

Hollywood Studios Campaign For The Oscars

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The stakes, of course, are penny ante compared to national politics, but Hollywood studios, producers and a handful of actors campaign vigorously and shamelessly each year for the Oscars.

As you will see, following the Academy Awards presentation April 14, media ads will blossom extolling which picture won the Oscar and which actors and actresses won awards in which pictures.

One or two films will be advertised: "Winner of Three Oscars!"
The increased revenue at the box office will add millions to the studio coffers, not mentioned big bucks to the producers, stars and directors with percentages of the profits.

A harbinger of the big hype can and will be seen Feb. 26, the day after the Academy Award nominations are announced. This earlier manifestation will be compared with political primaries — the winners sing their own praises and speculate on victory in the finals.

Unlike political animals, however, Hollywood folk do not bathe in the electorate, the 3,600 members of the academy who do the balloting.
Instead, they resort to the "trades" — Daily Variety and the Hollywood Reporter, twin bibles of motion pictures and television which are read every morning by almost everyone in the entertainment industry.

The trades are legitimate, respected papers which carry important news, castings, production notes, government items dealing with show biz, reviews, editorials and gross per full page. They also publish advertising at the rate of $750 per full page.

Normally the trades run 8-12 pages. During the height of the Oscar campaign the papers have as many as 68 pages bulging with ads for best actor, best actress consideration as well as best picture, best supporting players, etc.

It would be absolutely gauche for a major star to place an ad extolling his or her own performance in a particular film. Instead, the star with a good chance to win the award takes another route.
He calls in his press agent and lays out a budget for an ad campaign. The press agent takes it to the studio requesting that the ad look as if it came from the studio, removing the ones from the star.

The studio is happy to comply. If the stars wins, of course, there's more big bucks to be gathered with no damage to studio budgets. But, in fairness to performers, most ads are designed and bought by studios for their stars.

The motion picture academy itself abominates the ads and its rule book governing Oscar balloting states:
"Every year at awards time the Academy and the industry are embarrassed by a few colleagues who resort to outright, excessive and vulgar solicitation of votes. For years the Academy has sought means to penalize those few."
"We have been hesitant to set down specific rules governing advertising. We have left the decision to the good conscience of the nominees."
Which is akin to telling boys to quit looking at girls in bikinis. If a studio has more than one film to promote, it does so equitably.

Two full pages of blaring red ink in a recent edition of Variety, for instance, advertised "Norma Rae" in a conglomerate ad paid for, presumably, by 20th Century-Fox.
The ad offered consideration for best picture, best actress (Sally Field), best actor (Ron Leibman), best supporting actor (Bou Brice), best director (Martin Ritt), best screenplay, editing and original song.

"All That Jazz," "Luna," "The Rose" and "Breaking Away" got the same treatment from Fox suggesting a dozen categories, including best picture for each.
United Artists, on the other hand, took a single page with a picture of Peter Sellers from "Being There," hoping to land him a best actor nomination.

Columbia also advertises heavily for the Oscar favorite "Kramer vs. Kramer," praising the film, Dustin Hoffman and Meryl Streep.
"Manhattan" was advertised in black and white (the film was black and white) with separate full-page pitches for the picture and others.
Other films relentlessly advertised are "The China Syndrome," "Going South," "Hill," "La Cage Aux Folles," "North Dallas Forty," "The Champ," "Dracula," "Yanks," "The Onion Field," "Apocalypse Now."

A notable exception to the flurry of advertising is Woody Allen. Nowhere in the "Manhattan" ads can his picture or name be found. Yet Woody may well be a nominee for best actor, best director and best writer.
Face it, Woody's got class.

The Doobies, Summer, Rogers Up For Grammys

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The soft-rocking Doobie Brothers, mellow-rockers Earth, Wind and Fire, country crooner Kenny Rogers and jazz-singer Rickie Lee Jones have given the 22nd annual Grammy nominations a diverse mix of performers.

The Doobies and Earth, Wind and Fire picked up six nominations each, while disco queen Donna Summer and Rogers picked up another nomination for best arrangement. Summer's "I Wanna Dance with Somebody" was nominated for best rhythm and blues recording, and "September" was nominated for best rhythm and blues instrumental performance and "September" was nominated for best rhythm and blues instrumental performance.

Her hit "Chick E." in "Love" was one of eight nominations for best song, and the sultry newcomer will vie for best new artist against the Blues Brothers, Dire Straits, the Knack and comedian Robin "Mork" Williams.
Billy Joel and Supertramp also picked up several key nominations from the Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences, which will prep performances and ceremonies live on national television Feb. 27 on the Shrine Auditorium.
Earth, Wind and Fire's "After the Love Has Gone" was nominated for best record of the year, and "Song of the Year" for best rhythm and blues song and performance by a group and for best arrangement accompanying vocalists.

Their dance tune "Boogie Wonderland" was nominated for best rhythm and blues instrumental performance and best blues recording, and "September" was nominated for best rhythm and blues instrumental performance.

Also nominated for best of the year were Joe's "Honey," Miss Summer for "I Wanna Dance with Somebody," and Peaches and Herb's "Reunited."
Best pop female performance nomination went to Miss Summer for "Bad Girl," Miss Jones for "Chick E. in Love," Melissa Manchester for "Don't Cry Out Loud," Miss Gaynor for "I Will Survive" and Donna Warwick for "I'll Never Love This Way Again."

Challenging Rogers for best pop male performer are Rod Stewart for "Da Ya Think I'm Sexy?," Joel for "Mistaken Identity," Robert John for "Bad Boy" and James Taylor for "Up on the Roof."
Joining the Doobies in nominations for best pop group went Supertramp for "Breakfast in America," the Little River Band for "Lonesome Loser," the Commodores for "Ball of Fire" and Miss Streisand and "You Don't Bring Me Flowers."

Tucker Trades Country For Rock

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Tanya Tucker's unmistakably seductive voice is still keeping her male audiences writing with desire, but she's traded the syrupy country material for some rigorous rock 'n' roll.
Little Tanya was a precocious 13-year-old when "Delia Dawn" topped the country music charts in 1971. The pubescent blonde was gobbled up as the little darling of Nashville.

But an eight-year recording career, coupled with a physical and mental ripening, has stripped away the innocence.
Her recording career has taken another direction, with the expertise of producer Mike Chapman, and her motion picture career is blossoming, with filming already started on "Hard Country" with Jan Michael Vincent.
In explaining the new relationship with more of the real Tanya Tucker than the others.

