Motorcyclist killed

DELTONA - A motorcyclist was killed yesterday afternoon in a two vehicle accident at Fort Smith and India Blvd. in Deltona. According to the Florida Highway Patrol, a 1981 Yamaha motorcycle, driven by Jeffrey Delisle, 33, of Deltona, was traveling west on Fort Smith at what officers considered a high rate of speed, when it failed to negotiate a curve. It left the road, striking a sign post and reflector before sliding onto India Boulevard into the path of an oncoming 1992 Saturn driven by Jeffrey Leonard, 21, of Deltona.

Deliste was taken to Halifax Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival. No charges have been filed.

Commissioners OK traffic hearing officer program

By SANDRA ELLIOTT Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Drivers ticketed for traffic infractions in Seminole County will pay an additional $2 to fund a new civil traffic infraction hearing officer program.

Civil traffic hearings will be conducted in various locations around the county, saving travel time for both local law enforcement officers as well as for the citizens who received the tickets. The program is also designed to reduce the number of civil traffic cases heard by county court judges at the county courthouse. Traffic court will continue to be held at the courthouse.

Individuals may still request that their case be heard by a county court judge rather than by the hearing officer.

The ordinance will take effect when the commissioners receive acknowledgment it has been filed with the Department of State.

County Court Judge John Sloop told the commissioners at the public. hearing the traffic hearing officer program has the backing of the five county court Judges.

Lake Mary Police Chief Richard Beary said the measure is supported by law enforcement.

Hearing sites would be in Winter Springs. Altamonte Springs and Lake Mary as well as Sanford. The program will be self-supporting with estimated revenue of $92,546 based on 1994 figures. The ordinance establishing the program specifies funding is limited to the lunds generated by the service charges levted. The program will end if it is not self-supporting. The surcharge will also apply to parking tickets issued in unincorporated areas of the county. County attorney Robert A. McMillian told the commission that in the case of municipal parking tickets, the $2 fee could be assessed only if the designated city passes an ordinance stating the county could enforce parking regulations.

Sanford armory to be renamed

By NICK PFEIFAUF Herald Stall Writer

SANFORD - Although nothing has been publicly announced since February of this year. It has now been revealed that efforts are near completion to rename the Sanford National Guard Armory. The renaming is to take place at a reunion to be held in Orlando.

According to Marion E. Hess, reunion coordinator, of Inverness. "This will take place in conjunction with the 50th Victory Reunion of the 31st Division, which will convene on Aug. 24, at the Clarton Plaza Botel."

He explained. "The 124th Infantry theadquartered in Sanford) was a part of the 31st Division and the Regimental Association is host for the reunion."

According to plans announced early this year, the name change will be from the Sanford Armory, which it has been since 1936, to Evans Armory.

Hess said Evans, a Staff Sergeant, "trained at the Sanford Armory."

Robert L. Evans was a medic with the 124th Infantry Medical Detachment, and was killed during a battle on Mindanao in the Phillipines in May, 1945.

NEW SMYRNA BEACH - A 12-year-old boy was floating on a Bogey board when a shark attacked him, biting his right leg. Matthew Sturges, of Roachdale, Ind., was recuperating today after knee surgery. He was attacked Monday while playing at New Smyrna Beach, said Joe Wooden, a lifeguard captain with the Volusia County Beach Patrol.

The youth had surgery to reattach "the tendon that holds the tendon to the bone," Cindy Corbin, Matthew's mother, said from the boy's room at Bert Fish Medical Center.

"He's tired and sore," she said, adding he will probably be in the hospital until Thursday.

Monday's attack was the fifth shark bite at New Smyrna Beach this year, said Wooden, who added the entire East Coast of Florida only averages about a 15 to 20 a year.

Albertson's case referred to prosecutor

DELRAY BEACH - The case of Albertson's employees who fatally subdued a suspected shoplister has been referred to prosecutors to determine whether criminal charges are warranted.

William Alexander, 33, a drug- and alcohol-abuse patient at the Pathways Rehabilitation Center, died Saturday after a scuffle with supermarket employees who suspected him of shoplifting toothpaste and a toothbrush worth $7.

Alexander yelled during the struggle with as many as six employees that he couldn't breathe, and his sister later said he had asthma and a heart murmur since childhood. Autopsy results have been scaled as part of the investigation.

Making a quick buck leads to arrests

Of course, Ricardo Hoyos 30, and Luis Vargas, 43, also face federal counterfeiting charges.

'We've been working counterfeiting in Colombia for some time now because historically it's probably the largest producer of our counterfelt currency out of any foreign country," said Frank Estrada, assistant agent in charge of the Secret Service in Miami. "Close to 25 percent of all counterfeit that's found in the United States is of Colombian

The case began in June when an informant tipped the Secret Service that a Bogota man was looking for someone to finance a counterfelt print job. An undercover agent offered the upfront money but asked for proof the counterfelters had d-quality negatives of currency.

Hoyos gave the informant three negatives: the front of a $100 bill, the back and the U.S. Treasury seal, agent William Cachinero said in an amdavit filed with the criminal complaint. Two days later, two other negatives of the seal were pro-

During a call in July, Vargas boasted to the undercover agent that he had counterfeited U.S. bills several times before. At a meeting in Bogota last Thursday, Hoyos and Vargas agreed to print up to $3 million in fake bills for $30,000 in real ones.

