hits all the right chords, like caring for your family, having faith in God."

"At this moment in our history, our American family... is closer than it's ever been," said Bush.

He said it was the men and women who served in the gulf "who made this exhilarating moment possible."

"As they come home, we're going to take all the pride and the excitement that this country feels and give them the biggest welcome home party that this country has ever seen," the president promised.

The show, taped for later airing on ABC-TV, also featured folk singer Mary Chapin Carpenter, comedian Andy Andrews and juggler Dan Menendez, who performed Beethoven's "Für Elise" and "When You Wish Upon a Star" by bouncing balls rapid-fire off a giant keyboard.

Other performers at the gala included Tammy Wynette, K.T. Oslin, the Statlers, Alabama and Alan Jackson.

After war, retailers discount to military

Associated Press

Retailers are switching from yellow ribbons to deep discounts for the military to boost lagging business, but they don't want to look like they're riding the coattails of the Gulf War victory.

Ford Motor Co. is offering the Ford Military Program, allowing dealers to sell any 1990, '91 or '92 model Ford, Lincoln or Mercury for 4 percent over dealer cost compared to the standard 25 percent.

Ross Roberts, Ford vice president and general manager of the company's Lincoln-Mercury division, told Florida dealers in Orlando on Friday that the carmaker would cover any losses for vehicles sold under the program, which intentionally has a low profile.

"It is a very difficult problem for us because we feel it is a delicate line to walk to make sure we aren't capitalizing on the war," Roberts said.

Chrysler already has extended rebate deadlines on some vehicles for military personnel, and General Motors Corp. is considering a military discount plan.

Airlines, among the leading losers in the recession, also were quick to respond to the war's end.

USAir is offering "Desert Storm Discounts" in a sales pitch that mentions it was the first airline to offer flight discounts. Many major carriers have followed suit, offering 70 percent off the full coach fares to military personnel, reservists and their immediate families.

Walt Disney Co. is working out the final details of a plan to offer free tickets through Veterans Day to each Gulf War veteran and a guest good for admission to the Magic Kingdom in Orlando or Disneyland in Anaheim, Calif.

Other attractions, including Universal Studios Florida, are offering promotions of their own. Some can be obtained through the Navy's office of information, tours and tickets, which serves all active and retired military personnel.

Starting April 12, Sheraton Corp. will offer a free weekend night's stay to returning soldiers at more than 100 participating hotels.

Kinder-Care Learnings Centers Inc., the nation's largest child-care company, said Friday it will give free care to children up to age 12 whose parent or guardian was killed or listed as missing in action in the war.

"We didn't want to appear opportunistic to others, utilizing a tragedy to our benefit," said John Kaegi, Kinder-Care senior vice president. "By paying 100 percent, we felt it wouldn't."

He estimates up to 100 children could be eligible for the special program.

AT&T has connected a toll-free number to solicit USO contributions for troops still overseas.

"It wasn't a marketing issue; it wasn't a brand-awareness issue," said company spokeswoman Lydia Whitefield. "The same patriotic wave that took over our country just took over our company."

Marketing experts say the special offers are likely to bolster company goodwill, boost business and shore up consumer confidence.

"They know very well it's good PR and that it will generate additional revenues in what has been a slow time," said Cynthia Cohen Turk, president of Marketplace 2000, a Coral Gables marketing firm.

Newsweek also reported that seven people reported killed in the crash of a helicopter in Saudi Arabia were attempting to rescue three commandos stranded inside Iraq. Military officials say the helicopter was on a routine medical evacuation mission.

The Associated Press reported later that the helicopter was a Special Forces aircraft and crashed in a fierce sandstorm at Raffia, a base in the western Saudi desert. Many of the Green Beret operations inside Iraq came from Raffia, military sources said.

A visitor to Raffia, who asked not to be named, said he saw the wreckage and told it was bringing wounded Green Berets back from Iraq when it crashed.

Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf acknowledged on Feb. 27 that Army Special Forces operatives were part of the allied forces deployed against Iraq.

Military officials have said the helicopter crashed Feb. 21, but a similar incident reported Sunday by the British newspaper The Independent gave the date as Feb. 2.

Big spender

In the next election, George Bush will be hard put to assail the Democrats as big spenders. Why? Because the Republican president himself is not exactly a penny-pincher. The conservative Cato Institute says he is increasing domestic spending "at a faster pace than any other president since Franklin Roosevelt."

Like any president, however, Bush has to live with his record and it includes figures that his campaign strategists won't be happy to advertise. In addition to an average inflation-adjusted increase of 10 percent a year in domestic spending, he has racked up immense budget deficits. And the red ink is expected to become even deeper in the remainder of his term.

Though there are explanations at Bush's disposal, they aren't the kind that a Republican president likes to employ. He would much rather attack the "tax and spend" Democrats than to admit that he had to become the biggest spender in 50 years just to do some of what needs to be done.

Meanwhile, he will have to take a pounding from ultra-conservatives who argue irrationally that tax cuts and slashes in spending could have made things right.

Of course, Bush may be so popular at election time that such things won't hurt him. But whatever his standing in the polls, he will have a hard time posing as a president who held the line against the heavy spenders.