Tanya proves she can not only belt out a hard and tough rocker, but she can still seduce a listener with a plaintive ballad in the next breath. The vocals chew and tear at the words to a song.
The influence of Chapman, who is responsible for catapulting the careers of Blondie, The Knack and Suzi Quatro, is easily detected. And the selections are a far cry from Tanya's hits "Jambouline," "Love's the Answer," "Liza and the Rainman," "San Antonio Shovel," "Blood and Guts and Gonna Get It" and "The Man Who Turned Mania On."

But Tanya says she never looks back. "I keep moving forward," she says. "Life's too short to have to look back. I want to do it all, and there's so little time. I still have a lot to do."

Her Next Movie Will Earn Bo Derek A Cool $1 Million

By KENNETH R. CLARK
her next movie will earn $1 million for her next role in a film as yet untitled. This time, husband John will direct it — thereby presumably short-circuiting another sequel on the set. Neil Black was fired and Richard Long lived halfway through "A Change of Seasons" and the Derels got the blame. Ransohoff denies that — says the decision to change directors was his own. Meanwhile, just to keep the "10" girl on the scale, Bo has another movie on the horizon. She'll star in a remake of "Tarzan, The Ape Man" — as Jane, no doubt.

MEMORIES: One of the two surviving members of Stage Door Canteen-days fame is laying on the nostalgia with a travel these days at New York's Reno Sweeney. Mamas opened Wednesday with such classics as "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy" and "You Forgot to Remember Me" and she capped the act with "Where Did the Good Times Go?" — accompanied by film clips of the famous trio at its World War II zenith.

Kelly Upsets Congressmen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Eleven Republicans believe Rep. Richard Kelly's explanation of his involvement in the "Arab scam" scandal was so incredible the GOP should investigate whether he deserves to be punished by his own party.
Kelly, of Florida, the only Republican among seven House members implicated in the FBI's undercover bribery investigation, said he accepted $25,000 from undercover FBI agents to further an investigation he was conducting on his own.
Rep. George M. O'Brien of Illinois and James T. Broyhill of North Carolina drafted a letter to Republican House leader John Rhodes urging him to call for an inquiry of whether Kelly deserves party privileges.
Kelly's story "challenges credibility and suggests... Mr. Kelly acted in a manner unbecoming a member of Congress," the letter said. Nine other Republicans joined in signing it.
"What they are calling for is a kangaroo court," a Kelly spokesman said.
Kelly issued a statement saying proper legal authorities and the House Ethics Committee are investigating "and I am confident justice will be done in the normal fashion."
Rhodes has called a meeting of the nine-member GOP House leadership to look into the Kelly matter next week, a spokesman said.
"We could expel him from the Republican conference, we could take away his committee assignments, we could deny assistance for his re-election campaign and strip him of his seniority and rights and privileges he enjoys as a Republican," the letter said.
Other signers of the letter were Reps. Chair W. Burgener of California, M. Caldwell Butler of Virginia, David F. Emery of Maine, Paul Findley of Illinois, Bill Frenzel of Minnesota, New Gingrich of Georgia, Elwood "Bud" Hills of Indiana, Tom Loeffler of Texas, and Edward R. Madigan of Illinois.
Kelly and the other seven House members — all Democrats — are now being investigated by the House Ethics Committee as well as the FBI.
The committee announced Wednesday it has chosen E. Barrett Prenteman, member of a huge Washington law firm, as special counsel for the investigation.

Politicians Scramble To Run For His Seat

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer
U.S. Rep. Richard Kelly's involvement in the Abcam scandal has touched off a flurry of political activity throughout his eight-county district.
On the Republican side, a former Seminole County legislator, State Sen. Vince Fechtel, Jr., Leesburg, is "exploring" the possibilities of running against Kelly, of New Port Richey, for the nomination for Kelly's fifth congressional seat in the U.S. House of Representatives.
Meanwhile, among Democrats, a current Seminole County legislator, State Rep. Robert Hattaway, of Altamonte Springs, has decided not to run for Kelly's seat as long as State Rep. Dick Batchelor, D-Orlando, remains a candidate for the office. Fechtel, elected to the Senate in 1976 and a current two-term congressman, said: "My approach will be to contact hundreds of people in the district to be sure I will have the moral and financial support to win. I'm not working to line that up now." Fechtel said he will announce his decision within two weeks whether he will challenge Kelly after the March 11 primary. At this point, he said, he is "definitely not announcing, definitely not a candidate and only exploring the possibilities."
He said for the first time in his political career of three two-year terms in the Florida Senate and a current two-year term in the Florida Senate he was approached this week by a group seeking a commitment that he would run for an office.
Fechtel said agricultural interests early this week urged that he be a candidate against Kelly. Among Kelly's strongest supporters during his three election campaigns for the Congress have been state agricultural interests.
Two weeks ago news reports linked Kelly to an FBI undercover "ring" operation, called "Abcam." The reports said that Kelly accepted a $25,000 payment from undercover FBI agents in return for a promise from him that he would assist, if necessary, a non-existent Arab shiek to enter the United States in the event an uprising occurred in his country. Kelly had denied being involved in any criminal activity, but said he did accept the money as part of an investigation he was personally conducting on why such a large amount of money was being paid for something he would do for any constituent without charge.
Kelly said he told no one of his investigation and did not keep a diary of his activity.
Fechtel's charges against Kelly "is not a candidate for Republicans and not be chosen by Republicans to carry their banner."
"The charges against Kelly are to be determined by the members laid out in the U.S. Constitution. I am not about to go out and pre-judge individuals before they are charged with any type crime. One should be careful not to preclude the systems set up in our Constitution," Fechtel said.
In 1978, Fechtel was urged by constituents and supporters to challenge Kelly for the office. "Two years ago we had someone in the Congress with an excellent voting record. I thought it was healthy for me to spend at least a couple years in the state Senate to gain a better perspective on the issues. I feel this has benefited me greatly," he said, nothing he has served during his Senate tenure on the joint legislative auditing committee and on the agricultural committee. "I've learned from this service and from many other areas," Fechtel said.
Fechtel also noted that while the fifth congressional district encompasses seven counties. He is thus serving on the legislative delegations of seven counties and is chairman of the delegations in Clay, Lake and Sumner. Both Lake and Sumner are in the fifth congressional district in Seminole, part of Orange, Citrus, Pasco, Pinellas and Hernando.
"The agricultural interests indicated some good support. They were looking for a good voting record and a sound philosophy," Fechtel said.
The best Fechtel could determine is that it will take close to $200,000 to run a viable campaign for the congressional seat, noting the eight-county district is one of the highest-populated districts in the entire nation.
Fechtel said he is encouraged to run because of the many areas in which the federal government is infringing on the states and taking the "carrot-stick" approach. He said while the federal government offers no percent funding for certain matters, it sets up rules and guidelines as a pre-condition of gaining those funds that are less intelligently drawn than state guidelines.
"In effect the federal government is breaking-up the sovereignty of the states," he said.
Fechtel, 43, is single and the father of a son and a daughter. His son, Jay, is a freshman at Washington and Lee University in Lexington, Va. His daughter, Kara, 13, is a student at the St. Johns school in Tampa.
Although it had been rumored that S. Curtis Kiser, R-Clearwater, would also be a candidate for Kelly's congressional seat, Fechtel said Kiser has decided not to run.
Fechtel said at a meeting of fifth district legislators in Tallahassee Wednesday, Kiser told him personally he would not be a candidate.
The only other Republican who has sought to challenge Kelly for the GOP nomination has been Bill McCollum, an Orlando attorney and currently chairman of the Seminole County Republican Executive Committee.
McCollum announced his candidacy in November.
"I like Bill so much and have such a high regard for him," Fechtel said today. "I'm concerned my good friend might feel I'm trying to undo his efforts," Fechtel said.
McCollum was unavailable for comment today on Fechtel's prospective candidacy. McCollum's campaign manager, Vaughn Forest, however, responded "absolutely not" to a story questioned