Agencies to look for cuts

TALLAHASSEE - State agencies have gotten another letter from the Senate budget chief, but it's unlikely to cause as much consternation as last year's request for proposals to cut spending 25 percent.

This time Sen. Mario Diaz-Balart, R-Miami, is ordering each agency to look for cuts of 3 percent.

In May the Legislature passed a $39 billion budget for the fiscal year that began July 1, reflecting a 1 percent increase over last year's budget.

The Senate, under clear Republican control for the first time in a century, switched hundreds of millions of dollars of spending from social services and health care to prisons and

Don't walk into this too fast

It sure sounds beautiful.

A sparkling clean walkway from Mellonville Avenue on the east to Wayside Park near Interstate 4 on the west along the shores of Lake Monroe sounds nice.

We would hope that locals and visitors would flock to the shore to exercise, to walk or to simply enjoy the view from end to end.

But will they? The section of walkway between Mellonville Avenue and French Avenue that abuts the downtown area will probably bring local workers out for leisurely strolls or lunchtime power walks.

A few residents of the surrounding area may even take their early morning jogs along the lakefront near their homes.

But, for the most part, we fear the walkway, lovely thoough it could be, will remain unused beyond the confines of downtown.

As the shoreline snakes west, the less populated areas will offer neither the people willing to walk nor the security to those who do choose to walk that way.

We believe people will be afraid to walk alone in a sparsely inhabited area.

And what of those who now revel in an afternoon of fishing with a bevy of cane poles on the shore under a colorful umbrella?

Where will they go to catch their dinner and to relax?

Will they give up their spots or will they simply spread across the sidewalk detering walkers from the area?

Everyone has the right to enjoy the waterfront. The proposed walkway does not allow for both walking and fishing.

The proposed walkway is a fine idea and will do much for the downtown area, but the money, if it is recieved from the Intermodal Surface Transportation Engineering Award. would be better spent on the construction of the walkway near the downtown.

If it is found that that area is successful, expansion might be considered.

We suggest that the city start slowly and do the job right.

We look forward to our walks along the waterfront from our Herald offices on French Avenue through downtown and back again. We hope many others will join us.

Perot's campaign

America needs to get past all the bickering over minute arcane partisan points and get to the substance of its future. It makes me want to call a time-out for sanity checks. There is blind adherence to government-as-usual by officials because it's easier than facing the underlying conditions which will affect the country in the 21st century.

I was a political negativist until I heard Ross Perot's message of rational, responsive, responsible, accuntable government in 1992. Until that election, I had to choose the lesser of two evils or "waste my vote" on a write-in candidate. Government should be representative of the will of the people over their concerns. It seems to me that the existing leadership of both political parties beleives that the groundswell for rational government embodied in the independent minded center of the political spectrum is worth courting at the United We Stand America Conference in Dallas on August 11-13. The last day will be dedicated to workshops to concerntrate on what the attendees from the public (REAL people) have to say on various subjects, including one called "New Political Force: Party vs. Other Options."

It is called "Preparing America for the 21st Century." It's about time someone other than the political elite participated. The ordinary citizens will give report cards to the incumbent politicians and policy makers at the end of the conference's classroom of citizenship as it was called by Newt Gingrich. New would be leaders will be there also and promote their ideas as an alternative.

This is a worthwhile effort. Taking time out from the partisan sniping to face the true concerns of the citizens should not have to occur in such an exceptional forum, but I am grateful that is is occurring at all. The issues of tax reform. balancing the budget, illegal immigration. Medicare, Social Security and welfare reforms must all get discussed in a calm and reasoned discussion apart from the usual political posturing and I expect that these ground rules will be observed by the politicial leaders of both parties and candidates alike. If a consensus for the future of the country consistent with the premises of our liberty and heritage results from this conference. then Ross Perot's legacy will be complete. I called 1-800-925-1300 to make arrangements and got many of my friends to sign up for this conference, which will be an historic event.

GOP winning Medicare marketing war

Through shrewd marketing. Republicans have family Foundation showed that 73 percent of made dramatic headway in persuading the public favors "reducing the rate of growth" public that the Medicare system needs reform, but they still face the huge hurdle of selling a specific plan.

Six months ago, when Republican policy was widely characterized as merely "cuts," polls indicated that GOP plans to change the health system for the elderly were as politically lethal as 'touching" Social Security.

Now. Republicans have succeeded in changing the terms of debate from "cuts" to "reductions in the rate of growth" and are in the process of convincing the public that the system needs to be "saved from bankruptcy. According to a CNN/USA Today poll last month by Gallup, 65 percent of the public, including 54 percent of people over 50 and 41 percent of those over 65, now believes that Medicare faces "serious problems which require drastic action." the basis of the GOP argument for reductions in Medicare growth. Similarly, a new survey by GOP pollster Frank Luntz for the Health Care Leadership Council, a consortium of large health care providers, shows that 76 percent of the public favors "fundamental" change in the system.

And a late June Harris poll for the Kaiser

On the other hand. Harris found that only 44 percent of the public favors reducing Medicare growth to balance the federal budget and only 28 percent favors such steps if the purpose is to provide a tax cut.

Democrats, who were far ahead in the Medicare propaganda fight last winter. continue to pound on the theme that Medicare "cuts" are designed to "pay for tax cuts for the rich." Recently on "Meet the Press," House part of his party's strategy is to downplay the significance of the federal Medicare trustees report issued in April showing that Medicare will run out of money in 2002.

