Groundhog Day

SANFORD - The question is, regardless of what Phil may have seen, does it really matter in Central Florida? The nation's premier groundhog. Punxsutawney Phil "saw" his shadow this morning, and gave the message, "Let it snow, let it snow, let it snow."

According to the old legend, if Phil doesn't see his shadow, spring is just around the corner, but if he does, everyone faces six more weeks of winter.

At 7:28 a.m., handler Bill Deeley yanked Phil from the fake tree stump that serves as his barrow as fireworks went off to simulate a sunrise. Clouds obscured the real sun.

A crowd of about 10,000 gathered at Gobbler's Knob greeted the prediction with boos and hisses.

Of course most groundhogs don't venture out of their holes Feb. 2. Almost all of them are hibernating, unlike Phil, who lives in a heated burrow with two pals at the local library.

As a final comment, whether or not people agree with Phil's predictions, it must be noted that groundhog hunting in Pennsylvania is allowed during the entire year.

"I expected the rates to drop mostly because this is a presidential election year. " he observed. Bee Mortgage, Page 5A

Bank robber's plan bombe

GULF BREEZE - A man accused of trying to rob a Florida Panhandle bank after phoning in a bomb threat found himself locked out after employees evacuated the building, police say.

James Larkin was charged with attempted armed robbery after a Santa Rosa County sheriff's deputy spotted him, still wearing a ski mask, as he fled the Regions Bank, according to Chief Deputy Wes Cummings.

"He goes to rob it and there's nobody there." Cummings said.' "Let's just say he's not one of our brighter criminal minds."

Larkin. 27, of nearby Navarre, was charged with attempted armed robbery and making a bomb threat. He remained in the county jail in Milton on Thurnday.

The bank was the second in Santa Rosa to receive a bomb threat Wednesday. The first call was made to another Regions Bank in Navarre about 15 miles away.

"We always, with this sort of thing, stake out other banks in case it's a diversion." Cummings said. "Well, sure enough, 20 minutes after the first call, there's a call at the Regions Bank right outside of Gulf Breeze."

NAACP: shooting not justified

PENSACOLA - The fatal shooting of a teen-age suspect by a sheriff's deputy during a pizza delivery robbery was justified. Escambia County State Attorney Curtis Golden has ruled.

But the NAACP disputes the decision.

The shooting occurred on Dec. 13, when two Escambia County deputies, one posing as a pizza delivery man, killed 15-year-old Anthony Wayne Gee in the yard of a neighbor north of Pensacola.

The deputies say they shot the black teen after he pointed a shotgun, which investigators later found to be unloaded, in the face of the undercover officer.

"I have determined that the shooting was justified." Golden said at a news conference where reporters were given copies of a 1 1/2-inch thick report on his investigation.

The Rev. B.J. Brooks, president of the Escambia chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, has accused the deputies of using excessive force. He said witnesses claimed Gee was unarmed and with two other youths when the deputies chased him more than 100 yards, firing wildly.

Senate president considers a ban on legislators' free meals

By The Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE - Florida Senate President Jim Scott wants the public to think better of the Legislature.

But when Scott aired a proposal to end the free meals lawmakers can enjoy during the spring regular session, he sparked a clamor from lobbyists who pick up the tabs and Tallahassee restaurateurs who get the business.

"Part of my fear is what comes up next: If it's not good to have dinner with us. - it's not good to be seen with us?" said lobbyist Guy Spearman, who represents Anheuser-Busch, tobacco makers and other clients. "Does that mean we are not good

Chris Kalin, an owner of the Silver Slipper restaurant, a favorite hangout of lobbyists and lawmakers since 1938, said the 60-day session that begins March 5 "are kind of gravy months. It's like Christmas for the merchants."

Scott. R-Fort Lauderdale, said he pays his own way at lunches and dinners and is increasingly convinced that all legislators should do the same.

"I'm concerned about the public's perception." he said. 'I'm looking at lobbyists and what they do and what gets reported. I want to find a way to restore public confidence in the Legislature."

State law prohibits lawmakers

Alleged teacher killer faces charges

BROOKSVILLE - A youth indicted in the shooting deaths of two Hernando High School teachers faces arraignment next month on charges of murder, carjacking and attempted murder of a police officer.

Jimmy Dale Smith. 19, will enter an innocent plea at the March 5 proceedings, said Alan Fanter, chief assistant public defender.