Meanwhile, Rep. John M. Murphy, D-N.Y., one of those allegedly implicated in the Abcam investigation, told reporters Wednesday he accepted no money from the undercover agents and has violated no law.

During a news conference, Murphy volunteered that "I disassociate myself" from the type of defense Kelly sought to raise.

"I accepted no money and I never agreed to accept anything," Murphy said.

Murphy said his main concern is that news leaks about the investigation have violated his civil rights and he may sue the government for creating an "atmosphere of hysteria."

"These leaks... constitute a conspiracy to deny and deprive me of my civil rights in that they will obstruct the ability of any grand jury to give fair consideration to any case in which I might be involved," he said.

Hostages Could Go 'In 48 Hours'

By United Press International
Iranian President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr said today the 50 American hostages could be freed in 48 hours if President Carter accepts a plan approved by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.
Speaking from Tehran to the Italian television network RAI, Bani-Sadr said that if there were complications, the release of the captives could take two months.
"There is a proposal on President Carter's desk now which, if he accepts, can lead to the release of the hostages in 48 hours," Bani-Sadr said.
RAI quoted Bani-Sadr as saying Khomeini had approved the plan put to Carter.
Bani-Sadr said the release of the hostages does not only depend on an investigation into the regime of the deposed Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi but also on America's guaranteeing Iran's geopolitical and economic independence.
"It all depends on the attitude of the United States," he said. "If there is a positive response and action, if the conditions are met, we can act very quickly."
"We depend on the United States for spare parts. They are essential for us," said Bani-Sadr, although he did not specify whether spare parts supplies for Iran's American-equipped forces were part of the plan on Carter's desk.
Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said a short time earlier that an agreement on the release of the hostages would have to proceed "step by step."
"There are still doubts and hopes. I am hopeful," President Carter also hinted a breakthrough was near.
Carter said in a televised conference Wednesday night that "positive progress" has been toward the release of the hostages and that Washington was ready to accept an "appropriate" international commission to resolve the situation.
His announcement, coupled with a statement by Bani-Sadr that Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has accepted a compromise plan on the hostages, sent hopes soaring that the 15-week occupation of the embassy would soon end.

A fire starting in a heater destroyed a Midway home early this morning, deputies say.
Joan Hulms, 26, told deputies the fire started at 4:25 a.m. when she knocked over a heater at her home on Main Street off Midway Avenue.

A neighbor tried to carry the heater from the home, but the flames had already spread, she said. The house was destroyed, deputies reported.
No further information was available this morning.

BOAT TAKEN, RECOVERED
Sanford police recovered a $1,000 boat and trailer before its owner even knew it was stolen and arrested a man they say took it, Wednesday night.

CONDONED IMPROVED
A Fern Park woman hit by a car on U.S. Highway 17-92 Monday morning is now out of danger at Florida Hospital-Altamonte.

ARRESTS FOLLOW FOOD THEFT
Two men are in the Seminole County jail, charged with this morning's break-in at the Continental Central Florida restaurant in the area of a large quantity of food from the restaurant supply house.

SAFETY POLICE SAY THE THIEVES entered the yard of the Continental warehouse, 2100 30th St., using bolt cutters between 3:45 a.m. and 4:30 a.m. today, and began loading meat and other food into a vehicle.

A company driver, Randy Smith, arrived at 4:30 a.m. and attempted to stop the thieves, police say.

Five minutes later, a short distance away, police arrested Virgil D. Bralton, 28, of 1404 Lake Ave., Sanford and Tommy Isaac, 19, of 50 Lake Monroe Terrace.

The two, allegedly found in a car loaded with Continental foods, were charged with burglary, grand theft and possession of stolen property, police report.

SEXUAL ASSAULT ATTEMPTED
A 17-year-old woman told deputies a man attempted to rape her in the north laundry room of the Sorrento Apartments off Howell Branch Road, Wednesday night, as she returned to pick up her wash.

As she entered the laundry room at 9:30 p.m., the man, sitting on a washer, got up and approached her, forced her against a wall and pulled down her shirt while threatening to kill her.

A Goldenrod man was concerned when he found what looked like a freshly covered grave on his farm last week, so he called deputies.

But after digging around Donald Pechar's Watercrest Farm, deputies determined the 49-inch by 18-inch mound of fresh earth complete with a cross stuck in the ground at one end was a prank, a grave without a body either human or animal.

But Charles Nickle, a grove manager for Chase Groves Inc., was able to hold a suspect at pistol-point until deputies arrived to make a formal arrest.

Nickle's son Chris said he and his parents returned home and found their porch door and window broken and several jars of honey spilled on the floor.

Inside the house was a man, carrying a picking sack, who was later identified by deputies as Leo Earl Shores, 25, of 1877 W. 12th St., Chris said.

Charles Nickle managed to grab a handgun and hold the man while his wife called for help, deputies say.

The suspect began "accusing me he was here for Jesus" said Chris. "My mother's a very religious woman. How can you be here for Jesus and do this?" his mother replied, in shock, Chris said.

Horace was taken to the Seminole County Jail, where he was charged by deputies with burglary and criminal mischief.

The second charge was filed because after allegedly entering the home by breaking the door window, Horace is accused of smashing the porch window and screen and spilling honey in the area, deputies report.

Dade School Superintendent Faces Audit On Purchases

MIAMI (UPI)—The Dade County School Board voted Wednesday to hire an auditor to look over School Superintendent Johnny Jones' $1.25 million Special Needs Account, used to order $9,000 worth of gold plated bathroom fixtures as training aids for a non-existent high school plumbing class.

Approval of the audit proposed by the Greater Miami Board member Dr. Ben Sheppard, who voted against it, said, "I think it would be like a witch hunt."

