Class helps students' quest for confidence

By JIM ANDERSON

SANFORD — "No one can make you feel inferior without your consent."

That is the message of a class in Terry Cook's classroom at Lakeview Middle School, 100 Laboratory Drive.

The self-esteem class is a weekly session. Cook, the 40-year-old teacher, is the coordinator of the Lakeview Middle School's Self-Esteem Program. "What does that mean?"

Mike Smith, 13, raised his hand. Cook made his direction. "It's when you believe in yourself," he said.

Cook is enthusiastic in her praise of her current answer. The other students reacted positively.

The class is designed to teach seventh graders the skills they need to make intelligent decisions on the hard choices facing them and give them a role in taking responsibility for what they do and for what they have done.

It also shows them to respect themselves as an individual, where they do not feel rejected. See Sanford, Page 5A

Lake Mary's Don Smith taking over

School board expected to name him high school's new principal

By VICKI BOGDANSKI

LAKE MARY — If things go as expected at tomorrow afternoon's school board meeting, Don Smith, currently an assistant principal at Lake Mary High School, will be moving to an office a few feet down the hall next month.

Smith, 44, who has been at the school since it opened in 1981, said he hopes to carry on the "fine traditions" started by principal Don Reynolds who will retire on Oct. 30.

"I think it would be ridiculous to make any changes in a program that has been so successful," he said. "Mr. Reynolds has made Lake Mary High School one of the finest in the state and I hope to continue that tradition."

A graduate of Lyman High School, 1141 S.E. Lake Ave., Longwood, he said he has spent his whole career in Seminole County. See Lake Mary, Page 5A

Summit echoes how Iraq altered world

By JIM ANDERSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The U.S.-Soviet summit in Helsinki showed that nothing will ever again be quite as it was before Aug. 2, when Iraqi President Saddam Hussein launched his blitzkrieg-like invasion of Kuwait.

The seismic tremor that rippled around the world's superpowers has been stronger — rather than damaged, by the Iraq aggression.

But it also showed — as Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev said — that no single superpower is sufficient to determine the course of events. The underlying theme of the meeting between U.S. President Bush and Gorbachev, and their joint news conference later, was that only by working together can the nations of the world

If Saddam goes down in history, it will be as the accidental tinkerer who revived the United Nations because of clumsiness.

Analysis

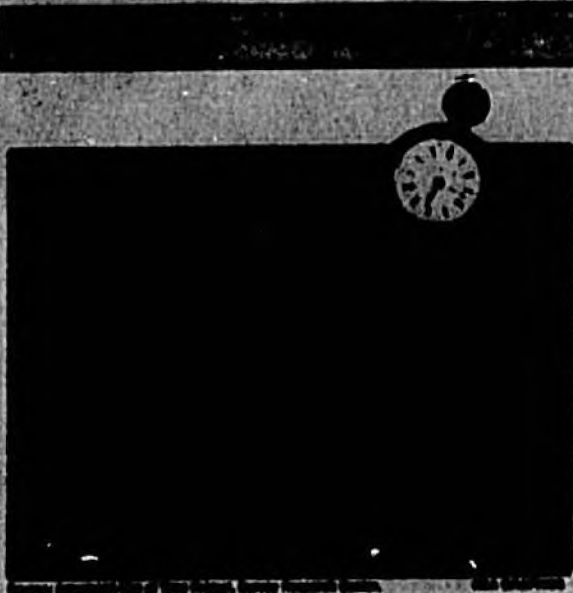

Saddam was correct in his initial calculations about Kuwait: The autocratic Kuwaiti government was unpopular in the Arab world. It was militarily weak and in a futile form of self-protection, rejected any alliance with the United States. And so Saddam pounced.

But his miscalculation, which was magnified by some fast diplomatic footwork by the U.S.

ambassador to the United Nations, Thomas Pickering, was in not understanding that most of the world — including his former ally, the Soviet Union, and his current ally, Yemen — recognized a larger principle: Aggression against any country is a threat to every country.

It was an idea that went far beyond the Iraqi invasion and will last long after the episode is resolved. If Saddam goes down in history, it will be as the accidental tinkerer who revived the United Nations because of his clumsiness.

In putting together the summit, and in their concluding joint statement, Bush and Gorbachev concentrated on the fact that the U.N. Security Council had passed five resolutions condemning and demanding the reversal of the Iraqi invasion. Those resolutions — passed without a dissent. See Summit, Page 5A

Experts: Beware driver stress

That's what experts advise for drivers suffering from the rising stress behind the wheel. Jazz or easy listening stations, they say, can help relieve the driver stress increasingly being blamed for traffic accidents.

While there are no statistics linking driver stress to accident rates, "a lot of times we talk to people after an accident and they will tell us something else was on their minds, that they were upset," said Lt. Randy Harper, of the Florida Highway Patrol in Orlando.

Stressed-out drivers can be as impaired as drunken ones, Harper said, and there are far more stressed-out drivers. "No one is immune from this," Harper said. "And a bumper is a bumper whether the driver is drunk or just thinking about something else and driving in a stressful manner."

Miami leads the state in road-related stress, according to stress therapists and highway safety officials. But Orlando is gaining fast on Tampa for second place, they said.

Lottery up to $75 million

TALLAHASSEE — No one matched all six numbers in the latest Florida Lottery drawing for the fourth consecutive week, making the next pot worth at least a whopping $75 million, lottery secretary Rebecca Paul said Sunday.

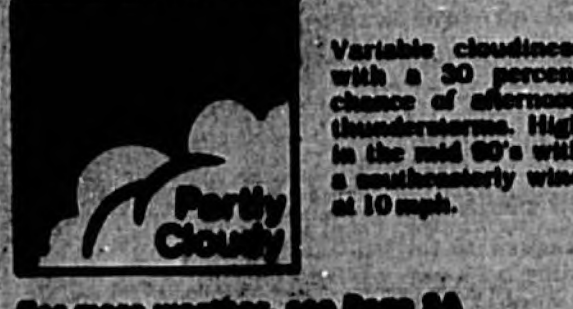

"The Florida Lottery is heading into uncharted territory," she said. "The jackpot estimate has never been higher than $55 million, so we don't know how much that will boost this week's sales. We're watching the sales closely, and may raise the jackpot during the week."

Sanford commission to hold first public hearing on $22 million budget proposal

Citizens get chance to air thoughts on millage, layoffs

By MIKE SPERFANO
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The city commission will hold the first of two public hearings tonight to consider the proposed $21.74 million annual budget and capital program for the city, for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

Tonight's meeting will begin with the first reading of the ordinance that specifies the appropriations for the fiscal year's operating budgets. In conjunction with this, the second item will be the establishment of a proposed millage rate of 6.8750 mills, unchanged from the current fiscal year. The final public hearings on the budget, and the official adoption of the millage rate will be scheduled for Sept. 24.

Very little, if any, change is expected in the budget during the public hearings, as most of the give-and-take processes that determine a budget have been hammered out during various work sessions and meetings with the city manager, budget director and department heads.

At the present time, the fiscal year's total 1990-91 budget including a $21.745 million operating budget, stands at $20.896 million, an increase of $8.3 million over last year.

Legislative aides awarded big pay

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — While most state workers will have to wait until Jan. 1 for their 3 percent pay raises, top legislative aides have had their salaries increased by as much as 63 percent over two years.

For example, outgoing House Speaker Tom Gustafson approved five pay raises within 10 months for aide Steve Sauls last year, and additional increases this year have brought his annual salary to $74,344 — 63.3 percent more than he was paid when he was hired Jan. 1, 1988.