Gephardt said. "The program's not going broke tomorrow.... You have insolvency problems in 2002."

According to the Harris/Kaiser poll. 70 percent of Americans believe that the Medicare system is in danger of going bankrupt and 48 percent express a "high level of concern" over that fact, indicating that Republicans are ahead on this

What's not apparent from polls is whether the public views GOP policy as "cuts" or as "reductions in growth." Republicans are going all out to argue that per capita Medicare spending will rise under their plan, from the current $4,800 per year to $6,700 in 2002.

Democrats claim - without exact numbers that $6,700 won't adequately cover medical costs, but that begs the question of whether Medicare costs can be brought down from their present level of 10 percent growth per year. double the rate in the private sector.

ELLEN GOODMAN

Gail Sheehy needs a label girl

BOSTON - When I retire, I want to become Gail Sheehy's label girl. I want to be the person who comes up with the life-cycle names that dot "New Passages" like an attack of the Alliterative Ants: "Tryout Twenties."

"Turbulent Thirties," "Flourishing Forties."

I don't want the job just to add to the pension plan, although this sequel that takes the reader into Second Adulthood has zoomed up the bestseller list with the speed of a hot flash. I want it because it would be Fabulous

Imagine how it would change the life of a woman I will call Ellen. In just the last week, her daughter, son-in-law and a dozen teenagers camped out on her front lawn in various stages of tonsillitis. Her husband Bob's 97-year-old aunt had another medical problem. Her 81-year-old mother needed help preparing to move from one apartment to another. She had a dozen in-laws coming for the weekend, a bad knee that should have been taken out and shot, and, oh yes, a day job. If only I had come up with the phrase 'Flaming Fifties" to describe her stage of life. Ellen and Bob could have at least broken down with the Galloping Giggles.

Of course, I'm not sure I'm really up to the job I could probably have concocted the term "Serene Sixties" in a moment of high hilarity. but no way on earth could I have ever fingered "Celebratory Centenarians." Not without Willard Scott.

For that matter, the cliche-check software in my computer would never have allowed the chapter subhead that blared "Surprise! You're not getting older, you're getting happier!" Or the thought that "each momen is like a snowlake ..." Or the idea that we should replace the word aging with "sageing."

It's not that this is an empty pot of pop psych (oh gawd, this is catching). It's rather a stone soup of a book.

Like the con man in the children's fable about making stone soup, Sheehy began with a solid if indigestible idea: The life cycle is changing, middle age isn't what it used to be and old age isn't as old anymore. She then proceeded to con-vince everyone to throw in their studies, surveys, life stories. Inevitably there are a lot of tasty tidbits, but not a lot of nourishment. Her east of characters consists of people like "Jeannie" who lost 40 pounds at 48, plays in a rock band with 18-year-old boys and wants to start a heavy metal band at 65 called Guns and Geezers. Or Janet who went off to Australia for 8 months when she turned 50. Their lives are not shallow, but plumbed at exactly the same (lack of) depth. In this soup. middle age becomes "middlessence," while the search for the meaning of life becomes the "Meaning Crisis." People don't have serious caretaking obligations. They experience everything from breast cancer to widowhood as a personal growth experience. "Since he's gone," says one widow, "I'm more me than I ever was." Wheee!

I had to develop a label for the author's style, I would choose Chirpy Cheerer-upper. She has remained relentlessly, successfully, middle-aged. (I mean "middlescent"), the way

Judy Blume has remained relentlessly, successfully adolescent. I can only imagine what happened after Sheehy finished an interview, having reduced another life to a lifestyle. How much time can someone in their Sage Seventies spend with smeone who believes that "each new awakening can jump us ahead to a higher curve in the road up the mountain of self. transcendence. Even in my Flaming Fifties. I'd need a knee brace for that I can only imagine what happened after Sheehy finished an interview, having reduced another life to a lifestyle.

What's ultimately depressing about all this good cheer is that Sheehy's onto some things and missing more things. The kids grow up. the dog dies, if we're lucky and healthy there's time to use, spend, but not to waste. Our lives are not like our parents'. There's a real longing to hear from people ahead of us how they endure and thrive.

What we want from the aging process is what societies have always wanted from their elders: wisdom, meaning, understanding. At some point in life, we want to go deep. This is what's lacking from these pages.

I imagine that we find more wisdom in biography than in pep talk. Indeed, maybe the frony in this sequel is that the tone, the style, the level of insight is unchanged from the 19-year-old original "Passages."

Skipping lightly across the late life cycle, I had what the author called an "Aha!" moment: This well-meaning look at growing older is missing the sure, wise touch of a grown-up.

Touch of humanity strikes in S.C.

In Washington these days, the talk is tough. Concern for the poor, the disadvantaged, the screwed up is scarce. Instead talk is of personal responsibility, of being tough on crime, of not giving out handouts. Three strikes, two years, one mistake and you're

But in Union, S.C., this past month we've seen something that seems utterly out of touch with the times: compassion.

Residents of the small town are relieved that Susan Smith was not sentenced to death for killing her two young sons. Though some citizens are still outraged at the woman who drowned her children and then lied to the nation for nine days, saying that they'd been abducted, for the pari the angel in Union has soft-where Smith sent her bables to a watery Certainly a number of sinners have cropped up in the case. There was the stepfather who molested Smith. The mother who falled to defend her. The father who abandoned his daughter by committing suicide. In this country, the abuse excuse does not normally breed much sympathy. And, indeed, it did little for most Americans, the majority of whom believe Smith should be on death row.