The audit order came in the wake of Jones' Wednesday news conference, at which Jones denied any involvement in the plumbing episode other than to counter an order for the equipment. He described the episode as "an attempt to impugn my integrity and to assassinate my character."

Property Tax Relief Near?

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI)—A Senate panel is ready to provide wholesale property tax relief even though the sales tax would have to be raised a penny to do it.

The Senate Finance and taxation subcommittee voted Wednesday for a plan to cut property taxes levied by school districts 75 percent and raise the state sales tax to a nickel to replace the $807 million in local revenues which would be lost.

The panel also approved portions of Gov. Bob Graham's recently passed plan to keep property taxes from soaring as the state moves to uniform assessments this year. Both proposals go to the Senate Ways and Means Committee.

Coast Guard: 30-Foot Gash Did Not Sink Ship

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI)—A Coast Guard official said Wednesday the damage suffered by the Coast Guard buoy tender Blackthorn when it collided with an oil tanker in Tampa Bay last month was not sufficient to sink the ship.

But the ship did sink, within four minutes of colliding with the tanker Capricorn, and went straight to the bottom of Tampa Bay. Twenty-three Blackthorn crewmen died.

A Seminole County man was found guilty of an April robbery Tuesday by a circuit court jury.

Lannie McKinnon was found guilty, following a day of testimony, of taking about $60 from William Little outside the Cool Breeze Bar on Sipes Avenue, April 19, 1979.

Witnesses said McKinnon had other bar patrons coax Little to the area outside the bar's side door, where he ripped Little's front pants pocket and made off with the cash.

— A Forest City man pleaded guilty Tuesday to attempted armed burglary and carrying a concealed weapon in the middle of his trial on those and other charges.

Michael F. White 19, of 132 Marcia Drive, admitted carrying a knife while he tried to break into a mobile home parked outside of 1021 Martex Dr. on Aug. 16, 1979.

He made his plea midway through his trial, where he was also charged with burglary to another vehicle on the same street and possession of burglary tools.

Earlier this week, the State's Attorney's office had dropped charges of burglary and petty theft against David Borrero, arrested and charged with the same burglaries.

When White was arrested, he was carrying a butcher knife in his rear pocket, concealed by a shirt, deputies reported.

— A Sanford man pleaded guilty to charges of grand theft in an October house burglary. Frank M. Hale, of 1312 Sumnerlin Ave., was ordered held pending pre-sentence investigation, by Circuit Court Judge Volie Williams, after he pleaded guilty to grand theft.

The State's Attorney's Office dropped charges of burglary against Hale in exchange for the plea.

Hale took two guns and a variety of household goods from the home of Shirley Wade on South Beardsall Avenue.

— An Altamonte Springs man, arrested after he allegedly drove from a domestic dispute while drunk and then pointed a pistol at an Altamonte Springs officer, pleaded guilty to concealed weapons charges Wednesday.

Henry Lee Christopher pleaded guilty to charges of having a pistol concealed in his car on Dec. 9, 1979.

Officers originally arrested Christopher following a chase from his home at 88 Campbell Ave., Altamonte Springs, and charged him with driving under the influence of alcohol and other driving charges, carrying a concealed weapon and assaulting an officer.

Judge Williams ordered Christopher to be allowed to remain free pending a pre-sentence investigation.

Commissioners To Submit 3 Grants

The Seminole County Commission agreed unanimously Tuesday to submit applications for state community services grants on behalf of three groups.

The Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole is asking for $12,500 to stimulate interest in dance. The Seminole County Federation of Senior Citizens wants $1,832 for operation of sidewalk changes.

The groups would have to provide matching funds according to Brenda Donnan, Seminole County management and budget analyst.

Half of these matching funds must be in cash, she said, and the other half in cash or in a contribution of equal value, such as office space or equipment.

Guard Capt. Benjamin Joyce said the gash itself wouldn't have caused the Blackthorn to sink.

Previously, Blackthorn crewman Chief Machinist Ronald Litterell told the panel he believed the Capricorn's anchor lifted the Blackthorn and turned the ship, causing it to sink. Litterell told of seeing the Capricorn's anchor protruding through the Blackthorn's hull into the crew's shower room.

Tuna Future Hangs On Past Mistakes

The tuna fishing industry has responded with vigor and inventiveness to the 1977 Marine Mammal Protection Act, cutting the porpoise kill in tuna nets to 16,700 last year from a shocking 350,000 in 1972.
Now it seems this enviable record of success is not good enough and the fishing industry is faced with a potentially crippling regulation anyway.

This does not mean the tuna fishermen have killed too many porpoises, Dr. William Aron, director of the marine mammal protection program of NMFS, is at pains to say. Rather, it means that the figures adopted under pressure of the 1977 law and based upon hastily acquired data have now been corrected by more scientific samplings. The northern offshore dolphin is not biologically endangered, says Dr. Aron. It is "legally" endangered by the figures adopted in 1977.

If the NMFS is compelled to find the porpoise population depleted and to ban fishing on porpoise herds, the economics of the industry would force many boats to register under foreign flags where there is far less concern for porpoise conservation. The result, it is agreed by fishermen and conservationists alike, would be a greater porpoise kill.

The obvious solution is to amend the 1977 law to reflect the realities of the tuna industry, but this will not be easy to do in a nation enchanted by the antics of Flipper.
The time is growing short. We must quickly decide whether to drive America's tuna industry abroad with regulations designed to preserve the porpoise at all costs, or to accept sensible porpoise regulations, which allow the tunanians to pursue their livelihood.

Middleman Exposed

The "middle-man" has always been blamed for the big difference between farm prices and the cost of food to consumers. We always thought this referred to brokers, processors and distributors in the food industry, but a study by the college of business at Colorado State University indicates the biggest middle-man of all is our own federal government.
The Colorado researchers tracked a hamburger patty from a steer grazing on a western ranch to its final destination nestled in the bun of a Big Mac.

BERRY'S WORLD

WASHINGTON — Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus has vehemently denied that he accepted a fat campaign contribution from officers of a Mafia-connected sports cartel when he ran for governor of Idaho in 1976. But he refused to make public a list of his campaign contributors that year.
His reluctance to go beyond a simple denial was shared by the Carter White House, which cut all mention of the alleged contribution out of Andrus' FBI background check before allowing the Senate confirmation committee to see it.

While direct evidence is thus lacking, four of Andrus' top appointments as Idaho governor lend indirect evidence to the suspicion that he was indebted to Empire Corp., which wanted to build a fancy race track in northern Idaho. At the very least, the appointments indicate that the race track entrepreneurs had a friend in Andrus.