NAPLES - A movie stunt boating accident that killed one person and injured four others won't lead to criminal charges.

An investigation into the fatal accident Dec. 19 during filming of the Disney movie "Gone Fishin" " did not show enough evidence of negligence to file charges, Assistant State Attorney Michael Provost said Thursday.

Janet Wilder, 29, an extra from the Woodland Hills section of Los Angeles, was killed. Her husband, stunt man Scott Wilder, was one of the four people injured in the accident in the Big Cypress Swamp.

Marine investigators found that several factors contributed to the accident, including a lack of boating experience by the stunt boat operator and the stunt coordinator. Lar Gregory, a spokesman blamed the accident in part on "a lack of planning for calculating the required boat speed" and other factors needed to pull off the stunt.

"Gone Fishin' " is being made by Fish Tale Productions and stars Danny Glover, Joe Pesci and Rosanna Arquette. The stars were not hurt.

In the scene, a boat operated by stunt doubles for Glover and Pesci had to go up a ramp, fly over a hedge of mangroves. land between two boats and stop in the water.

But the boat came off to one side of the ramp instead, flipping upside-down and hitting the two boats, which then rammed into the extras, authorities said at the time of the crash.

In Washington. Cheryl Byrne of the federal Occupational. Safety and Health Administration said the agency was still investigating the accident.

TAMPA - The Equal Employment Opportunity Com- in dead-end cashier and clerk mission may join the legal team positions while promoting male employees along a better-paying sex discrimination suit against career track. They had also filed Publix Super Markets Inc., a federal judge has ruled.

The suit, brought by former and current female employees in July, accuses the Lakelandbased supermarket chain of systematically discriminating against women in assigning jobs, promotion and pay. But U.S. District Judge Henry Lee Adams stopped short of allowing the suit to be expanded to include job applicants.

In his ruling on Tuesday. Adams agreed with Publix that including applicants would add different issues and an enormous number of people to the case after preliminary proceedings already were completed.

Publix has more than 470 stores in Florida, Georgia and

The EEOC began investigating the supermarket chain in 1992.

Angelo Filippi, the EEOC's regional counsel in Miami. said Thursday that many women hired by Publix "were basically given dead-end jobs."

No decision has been made yet on class action status.

Both sides found something positive in the judge's decision.

Lake Mary still airing water woes

Heraid Staff Writer

LAKE MARY - Concerns about water problems continue to flood the Lake Mary city commission. In addition to an earlier meeting specifically to discuss high water problems yesterday afternoon, the matter continued to be brought up at the regular city commission meeting. The 5:30 p.m. meeting was a joint session with the city commission and members of the Water Quality Management Committee. While many citizens stepped forward to voice their complaints and concerns about high water in some residential areas, no formal decision on resolving the problem was made.

Commissioners and committee members listened intentively to citizens. Some blamed the St. Johns Water Management District, others blamed developers for building houses at levels which may flood during high water. The present city commission was blamed for not acting swift enough to divert water to other areas. Previous city commissions are also being blamed for approving residential developments without concerns for the potential of flooding.

While some citizens offered what they believed to be solu-tions to their particular flooding problems, responses often revealed that fixing one problem

As a result, no official decisions were made during the called meeting, which lasted wekk beyond the scheduled time for the beginning of the regular scheduled meeting at 7 p.m. "From this point," Mayor

Lowry Rockett concluded, "we'll compile all of the information we have discussed at this special meeting, have our staff study it. then, as soon as possible, see what can be done to help alleviate these problems."

When the citizen participation period started at the regular commission meeting, more citizens stepped forward. Again. the blame for the flooding was placed against the various partics.

"I think it's time for the commission to reopen dialog with the St. Johns Water Man-agement District." said Doug Forner. "Perhaps, by working together, you can come up with some alternative plans."

Forner as had a number of others, said he wanted the water level in the Crystal Lake Basin to be kept at the 40 foot level, with the city arranging for some type of runoff of the high water into another area.

Forner, who has spoken about the problem several time in the past during regular commission meetings, is also a member of the Water Quality Management Committee.

Following public discussion. water problems were brought up could easily lead to an increase again later in the meeting by Mayor Rockett responded that the Timacuan area already is required to test its water on a quarterly basis. Regarding a suggestion that the city should test water in the affected areas perhaps once every two weeks, Rockett said it would cost approximately $1,000 each time, and he believed statistics which may already be available should be obtained and examined before the city launches into the expenditure of additional money for testing.

