U. S. Troops On Leyte Take Port Of Ormoc

6 More Jap Admirals
And One General
Reported By Tokyo
Killed In Action

ORMOC, with its major port, fell today four days after the 77th Division made daring landings three miles away, while Tokyo claimed it sank two transports, a cruiser or destroyer, and two barges in an air attack south-east of Leyte.

A series of superfortress raids on Tokyo was reported by the Japanese who said fires were started by incendiary bombs but were put out immediately.

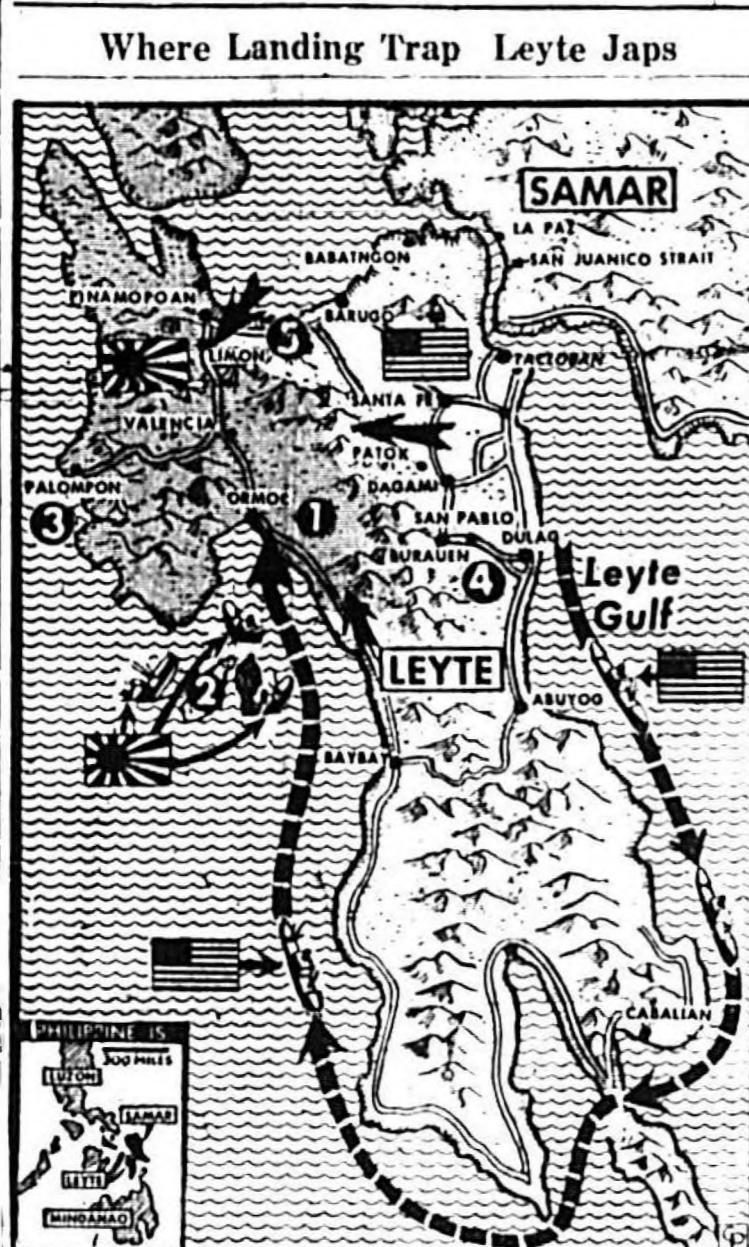

In China, the resurgent Chinese were pounding on the heels of the Japs retreating from Kwei-chow province. Only one of the two main forces which crossed into Weichow province still remains, Chinkiang announced. The Japanese were chased out of Kwei-chow into Kwangsi.

Seven more Japanese admirals Vice-admiral Chuichi Nagumo supreme Commander of the Japanese Naval forces was killed in action on Sanan Island May 7 at 74. Eighteen generals have died since May 24.

Capture of Ormoc drove a solid wedge between the Japanese still holding out on the west coast of Leyte to the south and those in the Ormoc corridor stretching to miles along the coast and approximately miles inland.

The U. S. Seventh division had reached the coast and while pushed to within a mile of junction with the right wing of the 77th in a pincher assault on thousands of trapped Japanese 26th division troops. The enemy was pocketed in an area stretching a mile along the coast and approximately miles inland.