Around

The Clock

In less than two months, Florida Power & Light Company (FPL) is expected to make its first test burn of a coal and oil fuel mixture it hopes will provide some relief to this country's over-dependence on oil. FPL's Sanford plant, which normally burns oil, has been undergoing modifications to facilitate the test.
Additions to the plant include a railroad spur to bring in a coal and oil pulverizer, a coal-oil mixing tank, specialized instrumentation for testing purposes, environmental monitoring equipment and modified burners, fuel oil lines and pumps that will accept the mixture — nicknamed "Coll."

amount of coal in the test mixture until it reaches 50 percent. The officials have acknowledged the greater air pollution that will be created during the test burns, and say they are not at all sure what the smoke will look like. But FPL environmental affairs manager Buzz Barrow said the particulate matter added to the air from the coal will not exceed federal or state standards.
The Sanford area can expect "a half ton per hour of additional dust entering the atmosphere during the test burning," said an engineer working on the plant modifications. But he added he does not think this is a sufficient amount to cause concern.

officials promise they can provide pollution control devices for the plants that use it. Widespread use of Coll is possible in three to four years, the engineer said. For now, FPL officials said installing such devices just for the Sanford test would cost between $30 million and $50 million and is not practical. The question may be, will the cost be significantly less in just a few years?
The problem facing us with Coll, might not be the efficiency of the fuel, but the willingness of the power company to install pollution control devices even though they are expensive.

CAB's Tips For Travelers

By ANN McFEATHERS
Airline passengers by and large disregard those safety messages the government requires flight attendants to deliver before take-off.
But the federal agency that investigates crashes — the National Transportation Safety Board — has learned that people who survive plane crashes are not just lucky. They are the ones, usually, who know where the exits are, who don't have luggage blocking their feet, who know that to get oxygen flowing the plastic tubing of the oxygen mask has to be tugged slightly.

How to maximize your chance of getting out alive is part of the message of a new pamphlet called "Fly-Rights," a guide to air travel put out by the bureau of consumer protection at the Civil Aeronautics Board. Anyone who flies would be interested in reading it.
It says, for example, that in the event of a plane crash you may have no longer than 90 seconds to get out alive before the plane explodes.

One dangerous aspect of any airplane fire — even a minor one inside the plane — is that there is so much plastic in an airline cabin that noxious gases can suffocate those inside. Smoke rises, so in the event of a fire, keep low. And the reason smoking is not permitted in the restrooms is that in 1973 there were 118 people killed by four minutes in one plane because a careless smoker left a cigarette butt burning in a restroom trash bin.

"Fly-Rights" may be most helpful in its advice on how to get the cheapest fares. Because of deregulation, fares now differ tremendously and it's hard to know which is the best one in a given circumstance.
The CAB says you can't rely on asking the airline. The best thing to do is ask each airline to send you a copy of its current fare summary. Besides comparing prices, these will let you also compare service and equipment.

One valuable tip in buying your ticket, according to the CAB, is that if you charge a ticket on your credit card and then change your flight, insist that the value of your old ticket be applied to the new one. Some airlines automatically charge you all over again for the second ticket and that means you're billed twice and have to go to the trouble of getting a refund.

"Fly-Rights" also tells you how to complain to an airline and to the government, if necessary. Type a letter, limit it to one page, don't be sarcastic or angry, send copies — never originals — of tickets and receipts. Say specifically what happened and what you expect the company to do about it. Be reasonable.

"Fly-Rights" is available free by writing "Fly-Rights," Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo., 81099. Or you can write to the Bureau of Consumer Protection, Civil Aeronautics Board, 1025 Connecticut Ave., N.W., Washington D.C. 20418.

Not so the Japanese Sokaiya. He guarantees management brief, quiet and trouble-free shareholder meetings.

Like their U.S. counterparts, the Sokaiya usually own only a handful of shares in a company. Here the similarity ends.

Free Speech Issue

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN
In few places in the United States has there been so much freedom of expression as in the state of Minnesota. Minnesota has been one of those few places. For years, Minnesota corporations have been denied full freedom of speech.

Now, however, something is being done about a law designed to silence corporations. The Minnesota Litigation Center, created by the Minnesota Association of Commerce and Industry, has gone into federal court to challenge Minnesota statute 210A.34, a statute which restricts the freedom of speech of private enterprise in the state.

It's understandable why this statute hasn't been challenged before. As Winston Jordan, president of the MACI explains, it has had a "chilling effect" on the free exchange of ideas in Minnesota. The law provides for severe criminal penalties, including fines and imprisonment — as well as loss of a company's charter. As a result, business and industry have been reluctant to run the risk of challenging the statute in the courts.

Because of the Bellotti case, in which the U.S. Supreme Court upheld corporate free speech rights, the MACI decided to ask that the Minnesota law be struck down. Believers in free speech should give 100 percent support to this legal effort. If a corporation can be denied the right to speak out on public issues, colleges and churches also can expect their rights to be denied.

Anyone who believes in the principles of fair play should accept the idea that a corporation has much of a right to speak its mind as a labor union. A corporation is a voluntary association of individuals and ought not to be subjected to muzzling which smacks of totalitarianism.

Minnesota has a long history of socialist and populist activities however, and this law — long on the books — is derived from that background. Anti-business attitudes and powerful expression in union and protest groups here.

On my arrival in the Twin Cities to check out the 1976 speech action in U.S. District Court, I contacted a letter to the editor of the Minneapolis Star that called for public ownership of private business. The author of the letter declared that "Americans must build a democratic form of socialism if they are ever to enjoy freedom from inflation, unemployment, overwork, stress, insecurity." She recommended the work of the Socialist Labor Party, the New Unionist, and Societies for Socialist Reconstruction.

Watergate Was A Gnat Compared To The Bell System'

Texas Court To Decide If Man's Final Message Was True

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — More than five years after top Texas telephone company executive Thur O'Dell Gravitit asphyxiated himself in his Dallas garage — leaving a note saying "Watergate was a gnat compared to the Bell system" — all the charges and counter charges finally are coming due.
When the Texas Supreme Court makes its final ruling, expected this year, on the libel and slander suit filed by Gravitit's survivors and former Southwestern Bell official James Ashley, the lid on Pandora's Box likely will close.
It has made years of interesting — and costly — reading for ratepayers as Southwestern Bell paid some $2 million in attorney fees to defend itself against the sensational charges generated by Ashley and Gravitit.

Texas Court To Decide If Man's Final Message Was True

wrongdoing which they alleged was carried out by the huge utility.
Ashley and Gravitit were accused of sexually harassing female subordinates, padding their expense accounts and engaging in conflict of interest.
It never was established definitely who — if anyone — emerged victorious. Both sides now claim triumph and exoneration. But both indicate they would just as soon forget it.
One San Antonio jury awarded Ashley and his wife $1 million on grounds Bell tapped their telephones, and another local jury presented Gravitit's widow and Ashley with $3 million on grounds the two executives were libeled and slandered by company investigators.