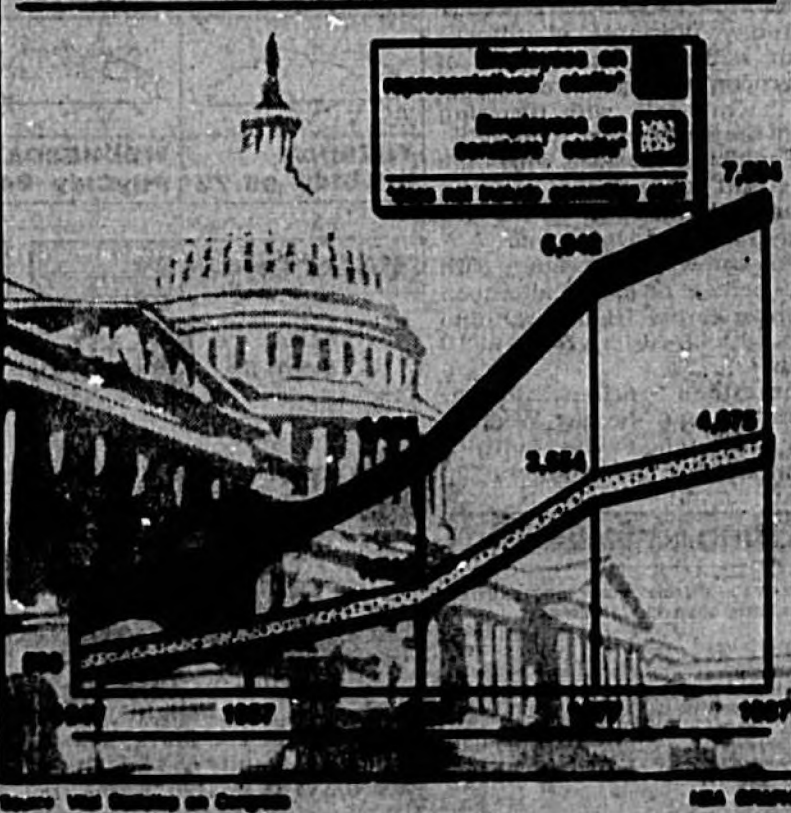

On the other side of the Capitol, Senate President Bob Crawford thwarted efforts to give most Senate employees an 8 percent pay raise this year.

But Ann Walnwright, director of the Senate Rules Committee, has had her pay increased from $74,280 when she arrived in February 1988, to $99,558 now. And Karen Copley, a longtime Crawford aide, got a 36 percent increase when Crawford became president two years ago, bringing her to $45,000.

Additional increases since then have boosted Copley's salary to $60,916 a total increase of 51 percent since she was hired.

The Tallahassee Democrat outlined the increases in Sunday's editions. Crawford and Gustafson defend the big pay raises as comparable to what their aides would be getting in executive agencies overseen by the governor or Cabinet members. See Pay, Page 5A

BCC offers exciting anniversary

By VICKI BOGDANSKI
Herald staff writer

Students will mark an exciting anniversary by observing the 50th anniversary of the Florida State Board of Community College Education. The board will celebrate its 50th anniversary on Oct. 15.

"We've got some pretty exciting things in the works," said Bob Bly, executive director of the board. "We're planning a special anniversary for the board and its members."

The board was created by the Florida Constitution in 1940. It is the governing body for the state's community colleges.

"A lot of things are going on in the planning stage," Bly said. "We're going to have a special anniversary dinner for the board and its members."

The board's 50th anniversary will be celebrated from Oct. 14 through Oct. 20 with several activities.

"Right now we're trying to put on a special event at the University of Florida," Bly said. "We're working with the members of the board to make the anniversary a special one for everyone."

On Oct. 15, 1991 BCC will dedicate its new student center.

"We'll have a big party and present," Bly said. "That will really be something that we do for the students. It's in their honor. We're doing that for them."

The annual Dream Auction will be held on Oct. 16.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Police say laundry ruse violates order

POMPANO BEACH — Anti-abortion protesters said they were just doing their laundry but the explanation didn't wash with police, who charged them with harassing women entering a gynecological clinic near a laundromat.

Police said the 27-person laundry detail was a ruse to get around a court order preventing protesters from interfering with patients going to and from the office of State Rep. Ben Graber, a gynecologist who performs abortions.

"They think they found a loophole (in the order)," said police Lt. Darryl Marshall. "I don't think they did."

The Rev. Pat Mahoney and two others were arrested Saturday at a Pompano Beach shopping center. The told police they and 24 other people were there to use a coin-operated laundry a few doors down from Graber's office.

In January, Broward County Circuit Judge Arthur Birkin prohibited demonstrators from harassing or interfering with patients, staff or doctors at clinics. After the ruling, police told protesters to stay on the swale between the shopping center and the clinic.

Columbia launch preparations heat up

CAPE CANAVERAL — Launch preparations heated up Sunday with the crew of an October mission flying in for a practice countdown and with work on track to fix the leaking shuttle Columbia in time for another takeoff try around Sept. 17.

Getting Columbia off on its long-delayed 10-day astronomy mission is critical to NASA, which is gearing up to launch the shuttle Discovery around Oct. 5 on a higher-priority $750 million flight to send the European-built Ulysses probe on a five-year voyage over the poles of the sun.

With Columbia mounted on launch pad 39A, Discovery was hauled out to nearby pad 39B last Tuesday, only the third time in shuttle history two orbiters have been mounted on NASA's twin firing stands at the same time.

Discovery's five-man crew — commander Richard Richards, 44, co-pilot Robert Cabana, 41, Bruce Melnick, 40, William Shepherd, 41, and Thomas Akers, 39 — flew to the Kennedy Space Center from Houston Sunday to review launch pad emergency procedures and to participate in a practice countdown Tuesday.

Howard withdrawal simplifies ag race

TALLAHASSEE — Republican Ron Howard's decision to give up his bid for the GOP nomination for state agriculture commissioner allows the Republican Party to focus its full attention on Democrat Bob Crawford.

Crawford, the state Senate president, considered the frontrunner for the Cabinet post, has been endorsed by Jack Dodd, the third-place finisher in last Tuesday's Republican primary.

Howard, a Palm Beach County commissioner, announced his withdrawal at a state party conference on Saturday, sparing the Republicans the diversion of a four-week runoff campaign before they can take aim at Crawford.

Budget crunch stalls mercury research

TALLAHASSEE — A budget crunch has stalled efforts to find the source of mercury contamination in Florida wildlife, members of the state's Mercury Task Force said.

The task force, created by Gov. Jeb Bush and the Legislature, has received $100,000 in funding for a Department of Environmental Regulation study of mercury emissions from incinerators.

Also on hold is $300,000 in the DER's general budget allotted for research into the cause of mercury contamination in fish, and other wildlife, and money to hire a full-time environmental specialist to manage data collected during the expanding mercury search, said Tom Swihart, a DER official and task force member.

The funds are frozen at least until Sept. 23, when the Cabinet convenes to discuss the state's money woes.

Ethics panel tightens up gift rules

TALLAHASSEE — All trips worth more than $100 taken by legislators and other state officials at somebody else's expense should be considered gifts subject to open disclosure, the Florida Commission on Ethics has ruled.

The commission voted 6-3 to change the wording of a staff recommendation so that lawmakers could not avoid disclosing trips if they did some work while away.

Miami lawyer Steve Zack, the commission member who proposed the new language, said the change would close the "junket loophole" in the draft version of the staff opinion. He said, "This shifts the burden to where it should be — on the legislator — to prove the trip is not a gift."

The commission's action Friday comes after recent disclosures about numerous unreported trips legislators have taken with lobbyists, including those taken by Sen. Tim Derantany, R-Indianapolis, and others to France and Mexico with insurance lobbyists.

Knife found in suspect's home

United Press International

GAINESVILLE — A knife hidden in a milk carton has been found at the home of a major suspect in the stabbing deaths of five college students, it was reported Sunday.