A tattered confederation

The unraveling Yugoslavia appears to be accelerating in light of steps by Slovenia and Croatia to split from the 72-year-old confederation.

Recently, the Slovenian parliament resoundingly approved a break with the central government in Belgrade. Then Croatia's nationalist-dominated assembly voted to disregard federal laws that threaten the republic's "interests and sovereignty."

The two independence-minded republics ousted their Communist Party leaders last spring in Yugoslavia's first free elections since World War II. Now they are urging other republics to divide the country into two or more sovereign states. But Serbia, the largest of the country's six republics, and the communist-dominated federal army seem determined to keep the federation intact, whatever the cost.

Consequently, this polyglot nation, riven by ethnic, political, economic and cultural divisions, is on the verge of disintegration.

The Bush administration's neutral stance toward Yugoslavia's separatist movements recently was challenged by Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole of Kansas. He called for direct U.S. aid to the non-communist republics, thus bypassing the communist regime in Belgrade.

Although such a step may be premature at this point, Washington may have to decide soon whether to side with the non-communist leaders calling for Yugoslavia's dismemberment or with the communist regime committed to holding the Balkan federation together.

Re-examine global weapons trade

WASHINGTON — Although the international embargo against munitions shipments to Iraq presumably will remain in place indefinitely, there unfortunately is no evidence of any other significant changes in the global trafficking in military weaponry.

If no lesson is learned from the recent war provoked by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, another petty despot elsewhere eventually will begin terrorizing a region by rattling sabers purchased from the United States, the Soviet Union and other leading merchants in the world's arms bazaar.

"No single event has more forcefully demonstrated the need for a new system of regional disarmament and arms transfer restrictions than Iraq's invasion of Kuwait," says analyst William D. Hartung, writing in the current issue of the World Policy Journal.

"The vast majority of nations that have joined the anti-Iraq coalition were significant suppliers of military technology to Saddam Hussein's regime throughout the 1980s," he adds, noting that the recent military confrontation might not have occurred in the absence of profligate arms sales.

Indeed, Iraq was by far the world's leading importer of weapons and munitions in 1988, the most recent year for which complete records are available. The value of its purchases that year was $4.6 billion.

But others high on the list include India with $3.2 billion, Saudi Arabia with $3 billion, Afghanistan with $2.6 billion, Iran with $2 billion, Israel with $1.9 billion, Cuba with $1.7 billion, Angola with $1.6 billion and Vietnam with $1.5 billion.

Nations whose purchases totaled $700 million to $1.3 billion include Syria, Taiwan, Japan, North Korea, Poland, West Germany, Spain, East Germany, Algeria, Turkey, Egypt and Ethiopia.

The world's leading arms exporters in 1988 were the Soviet Union with $21.4 billion worth of sales, the United States with $14.3 billion, China with $3.1 billion and France with $1.9 billion. Other major suppliers ranged from Bulgaria and Brazil to Czechoslovakia and Chile.

The annual value of all international arms transfers peaked at $56 billion in 1987, then declined sharply to $49 billion one year later. But that 1988 figure is hardly cause for celebration because the volatile Middle East maintained its long-standing position as the world's leading regional arms purchaser.

This is an especially propitious time for a re-examination of that trade because much of it was spawned by the fast-fading Cold War, whose two adversaries pressed client nations to buy arms as a means of halting the spread of communism or imperialism.

Many of the purchasers have their own political and military agendas, however, that are entirely unrelated to U.S.-Soviet tensions. Moreover, the sellers often have other motives as well — as Hartung notes in describing this country's policies:

"President Bush's penchant for employing foreign military sales as a policy instrument was first revealed in the summer of 1989, when he announced a multi-year plan to send unprecedented levels of U.S. arms and advisors to Colombia, Bolivia and Peru as part of his widely touted 'war on drugs.'"

A new system of regional disarmament is needed.

Whitewash 6 helps Keating 5

Columnists have to be prepared for strange questions, so for about a week now I've been rehearsing for this one: Of all the legislative entities I have observed in the past year, which was the most disgusting? I don't have a definite answer yet, but I have narrowed my choices to two: The Keating Five and the Whitewash Six.

The first reference, of course, is to the five U.S. senators who did favors for failed S&L mogul Charles Keating, and — purely by coincidence, of course — received large political contributions from him at about the same time. They are: Democrats Alan Cranston of California, Dennis DeConcini of Arizona, Donald Riegle of Michigan and John Glenn of Ohio; and Republican John McCain of Arizona.

The second reference is to the six-member "Ethics" Committee that has been sitting in judgment of the K5 since last November. They are: Democrats Howell Heflin of Alabama, David Pryor of Arkansas and Terry Sanford of North Carolina; and Republicans Warren Rudman of New Hampshire, Jesse Helms of North Carolina and Trent Lott of Mississippi. They recently concluded that the only patently guilty member of the K5 was Cranston, who is sick and old and has already announced that he's quitting.