Texas Court To Decide If Man's Final Message Was True

But Ashley has collected nothing and maintains "money never was the primary issue. It was a principal thing — don't get me wrong — but I'm not sitting around waiting for any money that might be forthcoming."
Bell officials proudly note that both money awards were overturned on appeal on grounds the evidence did not support the verdicts reached by the San Antonio jurors. They also point to a lengthy Federal Communications Commission investigation which last October absolved the company of any of the wrongdoing alleged in the sensational trials.

The State Supreme Court has forever doomed the original $1 million wiretapping award and unless it departs from its standard procedure of upholding civil appeals courts in such cases, it will also rule in Bell's favor in the remaining libel and slander suit, previously overturned by the 4th Court of Civil Appeals.
Ashley and his colorful attorney, Pat Maloney, however, contend they are still optimistic the $3 million jury award will be reinstated.
"We're confident they will rule on behalf of Ashley and Gravitit," Ashley said. "We've always felt that way."

Texas Court To Decide If Man's Final Message Was True

It is debatable whether Texas ratepayers have noticed much difference, however, because the commission continues to approve telephone rates hikes, the most recent one for $17 million, just $9 million less than Southwestern Bell requested.
They're (Bell) the master of the mechanics (of obtaining rate hikes). Throughout the country they've mastered in living comfortably with regulation boards," Maloney said. "We're disappointed (with the commission), but obviously it's an improvement."
Maloney admits he may not make any money for his legal services because appeals courts overruled both jury awards, but said he would take the case again in similar circumstances.

Energy Stand Against ERA To Bring Lawsuit From Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Utah's two senators say they will file a federal court suit to enjoin the U.S. Department of Energy from enforcing a recommended boycott against Utah and other states which have not ratified the Equal Rights Amendment.

Republican Sens. Jake Garn and Orrin Hatch Wednesday said the suit would be filed by the end of this week in U.S. District court in Washington. The Washington Legal Foundation, a non-profit law study group, is aiding the two senators in preparing the case, Hatch said.

The states which have not ratified the ERA are: Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Nevada, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Utah and Virginia.

Garwood Faces Court-Martial

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (UPI) — Pfc. Robert R. Garwood, described as a "white Vietnam" by fellow POWs and as brain-damaged by his defense attorney, will be court-martialed next month on charges of desertion and collaboration with the enemy.

The court-martial, the first of its type stemming from the Vietnam War, was ordered Wednesday by Brig. Gen. David Barker. Although agreeing with a recommendation that Garwood, 32, be court-martialed for his actions during 13 years behind enemy lines, Barker rejected a suggestion that the death penalty be considered if Garwood is found guilty.

Nun Held In Beating Death

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A nun has been arrested for the beating death of her 75-year-old mother, whose battered body was found covered by a cross and holy picture.

The body of Rose Sangiacomo was found in the kitchen doorway of her home in San Francisco's Richmond District.

Her daughter was found nearby babbling of "demons and devils." Sister Rachel Fitzgerald, Mother Superior of the St. Joseph of Carondelet convent, who discovered the woman's body Tuesday night, told police.

Police said the suspect, Sister Rose L. Sangiacomo, 43, had been under outpatient psychiatric care for the past four years. After being taken into custody she was sent to a hospital for psychiatric observation.

Police said a cross and a holy picture were found propped up on the victim's bed.

Janssen Autopsy Scheduled

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Authorities hoped a coroner's autopsy to be completed today on the body of actor David Janssen would explain why the star of "The Fugitive" and "Harris" television shows died suddenly at 49.

Paralytics summoned to Janssen's Malibu beach house Wednesday morning pulled the actor from his bed and worked frantically for about 30 minutes to restore his heartbeat. They said Janssen apparently suffered a massive heart attack.

A private funeral, restricted to family members, will be held next Monday. A memorial service, to be attended by the actor's friends, will be held later next week. The family requested donations, in lieu of flowers, be sent to the McKinley Home for Boys in San Dimas, Calif., where Janssen attended school.

Carter Sees 'Positive Signs' In Crisis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter says he has seen "some positive signs" of progress toward ending the 103-day ordeal of the American hostages in Iran — no thanks to Edward Kennedy.

But the president cautioned the American people against premature optimism, saying the hush-hush United Nations efforts to free the 50 captives are still in a delicate stage.

Stung by Kennedy's criticism of his handling of the Afghan and Iran crises, Carter accused the senator of overstepping "the bounds of both propriety and accuracy in the presentation of views by a responsible official."

The president, meeting the Washington press corps Wednesday night for the first time in 11 weeks, gave his first relatively hopeful assessment of the hostage drama since the takeover of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran on Nov. 4.

"In the past several weeks, our efforts and our activities have become particularly delicate and intense," he said. "Recently there have been some positive signs, although experience has taught us to guard against excessive optimism."

Carter's comments during the nationally broadcast news conference came hours after Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr said Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini had accepted a plan that could lead to freedom for the hostages.

There were reports the proposal would include formation of an international commission under U.N. auspices to consider Iran's charges against deposed Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

Carter refused to provide more than a peek at the secret hostage talks, saying: "I cannot afford at this delicate time to discuss or to comment further upon on any specific efforts that may be under way."

He said U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim has been sounding out American and Iranian officials since mid-November about a proposal to send an international commission of inquiry to Tehran.

He said the senator's remarks have been "very damaging to our country and to the establishment of our principles and the maintenance of them and to the achieving of our goals to keep the peace and to get the hostages released."

Kennedy, who has been criticizing Carter for failing to meet him face-to-face to discuss the issues, responded to the attack by saying: "Well, it looks like we finally got his attention."

Chicago Firemen: Strike 'Imminent'

CHICAGO (UPI) — Fire Fighters Union officials said a strike was imminent because of failed contract negotiations with the city. Mayor Jane M. Byrne placed her Cabinet on alert.

"We have started the machinery (for a strike)," union President Frank J. Muscare said Wednesday night after a general membership meeting. "All I have to do is set a date."

Negotiations, which resumed Monday under the auspices of federal and state mediators, broke off about 2 a.m. Wednesday. Muscare said no date had been set to renew talks, but the union was willing to return to negotiations.

The union's executive board then voted unanimously to give Muscare power to call a strike at his own discretion.

Muscare refused to say if he would delay a strike until firefighters are paid Friday.

A strike "could be tomorrow (today), it could be the next day," said William Kugelman, a member of the union's executive board.

Mrs. Byrne warned supervisory officials of the city to be prepared to report to work immediately in the event of a strike.