The Gainesville Sun, citing unidentified sources familiar with the probe, reported that investigators had been told by Edward Lewis Humphrey where to look for the knife in the Indianapolis, Fla., home owned by his grandmother.

The knife was found Thursday, the newspaper reported. It was confiscated, along with books, videotape and clothing, the Sun said. Tests were scheduled to try to determine if the knife was linked to the killings.

The task force of state, federal and local law agencies investigating the killings in an area near the University of Florida renewed their criticism of leaks to news organizations, including a weekend report that Humphrey admitted to having knowledge of the first two killings.

"I think (Lia) is pretty raunchy journalism," said Lt. Sadie Darnell, spokeswoman for the Gainesville Police Department.

"The media is releasing details with little regard as to whether they are true or not," Darnell said. The task force refused to confirm or deny published reports based on leaked information.

The bodies of the five slain college students — four of them attended the University of Florida — were all found in their Gainesville apartments between Aug. 26 and Aug. 28. All five victims lived within 3 miles of each other and within 2 miles of the university campus.

All five were stabbed to death, and some of their bodies were mutilated.

Humphrey, 18, a part-time University of Florida student who police say is one of eight suspects, reportedly told investigators where to find the knife shortly after his arrest Aug. 30 on unrelated charges of beating his grandmother.

He is still being held at the Brevard County Detention Center on $1 million bond in that assault, but has not been charged in the Gainesville case.

The Florida Times-Union has reported that, during an interview with investigators last week, Humphrey named someone he said killed the first two victims: Christina Powell, 17, and Sonja Larson, 18.

The two University of Florida students were found stabbed to death Aug. 26.

The Times-Union said investigators believe that "John," the person Humphrey named, is one of the multiple personalities he has appeared to exhibit.

Area business: Mall will boost downtown

By NICK PRINZAP
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Leaders of local business organizations say they are optimistic about the impact Seminole Towne Center mall will have on the Sanford area economy after its scheduled opening in early 1993.

Mall developer Melvin Simon and Associates announced last week construction of the mall, to be located at the interchange of Interstate 4 and State Road 46, would begin during the first quarter of next year. The opening of the first phase is to be in March 1993.

Representatives of the county's chambers of commerce said the opening of department stores such as Dillard's and as many as 150 specialty stores at the mall would not devastate Sanford's downtown business district.

Dave Farr, Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce executive director, said, "Some businesses may move out there initially. It has happened in the past when we've had strip centers open up. But other businesses will be moving into Sanford to fill up those spaces from other areas."

Farr said, however, he looks at the proposed Seminole Towne Center as more of an industry than a mere retail center.

"Look at it as additional tax dollars coming into Sanford and how that will help," Farr said. "Also, look at the jobs it will create, not only in retail sales, but in the actual construction of the place. I think it will be a great advantage. And if it disrupts what we might call the physical Sanford, it will be very little. After all, it's not as though it were right here, it is out on the city outskirts."

Dan Hall, president of the downtown merchants association, said, "It's hard to say what will happen, but most of our merchants are people who have been around for years and I don't think they'll be moving out. We've got to look at the bottom line though, and that's in dollars and cents."

Hall added that in some ways, Sanford can be competitive.

"Look at what it will cost for a business to lease space in downtown Sanford compared to the cost of a lease at the mall," Hall said. Looking into the future, he said, "It may give our downtown merchants more reason to dress up their stores and give the area some real class. Maybe that's a shot in the arm we need."

John Segal, Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce vice president and a clothing store owner, said, "I think it will help generate more business. A mall is a regional thing and not a power center."

Segal said he would be pleased to see people from Winterdale and even Daytona Beach if people who haven't been here before. They'll not only go to the mall but they may well start to learn about this area of Central Florida, and that would certainly help everyone."

At a press conference at Sanford city hall last week, Melvin Simon President Jerry Gershman announced Dillard's would be the mall's anchor store. Bell's, J. J. Perry, Sears-Roebuck and Maison Blanche were also named as strong possibilities as mall stores. He estimated 150 smaller specialty stores would locate in the mall.

Approximately one mile south of Seminole Towne Center, the Hahn Company of California is developing Heathrow Town Center mall. While the Heathrow location received Seminole County Planning and Zoning approval Wednesday, Scott MacDonald at the Hahn Company has not revealed any specific stores.

The Heathrow Town Center will be located on the northwest corner of I-4 and County Road 48-A, where a new exit ramp is to be built. It will boast 1.2 million square feet of shopping area and is expected to be completed in the mid-1990s.

Trump's troubles seep into Florida condo properties

United Press International

FORT LAUDERDALE — Donald Trump's financial woes are beginning to trickle south, with lenders on his West Palm Beach condo project and his oceanfront mansion demanding stronger guarantees that they will be paid.

According to a Sunday report in the Fort Lauderdale News and Sun-Sentinel, the New York developer may be forced to auction off the unsold units at his floundering Trump Plaza of the Palm Beaches condominium project in West Palm Beach.

Real estate analysts said Trump sold fewer than 10 apartments at the 231-unit project in 1989 and has sold none this year. About 120 units remain unsold.

Also in late August, the American Express affiliate that loaned Trump $12 million to buy the 118-room Mar-A-Lago mansion placed his ownership of the 17-acre estate in jeopardy if he does not meet loan obligations, the newspaper said.

Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Co. agreed to extend its mortgage on the Palm Beach home for three months, to Dec. 30, 1993, as long as Trump continues payments under bank-laued conditions.

The home was once owned by cereal heiress Marjorie Merivether Post, who inherited it from her father, C.W. Post. Trump, who is on a $450,000 a month allowance, paid $10 million for the estate in 1985.

Both Florida properties are part of last month's financial restructuring that provided Trump with $65 million in new financing.

Trump Organization officials and bank representatives would not comment on the Florida loans.

Analysts said that auctioning the condominium units might be Trump's only recourse.

"At the current rate of sales, it would be the year 2016 before (Trump) sells out," said Michael Y. Cannon, president of Appraisal and Real Estate Economics Associates in Miami.

"Trump thought he was so hot that just by associating his name with the property, it would become a success."

Local scientist joins Earthwatch nature research group in Kenya

By Mike Prewant

SANFORD — Jack Russell, 661 Powhatan Drive, Indian Mound Village, east of Sanford, is presently in Naivasha, Kenya, or as world-renowned scientist Dr. David Harper calls it, "paradise." He'll be there most of this month.

The visit, however, isn't necessarily a total paradise for the 74-year-old Russell; it is more of a working vacation. Russell, an entomologist, is retired from his own soil fumigants company in Sanford. He is the only Floridian selected to join a research team headed by Dr. Harper, at Lake Naivasha, Kenya's second largest freshwater lake in the Eastern Rift Valley. Harper is a lecturer in the Department of Zoology at the University of Leicester in England. This is Harper's third expedition with Earthwatch.

Research will deal with the physical and chemical conditions within the lake; the distribution of fish species and the recording of species and number of birds and mammals in the area.

Through a magazine article, Russell became interested in and eventually joined Earthwatch, an organization formed in 1971 to help scholars who needed funding and labor. Earthwatch is presently mobilizing over 3,000 volunteers a year on over 100 research projects.

The research team consists of scientists who have worked together before and who have all taught or worked together with adult volunteers. "We're not a tight-knit group, we're certainly not stuffy intellectuals, but we try to combine enjoyment with serious ecological research work," said Dr. Harper. "We do work hard, but in this kind of environment, working hard is a pleasure."

The expedition started Sept. 6 and will run through Sept. 21. During that time, Russell will work with small groups of three to four other volunteers directly under one of the scientists. The groups will spend four days on each of the three projects, with a day off between each assignment. Activities planned for the days off include air tours of Kenya as well as rest and recreational activities.