It was a disgusting performance from the beginning. Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, appeared as a witness and defended the Keating Five as "men of unimpeachable character" who only did what senators do all the time — service their constituents. Had Keating's empire survived, said Inouye, the senators would be hailed as "heroes to their constituents." But, he concluded, "today they are damned because the endeavor failed."

This preposterous remark just staggers me. Can senators really be this insensate? Would someone remind Inouye that the S&L debacle is the worst financial scandal in our history? Somebody tell him that working stiffs are going to have to fork over a minimum of $300 billion to bail out failed or crooked bankers.

Let's hear from, say, piano movers: How many of you believe that the K5 looked upon Charles Keating as just another constituent, like the widow who didn't get her Social Security check? Believers say "Aye." Disbelievers, "Nay." The Nays have it, 89,001 to 12. Sorry, Dan. Sticks are smarter than you.

A few days later, the Whitewash Six heard from William Black, one of the four federal regulators summoned to meet with the K5 in early April 1987, to hear their pleas on behalf of their "friend" Keating. The regulators bluntly described Keating's Lincoln Savings & Loan as a "ticking time bomb," testified Black. "We were trying to tell them (the K5) this is not the institution you want to be going to bat for."

Observed David Pryor (who, incidentally, has been favored in past campaigns with S&L contributions): "You may have been talking a lingo that our esteemed and distinguished colleagues may not have known."

Attention all carpenters, painters and roofers: How many of you do not understand the technical term "ticking time bomb"? I do, 144 foreign nationals who do not. Sorry, David, bricks have more brains than you.

At another point, Pryor suggested the rules were so confusing that the entire Senate could use a clinic on ethics. "Everybody is bamboozled," he said.

The Keating Five didn't need any refresher courses in ethics. Their meeting with the regulators failed a simple sniff test: It stunk. All of America this time: How many would have known that meeting with regulators on behalf of a strong-arming banker would smell like a North Jersey landfill? I get 248,710,313, counting kindergartners. Sorry, senator. You've got the ethical antenna of an enchilada.

And while I've got your attention, America, one last question: Which is more disgusting, the Keating Five or the Whitewash Six? For the K5s, I count 130,210,011. For the W6s, 130,210,011. Hmmm.

Somebody tell him that working stiffs are going to have to fork over a minimum of $300 billion to bail out failed or crooked bankers.

JACK ANDERSON

Agnew, Simpson: see similarity?

WASHINGTON — Alan Simpson and Spiro Agnew — twins separated at birth?

The Republican senator from Wyoming and the former Republican vice president may not have the same biological parents, but they wear the same shoes, and put them in the same place — their mouths. Simpson is filling Agnew's shoes admirably when it comes to his habit of bashing the press in times of national crisis.

Last month Simpson gagged on his shoe when he said CNN correspondent Peter Arnett was filling "repulsive" reports from Baghdad under the watchful eye of Iraqi censors. Simpson said Arnett was "what we used to call in my day a sympathizer. ... He was active in the Vietnam War and he won a Pulitzer Prize largely because of his anti-government material. And he was married to a Vietnamese whose brother was active in the Viet Cong. I called that 'sympathizers' in my early days in the Second World War."

We can only speculate what precocious little Al meant by "sympathizer" in his early days. He was 10 when Pearl Harbor was bombed, and could be understandably confused about the role of a free press during a war.

Simpson has since backed off of his allegations about Arnett's family ties. He made a mistake, and reporters, if anyone, should understand how that happens. What we don't understand is Simpson's odious habit of blaming the messenger whenever the news doesn't sit well with him.

We're reminded of a windbag in the White House during the Nixon years, Spiro Agnew, who proved that vice presidents really do have a job. Agnew's was to blame the press for the fallings of the Vietnam War. Agnew gave his best performance on Nov. 13, 1969. Ten days earlier President Nixon had announced plans to continue the war until North Vietnam agreed to negotiate an "honorable peace" or until the South Vietnamese were capable of fighting their own war. Nixon called on "the great silent majority" to back him up.

Network news anchors called Nixon's policy what it was — "nothing really new." Agnew responded in a speech claiming Nixon's remarks had been subject to "querulous criticism" from a "gaggle of commentators" and a "tiny closed fraternity of privileged" journalists who were "constantly talking to one another, thereby providing artificial reinforcement to their shared viewpoints."

There it is, the stale theory that the left-wing, critical American press lives to make life miserable for well-meaning politicians and bureaucrats. It is Alan Simpson's theme song. He told Saddam Hussein in a pre-war meeting last year that the American press was "a haughty and pampered press — they all consider themselves political geniuses."

Last year, we reported what Simpson said in that meeting with Saddam, and the senator throttled us. Simpson told Saddam that his problem was he had isolated himself from the media. Simpson said Iraq's beef was with the American press, not the American government. And, he added, that Saddam should "invite them [the press] to come here [Iraq] and see for yourselves."

What Simpson expected the press to see in Iraq is not spelled out. But what the senator later said he was trying to do was open up Iraq more to the Western media. Make that everyone in the Western media except Peter Arnett. Because later when Arnett was the sole Western reporter still in Baghdad with the permission of Saddam Hussein, Simpson called him a "sympathizer."

We're reminded of a windbag in the Nixon White House.