State and federal mediators said late Tuesday they were "hopeful" a settlement could be reached. "If both sides move a little, we'll be close," said Edward Schultz, the state mediator.

Replacement Of Lance Bank Records Could Delay Trial

ATLANTA (UPI) — Justice Department attorneys face the monumental task of replacing hundreds, possibly thousands, of bank records crucial to the bank fraud and conspiracy case against Bert Lance and three associates.

U.S. District Judge Charles A. Moyer Jr. ruled Wednesday that at least 200 checking account records from the National Bank of Georgia were inadmissible because the Justice Department had obtained them improperly — many from a parallel investigation of Lance by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Moyer said he would, if necessary, grant a recess to give the prosecutors time to replace the records, prompting angry defense attorneys to retort that the government has "had three years" to get its evidence.

DBG officer Leonard Kelley said it would take "60 man days" to generate the documents from microfilm files.

Prosecutor Edwin Tomko, clearly upset by the ruling, said a similar problem existed at another key bank in the case, the Calhoun First National Bank.

Tomko pleaded, "They (Calhoun officials) say it may take three years (to recreate the records)."

Moyer said, "We may have to recess the trial then."

Almost simultaneously, defense attorneys leaped to their feet in protest, and Lance attorney Nick Chilivis retorted, "They have already had three years."

Chilivis was referring to the Justice Department probe of Lance's financial dealings that began in 1977 while he was President Carter's budget director. Growing controversy surrounding the investigation prompted Lance to quit the post the same year.

Lance, Richard T. Carr, Thomas Mitchell and H. Jackson Tomko are charged with illegally conspiring to obtain $20 million through 380 loans at 41 banks for the benefit of themselves, their families and friends, misapplication of bank funds, making false entries in bank records and making false statements to banks.

Migraines Can Hit The Overachiever

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB—I have trouble with my eyes. I have spells when about one-fourth of my vision is fuzzy. Things are bright and fuzzy like a heat wave. This lasts for about 30 minutes and then it goes away. Then my hands get numb, my lips and sometimes my nose. I also have trouble with my speech. This also lasts about 30 minutes.

Sometimes I have a real bad headache. It's a bad experience and it usually takes two or three days to get back to feeling normal. I have been to several doctors and they say I have a migraine headache. I have had my blood checked for sugar and many other tests and all were normal. My head has been X-rayed and everything is all right.

I've had these for eight years now. They don't come at any certain time. Sometimes I have them in the night and they wake me up. I went for a year once without one and sometimes I have two in one week. My aunt's three girls all have them so it may be something that's inherited.

I can take muscle relaxers and they help me some. I'm 29 years old and have two children. I am overweight but I also had these headaches when I was 17. I would like to know if this is my nerves. How should I cope with them? What can I do to keep from having one? Someone said I was a lack of oxygen getting to the brain. What can I do to prevent this? Is there any exercise I can do or help through certain foods? I sure would like some answers.

DEAR READER—Your description certainly fits with migraine headaches. The typical migraine is associated with changes in circulation to the brain. The arteries to the brain area may constrict and then dilate. Recent studies show that there may be very severe constriction of arteries through parts of the brain that are overachievers. They try very hard to do a good job so that they will be liked. The tension that results from this situation has a lot to do with the headaches.

As your story indicates, migraine headaches may occur in several members of the family. That's not unusual.

WIN AT BRIDGE

The Professor finally settled on the 18 of spades South won in dummy and promptly led out the ace, king and a small trump. West was back on lead and faced with a really hard problem. Meanwhile East, who had played the deuce of spades at trick one, had made three spade discards.

Looking at all the cards you can see that a spade lead, a club lead or the ace of diamonds lead are all fatal.

The Professor worked this all out which finally led him to find the killing defense. He led a low diamond.

The Professor's computer mind had printed out the South hand as with three spades, six hearts, either no diamonds and four clubs or one diamond and three clubs. South would not have jumped to six if he would lose two quick diamond tricks.

Either way, the slam would not make. South might avoid a diamond loss, but he would still have to lose a club and if South was void of diamonds he could only get one discard on a diamond honor.

Jury Subpoenas Kelly's Records

By DONNA ESTES
A Washington, D.C. federal grand jury has subpoenaed office records of U.S. Rep. Richard Kelly to be turned over by Monday, Kelly's press secretary Bill Purvis said today.

Purvis said the records demanded include Kelly's travel schedules, telephone logs and records, office appointment schedule and any correspondence that may have taken place between Kelly and five individuals.

The individuals named in the subpoena, Purvis said, include Eugene "Gino" Cuzio of Longwood, Leonard Mayer, formerly of Longwood, William Rosenberg of Lynbrook, N.Y. Stanley

Weisz of Smithtown, Long Island and a person named "Weinberg," who has been identified by Purvis as the man "who helped the FBI set up the Abscam operation."

Kelly, R-New Port Bichey, has admitted that he accepted $25,000 from FBI undercover agents at a home on W Street in Washington in January in exchange for a promise to help a non-existent Arab sheik gain entry to the United States in an event an uprising took place in his own country. Kelly has said he accepted the money as part of his own investigation to determine what was involved.

Published reports are that the $25,000 was a down-payment of a $250,000 deal with Kelly to receive $100,000 and Cuzio, Weisz and Rosenberg to receive $50,000 each.

Kelly has denied that he has been involved in any criminal activity.

Mayer no longer lives in Longwood. In 1976 he attempted to be a candidate for the Longwood City Council but was disqualified by then-City Clerk Onnie R. Shomate because he was not a registered voter in Seminole County.

According to documents he filed with the city at that time he was employed by L & M Enterprises Inc. of Lee Road, Winter Park. The firm was involved in insurance and labor relations.

A few months later an announcement was published saying Mayer had become a labor arbitrator.

Purvis said Mayer was a friend of Cuzio's. Purvis said today Kelly met with Cuzio about 10 times during the period from September 1979 through early January, 1980.

He said Kelly at a news conference with NBC reporter David Brinkley explained that Mayer apparently introduced Jerry Spicer, a Maitland businessman, to Cuzio, who in turn introduced Cuzio to Kelly at a luncheon meeting at Lord Chamley's Pub in Altamonte Springs. He said that Cuzio and Kelly met about

Price Index Soars 1.6%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite a sizeable decline in food prices, the government's Producer Price Index soared 1.6 percent during January for the largest gain in more than five years, the Labor Department reported today.

The steep climb in the index — which measures what retailers pay for goods they sell to consumers — was fueled by huge price gains in a variety of products ranging from gasoline to jewelry, the department said.

The first government report on inflation in the 1980s that consumers can expect no relief in the months ahead. Inflation in 1979 advanced by 13.3 percent, the biggest jump in 33 years.