Although Russell is well traveled, having visited Israel, Australia and several other areas of the world, he was looking forward to this working adventure with great enthusiasm. "I'm excited about this one," he said before leaving. "This should be a real adventure."

The woman identified Thomas as one of her attackers. He was held on $4,000 bond.

Nature, Exxon restore Prince William Sound

As the former Exxon Valdez slid through San Diego Bay recently for sea trials to test its $30 million repair job, the sky was deep blue in Valdez, on the edge of the Alaska wilderness, and the temperature was a crisp 60 degrees.

Mayor Lynn Chrystal calls Valdez "the most gorgeous place in the world," although he admits he might be biased. But he might be right: The town of 3,500 sits at the foot of a snow-capped mountain range whose lower slopes are covered with pine, spruce and hemlock. Nearby, glaciers reach from the mountains to the shores of Prince William Sound, the site of the nation's worst oil spill when the supertanker Valdez ran aground on March 24, 1989, and dumped 11 million gallons of oil into the sea.

But the comeback of many parts of the shoreline has been remarkable, say those who live there.

"More than half the beaches appear clear of oil," said Mead Treadwell, director of the local cleanup effort in the town of Cordova. "Some of the worst-hit beaches look pretty good right now."

Last winter's cruise season and the 50 million cleanup efforts by Exxon and others have returned many beaches, particularly those where thousands of tourists visit annually, to the same pristine state as before the spill. The cleanup has been a success, say many who live in the area.

Prince William Sound had a record catch of fish this year, many of which are the same species that were once thought to be overfished. "The real question is on the long-term effects," he said. "With the real cleanup, we're not going to see the effects of the oil spill for many years to come."

Sea otters, eagles and other animals haven't returned in their past numbers, but Mayor Chrystal said he saw many otters at play while boating recently in the sound.

Some beaches, particularly quiet, protected coves, "are still a mess," said Treadwell, the man from Cordova. Other beaches may appear clean, but the sand is oil-soaked inches beneath the surface. Local response teams are continuing the cleanup. So is Exxon, whose teams are expected to return next summer. State and federal biologists are still studying the long-term effects of the spill on marine life.

The locals are optimistic. Once dubious that Prince William Sound would ever be the same, they now are convinced it will return to its pristine state, thanks to cleanup efforts and the persistent hand of Mother Nature.

"On a day like today," Treadwell said, "when the sky is blue and you can see for a thousand miles, people are feeling pretty good."

Why conservatives are split on Iraq

Liberals who joyfully proclaimed that the end of the global communist threat spelled the end of conservative unity were mistaken, as I pointed out not long ago. It isn't anti-communism that unites conservatives: It's anti-liberalism. But if the liberals had just waited a little longer, they could have pointed to a genuine rift in conservative ranks. It is much too early to proclaim that it's fatal, but at least it's real.

I am referring to the two conservative views about America's military presence in the Middle East. On one side, approving all that President Bush has done thus far and arguing, at least by implication, that he may have to do even more, are such formidable conservatives as Bill Safire, Jeffrey Hart, National Review editor John O'Sullivan and Henry Kissinger. (Well, OK, but Kissinger is a major influence on Republican foreign policy.) On the other side, willing to "hope" that the U.N.-sanctioned blockade of Iraq will work, but profoundly dubious about losing American lives for whatever interests we may have in the Middle East if it doesn't, are such redoubtable Knights of the Right as Pat Buchanan, Joe Schuman, Tom Bethell and the veteran team of Evans and Novak.

The charge of "isolationism" has been hurled at the latter group, but I feel as uneasy about this as I do about the glib efforts to depict Saddam Hussein as a "madman" or "another Hitler."

Both are misguided attempts to turn the Persian Gulf crisis into a carbon copy of World War II, the last war of which most Americans are firmly approved.

There are sound reasons for President Bush's determination that Iraq must not dominate Middle Eastern oil production, but Saddam Hussein's alleged "madness" isn't one of them. As I pointed out in a recent column, oil is absolutely central to today's world economy, and Europe and Japan (though not the United States) are utterly dependent on the Middle Eastern fields for their supply. It is rather as if certain nations of the Middle East just happened to possess most of the world's supply of oxygen. If they did, they could certainly congratulate themselves on being in a position to make a handsome profit selling oxygen to the rest of us. But we, in turn, would be understandably sensitive to the danger of that precious commodity falling into the hands of some political adventurer with a messianic agenda of his own.

It is as if nations of the Middle East happened to possess most of the world's supply of oxygen.

It may be true that control of Middle Eastern oil wouldn't be of much use to Saddam Hussein unless he was prepared to sell it. He might even be willing to sell it at a reasonable price. But he is known to share the fanatical determination of many — perhaps most — Arabs to force Israel to consent to a Palestinian homeland on the territories Israel captured in the 1967 war. What if word went out from Baghdad that there would be no oil for the rest of the world until that little detail was attended to? That concern, you may be sure, is high on Mr. Bush's list of reasons for wanting to stop Saddam Hussein before he gets into a position to serve such an ultimatum.

Another is the one being urged by Henry Kissinger: That, having "crossed the Rubicon" by dispatching large forces in Saudi Arabia, Mr. Bush cannot leave Kuwait in Iraqi control without suffering a huge moral defeat. That is why many analysts believe military action will be essential if the blockade doesn't force Saddam Hussein to disgorge Kuwait.

Shifting gears for school days

BOSTON — The air has changed on schedule as if by order of the school board. The light this week is as sharp as an Eberhard No. 2, the September air as crisp as a fresh start.

The kids in the neighborhood are heading back to school, outfitted in new T-shirts and shoes that fit as well, for the moment, as their expectations. Within a week, the annual migration of 51 million schoolchildren will find them at their autumn site, behind a desk, before a teacher.

And with this ring of a school bell, the rhythms of family life will change as well. For three-quarters of those families with parents who both work there are job and school schedules to juggle. There are family gears to shift out of seasonal speed and back into one long rush hour. The traffic instructions from parents to children those days are simple: hurry.

But many weeks ago, when school seemed as far away as a world of someone in my garden, I wrote about the need to put work and school in sync, to extend the school day and year so that they make sense in the modern world. There is a mismatch now between parent and child, between school and work. Our young are often left in what we euphemistically call "self-care."

The mail was as diverse as any I remember. But among the dissonances, there was one familiar undertone of yearning. They made a case for more family time, not more school time.

"I suggest that we begin by updating the working world's calendar about the personal lives of their workers and families," wrote an Oregon woman. "Let's give parents more time — not impinge our children in a year-long rat race — write a father from Nebraska. "We need more time with our children, not more time apart," added a mother from New Jersey.

I was not entirely surprised by the sentiment expressed by this ring of the time-crunch generation. The matter of family life today is a complaint about time, a longing for some feasible way to make a living and a life.

It also seems that we have subdivided and subcontracted life. We go to two employers for our money, one or two schools for our education, a Burger King or Pizza Hut for dinner. As Ralph Rader said without too much exaggeration in the recent Utah Reader, "At this time in American history, corporations are more important in raising children than parents.... Who's raising the kids? Kindercare is raising them. McDonald's is feeding them. NBC and Disneyland are entertaining them."

Unlike our farming ancestors, or even the grandparents who ran small shops, today's husbands, wives and children spend most days under separate roofs. Even dinner hour sometimes seems to have disintegrated into individual servings, and weekends have been usurped by errands.

So, it is no wonder that some regard schools as another institution of our split lives, a replacement for family. We are often ambivalent asking the schools to take over any more — to serve breakfast as well as lunch, to teach ethics as well as English. To add hours and days to their schedule and subtract them from our own.