Violence prompts Baker to cancel Jerusalem visit

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

CAIRO, Egypt — An outbreak of violence in Jerusalem forced Secretary of State James A. Baker III to cancel a planned visit to the predominantly Arab but Israeli-controlled Eastern sector of the city.

Baker met with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak here today after saying he will not ask Arabs to make gestures for peace until he knows how far Israel is prepared to go in matching them.

He then flew to Jerusalem, where his call for unspecified concessions by Israel already is causing problems.

In canceling his scheduled visit to East Jerusalem as part of a 10-day tour of the Middle East, Baker denounced Sunday's fatal stabbing of four Israeli women in mostly Jewish West Jerusalem as "tragic and appalling acts."

Nonetheless, Baker's spokeswoman, Margaret D. Tutwiler, said he would follow through with plans to meet Tuesday with a group of Palestinian Arabs at the home of the U.S. consul-general in West Jerusalem.

Arab participants in the planned meeting are listed only by occupation. U.S. officials maintained they do not know whether delegation members have ties with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

After a two-hour session with Mubarak, Baker told reporters his meeting with the Palestinians would not constitute resumption of a dialogue with the PLO.

"It does not represent a reopening of the dialogue with the PLO," he said. "The individuals that I understand we will be meeting with ... are people that have met before with representatives of the U.S. government and Israel."

The United States suspended talks with the PLO last June, saying factions had engaged in terrorist acts against Israel despite a pledge by PLO Chairman

Yasser Arafat to abandon such tactics.

Baker also dismissed a reporter's suggestion that his meeting with the Palestinians would boost the PLO's standing, which suffered because of its support of Iraq's occupation of Kuwait last August.

"Absolutely not," the secretary said. "The PLO came out of this, as you correctly put it, with diminished stature. We have said for many months now that we think the leadership of the PLO made a fundamental mistake in embracing Saddam Hussein and his aggression against a small Arab brother."

"And they remain, as far as we are concerned, diminished as a consequence of that," Baker said.

In reply to another question, Baker denied that the United States plans to station troops in Egypt in the wake of the Gulf War.

"We have no such intention," he said. "We have not been asked by Egypt to do that."

Seminole County lawsuit. It could be won."

Sen. W.W. "Bud" Gardner, D-Titusville, who is sponsoring the Senate's education reform bill, cautioned that the windfall if approved could be devoured by other education cuts to trim the deficit. Gardner's district includes Sanford and areas generally east of County Road 427.

"It could be a wash if all these things happen," Gardner said. "But then Seminole would be in a lot better shape than most."

Stone, Gardner and Rep. Art Grindle, P-Altamonte Springs, and Stan Bainter, R-Tavares, all agree a proposal to begin the elimination of "categorical funding" could give school officials more control to spend money for teaching programs needed most.

Now, state education revenues are earmarked for specific programs. If the controls are relaxed, the local officials will be able to provide more money to enlarge needed programs.

"For the first time in many, many years, money will go back to the district and they can decide how to spend it," Grindle said. "Which is the way to go."

Grindle's district includes Sanford and Lake Mary.

"It puts education back with the teacher, where it belongs," Stone said.

Stone said lawmakers may cut more state school strings next year, although local school districts will have to meet a number of standards. Failing to meet those standards could result in closed schools or the removal of school superintendents and board members from office, Stone said.

Gardner said he plans to use his powerful position as chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee to remove Lottery revenues from general education funding and return to the original Lottery split between schools, community colleges and universities. Any leftover dollars would be sent to local schools for whatever needs they have.

Bainter, whose district includes most portions of the county west of Interstate 4, said Seminole County could see increased construction dollars as a result of increased revenues for utility taxes which finance the state school construction fund.

Despite the shortfalls and certain program cuts, Bainter said the process will be healthy for Florida. Bainter said he hopes the state will move to a base fiscal plan instead of a recurring program plan.

"We're constitutionally required to fund only a have dozen or so programs," Bainter said. "At last count, we're now funding 2,152 programs. Many of those should be local obligations."

Gardner agrees. "It is a gloom and doom session. But it's forcing us to do things we didn't have to before. And I think that's good."

Hostages moved from Beirut

By FAROUK HASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Pro-Iranian Muslim extremists holding 13 Western hostages have moved the captives from a prison in southern Beirut to a prison in eastern Lebanon, security sources said today.

The report coincided with a drive by the United States and Britain to secure the release of the captives through the good offices of Iran and Syria. Iran has officially neutral in the week-long Persian Gulf War, while Syria fought alongside the allies.

The sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the captives were now believed held in hideouts controlled by Shiite fundamentalists in and around the ancient Roman town of Bealbek in the Bekaa Valley of east Lebanon.

The army command is convinced that none of the hostages is in Beirut or its environs any more, one source said. "Lebanese troops searched all suspected hideouts controlled by Shiite fanatics in south Beirut last week and there was no trace of any of the captives."

The source said the search included the two main barracks used by the fundamentalist Hezbollah, or Party of God, in the shantytowns of Hajjaj and Hay Mad, where most of the missing Westerners had been believed imprisoned.