But in Union. Smith was seen as more a troubled girl than a hardened criminal. Legal experts knew there was little chance of a death sentence. Indeed, the lawyers in the case had to interview hundreds of prospective jurors before they could find 12 who would even consider carrying out such a sentence.

"I don't want that one on my conscience." said one prospective juror. "I think that would make me the same person as the murderer," said another. Both were dismissed.

The majority of South Carolinians support capital punishment. So why, with such an undeniably hideous crime, would it be so difficult to find jurors who would consider invoking it? Is Union a strange pocket of bleeding hearts in a country that insists it wants no mercy for its criminals? is there something in the town's tapwater that breeds this kind of humanity?

Of course not. The reason Susan Smith will not be executed is that she belongs to the community that tried her. Half the members of the jury knew her well, and one juror was Smith's former baby sitter. The jurors knew her as the girl voted "friendliest senior" in high school, the sweet-faced checker at the Winn-Dixle, the mother who seemed to love her two boys. She was real to them. She was

Not that the jurors went easy on Smith. She was found guilty of murder, not manslaughter. And the charge was "guilty," not "guilty but mentally ill." It was agreed that Smith did a horrible thing, that she knew what she was doing, and that she should pay for it.

But they couldn't pull the trigger. When it came down to ordering the death of one of their own, someone whose family and friends they would surely pass on the street, they just couldn't do it.

"In a small town, that's just the way life is." University of South Carolina School of Law Professor William McAninch told The New York Times. "(Smith) seems more and more like a concrete person and less and less like an abstracted criminal."

Cardiac troponin I appears in the blood at the same time CK-MB does. The isoenzyme CK-MB is not cardiac specific and it can be elevated in the presence of skeletal muscle injury.

Arizona man agrees to plea bargain in bombing

OKLAHOMA CITY - A former Army buddy of bombing suspect Timothy McVeigh has made a deal with presecutors to plead guilty to lesser charges in exchange for testifying for the government, his attorney said Tuesday.

CHICAGO - Former Watergate burglar G. Gordon tiddy glared from the witness stand as he defended his right to tell radio talk show listeners how to shoot federal agents.

But Liddy wasn't really on trial for inciting his audience to violence - it was a mock trial sponsored by the American Bar Association to explore free speech issues in today's brewheeling talk radio climate.

In real life, Liddy has been sharply criticized for advising how to shoot federal agents who break into people's homes and for saying he used figures of President Clinton and his wife, Hillary, for target practice.

The National Association of Radio Talk Show Hosts gave himits Freedom of Speech Award this year in support of his right to speak.

The Daily Oklahoman reported Tuesday that Mrs. Fortier would testify about statements that McVeigh made about the bom-Fortier has admitted casing the federal building as a target with McVeigh in December, federal officials say.

A federal law enforcement source has told The Associated Press that the December trip. along with meetings in Arizona. put Fortier "square in the middle of the conspiracy.

Rob Nigh, one of McVeigh's attorneys, questioned Fortier's credibility, noting that Fortier told CNN in May that he didn't believe McVeigh had anything to do with the bombing.

The obvious thing about Mr.

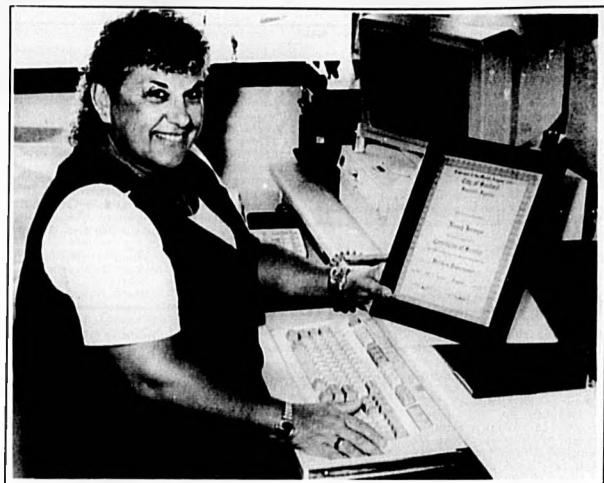

national television audience that he didn't have any knowledge of the bombing and that Mr. McVeigh wasn't involved," Nigh-

McVeigh, Nichols and Fortier all served together in the Army at Fort Riley, Kan., and McVeigh kept in touch with his two friends after their military service ended.

McVeigh stayed with the Fortiers at their Kingman home several times, and Fortier reportedly got McVeigh a job at a hardware store there. McVelghserved as best man at the Fortiers' Las Vegas wedding last

In another development, NBC News reported that federal prosecutors plan to drop charges this week against Nichols' brother, James

James Nichols, a farmer in Decker, Mich., was arrested two days after the bombing as a material witness. He was charged with helping his brother and McVeigh detonate small bombs on his farm, charges unrelated to the Oklahoma bombing

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. - Just one more

Jeffery Epperson drove in three runs with a 2-for-4 performance at the plate, including two doubles, to lead the Longwood All-Stars past the Georgia All-Stars from North Columbus 5-1 in the winners bracket championship of the Babe Ruth Baseball Prep Southest Reional Tournament Tuesday afternoon.