For every correspondent who thought that a longer school day provided a balance beam across the great divide of family and work, there was another who thought it led in the wrong direction. For everyone who thought a longer year would help, there was another who thought it would cloud the real needs of children.

This is part of a much deeper debate about the direction of change, about work and families, institutions and human values. This debate underscores much of what passes for "policy" discussions. But in this early September light, I remain focused on the immediate. The need to alter the school calendar and clock still seems clearest.

There is no evidence, after all, that today's limited school schedule has made the work world adjust to family needs. Nor is there any reason to believe that a changed schedule would slow progress toward that goal. What we have right now in most places, is parents who work and kids who wander.

A voluntary after-school program — as many communities can attest — wouldn't take children away from families, but from the streets. An extended day wouldn't remove children from parents but from the television set. At their best, such programs enrich a child's life. At a minimum, they offer security.

This week, every week, when class is out, millions of working parents face their daily quiz: "It's four o'clock. Do you know where your children are?" Schools can fill in the blank.

Our young are often left in what we euphemistically call 'self-care.'

Editorial short on facts

The editorial "Remember Angola" is short of a few facts, such as — 50 thousand Cuban troops protecting the Chevron oil fields in Angola and that the people starving in Angola are a result of the present government's policy.

Don't forget that Chevron is one of the Rockefeller oil companies.

It is not surprising that Kennedy (Chappy) (sic), Simon, Delano support the effort to give Angola a Marxist government.

Pet ordinance unfair

The city of Sanford would be better off today if it had spent the last two years, and several thousands of dollars, removing known criminals from its public housing units rather than healthy dogs and cats from a kind-hearted couple.

The prosecution of Randall and JoAnn Gates is bureaucracy at its worst, petty people blindly enforcing petty rules. With moralities like that, who will officials go after next, grandmothers with two parakeets too many?

Student pleads for patriotism

What is this world coming to? Some people want to recycle and they do. Others don't even bother. Now they're letting people burn the flag. We live in a democratic society and we strive to do what is best for the majority of the people. Recycling is a part of our future and will affect many people. Honoring the flag promotes patriotism which helps to support the laws and ideas of America.

I just can't believe that this is America. America is supposed to be — "The Land of the Free" and "The Home of the Brave."

Americans used to be so patriotic and now they don't even care. So, I just want to tell Americans everywhere to think about freedom, liberty, and justice and then to think about how their lives are part of America.

District could cut costs

So the School Board of Seminole County is worried about gas prices for school buses and staying within their budget?

Why then are they making the bus drivers drive many extra miles a day with an empty bus just to park the bus in a certain place?

The State does not pay anything for mileage of an empty bus. And the drivers have to be paid for every hour they are driving an empty bus. I know one driver that has lost pay-up of children in three days from her home, but she has to drive a round trip of 20 miles to get her bus. Then again another round trip of 20 miles to return her bus to the parking area, in the afternoon.

If the drivers parked the buses at their homes (as they did for many years) it would save hundreds of dollars in gas money, wear and tear on the bus, be safer cause they wouldn't be on the road as much and be less chance of vandalism to the buses.

ing vote — are a kind of revolution, one that could not have happened 30 years ago, or possibly even two years ago when the Moscow-Washington relationship was still edgy and unsettled.

Now that the revolution has happened, what are the possibilities — and the dangers?

First, universal peace has not broken out and the United Nations has not become the world's new policeman. Solidarity is only possible when most nations of the world see themselves as threatened.

This is something that is possible when one nation, Iraq, with a single stroke of force, threatens to control 40 percent of the world's oil supply. It is not possible when, as a theoretical example, Nigeria threatens to invade Sierra Leone.

Next, just because the two superpowers happen to agree on a particularly blatant show of naked Iraqi aggression in Kuwait does not mean they will also agree on a more subtle kind of event, such as — again as a theoretical example — an Israeli-Syrian clash in Lebanon.

So far, members of Congress have been almost universally full of praise for the Bush administration for its actions in the crisis, particularly the way the United Nations was brought into the action.

But what happens when the U.N. Security Council acts against U.S. interests in a replay of the condemnation of U.S. actions in Nicaragua, or Panama? The enthusiasm for international peace-keeping on Capitol Hill and the rest of the country may soon vanish.

Also, what happens if Gorbachev disappears, a victim of his own experiment in perestroika? If he were to be replaced by somebody more assertive — Boris Yeltsin comes to mind — will the enthusiasm about cooperating with Moscow remain so strong in the Congress?

What was evident in Helsinki Sunday was a sense of partnership between Bush and Gorbachev as a result of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

After graduating from Rollins College with a bachelor's degree in history, Smith spent two years as a geography teacher and athletic coach at South Seminole Junior High School (now called South Seminole Middle School), 101 S. Winter Park Drive, Casselberry.

He then returned to his high school alma mater where he spent 11 years as an American history teacher and was the coach of the junior varsity baseball team. He was also chairman of the history department at Lyman during his tenure there.

In 1981 he transferred to the newly-opened Lake Mary High School, 655 Longwood-Lake Mary Road, Lake Mary, where he taught civics and coached basketball and baseball. In his second year there, he was named dean of students.

"It was a very time-consuming task so I had to give up coaching," he said. "I couldn't give all the kids the time they needed so I had to give up the team."

Smith said he enjoys working with the students as an administrator and that he intends as principal to remain involved with the students as much as possible.

For five years, Smith has been an assistant principal at Lake Mary. He said that Reynolds has been a good principal to work for.

"Mr. Reynolds is a fine man to work for," he said. "I sincerely hope I can do as well."

Smith said he will spend the time before taking over the top spot at Lake Mary High School getting to know the faculty and staff better.

Reynolds will remain on hand during the transition period over the next month and a half.

"He's the best teacher I could have," Smith said.

April will also carry the theme of the anniversary celebration.

"We're working on getting 20 alumni to do various things for us along those lines," Baker said. "Again, the details are still very sketchy."

As the school year winds down, the school plans to bring the anniversary theme into many events including the annual golf tournament and the community chorus' spring concert.

According to Baker, Burt Perinich, director of the community chorus, has invited all alumni of the chorus to return to SCC to participate in the spring concert.

"We're trying to tie the anniversary theme in wherever we can," Baker said.

He added that alumni athletic contests are being planned by both the baseball and the basketball teams.

"I think we can look forward to a lot of fun this year," Baker said.

for speaking their minds. "We got to talk the way we feel about things and about people," Roshida Walker, 14, said. "We can't do that in other classes."

The students in each class set their own rules on the first day of class and must abide by them throughout the nine-week session. The rules are varied, but follow general themes. They cannot gossip. They cannot insult one another. They must be respectful. They must listen when someone else is speaking.

"We're learning to get along with other people," said Natalie Raines, 13. "We've got to respect each other."

The students in the class are not afraid to say anything. Asked on a work sheet to list things at which they excelled, one student said she was good at sex.

"You couldn't say that in another class," she said.

The students admire Cook, who said she has tears of her own and thinks she knows how they think.

"She's not like a regular teacher," Pitzer, 15, said.

Indeed, Cook sees herself more as a facilitator whose goal is to get the youngsters to discover themselves by thinking, talking and interacting with one another.

Misty Spade, 14, said she enjoys the true freedom of expression she feels in the class.

"We can talk about our feelings," she said. "In other classes they always make us keep our mouths shut."

Cook said that one of the biggest challenges of the class is getting the students to have the confidence they need to appreciate their own talents and to support one another as well.

"It's tough," she said. "Adults are always quick to point out their shortcomings, but they are rarely praised. And at this age, that is what they need."

Pay

Sauls, for example, took a 30 percent pay cut when he took the House job, according to Gustafson. He added that House rules limit salaries for new hires to 10 percent above the minimum assigned the position. But after that, there are no restrictions on the size or scale of pay raises.