Commissioner Sheila Sawyer added the suggestion that information should also be obtained regarding any chemicals or fertilizer being used in the Timacuan area golf course, which may also affect the quality of standing water.

During a previous city commission meeting, a decision was made to begin planning and work on several areas in the city affected by flooding, with an estimated $100,000 allocated to begin the project.

McDonough said the two victims were driven to that location, placed in the trunk of their Honda Accord, and shot.

Miss Guzman was reportedly wounded in the neck, but managed to walk to a nearby convenience store in the 1200 block of SR-434 to call for help. She was subsequently airlifted to Orlando Regional Medical Center.

Sheriff's office investigators say the Guzmans were apparently lured to a house at 3389 South Saint Lucie Drive in the Hollowbrook subdivision near Casselberry, under the premise of making a drug deal.

Investigators say once inside the house, they were overpowered by the suspects and tied up with duct tape before being driven to the Railroad Road location.

Ramirez is originally from Guanica, Puerto Rico. He has one prior arrest in Orange County for theft of the U.S. Mail.

The Seminole County sheriff's department is asking anyone who knows the whereabouts of Jose Crisbotal Ramirez to contact the sheriff's office at 330-6650 or CrimeLine at 423-TIPS.

When you're wishing it's zero degrees, it's cold

By YVETTE BLACKMAN Associated Press Writer

How cold was it? Consider tow truck driver Jay Krantz's wardrobe as he tried in vain to start cars that broke down in wind chills down to 86 below zero in Bismarck, N.D.

Under his coveralls, Krantz wore two pairs of long underwear, jeans, a T-shirt, two more shirts, an insulated flannel shirt, his service station uniform shirt and a winter coat.

"The wind blows right through everything." he said. As deadly arctic cold settled across the Plains and Midwest this week and threatened to dump a thick blanket of snow on the East, pipes froze, overworked heating systems broke down and car batteries quit.

The cold snap should last through the weekend over the northern and central Plains, the Midwest and New England, with as much as a foot of snow expected in parts of New York state.

The cold even stretched to the Gulf Coast, coating roads in Arkansas and northern Louisiana with ice and prompting officials to open more homeless shelters in New Orleans, where lows tonight could dip into the 20s.

A state of emergency was declared Thursday from Alexandria, La., north to the Arkansas border, a region included in an ice storm warning. Dozens of traffic wrecks on icy roads were reported.

Up to an inch of snow expected today in north Louisiana could cover at least a half-inch of ice already on the ground.

'Enough is enough already," said Sherry Herndon, who was forced to halt repairs to her Shreveport home that was severely damaged by a tornado last week. "This is devastating. It's really worrying me."

Record lows Thursday included 51 below zero in Ely, Minn.: minus 43 at International Falls, Minn.; 36 below in Aberdeen, S.D.; 35 below in St.

Cloud, Minn.; and minus 25 in Briggsdale, Colo. Fargo, N.D., matched a 103-year-old record of 39 below.

"Even zero looks good right now," said Steve Perkins, who was reading a newspaper and drinking coffee at a cafe in Bismarck

In North Dakota, Gov. Ed Schafer declared today "Warm Winter Woollies Day" and told state workers to dress down to lift their cold spirits.

A Bismarck TV weatherman held a wet T-shirt outside on a hanger during the Thursday night newscast, and it froze as stiff as a board within 2 minutes.

And in Minnesota, about 750,000 public school students got the day off. The last time schools closed due to severe weather was January 1994.

"I don't remember a winter this harsh," said Bill Slaughter of Ely, Minn. "We have more snow than we know what to do with. I'm waiting for the day we see 10 below (as a high)."

Jumping to conclusions

It is often surprising how many people become upset over a news story, simply because they read only the headline and/or first few paragraphs. This isn't anything new, it's been going on since the days of Benjamin Franklin.

In recent times there have been a number of situations. People reading about Seminole County Circuit Judge O.H. Eaton Jr.'s ruling regarding a call for the re-trial of Joseph "Crazy Joe" Spaziano, reading just the first few words, get the false impression Eaton is setting the stage for Spaziano to eventually go free.

Such is not the case. Spaziano is already serving a life sentence plus five years for another crime. Even if this particular conviction ends up getting overturned. Spaziano will not be set free.