President Carter has estimated that prices should rise by another 10.4 percent this year, even though he believes the overall economy will experience a mild recession.

The Labor Department said January's overall 1.6 percent increase was the sharpest since November 1974, when wholesale costs advanced by 2 percent.

Food prices were the only bright spot in the new report. They declined 0.8 percent. However, the prices of goods other than food surged ahead by 2.4 percent — the largest gain in that category since the 2.3 percent advance of April 1973.

The new round of inflationary pressures may cause the White House some political woes because both of Democratic presidential nomination — Sen. Edward Kennedy and California Gov. Jerry Brown — have attacked him on his economic policies.

retaliate following a Soviet pre-emptive strike on the United States.

Making optimum assumptions about nuclear attack by the Soviet Union has been cut in half during the last two years, according to a U.S. Air Force study.

The study has raised questions, among the handful of congressmen who have been briefed, about the administration's claim the United States retains "essential equivalence" with the Russians.

Sources said Gen. Lew Allen, Air Force chief of staff, became concerned about the Soviet Union's continuing buildup about 15 months ago, and ordered a thorough review of America's ability to retaliate following a Soviet pre-emptive strike on the United States.

Our capability after a Soviet first strike to damage the full spectrum of his military targets is roughly one half of what it was in 1977 and will remain there until about 1985," said one officer familiar with the study.

Officials gave several reasons for the reported deterioration.

On the one hand, the Soviets developed greater accuracy in their intercontinental missiles earlier than expected. Their programs to equip sea-launched missiles with multiple warheads as well as their deployment of new ICBMs moved ahead faster than expected.

On the other hand, cutbacks in U.S. strategic programs weakened America's position. President Carter canceled the B-1 bomber, the Trident submarine program allowed, and the MX missile system is lagging behind original deployment dates.

County Pleads For More Gas

By DIANE PETHRYK Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County is filing a protest with the Florida Department of Energy after being overlooked Thursday when the energy office granted Orange, Volusia, Brevard and 14 other counties early release of a day's supply of state gas reserves.

The early release came because allocations are being made based on amounts of gas used month by month in 1978. But February, 1980 has an extra day, being a leap year.

The energy office felt certain counties would need additional gas based on their tourist attractions and tourist through-traffic, said Don Cossman, energy office press aide. Seminole County was not one of them and he couldn't say why. He did say tourism and increased population were determining factors.

Seminole County purchasing agent and fuel allocation officer JoAnne Blackmon said she feels Seminole did not get the consideration it deserved when the extra allocation was made.

She said she has given the state a verbal protest and is following it up with a written one.

"They (the energy office) did not give satisfactory reason for it to me," she said.

Ms. Blackmon explained that the allocations went to south west and south east coastal regions and Orange County because of Disney World. Volusia got an allocation because of the Daytona 500 stock car race.

"Seminole is caught in between," Ms. Blackmon said. "There is no way Volusia can accommodate all those people. They spill into Seminole and even Orange County."

"Retailers are calling me every two minutes to protest," she added.

She said she is asking the state for a reconsideration for Seminole County gasoline retailers, insisting they also deserve an extra day's supply.

"I'm cognizant of the fact the whole state is having a problem," she said. "But we feel Seminole was particularly slighted in this particular case."

Ms. Blackmon said she hopes to hear from the state on her protest by early next week.

Meanwhile, a check of local gas stations today showed allocations for February are down two to five percentage points from last month.

Allocations are running up to 25 percent below February, 1979 usage.

Gas prices today at stations surveyed ranged from $1.10 for self-service regular to $1.22 for regular with full service. They ranged from $1.12 for self-service unleaded to $1.25 for unleaded with full-service. Premium gas was $1.14 at self-service pumps to $1.28 at full service pumps.

U.S. Ability For Nuclear Retaliation 'Sliced In Half'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The ability of the United States to retaliate against a nuclear attack by the Soviet Union has been cut in half during the last two years, according to a U.S. Air Force study.

The study has raised questions, among the handful of congressmen who have been briefed, about the administration's claim the United States retains "essential equivalence" with the Russians.

Sources said Gen. Lew Allen, Air Force chief of staff, became concerned about the Soviet Union's continuing buildup about 15 months ago, and ordered a thorough review of America's ability to retaliate following a Soviet pre-emptive strike on the United States.

Our capability after a Soviet first strike to damage the full spectrum of his military targets is roughly one half of what it was in 1977 and will remain there until about 1985," said one officer familiar with the study.

Officials gave several reasons for the reported deterioration.

On the one hand, the Soviets developed greater accuracy in their intercontinental missiles earlier than expected. Their programs to equip sea-launched missiles with multiple warheads as well as their deployment of new ICBMs moved ahead faster than expected.

On the other hand, cutbacks in U.S. strategic programs weakened America's position. President Carter canceled the B-1 bomber, the Trident submarine program allowed, and the MX missile system is lagging behind original deployment dates.

A congressional memo circulating in Capitol Hill says Defense Secretary Harold Brown has conceded privately the United States is inferior to the Soviet Union in long-range nuclear weapons and will take several years to catch up.

Thomas Ross, a spokesman for Brown, said the memo did not accurately portray Brown's view.

Brown stands by his assertion the United States remains "essentially equivalent" with Russia in strategic power, Ross said.

A hint of the Air Force assessment was contained in little-noted testimony by Gen. Richard Ellis, commander of the Strategic Air Command, before the House Armed Services Committee on Jan. 25.

Ellis noted that, according to Air Force estimates, "rough strategic equivalence" did exist in mid-1977.

"If that period is accepted as the departure point for subsequent year assessments, then I can only state that, by today's measurements, an adverse strategic imbalance has developed and will continue for several years to come," Ellis said.

Ellis is expected to give more details when he testifies Feb. 20 before the Senate Armed Services Committee.

A major question now facing the federal government is how to deal with the situation.

Ellis favors "stretching" 155 FB-111 medium bombers and providing them with new engines as a "quick fix."

But others — legislators and military specialists — have a range of other suggestions, including bringing back the B-1, altering the B-1, further modernizing of B-52 bombers, and designing an entirely new manned bomber.

Hostage Freedom Must Wait For Commission Results: Iranian

By United Press International
Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said today the American hostages in Tehran would not be released until a proposed commission to investigate the shah's regime has announced its findings.

Ghotbzadeh's statement, made in Rome, dealt a blow to hopes that release of the 50 Americans was imminent.

Iranian President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr had said they could be freed in 48 hours if certain conditions were met.

At an earlier news conference, on Thursday, Ghotbzadeh also dampened speculation of an early release by saying that, although talks leading to release of the hostages could be completed in two days, it would almost certainly take more time before they were actually set free.