After 10 days of fighting, Gen. MacArthur had led his men ashore on the east coast of Leyte on Oct. 20 and began driving across the island.

AFTER STORMING ashore some distance below Ormoc (1), American troops have thrown a roadblock across the coastal highway cutting off all roads to the north for about 25,000 Jap troops and are reported to be closing in around the last remaining Jap troops who were unloading a Jap convoy (2) sighted and in enemy ships were blasted to the bottom. U. S. gunners, after heavy shelling the Japs at Ormoc, also brought their secondary port of Palompon (3) under fire. In an attempt at diversion, about 200 enemy paratroopers were dropped in the San Pablo area (4) but the bulk of these forces were quickly wiped out. To the north (5), 12th Division troops continued to drive forward down the Ormoc corridor from captured Elmion. (International)

British Bombers Attack Last Concentrations Of Leftists Around Athens

ATHENS, Dec. 11, (AP)—Acute food shortages and imminent famine threatened the Greek capital today. British bombers attacked the last concentrations around the strife-torn town city. About 1,500 leftists were reported killed and 2,500 wounded in the weekend civil struggle.

With the battle of Athens only beginning and large forces massed on both sides neither the ELAS nor British are putting all their weight into the punches leaving a settlement still may be next best.

Dimitri Lambakis, publisher of an independent liberal newspaper he has been working to mediate the crisis, said tonight he had found the Communists and EAM leaders taking a less emphatic view of their demands.

Lambakis said the leftwingers were insisting that a new national government be formed which all parties, both left and right, participate.

The rightists said they wanted the ELAS which the ELAS would be allowed to end civil strife.

The ELAS armed militia of the leftwing EAM political party, are well dug in in the stadium, in the park and around the Zappeion building and most of Hadrian's arch and most of the Acropolis remain. He said they would have no objection to Premier Constantine Papandreou remaining in the cabinet.

Former Finance Minister Alex

Alexander Sikelianos also said in an interview that the formation of a new government including all parties was necessary to end civil strife.

As the Greek civil war flared into open bloodshed on Sunday in a clash in Constitution square between police and demonstrators, went into its second week strong ELAS forces seized control of Piraeus and most of Athens. So far the Greeks have made no move to come to the relief of their comrades fighting in Athens. Some detachments, however, have broken into Greek villages to help notably police barricades a few miles from the Acropolis and eastern end of the Acropolis. General Hutchison Finds Pacific Isles Good For Farming

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC Dec. 11.—(UPI)—Gen. Joseph C. Hutchison, assistant commanding general of the 31st Infantry Division, has just returned from a tour of the South Sea Islands. He insists there are not enough insects, that the bus and very useful—bee is absent from these shores. "If bees were here pollination would be immensely increased. My guess is that the industries and here must be doing this part of the busy bee's work."

"We're going to settle out here, the first thing our young man would want to import would be a boatload of women, but to those agriculturally minded the second priority would go to a colony of bees to insure increased production in fruits and vegetables," he predicted.

General Hutchison Finds Pacific Isles Good For Farming

"If an island like this were off the coast of Florida," the general stated, "its speedy development would astonish the world. It happens, however, to be on the other side of the earth from the important markets and, despite greatly improved refrigeration and increased shipping facilities, the probability of many crops produced here competing successfully with any that can be grown in the United States. It is just too far away."

These Pacific Islands, nevertheless, have some of the most beautiful land I have seen. There is no form of agriculture that can't be raised here successfully. All tropical fruits are abundant near sea level; in the uplands cereals and other crops of the temperate zone flourish," the Floridian observed.

"About some favored farm back home," he continued, "it is often said that it can produce everything that a family needs except coffee, spice, and sugar. Here, there is no need to make any qualifications whatever. I have seen coffee and various kinds of trees grow wild and, if that is not seasoning enough, I have run across salt deposits."

General Hutchison, however, pointed out that had no intention of colonizing for his heart is in Florida. His wife and family live in Sanford. One of his two daughters recently graduated from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. The

Market Director Urges Support For Agriculture Study

JACKSONVILLE, Dec. 11. (Special)—"Extension of agricultural research is an absolute necessity to the continuation of prosperous times for Florida growers after the war, for that reason we are glad to report the Florida State Chamber of Commerce at its annual meeting in Tampa last week recommended that the State provide adequate support for a continued program of agricultural research through the facilities of the Agricultural Experiment Station and Extension Service of the University of Florida." William L. Wilson, Director of State Markets, said in his crop and market review today.