Learning that a local business has "filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the federal bankrupty code", doesn't mean the business is ready to close. Unfortunately, people get the immediate impression that a major business is collapsing. The key word is "reorganization," and that's exactly what is under way. It, in no way, should ever be allowed to reflect on products or services provided by any business so-involved.

Stories about hearings or discussions on the part of various governmental bodies should never be misunderstood as being set in concrete until a final and official vote is taken. Just because someone proposes something and it is scheduled for a hearing, doesn't mean the government body endorses it.

Even in 'trime related stories, the use of words "such as "arrested for" or "charged with," do not indicate that person is guilty. The guilt should only be connected with the results of an official court decision. It's the old axiom of "innocent until proven guilty," yet people tend to read what they want to and overlook the actual verbage.

Just say no to drug legalization

Buckley, has long personally believed that the best way to handle the problem of drugs would be to legalize them. Now he has taken the added step of putting National Review itself on record as favoring legalization.

Well, Bill is the owner of all the voting stock in the corporation that owns the magazine, so that's his privilege. Speaking for myself, however. I have never favored drug legalization, and I probably owe it to my readers to assure them. in view of this latest development, that I still don't.

It is certainly an issue concerning which reasonable people can differ. I can understand the arguments of the legalizers, and even agree with them -- up to a point. It is true that the laws against drugs, and all the efforts made to dry up or interdict the drug trade, have thus far failed to eradicate the problem. And it is also true that making it legal to buy drugs under controlled conditions (e.g., from federally licensed stores) would to some extent undercut the criminal network that currently supplies them -- just as ending Prohibition undercut the bootleggers.

But the legalizers, it seems to me, make far too light of some serious objections to their proposal. In the first place, it seems to me indisputable

My old colleague on National Review, Bill that decriminalizing drugs would effectively end their current social condemnation, and therefore lead to an increase in their consumption. That is precisely what the repeal of Prohibition did -- and don't let anybody sell you the false extension of the analogy. that since we managed to cope with that increase we will manage to cope equally well with this one. Alcohol is one thing: hard drugs are quite another.

Second. It is simply untrue that legalizing the sale of drugs will put the illegal purveyors out of business altogether. The unstated assumption of the legalizers is that a drug user would be allowed to buy enough of his favorite drug to satisfy his own craving; but what if he wants to buy a much bigger quantity, to spread around among friends not yet acquainted with its joys? And presumably there will be strict limitations on how old a person must be before he can make even a small purchase. In both cases, do you doubt that there will be somebody on a nearby corner, ready to sell (for a suitable markup) what the licensed store won't?

In the February Reader's Digest. Daniel R. Levine reports that there has recently been an alarming increase in teen-age drug use.

That's the bad news -- but what was that about a steady decline of teen-age drug use during the 1980a? According to Dr. Robert DuPont, the first director of the National Institute on Drug Abuse. marijuana use dropped steadily for 13 years because an unrelenting, unified chorus of parents, schools, the media and national leaders made sure teens understood that drugs, starting with marijuana, were dangerous and unaccep-table." Nancy Reagan's "Just Say No" cam-paign, for example, was far more effective than her detractors were willing to admit.

But then the messages faded away, while "popular culture, especially music, has portrayed marijuana as a normal, even glamorous, aspect of teen life. Drug use began to climb."

Black male achievement

WASHINGTON-Prince George's County. Md., school officials had a serious problem. Black male students-a third of the enrollment in the suburban Washington county--constituted the majority of the system's discipline problems. They were at the top in suspensions, expulsions, special-ed placements-and dropouts. They were at the bottom in academic performance.

The trends aren't unique. The county's response may well have been. Officials began with the notion that there was no biological or incomeorin. telligence-based reason for the pattern-that whatever was happening might be addressable by a carefully designed school program.

Thus, after a

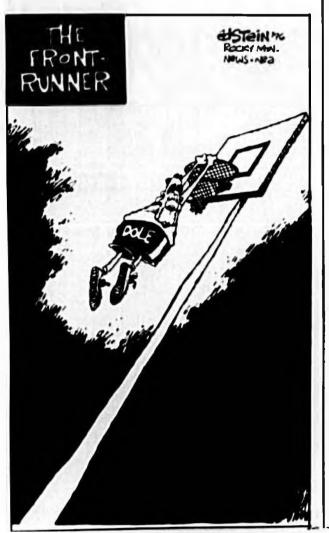

We are not, in any way, referring to what is written in today's newspapers. We are, however, suggesting that people try to pay more attention to an entire story or situation before making a judgment.