North Columbus came back later Tuesday evening to eliminate South Carolina and advance to the finals to meet Longwood today.

If Longwood wins one game later today it will advance to the Babe Ruth Baseball Prep World Series that will be played in Kingston, N.C. starting August 20. North Columbus must beat Longwood twice if it is to advance to the eight-team field.

Longwood ace Kevin Graves will pitch today's

"We're in about as good a shap as we can be in." Longwood manager Andy Westervelt said by phone Tuesday night. "Kevin (Graves) is rested and ready to go. He has given up just one run in 29 tournament innings. If Kevin has the type of game that he is capable of, we should win.

Longwood's J.T. Williamson went the distance on the monud, striking out nine batters, allowing just one walk and holding the previously bottom of the seventh inning.

Westervelt was impressed with the hurler's performance.

"J.T. was just unbelievable," Westervelt said. "He was the first kid that I saw go seven innings in this tournament. He just went out there and tied them in knots.

While Williamson was stopping the Georgia litters. Longwood's line-up had no problem giving him run support. Graves led off the game with a double, and took third on Kevin Melillo's single. Epperson then put Longwood ahead 1-0 by driving in Graves on a fielder's choice.

The local squad added two runs in each of the third and fifth innings to build a 5-0 advantage.

Justin Hawarah complimented Epperson's performance with a 3-for-4 afternoon than included two singles and a double. Also contributing to Longwood's 10 it attack were Melillo (2-for-4) and Graves. Chris Westervelt and Eric Schmook (all of whom were 4-for-3)...

"Hot Shoe" goes two-for-two

By PAUL MARSEGLIA Special to the Herald

ORLANDO - New Symma Beach's Gary "Hot Shoe" Balough, driving double duty, raced to feature wins in the late model and modified features Friday night at Orlando Speedworld.

A caution flag with five laps to go gave Balough the break he needed to put him in position to win the late model feature event. For the first 20 laps, Balough chased Wayne Anderson for the number one spot.

Late in the race, Eddie Perry blew an engine, bringing out the yellow flag. On the restart, Balough lined up alongside Anderson. As the green flag flew, Balough charged to the lead. Anderson, who tried in vain to regain the lead, settled for second ahead of Raymond Lovelady, Dave Durkin and Rick Johns.

Balough, driving the Cowboy's Saloon Cavalier, started the modified headliner from the fifth position. On the third lap, Balough worked his way into second place. For the next 18 laps, Balough chased race leader Doug Moff for the number one spot. Cautions once again gave Balough the advantage he needed.

On the restart, Balough got around Moff for the top money position. Moff, who tried to take back his position, got caught up in a three-ear melee. The incident forced him to restart from the back of the lead pack. In tow behind Balough were Steve Gamey, Bruce Thompson, Rob Partelo, John Willis and Moff.

At the half-way point, Dave Waddell got around Bill Cuddy for the lead in the bomber main event with a high groove pass. As Cuddy and Mike Peppler battled for second place. Waddell pulled to a commanding lead. Despite several caution periods that brought about new restarts. Waddell held off all challengers to notch his fifth win of the season. Peppler finished second in front of Doug Gould. Bill Gibbons and Darren Gould. Jared Allison, with Gene Van Alstine glued to his rear bumper, raced the his eleventh mini-stock win of the season. Kevin DeMeco was third, R.J. Arnone fourth, and Kelley Jarrett fifth.

Barbara Pierce, the lady in black, dominated the action in the sportsman division to pick up her sixteenth checkered flag of the year. Pierce, a four-time FASCAR champion, led Mike Peppler, Harvey Pope, J. Allen Smith and Ron Lufey to the flag stand.

Osteen's Bobby Sears paced the field to win the limited late model feature. Tony Newsome was second ahead of Brad May, Hank Baker and Debbte Santo. Jim Erb won the run-about feature, while the mini-stock classic winner was Jim Yeaton.

LAKEVILLE, MINNESOTA -There's no place like home.

Lakeville and Burnsville, Minnesota are not exactly Central Florida, but with all of the rain and hot, humid weather that has befallen the area since Saturday, the Central Florida Bombers and Chet Lemon Juice II must feel like they have never left Florida And the two teams have been playing like they are at home. sweeping all eight games the two teams have played in the 1995 AAU/USA 12-Under National

Baseball Championships. The first round of the tournament featured all 50 teams involved in round-robin play which concluded Tuesday evening. The top 30 teams from the round robin (which Juice II and the Bombers should easily be a part of) will advance to championship round robin pool play (six groups of five teams), while the remaining teams will take part in a consolation pool play round

The top two teams from each pool will then advance to a 12-team single climination tournament to begin on Friday, August 11th at the Quigley Sime complex in Lakeville. The championship game is set for Saturday, August 12th.

Juice II (representing the Chet Lemon Baseball School in Winter Springs) opened play by besting the Osseo Orioles 9-2 and the Urbandale J-Hawks 2-0 on Sunday, then nipping the Oceanside Sharks 4-3 on Monday The Juice II completed round robin play by whitewashing New Jersey Arsenal 6-0 on Tuesday.