The missing men are six Americans, four Britons, two Germans and an Italian. The Americans are journalist Terry Anderson, educators Thomas Sutherland, Jesse Turner, Alann Steen and Joseph Cicippio, and writer Edward Tracy.

More anti-government protests in Yugoslavia

By DUBAN STOJANOVIC
Associated Press Writer

BELOGRADE, Yugoslavia — About 15,000 anti-government protesters gathered in downtown Belgrade today for a third straight day of demonstrations that already have left two people dead and scores injured.

As the crowd swelled, the head of Serbia's Orthodox church, Patriarch Pavle, pleaded with the emotional demonstrators to disperse "in order to prevent bloodshed."

The defiant protesters chanted back, "Treason! Treason!" and refused to budge. Earlier today, police had fired tear gas at the demonstrators and beat some with truncheons.

Meanwhile, across town the Communist leadership organized a huge counter-demonstration. About 30,000 people, many bused in from factories around the state, gathered near the confluence of the Sava and Danube rivers at the rally called by Serbia's ruling Socialist Party, the renamed Communists.

"We will prevail over those who want to destroy Serbia," exclaimed Dusko Matkovic, a deputy in the state legislature.

Serbia, Yugoslavia's largest republic, is resisting pro-democracy moves in four of the five other republics.

Hundreds of policemen wearing bullet-proof vests and carrying automatic rifles stood behind the podium as speakers criticized the opposition and the crowd clapped perfunctorily.

The anti-Communist demonstrators, mostly university students, are demanding the release of an estimated 170 people jailed in the last three days and an end to censorship imposed on Belgrade's independent radio and TV during weekend rioting that left two dead and at least 120 hurt.

They were also seeking the resignation of Serbia's interior minister, Radmilo Bogdanovic, whom they consider responsible for Saturday's bloodshed.

Serbia's parliament and government said they would convene emergency meetings today to consider the demands.

Slobodan Milosevic, the state's hard-line president, reportedly met with some students but refused to receive a student delegation sent by the protesters, student leaders said. Milosevic is widely believed to have ordered the crackdown, calling in the army Saturday to help quell the unrest, the worst in Serbia since World War II.

Other protesters had gathered Sunday night in downtown Belgrade and pelted police with stones. Several injured policemen were seen being led away. At least two demonstrators were also injured, witnesses reported.

The crowd grew to more than 5,000 but gradually dispersed after opposition leaders appealed for calm.

Army reservists armed with Kalashnikov rifles surrounded the TV station and three water cannon trucks were parked on a side street.

Teacher

manager for 10 years, and meanwhile indulged himself in his teaching passion part-time at Barry College, Miami-Dade Community College and Broward Community College.

In 1988 Vartin moved to Lake Mary, where he decided to return to full-time teaching. He now teaches six courses in English poetry, medieval humanities and speech during early-morning and night classes at SCC. Several days a week, his first class bell rings at 8:30 a.m.

Vartin, like other English professors at SCC, is a writer. He has written an unpublished detective novel, and is working on a second novel. He is also compiling a collection of his poetry.

Much of Vartin's poetry is tinted with humor. In a selection titled "A Blind Date," he lightheartedly addresses the humiliation of being paired with a less-than-desirable person who is, herself, disappointed in her date. From that selection are the last two stanzas:

"When I saw her, my blood ran cold,

"Why she was old!

"And she was gross, heavy, and crude.

"Even her language and manners were rude.

"Our mutual friend had told so many lies.

"But to my surprise,

"What was most shocking to see.

"The lady seemed most disappointed in me."

He doesn't find his CPA beginnings unlikely for a poet — he readily points to poets William Carlos Williams and e.e. cummings, who both were businessmen before they were widely acclaimed as literary masters.

And besides, he said, at heart he was never a CPA.

"I was never a good CPA," he said. "A CPA would want things to work out — things have to work out. I wasn't like that."

Gas

unleaded is $1.049. Full serve is $1.699.

Hall said his self-serve regular unleaded price is $1.04.

Chang said some stations had been selling gas locally for 99 cents, but he felt they had been paying that much to the oil companies, using the gas as a loss leader.

"It was artificial. The oil companies encouraged the dealers to sell gas for 99 cents. It drew customers in who purchased other things, but dealers didn't make any profit, oil companies did," Chang said.

Hall said competition is keen in Central Florida.

"We only make about three cents on a gallon. We're just trying to compete with the company stores," he said.

The new average is nearly 1 cent below the July 1990 level of $1.171 cents, before Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, Lundberg said.

The price includes an average of nearly 33 cents in state and federal taxes, she noted. Federal gas taxes increased by a nickel per gallon Dec. 1.

Chang said in Florida, consumers are paying 9.3 cents more in federal, state and excise taxes than they paid last summer.

Gas prices have dropped by 30.2 cents since peaking on Oct. 19, Lundberg said. At that time, a gallon of regular unleaded gasoline at self-serve stations averaged 147.09 cents.

Police chief denounces attack

By MICHAEL FLEEMAN
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — Officers who beat a motorist in a videotaped attack tarnished the reputation of the city's police force and will be punished, the police chief said.