National Commissioner of Agriculture, Nathan Mayo, in his remarks during the round-table discussion on marketing and production problems of agriculture laid special emphasis on the need for stated.

Conditions at various Markets he described as follows: "Strawberry growers in the Plant City section are refusing to sell at the 20-cent per pint selling price set by the O.P. R. E. Johnson Manager of the market there reports that 267 pints brought to the market one day last week were taken home by the growers who refused to accept the ceiling price. He points out that it is out of reason to expect the growers to pick over three, four or five acres of berries and then receive only 20 cents per pint for his product."

"Wuchito will have only a few small offerings of cucumbers, and white and yellow squash. Pepper and eggplant will continue to move in volume, with the peak of production still to be reached as a new crop will mature during the next ten days. The quality is improving. Some nice beans are being offered and movement will continue until extreme cold weather kills them."

"Sanford sold its first shipment of celery last week. For this week the market expects to have celery, cabbage, red bliss carrots, peppers, eggplant, English peas, lettuce, cucumbers, bunches onions and turnips, tomatoes, and grapefruit, oranges and tangerines."

"Pampanga reports a slight increase in volume of produce last week over the previous week, but a decrease is expected this week as it will be a period between crops planted prior to the storm and immediately after the storm. Weather conditions are not too favorable for growing crops, continuing warm and dry. "Pahokee movement continues steady, with demand for packing house stock beans fair. First English peas needed last week and green corn is now available, with supply exceeding demand. Weather continues favorable. Heavy movement of produce planted after the storm will start the latter part of this week."

"Fort Pierce reports tomatoes in great demand, with prices averaging from $6.00 to $10.00.

Movement about the same as previous week. Weather is warm and crops are growing very well."

"Pensacola movement was slowed by cold weather but is expected to pick up as weather improves."

Other is now attending Rollins College, Winter Park, Fla. The general himself is the highest ranking alumnus of Wolfer College in South Carolina.

Cold Weather In North Brings To Close Harvesting Of Anything Left

NEW YORK, Dec. 11. (Special)—This week's cold weather brought to a close the harvesting of anything left in the fields in the Northern States. Supplies were reduced somewhat by the change and the southern vegetable season is now coming into full winter schedule.

First of the new crop cabbage arrived this week from Florida and Texas. Some stock from the Carolinas has been arriving for several weeks but this is regarded more as late fall cabbage rather than winter. The first cars met a good reception with a car of Florida Copenhagen in 50-pound bags selling at $2.75-$3.00. A car of Texas Wakefield in bags sold the same morning at $3.00.

Old cabbage supplies are moderate and are coming mostly from New York State and the midwest. Some is still coming from Pennsylvania and Illinois, mostly to markets within their trading orbit, but many of the less important producing areas are cleaning up.

The general opinion seems to be that holdings of cabbage in the main northern areas are relatively limited and that they should clean up reasonably early. This comes with a catch, however, as there is always more cabbage showing up than was thought possible but it certainly does not look as if there would be surplus enough to interfere with the Texas and Florida crops.

Texas Has Good Rain

Texas has had some good rains during the past few days, which should prove beneficial to the cabbage crop in the long run. However, the shipments will continue light until after the first of the year.

Florida shipments are also likely to be moderate for the next three or four weeks, although some cabbage in the Glades is ready for shipment.

Florida bean supplies are running heavy, especially when this is supposed to be an in-between season period. Late this week the offerings were liberal enough to cause some breakers of price. One of the best sellers are wax beans at $2.75-$3.00 per hamper and plinients at $1.00-$1.50. Wax beans remain scarce and are selling at $5.00 up to the ceiling price of $5.50.

Some of the miscellaneous vegetables are bringing good prices at present. Broccoli sold up to $10 per crate for some real fine California stock. Chicory, or curly endive, which is esteemed as a salad green in New York, is bringing $1.00 per crate, which compares with California stock.

Some Louisiana bushel baskets brought $2.50-$3.00. There are no ceilings on broccoli and chicory so they occasionally run to high levels when scarce. They did much the same last season but there were periods when they also sold low.

California Celery Heavy

California celery is supplying most of the requirements at present. Small lots of New York State celery are still arriving and some nearby stock is coming but it is mostly California. Prices are good on anything that shows quality. Golden 20 inch crates is bringing $4.70-$7.00 with most of it at $5.00-$5.50. The Pascal is not selling so high and is mostly $5.75-$4.00 with a few up to $6.