The Bombers have also been impressive, topping the Merrimack Valley Patriots 5-2 on Sunday, then crushing the Connecticut Warriors 11-0 on Monday. The local squadcompleted round robin play by sweeping a doubleheader Tuesday. outscoring the Carolina Crush 12-9 and edging the Texas Panthers 3-2.

save NBA season Eleventh-hour deal may percentage. And the NBA still longer wished to be represented gets a rookie salary scale and by the players' association. By WENDY E. LANE drive to abolish the union. AP Basketball Writer

NEW YORK - The NBA and its union got together on a last-minute deal. Can the players get together and approve it? With yet another contract proposal before it, a divided membership must decide whether to accept the six-year deal or dissolve the union and try to win better terms through the courts, potentially jeopardizing the 1995-96 season.

After reaching the tentative agreement Tuesday night, NBA commissioner David Stern and leaders of the players association will spend the next three weeks selling the revamped deal, which replaces one the players rejected in June. Its approval would end the month-old lockout.

'We have our work cut out for us," union president Buck Williams of the Portland Trail Blazers said. "We have to get out and explain the deal and let it stand on its own merits."

Stern, flanked by 25 players at a midnight press conference. was more optimistic.

"Our Indications are that it won't be a difficult sell," he said. "We don't think it's going to be a problem."

The targets of the hard sell will be Michael Jordan. Patrick Ewing and other players whose opposition scuttled the previous deal, causing a deep rift among the membership and triggering a

A previously set vote on disbanding the union now will also be a referendum on the revised deal, union executive director Simon Gourdine said.

"We're very happy the NBA met our concerns," Williams said. "We feel very fortunate that we could work out an agreement at 5 minutes. 10 minutes before midnight."

The talks were a last effort to get a new deal before the union acquiesced to the wishes of Jordan's faction and relinquished its authority as the players' bargaining agent. The union had said it would take that step if there wasn't an agreement by midnight.

More than three hours of negotiations produced an agreement that elliminates the luxury tax, a sticking point with players in the previous pact, and includes a $1 million exception for teams over the salary cap to sign free agents.

Also included are two additional exceptions to the salary cap: a provision under which teams can use 50 percent of an injured player's salary to sign another player and one that permits a player who has completed two seasons with the same team to re-sign at double his salary. in exchange, the union agreed to let the NBA reopen the contract after three years if salaries exceed a certain revenue abolishes multimillion "balloon" payments tacked on the end of some veterans' contracts.

Clyde Drexler said he believed there was much for players to like in the revised agreement.
"I still think it's very fair," he said. "Everything has been increased from the last deal. The cap continues to rise and there's more free agency." Should the players vote to decertify rather than to accept the new contract, it would clear the way for an antitrust lawsuit filed against the league by Jordan, Ewing and 14 other players. The suit seeks to end the lockout and abolish the salary cap and college draft. Jeffrey Kessler, the lawyer who filed the suit, said the second agreement is still "too good for the owners at a time when the Knicks are charging $1,000 a scat."

The league and the union reached an agreement in June on a six-year deal containing approximately $5 billion in player salaries and benefits. But it was derailed when Jordan and Ewing, displeased with the proposal and with the union leadership, advocated dissolving the union. Approximately 200 players signed petitions, filed with the National Labor Relations Board, saying they no certification election on Aug. 30 and Sept. 7. More than 400 players will be eligible to vote for either decertification or accepting the new deal.

No vote was set for team owners, and Stern indicated he would wait to call one until the players make their decision.

Mom's guest policy is single occupancy

DEAR ABBY: I'm confused and frustrated. My son is coming nome from college and bringing his live-in girifriend, and wants to stay in my home. I've always been against this kind of arrangment. I love my son and the girl is a very nice person, but I can't seem to come to terms with myself to accept this (sleeping together) in my home.

Am I being an old fuddyduddy? And how do I tell him I don't think I can go along with this arrangement? I think it sets a bad example for my young grandchildren who spend time with me. DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE: Since you are uncomfortable allowing your son and his girlfriend to the idea of an unmarried couple sleep together under your roof ford, boy; Asia Zanders and Eric honesty is the best policy. Johnson, Sanford, girl Simply say: "I love you, son, but I am not comfortable with sleeping together in my home: it sets a bad example for my younger grandchildren who spend time with me. You're welcome to stay here, but in separate bedrooms."

It's honest, and you need not apologize for it.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing about a problem that has arisen in our family, and it's about to explode at any time.

About four months ago, my sister "Jane" and her husband relocated from Chicago to Nashville, where our parents live. They offered to let Jane and her husband stay with them until they got settled. Well, what should have taken a couple of weeks (a month a most) has turned into many months - and so far. Jane and her husband have made no effort to get a place of their own. Even worse, they have not offered any mency to compensate for their living expenses during their stay.

Also, Jane has given birth to her third child, and she and her husband are constantly leaving the infant with my parents, who already have guardianship and the care of Jane's first two children from her previous marriage.

Abby, my parents are very generous and can't see that they are being taken advantage of.

How can I approach Jane and her husband without creating a family fight? Each day, my tolerance slips closer to the boiling point. BOILING POINT IN

NASHVILLE DEAR BOILING POINT: It is not your place to tell Jane and her husband that they are imposing on your parents, particularly since nowhere in your letter have you indicated that your parents feel imposed upon. Perhaps your parents enjoy having them there. Stay out of it. DEAR ABBY: I recently read a letter in your column from parents of twins who posted a sign on their double stroller that read, "YES, THEY ARE!" (in anticipation of the question, "Are they twins?").

friend gave me at a baby shower for my fourth son. (I had a newborn. a 22-month-old, a 314-year-old and a 5-year-old all boys!) The sign read:

"Yes, they are all mine.