The beating is being investigated by several agencies, including the FBI, which will look at civil rights violations. The Police Department is conducting an internal investigation and the county said it would start presenting its case to a grand jury today.

Police Chief Daryl F. Gates also recorded a video shown at officers' roll calls beginning Friday. The tape was released to the press Sunday and showed a somber Gates pledging punishment for all police officers involved.

"Serving the public properly, that's what the badge stands for," Gates said. "And I've told you that if you've tarnished that badge in any way, you cast a shadow on that badge, you cast a shadow on the badges of every single man and woman in this department."

Thousands of angry calls have flooded the Police Department and Mayor Tom Bradley's office regarding the beating. People have demanded Gates' ouster, and Bradley scrambled to calm the city and salvage its reputation.

"People all over the country are furious," said American Civil Liberties Union spokeswoman Linda Burstin. "It has been a phenomenal outpouring of rage."

On March 3, plumber George

Holliday stuck his new video camera out the window of his apartment and captured the beating of Rodney Glen King after a traffic stop.

Holliday sold his video of the baton-swinging officers to a local television station for $500. It aired first locally, then nationally. By midweek, the country was angry and the nation's second-largest city was reeling.

Violence erupts at U.S. theaters

By BETH J. HARPAZ
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — Violence at theaters showing the film "New Jack City" has left one moviegoer dead, several people injured and more than a dozen arrested in cities from coast to coast.

Shootings, fights and a riot broke out after the film, based on the real-life New York drug lord Nickie Barnes, opened Friday.

The film's director and co-star, Mario Van Peebles, said the movie is not "a heavy gang movie" and should not be blamed.

"It's the type of movie that will draw the gangs to it," said Las Vegas police Sgt. William Reed.

A fight broke out Friday night in a Las Vegas theater showing the film, and police arrested 15 people.

In New York, an 18-year-old man was arrested Saturday for investigation of murder in the death of Gabriel Williams, 19, who was struck in the chest by a bullet during a shootout Friday night in front of a theater showing the movie.

Man shoots police chief, kills self

Associated Press

FAIRCHILD, Wis. — A man shot and killed the police chief of this small rural village Sunday before killing himself in front of his own 2-year-old child, the local sheriff said.

Robert Hoffman, 39, had a history of run-ins with police, said Eau Claire County Sheriff Dick Hewitt.

Hoffman had gone to his estranged wife's apartment, and ordered the teenage babysitter watching the couple's three children to leave, Hewitt said. The estranged wife had warned the babysitter Hoffman was on his way and the babysitter called authorities.

Police Chief Pat McCready, among three officers who went to the apartment, was shot once in the chest when he entered, said Hewitt. He later died at a hospital.

Officials later found Hoffman's body in a bedroom of his estranged wife's apartment, with a gunshot wound to the head. Hoffman's 2-year-old child was found uninjured nearby.

Police had removed the other two children, who also were uninjured, from the apartment earlier.

Fairchild, in northwestern Wisconsin, has about 600 residents.

Former officer fatally shot

Associated Press

DAYTON, Ohio — A former police officer charged with torturing a drug suspect with a hot clothes iron last year was shot to death Sunday outside a tavern, according to broadcast and published reports.

John Gamble, 29, was killed at about 5 a.m. outside a bar on the city's west side, a Dayton Police Department dispatcher told the Dayton Daily News and radio station WOYD.

Police refused comment on either report when contacted Sunday by The Associated Press. Police told the newspaper that the owner of the bar was in custody, but no charges were filed.

Gamble was the central figure in an incident in which a drug suspect, David Green of Detroit, then 18, alleged that Gamble had burned him with a hot clothes iron to extract information from him in January 1990.

News of the incident which surfaced in July prompted calls from the NAACP and other community groups for the police chief to resign. Both Gamble and Green are black.

Police Chief James Newby fired Gamble and two other officers allegedly involved in the incident. Newby did not resign.

Green later received $400,000 from the city to settle his lawsuit over the incident. He is serving a prison term on a drug trafficking charge.

IN BRIEF

Cookbook sales benefit seriously ill

Members of the Junior Woman's Club of Sanford are busy tempting taste buds with a new cookbook fundraiser to benefit the Ronald McDonald House in Gainesville. Delicious appetizers, main dishes, cakes, soups, breads, microwave dishes and more may be found in this 86 cookbook, which was compiled by the staff, board and volunteers at the Ronald McDonald House.

The Ronald McDonald House is a non-profit organization which provides a home away from home for families of seriously ill children being treated at Shands Hospital or the University of Florida Clinic. More than 10,000 families, many of whom are from the Central Florida area, have stayed at Ronald McDonald House. A recent golf tournament sponsored by the Junior's netted $2,000 for the House.

For more information on purchasing a cookbook, contact Marion Owen at 322-9078.

Examine, correct weed problem

Many calls have come in to the Extension Service this week concerning lawn weed control. Weeds are common to all lawngreens. When there is a problem with weeds in the lawn, removing them usually means applying a herbicide.