The same holds true for television, radio, periodicals, and other means of news dissemination.

Perhaps it can be compared to the way we treat each other on a personal level. We would be much better off by listening more closely to what others say, and hear the entire thing before jumping to conclusions.

Against borrow pit

How can the Seminole County Commission have the audacity to hold a public hearing on expanding the borrow pit on Marquette Avenue when it should have never happened in the first place. We neighbors have begged for our rights but so far to no avail.

What kind of commissioners have "We the People" put in office that would ever listen to such a devastating health and safety hazard? They (the commissioners) were put in office to protect us, not to kill us.

Instead of cleaning up the environment, they are polluting it. Does the Health Department and Fire Department know about this terrible adventure? Surely the Development Review Division will frown on such a decision. How could they do otherwise?

Make a mind picture of loose dirt and sand piled very, very high (approximately 8 to 10 ft.) across the road from your homes and wind blowing this loose mixture everywhere. You cough, you cry, you sneeze and at times it is hard to breathe. (In the immediate neighborhood there are four families whose older members suffer from a bronchial condition, and a 10year-old commercial nursery business whose business is in jeopardy.)

Now listen to this, if you will, on a 10 + acre tract, a trench is dug (where the dirt is removed and sold), the land is cleared and debris (trees, brush, etc.) will be piled and burned. How, oh how, can the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation and our elected commissioners allow such a death trap in our community? (Animals and small children anxious to see what is held in that pit are in danger because they may not be able to get out). Wind will be blown right in some of the faces of property owners and one house is less than 500ft. from this pit. How will the safety of light aircraft at the Sanford/Orlando Airport he alfected when wind blows toward that area? Will these owners have adequate insurance? This all sounds unreal but it's true.

How can Viblen and Benham have such a pull with the county to crect such a large open. unchecked, and unprotected pit? Also, will fire protection be available when these large piles (higher than a one-story house) are burned? Will fire protection be available to protect the restdences on three streets? Who will pay for that fire protection? Will it be the taxpayers who pay for a privately-owned business venture?

Greed is such an ugly word.

City folks, beware, because the same thing can happen to you, especially if there is a vacant lot in your area.

> Dorothy McReynolds Sanford

P.S. Please accept my invitation to drive down Marquette Avenue/Lake Mary Boulevard near the Sanford/Orlando Airport where the highpiled debris waits for someone to light the match

As fishermen, outdoorsmen and members of the House Committee on Natural Resources, we have witnessed terrible abuses inflicted on the natural wonders of this state.

St. Johns River cleanup

Thankfully, however, we are involved with thousands of Floridians who have vowed to right some of the past wrongs. Banding together under the banner of the St. Johns River Celebration, these volunteers will scour the 310 miles of the St. Johns and its major tributaries on March 2 of this year. When they emerge from the river after that massive cleanup, recyclers and garbage handlers will haul away tons of the waste now strangling this gem among Florida's natural resources.

We hope that everyone reading this letter will be compelled to join us in this effort as we make a difference in bettering "our" river.

In just 30 minutes on a recent afternoon we fished 10 pounds of styrofoam coffee cups, fast-food containers, bread bags, beer cans, fishing line and candy wrappers from the St. Johns River. We even found someone's left shoe! Imagine what thousands of people can do for the St. Johns in four hours' time. The river will feel better for it. As a volunteer, you will gain a better appreciation of this beautiful waterway. And as a parent, or neighbor, your actions will set an example that will benefit the river for generations yet unborn.

As we strive in Tallahassee to represent the visions of our competing political parties, we often find ourselves at odds. Our love and concern for the St. Johns River, however, cross political boundaries. The St. Johns River needs us all, and you can meet that need by donating just four hours of your time on March 2. Workers answering a special volunteer hotline - (800) 247-9967 - will be happy to arrange you participation in any one of the 14 Florida counties along the St. Johns River and her tributaries. Please call and honor your commitment. The St. Johns River thanks you, and so do we.

period of study and review, Prince George's started its Black Male Achievement Initiative, a program that included everything from male bonding opportunities, intensive mentoring and system-paid trips to cultural events. By all accounts, it was working quite well.