"Yes, they are all boys. "Yes, my hands are full.

"No. I wasn't trying for a giri!" Now after the birth of a fifth child, a daughter, we don't get questions — just the constant comment, "Congratulations, you finally got a giril" Sign me ...

GLORIA IN ORANGE, CALIP. DEAR ABBY: I have done a very bad thing. I am 15, not married, and had a baby girl. I told everyone the wrong boy is the baby's daddy. I couldn't say who the baby's real daddy is without getting him in a lot of trouble.

Please tell me what to do. I am too chicken to sign my name.

DEAR SORRY: It took a great deal of courage to admit that you lied, but there are important reasons why you must now tell the truth.

At some point, you may need financial help to support this child. Not only would it be unfair to ask the "wrong boy" to do this, if he denies he is the father (which he would surely do), a blood test would reveal that you lied. Also, someday your daughter may need a family medical history; a history from the wrong family would be useless.

As much as you would like to This reminded me of a sign my shield the baby's father from trouble. I urge you to admit that you lied. And the sooner, the better.

Use frozen dough to make this twist developed by Bridgford Foods Corporation.

LOW-PAT BLUEBERRY

Ingredients: 1 [1 lb.] loaf frozen bread dough, white or honey wheat. thawed

1/2 cup light brown sugar 15 cup walnuts, finely diced 2 Tbsp. all-purpose flour

1 tsp. cinnamon 2 Thap, margarine

% cup fresh blueberries Procedure:

Grease a sheet pan or cookie with non stick cooking spray.

sheet with non stick cooking spray; set aside. Combine sugar. nuts, four and cinnamon. Cut in margarine until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. (If using a food processor, simply process sugar, nuts. flour, cinnamon and margarine until well mixed). Set aside. On a lightly floured surface, roll out thawed dough to a 10x12-inch rectangle. Spread nut mixture over dough, leaving a 1/2-inch border of dough. Sprinkle blueberries over nut mixture, pressing berries gently into the dough. Starting from the 12-inch side, roll dough up tightly, jelly-roll fashion. Seal seams. Divide dough in half (two, 6-inch pieces). Gently stretch each piece. Twist the two pieces together. Place on prepared sheet pan. Spray the twist

Let rise until double in size. Bake in a preheated 375 degree oven for 25-35 minutes or until golden brown and loaf gives a hollow sound when tapped (if browning too quickly, cover with foll. Remove from oven and pan to cool on wire rack. Loaf slices best when cool.

Low-fat Blueberry Twist

Boy, 5, makes name for self in cooking

Associated Press Writer

BADEN, Pa. — He's got chipmunk cheeks, a laugh like a contagious case of the hiccups and a wicked way with a spatula.

No wonder Justin Miller, an amateur chef at the age of 5, is making a name for himself on the talk-show circuit.

Already he's whipped cream cheese with Phil Donahue, shared laughs with David Letterman and fried zucchini with Michael Burger of "Mike & Maty" fame.

His parents and business manager envision more of the same ahead, as well as possible appearances in commercials and movies. They're even talking about a sitcom of his own, to be called "Justin's Kitchen."

"It's a God-given gift that Justin was born with, to charm America via the tube," said Justin's Los Angeles-based manager, Phil Lobel, who also handles publicity for magician David Copperfield. "When people see him, they find him an adorable, very appealing indi-vidual."

At home in Baden, a Pittaburgh suburb, Justin seems more interested in demonstrating his recipe for "Zucchini Moons" than talking about his rise to minor fame.

Boosted up to the stove by a blue Playakool chair, he flips zucchini slices in a sizzling frying pan and sprinkles parmesan cheese on them.

"You have to cook them until they're tender and crisp," he instructs. A few seconds later, he points to a slice that's lightly browned. "This is what you want them all to look like," he says, an endearing lisp slightly blurring his words. "They should all look JUST LIKE THAT." Justin first showed an interest in cooking when he was just a little more than a year old. according to his mother, Linda.

"When he was in his high chair, if I was making cabbage rolls. I'd give him a little bit of the filling and some of the cabbage leaves, and he'd practice rolling them up," she says. He also helped her stuff peppers and mash potatoes and began making his own pea-nut-butter-and-jelly sandwiches when he was about 2.

"He always said he wanted to be a chef," recalls Mrs. Miller, who says her son idolizes Graham Kerr, television's "Galloping Gourmet." "From the time he started to talk, people would ask him what he wanted to be, and he'd say, 'A chef.'"

In March, Justin's father. Jimi, a disc jockey at a Pittaburgh country music station. sent "Late Show with David Letterman" a videotape of his son cooking.

Producers liked what they saw and scheduled him for the April 27 show.

The segment dissolved into giggles, with Letterman and Justin flinging vanilla wafers into the audience instead of baking "Mini Cheesecakes." Justin was even invited to stay on the set after singer Anita Baker, the next guest, appeared.

"He really cracks me up. He was just so excited about things like the whisk and the blender." says talent assistant Leigh Ann Gibson. "I definitely think he has potential."