"What is silly about it is the rule prohibiting me from paying him what he previously made?" Gustafson said. "Why did I have to pay him $30,000 less than what he previously made?"

Sauls, who described his duties as being a "strategy adviser" to the House speaker, is not the highest paid member of Gustafson's staff, but his pay rose the fastest, the Democrat reported. His $45,386 starting salary was the legal maximum when he was hired Jan. 3, 1989. He then got pay raises on Jan. 16, Feb. 1, Sept. 1 and Oct. 1, 1989, and on March 1 and July 1, 1990.

The only other person on Gustafson's staff to get more than a 30 percent pay increase was Dorothy Ann Abbott, who received a 10 percent increase last month after working from the Criminal Justice Committee to chief of staff in the speaker's office. She has received three pay raises since then, bringing her to $63,750.

Back on the Senate side, Crawford legal aide Thomas McInnis has gone from $57,356 to $53,618 over Crawford's two-year term as president. Press Secretary Michelle McLawhorn has drawn 43 percent in salary increases, to earn $55,692. Richard Tritschler, Wainwright's assistant staff director in Raibe, has seen a 42 percent increase, to $48,088.

Crawford also cited rules restricting salaries for new hires.

"You're seeing how payroll deals with getting them to the agreed-upon salary in stages," Crawford said. "We had to go through some gyrations to get them there."

Senate Appropriations Chairwoman Gwen Margolis had wanted to give Senate staffers pay raises of 8 percent effective with the new fiscal year July 1, but Crawford would not allow it, saying that could damage the morale of state agency employees eligible only for 3 percent increases effective Jan. 1.

However, Crawford did permit Senate staff to begin drawing their 3 percent increases on July 1. His House staffers did, instead of waiting six months like other state workers.

"She makes you say things you never knew you would," he said. "And we have fun with each other in here."

Head teacher McVicker, 12, said the class has helped her in her other classes, as well.

"It helps me understand more about other people, even teachers," she said.

Kevin Stripling, 14, who describes himself as a shy person, said the class has helped him begin to open up and express his feelings.

"I don't like talking in front of other people, but we have to do that in here," he said. "And I really look forward to coming here to talk."

Cook said there are 27 teachers in Seminole County who were trained in the Quest curriculum at the expense of the Lions Club of Sanford-Lake Mary over the summer, but she is the only teacher who teaches the program exclusively. It costs $375 per teacher for the training.

At Lakeview, Corrine Wilson, a reading specialist, Terrence Oliver, the school's drop out prevention specialist and Ann Fetche, a teacher of disinterested students, have incorporated the Quest curriculum into their classes.

The program has also been incorporated into the curriculum at Sanford Middle School, 1700

Frank Paison had called for a 1 mill property tax increase, which would have increased the city coffers by $618,000. It would have meant that owners of homes valued at $100,000 would have seen their taxes raised from $615 to $660, and those with $75,000 homes would see an increase of $345 to $383 per year.

During the first of the budget workshop sessions, Mayor Betty Smith said she did not believe the city should raise taxes. Following considerable discussion on the matter, the commission by a 4-1 vote, agreed to eliminate the tax increase in favor of trimming the city's payroll. The commission subsequently agreed to lay off 15 employees in order to balance the budget. This, plus some additional belt-tightening allowed the city to drop the proposed tax increase.

Oklahoma killer executed

McALESTER, Okla. — Charles Troy Coleman, a convicted double murderer, was put to death early Monday by injection, becoming the first person executed in Oklahoma in 24 years.

Coleman, 43, the son of a sharecropper, was given the injection at 12:55 a.m. and pronounced dead at 1:35 a.m.

"Just tell everyone I love them and I have peace and quiet heart," Coleman said in his last statement. He requested that several bible verses be read before the injection began.

At 12:55 a.m. he turned to one of his attorneys, Mandy Welch, and said, "I love you," before closing his eyes and taking two or three deep breaths.

Coleman was the first person in Oklahoma to be executed by lethal injection and the 137th person in the United States to be put to death since the Supreme Court restored the death penalty in 1978. The state's last execution, in 1965, was by electric chair.

The Supreme Court refused twice Sunday to consider appeal filed by Coleman's lawyer. Among the eight justices now on the court, only death penalty opponent Thurgood Marshall dissented both times. Justice Harry Blackmun was listed as not participating in either decision.

Budget talks approach deadline

WASHINGTON — Little progress was reported in meetings between congressional budget negotiators as the deadline for reaching a $500 billion deficit-reduction agreement approached.

The White House and congressional budget negotiators, who have been meeting since Friday in the Officers' Club at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., about 15 miles east of Washington, have given themselves an unofficial deadline of today to reach an agreement.

President Bush has originally invited House Democratic leader Richard Gephardt of Missouri, who is talking part in the talks, to the White House for a meeting this morning, but it was canceled late Sunday, a Gephardt spokeswoman said. No reason for the cancellation was given.

Revamped Ellis Island opens

NEW YORK — Ellis Island, where millions of immigrants first stepped onto American shores, reopened to the public today as a museum honoring the vision and fortitude of those who left their native lands to launch new lives.

A nightmare for some, the gateway for new dreams for many, the facility operated from 1892 to 1954 and was the starting point for the families of an estimated 140 million Americans.

Miss Illinois named Miss America

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Miss Illinois Marjorie Judith Vincent, a law student who wants to help with the economic development of Haiti, was named Miss America 1991 Saturday night, becoming the fourth black woman to hold the coveted title of America's unofficial sweetheart.

Vincent, 25, of Oak Park, Ill., appeared stunned as her name was called at the conclusion of the two-hour nationally televised pageant finals. Tears swelled in her eyes as she was fitted with the rhinestone-studded tiara by her predecessor, Miss America 1990 Debby Turner of Columbia, Mo.

Deauville's American Film Festival a fine excuse to prolong summer

By JOHN E. SMORE United Press International

DEAUVILLE, France — It lacks the glitz of Cannes and Venice, but that may explain why the American Film Festival of Deauville, now in its 18th year, draws ever-growing numbers of movie fans.

The festival that ended Sunday at the chic Normandy resort offers no Golden Palm, Golden Lion, or any other prize. There are no international intrigues because all the films are American, no major surprises or scrambling for distribution rights because all the films are produced, at least ostensibly, in France or elsewhere in Europe.

The 10-day festival really is a showcase and an excuse to enjoy the waning days of summer before autumn sets in. It is held early in September to prolong the tourist season.

It means having a few last rounds at the Hotel du Golf, a few laps in the saltwater pool at the thalassotherapy institute, two-hour seaside lunches at Ciro's and late suppers at Chez Mique.

It also means a severe case of cinematic bulimia for those who dutifully drag themselves off the beach and into darkened auditoriums. This year the festival presented 37 feature films, ranging from Alan Pakula's "Presumed Innocent," a stunning adaptation of the best-seller by Scott Turow, to John Boorman's "Where the Heart Is" — a feverish, child fantasy, fuzziy conceived and badly directed.

A surprising number of films deal with family life, or tactile psychic or metaphysical or extraterrestrial themes in a muddle-headed way.

Routs highlight openers

By BILL KENNEDY
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — The Sanford Church Softball League season began Saturday at Pinchurst Park with seven games. Play featured five blowouts, an upset and a blowout-turned-nail-biter.

"A" League play, which is for teams looking for an intense brand of competition, was highlighted by the upset as First Baptist of Geneva defeated powerful Central Baptist 14-8.

First Baptist then turned around and lost to St. Stephen's Catholic 16-2. Maranatha beat Calvary 21-2, and Church of God of Prophecy drubbed First United Methodist 15-3.

"A" League play resumes in two weeks on Sept. 22nd with four games: Church of God of Prophecy takes on Central Baptist, First United Methodist plays First Baptist of Geneva, St. Stephen Catholic will battle Calvary Christian, then turn around to face Maranatha.