But now the entire program is threatened by a ruling from the U.S. Department of Education's Office of Civil Rights that BMAI unlawfully discriminates against female students--and perhaps against white male students as well, though some of the latter have long been participants in the program.

And my first thought was: Here we go again!

Since then, I've been having second-and third-thoughts to the point that I'm not sure what I believe is the right thing to do.

I can argue, as I did when Detroit was considering a public all-male academy to address the same problems that motivated the Prince George's officials.

My analogy was that of an accident in which some family members are critically injured, others escape with cuts and bruises and still others walk away largely unscathed. Would those hospitalized for contusions be justified in complaining that they were getting less treatment than their critically injured siblings in the intensive-care unit? And what of the uninjured who required no treatment at all?

Ah. but (to return from hospital to schoolhouse) much of the "treatment" doesn't look like treatment. The Men of Madison, like other participants in the Black Male Achievement Initiative, seem to be having a great time. Field trips, devoted mentors, early access to the gym for "bonding" exercises. Imagine your buddles, but not you, having regular access to the pingpong table. Would you feel better being told that they were being treated for Hand-Eye Coordination Deficit from which they, but not you, were suffering?

The idea of special treatment for those with special problems is easiest to accept in family settings. The sister whose back-injury therapy requires regular trips to the swimming pool may inspire in you a certain amount of sympathy. The neighbors with money for membership in the pool club are more likely to inspire jealousy. And the thought of people swimming whenever they like because of who they are may inspire outrage.

The trouble with the BMAI program is that its benefits are available not to the academically injured but to groups who. statistically, may be more prone to injury. As Marcy Canavan, the school board chairman who has opposed the program, told me: "By no means are all black males in trouble, and by no means are all white and female students not in trouble."

WASHINGTON - The judge's warning to jurors is a standard part of courtroom dramas, both real and fictional: Do not discuss the case with anyone while evidence is being presented.

In charge of the cleanup effort in Seminole County is Sherry Newkirk, the county's coordinator for Recycling and Solid Waste. She is excited about the effort.

"We're working really hard and we want to get everyone involved," she said. "We've got plenty of jobs for everyone."

Newkirk and her staff have created a video that shows the natural beauty of the river as it flows through Seminole County. It also shows the pollution and the need to clean it up.

"We'll show our video to whatever group wants to see it." she noted.

In addition to the video, Newkirk and her staff have spoken to school children, have sent brochures home with more than 50,000 students in the Seminole County public schools.

CONTRACTOR AND A DESCRIPTION

LOS ANGELES - Less than two hours before Nicole Brown Simpson was slashed to death, O.J. Simpson telephoned her and demanded to speak to their daughter, according to sources who recounted Simpson's deposition.

Simpson testified last week that he talked with his daughter Sydney about her dance recital earlier that evening and avoided talking to his ex-wife, sources told The Associated Press on Thursday.

The call from Simpson's mansion, never disclosed during his trial, was made between one and two hours before the time prosecutors contend Ms. Simpson and her friend were killed, according to the sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Simpson testified that all he said to his ex-wife was. "Let me speak to Sydney." He said he was trying to avoid talking to Ms. Simpson because he - not she - had broken off their relationship a month earlier.

Gingrich on the defensive

WASHINGTON - Thrown on the defensive in the budget fight with President Clinton. House Speaker Newt Gingrich says he would consider shrinking the proposed Republican tax cut and shortening its duration.

The GOP also moved on two fronts Thursday to shield itself politically in its debi-limit battle with Clinton, another arena where Republicans have been bruised of late.

Republican leaders wrote Clinton pledging they would not allow an unprecedented default to occur and would send him legislation "acceptable to both you and the Congress." The letter underlined previous verbal promises by GOP leaders not to provoke a veto-fight with Clinton by adding provisions he opposed to the bill.

In addition, Congress unanimously approved legislation ensuring that Social Security recipients would get their benefits, even in the event of a federal default. With Republicans planning to vote to extend the debt ceiling in late February after a winter break, they feared Clinton would spend the month warning that without that extension, the Treasury might not be able to mail March Social Security checks.

NEW YORK - Only 25 percent of Americans think Hillary Rodham Clinton is telling the whole truth about Whitewater. according to an Associated Press poll taken after she testified before a grand jury.

Twice as many Americans, 52 percent, believe Mrs. Clinton is hiding something, and most of those people are not brushing it off as trivial, the poll found. The distrust is hurting Mrs. Clinton's image, and only four in 10 hold a favorable opinion of the first lady.