Not long afterwards, he was invited to appear on "Donahue." where he finally got a chance to demonstrate how to make "Mini Cheesecakes." Last month. Justin traveled to Hollywood. where he appeared on the nationally syndicated "Mike & Maty" show, had a personal host show him around Disneyland Puck at Spago's. Footage of parts of his visit was aired on CNN's Headline News.

"I like going on television because I get to cook," he says.

Lobel and Justin's parents know that to keep Justin happy. any show business venture will have to involve time in front of a stove. That's why Lobel came up with the idea for "Justin's Kitchen," which he says will be a cross between "Galloping Gourmet" and "Bewitched." "This is a child who loves to cook," says Lobel, who is working with a few writers to develop the concept. "In listening to him. what came through is that what would make him happy would be a kitchen set designed for him, with all his blenders and fancy spoons."

Two of Justin's favorite recipes. The first is from "Pretend Soup And Other Real Recipes: A Cookbook for Preschoolers and Up" by Mollie Katzen and Ann Henderson (Tricycle Press. 1994). The other is a specialty of Justin's maternal grandmother. Grandma Betty Lyons.

Lasting effects of sun damage

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a senior citizen who, in her youth, achieved a deep tan every summer. Now I've developed brown spots that haven't responded to Retin A. Is there anything new in the dermatology field that might lighten these spots?

DEAR READER: Unfortunately, sun-damaged skin is difficult to treat. Brown spots, large freckles and other blemishes are common consequences of chronic over-exposure to ultraviolet light. Premature aging of the skin, wrinkles and various skin cancers also result from sun damage.

I am not aware of any new product that could solve your problem, but you should ask a dermatologist for additional advice. Cosmetic creams and lotions may cover the spots but, I am afraid, the brown areas do not usually respond to medical therapy.

To provide additional information. I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "What You Should Know About Skin Cancer." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've suffered with incontinence for five years. I recently read that collagen injections are being given for bladder control problems and the FDA has approved the use.

DEAR READER: Collagen injections, sithough frightfully expensive, are a new method of treating urinary incontinence in women who have neither a gynecological cause (such as a cystocele) or another type of anatomical abnormality.

Under anesthesia, several inections are placed around the urethra, the tube that empties the bladder. The collagen appears to improve continence by providing additional support and, hence, control. The procedure is performed by a urologist, so it is from such a specialist that you could obtain an opinion about whether you are a candidate for this pro-

Devyn Press published two books with a limited general appeal last June. Each costs $12.95 and can be ordered by calling (800) 274-2221.

"The American Forcing Minor Bidding System" by Joe Lutz and Jerry Fink describes an intricate bidding system in which a one-club opening is strong, artificial and forcing, and a one-diamond opening is either natural or a strong no-trump. The authors also make some interesting defensive signaling recommendations. For serious, system-oriented partnerships only.

"Appeals Committee Decisions
"Appeals Committee Decisions from the 1994 NEC World Championships" lists almost all of the appeals heard in Albuquerque. Unfortunately, what I considered the most contentious decision isn't included because, I assume, it happened on the last day, too late for inclusion in the daily bulletin and hence this book. If you are interested in the laws of the game, this book will appeal to you - if you'll excuse the expression.

Here's a tricky defense based on a deal in the first book mentioned. East opened with a weak two-bid, showing a good six-card suit and some 6-10 high-card points. South overcalled with a strong two no-trump and North raised to game. West led his spade. East won with the king, cashed the spade ace, then led the spade seven. his lowest spade as a suitpreference signal for clubs. He was suggesting that his only potential entry lay in clubs.

Getting the message, West discarded the club ace!

Now the contract was dead, declarer being unable to do better than cash his eight tricks.

Phillip Alder's book, "Get Smarter at Bridge," is available, autographed upon request, for $14.95 from P.O. Box 169, Roslyn Hts., NY 11577-0169. Copyright 1995 by NEA Inc.

HOROSCOP

By Bernice Bede Ocol YOUR BIRTHDAY Aug. 9, 1995

In the year ahead, your financial prospects will probably have more ups than downs. Negative trends could be self-induced, so avoid extravagance or wastefulness.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Try not to feel despondent if things haven't been too exciting for you socially lately. Improvements are in the offing today. Leo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This could be one of those unusual days when you accomplish far more than you anticipated because everything falls into place so easily.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Usually, it isn't too wise to let ANNIE impulsive urges govern actions. but today, that which you do Impromptu might turn out best.

RCORP10 (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You are now entering a reasonably prolonged cycle where you may derive greater material gratification. Continue doing the best you can. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec.

21) Companions could be easily swayed to your way of thinking today owing to your compelling presentation of matters you enthusiastically support.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your instincts for adding to your resources could prove unusually accurate today. Do not ignore them; they might reveal ways to increase your holdings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you feel you have something worthwhile to offer, start looking for a market today. You are in a good cycle for launching unique endeavors.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Something unusual might develop today, giving you a posalbility to fulfill a suppressed ambition. You mustn't dawdle if a window of opportunity opens.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try to associate with progressive thinkers today. Valuable information and concepts can be gained through an open-minded exchange of ideas.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A audden or unusual shift in your career might transpire today. It could prove beneficial and give you a more advantageous position than your present one.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Feel free to change your mind or make adjustments if you're involved in an arrangement that you feel is better for the other guy than it is for you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Keep your schedule as flexible as possible today. Things you do on the spur of the moment could turn out to be very fortunate for you.