"B" League play was highlighted by First Nazarene's 15-14 win over Grace Christian. Neighborhood Alliance clubbed Sanford Christian 19-9, and Holy Cross Lutheran routed Church of God 22-2.

Play also resumes on the 22nd with Church of God facing First Nazarene. Grace Christian takes on Sanford Christian, and Neighborhood Alliance plays Holy Cross Lutheran.

Jeff Joyce led the First Baptist attack with three hits (triple, two singles) in their win. Frank Joyce (double, single), Jack Rich (two singles), Lonnie Pender (two singles), Marion Thorne (single, triple) and Mark Anderson (double, single) added two hits apiece.

Central Baptist relied on the heart of their order. Dave Moss (triple, single), Roy Templeton (two singles), Bobby Vonherbulis (three singles), and Eddie Coggon (two singles) contributed in a losing effort.

But First Baptist had no time to bask in the glow of their victory as St. Stephen's Catholic woke them up with a 16-2 hammering.

William Harrison (home run, two singles), Steve Woodley (double, two singles), Don Causeaux Sr. (double, two singles), Don Causeaux Jr. (two singles), Jeff Bladck (two singles), Jim Nulty (two singles) and Chris Causeaux (two singles) provided the 20-hit wake-up call for St. Stephen's.

Joyce (double, single) and Rich (two doubles) were the lone bright spots for First Baptist.

In other "A" League action, Maranatha devoured Calvary Christian 21-2. Sam Raines (three singles), Levi Raines (two triples, single), Allen Peterson (three singles), Mike Edgcombe (home run, double), Mike Bacon (double, single), Greg Hardy (double, single), Alvin Campbell (two singles) and Ron Wice (two singles) keyed Maranatha's 21-hit demonstration. Pitcher Evan Bacon held Calvary to just three hits.

Church of God of Prophecy also clobbered First United Methodist 15-3. John Oates carried Prophecy's 10-hit attack with a double and two singles.

First Nazarene led Grace Christian 9-2, blew that lead, then came back with a three-run seventh to win 15-14.

Doug Vickers (two singles), Ron Cardell (two singles), Dan Gort (double, two singles), Jim Gilmore (two singles) Shane Gager (double, two singles), Wayne Gager (two singles), Phillip Sutherland (two singles), and Brian Mann (two singles) paced Nazarene's 21-hit attack.

TITUSVILLE — As training runs go, it was extremely successful.

On Saturday, the Lyman High School girls cross country team went to Titusville to work out in the Astronaut Invitational. In the process, the Greyhounds surprised almost everyone by winning the team trophy, beating a 19-school field that included several state-ranked teams.

"We were just going over to get a race under our belts," said Lyman coach Fred Finke. "It was a pleasant surprise. I didn't know we had won until I saw it posted on the board."

"We really went to run as a team. Nobody was turned loose. We went together. We stayed together through the first mile, then just tried to run after the first mile. I'm just pleased that the girls ran well and finished the race strong."

Leading Lyman was Janet Greenberg, who finished sixth in 14:18.7. Millie Davis came in 10th with a time of 14:43.9 while Annemarie Loftin was 11th at 14:44.3. Kianah Brennan (17th, 15:09.3) and Linda Davis (30th, 15:32.5) completed Lyman's score.

"Now we have an idea of where we are physically and we can go back into training with an idea of what we need to do to get better," said Finke.

If at first the times don't look exceptionally fast, there's a good reason for that. There was some confusion during the course of the race and the girls ended up running an extra 330 yards beyond the two miles they were supposed to cover. It's estimated the extra distance added 70 to 80 seconds to the time.

Finishing sixth in the girls' team standings were the Lake Howell Silver Hawks with 143 points. Miki Palumbo was the highest finisher from Seminole County, placing fourth in 14:07.6. Teammate Natalie Newberry was ninth in 14:43.4.

"Our goal was to get into the top 10," said Lake Howell coach Tom Hammon. "I thought the kids did well. It's one of those situations where it will take time for them to get it."

"They will make mistakes. All

you can do to live with it and be patient until they get a little experience. We have to run because the more we run, the better we'll be able to do things at the end of the season."

Completing Lake Howell's team score were sophomore Jenny McHone (38th, 16:16), senior Tina Reed (44th, 16:33) and freshman Christine McEvoy (50th, 16:44). Also running for the Silver Hawks were senior Corri Crosby (54th, 17:03) and freshman Charlotte Froehlich (57th, 17:13).

"Basically, you're dealing with a team with girls who, except for Miki and Natalie, have never ran varsity before," said Hammon. "They did a real good job. It's a brand new team that never ran together before and in three weeks, they finished sixth."

"I'd have to say they ran a very good race. You have to be pleased with the performance of the team, especially with Natalie and Miki, who are doing the double duty of going out and running the race they're capable of running and providing leadership for the new girls."

Lake Mary coach Mike Gibson was similarly pleased with his team's performance.

"We were ninth overall and we were the fourth Class 4A school there (behind Lyman, Miami Beach and Lake Howell)," said Gibson. "It was a pretty good field. There were 17 schools there. Ninth is right in the middle. It was a quality race."

The Rams were led by Christina Olson, who placed eight with a time of 14:33.6. Freshman Nicole Burlington came in 42nd at 16:28.5 ahead of junior Amy Tharpe (48th, 16:33.3), Amanda Tharpe (53rd, 16:58.5) and Barbara Hawkins (54th, 17:02.2). Elizabeth Johnson, See Cross Country, Page 2B

Tampa Bay cages Lions

United Press International

PONTIAC, Mich. — Tampa Bay's defense turned the Detroit Lions' run-and-shoot offense into the run-and-hold offense.

Vinny Testaverde threw three touchdown passes in the first half and Tampa Bay's defense came up with a key end zone fumble recovery in the third quarter Sunday to spark the Buccaneers to a 36-21 season-opening victory over the Lions.

"We got beat by a much superior football team," Detroit coach Wayne Fontes said after the Lions' nine-game winning streak (including four exhibition games) came to an end.

"There are no 'ifs, ands or buts.' 'All week I was reading where their owner was saying they were going to go 12-0. Well, they were all phasers of the game. We have no alphas, no omegas — they are a better football team.'"

Miami rallies past Patriots

United Press International

FOXBORO, Mass. — Dan Marino capped the Miami Dolphins' Opening Day comeback with an appropriate close.

Marino, who has spent some of his most frustrating afternoons in the NFL in Foxboro Stadium, looked as if he were in for yet another one until the closing minutes.

Miami dominated play against the Patriots Sunday, rolling over 400 total yards before they finally converted when it counted, pulling out a 27-24 triumph over New England.

"We moved up-and-down the field, but we just couldn't score," said Marino, who threw a 7-yard scoring pass to Tony Paige with 1:46 left in the fourth quarter that gave the Dolphins the victory.

"I made some really bad decisions in the early going, but we won and that's what counts," said Marino, now 3-5 in Foxboro.

New England had built a 21-6 first-half edge via a couple of Marino See Dolphins, Page 2B

Church softball league features intense rivalries

Now we're cooking.

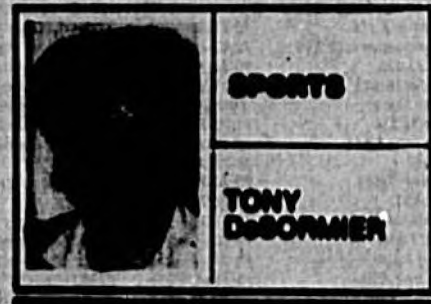

With summer now behind us (although you couldn't tell from the thermometer), it's time to immerse ourselves body and soul in... softball. Specifically, church softball.