At the same time, a substantial minority is withholding judgment. And Americans are split almost evenly on the potential political impact of Mrs. Clinton's legal situation, with 43 percent seeing a serious, long-term effect on President Clinton's future, and 47 percent expecting no such effect.

questions about the case, not general attitudes," she said. Several legal experts were skeptical of proposals to reduce the use of peremptory challenges, in which lawyers can eliminate prospective jurors without having to explain why.

"The peremptory challenge offers protection to African-American defendants," said Paul D. Butler, associate law professor at George Washington University, "Racism is still very real in this country."

And only rarely should jurors be sequestered, panelists said.

Kelli L. Sager, a Los Angeles lawyer who represents news media, questioned "the idea that you have to keep the jurors ignorant of everything that is going on. Jurors in communities in historical times knew everything about a case."

Courts in states besides Arizona have tried innovations. Some states, including California. Delaware and New Hampshire, have named committees to study possible changes in their jury systems.

Arizona's changes, approved by the state Supreme Court, are the most comprehensive. The idea is to make jurors more knowledgeable and active, instead of nodding off in their chairs.

In civil cases, Arizona jurors are allowed to talk about the evidence among themselves during the trial, before deliberations begin.

Some lawyers fear this may lead jurors to make premature judgments before they hear all the evidence. Discussion of evidence by jurors in 'criminal cases is not allowed before deliberations because of constitutional concerns about depriving a defendant of an impartial jury.

But Judge Dann in Arizona said jurors in civil cases seem to recognize the difference between discussing the evidence they've seen at a particular stage of the trial and ultimately rendering a verdict on the entire case.

In both civil and criminal cases, jutors can submit questions about the case in writing to the judge and get an answer, if the question is allowed under rules of evidence.

The Arizona changes "strike me as so obviously good common sense." federal Circuit Judge S. Jay Plager said. "Am I the only one who wonders why it has taken two millennia for us to come around to these (deas?"

Buckets pose risk to toddlers

The Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services has sent the following information to help out consumers. Very young children's curiosity, combined with their desire for crawling and pulling up while learning to walk, can lead to danger when large buckets are used around the home. Buckets containing even small amounts of water or other liquids can pose a drowning hazard to children.

Various types of buckets and containers have been involved in child drownings. But of par-ticular concern are 5-gallon buckets intended for commercial use that are brought into homes by consumers for re-use. The 5-gallon buckets are usually white-colored plastic that were originally intended for industrial purposes. Most of these buckets originally contained bulk or commercial-sized quantities of a variety of products. including paint, detergents, construction materials and food.

Consumers frequently re-use these types of containers for cleaning and other purposes arund the home. But parents with toddlers should be aware of the drowning hazard associated with using these containers and take precautions to reduce the potential for tragedy.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) es-timates that 36 toddlers drown each year in 5-gallon plastic buckets. The victims are generally under 14 months of age and have just learned to walk, or are pulling themselves up by holding onto furniture or other objects - such as buckets. Small children tend to be topheavy, so a curious toddler leaning into a bucket can easily fall in head first. The weight of liquid in the bucket can keep it from tipping over when a child falls in, causing the victim to drown.

This hazard is not readily apparent to parents and caretakers, so buckets are often left within reach of vulnerable small children. To reduce the risk of child drownings and injuries, parents should: • Discard all unused buckets or containers.

• Keep children in a visible area, but away from housework that involves the use of buckets or containers.

• Empty all buckets and containers after each use and store them out of reach of chudren.

To obtain a free warning poster and fact sheet addressing bucket-related toddler drownings (available in English and Spanish), call the Plastic Ship-ping Container Institute at 1-800-203-9200.

Allergies cause more than sniffles and dry, cold air.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, a few of your readers shared the effects of their allergies. Unfortunately, an estimated 60 million ans suffer from some type of allergy, including hay fever, eczema, hives, contact dermatitis, and allergies to foods such as eggs. milk, nuts and seafood. People with allergies have super-sensitive immune systems that react to seemingly harmless substances. The most common of these include plant pollen, dust mites, cockroaches, stinging insects, animal dander, mold and mildew. Multiple sensitivities are common, and many people with allergies are also sensitive to irritants --- tiny airborne particles that irritate the nose, eyes and lungs. Common irritants include strong fumes from perfume, cleaning fluids, would smoke and cigarette smoke.