If you have a problem with weeds in your lawn, it indicates that your lawn is stressed for some reason. Lawns that are properly maintained are less apt to be plagued with weeds. A vigorously growing lawn leaves little area for weed seeds to germinate and will usually smother out those that do germinate. So before you start your weed control program, examine and correct the reason that you have a weed problem in the first place.

Herbicides are chemicals that kill weeds, but before you apply a herbicide, you need to know what kind of weed that you have and what kind of grass you have. There are different herbicide recommendations for different kinds of weeds and for different lawngreens.

Weeds are classified into general categories. First, there are annual weeds which complete their life cycle in less than one year and these are usually the easiest to control. The second category is biennials which require more than a year to complete a life cycle, but less than 2 years. The third and most difficult weed to control are the perennials. They live for more than 2 years and can last indefinitely.

Another important way the weeds are classified are by their type. There are three basic types of weeds: broadleaf, grass and sedge. It may be difficult to tell which is which. And it is very important to know before you purchase any herbicide.

It is also important to know what kind of grass you have before purchasing a herbicide. For example, there are herbicides that kill broadleaf weeds in St. Augustine grass that are not labeled for bahia grass. In addition, there are pre-emergent herbicides that kill weed seeds, and post-emergent herbicides that kill growing weeds.

Confused? It is confusing because there is much to know before you start applying a herbicide. If applied properly, herbicides are an important component of an overall weed program. However, if applied improperly, herbicides can seriously damage your lawn. This is why it is so important to know what weed you are trying to control and what grass you are trying to control it in.

Bring samples of your weed problems to our office on Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. and a master gardener or myself will help you to identify them and talk to you about weed control. We are located across from Flea World off 17-92 south of Sanford.

Celeste White is the Seminole County Urban Horticulturist. For gardening problems or questions phone her at 323-2360, Ext. 5316.

Endless appeals stretch charity to breaking point

DEAR ABBY: I feel confident that I speak for many. This is an open letter to all charities to which I contribute — or used to contribute: I stretch a very limited budget to include causes I sincerely want to help, so please, stop sending me labels with my name and address printed on them. I already have enough labels to last the rest of my life if I live to be 150.

Do not send me pens, pencils, key rings, decals, and Christmas and all-occasion cards that include Easter, Mother's Day, Father's Day, congratulations on graduation, sorry about the death of your canary, etc. (I think you get the idea.)

Also, after you've received my contribution, please don't follow it up a month later asking me if I can spare $10 or $20 more. (If I could, I would have sent it in the first place.)

Would that I could tell the federal government that it is not going to get another penny from me until it demonstrates that it can spend it sensibly, but I can — and do — tell you.

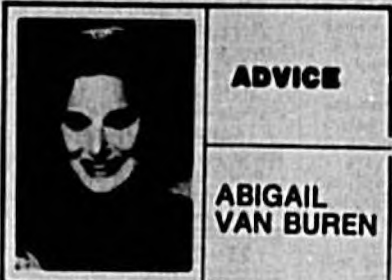

You may sign my name if you wish, but in this case, my name is...

LEGION
DEAR LEGION: You took the words right out of my typewriter! I couldn't have said it better.

DEAR ABBY: I related to the letter about the husband who was a pack rat because I'm one, too. After years of bachelorhood, I married a woman who'd throw out the newspaper while I was still reading it.

In the fourth year of our marriage I was sent overseas, leaving my wife pregnant. When I completed that tour, I was reassigned to the Pentagon, and my wife had the thankless task of selling our home and packing and moving us to the Washington, D.C., area. She handled all of this like a real pro.

A year later we were entertaining guests, and I told the story of our move, bragging about how well my wife had handled everything alone. She casually remarked, "Yes, and it gave me the opportunity to throw out all the junk Bill had been carrying around all these years." I was shocked to hear her say this, as she'd never mentioned it before, so I asked,

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

"And just what did you throw out?" She calmly replied, "What are you missing?" Try as I did, I couldn't identify a single item I missed. Then she said, "You tell me what you're missing, and I'll tell you whether or not I threw it out."

Everyone (including me) had a good laugh at my expense, but it certainly proved her point.

So, all you pack rats, clean out your closets and drawers, put the junk in boxes, then take the whole lot to one of those storage lockers. After paying the storage bill for several years, you will be amazed at how much you can live without.

I am a retired colonel (USAF), but sign me...

BEEN THERE AND LEARNED
DEAR BEEN THERE: As incredible as it may seem, public auctions are held to sell furniture, clothing, furs and valuable jewelry that were in storage for many years and never claimed. The owners either couldn't pay the storage bill, or they died having forgotten that their property had been stored.

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to "Repulsed in Florida," who found it offensive when fellow diners proceeded to blow their noses loudly at the table. I, too, have been raised in a family who were taught to excuse themselves to the restroom when they felt the need to do any nose blowing. Let me share this true story with "Florida":

My family and I had gone to dinner at a buffet-style restaurant. The man sitting behind my grandmother began to loudly blow his nose. Grandmother turned to him and asked sternly, "Are you through?"

He then replied, "No, I think I'll go back for some more chicken."