On Saturday morning, the Sanford Church Fall Softball League opened with seven games at Pinchurst Park. The start also marked the renewal (and focusing) of some keen rivalries.

To begin with, the league is divided into two leagues, an "A" and a "B."

In the "A" League are St. Stephen's Catholic of Winter Springs (the spring league tournament champion), Maranatha Pentecostal (the spring league regular season champion), Central Baptist, First Baptist of Geneva, Church of God of Prophecy, Calvary Christian and First United Methodist.

Until they sat out this past spring season, First United Methodist had won two consecutive spring league championships. In the process, the Methodists developed a friendly yet intense rivalry with Maranatha (which has several players from city-league power Tim Raines Connection).

SPORTS

Then, in the fall of 1989, St. Stephen's and Central Baptist turned the two-team rivalry into a four-way battle. During the playoffs of that fall league, Central defeated the Methodists in extra innings, then bowed to St. Stephen's in the final.

First Baptist of Geneva, a "B" League team during the spring, made a successful entry into the "A" League this past Saturday with a win over Central Baptist. Church of God of Prophecy, a one-time Central Florida power, opened its season by whipping First United Methodist.

With 11 weeks of a 12-week schedule still remaining to be played, these rivalries will have more fuel added to them.

The thing is that the "church" orientation of the league helps keep the rivalries from getting out of hand. It hasn't always been so, but for now, the players are keeping in mind the moral implications of participating in a church league.

The result is a kind of chivalric attitude. Before each game, the teams gather for a prayer at home plate. Then they go after each other for an hour or so with an almost religious zeal.

If you were given to overly dramatic comparisons, you could equate church softball competition with that between knights of an earlier age — arms are joined before

God in honest, earnest combat with no advantage taken (or given) and no excuses made.

As strange as it sounds, it is possible to reconcile the almost furious intensity of heated competition with the moral responsibilities of Judeo-Christian religions. Some days it's a little tougher than others, but it is possible.

What allows the two to mesh is the basic ground rule that whatever happens on the field, stays on the field. Fellowship, even between diametrically different religious denominations, is the primary goal. Like I said, it's tough some Saturdays, but that's the goal.

Interestingly, the heated competition actually helps in reaching that goal. Pounding on each other while engaging in fair play helps develop a mutual respect between the contestants. It's hard not to respect someone who gives you everything they have and takes everything you give.

That's why the Saturday morning "A" League has such tight rivalries.

Avoid overdose of zinc supplement

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am taking zinc supplements because of shingles. What is the safe dose to take, and what are the risks of taking too much?

Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title. (C)1990 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

DEAR READER: Zinc, a versatile mineral vital to normal metabolism, is plentiful in meat, eggs, liver and seafood. The Recommended Daily Allowance is 15 milligrams. Zinc plays a role in tissue growth, sexual maturation, wound healing and the healthy maintenance of many of the body's organs.

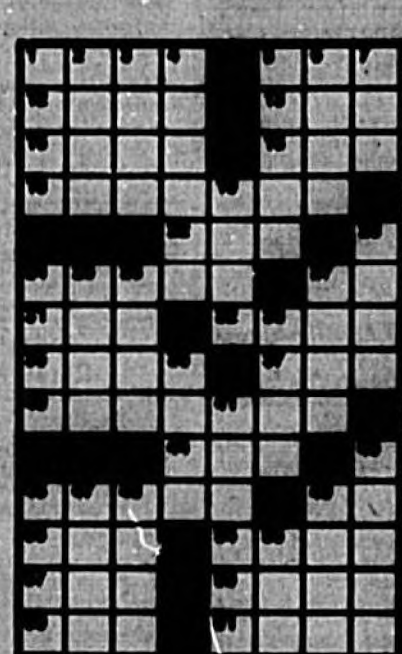

Zinc deficiency, which is caused by a diet poor in meat and dairy products, can lead to stunted growth in children, infertility, immune deficiency, a decrease in the sense of taste and smell, night blindness and hypertension during pregnancy.

An excess of zinc (above 100 milligrams a day) can lead to stomach irritation and bleeding, anemia and (perhaps) arteriosclerosis. Massive doses of the mineral (more than 1,000 milligrams a day) can result in acute toxicity: vomiting, stomach cramps, diarrhea, fever and shock. Zinc poisoning has been reported from drinking water from galvanized (zinc-coated) pipes.

Zinc is not appropriate treatment for shingles. This virus infection of the skin's nerves is better treated with acyclovir (Zovirax, an anti-viral drug).

If you wish to use a zinc supplement, I suggest you not exceed the RDA. To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Facts - Vitamins and Minerals." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their names and addresses to P.O. Box 91369,

By James Jacoby
Today's deal is a test for your imagination. Suppose you are East, defending against four spades. Cover the West and South hands, and prepare your defense as partner leads the 10 of hearts. Declarer starts with dummy's heart ace and plays a spade back to his king. Partner plays low. Declarer continues with the jack of spades, and now your partner wins the ace. What did you discard? If you took the view that you hold value in both minors and really do not care what partner leads, you might have let go what seemed to be a worthless heart. Disaster! The deal occurred 30 years ago, when Omar Sharif and the famous Italian Blue Team were touring North America playing exhibition matches. World champion Belladonna had led the 10 of hearts, and Omar was his hapless partner who failed to take into account that the lead of

The 10 might be a deceptive stroke of brilliance and that West might also hold the king. Of course it's easy to look at all four hands and see that East should signal on the second trump with the 10 of clubs. West will cash the heart king and underlead the club ace to get the setting trick with a heart ruff. The lesson of the deal, of course, is that one should always stay alert on defense. Be ready to congratulate partner when he deceives the opponents, but don't let him deceive you. And how are we privy to this anecdote? Naturally Omar tells this story on himself, with some emphasis on Giorgio Belladonna's mood when Omar threw away the card that Giorgio had hoped to ruff.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharon Books.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
Sept. 11, 1990

In the year ahead it looks like you may become involved in an unusual, creative endeavor either as a hobby or a vocation. In either instance you will profit.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 23)
Take a little more time selecting your attire today to be sure you dress to convey the type of impression you want to make. There's a chance you might encounter someone special. Know when to look for romance and you'll find it. For your personal horoscope, love, career, lucky numbers and future forecast, call Astro-Tone by dialing 1-800-454-3636 and entering this newspaper's code number 000; 95 cents per minute.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
The characteristic friends will find most appealing and attractive in you today will be your sincerity, compassion and warmth. These attributes will put you a cut or two above others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23)
Your primary concerns today will be for qualifying the requirements for those you love rather than your own. Your true joy will be derived from being the giver rather than the getter.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
An unusual type of occurrence today might contribute to an advantage for you careerwise. It could also add a little weight to your wallet.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Hunches or insights you get today that have specific practical applications should not be treated lightly. Instead of dismissing them as good ideas, put them to the test.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
Be an attentive listener today because someone with whom you're involved businesswise might try to pass on some helpful information to you in a coded form.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
Something fortunate could develop for you today through your involvements with a person whose ideal closely parallels yours. What transpires will be made possible through mutual trust.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Your ambitious aims can be achieved today if you put your imagination to productive uses. Don't put limitations on your thoughts and dare to be different.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
In social situations today you can call favorable attention to yourself through understatement rather than overstatement. A whisper will command attention, a shout won't.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Try to synchronize your intuition to your logic in your commercial affairs today, because your reasoning powers and your perceptions could both be very accurate.

CANCER (June 21-July 23)
The secret to dealing successfully with others today is to treat everyone as an equal whether your boss or the kid who parks your car.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)
Today if you are doing comparison shopping, quality should be given precedence over price when comparing reasonably similar items. Take time to study intrinsic value.

The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $3 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91489, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. (C)1990, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