ADVICE

The fact that asthma and allergies are so common causes their impact to be overlooked or trivialized. If you suspect you have asth-

Many people are unaware of the link between allergies and asthma, which is a serious and sometimes life-threatening disease. In approximately 70 percent of the 13 million Americans with asthma, allergy is the primary trigger. The asthma death-rate in the United States is more than 5,000 per year, and growing - especially in urban communities and among children and the elderly.

Asthma is characterized by an inflammation and/or an obstruction of the airways. Symptoms vary, and may include coughing, wheezing, shortness of breath, chest tightness or excessive mucus. In addition to allergies, asthma can be triggered by respiratory infections, exercise ma or allergies, see a doctor for a proper diagnosis. You can help your doctor by keeping a diary of your symptoms and the circumstances when reactions occurred. Your doctor can conduct tests that may confirm your suspicions. Asthma and allergies can be controlled by eliminating allergens at home, work and school, and by strictly adhering to a medical treatment plan that may include regular medication.

'Daddy's girl' scared her parents may get a divorce

DEAR MARY: I'm scared that my mom and dad are going to get a divorce. My mother says she doesn't think she can hang in there much longer because she doesn't think my dad loves her anymore. My dad has to travel a lot on his job but when he's home, he treats her great. and he's a super dad too. My mom doesn't have a job and I'm sure she gets lonely sometimes. but I don't think she should blame that on my dad.

If they get a divorce, I'm going to stay with my dad (I'm actually a daddy's girl), and I know that will hurt my mom, but I think she's just acting stupid and childish. I'm so worried about them that I'm having trouble concentrating on my work at school and I'm even having trouble going to sleep at night - something that's never happened to me before.

How can I make my mom see that she's just causing trouble for everyone and she needs to get over it.

DADDY'S GIRL

DEAR DADDY'S GIRL: Let's assume that what you know is all there is to the story and that neither of them is involved with someone else or having an affair. Regardless of the circumstances. you can't make either of them do anything they don't want to do, so give up on that.

Congregations unite

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

SANFORD - "Praising God Hand in Hand" is the theme of the sixth annual joint worship and fellowship February 5 to 11 by First Baptist Church of Sanford and New Life Word Center.

First Baptist Church, 519 Park Ave., will host this years worship service on Sunday. February 11 at 10:30 a.m. The Rev. Ron Merthie, pastor of New Life Word Center, 1311 Oak Ave., will preach the sermon. A joint choir and music program will be presented, led by the Rev. Jim Cornell of First Baptist and Sonya Cherry of New Life.

Prior to the worship service the highlight of "Praising God Hand in Hand" week, two prayer and fellowship events are scheduled to help members of both congregations focus on worshiping God and uplifting each other in Christian love.

First, on February 5 a prayer dinner for the staff, deacon council and spouses of both churches will be held. Second, on February 7, First Baptist will host a joint prayer meeting and Bible study from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Then, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. members of New Life will participate in the regularly scheduled First Baptist Church Wednesday night activities. including choir rehearsal and youth and children programs.

Joint worship services between First Baptist and New Life began in February of 1991. The Rev. Floyd Blake, Jr., who was then the pastor of First Baptist, and the Rev. Ron Merthie, pastor of New Life, began discussing how to bring all Christians in our community closer together in time for Southern Baptist Churches to emphasize race relations.

The coming together for worship and fellowship was a way for both churches to take a positive action toward breaking down racial barriers.

The first two services (1991 and 1992) were hosted by First Baptist. In 1993 New Life hosted the service. Since that time the worship services have alternated between the churches with the visiting pastor preaching the sermon.

In 1995 the leaders of both churches felt it was time to do more than just worship together once a year. Leading up to the worship service, three special events were held : (1) a prvaer meeting was held for the staff and deacons: (2) a prayer breakfast was held for the staff, deacons and spouses ; and (3) New Life hosted a time of prayer, testimony and music on Saturday evening. Two weeks after the Sunday worship service a covered dish dinner was held at the Sanford Civic Center.

Fellowship and Christian love between these congregations has grown through the past six years and many people have expressed their feelings that this is a high point in their spiritual year.

The Rev. Ron Merthie perhaps said it best, "We know that there is a lot of true Christian love between these two congregations and I am convinced that our coming together, as we have, is making a difference in the community of Sanford."