Holdings in New York and Michigan are being reduced steadily and after the Christmas trade is supplied, they will not be an important factor. California is shipping about normal quantities and has a large territory to supply since all of the northwestern celery has been marketed. The Boston market, which has home-grown enough for its needs during the summer and fall, now requires outside delivery.

Some Florida stock will begin to move before long as earliest fields in the Everglades are about ready.

Florida Escarole

Florida escarole is beginning to arrive in liberal quantities and prices have weakened some under the plentiful supply. Most of the sales on bushel hampers were at $2.00-$2.50 at the close. Some Louisiana escarole is also arriving and is bringing $1.50 per bushel basket.

Cucumbers are getting scarce but the demand is not very heavy as they have been high priced for some time and the public has backed away from them. At the close there was a light demand at $7.50-$8.00 per bushel.

Best eggplants are selling fairly well with most sales of standard crates in a range of $4.00-$5.00 and smaller sizes $4.00-$5.00.

Good poppers are in demand as the supplies are not very abundant at this time. Florida fancy bushels were $1.00 with choices at $1.50 and plains at $2.00. Texas continues to ship a liberal supply here but the heavy part of the Texas season is over. Indications are that poppers will be in rather limited supply come the Texas are gone.

Yanks Sink Jap Convoy Of 11 Ships

Superforts Smash At Korea, Island Of Shikoku And Industrial Nagoya

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET
HEADQUARTERS, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Admiral Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific area, has just conferred with Army and Navy Commanders of the Central Pacific and Aleutian waters regarding strategic affecting important Pacific plans. It was disclosed today.

Superfortresses, hit Japan hard again while in the Philippines, Yank airmen smash or damaged all except one of a Japanese convoy of 11 ships. The Yanks lost eight planes.

Japan claimed the occupation of Ponson Island, tiny footland off Ormoc Bay, and sinking two destroyers, five other ships in the Philippines.

In China, Nantung was recaptured by the Chinese, moving southward toward Hoochow.

Supertankers in force, smashed at industrialized Nagoya, on Japan's main home island, in mid-afternoon. The force equalled or exceeded the largest group yet hitting Japan. The Japs said 20 also raided the home island of Shikoku and Japanese-occupied Korea. They said about 80 bombers caused some damage

Relief Forecast
From Severe Cold Wave By Friday

(By Associated Press)

Some relief from the season's most severe snowstorms was forecast today as a vast expanse of the nation was removing fresh snow from streets and highways.

West Virginia had the heaviest blizzard, but more than 100 people were killed.

Other 80 others were killed as causes attributed to a storm centering in Ontario.

The south is expected to have little relief before Friday. Florida's citrus apparently escaped unharmed and its truck crops apparently suffered only minor damage as the coldest wave of the season sent temperatures down to the low twenties in some sections.

The State Marketing Bureau at Jacksonville said damage to truck crops is not heavy as was generally expected and was very spotted as a whole. Director

William L. Wilson of the State Farmers' Markets also characterized the damage as light. Both emphasized that the surveys were preliminary.

Continued cold weather is in expect for today with indications not to be as severe for tomorrow morning.

Fire Disrupts Phone Service For 600 Users

Burning Flames Dam- age Section Of Park, Eighteenth While Truck Stalls

Telephone service in the southern part of town, and all the way to Lake Mary, including about 600 telephones was disrupted yesterday afternoon as burning trash on the lot adjoining the Park Apartments at Eighteenth Street and Park Avenue, spread to a nearby storage house and garage owned by John L. Galloway, 1718 Magnolia Avenue.

The intense heat of the fire, fanned by a driving wind, burned into and fused the lead of a 300 cable telephone wire over the burning storage shed, the flames sweeping on to the nearby garage.

Mr. Leslie Went, nearby resident noticed the flames of the burning trash during the early part of the fire. Mr. W. C. Herold reporter who had just arrived turned in the alarm at 3:46. Meanwhile, as the fire blazed onward unchecked for some time, he made another fire call. Fire Chief Cleveland then arrived and announced that the fire truck had broken down at the traffic light on First Street, because of motor trouble.

Another fire truck (No. 1) had just come back from a 145 mile trip from a grass fire, and even with the firemen working fast, did not have enough hose loaded on it to make the run at the time of the alarm. Chief Cleveland and Working frantically however, after they had towed back the per-