Cheers to the Farris

Cancellation of the St. Johns River Festival last Sunday was a big disappointment to Faye Siler, Sanford artist. She and her husband Don, arrived at the lakefront about 7:30 p.m. Sunday to find their display screens had fallen down and the rigging were ripped from the ground due to high winds.

So, Faye says, they loaded up the car and headed for home.

Faye praised the committee for doing such a good job. She also tossed accolades in the direction of Dave and Joyce Farr. "They were go-getters, runners and problem solvers," Faye said. "I can't say enough for the Farris."

Bartholin's gland may need surgery

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please provide information on the Bartholin's gland. What happens when it gets inflamed, and what effect does a person's hormone level have upon the gland? Can long-term problems eventually lead to cancer?

DEAR READER: Bartholin's glands are two small glands, situated at the opening of the vagina, which provide lubrication. They are subject to two relatively common disorders: cysts and infection.

Bartholin's cysts result from blockage of the glandular openings. The glands fill with clear fluid and swell, causing a lump that is sometimes painful. The swelling can be quite noticeable and may interfere with normal sexual activity. However, these cysts do not require treatment unless they grow large or become inflamed.

Bartholinitis is infection of the glands. This may or may not follow cyst formation. However, the condition is always painful, can lead to large abscesses or may enlarge to produce fistulas (abnormal openings) between the Bartholin's glands and the surrounding tissue, such as the vagina or the anus. Antibiotics are usually required.

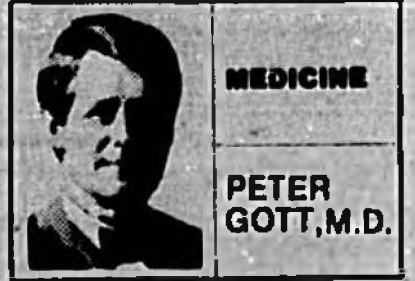

In severe cases — or in patients who experience repeated infections and cyst formation — the abscesses may have to be drained. The preferred operation is called marsupialization. The surgeon opens the infected area and removes tissue until the Bartholin's gland is exposed. This forms a small sac that does not close over and, therefore, prevents the accumulation of cystic fluid and/or infected material.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My daughter's recent prenatal care at 4½ months included ultrasound imaging of the embryo as a matter of routine without suspicion of complications. Was this necessary, and can it cause problems?

DEAR READER: Ultrasound imaging is a safe, painless and convenient diagnostic test. It has many uses, including examination for gallstones and for cysts within various organs. It is also used extensively in obstetrics because it enables specialists to obtain a non-X-ray picture of the unborn fetus.

With this information, obstetricians can easily determine the presence of multiple fetuses, the age of an unborn

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
This week we will look at some different aspects of declarer play. If all players counted their tricks correctly, there would be no average players — everyone would be an expert. North was correct to raise his partner's five-card-major opening bid to two hearts. With a weak hand it is best to make a limited bid immediately if you can. After West had led a trump and the dummy was tabled, Willy Nilly charged into the play. He drew trumps and continued with the ace and another club. He was hoping for an even club break, but East gratefully cashed three tricks in the suit and then led the spade king to defeat the contract. Willy should have counted his tricks more carefully. He had nine sure winners, and the 10th could come from either a 3-3 club division — which will happen about a third of the time — or a club split in the dummy. The correct play is to win the first trick in hand and immediately cash three diamond tricks, discarding a club from the dummy. Next lead the ace and another club. East will win and return a trump, but South wins in hand and ruffs a club in the dummy with the heart king for his 10th trick. Note that if South carelessly wins either of the trump leads with dummy's king, West will be able to ruff the third club with the heart seven. Any time you can arrange to ruff in the hand with the fewer trumps, it is almost certain to be the right play.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
March 12, 1991

There are indications you might participate in an enterprise in the year ahead where you'll have a minor, but rewarding, role. The worth of this venture won't be determined by the size of your participation.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your intuition could be an enormously valuable asset today, so don't treat it indifferently. Let your feelings serve as your guide. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In a discussion with a friend today, do not treat lightly an issue this individual takes seriously. If you do, your pal might stop coming to you for advice.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll function effectively today, provided you don't attempt to do too many things at once. It might be wise just to do one task and see it through to conclusion.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be very careful not to attempt to instruct others on how to do something that you do not know how to do yourself. You could create a needless problem.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your abilities at researching, probing and detecting are especially keen today. There are strong indications you will put them to constructive uses.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) There are two sides to every story, and it is important that you keep this in mind today. If not, you may rush into a judgment, offending an innocent party.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The possibilities for fulfilling your ambitious expectations look good today, but you might do things in stages rather than in one fell swoop.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Even though it may not enhance your popularity, it's best not to do things against your better judgment today. Don't yield to peer pressure.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Strive for continuity of purpose today, so you finish what you start. Any loose threads you leave hanging could be neglected for quite some time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You may be tempted to do something out of spite in order to even an old score with another. If you do, you'll learn the hard way that spite does not make right.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Something in which you're presently involved has promising potential, but it must be nurtured one step at a time. Don't be impatient.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Appearances are extremely important today, so, if you hope to be a leader, put on a positive attitude. In order to become someone others are willing to follow, you first have to look the part.
